All releases of the Ramo Company beginning September 1 will go through the Exclusive Supply Corporation. Contract putting the Ramo subjects on the Exclusive program was signed at the Exclusive offices in the Candler Building, New York City, August 27. Acting for the Ramo Company were Horace A. Snow, president; A. G. Leonard, secretary, and C. Lang Cobb, general manager. Harry R. Raver, secretary, and Joseph R. Miles, general manager, represented the Exclusive. The Ramo single releases will be discontinued and the Ramo Company will confine themselves exclusively to making two three-reel features monthly.

"WHILE THE STARLIGHT TRAVELS."

Doris Mitchell has only appeared in two or three Essanay photoplays, yet the photoplay public are clamoring for more of her. In "While the Starlight Travels," Miss Mitchell more than does justice to the role of Walla, and is generally believed that she will be liked in this production. Richard C. Travers, who is becoming more prominent every day, does splendid work as a stalwart warrior Tulon. Others to be congratulated are Thomas Commerford and Charles Hitchcock. The story of "While the Starlight Travels," was published in the August 30th issue of the World, page 986.

Scene from "While the Starlight Travels" (Essanay).

"THE BRIDE'S KEY" (Universal).

The first Florence Lawrence feature that has just been completed by Director Harry Salter for the Universal, is a strong love story that shows Miss Lawrence at her best. The scenario was written by Capt. Leslie T. Peacocke, and is an adaptation of his powerful short story "The Victorious Surrender," which appeared last fall in "The Smart Set" magazine.

A SCOOP FOR GAUMONT.

The Gaumont Weekly No. 77 contained a rather complete review of the Diggs-Caminetti trial in San Francisco. This was the first animated record covering this international story to appear anywhere. Another film on the same subject has been rather widely advertised and will be released September first, but the Gaumont Weekly beat all its competitors in handling this important news matter.

"THE ROAD TO THE DAWN."

This photoplay is one of Arthur Johnson's masterpieces, the sad story of a derelict, who after the golden days have passed is brought to realize that drink has destroyed his life, and caused the ruin of the beautiful girl, who loved him. The picture is a Lubin two-reel and employs a select cast of the home studio players.

Bill Hedrick, the village drunkard, works enough to get the cost of his jug of liquor, which is sent every week. From the town where the liquor is shipped, Mary Lane, a widow, broken by privation, realizing that she is near her end, takes her little girl, Daisy, to the express office and consigns her to a near relative. She places a ring in a bag around the child's neck instructing her not to let anybody enroute see the ring. In the express office the tags get mixed and the child is consigned to Hedrick. On delivery Bill refuses to accept the child, but the express agent bullies him into paying the $4 and taking Daisy. Bill puts the baby to bed and as he watches her he thinks of days long ago, when a handsome young blacksmith, he hammered a ring out of a gold coin and gave it to his sweetheart, who deserted him on account of his drinking and married another man. As Bill is watching the child his craving for the jug of whiskey overcomes him. A booze peddler passes and offers a small bottle; he has no money, but by feeling the bag around the child's neck he finds that it contains a ring. To get the liquor he steals it and recognizes the ring he had hammered out for Mary. He drives the peddler away and taking the child in his arms hurries out into the night taking a road to a new and better life.

Scene from "The Road to the Dawn" (Lubin).

JEANETTE TRIMBLE REJOINS KLEINE-CINES CO.

After a portracted illness, which necessitated her retirement from pictures, Jeanette Trimble, well known to American picture fans as a Cines leading woman, announces that she will again be seen in regular Kleine-Cines releases. Miss Trimble plays Cleopatra in "Antony & Cleopatra," the seven-reel Kleine-Cines feature.

JAMES NEILL TO DIRECT FOR UNIVERSAL.

James Neill, the veteran stock actor and impresario, has joined the Universal forces as director. This announcement comes as a finale to a persistent campaign upon the part of general manager Bernstein of the west coast organization at Universal City, who offered a series of inducements that eventually persuaded him.

CHARLEY SIMONE IS AT LIBERTY.

Charles Simone, the undiscovered Mansfield of Italy, whose business talents have been recognized in America, writes from Bayonne, N. J., that he has just resigned his dual position as general manager of the Centaur Film Co., of N. J., and the Venus Features Co. He says he feels very much at liberty, though he feels confident of hooking up somewhere, somehow in the immediate future. Charley has been in the moving picture business a long time and understands the manufacturing and selling branches of it thoroughly. Personally he is a gentleman, and has a most amiable disposition. He has held many positions of trust and his integrity as a business man is unquestioned.

RELIANCE—MAJESTIC—AUTHORIZED STATEMENT

The Reliance Company has now moved its studio to the newly acquired Clara Morris Estate at Riverdale, on the Hudson, and, according to Mr. H. E. Aitken, who in addition to his many other activities is president and general manager of the company, elaborate arrangements are being made for larger and better productions.

Geo. W. Lederer, the well known theatrical producer is now associated with the Reliance and will stage some large and expensive features.

J. P. Dunning, formerly vice-president of the Corn Exchange Bank, who has recently become associated with Mr. Aitken is also very active in the company at the present time.

Mr. Ritchey is treasurer of the company and still active in its affairs, but his outside interests have become so pressing as to demand a great deal of the time formerly given to the Reliance.

Mr. Aitken, who is also undertaking the active management of the Majestic Company, of which he has been president since its organization, also announces that Fred Mace is coming east to work at the Reliance studios, where he will, however, produce pictures for the Majestic. This move has been made for the purpose of affording Mr. Mace better support and assistance in the productions in which he is featured.

"STREETS OF NEW YORK" SELLING WELL.

"The Streets of New York," Pilot Film Company's three-part attraction of Dion Boucicault's great play, has been secured by Herman J. Garfield, Columbia Building, Cleveland, Ohio, for the States of Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan and Wisconsin. It is in four reels of high class photography and is one of the best moving pictures ever made of New York life. One thousand feet have been made specially for Mr. Garfield, introducing the different scenes in that great play. A special high class lobby display and an extraordinary line of advertising material and lecture has been prepared for each of the five companies that Mr. Garfield expects to operate in the territory included in his purchase.

"HIGH TREASON."

Kleine-Cines Release for September 16th.

"High Treason" is the title of a Kleine-Cines release which, it is predicted, will make a distinct sensation among picture fans. The story centers about the bribing of a Government wireless operator and aside from a good story, the infinite work of the producers cannot fail to deeply impress. For instance, one gets many enchanting glimpses of the board of trade at its busiest hour, a complete wireless station, the embarking of thousands of. troops, the composing room of a great Italian daily with thirty compositors at their boxes, the war extras coming from the presses, the crowds of hooded women and bare-foot boys seizing the papers as they are handed from the circulation rooms, the thousands of frantic, war-mad people swarming the streets, with the occasional fanatic mounted on a convenient window-sill exhorting the populace to war.

There follow many battle-scenes which were actually taken by Cines during the Balkan war and are cleverly worked into the story. The big thirteen-inch disappearing guns, cavalry charges and infantry skirmishes all combine to make a two-reel subject of extraordinary power and appeal. The release of this picture, will, no doubt, create wide comment.

SMITH OPENS SUPPLY HOUSE.

There has come a new member to the ranks of motion picture supply houses. He is Percy L. Smith, of Roanoke, Va., who has opened a first class supply house in that city. Mr. Smith carries in stock everything that exhibitors and operators need, and wants manufacturers of all kinds of supplies, worthy of handling, to get into communication with him.

HAUPTMANN'S "ATLANTIS."

The distinguished German literary genius, Gerhart Hauptmann is the latest celebrity in the world of letters to give consent to have one of his masterpieces reproduced in moving pictures. The Great Northern Film Co. has obtained from him the rights to produce, in moving pictures, his thrilling story of "Atlantis." Those who have read the intensely interesting novel will appreciate the magnitude of the undertaking and when it is considered that it is to be presented in nine reels, the task of the Great Northern Co. may well be regarded as an achievement out of the ordinary in the annals of feature films. Hauptmann in accepting the Great Northern's liberal offer for the rights to "Atlantis" was assured that nothing would be done by halves and his every wish was gratified, even to the selecting of many of the principals. Cameramen were sent broadcast in order to film the re-enacting of the German author's literary creation.

The Scandinavian-American liner C. F. Tietgen, 12,000 tons burden was chartered at a cost of $6,000 and with officers and crew and a passenger list of 500, steamed into the North Sea, where many of the more exciting scenes in the drama were reproduced. Nothing was left undone along the lines of realism, even to the sinking of a vessel on the high seas. The Great Northern Film Co. has been fortunate in receiving suggestions from Hauptmann during the preliminary preparations for the presentation of the "Atlantis" feature.

It was at his suggestion that the principal feminine role was allotted to Madame Orloff, the famous actress of Berlin. Unthan, who was Hauptmann's inspiration for the character of Arthur Stoss, the "armless wonder" was engaged to play the role for the feature photo-drama. Unthan has made several visits to America and has been seen in the principal vaudeville theaters. Gerhart Hauptmann, who was the winner of the $10,000 Nobel prize in literature has manifested a deep interest in the film production of "Atlantis" which represents an outlay of $60,000 by the Great Northern Film Co.

LILY LANGTRY'S LEADING MAN WITH CRYSTAL.

A new face has been noticed in the late releases of Crystal films that photoplay fans have been unable to place. The work of this artist has been so worthy that it has caused comment and inquiries have been made as to who the newcomer is. Investigation discloses that he is Henry Gsell, who for years starred with Lily Langtry, playing opposite the Jersey Lily on her last tour of this country. Mr. Gsell, besides being an actor of recognized ability, has good looks and a pleasing personality and his acquisition by Crystal films as a permanent member of its stock company, should be more than satisfactory to the fans. Mr. Gsell appears in mostly all of the forthcoming Crystal releases and his work merits attention.

SHERRY BOOKING FAMOUS PLAYERS IN N. Y.

The Wm. L. Sherry Feature Film Company has closed with the Regent Theater for the exhibition of all the Famous Players Features in that magnificent house at 116th Street and Seventh Avenue. The Moss and Brill circuit has booked the entire service of features for all of its houses, including the Hamilton, Jefferson and the 86th Street in New York City. The Sherry Company is the exclusive agent for the Famous Players new feature service for the entire state of New York.

W. S. CLEVELAND'S BOOKING BUSINESS EXPANDING.

The Cleveland-Fidelity Offices claim to book for a larger number of theaters than any other popular-priced agency, and on their circuit are theaters of all sizes, from those using ten and twelve big features each week, to little houses that use only two or three acts in conjunction with moving pictures. Performers accepting a route from the Cleveland agency are glad to get all the "time" possible, for they have learned that the little fellow's money is just as good as the big one's, and the day has passed when there is any stigma connected with playing the small time.

"THE JEWELED SLIPPERS" (Selig).

As "John Street," the mystical detective, Thomas Corrigan is the leading light in a two-reel Selig feature entitled, "The Jeweled Slippers," which is scheduled for release September 1.

This picture is another unique story in the series of Selig releases, dealing with the exploits and adventures of "The Man in the Street." The alert character of John Street is one of the best interpretations yet given by this capable young actor.

ITALA FEATURES POPULAR.

A record sale, attesting the drawing power of the feature films, is responsible for the action of Sam Benjamin, of Chicago, in purchasing a second copy of "Tigris," for Iowa, for which state Mr. Benjamin has the exhibition rights. This is probably the first time in the history of state rights that two copies of such a long subject as "Tigris" have ever been sold for Iowa alone. "The Death Knell," the Itala three-reel subject, is being actively booked by the Golden Gate Film Exchange, of San Francisco, and the Emby Feature Film Company, of New York City, W. E. Greene, of Boston, and the Attractive Feature Film Company, of Philadelphia. The Weiland Feature Film Company, of Pittsburgh, have bought the Itala two-reeler, "Branded for Life," as have also the M. & F. Feature Film Company, of Chicago.

MRS. FISKE IN "TESS OF THE D'URBERVILLES."

Another Famous Players' Achievement.

The appearance of Mrs. Fiske, America's favorite artiste, in motion pictures, marks another epoch in the history of film progress. "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," Thomas Hardy's dramatic story, made famous on the stage by Mrs. Fiske's portrayal and just recently produced by the Famous Players Film Company, is one of the choicest subjects ever introduced into motion pictures. The combination of one of the foremost actresses of the day and the most noted work of a famous novelist should serve to place the Famous Players on a more important plane that it has ever before occupied. This production is the first of the "30 Famous Features a Year," to be released by the Famous Players on its extended program.

PITY THE POOR PUBLICITY MAN!

By Bert Adler.

Now wouldn't it jar you if you were handling the publicity of a big feature—and knowing that figures talk, you gathered that several thousands dollars were being spent on production—but to take no chances, you proclaimed the expenditure $10,000, meaning that you "laid on" a couple thou. for safety's sake.

And then the picture took longer to produce than the director figured, more people to be used, more "sets" built, more costumes made, more properties bought or rented—expenses went up, up, up, until the advertised figures were doubled.

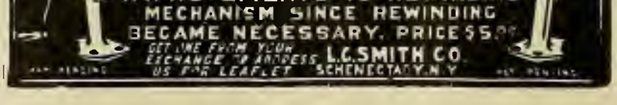
Well, wouldn't that jar you? It was Bert Adler's experience in publicizing the Majestic "Sapho." The $10,000 figure was the expense guess before the start of the picture. But twice that figure was the official finding of the Majestic bookkeepers upon the actual completion of the picture.

EIGHT FEATURES A MONTH.

The True Feature Company of 110 West 40th Street, which distributes the product of the Continental K. F. Society for the United States and Canada has arranged for a regular weekly output of two features of an average length of three reels. These features cover the widest possible range of subjects from the pure drama to thrilling stories of the world of sports notably the cycle and automobile sport. The dramas are for the most part directed by Theodore Burgarth, formerly director of the Irving Place theater, while the sporting stories are under the direction of experts, which assures the right atmosphere and absolute correctness in all matters of sporting technique. Their great four reel drama "The Doom of Darkness," is selling well on the state rights plan.

RELIANCE RELEASES OMITTED.

There will be no Reliance release on Wednesday, September 3, to allow for the three-reel production of "The Glow Worm" by Will Levington Comfort, released on September 6. The release of Wednesday, September 10, will also be omitted to allow for the two-reel subject "The Clown's Daughter," which appears on September 13. Following the latter date the regular three weekly Reliance releases will be made as usual.



THE L.C.SMITH REWINDING SET
EMBRACES THE FIRST NOTEWORTHY IMPROVEMENTS TO REWINDING MECHANISM SINCE REWINDING BECAME NECESSARY. PRICE $5.00
GET ONE FROM YOUR EXCHANGE OR ADDRESS US FOR LEAFLET
L.C.SMITH CO.
SCHENECTADY, N.Y.

When the Strong Joins with the Strong

RAMO

SIGNS WITH THE EXCLUSIVE

Beginning September 1st All Releases of the Ramo Company Will Form Part of the

EXCLUSIVE PROGRAM

2 THREE REEL FEATURES MONTHLY

When Is the Best Time to Wake Up?

After the Other Fellow Has Grabbed Everything?

Do you want to feel the chagrin of those exchange men in Northern Illinois, Texas, California, Nevada and Arizona, Washington, Oregon and Idaho, Eastern Pennsylvania, Western Pennsylvania and New England, who waited too long before attempting to contract for the

Exclusive Program

What would happen to your business if these brands were taken away from you today?

Gaumont Ramo Itala Great Northern
Dragon Eclectic Solax Ammex
Film Releases of America
Lewis Pennant Blache American Features

Also the All Star Feature Corporation's Master-Plays, beginning with Augustus Thomas' "ARIZONA"

WEEKLY PROGRAM

5 Three-Reel Features 7 Regular Releases

Exclusive Supply Corporation

220 West 42nd Street, New York City

Calendar of Licensed Releases.

CURRENT RELEASES.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 1st, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—Among Club Fellows (Comedy)........
BIOGRAPH—Edwin's Badge of Honor (Comedy).....
EDISON—The Younger Generation (Comedy).........1000
KALEM—The Christian (Drama) 1000
LUBIN—A Mountain Mother (Drama)................1000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly No. 46 (News).......
SELIG—The Jeweled Slippers (Special—2 parts—Dr.)..2000
VITAGRAPH—The Passing of Joe Mary (Drama)....1000

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2nd, 1913.

EDISON—The Grecian Vase (Phantasy)..............1000
ESSANAY—Stone the Woman (Drama)...............1000
LUBIN—The Engaging Kid (Comedy)...............
LUBIN—Trimming a Boob (Comedy)................
PATHEPLAY—Whiffles Decides to Be Boss (Comedy)
PATHEPLAY—In the Caucasian Mountains (Travel)..
CINES—The Sign of the Black Lily (Special—2 parts—Drama) ....
SELIG—The Lonely Heart (Drama)..................1000
VITAGRAPH—His Lordship, Billy Smoke (Comedy)..1000

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3rd, 1913.

EDISON—A Series of Tallulah Falls, Ga. (Scenic)..... 225
EDISON—The Girl, the Clown and the Donkey (Com.) 775
ESSANAY—Mr. Dippy Dipped (Comedy).............1000
KALEM—The Sacrifice at the Spillway (2 parts—Drama—Special) 2000
PATHEPLAY—The Climax (Drama) ....
SELIG—The Way of Life (Drama)....................1000
VITAGRAPH—The Kiss of Retribution (Drama)......1000

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—A Woman in the Ultimate (Drama)......
ESSANAY—Hard Luck Bill (Comedy)................1000
LUBIN—The Road to the Dawn (Special—2 parts—Dr.)2000
MELIES—A Day at Singapore (Scenic) 1000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly No. 47 (News)........
PATHEPLAY—Fickle Fortune's Favor (Comedy).....
PATHEPLAY—With the Natives of New Zealand (Manners and Customs) ....
SELIG—Howlin' Jones (Comedy) ....
VITAGRAPH—The Lonely Princess (Drama).........

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5th, 1913.

EDISON—The Awakening of the Man (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
ESSANAY—While the Starlight Travels (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
KALEM—Bogg's Predicament (Comedy) ....
KALEM—Children of the Tenements (Topical)........
LUBIN—In the Southland (Drama) 1000
PATHEPLAY—The Otter (Zoology) ....
PATHEPLAY—In the Abruzzi (Travel).............
SELIG—Nan of the Woods (Drama)..................1000
VITAGRAPH—The Baby Elephant (Educational)......
VITAGRAPH—Pickwick (Comedy) ....

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—The Strong Man's Burden (Drama).....
EDISON—Slander's Tongue (Drama) 1000
ESSANAY—Broncho Billy's Conscience (Drama).....1000
KALEM—The Hand of Destiny (Drama).............1000
LUBIN—In the Toils (Drama).......................1000
PATHEPLAY—The Price of Jealousy (Drama).......
VITAGRAPH—When Women Go On the Warpath (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000

ADVANCE RELEASES.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—A Modest Hero (Drama)...............
EDISON—Keepers of the Flock (Drama).............1000
KALEM—The Bribe (Drama)..........................1000
LUBIN—Seeds of Wealth (Drama)...................1000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly No. 48 (News)........
SELIG—The Wheels of Fate (Special—2 parts—Drama).2000
VITAGRAPH—Cupid Versus Woman's Rights (Comedy-Drama) 1000

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9th, 1913.

EDISON—A Light on Troubled Waters (Drama)......1000
ESSANAY—Sunlight (Drama) 1000
LUBIN—Playing with Fire (Drama).................1000
PATHEPLAY—Sleufoot's Seventh Suicide (Comedy)..
CINES—The Mysterious Man (Spec.—2 parts—Drama).
SELIG—The Rancher's Failing (Drama)..............1000
VITAGRAPH—Old Moddington's Daughters (Comedy-Drama) 1000

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10th, 1913.

EDISON—The Desperate Condition of Mr. Boggs (Comedy) 1000
ESSANAY—The Treater's Treat (Comedy)...........1000
KALEM—The Fatal Legacy (Special—2 parts—Drama).2000
PATHEPLAY—Across the Chasm (Drama)...........
SELIG—Around Battle Tree (Drama).................1000
VITAGRAPH—Fortune's Turn (Drama)..............1000

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—Baby Indisposed (Comedy).............
BIOGRAPH—The Lady in Black (Comedy)...........
ESSANAY—Bonnie of the Hills (Drama).............1000
LUBIN—The Hill of Strife (Special—2 parts—Drama)..2000
MELIES—(Title Not Reported) ....
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly No. 49 (News)........
PATHEPLAY—The Accidental Shot (Drama).........
SELIG—Two Too Many (Comedy)....................1000
VITAGRAPH—The Tiger (Drama)....................1000

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12th, 1913.

EDISON—Caste (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
ESSANAY—Grist to the Mill (Special—2 parts—Drama).2000
KALEM—Wanted, a Plumber (Comedy)...............
KALEM—Too Many Cops (Comedy)...................
LUBIN—Panama Hat Industry (Industrial)............ 400
LUBIN—An Exclusive Pattern (Comedy)............. 600
PATHEPLAY—Young Hearts and Old (Drama)........
SELIG—Her Way (Drama)..........................
VITAGRAPH—Sauce for the Goose (Comedy).........1000

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—An Unjust Suspicion (Drama)...........
EDISON—The Green Eye of the Yellow God (Drama)..1000
ESSANAY—Broncho Billy Reforms (Drama)...........1000
KALEM—The Monogrammed Cigarette (Drama)......1000
LUBIN—The Medal of Honor (Drama)...............1000
PATHEPLAY—A Jungle Flirtation (Comedy).........
PATHEPLAY—Tahiti, the Picturesque (Travel)........
VITAGRAPH—The Lost Millionaire (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000

POPULAR PHOTOPLAYERS

One-sheet posters of Licensed Stars, 7 for $1.00 or 14 for $2.00, postage prepaid; singly, 15c. each. Photos, 11 x 14, of Association, Mutual or Universal Stars, $2.00 a dozen or 20c. singly, postage prepaid. High-grade quality postcards, 300 different Universal, Mutual and Association Players, 30c. a hundred or $3.00 a thousand. Send for free advertising matter.

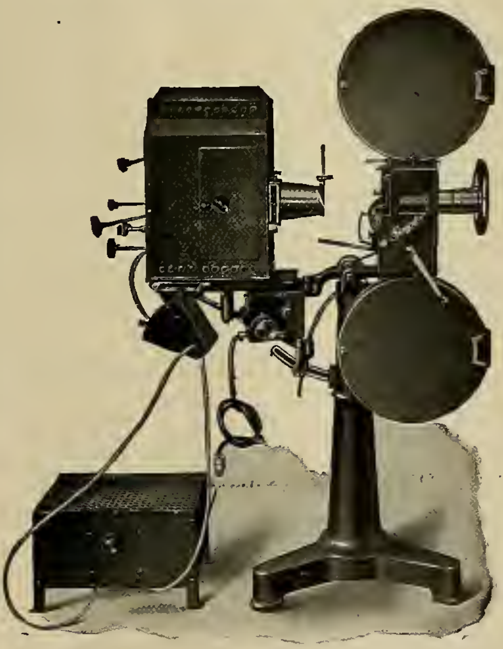
EXHIBITORS' ADVERTISING & SPECIALTY CO.
Arthur D. Jacobs, Pres.
30 Union Square, New York

Simplex

Projectors give perfect screen results and are

BUILT TO WEAR

That is why Simplex has been selected by over 90% of the photoplay manufacturers and importers for their own use, Geo. Kleine for the projection of that masterpiece Quo Vadis, the head offices in New York of the General Film Co., Mutual Film Corp. and Universal Film Mfg. Co. and the Kinemacolor Co. for the projection of their natural color pictures all over the world.



Kinemacolor pictures are projected at twice the ordinary speed (thirty-two pictures a second). The fact that Simplex has been selected in preference to all other American and European machines for this severe service is proof of its remarkable wearing qualities and perfect projection.

When Simplex machines are insisted upon by such Companies as the above, you are very foolish, Mr. Exhibitor, to use anything else. Follow the lead of the big successful men and you won't go wrong.

Write today for Catalogue A

MADE AND GUARANTEED BY

PRECISION MACHINE CO.
317 East 34th Street, New York City, N. Y.

Calendar of Independent Releases

Universal Film Mfg. Co. Current Releases

SUNDAY, AUGUST 31st, 1913.

CRYSTAL—The Red Heart (Drama)
ECLAIR—The Runaway Uncle (Comedy)
REX—The Call (Drama)

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 1st, 1913.

IMP—The Trail of the Serpent (Drama)
NESTOR—The Oath of Conchita (2 parts—Drama)
GEM—A Tale of a Fish (Comedy)

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2nd, 1913.

BISON—Pelleas and Melisande (3 parts—Drama)
CRYSTAL—Much Ado About Nothing (Drama)
CRYSTAL—Baldy Belmont and the Old Maid (Com.)

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3rd, 1913.

NESTOR—Gold and Water (Drama)
POWERS—The Surrender (Comedy-Drama)
ECLAIR—Steel (2 parts—Drama)
UNIVERSAL—The Animated Weekly No. 78 (News).

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4th, 1913.

IMP—The Pursuit of Jane (Comedy-Drama)
REX—The Evil Power (2 parts—Drama)
FRONTIER—Flirty Florence (Comedy)

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5th, 1913.

NESTOR—Won By a Skirt (Comedy)
POWERS—The Reincarnation of a Soul (Drama)
VICTOR—The Lost Copperhead (Comedy)

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6th, 1913.

IMP—Binks, the Hawkshaw (Comedy)
IMP—Humors of Summer by Hy. Mayer (Novelty)
101 BISON—The Love of Men (2 parts—Drama)
FRONTIER—The Surgeon of Abajo (Drama)

ADVANCE RELEASES.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 7th, 1913.

CRYSTAL—Lost in the Night (Drama)
ECLAIR—A Vegetarian's Dream (Comedy)
ECLAIR—The Habit's of Field Spiders (Scientific)
REX—The Light Woman (Drama)

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1913.

IMP—Robespierre (Three parts—Drama)
NESTOR—Poisoned Waters (Drama)
GEM—The Gold Mesh Bag (Comedy)

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9th, 1913.

101 BISON—A Forest Romance (Two parts—Drama)
CRYSTAL—Pleasing Her Husband (Comedy)
CRYSTAL—Some Luck (Comedy)

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10th, 1913.

NESTOR—Algy Forfeits His Claim (Comedy)
NESTOR—Views of Stockholm (Scenic)
POWERS—Mother (Drama)
ECLAIR—The Banker's Daughter (Two parts—Drama).
UNIVERSAL—The Animated Weekly No. 79 (News)

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11th, 1913.

IMP—The Shells (Drama)
REX—The Diamond Makers (Two parts—Drama)
FRONTIER—Dorothea and the Chief Razamataz (Com.)

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12th, 1913.

NESTOR—The Girl Ranchers (Comedy)
POWERS—In the Cycle of Life (Drama)
VICTOR—A Bride from the Sea (Two parts—Drama)

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13th, 1913.

IMP—Binks Elevates the Stage (Comedy)
IMP—Hy Mayer Cartoons (Novelty)
101 BISON—Wandering Folk (Two parts—Drama)
FRONTIER—On Forbidden Paths (Drama)

Mutual Film Corporation Current Releases

SUNDAY, AUGUST 31st, 1913.

BRONCHO—The Broken Thread (Drama)
MAJESTIC—A Trade Secret (Drama)
THANHOUSER—Frazzled Finance (Comedy-Drama)

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 1st, 1913.

AMERICAN—Where There's Life (Drama)
KEYSTONE—Fatty's Day Off (Comedy)
KEYSTONE—Los Angeles Harbor, Cal. (Topical)
RELIANCE—Feeney's Social Experiment (Drama)

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2nd, 1913.

MAJESTIC—A Perilous Ride (Drama)
MAJESTIC—The Great Santa Monica Road Race (Top.)
THANHOUSER—The Veteran Police Horse (2 parts—Drama)

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3rd, 1913.

BRONCHO—The Gambler's Pal (Drama)
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly No. 36 (News)
RAMO—The Black Opal (Drama)
RELIANCE—(No Release This Date)

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4th, 1913.

AMERICAN—The Poisoned Chop (Drama) 1000
KEYSTONE—Title not reported.
MUTUAL—Title not reported.
PILOT—Title not reported.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5th, 1913.

KAY-BEE—The Ironmaster (2 parts—Drama)
THANHOUSER—(No Release This Date)

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Mysterious Eyes (Drama) 1000
MAJESTIC—The Turkish Bath (Comedy)
RELIANCE—The Glow Worm (3 parts—Drama)

ADVANCE RELEASES.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 7th, 1913.

MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported)
THANHOUSER—His Last Bet (Comedy)

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1913.

AMERICAN—For the Crown (Drama) 1000
KEYSTONE—(Title Not Reported)
RELIANCE—Between Home and Country (Drama)

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9th, 1913.

MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported)
THANHOUSER—Taming Their Grandchildren

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10th, 1913.

BRONCHO—The Judge's Son (Drama)
MUTUAL—Mutual No. 37 (News)
RAMO—(Title Not Reported)
RELIANCE—(No Release This Date)

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Through the Neighbor's Window (Com.) 1000
KEYSTONE—(Title Not Reported)
MUTUAL—(Title Not Reported)
PILOT—(Title Not Reported)

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12th, 1913.

KAYBEE—The Waif (Drama)
THANHOUSER—The Message of Headquarters (Dr.)

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Red Sweeney's Defeat (Drama) 1000
MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported)
RELIANCE—The Clown's Daughter (2 part-Drama)

Exclusive Supply Corporation Current Releases

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 1st, 1913.

ECLECTIC—The Thrust of Hate (Feature Subject—Dr.)
DRAGON—Title not reported.
F. R. A.—Dr. Nicholson and the Blue Diamond (Feature Subject)
LEWIS PENNANT—Decreed To Die (Feature Subject Drama)

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2nd, 1913.

GAUMONT—The Fatal Bell (Drama)

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3rd, 1913.

SOLAX—Men and Muslin (Comedy)
GAUMONT—Gaumont's Weekly No. 78 (News)

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4th, 1913.

GAUMONT—"Some" Fireman (Comedy)

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5th, 1913.

LUX—A Timely Reminder (Drama)
SOLAX—Retribution (Drama)

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6th, 1913.

GREAT NORTHERN—A Girl Graduate (Comedy)

ADVANCE RELEASES.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1913.

DRAGON—(Title Not Reported)
F. R. A.—The Voice of the Wild (Feature Release)

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9th, 1913.

GAUMONT—An Actor's Adventure (Drama)

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10th, 1913.

SOLAX—Dooley and His Dog (Comedy)
GAUMONT—Gaumont's Weekly No. 79 (News)

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11th, 1913.

GAUMONT—Love Me, Love My Animals (Comedy)

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12th, 1913.

LUX—(Title Not Reported)
SOLAX—Gratitude (Drama)

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13th, 1913.

GREAT NORTHERN—(Title Not Reported)

Another New York Motion Picture Corporation Triumph

WATCH OUT!! WATCH OUT!!

for

PEERLESS FILMS

IN 2 AND 3 MASSIVE REELS

Gigantic Naval Spectacles Picturesque Puritan Productions

Mark the Date of the First Release

(2 REELS) "THE BONDSMAN" (2 REELS)

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18th

A Red-Blooded Production of Wonderful Power and Dignity

To Exhibitor and Public: These two and three reel Feature Films of the New York Motion Picture Corporation are Peerless in Name, in Story, in Acting and Photography; Messrs. Kessel and Baumann have excelled their reputation for extraordinary and mammoth film spectacles in giving Peerless Productions to the Exhibitor. The Mutual exhibitor showing Kay-Bee, Broncho and Keystone pictures will have additional cause to rejoice when the Peerless Brand is added to the Program.

P. S.—Owing to copyright laws, the name EMPIRE, under which brand the above pictures were to be released, has been changed to PEERLESS!!

New York Motion Picture Corporation
Long Acre Building
Broadway, at 42nd Street, New York City

MUTUAL PROGRAM EXCLUSIVELY

CORRESPONDENCE

PITTSBURG.

THE Cameraphone Company, which controls a string of theaters in this city and Cleveland, has been incorporated with a capital of $10,000.

A building permit for the erection of a motion picture theater at 4513-15 Bntler Street has been awarded to John P. O'Conoel. The new theater will be built of brick and steel, will cost $13,000 and will occupy a space 40 x 100.

Moving pictures are now being used in this city to teach safety to the employees of the big local steel mills. The pictures are being shown in the Carnegie library at Homestead, and they illustrate the methods of properly conducting duties which will preclude any possibility of accident. The pictures were taken at the Homestead Works of the Carnegie Steel Company and were acted by efficient employees of the company. The pictures are lectured by L. H. Burnett, assistant to the president of the big steel company. The film will be shown in all the manufacturing towns around Pittsburgh.

The miscellaneous posters that the Pittsburgh theaters used to a great extent last Winter have disappeared and even the worst offenders of that time are now using the paper supplied by the film companies. In some cases last Winter the posters in front of several of the largest theaters in town were ludicrous. Old four-sheets from "East Lynne," "The Old Homestead" and similar old timers were used to advertise moving picture stories. Now, however, these methods have changed. The Pittsburgh theaters display paper that is clean, new and descriptive. The foyers present an attractive, artistic appearance, and the posters now equal the best put out by even the more expensive "legitimate" plays.

H. E. Kennedy & Co. is working on the plans of a small moving picture theater to be built at Federal and Isabella Streets, Northside. It will be on a lot 40 x 100, one story and a balcony in height and will have a seating capacity of 800. It will be built of brick, with a terra cotta exterior.

Application for a Pennsylvania State charter has been made for the Broughton Nickelodeon & Amusement Co., which will build and operate picture houses in western Pennsylvania. The incorporators are William J. Stilley, Harry Y. DeViney and Harry Martin.

The films showing the various municipal departments of this city at work have proven very popular, and one section of them displaying the fire and police departments was shown at two of the local theaters.

The Pitt Theater Company has been incorporated in this city by Richard V. Nnttall, Arthur D. Rogers, Charles Schlegel and U. Murray Carr.

Harry Davis and John P. Harris, the amusement magnates of this city, have purchased a plot of ground, 100 x 135 feet, on the south side of Forbes Street, opposite the Schenley Hotel. On this plot of ground the amusement kings have decided to erect what is to be the handsomest theater in Pittsburgh. The structure is to cost not less han $200,000 and will represent the latest idea in theatrical architecture and the best thought and practice in the science of acoustics. There are to be no storerooms in connection with the building, and it will have a capacity larger than any theater between Philadelphia and Chicago.

A building permit has been issued to the Harry Moore Estate to build a one-story brick store and motion picture theater in Warrington Avenue, to cost $7,000.

Keny & Wagner, proprietors of the Comique Theater, Ashland, have closed a deal for the purchase of a lot on North Centre Avenue for $8,500. A motion picture theater will be erected thereon.

Thomas Kenyon, who built the handsome new theater at Penn Avenue and Sandusky Street and the Kenyon Theater on Federal Street, Northside, proposes to build a mammoth vaudeville and motion picture house on the site of the Federal Apartment building that was burned some time ago. If his offer for the plot is accepted, Mr. Kenyon will build a theater thereon that will cover the entire plot, from Federal Street to Weisser Street, a distance of 240 feet, and from Moody Street north for 60 feet. The plan is to have the entrance on Federal Street, with a big foyer, and sufficient room inside the theater to seat comfortably at least 3,000 persons. Such a building, according to Mr. Kenyon, would cost about $125,000.

J. W. Fagan, Joseph Fisher and Frank G. Cawley have made application for a Pennsylvania charter for the Garrick Theater Company, the character of which will be the establishing and maintenance of a moving picture theater in this city.

D. L. MANLEY.

LOUISVILLE.

THE Louisville Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association will continue to hold its meetings in the offices formerly occupied jointly by the Central Film Exchange and the Princess Amusement Company, but now left to the former concern, since A. F. Mayer and Irving Simon left Louisville for New York. Judge Allen Kinney, one of the principal stockholders in the company, is now handling the Princess's affairs from his office. Manager R. S. Schrader, however, addressed a cordial letter to the association, inviting it to continue the use of his offices for its meetings, the central location rendering it particularly convenient, and the organization accepted the offer at once.

Two big Bison 101 three-reel features have recently taken remarkably well with Louisville audiences, who saw them first at the Novelty Theater, to which they were furnished through the Central Film Exchange. One was "Robinson Crusoe," and the other "The Death Stone of India." The company's departure from the Indian-cowboy films, which have been somewhat overdone of late, has been a fortunate one, judging by the hits made by these new features, and patrons of the shows, as well as exhibitors, are eagerly looking for more of the same sort.

Manager Louis Dittmar, of the Majestic, has made another ten-strike in securing the exclusive rights to the productions of the Famous Players Film Company in this territory. The service will start about September 1, and will include three big features a month, the films running from three to five reels. The first release shown locally will be "The Prisoner of Zenda," with James K. Hackett in the role. "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," with Mrs. Fiske in the title role. "His Neighbor's Wife," with Mrs. Lillie Langtry, and "A Good Little Devil," starring Mary Pickford, will follow in rapid succession.

Morton Shaw, or "Mort," as he is more familiarly known in Louisville, who has been associated with his father, Col. C. A. Shaw, at the Avenue Theater for some sixteen years, has moved up a peg, taking charge of the Baker Theater, at Rochester, shortly. The house plays popular priced attractions in the Stair & Havlin circuit. Mr. Shaw has filled all positions in the theater, starting at the Avenue as usher under his father, and ending by managing the house himself. His winter's trial of moving pictures and vaudeville at the old house, which is now being removed to make way for a ten-cent store, was eminently successful—so much so, in fact, that the Walnut followed suit when the work of tearing out the avenue began. Col. Shaw, who manages the Walnut, has not yet announced his plans for the coming season.

The New Grand, Charles Berger's new house at Twenty-seventh and Portland avenue, continues to do a very satisfactory business, taxing the capacity of the house, which is only 250, nearly every night. In fact, when the Westonia Airdome, Ed Clay's summer bonanza at Twenty-sixth and Rudd avenue, closes, which it will as soon as cool weather begins, Manager Berger will be turning them away. The management of the new venture is rather taxing Mr. Berger's time, as he is engaged in business in Louisville, and finds even the evening run down to the show frequently bothersome. Alfred Klitchmyer, manager of the Berger house at Corydon, Ind., which is also called the New Grand, was in the city recently, and visited the new house.

Meredith & Cook, of Louisville, are preparing to open a new house at Twenty-seventh and High streets, having purchased their machine for this purpose from the Harry K. Lucas Film Company recently.

Miss Carrie Bean, of Lexington, Ky., who has for some time been connected with the O. R. Hukle Automobile Company, of that city, has purchased the Princess Theater from Edward and Scott Graves on behalf of a silent partner and herself. She took possession at once, and will manage the business hereafter. Announcing that she considered the first and most important steps in the improvement of the theater to be a thorough and systematic cleaning, she put a number of men to work on this job. Miss Bean intends to make the Princess a clean and up-to-date theater, she said, and will do everything in her power to that end. Vertner Saxton and Flossie Sheriff, of the Princess musical staff, will be retained.

Thomas O. Davis, of Lexington, Ky., has leased the opera house at Williamstown, Ky., of R. H. Elliston & Company, and will offer moving picpures, vaudeville, lectures and other high-class amusements through the winter. The house will be refitted and equipped new throughout, complete electrical installation being among the innovations proposed. Three stairways will furnish means of exit from the building, and two broad ladders will also be provided at other exits, as an additional precaution in case of fire, the lessees desiring to make a point of the safety of their house.

A recent fire at Frankfort, Ky., wiped out half a block on St. Clair street and destroyed a number of business houses, including the Gem Theater. The origin of the blaze is unknown. The total loss was over $50,000.

Alexander Brothers & Company, of Cadiz, Ky., have closed a deal whereby they have purchased the Lyric Theater, one of the leading picture houses of the city, from W. C. Brewer and Dr. E. B. Bradshaw. Rudd Averitt will manage the house for the new owners. The theater will be operated in its present quarters for the remainder of the year, but it is planned, after that date, to erect a new and up-to-date building for the housing of the enterprise.

The Dixie Amusement Company, which operates moving picture houses in nine town in Kentucky, has acquired the house known as the Crystal amusement, at Franklin, Ky., and will operate it as one of its string. Arthur Mitchell has been placed in charge by the company. Several improvements will be made in the theater, including a new machine and screen, the object of the company being to produce the best possible pictures for its patrons.

George Markham, of Covington, Ky., has purchased the John Buckingham property at West Point, Ky., across from the Illinois Central depot, and will build a moving picture theater and a skating rink on the ground. The contract for the buildings has already been awarded, and the work of construction will be rushed.

Judge Gorman, of the Court of Common Pleas at Cincinnati, O., has handed down a decision discharging Samuel Lewis, who conducts the Empire Theater in that city, and who was arrested in July on the charge of operating a moving picture machine without having a licensed operator in charge. The court has held that the ordinance requiring examination is unconstitutional, as conferring arbitrary discretion on the board, no standard of qualification being fixed, and no requirement being made save that the board shall be satisfied of the applicant's fitness.

Daniel Fuller, of Salem, Ind., recently opened the opera house in that town as a moving picture and vaudeville house. He will run four reels a day.

Polk Brothers & Henry, of Taylorville, Ky., have recently opened up their house at Taylorville again. It was closed down for six weeks for repairs, and has been completely renovated in the interim.

Ward & Company, of Campbellsburg, Ky., a combination of local capitalists, have opened up the new picture house which the company was organized to start.

Manager David, of Cynthiana, is about ready to start his new house in that city, which will make the third picture show in operation there.

G. D. CRAIN, JR.

OHIO.

MR. J. C. DESPONTIN has succeeded Dwight Lafever as manager of the Grand Theater, at Mt. Vernon. The policy of moving pictures will give way to a combination of four acts of vaudeville and one roll of pictures.

E. L. Stanton will build a new one-story picture theater at Alden avenue and Summit street, in Columbus, to cost about $8,000.

The Photoplay Company, of Akron, plans to erect two new picture houses in that city. One will be in the Old National City Bank Building, on Howard street, and another in the Sheffield block. The capital stock is $25,000. Louis Loeb, Harry Weiner and others are interested.

Deputy State Building Inspector Callahan, on a recent visit to Akron, ordered solid brick substituted for tiling in the walls of several moving picture buildings under construction. The order increases the cost of their building from $500 to $2,000. It is declared that the tiling, which is secured in Akron, is a fireproof material, and that the order was a mere technicality. Construction work, however, was suspended until a definite ruling was secured.

The State Board of Health of Ohio has adopted the use of moving pictures showing the dangers and treatment of tuberculosis. They will be sent from town to town and exhibited under the auspices of women's clubs and social centers.

J. A. Maddox, manager of the Colonial Theater, at Columbus, and Mrs. Maude Murray Miller, have been mentioned as probable appointees for the new Ohio board of censorship for motion pictures. The positions pay $1,500 a year.

The proposal by School Superintendent Shawan, of Columbus, to install a moving picture machine in the school was opposed by one member on the ground that it was "a lazy man's method of teaching, because it does not demand the use of imagination on the part of the students."

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

IN THE NORTHWEST

THE Owl Drug Company is using moving pictures to instruct its employees, in the northwest, in the art of salesmanship. The picture is being shown at local theaters.

The moving picture films showing the methods and results of scientific handling of poultry on the farm, made by the Oregon Agricultural College, are in demand. They have been sent to Missouri, Canada, and Iowa.

A. C. Nelson, state superintendent of public instruction in Utah, has been made a member of the branch of the Educators' Film & Service Corporation at Salt Lake City. Other members are: Mayor Samuel C. Park, Rudger Clawson, and Professor F. S. Harris, of the Agricultural College.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

"PROCRASTINATION IS THE THIEF OF TIME"

Don't let it steal any of your time. If you have not ordered our two latest successes, you are losing both time and money. Our feature films are positively the last word in dramatic production. Posters of one, three and six sheets; heralds; lobby-photos; cuts.

SPECIAL NOTICE

There is some territory still open for exclusive rights on a contract basis. Quick action is essential to obtain the benefit of a contract. If you are awake to the opportunity of securing successful productions, wire us at once.

THE WHEEL OF DESTRUCTION

IN TWO PARTS

A distinctive motor-drama teeming with tense situations, featuring a remarkable auto race, culminating in a real wreck. This unparalleled photo-play, now ready, will prove a decided hit with any audience.

◆

THE THRUST OF HATE

Love and hate unite in making this a most unusual photo-drama. The climax, a thrilling sword-fight, actually gives one the shivers; it is so realistic. The photographic effects in this film are matchless.

HAND-COLORED 3 SHORT PARTS READY SEPT. 1st

READ THE CRITICAL REVIEW ON PAGE 1049 IN THIS ISSUE

ECLECTIC FILM CO.

ECLECTIC FILMS TRADE MARK PARIS-NEW YORK

110 West 40th St. New York City

"THE CREAM OF THE EUROPEAN MARKET SELECTED FOR AMERICA"

CORRESPONDENCE

ILLINOIS.

THE Princess Theater, at Peoria, has been redecorated and remodeled, and was reopened August 16, as an exclusive picture house. The Princess is one of the Seaver-Robinson houses.

The Iris Theater Company, of Chicago, has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $30,000, to do a general theatrical and amusement business. The incorporators are: Joseph H. Muhkle, Marion Pickett and Herbert M. Weston.

Robert E. Lee, of Warren, leased the lower story of the Odd Fellows' Building, to be used for his moving picture theater.

Moving pictures of the Fourth of July celebration at the Peoria state hospital for insane at Bartonville, were shown at the Princess Theater, at Peoria.

The airdome started in Gibson City by Dever & Bishop has gone out of business.

The Globe Theater, at Sullivan, has opened after two weeks of idleness.

The Opera House Photoshow, at Griggsville, has changed back to the General Film Company service.

The Varsity Theater, in Urbana, was recently damaged by a mysterious fire. Herman Lippstein, the owner, lost two machines valued at $200 each, 6,000 feet of films, a piano, and all the seats were damaged. He carried insurance of about $1,000. He plans to rebuild the place.

The Knights of Pythias, of Rock Island County, gave free motion pictures at their annual picnic at Moline.

M. H. Curts, of Savannah, has purchased new equipment for his moving picture show, including new opera chairs and a new electric sign. He also will install a new front.

The Moline Swedish Olive Degree Staff, of Moline, recently engaged the Star Light Airdome for two benefit performances.

S. E. Hurst, proprietor of the Gem Airdome at Hillsboro, closed his place during the two weeks that the Litchfield-Hillsboro chautauqua assembly was in session. He had charge of the moving pictures at the chautauqua.

The Foster-Photo Play Film Company, of Chicago, has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $2,500. The incorporators are: T. J. Gorman, J. F. seph Shoecraft and Robert Hanson.

A. J. Ross has opened his new picture show in Cairo, the Star, at 2711 Commercial avenue. Three reels are given for five cents.

The Pastime Theater Company, of East Moline, has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $2,500. The incorporators are: T. J. Gorman, J. F. Ryan, J. L. Greer, S. A. Cartwright and Edward Reavy.

The Crystal Theater, of Paxton, furnished the moving pictures for the chautauqua at that place.

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad is using local moving picture theaters for the exploitation of its "safety first" films. A car is being sent over the road to instruct employes in the prevention of accidents.

Glenn Reynolds has opened the Princess Theater, at DeKalb.

W. E. Demmick will open a moving picture show at Williamsfield.

Exhibitors of Danville have formed a local league, with I. N. Martin, of the Majestic Theater, as president, and John M. Dillon, of the Exhibit, as secretary and treasurer. A committee from the local union of musicians at Danville, has called upon the owners and proprietors of motion picture houses, asking that they be granted the union scale of $18 a week for pianists, and $15 a week for trap drummers.

The Photo Theater will give performances at Niantic on Monday, Tuesday and Wedensday nights.

The Hippodrome, at Alton, has ended its picture season, and after redecorating and some remodeling, will return to vaudeville.

Lang Brothers have leased the Bloomfield Building, in Toledo, and opened a motion picture show.

Moving pictures were recently used in the service of Plymouth Congregational church in Danville. The pastor preached upon "A Series of Moving Pictures Portrayals."

The Orpheum vaudeville hour at Rockford, is giving a picture show each Sunday with an admission of ten cents.

Fred Clark has opened an airdome in a tent at Macomb. In addition to vaudeville he gives feature pictures.

Chris Taylor, of the Tabard theater, at Kewanee, was given the contract to furnish free moving pictures on the street for the merchants of the city.

The Opera House, at Paris, will play many road shows this season, but the regular five-cent Saturday afternoon picture shows will be continued.

Sidney Gobin, operator at Dreamland Theater, in Pekin, and Miss Minnie Irene Wheeler, of Canton, were recently married at Canton.

The Commercial Club, of Virden, has been asked to investigate a proposition by St. Louis parties, who wish to construct an Opera House to cost from $12,000 to $25,000, on the southeast corner of the square.

Ed. Haas, Paul Kirkpatrick and M. V. Horney, of Lincoln, have started their picture shows over a circuit comprised of Elkhart and five other towns.

C. H. Osgood, of Galesburg, took some interesting moving pictures for the Mississippi River Power Company at its big dam at Keokuk, Ia. Experiments were made to determine the voltage required to run a one hundred horsepower arc lamp. Arcs were made that would jump a distance of eight feet, and while taking the picture it was necessary for the men to wear darkened glasses.

W. L. Busby, of Quincy, plans to have the Empire Hippodrome opened August 24. He plans to give high class pictures and vaudeville for ten cents.

The Vermilion Amusement Company, of Danville, has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $5,000, in that city, and has opened a new moving picture house. The incorporators are: William M. Cannady, Frank H. Ramsey and Lawrence G. Griffith.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

IN THE SOUTHWEST.

MR. F. B. LANGE, of Ramona, Okla., has purchased the Royal Theater, at Collinsville, and reopened the house.

G. H. Ackerman, A. W. Blue, William and T. H. Thacher and Joseph Duncan, of Salina, Kan., proprietors of moving picture theaters, who were arrested because they opened their houses on Sunday, pleaded guilty to the charge of violating the Sunday labor law, and each paid a fine of $5 and costs.

The A. E. Kilfer Cinematograph Company recently took a number of pictures near Arkadelphia. Some of them were made for W. P. Wilson, an Arkadelphia real estate man, who will use them for advertising purposes, but in addition, Wilson wrote the scenario for a romantic story, in which young folk of the city took the leading parts.

Dr. G. B. Yount is now manager of the Pastime Airdome at Claremore, Okla.

Motion pictures will play a large part in the new policy of the Durant Theater, at Durant, Okla., under the management of Fred Harle, who has been connected with the house for sometime, and Reedy Jennings, who, for two years, was manager of the Gayety. One act of vaudeville and three reels of pictures, will be shown for ten cents. The house has been redecorated and a new operating room installed. Road shows will be booked in cooler weather, but the photoplay and vaudeville will be used when there are no other attractions.

Charles Barron and Walter Larmore, formerly connected with the Majestic Theater at Wellington, Kan., have taken a six months' lease on a moving picture house in Ponca City, Kan., and may operate it longer.

W. H. Eyler has sold his interest in the Amuseu Theater, at Pine Bluff, Ark., to his partner, O. C. Hauber, and has returned to his former home at Cleveland, Ohio.

The Alamo Film Company was given a contract to film the Cooke County fair at Gainesville, Tex., which opens September 16.

The Landes Carnival Company, which has been playing Kansas and other southwestern towns, has adopted free moving pictures an one of the open air attractions. This performance has been found as big an inducement as the death-defying stunts usually advertised by the carnival companies, is less expensive and causes less conflict with public officials.

O. William Holt, of Manhattan, Kan., has purchased a moving picture camera, and will film people and events in that vicinity.

The Lamara Theater, at Phoenix, Ariz., has cut its program from 5,000 to 4,000 feet of film a show, but increased the number of changes to four a week.

The city council of Houston, Tex., has granted a permit to J. L. Talmon and Fred Melott, to open a picture show at 711 San Felipe street.

Clemmons Brothers have placed a new marble front to their Imperial Theater, at Beaumont, Tex.

Frank Rogers has built a twenty-foot addition to his moving picture show at Cordell, Okla., and made other improvements to the house.

Field Kindley has opened a motion picture airdome at Gravette, Ark.

The Lubin Company has completed its work at Silver City, N. M., and the actors have gone to Las Vegas, N. M., where they will work for some time.

Robert Turnbull, of Phoenix, Ariz., was given permission to film the Arizona National Guard at Camp Hunt, Whipple Barracks. The pictures will be shown throughout the State, then turned over to the Guard, to be used for recruiting purposes.

C. A. Hill and A. F. Baker have opened the West Side Movie, at 1020 West Douglas avenue, Wichita, Kan.

Alderman Reilly, of Dallas, Tex., has given notice that he will ask for a regulation forbidding vaudeville in connection with moving picture shows, and also one for the abolition of amateur night in vaudeville houses.

F. L. Bailey, of Hugo, Okla., has purchased a moving picture house in Guthrie, Okla. He was formerly manager of the Dixie, at Hugo.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

WEDNESDAY afternoon and evening business at local photoplay theaters has been helped by the half-holidays given to employes of the stores. As a rule, though, warm weather business has not been very good. The crowds have been kept away by the excessive heat, and in addition, there are many attractions in Springfield, such as the encampment of the Illinois National Guard, which counteract the attractions of the photoplay houses. The popular band concerts at local parks make inroads upon the Sunday afternoon crowds.

Despite the announcement by the Vaudette Amusement Company that the Kalem feature, "From the Manger to the Cross," would not be sent out during the summer months, there has been many requests for booking for it from Central Illinois towns.

The airdome on South Fourth street, has added vaudeville to its picture program.

Davidson & Ogle, of Springfield, have opened their new Central Theater at 130-132 East Main street, in Danville. The house seats 600 persons. First-run Mutual service will be used.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

IOWA.

F. E. ROSENKRANZ, of Rolfe, has closed the Scenic for a week to remodel the place.

IawA

Suffragists of Iowa plan to use moving pictures of noted suffrage places to further their cause during the State Fair at Des Moines.

E. C. Houser opened the new Princess Theater, at Iowa City August 2. Souvenirs were given to all who attended the opening performance.

J. R. Nichols and C. R. Thomas opened their new moving picture show in the Nichols Building, at Glidden, with a free show.

L. B. Seymour has purchased the Scenic moving picture theater at Glenwood from Koon & Son.

Following the receipt of a petition from citizens who declared that pianos in moving picture theaters were "nerve-racking noise-makers, disturbers of the peace and generally very annoying to the public," the city council at Sioux City, ordered the instruments silenced.

E. R. Kehl, who has been manager of the moving picture show at Orange City, has purchased the business from J. W. Schultz.

W. S. Pickler is improving his photoplay house at 2412 University avenue, Des Moines, at a cost of $2,000.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

WISCONSIN.

SAXE BROTHERS took pictures of the arrival of the Niagara, Perry's flag ship, at Milwaukee, and the human flag formed by the school children and other incidents connected with the celebration of the Centennial of Perry's victory. These were shown at the Alhambra, Saxe and Princess theaters.

Henry Klein, formerly an alderman of Milwaukee, will open a new moving picture show in the old Wisconsin College of Music Building, on Grand avenue, in that city.

Alderman Percy Braman, of Milwaukee, wants a censorship for all moving pictures shown in that city. It provides a fee for each film censored, the amount to be determined by the council judiciary committee. The ordinance which was prepared by Municipal Reference Librarian Leo Tiefenthaler, provides that the censors shall serve without salary, but authorizes the appointment of a secretary at $1,500 a year.

Eight business men of North Fond du Lac, are contemplating forming a stock company to erect a new moving picture show.

Rudolph Von Nagel, alias Frank M. Arnold, was sentenced to three months in the house of correction at Milwaukee, by Judge Page, of the District Court. Von Nagel represented himself as the Atlanta Motion Picture Company, and advertised for girls to become actresses. Twenty girls were summoned as witnesses, but only three testified. They said that they made a deposit of $20, and were given some "instructions" in facial expressions. Von Nagel admitted that the company merely existed for the purpose of extorting money from stage-struck girls.

The Gem Theater has been opened in the opera house at Oconto.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

MICHIGAN.

FRANK BAUMGARTNER has sold the lease on the American Moving Picture Theater, Rivard and Gratiot avenues, in Detroit, to Thomae Kato, who for several years was connected with the Packard Motor Car Company.

The last seven seats in the new Empire photoplay house in Detroit, are reserved for ladies, in order that those who come in without escorts may sit together.

Attorney General Fellows has given an opinion to Deputy State Fire Marshal Robinson that moving picture operating rooms may have a 24 square inch opening on the side toward the street, but this opening must be equipped with an automatic fire door.

Robert Jackson, Jr., of Negaunee, has purchased the Bijou moving picture theater at Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario. The house will be conducted by his sister, Miss Mabel Jackson.

Herbert Rahm, of Rochester, has opened a moving picture show at Oxford.

Herman Stark, the original owner of the Queen Moving Picture Theater, at Hancock, has purchased the interest of Harry Goldfarb in the business, and with his son, David Stark, will conduct it.

George H. Gordon, president of the General Motion Picture Company, of Philadelphia, and S. S. Shackelton, of Grand Rapids, have been endeavoring to interest Grand Rapids People in the manufacture of Lorbran-O-Graph, a moving picture machine for use in homes, churches and for industrial advertising.

Charles H. Nobel, of Bad Axe, contemplates erecting a new two-story building on the site of the present Idlehour Theater, which will seat about 500 persons. MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

LEADERS OF THE WORLD

IT IS sufficient to announce that this is the handiwork of the pioneers in realm of features

The Steel King's Last Wish

Copyrighted 1913 IN THREE PARTS Infringers Beware

QUALITY MERIT ACTION

THE PREMATURE EXPLOSION

DISASTROUS SHOWER OF ACID

TREACHERY IS OUTWITTED

TRUE LOVE TRIUMPHS

One, Three and Six Sheet Posters, Photos and Descriptive Heralds

TERRITORIAL RIGHTS NOW BEING DISPOSED OF

EXCLUSIVE SUPPLY CORPORATION PROGRAM

Great Northern Special Feature Film Co.

42 EAST 14th STREET NEW YORK CITY

LICENSED FILM STORIES

KALEM.

THE BRIBE (Sept. 8).—John Dickson, millionaire candidate for mayor, is in love with Dora Malcom, a society girl. He finds, however, that she is engaged to marry Frank Stevens. He hides his grief and promises to be best man at the wedding.

Higby, a political boss, determines to discredit Dickson as he fears he will be elected. He hires Maggie Lee, an unscrupulous woman, to appear at Dora's wedding and claim that Dickson is her husband. The program is followed out to the letter. Maggie appears and makes the accusation, but on questioning, says that Dickson hired her to do it. Dickson's infatuation for Dora is so well known that the statement is believed and he quickly loses his popularity. Dora postpones the wedding, but does not lose her faith in Dickson, whom she knows to be an honorable man. Stevens is angered at her defense of the man, an altercation follows and Dora breaks the engagement.

Maggie Lee, although a hard, calloused woman, has a little daughter whom she worships. The child is lost one day and Dora is the means of restoring her to the mother. Maggie's gratitude is so great that she confesses her crime and makes a public denunciation of Higby, who hired her to lie. Public sympathy quickly shifts to Dickson and he is elected by a large majority. As a further reward, Dora promises to become his wife.

THE FATAL LEGACY (Special—2 parts—Sept. 10).—On his wedding eve Henry Halleck opens a sealed envelope which has been handed down to each generation, and learns that the family is cursed with a lust for drink. He signs the pledge which bears the signatures of his fathers. Two years later he is a widower, with a son, Jack. Jack grows to manhood and not possessing the strength of his father, falls into evil ways. Jack pays the penalty for his weakness and Halleck takes the grandson, Harry, into his home.

Many years later Harry becomes engaged to Anna, a charming girl of the neighborhood, and on his wedding eve he, too signs the pledge. But Harry has inherited his father's weakness and the old man's heart is broken.

Forbes, a young man of the North, visits the old home and falls in love with Anna. Harry succeeds in discrediting his rival in a most cowardly manner and marries the girl. After the ceremony, Harry, made bold by liquor, jokingly confesses to Anna how he has deceived her and she locks herself in her room.

The fox hunt is to take place next day. At the Hunt Breakfast Harry, unable to overcome his weakness, drinks heavily and insists upon riding a spirited horse. In the chase he tries to make a fence and is thrown to the ground. He is carried back to the breakfast room where old Halleck is left alone with his dead. Later Forbes gains from Anna a promise for the days to come.

WANTED, A PLUMBER (Sept. 12).—Jinks is about to take a bath when he finds that something is wrong with the plumbing and the water supply is cut off. He calls up a plumbing establishment and the boss sends Fatty, a workman, to make the repairs. Fatty has just caused trouble at the Jones residence and is somewhat unstrung.

When Fatty arrives at the Jinks home he is conducted into the kitchen and shown the meters. He locates the trouble, but, unfortunately, he connects the water pipes with the gas meter, and vice versa. Then the trouble begins. The cook, attempting to light the gas stove, is deluged with water and Jinks, who, impatiently waiting in the bath room, tosses a match in the bathtub, is startled when he is greeted by a flame. Fatty makes an ignominious retreat and Jinks sends for another plumber. Fatty is about to enter the shop when he sees his boss waiting for him with a piece of lead pipe and changes his mind.

TOO MANY COPS (Sept. 12).—Two motorcycle policemen, located at different points along a road, establish a mode of communication by which they can time speeding automobilists. They make a number of arrests and in most cases they permit the speeders to go on their way for a consideration. Three tramps witness the proceeding and by a subterfuge secure the badges of the police. They have the time of their lives extorting money from all manner of auto drivers, regardless of the speed, but are called to account in a most unexpected manner when they have held up James Jeffries, Jack Jeffries and Barney Oldfield.

THE MONOGRAMMED CIGARETTE (Sept. 13).—Jack Drake, gentleman burgler, is fastidious. He visits his tobacconist and orders a fresh supply of cigarettes bearing his monogram. Rosa, the tobacconist's daughter, is desperately in love with him. Drake calls at a jewelry store and looks over a number of articles. When Julian Driver, the clerk, opens the safe to produce a further display of goods, Drake whips out a pair of powerful opera glasses and secures the combination. He makes a small purchase and leaves.

On the following morning the safe is found open and its valuable contents gone. Detective Dallas is summoned and discovers a cigarette bearing the initials "J. D." They are Julian Driver's, the clerk's initials. He is placed under arrest. Ethel, the jeweler's daughter, is in love with him and protests. Her plea is so convincing that Dallas promises to do his best to clear the man. He follows the cigarette clue. The tobacconist identifies the monogram and gives him Drake's address. Rosa, however, warns the culprit over the telephone. When the detective gains entrance to Drake's apartments by a clever disguise, the man is on his guard. The cigarettes he now smokes bear no monogram. Dallas discovers finger prints that correspond on both cigarettes. By a subterfuge he finds where the stolen jewelry is hidden. An exciting chase follows, during which Drake makes a sensational hand over hand fight on a telegraph wire. It is in vain, however, and he is turned over to justice, while the innocent man is released.

LUBIN.

SEEDS OF WEALTH (Sept. 8).—Aline Maxwell, a young seamstress, is the sole support of her invalid father. She finds regular work in the household of John Lavino, a wealthy attorney. Her work is principally the making of dresses for Emily, the four-year-old daughter of the Lavinos. Mrs. Lavino discovers, to her discomfiture, that Aline is in love with her son, Ralph, a young attorney in business with his father. She orders Ralph to give up any intentions of marrying Aline. Ralph refuses. Mrs. Lavino then tells Aline that she must discontinue her work in their household. Aline leaves, heartbroken. That Ralph might not know why she left, she tells him that she does not love him. Deprived of her source of income, she rapidly drifts into a state bordering upon poverty. Little Emily's love for Aline never wavers and she pays surreptitious visits to the humble home of Aline and her father.

A valuable necklace, the property of Mrs. Lavino, is discovered missing a few days later. Aline has been seen alone in the room where the necklace is kept. She is suspected by Mrs. Lavino. Detectives are sent to her home, where the missing diamonds are found, imbedded in the earth contained in a row of flower pots on Aline's window sill. This is considered positive proof that the seamstress is the guilty person. She is arrested, but secures bail through Ralph, who, in spite of the emphatic objections of his parents, announces his intention of acting as Aline's lawyer. At the trial the damaging circumstantial evidence against Aline is being delivered to the jury by the prosecuting attorney, when Emily, divining by childish intuition that her beloved Aline is in trouble, interrupts the trial proceedings. The little girl then tells how she had taken her mother's necklace and had planted the diamonds in the flower pots in Aline's home. She had been told that diamonds were "seeds of wealth," and in her childish way, had thought that if they were planted trees of money would grow from them and thus relieve Aline from her poverty. Aline is immediately exonerated and her engagement to Ralph is finally sanctioned by the Lavinos.

PLAYING WITH FIRE (Sept. 9).—Jim Black, while in the East, marries Nell, a pleasure-loving girl. He brings her back to his rough ranch house, where they are boisterously welcomed. The wife is disappointed at her surroundings, but tries to make the best of it. Some months later John Dexter, a stock scheme swindler from the East, opens an office in the village near the ranch, and floats an investment company. Dexter learns that Jim is one of the most trusted men in the community, goes to his house and offers him $1,000 for the use of his name as president of the investment company. Jim refuses to listen to the proposition, and orders Dexter out. Nell overhears the conversation between her husband and the slicker. The girl's longing for pretty clothes have reached a point where she is desperate. She begs Jim to accept the slicker's offer. The latter steadily refuses until Nell places his love for her in the balance. Then Jim reluctantly gives in. He impresses upon Dexter that the company must be run on the square, accepts $100 on account, and gives the money to Nell, who immediately orders a lot of pretty clothes through the express company. The cowboys, assured by the use of Jim's name as president, invest their savings with Dexter. The latter prepares to make his getaway. As Nell's express packages arrive, the slicker tacks a "company busted" sign in front of his office and clears out. The cowboys are enraged and failing to find Dexter, start out after Jim, whom they hold directly responsible. They meet Jim on the road and refuse to listen to explanations. Jim turns in flight. The cowboys follow and wound him. Around a curve Jim falls off and crawls into the bushes, his riderless horse galloping on. The cowboys follow Jim's horse for some time, while the man himself crawls to his house and explains his predicament to the terrified Nell. The girl realizes her folly and determines to right matters if possible. She mounts her horse and overtakes the slicker, makes him disgorge and returns to the house just as the cowboys come back from their chase, and are trying to break into the house and get Jim. Nell gives them their money and makes them believe that they did not give him a chance to explain that he saved it for them.

THE HILLS OF STRIFE (Special—2 parts—Sept. 11).—A long-existing and bitter feud between two clans of the Kentucky hills culminates in a fierce battle, the factions being headed by Bill Knox and Pete Harris. Knox's wife, fleeing from her burning cabin, is hit by a stray bullet and falls, with her baby, in her arms. The young child of Harris has also been killed, and the mother, in mad fury, has found a rifle and joined in the battle. She chances upon the dead Knox woman, and her rage melts away as she takes up the motherless baby. Harris is killed in the fight, and Jane Harris rears the baby as her own, at first with the idea of working a splendid revenge upon the Knox clan by making the boy a deadly enemy of his own blood, but later forgetting this motive as she comes to love the boy, whom she names Tom. Tom grows up a kindly, lovable youth, without the fierce and warlike instincts of the other mountaineers. He meets, by chance, Mary, a girl of the Knox faction, who is really a distant cousin of his, and the two fall in love, though their courtship is necessarily secret and dangerous, the feud having suddenly flared up again. Bill Knox, growing old, but more savage than in his youth, learns that Mary is meeting one of the enemy and determines to ambush Tom. The boy's foster mother learns of old Bill's plans, and reaches the ambushed trysting place just in time to throw herself in front of Tom and with her own body stop Bill's bullet. Before the old man can fire again, he is disarmed by Tom, whose swift vengeance is stopped just in time by the wounded woman, who, before she dies, tells them that Tom is old Bill's son. Though old Bill endeavors to keep his new-found son, Tom hates this fierce and bloody land, and with Mary turns his back forever on the mountains, passing down into the peaceful valleys.

PANAMA HAT INDUSTRY (Sept. 12).—An excellent industrial picture showing the evolution of the fashionable Panama hat. The hats are all made by negroes, who appear to be very happy at their work and show considerable skill. First you see the gathering and stripping of the rushes, then the boiling, drying and weaving. The hats are then bleached, blocked and ironed and turned over to the trimmers, who supply the bands and other finishing. The last scene is the retail hatter's shop with its many customers anxious to secure a dainty piece of headgear.

AN EXCLUSIVE PATTERN (Sept. 12).—A haberdasher sells to a young man a vest that he declares to be an absolutely exclusive pattern. The design is unique and startling, and Tom wears it home to luncheon with much pride. He immediately spills soup on it, but Nan, his wife, promises to clean it. After the wife has cleaned it she hangs it in the backyard to dry. It is stolen by a tramp. She telephones Tom of the theft, and notifies the police, giving a description of the vest. Nan goes on a shopping expedition, and the first man she sees on the street is wearing the stolen vest, or at least she thinks it is the stolen vest. She endeavors to recover it and the man, deeming her a lunatic, flees in horror. Meanwhile Tom has seen the vest adorning the figure of a suffragette, a prize fighter, and the original tramp, and his attempts to recover it have been highly disastrous. The police now busy themselves and the tangle comes to a head at the station house, where the simultaneous appearance of half a dozen persons wearing the vest, tends to disprove the haberdasher's assertion, that the one sold to Tom was without a duplicate. Freed from the clutches of the law. Tom and the other battered and furious vest owners, proceed to wreak vengeance on the haberdasher. They treat him to a bath under the fire hydrant.

THE MEDAL OF HONOR (Sept. 13).—Dick Wright, captain, and Seth Bonner, lieutenant of a city fire company, are in love with Grace Rider, who accepts the attentions of both men without expressing a preference. Dick and Seth have a wordy altercation over the matter and decide to let the girl settle the dispute at once. They go to Grace's home and urge her to choose between them. Grace, after trying to avoid the issue, gives her hand to Seth. Dick takes the decision like a man and congratulates the couple. Later in the day, while Grace and Seth are strolling, fire is discovered in Grace's home, her mother giving the alarm. Grace hurries to the house and despite Mrs. Rider's pleas, rushes into the burning structure to save her jewel box that is on the second floor. The fire department reaches the scene and Mrs. Rider implores Seth to save Grace. The lieutenant goes into the house, but loses his nerve when he finds the stairs choked with smoke and flame. He tries to ascend two or three times, then gives in to his yellow streak and sits on the bottom of the stairs, his head in his hands. Meanwhile, Grace is blinded by the smoke and has difficulty in finding her jewel case. When she does get the box from the dresser, it is too late to get out. Overcome by the smoke and has difficulty in finding her jewel Dick, worried by the prolonged absence of Seth, goes to the side of the house, looks in a window at the foot of the stairs and sees Seth. Dick

All Records Broken

Alert Territorial investors throughout the world have evidenced approval of our BIG IDEA by tremendous demand for the Greatest American Play in Motion Pictures

"ARIZONA"

By AUGUSTUS THOMAS

The fame of the play, its author and the popularity of stars appearing in this wonderful film have caused an avalanche of sales long before the production was completed.

Already $135,000 worth of contracts have been closed for ALL STAR GREAT PLAYS

without projecting a single foot of film for any one. Confidence in our organization and the men behind it is responsible for this flattering result.

LIMITED TERRITORY STILL OPEN

Buyers of experience, integrity and financial standing will be given consideration if applications are accompanied by satisfactory references.

EXHIBITORS write for address of nearest All Star agency and our attractive poster circular. You want the biggest attractions for your theatres and we're spending thousands to give them to you. Get on our mailing list.

——COMING SOON——

Richard Harding Davis' Triumph

"SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE"

Dramatization and Scenario by Augustus Thomas

Through exclusive arrangements with the author and the Henry B. Harris Estate

Watch For Future Announcements

ALL STAR FEATURE CORPORATION

HARRY R. RAVER President	ARCHIBALD SELWYN Vice-President	GEO. J. COOKE Secretary	PHILIP KLEIN Treasurer

AUGUSTUS THOMAS, Director General of Productions

10th Floor Candler Building, 220 W. 42nd Street, NEW YORK

breaks in the window and when he learns that Seth is afraid, pushes him to one side and goes up the stairs himself. The captain carries Grace from her room down through the mass of flames. At the foot of the stairs Seth begs Dick to let him take Grace out. The captain, in order to keep Grace's faith in Seth unbroken, hands the girl over to Seth. Casey, a fireman, sees the transfer through the side window, but Dick orders him to keep silent. Grace believes Seth has saved her life. The fire board awards a medal to Seth and gives Grace the privilege of pinning it on. The ceremony is too much for Casey, who tears the medal from Seth's coat and insists on placing it where it belongs—on Dick. Seth is branded as a coward and there is a beginning of a true romance between Dick and Grace.

EDISON.

KEEPERS OF THE FLOCK (Sept. 8).—Old Luke has been a shepherd for many years upon the moors of Cornwall. When Thomas Drake marries his daughter, Ellen, Luke decides that the time has come to retire. Accordingly he takes Thomas to his employer and asks that his flocks may be given into the hands of his son-in-law. The employer consents and Luke retires to a peaceful old age.

The married life of Ellen and Thomas is not, however, destined to progress as peacefully. Thomas has a selfish, intolerant nature and is very unpleasant to his patient wife whenever anything goes wrong in the domestic arrangements. When he comes home one day and finds that his dinner is not ready for him, he scolds Ellen in round terms and sets out for the "Load of Mischief" Inn.

Bess, the barmaid at the inn, always eager for the opportunity to make mischief, devotes all her energies to winning Thomas away from his wife. She flatters him and encourages him to spend his money. Thomas, greatly struck by the attractions of the inn, persuades Ellen to give him the dowry old Luke has given her out of his hard earned savings. Part of the money was to buy a bracelet for Bess, and the remainder goes the way of all the rest, over the counter of the "Load of Mischief."

When Thomas is wrung dry of money Bess jeers at him and taunts him with being a simpleton. Mad with anger the man goes home. He gruffly refuses old Luke's request for a pipeful of tobacco and informs Ellen that he has spent all the money of the dowry. Stunned by the discovery that his hard-earned savings have been swept away so wantonly, Luke rises and solemnly curses his son-in-law. Thomas leaves the house and the old man again takes up his position as sheep herder.

But Luke has grown old very fast in the time since he ceased his labors. The duties of tending the sheep which once seemed so easy, are now really arduous exertions for his weary old limbs. And so it happens that when the repentant Thomas, walking slowly in the fields, sees the old man struggling with a heavy trough and comes to his assistance, a reconciliation is readily effected and Thomas returns to his sorrowful wife.

A LIGHT ON TROUBLED WATERS (Sept. 9).—Howard Sterling mate aboard his father's coasting vessel, is very much in love with Millie Sawyer. On his return from a voyage, he brings Millie a lantern which he tells her to place in her window when his ship is passing that he may know she is still thinking of him.

Although she is very fond of Howard, Millie, it must be confessed, is something of a flirt. Joe Gorman, a mysterious young man with plenty of money and no visible means of support, attracts her almost as much as Howard. Gorman kisses her one day while Howard is watching. To the sailor's indignation, Millie does not appear to resent it particularly, and when he upbraids her with her fault, she grows very angry with him. Sad at heart, Howard sets out on his voyage, vowing to have nothing more to do with so fickle a girl.

The mysterious Gorman is in reality the chief of a band of wreckers. With a suave smile and an easy manner he covers a disposition which is in reality savage and unscrupulous. Aroused by Millie's apparent liking for him, he lures her out on the cliffs one evening, leads her to the cave of the wreckers, and informs her that he has sent for a minister to marry them. Almost immediately thereafter, Millie discovers that a dreadful plot is on foot against Captain Sterling's schooner, and that she is a prisoner. A sudden call from the lookout directs the attention of the wreckers to the rapidly darkening ocean. Millie takes advantage of their pre-occupation and escapes. She hurries to her house and takes out Howard's lantern.

Meanwhile, the wreckers have overpowered the lighthouse keeper and extinguished the light. Sterling's vessel, ignorant of its whereabouts, is rapidly bearing down on the deadly rocks on the shoreline. Suddenly a white figure passes swiftly along the cliff front, and a swinging lantern warns the vessel's crew of their danger.

Captain Sterling and Howard land quickly at the wharf, and make their way up to the cliff. They find Millie struggling with the enraged Gorman. Startled by their approach, the wrecker turns to flee, loses his footing, and falls to a well-merited death on the rocks below.

THE DESPERATE CONDITION OF MR. BOGGS (Sept. 10).—John Boggs knows perfectly well that he was tottering on the brink of the grave. From a careful study of many medical books he had convinced himself that he was afflicted to some extent with every known form of ailment. One morning while his family ate breakfast and he was occupied in treating himself for a serious complication of cholera, whooping cough and the bubonic plague which had developed overnight, he accidentally drank some of old Dr. F. Raud's lotion for rheumatism and sprains, intended only for external use. His family flew to the aid of the anguished man and a doctor was hastily summoned while Boggs composed himself to await the agonies of death. The doctor, a cold, practical person, arrived at last and made a thorough examination of the poison victim. He unsympathetically declared that the lotion was perfectly harmless and wouldn't hurt an infant. He went on to say that Boggs seemed to be an unusually healthy man.

Incensed beyond endurance by this heartless callousness, Boggs dismissed the doctor and sent the maid to fetch the discoverer of a new cure, whose advertisement in the morning paper had raised lively hopes in his breast. The maid was slow in returning and Boggs went down to the wharf to treat an incipient case of pneumonia with the salt air. He settled himself in a sunny corner and fell asleep. In a few bold words Boggs dreamed he was in Dr. Killem's sanitarium. His experiences there were so vivid that he awoke a cured man.

CASTE (Special—2 parts—Sept. 12).—Eccles, a prodigate old drunkard, is the father of two beautiful girls, Esther and Polly. George D'Alroy, a young officer in the British Army who is infatuated with Esther, brings his friend, Captain Hawtree, to call. The captain is greatly taken with the lively Polly, who makes him carry the teakettle about and generally dance attendance on her to the emphatic disgust of Sam Garridge, an ardent suitor for Polly's hand. Meanwhile Esther shows George a letter from an impresario offering her an engagement on the stage. The offer seems a veritable godsend to the girl, but she changes her mind when George asks her to be his wife instead.

A few months after they are married, George receives the unpleasant news that he must sail for India with his regiment. Owing to her ultra-aristocratic ideas, George has not dared to tell his mother, the Marchioness D'Alroy, that he has married a girl of common origin, and he is in a quandary as to what provision he should make for Esther.

The farewell scene between husband and wife at D'Alroy's city residence is broken by the appearance of the aristocratic mother, come to bid her son Godspeed on his way. Her astonishment and disgust may be imagined when a lowly ballet girl is introduced as her son's wife! To cap the climax, old Eccles, in his customary state of saturation, enters and greets his newly discovered relative.

The Marchioness departs in a huff, refusing to recognize her daughter-in-law, and George sails for India. Shortly after his arrival he is seriously wounded in an engagement and the news of his death is sent to England. Esther, with her young baby, leaves her husband's house and goes back to her family. Here she is soon in destitute circumstances. Old Eccles, sniffling with pity over his sad fate, soon spends all her money and then steals the necklace of his "poo lil grandson."

The Marchioness calls and haughtily offers to take the child and give Esther an allowance. To Eccles' horrified disgust, Esther indignantly refuses to be separated from her child. Happily enough D'Alroy is not really dead. He returns home and effects a reconciliation between aristocracy and democracy, which gives the picture a highly satisfactory finish.

THE GREEN EYE OF THE YELLOW GOD (Sept. 13).—The "Little Yellow God" sat on a stone pedestal in a temple near the English army post and leered down, through an inscrutable green eye which was a priceless emerald, at the Hindu folk who worshipped him. Mad Carew knew it was the maddest of all his acts. He knew what the penalty must inevitably be. Also, he knew that even though it asked him to storm the battlements of heaven, he could never refuse the slightest desire of one small kissable mouth. And so he stole the God's Green Eye.

It is a mistake to attempt to make generalizations about that great dark land we call the East, but there is one truth which always prevails. He who meddles with the gods of the heathen shall surely die. There was no exception in this case. Carew was strong, self-reliant, absolutely devoid of fear—none the less, he died.

ESSANAY.

SUNLIGHT (Sept. 9).—Ben Grant, living in the country with his parents, has a wild craving for the city, and after a slight reprimand from his father, determines to leave his home. He arrives in the city weary and hungry and finds himself in one of its awful slums. Through the intercession

THE SUCCESS OF EUROPE
THE CAPTIVATING COUNTESS
IN 3 PARTS IN NATURAL COLORS IN 3 PARTS
Feature Film Company
108 East 12th Street NEW YORK
ANOTHER WINNER IN THREE PARTS
ABRAHAM, THE PATRIARCH OF ISRAEL
Feature Film Company
127 Fourth Avenue PITTSBURG, PA.
WATCH this SPACE for our NEW PRODUCTIONS. Booked Exclusively Through Our Offices

Dependable Feature Service

WHETHER you are an exhibitor, an exchange man or state right buyer, remember that we will positively guarantee eight features per month of unimpeachable quality, averaging three reels.

¶ The Moving Picture World in its issue of August 30th, 1913, says of the Doom of Darkness, one of our features of four reels:

¶ "It is one of those that remain in the mind after they are seen, that hold the best class of people, that pay the exhibitor's dividends."

¶ Our projection room and our stock of features are constantly ready for exhibition. We have twenty splendid features in addition to the Doom of Darkness.

THE TRUE FEATURE CO.

110-112 West 40th St. WORLD'S TOWER BUILDING New York City

Telephone 578 Bryant Sole American Agents for the Continental Art Film Society

Get On Our Mailing List

of a child of the slums, he is fed and cared for by her mother. The little girl, Mary, arrested for stealing coal, is taken in hand by a charitable organization and given a home in the country. It is Mr. and Mrs. Grant who become Mary's foster parents, and under their care she grows into a beautiful and lovely woman. Ben has unfortunately fallen among thieves in the city, and casts his lot with them. As he grows into manhood, however, he wearies of the life and longs for the fields and flowers of his country home. He decides to go back. The joy of Ben's parents is great as they receive their boy once again into their hearts, but greater still is the love and sweetness that grow into the lives of Mary and Ben, uniting them.

MR. TREATER'S TREAT (Sept. 10).—Mr. Trester takes the children of his next door neighbor to the amusement park. The children are wild with excitement and insist on going on all the rides. We take the rides with them and get the benefit of all the sensations and thrills. The race on the Derby and the ride in the Aerostat are especially exciting. After trying everything else, they finally land at the Chutes, where the children drag Mr. Trester to the gates. They have a wild ride and Ruth and Tommy in their excitement upset the boat. It is a ludicrous trio that is fished out of the pond.

BONNIE OF THE HILLS (Sept. 11).—Bonnie, a wholesome girl of the Western mountain country, becomes engaged to Ralph Stuart, a cowboy, after he promises her that he will stop drinking. John Trent, an Easterner, spending his vacation in the little Western town, falls over an embankment. Bonnie and Ralph see him fall and go to his assistance. Ralph notices that his sweetheart is very much concerned about the stranger's wounds, which infuriates him. With Bonnie's help, Trent manages to get back to the hotel. Jealousy drives Ralph to drink. He goes to Bonnie and upbraids her. She returns the ring and dismisses him. Almost insane from whiskey and jealousy, he attempts to kill Trent. Bonnie comes to Trent's assistance and he gets away on her horse. Ralph gives chase and brings Trent to earth in a very sensational manner. Bonnie, however, has followed the men and she pleads with Ralph to spare Trent, whom she has grown to love. Ralph, now sobered, grants her request, even though it is at the expense of his own happiness.

BRONCHO BILLY REFORMS (Sept. 13).—Broncho Billy and his pals plot to rob the general store. Broncho Billy is elected to go into the store and engage the proprietor in conversation while the others enter the rear door and rob the till. A beautiful young girl comes out to wait on Broncho Billy, and he is attracted by her beauty and sweetness and goes back to his pals and declines to have anything to do with the robbery. His pals attack him, tie his hands and feet, and go off on their horses to do the hold-up without him. Broncho Billy manages to free himself, mounts his horse and goes after the bandits. Broncho Billy arrives on the scene just in time to prevent the robbery, and routes his erstwhile pals. The girl thanks him, and as he leaves, looks after him and sighs. He looks longingly at the girl as he mounts his horse, and thinks what happiness life would hold for him if he had led an upright and honest life.

GRIST TO THE MILL (Special—2 parts—Sept. 12).—Will Ward and his wife, Marion, have lived together in true happiness and contentment for several years. The man, whose only weak spot in an otherwise strong character, is his credulity and an inclination to place too much trust in his fellowmen, possesses a sense of honor to a high degree, and his every ambition and thought in life is centered in his wife. Marion is an ideal woman, and her whole life is wrapped up in her love for her husband. Her beauty and nobleness of character make her loved by all who know her.

On his way home from work one evening, Ward as he nears his home, comes upon a man whose automobile has broken down and is impatiently waiting while his chauffeur tried to repair the damage. Ward recognizes in Hammond an old friend, and invites him into the house until the mechanician can get the machine in running order. Hammond accepts the invitation. He is presented to Marion by her husband and immediately becomes fascinated by her charm of face and manner. Before he leaves the house he has formed a plan to get rid of the husband and win the wife. He is a man of great influence in the political world, and offers to get Ward a position that will enable him to live in ease. The husband and wife are pleased and grateful.

Some time later, while Ward is busy in his new position, Hammond brings him a paper to sign, and without reading it, the man affixes his signature. Later, Hammond has Ward arrested and sent to jail on the strength of the document. Marion is grieved over her husband's imprisonment, and a suspicion of Hammond's motive dawns on her. She resolves to let nothing undone to free her husband and punish Hammond, so she sacrifices herself for a time in order to gain her desire. Her husband's conviction grants her a divorce, and immediately after obtaining it, she becomes engaged to Hammond. She loathes the man, but for her husband's sake, simulates love for him.

Ward learns that his wife has obtained a divorce and is engaged to Hammond, and the knowledge almost drives him distracted. After a dinner given to his friends by Hammond, in celebration of his engagement to Marion, the girl, knowing that he is stupid with too much wine, and off his guard, manages to draw the whole story from him, how he duped her husband and had him sent to jail. With the help of an expert telephone man, Marion had previously arranged things so that every word Hammond said was transmitted over the wire and recorded by an operator at headquarters. She cleverly gets possession of the paper, which proved her husband's undoing. Marion's hatred of Hammond, and her cunning have their effect, and her revenge is complete when the man is arrested at her instigation. Ward is released and his wife's actions are satisfactorily explained to him. Husband and wife are overjoyed at their reunion.

VITAGRAPH.

CUPID VERSUS WOMEN'S RIGHTS (Sept. 8).—Because of his opinion against women's suffrage, Madge Trenton breaks her engagement with Rex Liston. Fearing that her heart may change toward him she gets her doctor to order her a trip to Egypt for the benefit of her health. Rex also

SHERLOCK HOLMES SERIES
Eight subjects to choose from—two reels each. Territory in Indiana, Kentucky, Wisconsin (south of Green Bay), Illinois (north of Springfield).
Almo Feature Film Co. (Inc.)
D. W. McKinney, Mgr.
36 W. Randolph St., Chicago
Phone, Randolph 2345

Headquarters for
ASBESTOS
CURTAINS and PICTURE BOOTHS
Send for Booklet C. W. Trainer Mfg. Co.
39 Pearl St., Boston, Mass.

For FEATURE FILMS
address
NORTHERN FEATURE FILM EXCHANGE
uite 405, Schiller Building, Chicago
Phone Central 6229
SEND FOR OUR NEW LIST

$3.50 CRYSTAL WHITE
$4.00 SILVER FINISH
Curtain Coatings
PREPAID
ALFRED C. STANGE, 15 S. Leavitt St., Chicago, Ill.

Advance Motion Picture Co.
Commercial, Industrial and Educational Film Mfgrs.
Chicago.
General Offices. 547-549 Peoples Gas Bldg.
Factory and Studio 950 Edgecomb Place

GET WISE—USE OUR SUPPLIES
McCRAY & McCRAY
Amusement Brokers
Dealers in
Everything for the Theatre
We sell it for less—Write for list.
306 Madison St., FAIRMONT, W. VA.

Exhibitors Note The fall season has started. So have we, are you? If not, why not? We have the features that get the money. You have the theatre. That's the answer. Why not call or write for list of features that are all money getters?
EAGLE FEATURE FILM CO., House of Features Only, 5 East 14th Street
CHAS. H. STREIMER, Mgr. Telephone 2771 Stuyvesant Booking Now, ON THE TRAIL OF THE SPIDER GANG. Wire for open dates

COMING! COMING! 4-Reel Sensational Feature A FIGHT FOR MILLIONS Adventures of a GENTLEMAN BURGLAR
ADVERTISING MATTER includes four kinds of one-sheets, two kinds of three-sheets, a six-sheet, announcement slides, heralds and other miscellaneous material.
Blaché Features, (Inc.) Fort Lee, New Jersey

COMING!
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED
4,000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

KINEMACOLOR SERVICE

PERMANENTLY INSTALLED IN

WM. MORRIS' NEW YORK THEATRE
PROCTOR & KEITH THEATRES
ROSENQUIST'S FOURTEENTH STREET THEATRE
WILLIAM FOX CIRCUIT
REGENT THEATRE, NEW YORK
WM. S. BUTTERFIELD MIDDLE WEST CIRCUIT
JONES, LINICK & SCHAEFER CHICAGO THEATRES
WESTERN VAUDEVILLE ASSOCIATION HOUSES
McDONALD'S NORTHWESTERN CIRCUIT
FEIBER & SHEA CIRCUIT
JAKE WELLS CIRCUIT

and 100 other leading picture and vaudeville theatres
BOTH INDEPENDENT AND LICENSED

Write to the nearest office for list of cities not yet closed

KINEMACOLOR COMPANY OF AMERICA

NEW YORK, 1600 Broadway
CHICAGO, 538 So. Dearborn St.
LOUISVILLE, KY., Majestic Building
PROVIDENCE, R. I., 509 Westminster St.
PORTLAND, OREGON, 64 Seventh St.

For service in Southern cities write or wire

JAKE WELLS

CHARLES W. REX, Gen. Rep.

316 Putnam Building, New York

OR

Grand Theatre Building, Atlanta, Georgia

goes to Egypt to seek solitude, not knowing that she is there. They meet one day on the veranda of the hotel where both are staying.

Madge and her aunt, Miss Peterson, engage a guide to show them over some ancient ruins, in spite of Rex telling them that it will be dangerous for them to go without a male escort. Their guide, Abdnl, is a faithful, honest fellow, but none-the-less they are attacked by a band of beggars as they return. Rex, who has followed them, effects a rescue and escorts them back to the hotel. In the fight with the beggars Abdnl is wounded and afterward Madge dresses his wound and treats him with every kindness, as a result of which Abdul conceives a violent passion for her.

After he has recovered from his wounds Madge asks Abdul to take her and her aunt to visit the tombs of the ancient Egyptian kings, again disregarding the warning of Rex, who follows them. He finds Miss Peterson outside the tomb, greatly alarmed at the long absence of Madge and Abdul, who have penetrated into the tombs and left her there to await their return. Rex enters the tomb and is just in time to save Madge from Abdul, who attempts to take her in his arms and cover her with caresses.

That night Madge goes to Rex and tells him that she has decided that she needs a man's care after all and begs him to renew the engagement.

OLD MODDINGTON'S DAUGHTERS (Sept. 9).—With his six beautiful daughters, Moddington sets out for the West. While they are journeying across the plains they rescue Captain Downing, who has charge of a detail of troops who are stationed at the fort. The soldiers to show their gratitude, invite the girls with their father to come to the fort as their guests. This they do and a dance is given in their honor. The soldiers make the best of their opportunity and try to make themselves popular with the girls, hoping to become their favorites.

The next day, joined by Joe Barlow, who is driving a commissary wagon, the Moddingtons again proceed on their way. Indians in the nearby country see them and plan an attack. They are not the only ones who see them, for a party of soldiers at the fort who have followed the settlers with field glasses see the girls and the predicament they are in.

In the meantime, the girls have seen the Indians and they make preparations for self-protection. While opening a box containing rifles, they stumble upon some U. S. uniforms. A novel plan enters the head of Ruby, Moddington's nineteen-year-old daughter. She suggests the donning of the uniforms. This is done and the Indians are fearfully surprised at seeing six "U. S. soldiers." They flee in terror. The real soldiers ride up, just as the Indians go by, and they promptly take possession of the girls saying "there is no harm in a soldier kissing a soldier."

FORTUNE'S TURN (Sept. 10).—Having tramped the city day after day in search of a job and finding none, Tom Whyman is reduced to desperation. He has an invalid father to support and has spent his last cent. Honesty having failed him, he resolves to try dishonesty.

Seeing a house deserted by its occupants for the evening, he climbs to a second story balcony and enters a window. He is seen, however, by two policemen, who at once hurry toward the house. Tom sees them coming and flees as fast as he can, but, being weak from starvation, they soon gain upon him and he realizes that to get away he must take a desperate chance.

Tom bursts through the fire-lines in front of a burning dwelling and rushes into the house, hoping to be able to get through and out at the back and so escape his pursuers. In the house he hears the cry of a small child upstairs and rushes up to rescue it. By the time that he finds the child, the stairs are alight and it is impossible to get out of the way.

He climbs to the roof, and making a rope of clothes lines, he lowers the baby as far as the top of the nearest fire escape. Tom then makes another life line for himself and is able to let himself down, to the ladder, where he faints in a fireman's arms.

Tom is taken to the hospital, for he has been badly burned, but, having been recognized by the policeman, a guard is put over him pending his recovery from his injuries. He is visited constantly by the mother of the child he had rescued, a poor widow, who is filled with gratitude for what he has done for her.

The newspapers take up his case and Tom is pardoned without trial. A kind sympathizer offers him a job and he is able to marry the widow who has fallen in love with him and whose love he returns. His fortune has turned and he is able now to support both his father and his wife in comfort and happiness.

THE TIGER (Sept. 11).—After a search of many years, Robert Bardon at last finds the man he has been hunting, Gamo, the animal trainer. Years before, Gamo had won the love of Gladys, Bardon's daughter, and had eloped with her during her father's absence abroad. After his marriage he had descended to the lowest depths, becoming a vile drunkard and constantly beating his wife, whom he finally deserted and left to die of starvation. Bardon, although he had sought high and low for his daughter, had not found her until a few hours before her death, when he had sworn to be revenged upon the coward that had ruined her life.

He finds Gamo with his performing tigers at the Hippodrome and determines that the hour has now come for his revenge. During the performance, Gamo is injured by one of the tigers, who seems filled with a deadly hatred of him. As soon as he is well, Gamo sells the animal, which is purchased by Bardon, who means to use the beast as his instrument of vengeance.

Bardon seeks out Gamo and invites him to the house, where, having the man alone with him, he reveals his identity. Gamo realizes that his life is in danger and that Bardon intends his destruction. He attempts to leave the room, but finds that he is locked in. When he comes to investigate he finds that he is in a chamber without either door or windows and that escape is impossible.

A secret door in the side of the room opens and Gamo finds himself looking at a cage in which is imprisoned the very tiger that had so lately attacked him. The door of the cage is slowly lifted and nothing remains between him and the ferocious beast.

When the room is at last opened by Bardon's servants they find Gamo a lifeless corpse upon the floor, having been killed by the tiger, while in the next room Bardon, who had been overcome by his emotions, also lies lifeless. His revenge accomplished, Bardon had nothing more to live for.

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE (Sept. 12).—Greatly peeved at her husband's constant falls from grace, Mabel Wise resolves to teach him a lesson. She threatens that if Jim ever goes out on "a bat" again she will retaliate in kind. Jim solemnly promises to behave himself and to give up the friends that are leading him astray.

Jim's friends come to the office next afternoon and drag him out to have "just one." After the "one" they tell him of a French ball for that evening and ask him to come along. He phones home to tell his wife of the engagement, and, if possible, to get her permission. Receiving no answer he concludes she is out and rushes home to change his clothes before she can return.

On getting back to the house Mabel sees that Jim has been home and resolves to have a surprise for him on his return at night. Later on she receives a phone call from him, telling her where he is. She tells him he must hurry home, as she wants him to come on an outing with her, purely imaginary on her part. He presses her for details, but she hangs up the receiver, leaving him wondering where she is going.

WHEN YOUR PICTURE MACHINE NEEDS REPAIRING
WHY DON'T YOU SEND IT TO US?
We have the best equipped machine shop in the country and can repair any make of machine. Write us and get acquainted.
WE BUY SECOND-HAND MACHINES.
GEO. M. HOKE SUPPLY CO.
176. N State St. (bet. Lake and Randolph) Chicago, Ill.

TRY US
for printing, developing and titles. No order too large for our capacity, or none too small for our careful attention. Films renovated by our special Paris Process.
PARISIAN MFG. & FILM RENOVATING CO.
4940 Wentworth Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE 50 FEATURES
First Class Condition
Elegant Advertising Matter. 1000-COMMERCIALS
VERY CHEAP
INTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS
5 WEST 14th STREET, NEW YORK

MONEYITIS
(THE NATIONAL CRAVING)
If you're not getting the root of evil, and goodness, THAT'S YOUR BUSINESS.
If you want to get it, THAT'S MY BUSINESS.
A capable manager, advertising, and publicity man, who possesses "The Seed of Success" is now open for bids.
ADDRESS F. J., 630 HALSEY STREET, BROOKLYN, N.Y.

WHY SHOW A
Jumpy—Flickery—BUSINESS KILLING Picture?
WHEN YOU CAN
HAVE YOUR MACHINE FIXED AS GOOD AS NEW, WORK GUARANTEED
We sell all makes of machines, new and second-hand. Also machine parts, supplies, tickets, carbons, etc.
CHICAGO MOVING PICTURE SUPPLY CO.,
538 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, Illinois.

McKENNA
BRASS
RAILINGS
EASELS
GRILLES
CUSPIDORS
KICK
PLATES
POSTER
FRAMES
Write for Catalog.
McKenna Bros. Brass Co.
PITTSBURGH

Blaché FEATURES
COMING! COMING!
4-Reel Sensational Feature A FIGHT FOR MILLIONS Adventures of a GENTLEMAN BURGLAR
ADVERTISING MATTER includes four kinds of one-sheets, two kinds of three-sheets, a six-sheet, announcement slides, heralds and other miscellaneous material.
Blaché Features, (Inc.) Fort Lee, New Jersey

COMING!
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED
4,000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

"THE BETROTHED"

(In Six Reels)

The ONLY truly remarkable production founded on Alexander Manzoni's immortal work, "I PROMESSI SPOSI." Yes, we know there are other versions. See them, then get the BEST—AMBROSIO'S.

READ REVIEW IN THIS ISSUE

"Grandmother's Lamp"

(A Feature in Three Reels)

An extra good subject that will appeal to all picture-play goers. The most artistic picture of the year, yet exciting, thrilling and stirring. Some good territory still open. Get busy.

Ambrosio American Co.

15 East 26th Street, New York

Mabel fixes up the room so that it will appear as if a gay party has held revel there and then goes out by herself. Jim, fearful of what Mabel may say to him, returns home early to find the house deserted, but sees the signs of a "large evening." He is greatly worried by the absence of his wife and sits down to wait for her. She comes in soon, apparently with a beautiful "jag." She plays the part to perfection and has him almost crazy. When she is satisfied that she has kept it up long enough she enlightens him as to the truth. Jim is entirely penitent and again promises to remain on his good behavior, a promise that she compels him to keep ever afterward.

THE LOST MILLIONAIRE (Special—2 parts—Sept. 13).—A young millionaire, Robert Redwin, does not marry because he cannot find any girl who he is sure loves him for himself alone and not for his millions. Redwin gets a tip that coal is to be found in a certain district in Tennessee, and sends Carter, his agent, to investigate and report. Carter finds valuable deposits at Hell's Gap, on land owned by a poor mountaineer and his granddaughter, Josephine Blake. He telegraphs Redwin advising the purchase of the land at a high figure, and himself schemes to marry the girl, so that he may obtain her coming fortune. Josephine will have nothing to do with Carter, although he threatens that she will get no money unless she marries him.

The check paying for the land is never sent by Redwin, who meets with an accident just as he is about to sign it. A heavy picture falls on his head, causing him to lose his memory and forget his identity. He disappears and the papers are filled with the sensation of the lost millionaire.

Redwin, having forgotten his own name, wanders about the country and leads the life of a tramp. Chance leads him to Hell's Gap, where he meets Josephine and her grandfather, who befriend him.

Hearing from Josephine the story of how she almost became rich, recollections are stirred in Robert's mind and his memory returns to him. Before this he has already won the love of Josephine and he determines to find out whether it will stand the test of riches when she becomes wealthy. Robert sends her the check at last and when she joyfully tells him that she is rich, he bids her farewell, saying that he supposes she will no longer want him now that she is rich. Josephine tells him that her love will ever remain the same and goes with him to New York to be married. Robert does not disclose his identity until they reach his home, where they are married in the presence of Robert's mother, who is happy that her son has won the love of a true woman.

MELIES.

A DAY AT SINGAPORE (Sept. 4).—An interesting scenic of the picturesque show places of Singapore, Straits Settlements, Asia. Singapore, which is at the extreme southern end of the Malayan peninsula, is one of the largest seaports in the world. Its inhabitants are for the most part Malays, with a large proportion of Chinese and a sprinkling of Europeans. In this picture we see all classes in their respective quarters.

SELIG.

THE WATER RAT (Special 2 Parts—August 25).—Two young collegians, Anthony Markham, an enigmatical person, and Alan Strange, whose temperament is the direct antithesis of his friend, compete for the honors of swimming. Both men are aspirants for the hand of Rosalie Latimer, the daughter of the banker, Latimer, to whom Alan is the confidential secretary. Alan wins the swimming match, which so distresses Markham that he insults him. Alan, taking exception to the retort, retaliates by a swift punch on the jaw, felling Markham, who leaves, vowing vengeance.

Two years later we see Alan still trying to win the hand of Rosalie, while Markham, still the puzzling fellow, has managed to break into society and is looked upon as a reputed gentleman, although his source of income is quite unknown. He, too, is still trying to win the fair Rosalie.

To the home of the banker come Lord and Lady Montesgle, bedecked with diamonds galore. For fear of any probable burglary, the chief of Scotland Yards details Detective Locksley to the mansion. The banker is persuaded to place the diamond necklace belonging to Lady Monteagle in the safe, and he delegates this duty to Alan, who, just as he has completed his commission, is knocked unconscious from a blow on the head by Markham, who appropriates the jewels and escapes without leaving any means of identification. Alan is found later, and despite his protestations of innocence, is placed in jail. Through the importunities of Rosalie, who is the only one to believe that Alan is innocent, Locksley is persuaded to ferret out the real thief.

In the company of an assistant detective, Locksley goes to the desolated house of Markham's, and through past observances he comes to the conclusion that the "water rat" (Markham), is responsible for the number of burglaries and crimes committed in the past. Following the requests of Locksley, the assistant dresses as a scarecrow, and from a place of vantage he observes every move of the "water rat." Locksley calls at the house of Markham and is received by a man servant. He is told to wait a while. Becoming impatient after waiting for some time, Locksley looks out of the window and perceives the servant making a fast getaway with a package in the surrounding water. This is also seen by the assistant, who goes in pursuit. The assistant, in struggling with the servant, is knocked unconscious. Locksley goes to his rescue, and he finds in the canoe a small package that was overlooked by the servant. Upon opening it he discovers a diamond ring, the property of Lady Monteagle. Locksley and his assistant again visit the house of the "water rat," and after climbing the stairs in the turret, they observe Markham examining his plunder. A terrific struggle follows. Markham, hearing more of the detective's aides coming up the stairs, plunges head first out of the window. He meets his death in the dive and Alan is relieved from the stigma of theft, much to the pleasure of Rosalie.

THE RANCHER'S FAILING (Sept. 9).—George Graham, a well-to-do ranchman, has many good qualities, but one weakness—drunkenness. Jonas Meade, his foreman, a thrifty, stalwart man, is in love with his daughter, Holly; but he learns, to his chagrin, that she is engaged to a city man, one Victor Wylie. It is gleaned, however, that Wylis is simply after her money, and prefers to get it without marrying her, if possible. This scheming individual visits the ranch and connives with a pair of desperadoes to get Graham drunk, and then make a will signing away all his money to him. Considering Graham's weakness, this is not a great feat of strength, and afterwards the conspirators carry him out into the desert and leave him to perish. They then realize that he must be dead, and proved dead, before the will they have so boldly secured, will be of any value.

In the interim, the sharp-eared Jonas learns of the conspiracy, and with the assistance of an Indian, trails Graham out into the desert, and then to the home of a sheep-herder, who found him and saved him from death. They find an Indian skeleton recently unearthed by spring rains, which they place in the desert, where the conspirators are likely to hunt for it, together with portions of Graham's clothing. They then scatter fresh meat about, to attract the wolves. After this scheme is in train, they conduct Graham back to town and sequester him in his lawyer's office.

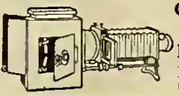
The conspirators are anxious to put their claim in proof, and they go out into the desert and secure what they consider absolute evidence, but when they come to town with their little old bogus will, and what they believe are the remains of Graham, they are confronted by that worthy himself. Thereupon he swears to forego drink forever, and Holly hap-

COMPENSARC
That's the device that saves Moving Picture men two-thirds on their electric light bills, and yet gives better light. Did you see our ad last week? Well, don't look it up. Just write for our
Booklet 15018
FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
OF GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY
1402 Broadway
FORT WAYNE INDIANA 79

LET US DO YOUR
Developing and Printing
WE WILL DEVELOP YOUR NEGATIVE, MAKE YOU A POSITIVE PRINT AND SHIP WITHIN 24 HOURS FOR 5c PER FOOT COMPLETE.
SATISFACTION GUARANTEED
BY OUR FIFTEEN YEARS' EXPERIENCE
EASTMAN STOCK USED ON ALL OUR WORK
FILM TITLES and ANNOUNCEMENTS
3 Feet for 25 Cents
IN ANY LENGTH
GUNBY BROS., Inc.
199 Third Ave. New York City

MAKE MOVING PICTURES
WITH
Our Ideal Motion Picture Camera
Excellently constructed, beautifully finished, simple to operate, fitted up with a B. & L. Zeiss Tessar Lens, I. C., F 3-5, one of the best and fastest lenses in the market; holds 200 feet stock.
Send for Illustrated Catalogue
PRICE COMPLETE $75.00
Motion Picture Camera Co., Inc.
Dept. A 5 West 14th Street, New York

The Old Reliable
BULL DOG CEMENT
AND
ONE DROP OIL
At Your Exchange
ONE DROP OIL CO., 15 S. Leavitt St., Chicago, Ill.



MOVING PICTURE MACHINES
Stereopticons, Slides, Accessories
CHAS. M. STEBBINS
1028 Main St.
KANSAS CITY, MO
Large Line of Edison Goods. Established 1899.

COMING! COMING!
4-Reel Sensational Feature A FIGHT FOR MILLIONS Adventures of a GENTLEMAN BURGLAR
ADVERTISING MATTER includes four kinds of one-sheets, two kinds of three-sheets, a six-sheet, announcement slides, heralds and other miscellaneous material.
Blaché Features, (Inc.) Fort Lee, New Jersey

COMING!
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED
4,000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

Now Booking and Breaking Box Office Records Everywhere

"The Streets of New York"

Indorsed by All Dramatic Critics

THREE-PARTS-THREE FOUR-REELS-FOUR

PRODUCED BY

The Pilot Film Corp'n

A realistic four-reel melodrama full of action, heart interest and thrills, the greatest moving picture ever produced of the lights and shadows of America's greatest City. A play that has thrilled millions. A story with heart interest, a production that is real and a picture that will draw

In connection with this great picture I am building special high class lobby display. Arranging a great line of advertising material and a great moral lecture. All Exhibitors in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan and Wisconsin, write or wire me at once. I have got the show that will do the business and it is up to you to get the show that will get you the money

WANTED FOUR MORE GOOD LECTURERS, THREE MORE GOOD AGENTS, HIGH CLASS AND EXPERIENCED MEN ONLY

Herman J. Garfield Amusement Enterprises

Columbia Building .· .· .· Cleveland, Ohio

Watch for next week's announcement. I have more to tell you pily realizes that Jonas is a real man, and that Wylie was only a commonplace villain.

AROUND BATTLE TREE (Sept. 10).—The Battle Tree, one of the historic landmarks in the smaller towns, has been ruthlessly sacrificed to modern progress. For many years, the youth of the town had gathered around it, etc. To Hilton, a work-a-day old bachelor in the city, this notice of a country paper brought back memories of the old crowd, mostly lost to sight, that there was an intention of reassembling, at a certain date, some good samaritan having sent out notices for the reunion, trusting that they would find response. An invitation also comes to Constance, who has wearied of the dreary grind of teaching piano to young Americans who had neither tuneful ears or sense of harmony, and she concludes that she will go back to the old sweet town, quiet and restful.

This lady finds herself a guest of honor at Hilton's right, and they make right merry with quips and reminiscences of the good old days that are no more, the group including many who have achieved more or less fame in the battle with the big world. As the shades of evening fall, Constance quietly leaves the loquacious group and steals away to visit the "Old Battle Tree" and the carved bench under it where her initials were carved by her boyish lover in the long ago. She hears in the distance the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," then the shadow of a man deepens under the branches of the old tree. Hilton comes to see if the old carving is still intact. There he finds Constance, and they renew the troth that they made in the youthful days of long ago.

TWO TOO MANY (Sept. 11).—Barney Webster enters his bachelor apartments the morning after the ball, with his head swathed in wet towelings, dark rings under his eyes and other evidences to amplify the fact that he has a severe headache as a result of the gay time the night before. He gets a look at himself first, which staggers him, and his butler brings him a note which sends him back into his easy chair for the count. The note tells the volume: "Surprised to see what a fool you made of yourself at the ball last night. Too much champagne. Do you know that you proposed marriage to Annabel Knight and then to Dorothy Armfield? You cannot marry both."

Then follows a series of dissolves, showing Barney's double courtship under the heavy influence, brought about by "the imprisoned smiles of France." This series of revelations quite sober the enterprising club man, and he gathers himself together with a view of breaking with Dorothy, as the lesser love. He goes to call with this philanthropic intent and is about to state his case when Dorothy calls at Annabels and he takes refuge behind the couch, which close quarters leaves him cramped. He crawls behind the heavy window draperies and manages to come down the fire escape. The janitor takes him for a burglar and his dress-suit suffers from the rough handling he experiences. He is hardly cleaned up from this adventure before Harold and his fiancée, Dorothy, accompanied by Annabel, call at the ex-dashing Barney's apartment. His man, James, tells them he is not at home, but they insist upon remaining. Barney, hearing the colloquy at the door, takes refuge in a box-couch. His impertinent visitors invade the apartment and seat themselves upon the couch. Annabel and Dorothy have a mock quarrel as to which shall really marry him. Between fright and perspiration, poor Barney has a swelter of it, until they considerately lift up the top of the couch and Dorothy passes in a formidable looking document, which is a marriage license for him to fill out. This appears to relieve his anxiety and gratifies Dorothy, who is evidently an associate member of the progressive suffragettes.

HER WAY (Sept. 12).—A good mother, dying, bequeaths to her daughter a well-worn Bible, beseeching her to follow its teachings day by day. Her father, a brutal inebriate, comes home and finds her reading the old book, snatches it from her, stamps upon it, and falls to the floor in a drunken fury. Gates, a plausible young stranger, hearing her cries, rushes in, learns her story, eventually wins her confidence, and she gives him her hand in marriage. She finds out that he is a gambler, daily quarrels ensue—her only consolation is the Bible. One night he brings home a stranger, introduces him to her as a friend of his—Burke. Although she is dismissed from the room, she observes that they are discussing the contents of a big Gladstone bag, filled with bundles of bills of a large denomination. The stranger asks that it be locked in the gamvler's safe for the night. Bess retires to her own room, but hearing a noise in the front room in which the safe is located, she discovers to her horror, that her husband is about to break the safe, evidently to thus give the impression that it was rifled by burglars, and then get away with the money. At the same time, the owner of the bag discovers the perfidy of his friend and has secretly covered him with his revolver. The wife, in an agony of fear, rushes into the yard, but with ready wit, throws a stone through the window, and then retires to her own room. This diverts the man who is preparing to blow the safe and the other man who is about to shoot him, flustrating both. The following morning she finds a bill-book under the pillow of the stranger's bed, learning from it that his name is not Burke, that he is in reality a brother of her husband, and is a defaulter. She finds, at the same time, a letter from his heart-broken old mother, which moves her mightily. When Burke, discovering his loss, returns to get the coat, she brings him to his senses and shows him a way to right the wrong by returning the money to the bank and saving criminal proceedings. In the interim, her own husband has read the letter of his mother, is similarly moved and is finding consolation in his wife's Bible when she returns to their home. The lessons in the good book have not been lost. She has practiced them and brought the sinners back into the light from their crooked, wayward paths.

HOWLIN' JONES (Sept. 4).—Occasionally the first son of an English family wishes he were second, preferring the gay and easy life to the pressure of a coronet, and many an available candidate for the house of peers has quietly slipped away to some far corner of the earth, to lose himself in preference to entering the world of politics and submit to the irksome conventions of its social obligations. So it came about that Howland-Jones (who is in reality Lord Howland), comes to America, incognito, and slides down into the great lone land of Arizona, to try out himself, get next to the people, and incidentally a lot of other "varmints," and try to earn his own living at some occupation not quite as laborious as golf or as dangerous as polo, as extravagant as baccarat, or as assinine as sitting in the club windows, watching the ladies crossing Picadilly on rainy days.

The English lordling has the "h's" in his name dropped by the cowboys on the Diamond S Ranch, and becomes known as "'Owlin Jones," but after he gets rid of his monocle, his tweenies, (hideous checked knickerbockers that fit only in fancy), the switch-cane and the monkey-cap (a remnant of his grenadier days), and climbs into general store overalls (equally good, going or coming), fitted with bachelor buttons, and guaranteed to stand the strain of any bucker, he begins to attract more respect in the eyes of the good naturedly scornful. They try him out as a joke by putting him unwittingly on a bucking horse, but he turns the tables on them as he directs the bucker their way and keeps his seat in the fashion that surprises the most hardened broncho buster. They find out that although he is a lord "a man is a man for a' that," for he manages to outdo them at most of their athletic stunts and takes to the country like one to the manor born, and although he is the stature of a man, he settles down to grow up with it, for the love of the new land he has found so congenial.

NAN OF THE WOODS (Sept. 5).—Don James, inspired by almost ungovernable wrath, is about to

The House of a Thousand Features
EXCLUSIVE SUBJECTS
M. & F. Service
167 W. Washington Street
CHICAGO, ILL.
SEND FOR LIST OF NEW SUBJECTS

LAEMMLE LUCK

DON'T BE A BACK NUMBER

The old days when you had to pour your profits into the lap of a "state rights feature" man are past and dead. The wise, quick-thinking exhibitor is the one who uses the best FEATURES in all the world as part of his regular service. Write to any of my offices and find out what I'll do for you.

CARL LAEMMLE, President

The Laemmle Film Service

204 West Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
252-A Hennepin Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.
1312 Farnum Street, Omaha, Neb.
Hubbell Building, Des Moines, Iowa

Agents for All Makes of Machines and Accessories

"The Biggest and Best Film Renter in the World"

COMING! COMING!
4-Reel Sensational Feature A FIGHT FOR MILLIONS Adventures of a GENTLEMAN BURGLAR
ADVERTISING MATTER includes four kinds of one-sheets, two kinds of three-sheets, a six-sheet, announcement slides, heralds and other miscellaneous material.
Blaché Features, (Inc.) Fort Lee, New Jersey

COMING!
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED
4,000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

CANADIAN BIOSCOPE CO.

COMING!

"EVANGELINE"

Grand Spectacular Production of

LONGFELLOW'S FAMOUS CLASSIC

in

4---PARTS---4

Produced and Staged at the Original Sites of Grand Pre and Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia

IN THE LAND OF EVANGELINE

With the Co-operation of the Canadian Pacific Railway

By the

CANADIAN BIOSCOPE CO.

Halifax, N. S.

fire upon an innocent man, when a tiny white blossom falls like a snow-flake upon the blue barrel of his revolver. Surprised by this peculiar circumstance, the would-be assassin looks upward toward the tree and in the branches sees again the impish face of "Nan of the Woods," an elf-like mountain sprite, who has recently flown into his life. A moment later Don discovers that the drifting blossom has saved him from killing his own father, whom he has never seen. Upon Don's return from the city, Nan's father, who is an ignorant and jealous man, has observed a stranger at Mrs. James' home (the wanderer who had fled years before from that fireside returned and had been forgiven). The woodsman jumped at a conclusion, as he himself is in love with the widow; but, never asks for an explanation, and intercepting Don, he whispers his suspicions in the ears of that impetuous youth, who upon no other proof than hearsay, trails his own father through the woods and is about to shoot him down. The father, believing his son is avenging his mother's wrongs in connection with his early flight from home under disgraceful circumstances, accepts the defy of his son. So he takes the weapon that the enfuriated young man hands him, exclaiming: "It will be each man for himself when we enter these woods." He quietly empties his own weapon of cartridges and is about to offer himself as a victim, when Nan, who has been playing with her wolves and birds, sees Don. She nimbly runs up a tree and drops the blossom which foils the near tragedy. Her explanation restores happiness, reunites the family, and Nan consents to give up her bare-foot wanderings and her moonlight incantations in the shadowy woods to become Don's bride.

PATHEPLAY.

PATHE'S WEEKLY NO. 45—1913 (August 28).—Albany, N. Y.—The unparalleled situation of two men acting as governor of the State continues. Every morning Gov. Sulzer bids his dog, Patsy, goodbye, leaves the executive mansion and walks, as usual, to the capitol.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—More than two thousand school children take part in the sports and pastime dances on the Public School Athletic League Field at the conclusion of the vacation playground season.

Chicago, Ill.—A squad of United States apprentice seamen presents its drill and exhibits its skill in manning the latest type of lifeboat as a feature of the Perry Centennial Celebration.

Jersey City, N. J.—A spectacular fire, starting in a cooperage plant, wipes out four city blocks, destroying factories and tenements and leaving 500 persons homeless and unemployed. The lost is estimated at $1,000,000.

Madrid, Spain.—The Royal family of Spain attends, in state, the baptism of Don Juan, the infant son of King Alfonso XIII.

Saint Cloud, France.—The Stella Aero Club, an organization composed entirely of women aeronauts, holds its annual ascension day.

Paris France.—French vaudeville artists provoke laughter when they compete in a series of ingeniously devised races at the Actors' Association Benefit.

St. Louis, Mo.—An outdoor fashion show, held under the auspices of the St. Louis Times, attracts feminine folks to Forest Park to see the creations or Ora Cue, the well-known milliner.

New York, N. Y.—Christy Mathewson proves he is still there when he helps the Giants to down their ancient rivals, the Chicago Cubs, by the score of 8 to 2.

PATHE'S WEEKLY, NO. 44, 1913 (August 25).—Long Branch, N. J.—In the annual pageant of the Children's Midsummer Festival, beautiful babies, beautifully costumed, vie with each other for the prizes, which the committee finds difficulty in awarding.

Stockholm, Sweden.—Jean Bouin, French champion long distance runner, running against time, covers 11 miles, 1,648 yds., in one hr., breaking world's record.

New York, N. Y.—The victorious American tennis team, which succeeded in lifting the Davis Cup, returns on the steamer "France."

Marion, Ind.—The Imperial Order of Wize Gazams, a fraternal adjunct of the Glass Bottle Blowers' Association, presents its spectacular drill at the 37th annual convention of the Association.

Boston, Mass.—The old steamer "Connecticut," of the Norwich line, is destroyed by fire off Governor's Island in Boston harbor.

Villacoublay, France.—Brindejonc des Moulinais, in his 80 H.P. seven-cylinder aeroplane, completes a voyage of 3,100 miles, which included a call at the capitals of seven different countries.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The baseball team composed entirely of Chinese from the University of Hawaii, ends its tour of the United States with a defeat by the Ridgewood team of this city, score, 3 to 2.

Ghent, Belgium.—The king, accompanied by his two sons, is welcomed to this city, whither he comes for the official opening of Ghent-Terneuzen canal.

Comic Section.—Noah Webster, the well-known author of the dictionary, in his palmiest days, had nothing on our friend Jeff. Drawn by Bud Fisher.

SLEUFOOT'S SEVENTH SUICIDE (Sept. 9).—The love affair of Mandy Coquette and Sleufoot Shine, her dusky lover, was the scandal of the Blacktown villagers. Six times Sleuthfoot had offered his heart and hand to Mandy, six times Mandy had refused and six times Sleufoot had vowed to end it all. But he always reconsidered his decision, that's what made his friends sore, and that's why they decided, after Sleufoot's seventh notice that he was going to leave for parts unknown, to teach him a lesson. Sleufoot's friends, made up as imps of Satan, caught the would-be suicide in the dead of night. Not only did they scare the wits out of Sleufoot, but they nearly made his suicide a reality, until Mandy stepped in and declared that hereafter she would be known as Mrs. Sleufoot Shine, which made everybody happy.

ACROSS THE CHASM (Sept. 10).—Dan Crockett's descendants still tell the story of their ancestor's first encounter with the Rocky Mountain Indians. A young warrior, because Dan would not supply him with "firewater," stole Dan's infant son and, when pursued, used a lariat, which Dan had given him, to span a yawning chasm, and, with the baby tied to his back, moved hand over hand on his perilous journey across the abyss, while Dan and his wife, their hearts aching, stood and watched, fearing and powerless to do aught else than hope and pray. Too, they tell in a reverential whisper, of how the warrior's sweetheart, coming upon her lover after he had safely crossed the chasm, felt her mother instinct strangely stirred, gave the Crocketts back their child, even though to do so cost her lover's life.

PHOTOGRAPHS FOR LOBBY DISPLAY

size 8x10 of all 2 and 3-reel FEATURES of the following: KALEM, EDISON, THANHOUSER, LUBIN, BRONCHO, KAY-BEE, RELIANCE, PILOT, MAJESTIC, AMERICAN.

Set of 12, $2.00. Set of 6, $1.00.

KRAUS MFG. CO., 14 E. 17th St., N. Y.

DISTRIBUTORS WANTED IN CANADA, FAR WEST and SOUTH for our PHOTO PLAYERS POST CARDS, Association and Independent, 300 different players.

NEW MACHINES

TIME or CASH

ALL MAKES

A Modern Machine Will Double the Profits

SEND FOR NEW CATALOG

Allowance Made on Your Old Outfit

We have some BARGAINS in REBUILT MACHINES.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO.

"Everything from Screen to Booth"

160A No. Fifth Ave. CHICAGO

MUSIC For Moving Pictures

Violin, Flute, Clarinet, Cornet and Drum parts have been added to the popular "Orpheum Collection" of piano music. Practical for piano alone or any number of above instruments with piano.

Prices for First Series (No. 1)

Piano 58 cts. Violin 40 cts. Flute 35 cts. Clarinet 35 cts. Cornet 35 cts. Drums 30 cts. Other parts are in preparation. Send for free sample page.

The second series (No. 2.), is same instrumentation and price as No. 1. No. 3 is ready for piano alone; other parts in preparation. (This is dramatic and descriptive stuff; not dance music.) Now being used in every part of the English speaking world.

CLARENCE E. SINN

1501 SEDGWICK ST. CHICAGO, ILL.

AMERICAN MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS

are acknowledged by the leading expert film producers to be the finest and most accurate Cameras in the world.

We also manufacture a complete line of Studio and Dark Room Equipment.

AGENTS FOR EASTMAN RAW FILM

Send for Catalogues

American Cinematograph Co.

617-631 W. Jackson Blvd. Chicago, Ill.

Blache FEATURES

COMING! COMING! 4-Reel Sensational Feature A FIGHT FOR MILLIONS Adventures of a GENTLEMAN BURGLAR

ADVERTISING MATTER includes four kinds of one-sheets, two kinds of three-sheets, a six-sheet, announcement slides, heralds and other miscellaneous material.

Blache Features, (Inc.) Fort Lee, New Jersey

COMING!

THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO

THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED

4,000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

FRONTIER FRONTIER

"THAT POPULAR BRAND"

Thursday — Comedy	Saturday — Drama
Aug. 28th—"A Much Wanted Baby"	Aug. 30th—"Maya, Just an Indian"
Sept. 4th—"Flirty Florence"	Sept. 6th—"The Surgeon of Abajo"
Sept. 11th—"Dorathea & Chief Razamataz"	Sept. 13th—"On Forbidden Paths"
Sept. 18th—"The Juvenile Kidnappers"	Sept. 20th—"The Ranchman's Double"

FRONTIER FILMS

DEMAND THEM OF YOUR EXCHANGE

For Industrial and Commercial Work—Send Us Your Negative

Local Films Demand Prompt Service—Don't Lose Time

¶ Our location insures the best service for central, southern, and middle west states.

CAMERA MEN SENT ANYWHERE

Let Us Quote You

WORK GUARANTEED HIGHEST QUALITY

St. Louis Motion Picture Co.

2710 North Twenty-Fifth Street. St. Louis, Missouri

A JUNGLE FLIRTATION Sept. 13).—Another of the animated cartoon films which will score a great success. The story deals with the love affairs of Lovesicko the Monk, and his adventures with the ladies of his choice have been pronounced by all: "The funniest picture ever devised." The film is full of action and the situations that cause spontaneous outbursts of laughter.

TAHITI, THE PICTURESQUE (Sept. 13).—A personally conducted tour through an island of wondrous beauty in the South Seas, opening with a view of Feete, the island's harbor, journeying up the road to the town, where we see the market at five o'clock in the morning, a scene of surprising industry. The film shows the costumes and customs of the natives, the principal points of interest, the Falls of Fautana, with a drop of 680 feet, beautiful lagoons which dot the island and a thrilling view of the national sport, surf-riding.

BIOGRAPH.

A MODEST HERO (Sept. 8).—It is house cleaning time. Mother-in-law leaves, but insists that husband must be put to work, but husband hires a man, while he goes fishing. Our hero substitutes himself for the cleaner and appears to rob the lady of her silver. He is kept too busy, and later proves a hero in spite of himself by rescuing the fair young housewife from the drunken cleaner, who walks in late.

AMONG CLUB FELLOWS (Sept. 1).—Algernon Worthington believes himself a great heartbreaker. His conceit leadse him to believe that the girls, poor souls, cannot resist him. He imagines every young lady in the town is in love with him. The boys at the club get disgusted and resolve to teach him a lesson, and although he is put wise to their scheme, he meets his Waterloo.

EDWIN'S BADGE OF HONOR (Sept. 1).—Edwin, by some mischance of fate, is a convict. One of his gang-mates wins the white ribbon badge of honor for a deed of heroism—that is, he saved the life of one of the other convicts at the risk of his own life. The desire to win one of these badges of honor so obsessed Eddie that he even neglected the chance to escape in favor of this gratification.

AN UNJUST SUSPICION (Sept. 13).—The prison door closed upon him with the inevitable result—the struggle against conventions proved too great. He came to rob the very woman whose life he had saved. Her stand for him resulted in her husband's ungrounded suspicions. The child, however, brought truth and harmony to the surface and a much needed recommendation again established the man in society.

BABY INDISPOSED (Sept. 11).—Now baby was asleep, papa could go to the office, and it was some busy office papa ran. An equal rush in domestic circles brought papa to the phone. Nurse cried, "Baby," and the connection was off, and so was papa. "Baby has?" cried papa at home. "A tooth," said nurse.

THE LADY IN BLACK (Sept. 11).—Behold in this film the villain up to his dirty work again, but if you watch the persistent young hero carefully, you will see him gallantly rescue the lady in black about to be burned at the stake, while at the same time he saved the fair heroine from the mad ambition of her father about to marry her to the dastardly ex-governor of Utah. Ah hah!

Among the Exhibitors.

Phoenix, Ariz.—Hart Brothers have opened their new Spanish-American theater on East Washington Street.

Crookston, Minn.—Messrs. Simmons and Snyder will close the Lyric for a few days while same is being enlarged.

Chicago, Ill.—Henry Myer, theater owner, has purchased a lot at corner of North Clark Street and Sherman Place and will erect theater costing about $200,000.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Manager Jno. B. Oishel, of the Teck Theater and the Shubert interests in this section, will erect a moving picture theater to be located at 418 Auburn Avenue.

Mankato, Minn.—The Schuster Realty Company, of Rosnester, Minn., will erect a moving picture theater at that city.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Geo. Hogg is estimating on plans for a theater for W. N. Leslie at West Chester.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A permit was issued to the Jos. Levin Company for the erection of a moving picture theater at 1108 No. 40th Street for Jennie Biden. Cost, $8,500.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Plans have been prepared for the erection of a moving picture theater on the south side of Moore Street for Louis Fine. Cost, about $10,000.

Binghamton, N. Y.—The new Star Theater in construction by Ned Korublite on his Chenango Etreet site, opened to the public about Sept. 1. Cost, $60,000.

Allentown, Pa.—Max & Schneider were granted a permit for the erection of a theater building at No. 637 North Front Street.

Hancock, Md.—Noah Kirson has purchased the dwelling of Ex-Postmaster Benjamin Mitchell at Hancock, Md., and it will be remodeled for moving picture theater.

Cadiz, Ky.—W. C. Brewer and Dr. E. B. Bradshaw have sold their picture show to Alexander Brothers & Co, who have assumed management of it.

De Kalb, Ill.—Glenn Reynolds' Princess Theater is open for business.

Mankato, Minn.—R. J. Sparling, structural engineer, has drawn plans for remodeling the Unique Theater.

Detroit, Mich.—Wm. F. Klatt will erect a moving picture theater.

Spokane, Wash.—Mr. Paulsen is considering the erection of a moving picture theater, to cost $100,000.

Peoria, Ill.—The incorporation papers of the Apollo Amusement Company, which is to build and operate the new theater to be erected o nthe site of the Crescent Theater at 311 Main Street, were received. George J. Jochem, Lynn C. Sieberns and M. D. Doubet, Inc., commissioners.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Kennedy & Co. have plans of the Schenley Theater, which Harris & Davis are going to have built on Forbes Street, Oakland.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The Gayety Theater on Second Street, between Grand Avenue and Sycamore Street, has been sold by Fred Landeck to Morris and Isaac Miller, owners of the Engineering Building, which adjoins this property. The theater will continue.

Lancaster, Ohio.—J. H. Miller, of Lancaster, has taken out a building permit for a $7,500 picture theater building, to be erected on East Main Street, between 17th and 18th Street.

Seattle, Wash.—A contract has been let for the remodeling of the Old Star Theater at corner of First Avenue and Madison Street.

Duluth, Minn.—The new Rex Theater will open for business at once.

Valley City, N. D.—William Story will erect a moving picture theater on the site of the Milton cigar store.

Champion, Ill.—B. C. Wheeler, of Kankakee, commenced work on the moving picture theater on North Market Street, Urbana, between the Kankakee & Urbana interurban station and the First National Bank Building.

Beaumont, Tex.—The Imperial Theater will open for business at once. Proprietor, Clemmons.

Chicago, Ill.—The premises at the corner of East 53d Street and Jefferson Avenue have been leased by Edward Rosing to Fred. W. McKinney, who will erect a theater building on it.

Hancock, Md.—Noah Kirson, Cumberland, Md., will erect moving picture theater.

THE RIGHT LIGHT

Direct Current Arcs

can be used on an A. C. circuit—less flicker, easier focussing, less waste of light, and better pictures—with the aid of the

Westinghouse-Cooper Hewitt Rectifier Outfit

The outfit is all contained in a case less than 4 feet high and about 18 inches square. There is no moving machinery. Just connect the outfit to the A. C. lighting circuit and use a D. C. lamp in the usual way.

Send for Folder 4205.

Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co.
East Pittsburgh, Pa.
Sales Offices in 45 American Cities.

WE BUY, SELL and RENT
Moving Picture Machines, Film, and Opera Chairs
THEATRE BROKERAGE EXCHANGE
440 S. Dearborn St. Chicago, Ills.

TO THE TRADE
Negatives Developed. 1c per ft.
PRINTS MADE ON
Eastman Stock.... 4½c per ft.
(In quantities over 5,000 feet)
Including Tinting and Toning
TITLES, 8c per ft.
Prompt deliveries. All work guaranteed.
Commercial Motion Pictures Co., Inc.
102 W. 101st Street. New York City
Telephone, 8724 Riverside

ALWAYS--the Biggest and Best in Features
MINNESOTA and WISCONSIN open for
Brennan of the Moor (3 reels)
Pit and the Pendulum (3 reels)
SOLAX COMPANY, - - FORT LEE, NEW JERSEY

COMING!
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED
4,000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

Golden Gate Film Exchange

SAN FRANCISCO LOS ANGELES

Releasing 7 Features Weekly including

4 American Features in program and 7 Single Reels

Contracts closed for entire output all leading film producers

Golden Gate Film Exchange

Northwestern Feature Film Co.

PORTLAND SEATTLE

Largest Feature Buyers in Northwest

Will open in Butte, Montana, and Boise, Idaho, in about 30 days.

Northwestern Feature Film Co.

INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES

UNIVERSAL

CRYSTAL.

PLEASING HER HUSBAND (Sept. 9).—Mr. Green tries to install high ideals into his wife, but to no avail, she preferring to remain plain and hardworking. When Mr. and Mrs. Brown pay them a visit, and Pearl is still washing the dishes in the kitchen, Mr. Greene, after looking at Mrs. Brown and admiring her rich clothes and lordly bearing, scolds his wife for not being the same. Pearl determines to change her mode of living. She invests all of her savings in swell clothes and hires a cook. That evening she leaves a note for Green, telling him that she is dining at the Browns', and asking him to call for her. She informs him that Mary, the new cook, will prepare his supper for him. Green has a fight with Mary and after throwing pots and pans at him she quits. Green prepares his own meal and then goes to the Browns'. He is surprised to find Pearl, dressed in the height of fashion, and looking really beautiful and alluring. She is the center of attraction and is admired by all the men, who persist in being attentive to her, much to Green's annoyance. At last, being no longer able to control his jealousy, he insists upon Pearl accompanying him home. They go, and he is further surprised when he finds that Pearl has accepted his advice about being like Mrs. Brown, and ordered a cab for herself. Green refuses to speak to his wife until the next morning, when she appears as her old self in an old wrapper and serves him his breakfast, whereupon he determines that he likes her best that way and tells her so.

SOME LUCK (Sept. 9).—Happy, a tramp, finds a horse shoe, and immediately his luck changes for the better. He finds a basket of lunch that a workingman left, and has his first meal in days. He next picks up a cigar butt and is about to smoke it, when a gentleman passes and gives him a good cigar. He walks in the park and from a passing automobile espies a suit case fall therefrom. He picks it up and finding it full of clothes, dons himself out in high class and brand new raiment. Walking along a street he passes a window and the wind blowing a twenty-dollar bill out, it falls in Happy's hat. He kisses the horse shoe and vows never to part with it. He goes into a swell restaurant and has a good feed. He emerges and sees a tough assaulting a young woman. He rescues her and while she thanks him, the tough vows vengeance. Happy walks along and the tough gets one of his cronies and pounces on him. They are beating him up, when he pulls out his horseshoe, for luck. A policeman hails in sight and chases all three. Happy, still believing in the horseshoe, hides, and the policeman passes him and arrests the other two. Happy resolves that his horseshoe has brought him some luck and determines to be respectable.

THE HAND OF PROVIDENCE (Sept. 14).—Robbins, a criminal who lives by forging checks, has as a wife, Pearl, a good woman, who, while lamenting his unworthy and nefarious occupation, tries to be a good wife to him. He is arrested and sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary at hard labor. She is compelled to seek work and takes a position with a wealthy doctor as governess to his orphaned child. Robbins, in jail, formulates a plan to escape, and writes a letter to his wife at their old address, asking her to meet him at a certain place. This he gives to a fellow-convict to mail for him. They try their plan and get away from the prison. The keepers chase them, and fire on them, wounding Robbins and killing his comrade, on whom is found the letter. The following morning the newspapers published a story to the effect that Robbins was killed, and quoting the letter as authority and a means of identification. Pearl believes that her husband is dead. An attachment springs up between the doctor and Pearl, and when he proposes marriage to her and askes her to become a mother to his child, she accepts and they are married. Later Robbins, who escaped and recovered from his wound, chances to see Pearl and the child. He follows her, and finding out where she lives, calls there the next day. He extorts money from her under threats. The next day he again calls and asks Pearl for more money. Pearl refuses and Robbins proceeds to choke her. The child sees him and runs and tells her father that a burglar is killing her mother. The doctor gets his revolver and enters the room and stops Robbins from killing Pearl. The two men struggle and by accident the gun is discharged, inflicting a wound on Robbins that proves fatal. The doctor still believes that Robbins is a burglar, until Pearl shows him the clipping from the newspaper, and telling the doctor that she believed him dead from the newspaper report. The doctor takes her in his arms and offers prayers of thanks for his timely entrance and the fortunate death of the unworthy forger.

REX.

A FIGHT AGAINST EVIL (Sept. 14).—"Until such time as the better element of society shall constitute itself a unit to protect the innocence of girlhood, just so long will vice continue to prosper."

Dr. Lawson's mother again read the quotation from "Practical Christianity," then closed her eyes to visualize the scenes of tragedy that prompted its utterance. When her son—Dr. Lawson—returned, a young man whose heart and soul was wrapped in sincere effort to protect girlhood flowers, "too innocent to realize," she showed it to him. She gloried in being the mother of such as he, because she knew his life would go toward creating that unit.

A single tenement room became the object of Fate's pitiless visitation—Death called the invalid mother of Mary Fisk, likewise circumstances snatched from the working girl the position through which she eked her frugal existence. Crushed in spirit and bewildered by grief the girl accepted blindly the affected sympathy of a sleek individual who sought to possess a new toy, one whose beauty he could flaunt with pride.

She was grateful because she knew naught of wiles, and she accepted his note addressed to "his sister," where assistance was promised until she could assist herself. And because she was innocent and pure she could not see back of the paint and powder, or the jewels and gorgeous raiment, or the luxurious furnishings of the house with its occupants of red-lipped songsters.

"They" tried to teach her to stain her lips with wine, because they knew wine would make one forget. The effort was futile and the girl was given unto one of the flauntily attired habitues whose better nature was long since calloused by forgetfulness. But even this strategy failed, for the prompting to taste of drink was met by a tender kiss of remonstrance, a kiss that awakened into torturing life from memory's graveyard the realization of like innocence—so far back that the painted creature marveled that she remembered. Then she saw her kneel in prayer * * * and she asked her no more.

So the "flower" was left unsullied—even as the slime gathered for further battle. The dazzlement of a cafe with its mirth, music and song was next tried, but here, too, Fate kindly permitted the protection due to an innocent one. Called upon to administer to a victim of a knife thrust, one of the patrons of the cafe, Dr. Lawson waited therein as the manager requested. He chanced to see and realize what was occurring when the "flower" was brought in and repeatedly urged to drink. He thought of the words he and his mother had talked of the evening before.

The battle was short, but the rescue was complete. He told her of the scheme the painted creatures were playing, and although she was stunned, she trusted her rescuer and went with him to the home where the mother would be waiting. Here the doctor found the society girl whom he had believed he loved, and to whom he was engaged. She waited while the doctor placed the "flower" in his mother's charge, and as he told the story the society girl permitted jealousy to creep in and reveal her real nature. "Send that girl back to her kind at once, or our engagement is broken," was her inflamed retort.

But the "flower" was not told to go. Instead, she accepted the home as a sanctuary—a home where there was a white-haired mother who understood, and a young doctor who wasted no tears over a broken engagement.

THE DIAMOND MAKERS (2 parts—Sept. 11).—Bhadon, an aged chemist, actuated by the decree of Buddha that in America the secret of making artificial diamonds would be discovered, gives his life to the cause and succeeds. Elated at his titanic success. Bhadon sends his trusted Hindoo servant to the high priest in India, pleading that Shedah might be spared to assist in disposing of the product.

Shedah, the powerful emissary for the cause, is dispatched with her two bodyguards to American soil, where, through her wiles and marvelous beauty, she is enabled to effect sale after sale to the wealthy.

This monstrous flooding of the American market with gems of astonishing brilliancy and value alarms, to a marked degree, the Kimberly interests, who controlled this outlet. Their own ceaseless efforts ineffective, they are prompted to retain the services of Felix Westerly, the famous American detective, to learn the source. Westerly, after carefully laid plans, runs upon a clew, and, with the help of his assistants, brings to earth the girl, Shedah. His hardest task follows, for she is eternally guarded by her two Hindoo "shadows," whose sagacity and stealth for a time far out-distance even his most subtle plans. It is only through his double, disguised to represent himself, that he is enabled to shadow Shedah to the secret laboratory where the alchemist manufactures the diamonds.

The discovery of this secret rendezvous barely misses a fatality for Prof. Westerly. He is discovered as he views the laboratory with its profusion of chemical and electrical furnaces and paraphernalia. A gigantic Hindoo engages him in mortal conflict, the desperate battle carried to the roof, where Westerly, exhausted and bleeding, secures a hold which permits him to throw the persistent adversary from the roof, where he falls to high-voltage wires and meets a horrible death. Shedah, the alchemist, and the remaining Hindoo, warned by the sound of strife, totally destroy the laboratory, with all its secrets, and for the time being, elude the officers stationed by Westerly, and successfully escape.

The determined Westerly, goaded by his temporary failure, traces the Hindoo party to another seaport town through the aid of his powerful system of inspectors, and again the quest for strategic supremacy reigns. The trio is at length rounded up at a great society ball, but repeat their reputation for daring and escape. They are traced to their own yacht and captured, having availed themselves of secret panels to confuse the detectives and officers who followed. Westerly reports to the Kimberly interests the ending of the quest, as the inventor, the aged Alchemist, commits suicide rather than reveal the secret prompted by his desire to aid in the revival of Buddhism.

GEM.

THE GOLD MESH BAG (Sept. 8).—Harry Manning is the son of a fashionable family, but on account of money reverses he is compelled to earn his own living. Through the assistance of an old friend he obtains a position as floorwalker in a large department store. The employer, a very wealthy man, has a daughter, who falls in love with Harry, and pursues him, but he, from the serene height of his aristocratic lineage, looks askance at her. She hits on a fine idea. She obtains a photo of him and one of herself and has a double print made, showing them both on the same card. This wonderful scheme fails in its intent, and even makes him more distant than ever. Another wondrous scheme takes root in Ethel's mind, whereby she may be able to obtain her heart's desire. She conspires with two friends to impersonate two sneak thieves. They are to come to the store, steal from her a gold mesh bag in such a manner that Harry can see and capture them. This, she hopes, will bring him closer to her. This preposterous idea works out exactly opposite to her wishes. The pseudo thieves sneak the bag, but are seen by someone else. In order to make their getaway in the excitement, they pop the bag in the side pocket of the unsuspecting Harry. The bag is found in Harry's pocket; he is accused and is about to be arrested when Ethel breaks down and confesses that it was all a joke instituted by her. She is forgiven by her father. Harry is promoted, and, at a birthday party, given in her honor, Harry presents her another mesh bag containing an engagement ring. She joyously accepts and her father gives his consent.

VICTOR.

A BRIDE FROM THE SEA (2 parts—Sept. 12).—Gertrude lives with her uncle, who is rough, uncouth, and treats her unkindly. Jim, a river pirate and thief, comes with his boat. He is taken with Gertrude, and she is so unhappy with her uncle that she is glad of his attention. He proposes that she elope with him, which she does, and they sail away in Jim's boat. In the morning Gertrude implores Jim to take her ashore to a minister, that they may be married, but Jim refuses. He sails away from the town at which they anchored.

While Jim and his crew are drunk, Gertrude escapes in a small boat. She endures great hardships, but finally reaches the shore. She is found, at dawn, by some fishermen, but has suffered a lapse of memory, and can tell nothing of her past life. A minister, who is called to the scene, takes Gertrude home to his mother.

Gertrude helps the minister in his work among the fisherfolk, and in time they are married. One day Jim's boat puts in at the village. A subscription has been taken up to build a new church. The minister takes the money home with him. One of Jim's men sees this and tells him. That night Jim goes to rob the minister. He is discovered by Gertrude, who, in shock of recognition, recovers her memory.

The minister awakens, and sees Gertrude with Jim. Gertrude follows Jim to the shore, in the hope of recovering the money. The minister is overcome, but recovers and follows. Gertrude appeals to Jim, but he laughs at her. The accomplice demands his share of the money. Jim refuses, is knocked into the water and drowns. The accomplice runs away, and the minister and Gertrude are left alone with Jim's body. Gertrude confesses to the minister, who takes her in his arms.

POWERS.

MOTHER (Sept. 10).—The old mother is sitting at the organ playing and singing the song that is ever in her thoughts—"Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" The words of the song unfold themselves in visions of her boy when he was a little lad going to school, and the days when he knelt at her knee, praying.

As she sings, she thinks of the time when he, an impetuous young man, gambled and drank too much, and of the night when his father, becoming angry at the boy's continued dissipation, ordered him from the house. Her mother's heart yearns for the boy, who has never returned. Later, the father

MUSIC — THE VERY LATEST — MUSIC

ORGAN ORCHESTRIONS

PLAYS TWO WAYS

AUTOMATICALLY
AND
BY HAND

MEETS EVERY REQUIREMENT

An instrument of this kind will meet the requirements of any first-class picture theatre. You can play popular, classic, sacred or dance pieces, as the instrument is only limited to the kind of music desired.

BUILT FOR ANY GIVEN SPACE

THEY REPRODUCE THE PLAYING OF THE GREATEST ORGANISTS

ELIMINATE EXPERIMENTS

When you purchase a WELTE instrument you eliminate experiments. Your value is represented in every detail, as is attested by being in the homes of the wealthiest and most representative people in the world.

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

M. WELTE & SONS, Inc., 273 Fifth Avenue, N. Y. City
ESTABLISHED 1832

YOUR BIGGEST "FEATURE" DRAWING CARD

PURE FRESH AIR

— as supplied continuously by the —

OZONE PURE AIRIFIER

What This Machine Does for YOUR PATRONS

Supplies a healthful, oxygen-filled atmosphere for them to breathe—rendering the air sweet and wholesome in the most illy-ventilated theatre.

Does away with bad odors and "closeness" (so objectionable to many persons); destroys disease germs—thus minimizing possibility of contagion.

Write for descriptive literature, endorsements, prices and terms.

What this Machine Does for YOUR BUSINESS

Advertises you, to an extent worth one hundred times its cost, each season—insuring standing-room-only at all performances.

Draws and holds best class of patrons, by giving you publicity and prestige as an entertainer having care for the public's comfort and health.

OZONE PURE AIRIFIER CO., 909 Rand-McNally Bldg., CHICAGO

dies, and the mother, now grown very old, is forced to leave her home on account of debt. She goes to the city to search for her son. Her little store of money is soon exhausted and she is ejected from her boarding house. She wanders out on the street, and as the Salvation Army comes by, one girl notices her crying. The girl goes to her and learning her story, takes her along to the Salvation Army Refuge.

The next day the mother marches the street with the army in the hope of finding her boy. They stop before the entrance of a saloon, and while the army holds service, one of the members—the girl who rescued the old mother—enters the saloon.

The girl comes upon the son in the saloon, where he has sought diversion upon the return from a long cruise. As the girl enters, the son is making sport of an old woman who has come in begging for a drink. The Salvation Army lass rebukes him, telling him that "somewhere you have a mother old and grey." The girl takes the old woman out to join the army, leaving the son thoroughly ashamed of his actions.

Outside, the mother asks the army to sing her song—"Where is my Wandering Boy Tonight?"—and as they sing, the son, in the saloon, hears it and sees a vision of his mother as in the days of old. Attracted by the song, he goes out and recognizes his own mother. A happy reconciliation takes place.

THE BLOOD RED TAPE OF CHARITY (Sept. 12).—William Weldon, a telegraph lineman, is the father of a large family and finds it a hard struggle to make both ends meet on his small wages. To make matters worse, he is injured while working and falls from a telegraph pole, sustaining injuries which force a lay-off for several weeks. His family is left almost destitute and after a time seek aid from various charity organizations. In each case the organization promises to make a full investigation and do what they can, but by the time all the red tape rules are complied with, the family would have been starved.

In the meantime, Marx, a gentleman thief, who has a secret retreat in the same building in which the Weldon family live, meets the invalid's daughter, Alice Weldon. She tells him of the family's condition and Marx endeavors to aid her, although at the time he is out of ready cash himself. Taking desperate measures, he holds up a doctor and forces him to attend to Weldon. Then, in company with a female leader of the gang, he attends the big charity ball. There he makes a haul. He pawns the stolen articles and uses the money to help out the Weldons. Later, after the family has recovered, through Marx's aid, the charity organizations finally send a few dollars and a skimpy supply of food.

Marx decides to reform. He goes to the police, declares himself and surrenders. Marx is sentenced, and while sitting in his cell a vision of Alice appears before him, repaying him for his sacrifice and charity.

NESTOR.

POISONED WATERS (Sept. 8).—Eaedy, a witch of Greece, curses the waters of Roma's fountain, so that forever after any one who bathes therein becomes beautiful, but whoever drinks thereof, dies. Chicotio, son of a wealthy neighboring lord, with his father and retinue, visits Roma's father, the duke and she and Chicotio are betrothed. In honor of the betrothal, the duke grants to the village maidens some of the magic waters that they may become beautiful.

Yuro, a huntsman, in love with Zarus, Roma's maid, meets Zarus, and she, fearful lest her mistress find him, bids him hide. Later Roma comes to bathe in the waters and is met by Eaedy, who wishes to tell her fortune. Chicotio, her lover, hurls the witch aside, and she curses him. Chicotio leaves Roma with the witch, who tells her fortune and that she will see her future lord in the reflection of the magic waters. Yuro sneaks from his hiding-place and gazes over Roma's shoulder as she gazes into the water. She sees him and flees. He pursues, makes love to her and wins her. Zarus, full of jealousy, tells Chicotio of this and he gets the duke and has Yuro thrown from the grounds. Zarus follows him and appeals to Yuro for love. He scorns her, and she, wishing death, drinks the poisoned waters and dies. Roma has promised to meet Yuro that night, and gets to the fountain at almost twelve. Here she meets Yuro and as their arms entwine the midnight hour arrives. Remembering the legend that at twelve the spirits of love's suicides arise from the waters, Roma attempts to flee, but Yuro tells her he will protect her.

As she gazes in fear, the spirits arise, beckoning to her, and Roma dies of fright. Yuro seizes her, and with her body does the dance of death. Yuro kisses her cold lips and himself drinks the deadly waters, dying beside her. The duke, searching for his daughter, finds her and her lover at the fountain; and as his head sinks to the will of the gods, Eaedy and the witch appear and laugh exultantly at the fulfillment of her curse.

THE GIRL RANCHERS (Sept. 13).—Mrs. Houston and her daughters in an Eastern city receive an unexpected telegram from the West, informing them of their heritage of "Rough Neck Ranch" together with inquiry as to its management. In spite of Mrs. Houston's protests, her daughters decide to manage their own ranch and promptly wire information to that effect. The foreman, upon receipt of the message, reports the unexpected outcome to the punchers, who give utterance in chorus "That no darn skirt bosses the ranch."

In time Mrs. Houston and her daughters arrive at a small western station, where they are saluted by severeal rounds of ammuntion, piled into a buckboard and driven to "Rough Neck Ranch." Mrs. Houston finds things rather untidy and proceeds to adjust them in accordance with her feminine tastes. Having learned the art of fine pastry and fudge she gives a sample of her pies to Lee, who is immediately transformed into an ardent admirer.

After a few days a general change is in evidence throughout the ranch, which has been renamed "Maidens' Rest." The arrival of other girl friends add to the befitting of its new christening. The punchers unable to tolerate the female monarchs openly rebel. The girls, in answer to their demand, stick up their noses and prepare to care for the ranch duties themselves. The punchers amusingly watch their preparations in various undertakings.

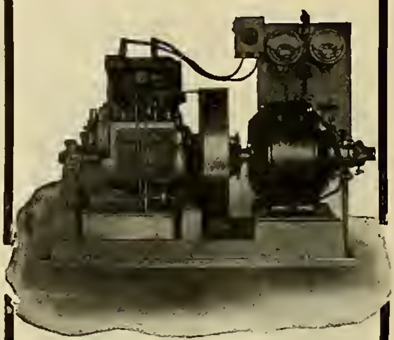
In the meantime the Indians have gone upon the warpath and happen upon "The Madens' Rest." Finding no male opposition, they immediately prepare to carry off the would-be strike breakers, who for the first time give utterance in their prayers for "man," which is promptly answered by the arrival of the punchers, who put the Indians to flight.

A fuller consideration as to the need and uses of "man" having been deeply manifested, an inseparable unit becomes apparent between both species at "Rough Neck" alias "Maidens' Rest" Ranch.

FRONTIER.

DORATHEA AND CHIEF RAZAMATAZ (Sept. 11).—In our story the mother having died some years before and the father being compelled to travel considerably thought it advisable to employ a chaperon for his daughter, Dorathea. He gave the chaperon strict instructions not to allow Walter Rodgers, a young man very much smitten with Dorathea, around the premises. About the first thing that happens after the father went away was a meeting between the two. The chaperon tries to do her duty faithfully and sends the young man away about his business. Later they plan to elope. The father is now on his way home and stops off at Albuquerque, where he buys an Indian blanket as a present for Dorathea.

What's the Use?



4 Kilowatt Direct-Connected Outfit

What's the use, Mr. Traveling Showman, in carting around several tons of antique engine and electrical apparatus for making electric current, when you can buy a

Brush Electric Lighting Set

Just sit down and write for our Catalogue. It tells the whole story, and what it tells is SO.

The Chas. A. Strelinger Co.
Box MP-2
Detroit, Michigan, U. S. A.

Solax

ALWAYS--the Biggest and Best in Features
MINNESOTA and WISCONSIN open for
Brennan of the Moor (3 reels)
Pit and the Pendulum (3 reels)
SOLAX COMPANY, - - FORT LEE, NEW JERSEY

Solax

COMING!
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED
4,000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

Gaumont Regular

RELEASES

AUG. 26	Saved by His Child (Drama)	1 Sheet Posters
AUG. 27	Gaumont's Weekly, No. 77	" "
AUG. 28	Two Jilted Lovers (Comedy)	" "
SEP. 2	The Fatal Bell (Drama)	" "
SEP. 3	Gaumont's Weekly, No. 78	" "
SEP. 4	"Some" Fireman (Comedy)	" "
SEP. 9	An Actor's Adventure (Drama)	" "
SEP. 10	Gaumont's Weekly, No. 79	" "
SEP. 11	Love Me, Love My Animals (Com.)	" "
SEP. 11	Cabinet Making (Educational)	" "
SEP. 16	The Lion Hunters (Dram. Two Reels)	1 and 3 Sheet Posters
SEP. 17	Gaumont's Weekly, No. 80	1 Sheet Posters
SEP. 18	Tiny Tim's Elopement (Com.)	" "

Latest Feature—"WHO KILLED GEORGE LAMBERT?"—3 Reels

A Mystery Profound. Released August 31st

RELEASES

Gaumont Co.

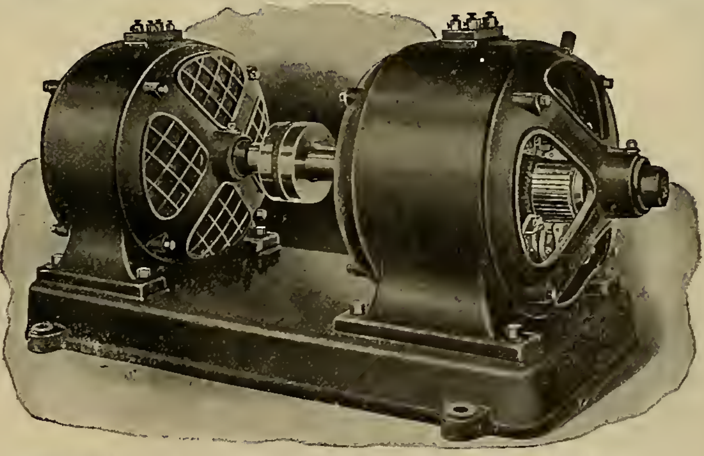
1503, World's Tower Bldg., New York City

A Word from HALLBERG the ECONOMIZER MAN

I'm not much on a "hot air" spiel,
I only want to have you feel
It's worth your while to try me out
And see what I can bring about
By way of service in my line
Which tens of scores call superfine.
And you would do so, happily,
If I knew you and you knew me.

Whate'er I advertise, I do.
I don't claim what I can't put through.
I don't say I am "just as good,"
I take the lead by "sawing wood."
I carry stock and spend the "dough,"
Put out a line none else can show;
The truth of which you sure would see
If I knew you and you knew me.

So put all doubting thoughts aside,
Get in my wagon—take a ride;
And putting faith in what I say,
Just let me drive you New York way
And show you all that's up to snuff;
Just take a look, boys, that's enough
To make you strong for Hallberg stuff,
Then I'll know you and you'll know me.



Hallberg A.C. to D.C. Adjustable from 25 to 60 Amp., D.C.

Factory Selling Headquarters for POWERS, SIMPLEX, MOTIOGRAPH and EDISON MACHINES, "HALLBERG" STANDARD A. C. ECONOMIZERS, "HALLBERG" D. C. ECONOMIZERS, MERCURY ARC RECTIFIERS, MOVING PICTURE MACHINE and FLAME ARC CARBONS. I EQUIP THEATRES COMPLETELY

Free Circulars on all makes of M. P. Machines, but Hallberg's Big Catalogue, 100 Pages, Costs you 25c. by mail.

J. H. HALLBERG, 36 E. 23rd Street, New York

He arrives home just in time to prevent the elopement and when questioned by the young man why he refuses his consent to their marriage, he gets an idea when he sees the blanket, and tells a falsehood. He tells Walter that he has promised Dorathea to a chief in the West called Razamataz and that Razamataz has sent his blanket to Dorathea as a token of homage. Walter is then chased from the premises.

He takes his daughter with him on his next trip. Walter learns of it and follows on the same train. Later when they reach New Mexico and journey to Whitcomb Springs, Walter follows and securing the services of some cowboys, conceives the idea of masquerading as Chief Razamataz, kidnap the girl and if the father objects, to explain to the father that he is the Indian chief who has come for the white squaw. The plan is executed properly and the girl captured. Walter explains his deception of masquerading to Dorathea. The father with two assistants, has hurried to the rescue of Dorathea. The two assistants are frightened away by the Indians, but the father is held as a prisoner. He agrees to the marriage, hardly knowing whether he is dreaming or not. He is caught at his own game. The justice of the peace ties the knot. The father is compelled to shake hands with the supposed chief and in so doing sees the white arm of Walter protruding from the sleeve, which is a strong contrast of the Indian war paint. He smells a mouse and knocks off the Indian wig. He admits his defeat and accepts the inevitable.

ON FORBIDDEN PATHS (Sept. 13).—The gambling of Howard impels his father to disown him. The story is carried forward twelve years, during which time nothing has been heard of Howard. John Emerson, the father of Howard, receives word that there is trouble on his ranch, and he leaves, accompanied by his daughter, Muriel. On his way to the ranch the old man is taken suddenly sick. Muriel, in search of a doctor, comes upon a Mexican drinking place. A tall gambler, hearing her pleas for a doctor, tells Muriel that he is a physician. On their way to where the stricken man lies, the gambler-doctor persuades the young girl to dismount and go with him for a drink from a spring. Reluctantly she agrees, and during their absence the gambler's horse is taken by another gambler, who substitutes a stolen horse. This action is prompted by Dolores, the Mexican sweetheart of the gambler-doctor, who, having seen him go away with a strange girl, and not knowing the reason, decides upon this method of avenging herself. The exchange of horses, however, has been seen by Muriel, who has fled from the gambler-doctor, he having impulsively embraced and kissed her and has confessed that he is no doctor at all. Muriel had hardly reached her father when she hears the gambler coming from the bushes. He falls at her feet and pleads with her to save him from the impending attack of the cowboys and the man from whom the horse was stolen. The father of Muriel recognizes in the gambler his son. The malignant endeavor of Dolores to see the gambler jailed for his apparent perfidy is frustrated by Muriel, who tells the owner of the stolen horse what she has seen concerning the exchange of horses. A happy reconciliation of the family takes place when Howard goes home to his aged mother.

IMP.

BINKS ELEVATES THE STAGE (Sept. 13).—Poor little Binks is now an actor, and loves the leading lady, who coquettishly encourages him, while she really adores Maurice Mt. Chessington, the handsome leading man. One night while Binks is dressed as a convict and behind prison bars, he sees the leading lady and the accursed Maurice Mt. Chessington embracing off the stage. This maddens him and he drops his character and shakes his fist at them. The manager gives him a kick, and Binks, jumping with pain, knocks down the scenery on the leading man's head and they have a rough and tumble fight with the fire buckets and everything else that they can seize. Binks ends the combat by knocking the matinee idol into the base drum. He is senseless, and Binks, thinking he has killed him, runs from the theater followed by the actors in costume and the audience. He is dressed as a convict and the number of the pursuers grow. He dodges them and they give up the chase. A runaway convict is near by and old Skeggins, the village miser, has covetously wished for the reward. He spies the convict stripes of Binks in the wood, and calling two husky farm hands, he superintends the capture of Binks, and as the train does not go until morning, they lock him in the ice house. The next day he is taken out, rather stiff, and carried to the depot, where the manager recognizes him. Binks is restored and thrashes his captors and gets on the train and leaves with the company.

IT PAYS
to made an attractive
LOBBY DISPLAY
Our Photo and Poster
Frames are it

Best Quality { Brass / Compoboard / Glass } Used
Hanging Frames, with Glass $4
Easel Frames : : : : 6
Write for our Prices
on other styles
G. W. ARMSTRONG, Pres.
No. 2 EASEL
Theatre Specialty Mfg. Co.
357 W. 42d St., New York

FULTON'S A-to-Z LIST
Pocket Edition 120 Pages
Illustrates, describes and prices everything used in or about the Motion Picture Theatre and in the allied industries. Costs you nothing. Worth its weight in gold.
E. E. FULTON —152— W. LAKE STREET CHICAGO

Junior Professional Camera
and Film Making Outfit, simplest method, none better. World's greatest productions made with this camera. Expert advice and guarantee. Tripods, Tilts, Printers, Perforators, Raw Film, Lenses. Developing done, whole building to the business Write for catalogue.
Eberhard Schneider, 219 Second Ave., N. Y.

DO YOU WANT A BRITISH AGENT?
We are open to undertake sale of films, or letting or purchase of exclusives. Bank references and deposit. Central offices & Projection room
THE STATE FILM AGENCY,
191 Wardour St., LONDON, W., England
Cables: — Kinesafe, London. Codes: — Anglo-American, 4th edition; A. B. C. 5th edition.

ROBESPIERRE (3 parts—Sept. 8).—Robespierre and Dumont were sworn friends in their college days. During their early manhood both loved Louise Brissac, but she favored Dumont and refused the hands of Robespierre. Her father was the local magistrate and was blamed by the peasantry for the imposition of a severe tax. Robespierre was too wise to blame him, but had already grown to despise authority. Brissac was the representative of the rulers in the province, so Robespierre visited Brissac with a delegation of angered farmers. They were coldly received, and their anger grew until Brissac was saved from mob violence only by the arrival of Dumont, who persuaded the malcontents to withdraw. Time passed and the wedding of Louise and Dumont was postponed. Robespierre and Dumont hearing of the mob disorders in Paris leave with the Brissac. Robespierre although young and without influence soon dominates the assembly. Dumont although deploring the massacres is still the friend of Robespierre.

The love of Robespierre for Louise grows in fervor as does the hatred for her father. Finally he sends Dumont to arrest them both as aristocrats. The father is arrested, but Dumont aids the girl to escape and is taken prisoner and sentenced to die. The father goes to the guillotine. The girl sees this and also the threatened fate of Dumont. In despair she decides to visit the tyrant and beg for her lover's life. This is granted to her on the condition that she give herself to Robespierre. Her soul revolts from this but the spirit quails when he shows her the carmagnole or devil dance of the revolutionists. She consents on condition that Dumont is freed and she in company with Robespierre's spy goes to the prison where Dumont repudiates the bargain and hurls the spy to the door of the dungeon. In the meantime, Tallien has impeached the committee of public safety of which Robespierre is the head, and a spirited debate ensues in the convention. This results in Robespierre's overthrow as he is brought down by the bullet of Meda, the assassin. Tallien triumphs while Robespierre is dragged away a wounded prisoner.

Tallien hurries to the prison and Dumont is released. As he is hurrying through the streets in mad search of Robespierre in order to find Louise, the tyrant's victim, he meets the deposed fiend and he is menaced by a furious mob. He demands the girl, but Robespierre cannot answer. A commotion is heard and he sees the stealthy spy dragging the girl along. He hurls him to the ground and brings her to a place of safety. Later they view the execution of the tyrant and realize that their worst days of the terror are at an end.

ECLAIR.

THE RUNAWAY UNCLE (August 31).—Cry-baby Prue and young Archie Sargent want to get married, but papa won't let them until Prue grows up a bit more; so the two elope and are married. Then Prue is afraid to face papa, so Archie takes her to his uncle Sargent's studios in New York. Uncle Sargent, an absent-minded sort of chap, jumps as though shot when they mention the word "married," and, leaving them to the care of his valet, dashes off.

Uncle Sargent had suddenly remembered that he had an engagement himself to be married that day to his dear friend, the spinster (Julia Stuart), Arabella Marsh. He hurried to their rendezvous and met the lady. They were married and went to live in a quiet apartment for their honeymoon.

Steel, a close friend of Sargent's, had the papers publish an item about the artist's disappearance, and had a detective agency place three detectives at his disposal. When the officers appeared he sent them out with the clue that "there appears to be a woman at the bottom of this strange disappearance." The three detectives, in their enthusiasm to track down the runaway uncle, came into unexpected and violent contact with a 60 H.P. automo-

Blaché FEATURES
COMING! COMING!
4-Reel Sensational Feature
A FIGHT FOR MILLIONS
Adventures of a GENTLEMAN BURGLAR
ADVERTISING MATTER includes four kinds of one-sheets, two kinds of three-sheets, a six-sheet, announcement slides, heralds and other miscellaneous material.
Blaché Features, (Inc.) Fort Lee, New Jersey

COMING!
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED
4,000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

SEE THESE LENSES!

A CHEAP service will produce clean-cut, stereoscopic pictures if projected through a good lens—an EXPENSIVE service demands good lens if you must obtain your money's worth.

LENSES FROM $6.00 to $325!

We offer you the widest possible range of choice. We SPECIALIZE in Projection Lenses—from the most inexpensive to the finest manufactured. Perhaps you require an additional lens—want a better one or an extra for emergencies?—if so, deal direct and obtain the benefit of wholesale prices.

WRITE FOR OUR WONDERFUL FREE CATALOGUE

just from the press, containing 166 pages, printed on a fancy enameled stock, profusely illustrated and containing information invaluable to the theatre-owner or the man who expects to be.

IF YOU REDECORATE OR BUILD

you will need this handy little book every minute. Not a dull, dry price-list, but a compendium of live suggestions for making your house more beautiful, more comfortable, more up-to-date—increasing its dividend power two-fold. Also—the largest and most complete list of theatre equipment, with prices and description. Within its covers you will find lists of every possible item from tickets to curtain.

THERE ARE NO STRINGS TO THIS OFFER. IT'S FREE. JUST DROP A LINE AND SAY "SEND US CATALOGUE." ADDRESS DEPT. W.

KLEINE OPTICAL CO.

166 N. State Street GEO. KLEINE, President Chicago, Illinois

"ELECTRA" CARBONS
MADE ESPECIALLY FOR MOVING PICTURE WORK
ELECTRA
PINK LABEL
TRADE MARK
GUARANTEE OF PERFECT PROJECTION FOR A.C.&D.C.

"ELECTRA"—a pledge of quality. The name "Electra" has stood for the best projector carbon since the beginning of the motion picture industry.

Sold by exchanges and supply houses everywhere.

HUGO REISINGER

11 BROADWAY. NEW YORK.

hile, which did not make way for them. So they reported to Steel sooner than expected in a dilapidated condition. Steel furiously ordered them to disguise as Sherlocks, which they did so excellently that one could barely tell them apart. The three clue-hunters again take up the hunt, have some exciting experiences, but are again unsuccessful.

Uncle Sargent goes back the next day to his studio to settle some affairs before going away on a trip. He encounters the Sherlocks, who take him in charge, despite the protests of his bride, who follows angrily behind. He is marched into the presence of Steel, who identifies him, and welcomes him with open arms as one returned from the dead.

UNIVERSAL.

ANIMATED WEEKLY, NO. 77 (August 27).—Long Branch Baby Review.—The kiddies compete for prizes at their Annual Baby Parade, Long Branch, New Jersey.

Prominent People in the Public Eye, Secretary of Labor, Wilson, signing important papers relative to the Department of Immigration.

Henley Regatta.—Exciting race for the Royal Challenge Cup. The Leanders defeat the Canadians.

Fashions.—Pleatings and frills of batiste and Net, trim summer dresses of silk and linen. (Posed and shown by courtesy of The Ladies' Home Journal Pattern Company.)

Coast to Coast Hike.—The start of the Los Angeles to New York cross-country hike. The hikers intend to visit the capital of every State in the Union.

Women's Aero Club.—The annual meeting of the Women's Aero Club takes place at St. Cloud, Paris, France.

The Making of the "Movie 'Ivanhoe,'"—The greatest feature film ever produced.

Champion Athletic Meet.—Many chamuion athletes compete for honors at the Celtic Park Athletic Meet, New York, N. Y.

Irish Festival.—Many famous Irish Dancers participate in the Gaelic Dancing contest during the Irish Feis, Chicago, Illinois.

Life Savers' Exhibition—Rescue and Resuscitation Demonstration. Showing methods employed in rescuing and reviving apparently drowned persons.

Blue Ribbon Winners—The mayor of Bath opens the Live Stock and Horse Show at Bath, England.

New York vs. Brooklyn.—The league-leading Giants defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers in an exciting game at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, New York. Christy Mathewson delivering his famous "fadeway."

The Stars of Filmdom—Florence Lawrence (Universal).

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION.

AMERICAN.

FOR THE CROWN (Sept. 8).—Following the first adventures of Jacques, the king, repentant of his insult to the church, again embraces the faith and shortly after, falling ill, he dies. The second adventure opens with the funeral procession of the late king, the crown prince in the procession that carries the remains of the late monarch to the royal tomb. The following day the coronation of the child king takes place. The bishop advances with the crown, but the child, already imperious in his authority, demands that none other than his beloved friend, Jacques le Grand, shall place the chown. His wishes are acceded to.

In the meantime the Duke de Montserrat continues his intrigue with the queen, but the death of the king has awakened her mother love and when he suggests that together they rule the country, she replies: "The past is dead! The future is for the king." Failing in this attempt to secure the throne through marriage with the queen's mother, the duke incites the nobles to revolt against the king. With the assistance of the infuriated nobles of the court, the palace is stormed and the king kidnapped. Jacques le Grand has been inactive, preferring to remain at the court and bask in the smiles of Constance, who has won his heart. The queen, distracted, sends for him and tells of the outrage. Recalling the vow to his father who had admonished him, "Be ready to lay down your life for the king," he buckles on his sword and promises "I will save the king or die for him." Constance overhears and decides to accompany him. Securing the costume of a page, she joins the young adventurer and together they go in search of the king.

Far from the palace the robber nobles carry the king and place him in the home of some peasants in the mountains. The imperious king warns them "You will repent this when I come back." The king is hustled into the hut and guarded by the peasants. In the meantime Jacques and Constance encounter the nobles at the inn, and when they make overtures of friendship he seemingly falls in with their plans to gain his purpose. But one of the nobles, unobserved, places a sleeping powder in Constance's tankard, and Constance indiscreetly drinks therefrom. When Jacques notes what has befallen his beloved Constance, his anger is aroused and pulling her up on the table beside him he draws his rapier and fights them all. They are about to overpower him wher with one sweep of his arm he breaks the window and leaping, he escapes with Constance to safety. The young king wanders from his guards with the child of the latter and makes his way into the mountains. The escape is discovered and the alarmed peasants hurry to notify the duke.

In the meantime Jacques and Constance have resumed their search for the king, and the duke encounters them after learning of the escape of the king. He attempts to kill Jacques, and Constance takes up the fight in his stead. She is disarmed and Jacques, being found only wounded, they are carried to the prison and placed in cells. A week later Jacques, recovered from his wounds and Constance having bribed a jailer, secures a file in a loaf of bread and filing through the bars descends to Jacques' cell. Here the work is repeated and they soon make their escape. At the palace the duke, secure in his villainy and believing that the king has perished from hunger in the mountains, with the assistants of the revolting nobles, plans for his coronation.

But Jacques and Constance have found the king and are hurrying to the palace with the true monarch. The duke with his nobles enter the throne room, with the queen and those true to the king protesting. He approaches the throne and, raising the crown, is about to proclaim himself king when Jacques and Constance enter with the king after their furious ride, and Jacques, rapier in hand, rushes at the impostor and runs him through. Then placing the king on the throne he compels the nobles to swear allegiance to the crown, and kneeling to the king, he receives his reward.

THROUGH THE NEIGHBOR'S WINDOW (Sept. 11).—Every town has its trouble maker and the view the neighbor has from behind lace curtains is often strangely distorted. Herbert Spencer and his wife, Lillian, have two such neighbors and they very nearly cause serious trouble for the young couple. Lillian goes away on a few days' visit with her mother. Herbert, as a surprise for her, invests in a dressmaker's form that she has been wanting. He has the form delivered to his home, but intercepts the drayman in the parkway leading to his house, and taking the form up in his arms, escorts it to the door. To be cute, he dresses the form with one of his wife's wrappers.

From their windows the neighbors see him with the strange woman entering his house; they scent a scandal and try to find out more. In the morning they see Herbert go off alone, so rush over to his house to investigate. Receiving no answer to repeated knocking, they peer in the window and there, to their great horror, they see a figure on the couch covered with a shawl (where Herbert has left it). Scandalized, they decide to write to Lillian, hinting at strange goings on.

When Lillian receives the letter from her neighbors she is mentally disturbed and with her mother immediately returns to her home. At the sight of her husband her anger subsides and she would have been pleased to fall in his embrace, but the stern mother reminds her that things are not as they used to be and poor Herbert gets a rather brutal rebuke.

In the house the figure on the couch first causes consternation and then amusement. The neighbors call to offer their sympathy, meet with a stern rebuke and repart with dampened spirits.

RED SWEENEY'S DEFEAT (Sept. 13).—Justice tempered with mercy is a time honored maxim that has been frequently practiced by stern old Judge Halcolm. Annie's past record has caused her to be known as "Slim-fingered Annie." Her present appearance at the bar of justice is no different from similar occasions in the past, but the judge, not wishing to further blight the girl's life by sentencing her to penal servitude, gives her a chance to start life anew in a more favorable environment, where the faces are new and none know her failing and she need not fear the finger of scorn. Annie accepts the kindly interest of the judge and the crime-seared conscience is actuated by a new interest in life as she boards the train for the far West.

Arriving at her destination she establishes herself as the "Ranch Laundress" and her honest efforts soon win her the lasting friendship of her patrons. When now and then some of the boys become too marked in their attentions, big Red Sweeney promptly clears the coast. That his task is self-appointed is quite apparent, for Annie demonstrates that she is well able to care for herself, and even his presence is not especially desirable, much to the delight of his vanquished foes. The free and open manner of these two principals draws them to each other like a magnetic force and both readily succumb to the attacks of Cupid.

In Sweeney's honest efforts to protect the "Ranch Laundress" he has incurred the lasting animosity of a Mexican, who in his desire to seek vengeance, accidentally causes his own death. Sweeney is taken in charge by the boys and must pay the penalty imposed by Judge Lynch, when Annie comes to his rescue in a rather spectacular and thrilling manner. Sweeney wants to skin the country, but is this time "held up" by Annie, who now insists that she go with him that both may enjoy a new and better life.

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

MUTUAL WEEKLY NO. 35 (August 27).—Wichita, Kan.—Three are killed and six injured in a collision between passenger and freight trains.

St. Petersburg, Russia.—The naval cadets parading after the Czar's new decision had been read to them.

Washington, D. C.—Ty Cobb warming up and Walter Johnson in action, before loving cup is presented to the latter.

The Fashion in Paris.

New York City, N. Y.—Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, mother of Harry Thaw, who escaped from the Matteawan Asylum, going to see her son's lawyer.

Rome, Italy.—Thrilling bull fight is held in the capital.

Austin, Texas.—Homecoming of the Alumni of the University of Texas.

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.—Paying the last homage to Dr. Pereira, whose life was spent in beautifying the town.

American Fashion.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Huge cooking preparations are made for 10,000 Royal Order of Moose.

Maisons—Lafitte, Franca.—Jockeys and stable boys' annual meeting.

Fort Myer, Va.—Aviator C. Murvin Wood arrives here after his flight from New York, racing a Pennsylvania express train.

Albany, N. Y.—Gov. Sulzer preparing for resistance.

Paris, France.—Grand Prix automobile races.

Jersey City, N. J.—Huge fire destroys a cooperage plant, causing a loss of $1,000,000.

The American Lasso Reaches Far.

THANHOUSER.

FRAZZLED FINANCE (Aug. 31).—Men were scarce in the little village, but a maiden lady well advanced in years was exceedingly hopeful that she would win a bachelor upon whom she had set her heart. He was a well-to-do farmer and seemed thoroughly satisfied to spend his evenings with her.

A little milliner opened a shop in the village, a distractingly pretty woman whom all the men liked and all the women cordially detested. The milliner looked with favor upon the spinster's suitor and promptly took him away with her. The happy conversations in the stiff old parlor were things of the past and never seemed likely to come again.

The woman was very unhappy. Cupid seemed to have deserted her, but she found one of his aids in the chicken coop one evening. He was a tramp who had wandered in to annex some of their poultry. The spinster's brother, a crusty old bachelor, would have taken the tramp to prison, but his sister interfered, for an idea had suddenly flashed into her head.

The next day an article appeared in the local paper, stating that a French nobleman was visiting the family. Every one was very much interested and the excitement was very much greater when they beheld the nobleman himself. It was the tramp, but a liberal application of soap and good clothes had completely transformed him, and he bore himself with an assured and haughty air.

The popularity of the spinster was greatly intensified, particularly as it was whispered that she would probably become the count's bride. Her former suitor became very jealous. He realized her good traits and despite the efforts of the milliner he proposed to the spinster and she promised to marry him. The tramp "nobleman" once more in rags left the village, but not alone, for he carried with him the fattest pullet in the farmyard.

"It certainly was coming to him," the farmer said to his sister, and she agreed with him.

THE VETERAN POLICE HORSE (Sept. 2).—An empty headed young colt was frisking about the farm one day when a strange horse was introduced into the pasture. He was old and shabby, and at first the colt looked scornfully at him, but when he found that his companion had been out in the world, he displayed more interest.

"This is a nice farm," confided the young colt. "We have plenty to eat and nothing to do, but how I long to get out and see life."

"There is little in life for a horse," said the older animal sadly. "I have seen it all and I know what I am talking about. Why, I was on the police force." Then as the young colt listened with interest, the old horse fold the story of his life.

"When I was young," he said, "my strength and beauty attracted favorable notice, and I was purchased for the New York Police Department. They had a university for police horses down at Jamaica, Long Island, and the course is very severe.

"After receiving my diploma, I was turned over to a member of the mounted squad. If I wanted to I could tell you the name of the society woman my master saved from injury in a runaway.

"As the years passed, I grew feeble and was too slow to remain on the force. They took off my uniform, and I was sold to a hackman. He had some good qualities, but not many. After a while the automobiles ruined his business, and he retired. My next owner was a huckster, a cruel taskmaster. Often I wished that I could lie down and die, for I never knew that a horse could be so miserable as I.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum; postage stamps accepted

HELP WANTED.

OPERATORS—Who are first class men. Only sober, reliable men who are competent electricians considered. MAJESTIC THEATER, Dayton, O.

EFFECT MAN—To give all effects back of stage. Must be first class, sober and have references. State all in first letter. Steady engagement. MAJESTIC THEATER, Dayton, O.

WANTED—Hustler, competent to handle front and back big feature. Percentage basis. Bond required. Address HUSTLER, care Moving Picture World, New York City.

WANTED—First class moving picture theater managers who have made good in their present position. Must have first class references as to ability and character. When replying state salary and present position. CANADIAN FILM EXCHANGE, Calgary, Alberat, Canada.

WANTED—First class piano soloist to play for pictures without orchestra. When answering state salary, references and present position. CANADIAN FILM CO., LTD., 4 Richmond St., Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

WANTED—First class organist to play large organ for moving picture theater. Only first class men need apply. State salary, references and where at present working. CANADIAN FILM EXCHANGE, Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

WANTED—Good picture dramatizing team or good pianist, professional people preferred. Answer at once. DESOTA THEATER, Ada, Oklahoma.

THEATERS FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—Price $1,600, Moving Pictures, Opera House and Airdome. No competition, county seat, population 1,500, drawing population, 4,000. Opera chairs, electric light. Clears monthly $200. BLOOMFIELD THEATER, Bloomfield, Mo.

MOVING PICTURE THEATER for sale in a live town in Ohio. Good reason for selling. Bargain if sold quick. Answer K. J., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

FOR SALE—Established, up-to-date, complete in every detail, Motion Picture Theater (location, Camden, N. Y.), with direct current generating plant. Also three-story brick block. Excellent business opportunity, will be sold at once at a bargain, separate or together. Address W. E. TIFFANY, Camden, N. Y.

THEATER, M. P. ONLY—An honest house with an established family patronage, in a growing Chicago neighborhood, with no competition, always clearing $75 week. Fine lease. Open to rigid investigation. $5,000 cash. P. S., 428 S. Harvey Ave., Oak Park, Ill.

THEATERS FOR SALE—In Indiana and Illinois. Can give you just what you want from $1,000 to $10,000 investment, in small or large towns. Write CONSTRUCTION DEPARTMENT, LYRIC FILM & SUPPLY COMPANY, Terre Haute, Indiana.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

AT LIBERTY—Young man who has been connected with the best concerns in the business in executive capacity, traveling representative, publicity and direction, knowing the film business from manufacture to projection, desires to connect with responsible manufacturing concern. REPRESENTATIVE, care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

OPERATOR—10 years, or Manager, desires located position. Operate any make machine, including "Kinemacolor," or furnish own machine. Massachusetts licensed. OPERATOR, 74 Linden Ave., Malden, Massachusetts.

PICTURE PIANIST—At liberty. Orchestra experience. Sober and reliable. Best references. Address PIANIST, Lock Box 123, Marshall, Mo.

MANAGER AT LIBERTY—Open for engagements as manager of picture theater. Prefer town of about 12,000-18,000, in New England States. Thoroughly competent, sober and reliable. Can furnish A-1 references from previous employer as to ability, experience, honesty, etc. State full particulars first letter. ARTHUR RIPLEY, Middleboro, Mass.

A-1 OPERATOR—Wishes position outside Greater New York. Capable electrician. Address ELECTRICIAN, care Moving Picture World, New York City.

SALESMAN—Traveling entire South, wants to represent reliable concern in the moving picture field, in any capacity. ALEXANDER, 52 Cathedral Parkway, New York.

FILMS FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—3-reel feature production of "Florodora," and rights for New York & New England States. Used a few times. Good paper for advertising. Good chance for a wide-awake man. No reasonable offer refused. Address FLORODORA, care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

FOR SALE—500 reels with posters to match, all in good condition. Many subjects. Practically new. McINTIRE & RICHTER, 23 E. 14th St., New York City.

FOR SALE—"Garden of Allah," three-reel feature in excellent condition. For Missouri. Worked twelve towns only. $125 cash. INTERNATIONAL FEATURE FILM EXCHANGE, St. Louis, Mo.

ITALA MASTERPIECE—"Tigris," in four reels, for sale; also 1 sheets, 3 sheets and 6 sheets. Photographs and Heralds; includes New York State rights. Best offer takes same. FORMA & PERRY, 315 4th Ave., New York City.

FOR SALE—One, two, three and four-reel subjects for sale with big lobby display, also one Standard No. 2, with Hallberg transformer, in A-1 condition. ROYAL, 21 East 14th St., New York.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—225 Hardesty Mfg. Co., automatic folding chairs, 50c each. D. L. FISHER, 156 Spring St., Newton, N. J.

FOR SALE—160 theater chairs, practically new. Also splendid screen. Make offer. MANAGER, Box 254, Lexington, Ky.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS—Perforators, Tripods and Tilts for sale. We buy Motion Picture Machines and films. SPECIAL EVENT FILM MFGRS. CO., INC., 248 W. 35th St., N. Y. City.

CAMERA—Remodeled entirely with brand new Williamson claw movement, trick pictures, speed indicator, reverse take-up, adjustable shutter, adjustable aperture frame, 2", 3", 4" Voightlaender Heliar lenses, four magazines, carrying case, Schneider tripod. Price $350. Camera guaranteed in every respect. Will ship C. O. D. on receipt $50 deposit, subject to examination. WHYTE-WHITMAN COMPANY, 36 E. 23rd Street, New York.

FOR SALE—Williamson cameras, perforators, printers and tripods. Write for catalogues. WHYTE-WHITMAN CO., sole agents, 36 E. 23rd St., New York.

FOR SALE—Prestwich camers, Dallmeyer f 3/5 50 mm lens, five magazines, extra claw movement. Brand new. Price $300. Will ship C. O. D. on receipt $50 deposit, subject to examination. WHYTE-WHITMAN COMPANY, 36 E. 23rd St., New York.

WILLIAMSON KINEMATOGRAPH Moving Picture Camera Outfit complete, new. Used three times. Will sell for $75. F. A. HOLMES, Brewster, N. Y.

FOR SALE—Precision Camera, $200. Developing outfit and Prevo printer. J. JANSON, 118 W. 44th St., New York.

THEATERS WANTED.

WILL BUY OR RENT—Theater in Wisconsin or Illinois. State all in first letter. GEO. A. MITCHELL, Elkhorn, Wis.

PICTURE THEATER WANTED—Small theater doing good business. In or near New York City preferred. $500 down, balance monthly. Address H. B. F., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

I WILL BUY anything from a second-hand roll of tickets to a theater. I sell machines, chairs, pianos, etc., of long ago or up-to-date. Have also a few picture theaters for sale. TRIGGER, 212 Third Ave., near 18th St., New York City.

MISCELLANEOUS.

UNBREAKABLE SLIDES—The new, round letter announcement slide, guaranteed not to crack, and will last many years. For circular address NEVER BREAK SLIDE CO., Omaha, Nebr.

GOOD JUDGMENT
IN ADVERTISING

Consists of ability in placing copy with the publication guaranteeing Quality as well as Quantity of circulation. No other Moving Picture publication reaches so many Exhibitors and prospective purchasers as

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

"He was especially brutal one day, and I thought that the end had come. Then a mounted policeman dashed up, and sternly rebuked him. I looked at my preserver with gratitude and recognized my first master. He knew me, too. He told the huckster that he wanted to buy me and he did. Then he led me away to this place, telling me I would never have to work again, but would be cared for as long as I lived."

The old horse stopped, turned, and saying, "Here's my old master now. He always comes on his day off," dashed away to a man in uniform who approached from the farm.

MAJESTIC.

A PERILOUS RIDE (Sept. 2).—Mary Gray was a girl of the plains. Her father, an old ranchman, took great pride in his daughter's riding accomplishments. "She can ride any horse that ever breathed," he boasted, "and the man that wins her will have to be a sure enough rider."

The man arrived. He was the owner of a ranch several miles away and when he visited Col. Gray at his home he fell an instant victim to the girl's charms. Finally the young man proposed as he was riding across the plains with the girl.

"The man who wins me," Mary replied in a very deliberate manner, "must first catch me," and settling spurs to her horse she galloped swiftly across the prairie. Her sweetheart realized what she meant and thundered after her at full speed. His horse was the swifter and as he darted past, the rider swept the girl from her saddle into his own.

Col. Gray was greatly pleased at the engagement, for the young rancher was wealthy and in every way a desirable match. His foreman, however, who had cherished an idea of becoming Mary's husband, was incensed, and his anger turned against his employer for consenting to the engagement.

The foreman had a past, a very dark one, in fact, and when Col. Gray prepared to ride to town with a large sum of money to be deposited in the bank, the foreman resolved to secure possession of it. Mary had left several days before to visit relatives living at a distance and Grey was alone at the ranch with a few cowboys.

The old ranchman rode away with the money, little dreaming that his foreman, supposed to be on the "round up" with the other men, was hiding in ambush on the trail which he must pass before he reached town.

Mary enjoyed a very pleasant visit with her relatives and rode gayly towards home. She stopped for lunch in a picturesque spot and while resting heard voices. Cautiously she made her way forward in the direction of the sounds, and to her surprise discovered her father's foreman in earnest conversation with the two men whom she instinctively classed as outlaws. Soon she learned their purpose, which was to waylay her father as he rode by.

The girl realized the desperate character of the men with whom she had to deal, but she did not hesitate. Quickly she ran to her horse, mounted and galloped away to warn her father. She was discovered and pursued. The foreman and his followers, driven to desperation, fired on her, but she eluded them and reached Col. Gray in time. The outlaws were captured by the young ranchman to whom the girl had plighted her troth, and soon afterwards she became his bride.

THE HEART OF A FOOL (Sept. 7).—The fool saves the life of the king, who, in gratitude, grants him whatever boon he wishes. The fool is in love with the princess, and therefore asks that for a day he may be a man instead of a fool. The king grants his request, knights him Sir Roger Motley in jest and gives him cloak and costume. For a day the princess and the fool stroll through an enchanted world and both find love, though no words are said. The fool is man enough to restrain his words of love and as the day is over he slips back to his motley. But he finds that he cannot bear to play the fool before his lady even though she does not glance aside at him. So he leaves his castle and her life in the guise of a monk.

A year later the Black Death comes to the castle in the tray of a traveling peddler and the princess is stricken. The court leaves her, the castle chaplain and her own father and mother flee in terror. But the fool in his monk's garb, hears of her illness and goes to her, unafraid. He cares for her, and finally receives his reward in her dying smile and kiss, as he draws aside his gown and shows her the fool's motley beneath.

RELIANCE.

FEENEY'S SOCIAL EXPERIMENT (Sept. 1).—Feeney is a hard working coal-stoker. One day, while in port, he happens to attend a meeting at which several millionaires address the people on how to accumulate money. "When you see the opportunity, grasp it," is impressed vividly on Feeney's brain. He buys books on political economy and inters his friends in this subject.

That season they embark as stokers on board the palatial yacht of Mac Clandish, the head speaker at the meeting which Feeney attended. He has several friends aboard and all prepare for a jolly cruise. But the boat strikes a rock and is totally wrecked. The stokers get the millionaires ashore on a distant island and prepare to take care of them. Then Feeney remembers, "When you see the opportunity, grasp it." He gets an idea and calls his comrades together in consultation. Next day, the millionaires find a rudely erected hotel, well stocked with supplies from the wreck, on the island, owned and operated by the stokers, who have made themselves the sole food capitalists of the place. The rich men are forced to pay dearly for everything they eat, and as they cannot starve, they finally submit. Mac Clandish, in rebellion, refuses to give in, and in a fugitive state of hunger, steals the "hotel" garbage cans. Feeney takes it away from him forcibly and points out to him where he is wrong.

About two weeks later, they are all picked up by a passing steamer, and down below decks, Feeney and his mates share a fat bankroll, showing that they certainly "grasped the opportunity when they saw it."

EXCLUSIVE FILM CORPORATION

GAUMONT.

THE FATAL BELL (Sept. 2).—George Harland, chief cashier at the Northwestern Bank, Northville, has a brother of sporting proclivities—Maurice is a keen backer of the horses. Like most bettors, Maurice loses heavily, but one day he receives news of a "dead cinch" and decides to surreptitiously borrow a large sum from George's bank and to repay the sum out of his winnings-to-be. Maurice calls on the unsuspecting George, and taking a mean advantage of the position of trust his brother holds in the institution, he abstracts a wad of notes while George's back is turned, and gets safely away with the cash.

Balancing time comes round and George Harland is found to be $2,500 short in his cash. The distracted cashier is haled before the manager and accused of embezzling the bank's funds, being given grace until 5 o'clock that evening to make good the deficit. George is bewildered, aghast, and almost stunned by the blow, and goes home in a state bordering upon insanity. His wife tries to sympathize, but George is beyond all sympathy, the shock has been too terrible. He announces that when the police come to arrest him—when the doorbell rings at five o'clock—he will shoot himself rather than submit to the disgrace and ignominy of an accusation of this kind. Mrs. Harland, at her wits' end to circumvent George's crazy decision, cuts down the bell from the door, and lays it on the sideboard, hoping that as time passes her husband will recover his equanimity.

Smitten with remorse, and fearing the consequences which would react upon his brother, Maurice Harland goes back to the bank and makes a clean breast of the theft to the manager, who thereupon hands him a note exonerating George from all blame in the matter. Maurice arrives at his brother's home prepared to confess the crime to George, and Mrs. Harland is explaining the situation, when little Doris Harland, just returned from school, espys the bell and promptly seizes it and makes a loud clanging. Instantly a shot is heard reverberating through the house, and Mrs. Harland fears that the worst has happened in the room wherein George has locked himself.

On breaking open the door George Harland is found to have severely wounded himself, although not fatally, and on hearing his brother's confession he is devoutly thankful that his aim was not accurate.

SOME FIREMAN (Sept. 4).—Oscar Bingham believes he is the only pebble on the beach, so far as Mamie Devere, the popular musical comedy actress, is concerned, but one morning an anonymous letter from "A Friend," causes him most furiously to think—and act. Can this accusation of flightiness directed against his darling Mamie have any foundation in truth? He will investigate the matter forthwith.

Evening arrived, Oscar dons his "glad rags" and hies himself to the Imperial Theater, and when he goes round onto the stage to visit Mamie at the end of the first act, the actions of his beloved seem to lend color to the accusations of Oscar's anonymous correspondent. But Oscar must be sore. And this is where his brain-wave occurs. He bribes the theater fireman to change places (and clothes), with him, and whilst impersonating the doughty flame-quencher, sees quite enough to quench his own flames of love.

An interview with the Fire Chief (during the course of which Oscar gives him an involuntary shower-bath), and an ignominious finish in the "cooler," leave Oscar in a considerably chastened frame of mind—so chastened that he vows never to chase after musical comedy satellites for the future.

SOLAX.

RETRIBUTION (Sept. 5).—Under the influence of "Nifty Jack" Logan, burglar, Nell O'Brien, herself having been partner to a few petty crimes, though now in honest employment, aids him to rob the house of her employer. Surprised in the act by Garry O'Neill, a young Central Office detective, who is visiting there, they are arrested and taken to court. Nifty is sentenced to two years, Nell to six months. Upon their being sentenced, Nifty vows to kill the detective upon his release.

Six months later, Garry aids Nell to lead a better life, and eventually falls in love with her, though their love is not declared. Nell, prosperous and happy in her honest freedom, is surprised by the entrance into her apartment of Nifty, who has but lately made his escape from prison, and as he vowed, comes to invoke her aid in his nefarious plot to do away with Garry O'Neill by means of an infernal machine. Nell refuses flatly to aid him, whereupon he vows to do the job himself. Leaving Nell bound and gagged in her apartment, he goes to the house of Garry O'Neil, surprises him, and acquaints him of the fact that he has but three minutes to live, leaving him alone with the machine which is to blow him into eternity. In the meantime, Nell has freed herself from the bonds and rushes to the home of her only friend, reaching it in time to save his life, by throwing the machine through the window. The machine goes off, blowing in the side of the house, and the two lovers at last embrace and their love is declared unspoken. The smoke clears, and as they gaze out into the night, they behold the form of the would-be assassin, Nifty, dangling from one of the timbers—dead.

PILOT.

GETTING THE EVIDENCE (Aug. 28).—The Secret Service is worried by some new counterfeit money that so closely resembles the genuine that the most expert are deceived. The chief of the Secret Service calls in Hargreaves, one of his most trusted men. Marshall, a clerk in the Secret Service, acts suspiciously. Hargreaves, following a slender clue, gets on Marshall's trail. Hargreaves, by a clever ruse, makes Marshall confess the whereabouts of the gang. Kitty Ives, of the press, sees a strange incident one day between two suspicious looking men, and scenting a story for her paper, she decides to follow and investigate the trail to the counterfeiters' den and she is caught by the men spying upon their actions. They imprison her in one of the workrooms and being warned by Marshall, they try to get rid of the evidence of their guilt.

Kitty, however, manages to free herself and turns the tables upon the counterfeiters. With her help, Hargreaves gets the evidence that sends them to prison for a long term and the Secret Service man falls in love with the clever newspaper girl who had helped him locate the culprits.

FEATURES

TRUE FEATURES.

THE DOOM OF DARKNESS (Aug. 2—4 parts—Feature Release).—Professor Thomas Lovelace, a famous surgeon, has overtaxed his eyes through many delicate and difficult operations. His nephew and assistant at the sanatorium, Dr. Earle Lovelace, induces him to have his eyes examined, and the oculist tells the professor that he stands in danger of losing his sight. At this moment the professor's assistants at the sanatorium telephone him that a famous actress has just reached his sanitorium and is in danger of death unless he operates at once. Disregarding the advice of the oculist, the professor operates again and goes blind. The patient whom he cured learns of his sacrifice, and offers to care for him, and he accepts the offer. Later on the woman becomes acquainted with the nephew of the physician and falls in love with him. He returns her affection, but they decide to deny themselves for the sake of the blind man. The latter, however, has overheard their confession of love and the self-denial and refuses to stand in the way of their happiness.

THE HEART OF THE HUNCHBACK (Aug. 6—3 parts—Feature Release).—This story is based upon a sensational thrilling episode of the war now raging in the southwestern part of Europe. It serves to introduce the modern types of military aeroplanes and shows the most modern of these many hundred feet above the earth engaged in a combat with regular troops, a struggle ending in the fall and destruction of the aeroplane. The central figure in the story is that of a hunchback, which is played with extraordinary skill. The hunchback is enraged at his rejection by the belle of the village, and, thinking to revenge himself on her and her lover, he betrays his country. To head off the consequences of treason, Jeritza, the village belle, makes a heartbreaking ride to the headquarters of her own troops. The commanding general at once mobilizes his aeroplanes and there is an encounter with the enemy. The hunchback repents of his treason, and, defying the enemies of his country, pays the penalty of his heroism with his life.

THE VIVAPHONE

SINGING AND TALKING PICTURES

SCENE FROM "JIMMY VALENTINE"

A SUCCESS EVERYWHERE. For State Rights Apply

VIVAPHONE & FILMS SALES CO.
INCORPORATED
110-112 West 40th Street, New York City
A. BLINKHORN, Sole Agent U. S. A. and Canada

Singing and Talking Motion Pictures

The TALKAPHONE

Film exchanges and exhibitors, if you are looking for a live proposition, go to see our TALKIES. We are playing all first class THEATRES throughout the United States and Canada, now playing the following Theatres and Cities:

GARDEN THEATRE, WATERBURY, CONN., AUG. 28 to 31
GARDENER THEATRE, GARDENER, MASS., SEPT. 1 & 8
COLLE OPERA HOUSE, TURNERS FALLS, MASS., SEPT. 2
GILMORE THEATRE, SPRINGFIELD, MASS., SEPT. 4 to 7
WORCESTER THEATRE, WORCESTER, MASS., SEPT. 8 to 10
CASINO THEATRE, NEW BEDFORD, MASS., SEPT. 11 & 12
ROYAL THEATRE, NEW BEDFORD, MASS., SEPT. 13

PRINCE THEATRE, HOUSTON, TEXAS, AUG. 31 to SEPT. 3
GRAND OPERA HOUSE, GALVESTON, TEXAS, SEPT. 4 to 7
AUDITORIUM, WACO, TEXAS, SEPT. 8 to 10
HANCOCK OPERA HOUSE, AUSTIN, TEXAS, SEPT. 11 to 13
OPERA HOUSE, SAN MARCOS, TEXAS, SEPT. 15 & 16
OPERA HOUSE, LOCKHART, TEXAS, SEPT. 17 & 18
OPERA HOUSE, YOAKUM, TEXAS, SEPT. 19 & 20
GRAND OPERA HOUSE, SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, SEPT. 21 to 23
OPERA HOUSE, TAYLOR, TEXAS, SEPT. 24
BYERS OPERA HOUSE, FT. WORTH, TEXAS, SEPT. 25 to 27
DALLAS OPERA HOUSE, DALLAS, TEXAS, SEPT. 29 to OCT. 1
OPERA HOUSE, SHERMAN, TEXAS, OCT. 2 to 4
OPERA HOUSE, DENISON, TEXAS, OCT. 8 to 8
DURANT THEATRE, DURANT, OKLAHOMA, OCT. 9 to 11
THE OVERHOLSER, OKLAHOMA CITY. OKLAHOMA, OCT. 12 to 14

If interested write for our list of subjects.
We will sell you Talking Picture Film at 10c. per foot.
Records at 50c. to $1.00 each.
Talking Picture Machines, $50.00 single, $100.00 double.
Can also sell you Synchronized Disk Film and Records.

DOWNTOWN AMUSEMENT CO.
No. 4 St. Marks Place, New York City, N. Y.

World's Largest Mfrs. WURLITZER Established 1856

BIJOU DREAM

A Wurlitzer Piano Orchestra is used inside this theater

Write for 32-page booklet, showing
Wurlitzer Automatic Musical Instruments
in the leading picture theatres of the country.

The Wurlitzer Instruments furnish better music than musicians and reduce expenses. 50 different styles; time payments; big catalog free. If you can't call, write to our nearest branch.

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Company
CINCINNATI 117-121 E. 4th
NEW YORK 25-27 W. 32d
CHICAGO 329-331 S. Wabash
PHILADELPHIA 1835 Chestnut
ST. LOUIS 912 Pine St.
CLEVELAND 800 Huron Rd.
BUFFALO 701 Main
LOUISVILLE 426 W. Greene
COLUMBUS, O. 57 E. Main

An Open Letter to the Trade

MANUFACTURERS, PRINTERS AND DEALERS—

Gentlemen:

The public demands for better moving pictures are becoming more exacting from day to day, and the slightest improvement in the raw stock may give you an advantage over your competitor in the sharp competition of the day.

We have been striving to produce a raw film that would meet this demand and are offering to the trade a sensitized negative and positive raw film that has been highly commended by the trade.

Our factory is an extensive and up-to-date plant devoted exclusively to the manufacture of raw film stock, with a capacity for making deliveries the same day that the orders are received.

Write us now, before our capacity is exceeded.

Yours truly,

FIREPROOF FILM COMPANY,
Rochester, N. Y., U. S. A.

THE TWISTED EAR (2 parts—Feature Release).—The exploits of a mysterious burglar and robber have filled the newspapers for some time. Nothing is known of him, save the fact that his right ear is strangely twisted and deformed. This has been noticed by several of his victims, and by reason of this he has been generally known as "Twisted Ear." The police are entirely at sea.

While driving with her fiancé, Senator Rogers' daughter drops a glove, which is found and restored to her by a handsome young stranger, who at the same time presents his card to her fiancé. The Baron von Osten, for that is the name on the card, is presented to Miss Rogers, and the two seem strongly attracted to each other. Permission to call is granted and the acquaintance soon ripens into friendship with her as well as her entire family. The Baron, a fashionable gentleman of leisure, is always a welcome guest at the Senator's house.

One night, the household is awakened by the screams of Miss Rogers. A burglar has broken into the room and taken her priceless pearl necklace. She caught but a glimpse of the man as he left, but recognized the twisted ear. A servant who sought to stay the escape of the burglar was severely beaten.

Some days later the Baron gives a dinner to his friends. The champagne flows freely, and the host drinks none too sparingly. To add to the gayety of the occasion, an Apache dance, as danced by the rough criminal classes, is proposed. The Baron enters into it with a zest. He dishevels his hair, rearranges his clothes, and dances with an abandon hardly to be expected from so refined an aristocrat. The dance over, he rests and befuddled by the wine, absent-mindedly fusses with his ear, twisting it out of shape. No one but the girl sees. She is fascinated, and as the ear remains twisted and deformed, she recognizes the burglar. The Baron has fallen asleep; the alarm is given, and he is arrested as the long sought desperado.

But not until his sweetheart of his burglar self, jealous of his affections for Miss Rogers, turns against him and betrays him, are the judges able to convict him. The scene ends with a courtroom turmoil, the false Baron seeking to kill the informer, but held back by the strong arms of the police.

THE HIGHER COURAGE (2 parts—Feature Release).—There are two kinds of courage, the brutal physical courage and the higher courage. Sometimes these are found together, at other times one excludes the other. The gamekeeper's assistant, who plays the lead in this story, is a handsome, fine looking man, but he has all the tenderness of a woman's heart. His duty requires him to control the game preserves of his master. He sees two poachers and wants to make them prisoners. He is in a protected position and even when they take the alarm it would be easy for him to save his life by firing at them, but the thought of shedding blood is unbearable to him and he lets the poachers escape. But consequently, he is taunted as a coward and shunned by everybody in the village. Opportunities, however, come soon to let him show that while he cannot bear the sight of blood, he has the higher kind of courage. At the risk of his own life he descends on a thin rope along a steep precipice for hundreds and hundreds of feet, in order to bring assistance to a woman tourist who had fallen into the depths of a mountain gorge. Later, he sees a tame deer which has escaped from the preserves and has caught its foot in a tangle of briar. He takes terrible chances in getting to the deer, which is away up on a mountain, and he liberates the suffering animal. When his master, who had joined in the general decision at his cowardice, is about to be shot down by two poachers in ambush, the supposed coward rushes upon the poachers just as they are about to fire and throwing up their guns saves his master's life. In a terrible fire he braves the flames and proves himself a hero. Through a mere accident, his brave deeds become known and the coward of yesterday becomes the hero of today. He regains the love of his sweetheart, who had begun to doubt his courage, and the film ends with a very pretty wedding scene.

THE HOLE IN THE NET (3 parts—Feature Release).—Jack Ward has always been the black sheep of the family and finally is sent to prison for forging his brother's name. Upon his release, he disappears from the ken of his family. Many years have passed; his brother has become a millionaire, a widower with one lovely daughter. Pride has kept the old man from telling his daughter of his brother's infamy, and she knows only that her uncle is in some far off country. As a matter of fact, he is in London, making a living by his nimble, unscrupulous wits.

On his death bed the dying millionaire tells his lawyer the whole story, and expresses a fear that the younger brother will return when he learns of his death in order to get the fortune. He beseeches the lawyer to protect his daughter, but for the honor of the family not to disclose his brother's villainous career. Having finished the story, he sends for his daughter, gives her his last blessing and dies.

The adventurer soon learns of his brother's death, and calls on his niece, introduces himself and accounts for his long absence by various explanations. He is graciously invited to make the house his stopping place as long as it pleases him. But the evil mind has already conceived a plan to do away with the innocent girl, and thus become the sole claimant for the immense estate. He is a member of the "Black League," and he calls on some of the members to aid him. By means of a specially constructed secret door, it is intended to kidnap the heiress.

The girl by accident hears a mysterious creaking, and tells her lawyer guardian of it. His suspicions are aroused, and he calls in Detective Duggan. Through the ingenuity of the detective and his shrewd boy assistant, the conspirators are foiled, and the villainy of the uncle is unveiled. While this is in progress, the heiress and Duggan have had a chance to get very well acquainted, and have learned to love each other. After he has rescued her from the clutches of her relative he tells her of his love and they are affianced.

UNION FEATURES.

THE BLACK SHEEP (Aug. 20—3 parts—Feature Release).—Adhering to the promise made to her husband on his deathbed not to remarry, Mrs. Julia Brendon, nevertheless, falls deeply in love with a fascinating young army officer. Some time later she is compelled to shield the birth of Alice, an illegitimate child. Consul Barlow Washburn, a friend, keeps the child until such time as he is compelled to go to another country, when he leaves it in the care of his steward, John Black. Fifteen years later Black is engaged by Mrs. Brendon as her steward and his supposed daughter as a companion. The demands upon her for money by her profligate nephew, Paul Vermont, determines her to draw her will so that her immense fortune would revert to Alice and George Washburn, the son of the man who cared for Alice during her infancy.

Black, who has been stealing Mrs. Brendon's money, is discovered by Vermont, who, determining to get the will, forces Black into the bedroom of Mrs. Brendon to steal it. The shock of seeing Black, the servant she trusted, in her room kills Mrs. Brendon. Ignorant of his aunt's death, Vermont goes to Grabber, a money lender, to whom he gives the will as security for a large amount of ready cash. Everything isn't to run Vermont's way, for his friend Thompson, being dissatisfied with his portion of the loan, is intent upon restoring the will to the proper person. Alice is in a quandary as to what to do to get her supposed father, Black, out of the trouble caused by the death of Mrs. Brendon, and just as she has decided to leave the house forever, which would reflect the blame upon her, George Washburn arrives with news of his father's death. Through the instrumentality of Thompson, Alice and George get possession of the genuine will. Black is a victim of apoplexy and Alice learns to her pleasure that Black was not her father. Vermont finds himself in the strong arms of the law.

DOOMED TO DIE; OR THE VIAL OF WRATH (Three parts—Feature release).—After many years of experimentation Dr. William Burton, a noted bacteriologist, finds that he has discovered the bacillus of hydrophobia. He confides his discovery to a friend, John Armand, a neurasthenic, who pays but little attention to what he says and reminds him that he has called for an opiate.

Although he has been out of practice for a number of years, Dr. Burton agrees to treat Annette, the daughter of a poor woman named Mme. Verdier. He does not accept compensation for his services and a few weeks later he finds himself so much in love with the young lady that he marries her. Mari, the doctor's servant, who has been with him all during his life as a recluse, is greatly perturbed over her master's change. Armand regards the doctor's domestication as a joke and, forgetting the sacredness of friendship, he forces his attentions upon Annette, who being an impressionable person, quickly succumbs to his inveiglement. One morning Mari observes that Annette is extremely happy over the receipt of a letter she has received. She hides it in the drawing-room desk and Mari, upon investigating, is startled to learn that it is from Armand, who has declared his love. Mari tells the doctor of his wife's perfidy. He at first does not believe it, but upon seeing the letter, he gives way to bitter reproach for having married at his advanced age.

That evening Armand's man calls for another dose of the opiate. The doctor had apportioned it when his eye catches sight of the vial containing the deadly bacillus of hydrophobia. He hesitates; he will not be guilty of murder, so he goes to the reception-room with the opiate. There his wife embraces him and showers him with kisses. Her infamy determines him to substitute a dose of bacillus of hydrophobia for that of the opiate, and he goes to the laboratory to carry out his malevolent intention. Returning he gives Armand's man the bacillus. A few days later Armand complains of a fever, and in order to have "better treatment" the doctor orders his removal to his house. The doctor then tells Armand what he has learned concerning Annette's actions and what he has done in revenge. Almost instantaneous with the doctor's last word Armand becomes a madman. He wrecks the house and springs at the doctor. The noise brings in Annette and the doctor forces her to the madman. He chokes her into insensibility, and her screams summon the doctor who, in going to her aid, is pounced upon by the madman. The doctor dies of the wounds inflicted and the madman, already in the throes of death, is finally subsided by the servants. Annette is now left alone to face the terrible retribution which she has laid for herself.

KINETO.

IN A SERPENT'S COILS (3 parts—Feature Release).—John D. Braxton, metal king and collector of ores and naturalist trophies, is desirous of crossing the dreaded desert, and has sent for a reliable guide. Arriving at the tiny mining camp known as Simpson City, accompanied by many huge cases of specimens, he is an object of suspicion amongst the tougher element, and Joe Durton's gang of rustlers jump to the conclusion that Braxton's cases are filled with gold. The gang one morning pick up a dying teamster who is carrying a letter to Braxton, stating that the bearer is Jack Hawkes, a reliable guide. Durton determines to impersonate the dead guide and thus discover just what is contained in Braxton's heavy cases. He does this successfully, and is taken on as guide without any suspicion. Immediately on arrival Durton bribes one of Braxton's men to open a case and tell him what it contains; this man is promptly shot dead by Braxton, who warns everybody that interference with his affairs spells sudden death.

We are now introduced to the secret meeting place of the gang, where fiery crucibles are seen at work melting down the ill-gotten gains of the thieves. Here a letter is received from Durton calling upon his comrades to be in readiness for the forthcoming coup, and telling them that as this is his own particular scheme, he demands a clear half of the proceeds.

Part Two shows us the convoy proceeding over the dreary desert, and we see Durton's plan carried into effect. He breaks the convoy into two sections, whilst crossing a creek, and thus weakened, the half with which Braxton stays is quickly overcome by the gang. They take Braxton and his cases to a lonely shack, and proceed to "bleed" him for $30,000 ransom, which Braxton, realizing the position he is in, promptly pays by check on a San Diego bank, warning them to on no account tamper with his baggage. When the check is handed out the bandits quarrel as to Durton's having a half share of this easily won plunder, and send Bill Downs to collect the money. Durton imagines he will be left in the lurch, so sends for his wife to come and assist him in yet another scheme which has occurred to his fertile imagination—why not break open Braxton's cases and transfer the gold to some old gunny-sacks? She can do this whilst he keeps the "boys" busy drinking upstairs. The cases are in the cellar and nobody can hear the noise of opening them when the door is tightly fastened. This part ends with Helena Durton riding off from her home to join Joe at the lonely shack.

In the third part we see Durton explaining his new scheme to Helena, and leading her down to the cellar wherein the cases are stored. Leaving his wife downstairs, Joe locks the door and rejoins his companions, telling them that he is now going to start a "real jag." The whole gang join in the festivities, and hour after hour slips by whilst they are drinking and dancing and playing cards. Meanwhile what has happened to Helena Durton, left in the cellar? Cautiously opening one of the cases, she peeps inside, and starts back with a cry of horror. The case is filled with huge deadly fanged snakes! She quickly rushes to the door and batters against it, screaming loudly for help. But the gang do not hear, the door is too thick for sound to penetrate. The slimy reptiles draw nearer and nearer, and Helena retreats to an inner room of the cellar. The snakes worm their way after her. She fights and screams and struggles, but all to no avail. The deadly crawling reptiles see in Helena the embodiment of their natural enemy, man, and one, bolder then the others, gradually enfolds her in its tight embrace. Will help never come? Helena gradually gets weaker and weaker, until, as the snake raises its head and strikes her time and again with its envenomed tongue, the poor distracted woman faints.

Upstairs the fun is fast and furious, but at last the supply of liquor has given out. Durton has just written a letter to a jeweler ordering a lovely necklace for his wife. Little does he dream that she is lying unconscious in the room beneath with a living necklace encircling her throat. The ever-thirsty gang send one of their number to search the cellar in the hope that one more bottle may still be discovered. He finds Helena Durton almost in the last throes! Quickly she is brought to the upper room, and the millionaire naturalist is importuned to use his knowledge to save the woman's life. In spite of their treatment of him, Braxton administers a serum which counteracts the effect of the serpent's venom, and brings life back to Joe Durton's wife. Just then the messenger returns with the cash for Braxton's check. Durton seizes it, and in a wave of thankfulness and gratitude, hands it back to Braxton.

The story closes with a reformed Joe Durton guiding the millionaire's convoy across the desert, John Braxton once more in possession of all his money and naturalist specimen-cases.

COMMON SENSE

"Dr. Nicholson AND THE Blue Diamond"

(4 REELS)

IS THE FIRST RELEASE OF A NEW COMPANY

Can You Imagine That We'd Start off with a "Lemon"?

FILM RELEASES OF AMERICA

Exclusive Supply Corporation, (Distributors,) 220 West 42nd Street, New York City

---

Radium Gold Fibre Screen

MEETS THE TEST

You have bought the rest — Read the following and buy the best

July 15th, 1913.

American Theatre Curtain & Supply Co.,
St. Louis, Mo.
Gentlemen:

Regarding the RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN installed in my theatre on above date would say, same marks the beginning of perfect and satisfactory projection in my theater.

As you know there is considerable daylight striking the screen in my house which was formerly a great hindrance to securing perfect results.

Since installing your screen I secure a perfect picture and it gives me great pleasure to recommend same.

Yours very truly,

PHOTO DROME THEATER CO.
Per S. B., New York City.

American Theatre Curtain & Supply Company

105 N. Main Street, Sole Manufacturers, ST. LOUIS, MO.

G. H. CALLAGHAN, 1465 Broadway, New York
GEORGE BRECK, 70 Turk St., San Francisco, Cal.
DISTRIBUTORS

Let Us Show You Why!

The Quality of Your Exhibition Lies Chiefly in Your Projection

Now that the heated term is over you have the opportunity to increase your patronage from the start by installing a Mirroroide Screen, patents pending. Practically conceded universally the best projection surface now on the market. Wherever you go, even though it be Japan, you will see pictures projected on a Mirroroide Screen. It's universally used in the world's largest and best theatres, colleges and military institutions including the U. S. Government Academy at West Point.

Over 4,700 Mirroroide Screens in Use

Let us show you why. Get our large free samples. Test! Against any screen or curtain in your town. Surely your eyes can't deceive you. Mirroroide is sold under a positive 5-year guarantee that it won't turn black, peel, crack or lose its brilliancy. It stands any climate. It can be washed with soap and water. It's the original, the only rough or matte metallic surfaced screen in the world. The cloth is canvas. It's pure silver white.

LET US SHOW YOU

Orders Shipped in 24 Hours

THE J. H. GENTER CO.
NEWBURGH, N. Y.

The UNAPHONE AND THE OCTAPHONE

Are the names of our two latest musical novelty instruments. They are electrically operated and played from regular piano keyboard. These instruments are made specially for motion picture theatres, and have a wonderful sweet and rich tone. They surpass anything ever before attempted in a musical novelty instrument and are just the thing for your theatre, Mr. Exhibitor. This is an attraction that will boost your business from the start.

WRITE TODAY FOR CATALOGUE "F"

J. C. DEAGAN

1770 BERTEAU AVENUE
CHICAGO, ILL., U. S. A.

AS THE BLAZING BEACON
MARKS THE APEX
OF HUMAN ENDEAVOR TO GUIDE AND SAFEGUARD THE MARINER, SO THE
APEX FILM CO.
LIGHTS THE WAY FOR THE FEATURE FILM
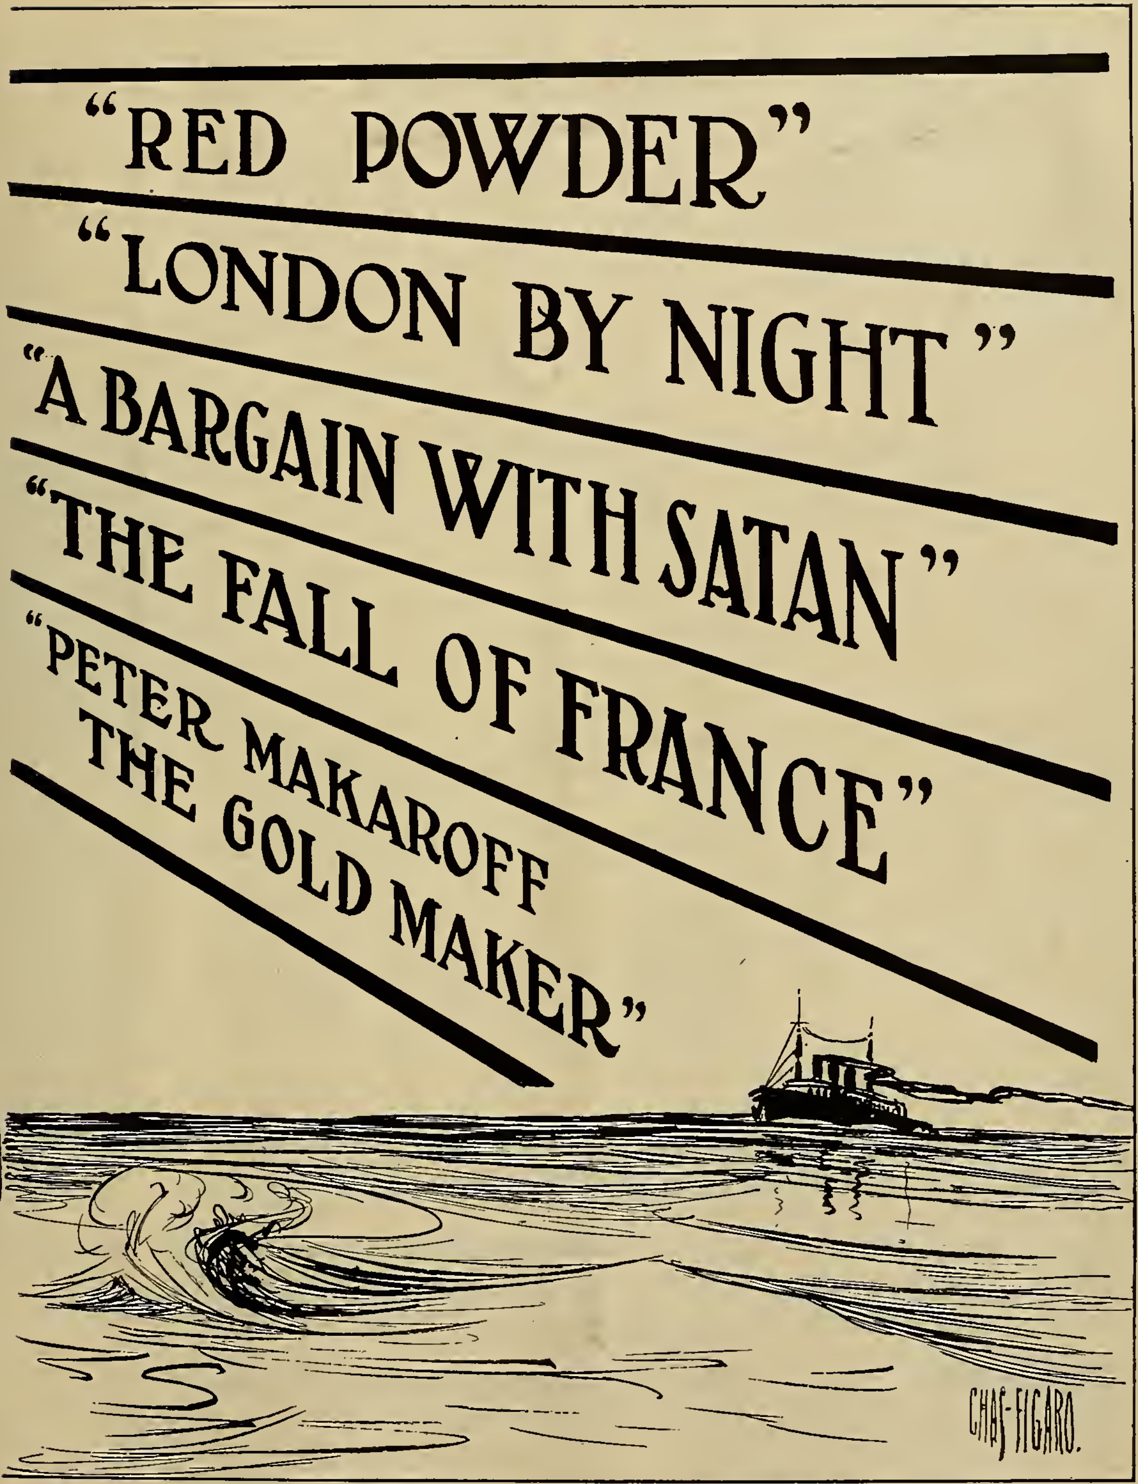
BUYER TO THE HARBOR
OF SUCCESS!

Some territory still open for the 4 reel sensation

"The Black Snake"

3350 feet of "punch" as good as "On the Trail of the Spider Gang"



"RED POWDER"
"LONDON BY NIGHT"
"A BARGAIN WITH SATAN"
"THE FALL OF FRANCE"
"PETER MAKAROFF THE GOLD MAKER"
CHAS-FIGARO.

Five knockouts with a smashing line of Otis lithography. "Red Powder" is ready and "four of a kind" will follow fast. Write or wire

APEX FILM CO., 145 WEST 45th STREET, NEW YORK CITY
35 LITTLE NEWPORT STREET, LONDON

INDEX

TO CONTENTS.

ADVERTISING FOR EXHIBITORS..........1059
AT THE SIGN OF THE FLAMING ARCS.....1071
"BETROTHED, THE" (Ambrosio)..........1047
BRACE OF INTERESTING EDISONS, A.....1048
BUFFALO..........1082
CALENDAR OF LICENSED RELEASES.......1076
CALENDAR OF INDEPENDENT RELEASES..1078
CHICAGO LETTER..........1050
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Licensed).......1067
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Independent)...1069
CORRESPONDENCE..........1075
"DOOMED TO DIE" (Union Features)........1056
EXCHANGE ASSETS—by H. Z. Levine........1055
FACTS AND COMMENTS..........1043
FOREIGN TRADE NOTES..........1057
ILLINOIS..........1080
INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES..........1100
INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES..........1116
IN THE NORTHWEST..........1075
IN THE SOUTHWEST..........1080
INQUIRIES..........1062
IOWA..........1080
LICENSED FILM STORIES..........1084
LICENSED RELEASE DATES..........1118
LOUISVILLE..........1075
MANUFACTURERS' ADVANCE NOTES.......1072
MICHIGAN..........1080
MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE...1053
MOVING PICTURE EDUCATOR, THE.........1052
NEW ENGLAND..........1082
OBSERVATIONS BY MAN ABOUT TOWN....1058
OHIO..........1075
PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT, THE..........1061
PITTSBURG..........1075
PROJECTION DEPARTMENT..........1063
SERMON IN STONES, A,
by W. Stephen Bush..........1044
SIEGMAN, GEORGE..........1070
SPRINGFIELD..........1080
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Licensed)..........1084
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Independent)......1100
TWO VIVID VITAGRAPHS..........1046
"WHEELS OF FATE, THE" (Selig)..........1045
WISCONSIN..........1080

TO ADVERTISERS.

CARBON IMPORTERS.
FRORUP, L. E..........1115
KIEWERT, L. C..........1122
REISINGER, HUGO..........1105

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.
AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO..........1096
BELL & HOWELL..........1121
CALEHUFF SUPPLY CO..........1121
CHICAGO M. P. SUPPLY CO..........1090
DETROIT ENGINE WORKS..........1124
FAIRBANKS MORSE & CO..........1123
FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC CO..........1092
GENERAL ELECTRIC CO..........1117
HALLBERG, J. H..........1103
HOKE, GEO. M..........1090
KLEINE OPTICAL CO..........1105
PICTURE THEATER EQUIPMENT CO........1125
SCHNEIDER, E..........1104
SMITH, L. C. & CO..........1074
STRELINGER, CHARLES A..........1102
WESTINGHOUSE ELECT. MFG. CO..........1098

MISCELLANEOUS FEATURES.
ALL STAR FEATURE CO..........1085
ALMO F. F. CO..........1088
AMBROSIO FILM CO..........1091
AMERICA'S F. F. CO..........1115-20
APEX FILM CO..........1112-13
BATTLE OF WATERLOO FILM CO.........1026-27
BLACHE FEATURES..........1090
EAGLE F. F. CO..........1088
ECLECTIC FILM CO..........1081
FAMOUS PLAYERS..........1030-31
FEATURE FILM CO..........1086
FULLER'S CHAS. L. DISTRIBUTING CO.....1115
GENERAL FILM CO..........1034-35
GREAT NORTHERN SPECIAL F. F. CO......1083
KLEINE, GEO..........1037
NEW YORK FILM CO..........1123
ST. LOUIS M. P. CO..........1097
SUPREME F. F. CO..........1115
TRUE FEATURES..........1087
VIVAPHONE CO..........1109
WATERLOO FILM CO..........1026-27

FILM BROKERS.
INTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS..........1090

FIREPROOF APPARATUS.
TRAINER, C. W..........1088

FILM EXCHANGES.
BRADENBURG, G. W..........1122
EXCLUSIVE FILM CO..........1121
EXCLUSIVE FILM SUPPLY CORP........1075-1111
FULTON, E. E..........1104
GOLDEN GATE FILM EXCHANGE..........1099
GUNBY BROS..........1092
HETZ, L..........1125
LAEMMLE FILM CO..........1094
M. & F. FILM SERVICE..........1094
NORTHERN FEATURE FILM EXCHANGE...1088
NORTHWESTERN F. F. CO..........1099
STATE FILM EX..........1104
SWANSON CRAWFORD EX..........1120

INDEPENDENT FILM MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN..........1028
BRONCHO FILM CO..........1033
ECLAIR FILM CO..........1127
GAUMONT CO..........1032-1103
KAY-BEE..........1033
KEYSTONE..........1033
MAJESTIC..........1126
N. Y. MOTION PICTURE CO..........1079
SOLAX..........1098
THANHOUSER..........1022
UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURERS.....1024-25

LICENSED FILM MANUFACTURERS.
EDISON..........1039
ESSANAY..........1023
KALEM..........1029-42
KINEMACOLOR CO..........1089
KLEINE, GEO..........1037
LUBIN..........1040
MELIES..........1127
PATHE FRERES..........1038
SELIG..........1036
VITAGRAPH..........1041

LENS MANUFACTURERS.
GUNDLACH MANHATTAN CO..........1123

MISCELLANEOUS.
ADVANCE M. P. CO..........1088
AMERICAN CINEMATOGRAPH CO..........1096
ARMSTRONG. W. A..........1115
BUSHMAN, FRANCIS X..........1120
CANADIAN BIOSCOPE..........1095
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS..........1107
CLEVELAND, W. S..........1115
COMMERCIAL M. P. CO..........1098
CORCORAN, A. J..........1125
DERSHIMER GRELLE..........1121
DOWNTOWN AMUSEMENT CO..........1109
EASTMAN KODAK CO..........1122
FIREPROOF FILM CO..........1109
GARFIELD, H. G..........1093
J. F., 630 HALSEY ST..........1090
KEYSTONE PRESS..........1121
KRAUSE MFG. CO..........1096
LINICK, F., THEATRICAL AGENCY..........1121
McCRAY & McCRAY..........1088
MARION, LOUISE..........1122
MILO STUDIO, INC..........1125
MOTION PICTURE CAMERA CO..........1092
NATIONAL M. P. CO..........1124
NATIONAL TICKET CO..........1116
NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO..........1121
ONE DROP OIL CO..........1092
OZONE PURE AIRIFIER..........1101
PARISIAN MFG. & FILM RENOVATING CO..1090
PREDDY, W. G..........1121
RAW FILM SUPPLY CO..........1121
SARGENT, E. W..........1125
STEBBINS, C. M..........1092
THEATRE BROKERAGE EXCHANGE........1098
TRADE CIRCULAR CO..........1122
WOODWARD, L. A..........1115

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
AMERICAN PHOTOPLAYER SALES CO......1125
DEAGAN, J. C..........1111
SINN, C. E..........1096
WURLITZER, RUDOLPH..........1109
WELTE, M., & SON..........1101

PROJECTING MACHINES.
EDISON..........1039
MOTIOGRAPH..........1120
POWERS..........1128
SIMPLEX..........1077

OPERA CHAIR MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN SEATING CO..........1124
ANDREWS, A. H..........1124
BENNETT SEATING CO..........1124
HARDESTY..........1124
E. H. STAFFORD..........1124
STEEL FURNITURE CO..........1124
WISCONSIN SEATING CO..........1124

POSTERS & FRAMES.
A. B. C..........1114
AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO..........1118
EXHIBITORS' ADV. & SPECIALTY CO......1076
GENERAL FILM CO..........1119
McKENNA BROS. BRASS CO..........1090
NEWMAN..........1123
THEATER SPECIALTY MFG. CO..........1104

PROJECTION SCREENS.
AMERICAN THEATER CURTAIN CO.........1111
GENTER, J. H..........1111
MIRROR SCREEN CO..........1115
SIMPSON SOLAR SCREENS..........1125

SONG & ADVERTISING SLIDES.
ERKER BROS..........1121

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.
DECORATORS' SUPPLY CO..........1125

ONE, THREE and SIX SHEETS Now Ready

KALEM RELEASES

The Bribe (Monday Sept. 8th) The Monogrammed Cigarette (Saturday Sept. 13th)

The Fatal Legacy (TWO REELS Wednesday, Sept. 10th) TWO STYLES OF ONE SHEETS FOR THIS

LUBIN Releases The Hills of Strife (TWO REELS Thursday Sept. 11th)

Also ONE and THREE SHEETS for all LUBIN and BIOGRAPH Regular Releases

A. B. C. COMPANY -:- -:- Cleveland, Ohio

HELEN GARDNER

IN

WRITTEN AND DIRECTED BY CHARLES L. GASKILL

A SISTER TO CARMEN

An Original Story in Three Parts

COPYRIGHTED 1913 BY HELEN GARDNER

Produced at Miss Helen Gardner's Studio, at Tappan-On-The-Hudson, New York, U. S. A.

CHARLES L. FULLER DIST. CO.
SOLE SELLING AGENTS
472 FULTON STREET BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

SATAN or, THE DRAMA OF HUMANITY

is Ambrosio's $200,000 masterpiece in four parts 6800 feet long.

Part 1..............Milton's "Paradise Lost"
Part 2.................Kloptock's "Messiah"
Part 3...........The Discovery of Absinthe
Part 4......................Satan of To-day

A production that is a sure money getter because of its universal human interest. Get wise and book Satan now. A sure money maker. N. Y. State, N. and S. Dakota and Minnesota owned and controlled by

SUPREME FEATURE FILM CO. 64 EAST 14TH STREET NEW YORK

ARCO "B" Biograph Carbons
Made Expressly for Motion Picture Machines

SIEMENS & CO. manufacture but One Grade of Picture Carbons.

These are Imported and sold under our mark as

"Biograph Brand"

All 12" Carbons are double-pointed.

Packed only in Cartons, as shown.

L. E. FRORUP & CO.
232 GREENWICH ST. NEW YORK

Get Right With Your Patrons

F. J. REMBUSCH

Get a "MIRROR SCREEN"

It is finest PLATE GLASS.
It is a real Mirror.
It is in a class alone.
There is nothing like it.
Write today for our new snow-white finish
It puts "Perfect" in Perfection.

MIRROR SCREEN CO., Shelbyville, Ind.

SITUATION WANTED

By wide-awake, progressive business man, 35 years of age, with wide business experience. Last three and one-half years as General Manager of the Motiograph factory, with which company I severed my connection August 1st, 1913.

It is my wish to make a permanent connection with a company financially strong, where brains, initiative, ability and unremitting attention to duties will be appreciated and paid for. Have had more than ten years' experience as an executive, and am thoroughly conversant with salesmanship, office and factory details, credits, loans and discounts and advertising campaigns and catalog work. Kindly address, L. A. Woodward, P. O. Box 621, Chicago

---

THE BIGGEST AND BEST POPULAR-PRICE AGENCY

W. S. CLEVELAND, Mgr.

CLEVELAND—FIDELITY BOOKING SERVICE
THEATRES, PARKS, FAIRS, CLUBS, AIRDOMES, CABARETS
Knickerbocker Theatre Building 1402 Broadway, New York City

Features For Sale

We have a big list of Two, Three and Four Reel Features three to twelve months used, in good condition, which we will sell at very attractive prices. Address

W. A. ARMSTRONG
150 W. Park St. Portland, Oregon

MEN WANTED

To handle the record wrecker

BARBAROUS MEXICO

A three-reel feature that is meeting with tremendous success. Write in for full particulars about OUR NEW PLAN.

America's Feature Film Company
406-7-8 Schiller Bldg.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

The greatest lobby display ever built, all ready for the road.

No More State Rights For Sale

INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES

AMERICAN.

Aug. 21—The Golden Heart (Drama) 1000
Aug. 23—Flesh of His Flesh (Drama) 1000
Aug. 25—For the Flag (Drama) 1000
Aug. 28—From the Portals of Despair (Dr.) 1000
Aug. 30—Jack Meets His Waterloo (Drama) 1000
Sept. 1—While There's Life (Drama) 1000
Sept. 4—The Poisoned Chop (Drama) 1000
Sept. 6—Mysterious Eyes (Drama) 1000
Sept. 8—For the Crown (Drama) 1000
Sept. 11—Through the Neighbor's Window (Comedy) 1000
Sept. 13—Red Sweeney's Defeat (Drama) 1000

AMBROSIO.

June 28—The Exploits of the Randin Gang (2 Parts—Drama)
July 5—The Little Puppet Seller (2 Parts—Drama)
July 12—In the Hands of Conspirators (2 Parts Drama)
July 19—The Triumph of Strength (2 Parts—Drama)
July 26—The Missionary's Sister (2 Parts—Dr.)

BISON.

Aug. 16—Soldiers Three (2 Parts—Drama)
Aug. 19—The Iron Trail (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 26—The Mystery of Yellow Aster Mine (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 30—The Gratitude of Wanda (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 2—Pelleas and Melisande (3 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 6—The Love of Men (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 9—A Forest Romance (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 13—Wandering Folk (2 parts—Drama)

BRONCHO.

Aug. 13—The Quakeress (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 20—The Heritage of Eve (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 27—The Madcap (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 31—The Broken Thread (Drama)
Sept. 3—The Gambler's Pal (Drama)
Sept. 7—May and December (Drama)
Sept. 10—The Judge's Son (Drama)

CRYSTAL.

Aug. 26—His Aunt Emma (Comedy)
Aug. 26—That Crying Baby (Comedy)
Aug. 31—The Red Heart (Drama)
Sept. 2—Much Ado About Nothing (Comedy)
Sept. 2—Baldy Belmont and the Old Maid (Comedy)
Sept. 7—Lost in the Night (Drama)
Sept. 9—Pleasing Her Husband (Comedy)
Sept. 9—Some Luck (Comedy)
Sept. 14—The Hand of Providence (Drama)

DRAGON.

June 16—The Ghost of Sea View Manor (Drama) 1000
June 23—A Sister's Devotion (Drama) 1000
June 30—Our Future Heroes (Topical) 1000
July 7—The Ticket of Leave Man (2 parts—Drama)
July 14—The Organist (Drama)
July 21—Memories of Long Ago (Drama)
July 28—The Bride of the Sea (Drama)

ECLAIR.

Aug. 13—The Thirst for Gold (2 Parts—Drama)
Aug. 17—Her Tutors (Comedy)
Aug. 20—The Beaten Path (3 parts—Drama)
Aug. 24—Thirteen at Table (Comedy)
Aug. 24—Sea Worms (Scientific)
Aug. 27—The Better Father (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 31—The Runaway Uncle (Comedy)
Sept. 3—Steel (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 7—A Vegetarian's Dream (Comedy)
Sept. 7—The Habits of Field Spiders (Scientific)
Sept. 10—The Banker's Daughter (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 14—A Pawnee Romance (Drama)
Sept. 14—Hydrogen (Scientific)

FRONTIER.

July 26—The Toll of the Desert (Drama)
July 31—A Hasty Jilting (Comedy)
Aug. 2—A Brand from the Burning (Drama)
Aug. 7—Masquerading In Bear Canyon (Comedy-Drama)
Aug. 9—On the Ranger's Roll of Honor (Dr.)
Aug. 14—The Suffragette Tames the Bandit (Comedy)
Aug. 16—The Retribution of Ysobel (Drama)
Aug. 21—Sailing Under False Colors (Comedy)
Aug. 23—The Eyes of the God of Friendship (Drama)
Aug. 28—A Much Wanted Baby (Comedy)
Aug. 30—Maya—Just An Indian (Drama)
Sept. 4—Flirty Florence (Comedy)
Sept. 6—The Surgeon of Abajo (Drama)
Sept. 11—Dorothea and the Chief Razamataz (Comedy)
Sept. 13—On Forbidden Paths (Drama)

GAUMONT.

Aug. 13—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 75 (News)
Aug. 14—His Stomach and His Heart
Aug. 14—Magnets (Scientific)
Aug. 19—An Explorer's Tragedy (Drama)
Aug. 20—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 76 (News)
Aug. 21—A Tree Mendous Proposition (Com.)
Aug. 26—Saved by His Child (Drama)
Aug. 27—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 77 (News)
Aug. 23—Two Jilted Lovers (Comedy)
Sept. 2—The Fatal Bell (Drama)
Sept. 3—Gaumont's Weekly No. 79 (News)
Sept. 4—"Some" Fireman (Comedy)

GEM.

July 21—The Life Savers (Comedy-Drama)
July 28—Stars In My Crown (Drama)
Aug. 4—Bob's Baby (Comedy)
Aug. 11—A New Way to Win a Girl (Comedy)
Aug. 18—The Would-be Detective (Comedy)
Aug. 16—The Elks at Rochester (Topical)
Aug. 25—What Girls Will Do (Comedy)
Sept. 1—A tale of a Fish (Comedy)
Sept. 8—The Gold Mesh Bag (Comedy)

GREAT NORTHERN.

Aug. 2—A Shot in the Dark (Drama)
Aug. 9—The Five Copies (Comedy)
Aug. 16—A Mistaken Identity
Aug. 23—The Hypnotist (Comedy)
Aug. 23—From the South of Sweden (Travel)
Aug. 30—Faded Beauties (Comedy)
Sept. 6—A Girl Graduate (Comedy)

GREAT NORTHERN (Universal).

June 28—The Flying Circus (3 parts, Drama)
July 26—The Governor's Daughter (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 23—The Great Circus Catastrophe (3 parts—Drama)

IMP.

Aug. 23—Pen Talks by Hy Mayer (Novelty)
Aug. 25—Uncle Tom's Cabin (3 parts—Drama)
Aug. 28—His Mother's Song (Drama)
Aug. 30—Binks Advertises for a Wife (Com.)
Aug. 30—Hy Mayer, His Merry Pen (Novelty)
Sept. 1—The Trail of the Serpent (Drama)
Sept. 4—The Pursuit of Jane (Comedy-Drama)
Sept. 6—Binks, the Hawkshaw (Comedy)
Sept. 6—Humors of Summer, by Hy Mayer (Novelty)
Sept. 8—Robespierre (3 parts—Drama)
Sept. 11—The Shells (Drama)
Sept. 13—Binks Elevates the Stage (Comedy)
Sept. 13—Hy Mayer Cartoons (Novelty)

KAY-BEE.

Aug. 1—Banzai (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 8—The House of Bondage (3 Parts—Dr.)
Aug. 15—The Flame in the Ashes (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 22—An Orphan of War (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 29—The Green Shadow (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 5—The Ironmaster (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 12—The Waif (Drama)

KEYSTONE.

Aug. 11—The Riot (Comedy)
Aug. 14—A Chip of the Old Block (Comedy).
Aug. 18—(No Release this date).
Aug. 21—The Firebugs (Comedy)
Aug. 25—Baby Day (Comedy)
Aug. 28—Mabel's New Hero (Comedy)
Sept. 1—Fatty's Day Off (Comedy)
Sept. 1—Los Angeles Harbor, Cal. (Travel)

LUX.

Aug. 8—The Triumph of Love (Drama) 535
Aug. 9—Should Women Work (Comedy) 390
Aug. 15—The Poisoned Dagger (Drama)
Aug. 22—Over the Garden Wall (Comedy)
Aug. 22—The Registered Letter (Comedy)
Aug. 29—His Chance (Drama) 950
Sept. 5—A Timely Reminder (Drama) 910

MAJESTIC.

Aug. 16—A Horse Unfed
Aug. 17—House Hunting (Drama)
Aug. 19—The Other Side of the Fence (Com.)
Aug. 23—Bashful Bachelor Bill (Com.-Dr.)
Aug. 24—The Lady Killer (Comedy)
Aug. 26—One Round O'Brien's Flirtation (Com.)
Aug. 30—(Title Not Reported).
Aug. 31—A Trade Secret (Drama)
Sept. 2—A Perilous Ride (Drama)
Sept. 2—The Great Santa Monica Road Race (Topical)
Sept. 6—The Turkish Bath (Comedy)

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

July 16—Mutual Weekly, No. 29 (News)
July 23—Mutual Weekly, No. 30 (News)
July 30—Mutual Weekly, No. 31 (News)
Aug. 6—Mutual Weekly, No. 32 (News)
Aug. 13—Mutual Weekly, No. 33 (News)

MUTUAL EDUCATIONAL.

July 17—Funnicus at Luna Park (Comedy)
July 17—Echinoderms (The Starfish) (Zoology)
July 24—Does Goatran Snore? (Comedy)
July 24—Through Turkey: the Black Sea (Travel)
July 31—Funnicus Wins the Race (Comedy)
July 31—Microscopic Animalculae Found in Stagnant Water (Scientific)

NESTOR.

Aug. 22—When Cupid Won (Comedy)
Aug. 25—Weighed in the Balance (Drama)
Aug. 27—The Renunciation (Drama)
Aug. 29—Cupid's Bad Aim (Comedy)
Aug. 29—Two Hearts and a Thief (Comedy)
Sept. 1—The Oath of Conchita (2 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 3—Gold and Water (Drama)
Sept. 5—Won by a Skirt (Comedy)
Sept. 8—Poisoned Waters (Drama)
Sept. 10—Algy Forfeits His Claim (Comedy)
Sept. 10—Views of Stockholm (Scenic)
Sept. 12—The Girl Ranchers (Comedy)

POWERS.

Aug. 20—The Little Skipper (Drama)
Aug. 22—The Sea Urchin (Drama)
Aug. 27—Everybody's Wearing Them (Com.)
Aug. 29—The Folly of It All (Drama)
Sept. 3—The Surrender (Comedy-Drama)
Sept. 5—The Reincarnation of a Soul (Drama)
Sept. 10—Powers (Drama)
Sept. 12—In the Cycle of Life (Drama)

PILOT.

July 24—The Sure Tip (Comedy) [illegible]
July 24—The Bug Professor (Comedy) [illegible]
July 31—Loyal Hearts (Drama) 1000
Aug. 7—The Green-Eyed Monster (Com.-Dr.) 1000
Aug. 14—(Title Not Reported.)
Aug. 21—(Title Not Reported).
Aug. 28—Getting the Evidence (Drama)

RAMO.

July 9—Man and Woman (2 parts Drama)
July 16—A Dog-Gone Baron (Comedy)
July 23—The Silent House (Drama)

RELIANCE.

Aug. 23—Success (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 25—The Girl Spy's Atonement (Drama)
Aug. 27—Peg of the Polly P (Comedy-Drama)
Aug. 30—The Social Secretary (Drama)
Sept. 1—Feeney's Social Experiment (Comedy).
Sept. 3—(No Release This Date).
Sept. 6—The Glow Worm (3 parts—Drama)

REX.

Aug. 21—The Harvest of Flame (2 parts—Dr.).
Aug. 24—Just in Time (Drama)
Aug. 28—A Woman's Stratagem (Drama)
Aug. 31—The Call (Drama)
Sept. 4—The Evil Power (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 7—The Light Woman (Drama)
Sept. 11—The Diamond Makers (2 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 14—The Fight Against Evil (Drama)

SOLAX.

Aug. 15—A Drop of Blood (Drama)
Aug. 20—(No Release this date).
Aug. 22—The Smuggler's Child (2 parts—Dr.)
Aug. 27—A Terrible Night (Comedy)
Aug. 29—A Child's Institution (Drama)
Sept. 3—Men and Muslin (Comedy)
Sept. 5—Retribution (Drama)
Sept. 10—Dooley and His Dog (Comedy)
Sept. 12—Gratitude (Drama)

THANHOUSER.

Aug. 22—The Medium's Nemesis (Drama)
Aug. 24—An Unromantic Maiden (Comedy-Drama)
Aug. 26—The Ward of the King (2 parts—Dr.)
Aug. 29—A Spartan Father (Drama)
Aug. 31—Frazzled Finance (Comedy-Drama)
Sept. 2—The Veteran Police Horse (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 5—(No Release This Date).
Sept. 7—His Last Bet (Comedy)
Sept. 9—Taming Their Grandchildren
Sept. 12—The Message to Headquarters (Drama)

VICTOR.

Aug. 8—Nature's Vengeance (Drama)
Aug. 15—The Heart of a Jewess (2 Parts-Dr.)
Aug. 22—The Ghost (Drama) 1000
Aug. 29—His Vacation (Comedy-Drama)
Sept. 5—The Lost Copperhead (Comedy)
Sept. 12—A Bride from the Sea (2 parts—Dr.)

ROLL TICKETS

PRICES
Five Thousand - - $1.25
Ten Thousand - - $2.50
Twenty Thousand - - $4.50
Twenty-five Thousand - $5.50
Fifty Thousand - - $6.50
One Hundred Thousand - $8.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000, $2.50. Stock Tickets, 6c per 1,000. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
SHAMOKIN, PA.

This Trade Mark The Guarantee of Excellence on Goods Electrical.

Better Pictures At Less Cost

The use of a G-E Rectifier to furnish direct current for a projector not only greatly improves the quality of the pictures, but in addition it materially reduces the current consumption.

Even with the best economizers, the alternating current lamp is so much less efficient for projecting pictures than the direct current lamp, that the use of the rectifier will make a substantial saving in the cost of electricity.

When no economizer is used, to produce the same amount of light the alternating current lamp requires four times as much current as the direct current lamp and rectifier.

Write our nearest office for Booklet B-3107 giving results of tests of comparative current consumption of alternating current lamps with and without economizers, direct current lamp with rheostats and direct current lamp with a rectifier taking current from an alternating current circuit.

General Electric Company

Largest Electrical Manufacturer in the World

General Office: Schenectady, N. Y.

ADDRESS NEAREST OFFICE

Atlanta, Ga.
Baltimore, Md.
Birmingham, Ala.
Boise, Idaho
Boston, Mass.
Buffalo, N. Y.
Butte, Mont.
Charleston, W. Va.
Charlotte, N. O.
Chattanooga, Tenn.
Chicago, Ill.
Cincinnati, Ohio
Cleveland, Ohio
Columbus, Ohio
Davenport, Iowa
Dayton, Ohio
Denver, Colo.
Detroit, Mich.
(Office of Agent)
Elmira, N. Y.
Erie, Pa.
Indianapolis, Ind.
Jacksonville, Fla.
Joplin, Mo.
Kansas City, Mo.
Keokuk, Iowa
Knoxville, Tenn.
Los Angeles, Cal.
Louisville, Ky.
Mattoon, Ill.
Memphis, Tenn.
Milwaukee, Wis.
Minneapolis, Minn.
Nashville, Tenn.
New Haven, Conn.
New Orleans, La.
New York, N. Y.
Omaha, Neb.
Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Portland, Ore.
Providence, R. I.
Richmond, Va.
Rochester, N. Y.
Salt Lake City, Utah
San Francisco, Cal.
St. Louis, Mo.
Schenectady, N. Y.
Seattle, Wash.
Spokane, Wash.
Springfield, Mass.
Syracuse, N. Y.
Toledo, Ohio
Washington, D. C.
Youngstown, Ohio

For Texas and Oklahoma business refer to Southwest General Electric Co. (formerly Hobson Electric Co.)—Dallas, El Paso, Houston and Oklahoma City. For Canadian business refer to Canadian General Electric Co., Lt'd, Toronto, Ont. (4042)

The Trade Mark of the Largest Electrical Manufacturer in The World.

LICENSED RELEASE DATES

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Edison, Kalem, Lubin, Patheplay, Selig, Vitagraph (Special).

Tuesday—Edison, Essanay, Patheplay, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

Wednesday—Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Patheplay, Vitagraph (Special).

Thursday — Biograph, Essanay, Lubin, Melies, Patheplay, Selig, Vitagraph.

Friday—Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Patheplay, Lubin, Vitagraph (Special).

Saturday—Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Patheplay, Vitagraph (Special).

BIOGRAPH.

Aug. 16—An Indian's Loyalty (Drama)........
Aug. 18—The Suffragette Minstrels (Comedy)..
Aug. 18—Father's Chicken Dinner (Comedy)..
Aug. 21—The Work Habit (Comedy-Drama)....
Aug. 23—Two Men of the Desert (Drama)....
Aug. 25—The Crook and the Girl (Drama).....
Aug. 28—Objections Overruled (Comedy)........
Aug. 28—Black and White (Comedy)..........
Aug. 30—The Adopted Brother (Drama)........
Sept. 1—Among Club Fellows (Comedy)......
Sept. 1—Edwin's Badge of Honor (Comedy)..
Sept. 4—A Woman in the Ultimate (Drama)..
Sept. 6—The Strong Man's Burden (Drama)..
Sept. 8—A Modest Hero (Drama).............
Sept. 11—Baby Indisposed (Comedy)...........
Sept. 11—The Lady in Black (Comedy)........
Sept. 13—An Unjust Suspicion (Drama).......

EDISON.

Aug. 16—The Pied Piper of Hamelin (Dr.)....1000
Aug. 18—Starved Out (Comedy)...............1000
Aug. 19—Flood Tide (Drama).................1000
Aug. 20—First Aid to the Injured by the Police Force of Berkeley, Cal. (Top.). 425
Aug. 20—Bobbie's Long Trousers (Comedy).... 575
Aug. 22—The Mystery of West Sedgwick (Special—2 parts—Drama).............2000
Aug. 23—A Proposal from the Spanish Don (Being the second story of 'Who Will Marry Mary"—Drama)......1000
Aug. 25—A Mutual Understanding (Drama)....1000
Aug. 26—A Mistake in Judgment (Com.-Dr.)...1000
Aug. 27—Quaint Spots in Cairo, Egypt (Travel) 400
Aug. 27—Zeb's Musical Career (Comedy)...... 600
Aug. 29—Joyce of the North Woods (Special—2 parts—Drama)..................2000
Aug. 30—The Ghost of Granleigh (Drama)....1000
Sept. 1—The Younger Regeneration (Comedy)..1000
Sept. 2—The Grecian Vase (Phantasy)........1000
Sept. 3—A Series of Tallulah Falls (Scenic).. 225
Sept. 3—The Girl, the Clown and the Donkey (Comedy).......................... 775
Sept. 5—The Awakening of the Man (Special—2 parts—Drama) 1000
Sept. 6—Slander's Tongue (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 8—Keepers of the Flock (Drama)......1000
Sept. 9—A Light on Troubled Waters (Drama).1000
Sept. 10—The Desperate Condition of Mr. Boggs (Comedy)..........................1000
Sept. 12—Caste (Special—2 parts—Drama)....2000
Sept. 13—The Green Eye of the Yellow God (Drama)..........................1000

ESSANAY.

Aug. 12—The Edge of Things (Drama)........1000
Aug. 13—Good Night, Nurse (Comedy)........
Aug. 13—Up Lookout Mountain on the Electric Incline (Scenic) ....
Aug. 14—The World Above (Drama)..........1000
Aug. 15—Alkali Ike's Gal (Special—2 Parts—Comedy) 2000
Aug. 16—The Man in the Cabin (Drama)......1000
Aug. 19—The Whip Hand (Drama)...........1000
Aug. 20—The Accidental Bandit (Comedy)....
Aug. 20—Making Hay with Modern Machinery (Industrial)....................
Aug. 21—The Sheriff of Cochise (Drama)....1000
Aug. 22—The Power of Conscience (Special—2 parts—Drama)...................2000
Aug. 23—Broncho Billy's Mistake (Drama)..1000
Aug. 26—The Love Theft (Drama)............1000
Aug. 27—His Athletic Wife (Comedy).........
Aug. 27—What Cupid Did (Comedy)..........
Aug. 28—The Episode at Cloudy Canyon (Dr.)..1000
Aug. 29—Broken Threads United (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Aug. 30—A Western Sister's Devotion (Drama)1000
Sept. 2—Stone the Woman (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 3—Mr. Dippy Dipped (Comedy).........1000
Sept. 4—Hard Luck Bill (Comedy)...........1000
Sept. 5—While the Starlight Travels (Special—2 parts—Drama)...................2000
Sept. 6—Broncho Billy's Conscience (Drama)..1000
Sept. 9—Sunlight (Drama)....................1000
Sept. 10—The Treater's Treat (Comedy).......1000
Sept. 11—Bonnie of the Hills (Drama)........1000
Sept. 12—Grist to the Mill (Special—2 parts—Drama)............................2000
Sept. 13—Broncho Billy Reforms (Drama)......1000

KALEM.

Aug. 15—The Millionaire and the Goose (Com.)
Aug. 15—The Amateur Burglar (Comedy)......
Aug. 16—The Escape (Drama)................1000
Aug. 18—The Substitute Engineer (Drama)..1000
Aug. 20—Breaking Into the Big League (Special—2 parts—Drama)............2000
Aug. 22—Fool Luck (Comedy)................
Aug. 22—Deceiving Uncle Asa (Comedy)......
Aug. 23—The Smuggler's Last Deal (Drama).
Aug. 25—The Blind Basket Weaver (Drama)..1000
Aug. 27—The Invaders (Special—2 parts—Dr.)2000
Aug. 29—The Captivating Widow (Comedy)...
Aug. 29—Mike, the Timid Cop (Comedy)......
Aug. 30—A Railroad Conspiracy (Drama)......1000
Sept. 1—The Christian (Drama)..............1000
Sept. 3—The Sacrifice at the Spillway (Special—2 parts—Drama)................2000
Sept. 5—Boggs' Predicament (Comedy).......
Sept. 5—Children of the Tenements (Topical).
Sept. 6—The Hand of Destiny (Drama)......1000
Sept. 8—The Bribe (Drama).................1000
Sept. 10—The Fatal Legacy (Special—2 parts—Drama)..........................2000
Sept. 12—Wanted—A Plumber (Comedy).......
Sept. 12—Too Many Cops (Comedy)..........
Sept. 13—The Monogrammed Cigarette (Drama)1000

GEORGE KLEINE.

July 11—The Statue of Fright (Eclipse Spec.—2 parts—Drama ....
July 25—Honor Thy Father (Cines special—2 parts Drama).....................
Aug. 8—By Unseen Hands (Special—2 parts—Drama—Cines) ....
Aug. 12—The Mong-Fu-Tong (Eclipse—Special—2 Parts—Comedy-Drama)..........
Aug. 19—The Clown's Revenge (Eclipse—Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Aug. 26—The Human Bridge (Cines Special—2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 2—The Sign of the Black Lily (Cines—2 parts—Drama—Special) ....
Sept. 9—The Mysterious Man (Cines—2 parts—Drama—Special).................
Sept. 16—High Treason (Cines—Special 2 parts—Drama).........................

LUBIN.

Aug. 16—Surprise for Four (Comedy)........ 600
Aug. 18—Mary's Temptation (Drama).........1000
Aug. 19—Black Beauty (Drama)..............1000
Aug. 21—The Burning Rivet (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Aug. 22—The Rag Bag (Comedy) 400
Aug. 22—Smashing Time (Comedy)........... 600
Aug. 23—The Tenderfoot Hero (Drama)......1000
Aug. 25—On the Dumb Waiter (Comedy)......
Aug. 25—Her Wooden Leg (Comedy)..........
Aug. 26—The Reformed Outlaw (Drama).......1000
Aug. 28—The Gangster (Special—2 parts—Dr.)1000
Aug. 29—His Conscience (Drama).............1000
Aug. 30—The Last Crooked Deal (Drama)......1000
Sept. 1—A Mountain Mother (Drama).........1000
Sept. 2—The Engaging Kid (Comedy).........
Sept. 2—Trimming a Boob (Comedy)..........
Sept. 4—The Road to the Dawn (Special—2 parts—Drama).........................2000
Sept. 5—In the Southland (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 6—In the Toils (Drama)...............1000
Sept. 8—Seeds of Wealth (Drama)............1000
Sept. 9—Playing With Fire (Drama)..........1000
Sept. 11—The Hills of Strife (Special—2 parts—Drama).........................2000
Sept. 12—Panama Hat Industry (Industrial)... 400
Sept. 12—An Exclusive Pattern (Comedy)...... 600
Sept. 13—The Medal of Honor (Drama)........1000

MELIES.

July 17—The Poisoned Darts (Drama).........
July 17—A Chinese Funeral (Typical).........
July 24—Javanese Dancers (Manners and Customs)...............................1000
July 31—It Happened in Java (Comedy-Drama) 1000
Aug. 7—Snapshots of Java (Scenic).........1000
Aug. 14—The Robber of Angkor (Drama).....1000
Aug. 21—In the Land of Fire (Drama)........1000
Aug. 28—Lost in Cambodia (Comedy)..........1000
Sept. 4—A Day at Singapore (Scenic)..........1000

PATHEPLAY.

Aug. 8—Genoa, Principal Port of Italy (Travel) ....
Aug. 8—Mount St. Michel (Architecture).....
Aug. 9—A Woman's Way (Drama)...........
Aug. 11—Pathe's Weekly, No. 40 (News)......
Aug. 12—Every Double Causes Trouble (Com.)
Aug. 13—The Erring Brother (Drama).........
Aug. 14—Pathe's Weekly, No. 41 (News)......
Aug. 14—The House Divided (Drama)..........
Aug. 15—Cosmopolitan Life in Cairo, Egypt (Manners and Customs)............
Aug. 15—On the Lakes of Bayrisch, Bavaria (Travel) ....
Aug. 15—Picturesque Jura, France (Travel)...
Aug. 16—The Turning Point (Drama)..........
Aug. 18—Pathe's Weekly No. 42 (News).....
Aug. 19—Napoleon Whiffles, Esq. (Comedy)...
Aug. 20—Strange Traits of Serpents (Zoology).
Aug. 20—Auto Polo—The New Thriller (Sports)
Aug. 21—Pathe's Weekly No. 43 (News)......
Aug. 21—Stung! (Comedy) ....
Aug. 22—The Lizard (Zoology)................
Aug. 22—A Visit to the Ruins of Pompeii (Travel) ....
Aug. 23—The Mexican Gambler (Drama)......
Aug. 25—Pathe's Weekly, No. 44 (News)......
Aug. 26—The Hostage (Drama)...............
Aug. 27—$1,000 Reward (Comedy)............
Aug. 28—The Cook's Revenge (Comedy).......
Aug. 28—Pathe's Weekly, No. 45 (News)......
Aug. 29—A Day With a Hindoo Family (Manners and Customs)................
Aug. 29—The Road to Morey, France (Travel)..
Aug. 29—In the Valley of the Bourne, France (Scenic)............................
Aug. 30—The Blind Girl of Castle Guille (Dr.)
Sept. 1—Pathe's Weekly, No. 46 (News)......
Sept. 2—Whiffles Decides to be Boss (Comedy)
Sept. 2—In the Caucasian Mountains (Travel)
Sept. 3—The Climax (Drama)................
Sept. 4—Pathe's Weekly, No. 47 (News).....
Sept. 4—Fickle Fortune's Favor (Comedy)....
Sept. 4—With the Natives of New Zealand (Manners and Customs)............
Sept. 5—The Otter (Zoology)................
Sept. 5—On the Abruzzi (Travel)............
Sept. 6—The Price of Jealousy (Drama)......
Sept. 8—Pathe's Weekly, No. 48 (News)......
Sept. 9—Slenfoot's Seventh Suicide (Comedy)..
Sept. 10—Across the Chasm (Drama)..........
Sept. 11—Pathe's Weekly, No. 49 (News)......
Sept. 11—The Accidental Shot (Drama)........
Sept. 12—Young Hearts and Old (Drama).....
Sept. 13—A Jungle Flirtation (Comedy).......
Sept. 13—Tahiti, the Picturesque (Travel).....

SELIG.

Aug. 14—An Apache's Gratitude (Drama)......1000
Aug. 15—Brown's New Monetary Standard (Comedy) ....
Aug. 15—Moro Pastimes (Educational).........
Aug. 18—The Child of the Sea (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Aug. 19—Tobins Turns the Tables (Comedy-Drama) 1000
Aug. 20—The Ten Thousand Dollar Toe (Com.)
Aug. 20—Scenes in Moroland (Scenic)..........
Aug. 21—Fate Fashions a Letter (Drama)....1000
Aug. 20—The Good Indian (Drama)...........1000
Aug. 25—The Water Rat (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Aug. 26—The Adventures of a Watch (Drama)
Aug. 26—They Were on their Honeymoon (Com.)
Aug. 27—How Betty Made Good (Drama)......1000
Aug. 28—The Man in the Street (Drama)......1000
Aug. 29—The Price of the Free (Drama)......1000
Sept. 1—The Jeweled Slippers (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Sept. 2—The Lonely Heart (Drama)..........1000
Sept. 3—The Way of Life (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 4—Howlin' Jones (Comedy).............
Sept. 5—Man of the Woods (Drama)..........1000
Sept. 8—The Wheels of Fate (Special—2 parts——Drama)...........................2000
Sept. 9—The Rancher's Failing (Drama).....1000
Sept. 10—Around Battle Tree (Drama).........1000
Sept. 11—Two Too Many (Comedy)............1000
Sept. 12—Her Way (Drama)..................1000

VITAGRAPH.

Aug. 12—Bingle's Nightmare (Comedy).......
Aug. 12—The Joys of a Jealous Wife (Com.)..
Aug. 13—The Flirt (Drama)...................1000
Aug. 14—Keeping Husbands Home (Comedy)..1000
Aug. 15—The Lady and the Glove (Drama)...1000
Aug. 16—The Line-Up (Special—2 Parts—Dr.).2000
Aug. 18—Slim Driscoll, Samaritan (Drama)...1000
Aug. 19—Those Troublesome Tresses (Com.)..1000
Aug. 20—Better Days (Drama)................
Aug. 20—In and About Calcutta (Travel).....
Aug. 21—A Maid of Mandalay (Drama)....1000
Aug. 22—Playing the Pipers (Drama)........1000
Aug. 23—The Feudists (Special—2 parts—Comedy) 2000
Aug. 25—When Glasses Are Not Glasses (Com.)1000
Aug. 26—A Doll for the Baby (Drama)........1000
Aug. 27—Which Way Did He Go? (Comedy)...1000
Aug. 28—He Fell In Love With His Mother-in-Law (Comedy-Drama).............
Aug. 28—Quaint Singapore (Travel)..........
Aug. 29—The Clown and the Prima Donna (Dr.)1000
Aug. 30—The Call (Special—2 parts—Drama)..2000
Sept. 1—The Passing of Joe Mary (Drama)..1000
Sept. 2—His Lordship—Billy Smoke (Comedy).1000
Sept. 3—The Kiss of Retribution (Drama)....1000
Sept. 4—The Lonely Princess (Drama).......
Sept. 5—The Baby Elephant (Educational)....
Sept. 5—Pickwick (Comedy)..................
Sept. 6—When Women Go on the Warpath (Special—2 parts—Comedy).......2000
Sept. 8—Cupid Versus Women's Rights (Comedy-Drama)..........................
Sept. 9—Old Moddington's Daughters (Comedy-Drama).............................1000
Sept. 10—Fortune's Turn (Drama).............1000
Sept. 11—The Tiger (Drama)..................1000
Sept. 12—Sauce for the Goose (Comedy).......1000
Sept. 13—The Lost Millionaire (Special—2 parts——Drama)...........................2000

SEND For a set of six of the handsomest photogravures of licensed players, size 7 x 9½, including MARY FULLER, MARC MacDERMOTT, ORMI HAWLEY, ARTHUR JOHNSON and others.

50c. AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO., First National Bank Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

MR. EXHIBITOR, LOOK, READ!!

Beautiful photographs of the leading actors and actresses playing in licensed films. Finished in soft gray. Size 22x28.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN
ESSANAY

Price, 40c each
Postage Prepaid

Crane Wilbur
Maurice Costello
Francis X. Bushman
Gilbert M. Anderson
Marc MacDermott
Arthur Johnson
Mary Fuller
Ormi Hawley
Katherine Williams
Gwendoline Pates
Octavia Handworth
Lillian Walker

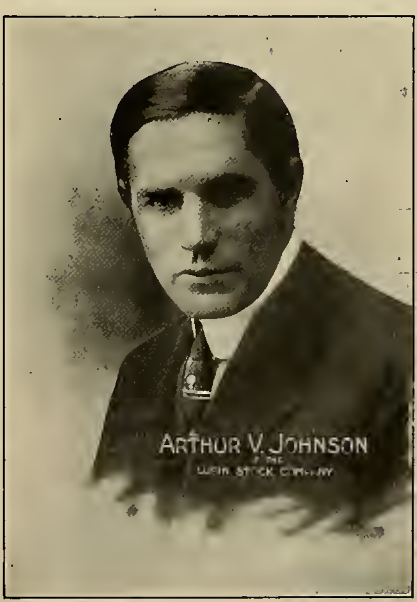
LILLIAN WALKER
VITAGRAPH

ALL
MASTERPIECES
OF
PHOTOGRAPHY

MARY FULLER

A smaller size, 11 x 14 in same style and finish as above of Harry Myers, Lottie Briscoe, John Bunny, Guy Coombs, Ruth Roland, Beverly Bayne, Edith Storey, Earle Williams, Lillian Wiggins. Helen and Dolores Costello, Paul Panzer.

Price, 20c each
Postage Prepaid



GENERAL FILM COMPANY, Poster Department

(Formerly Photoplay Advertising & Specialty Co.)

71 W. 23rd Street and 440 Fourth Avenue, New York; 121 Fourth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.; 1022 Superior Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio; 7th and Walnut Streets, Cincinnati, Ohio; Equity Bldg., Detroit, Mich.; 218 Commercial Street, Boston, Mass.; 122 Pearl Street, Buffalo, N. Y.; 737 Broadway, Albany, N. Y.

MEN WANTED

To Handle
BARBAROUS MEXICO
on our new plan

America's Feature Film Company
406-7-8 Schiller Bldg.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

NO MORE STATE RIGHTS FOR SALE

SIXTEEN Different Makes!

INDEPENDENT FILMS

SIXTEEN Different Makes!

WE HAVE THE FOLLOWING BRANDS OF FILM

KAY-BEE BRONCHO KEYSTONE RELIANCE
MAJESTIC THANHOUSER AMERICAN

Besides These, We Purchase Each Week the Following Complete Releases

GAUMONT AMBROSIO GREAT NORTHERN THANHOUSER
DRAGON SOLAX AMEX LUX ITALA RAMO PILOT

Also Two Sets Features. We Ship These Films to Any Territory
Within Five Hundred Miles of St. Louis. We Solicit Your Business

SWANSON-CRAWFORD FILM CO., St. Louis, Mo.

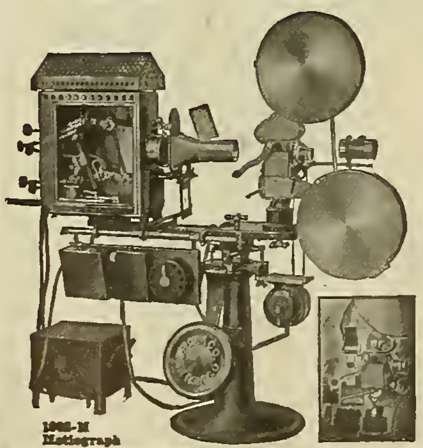
FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN

Watch for Coming Releases of

ESSANAY Ithaca Co.

Theo. W. Wharton, Managing Director

THE APPROVED MOTIOGRAPH



The Most Substantial Moving Picture Machine Made

SCIENTIFICALLY DESIGNED EVERLASTING

This Means To YOU:

1. MUCH BRIGHTER PICTURES.
2. A FLICKERLESS PICTURE AND AS STEADY AS A ROCK.
3. NO TRIPS TO THE REPAIR SHOP.
4. READY AT ALL TIMES TO PRODUCE THE GOODS.
5. AN EVERLASTING FEELING BY YOUR AUDIENCE TO SEE THE MOTIOGRAPH PROJECTION.
6. YOUR SEATS ARE ALWAYS FILLED.
7. A HANDSOME YEARLY PROFIT.
8. TO USE THE MOTIOGRAPH.

MADE ONLY BY

The Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company
Main Office and Factory: 564 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

EASTERN OFFICE:
21 E. 14th Street, New York, N. Y.

WESTERN OFFICE:
833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

Booking High-Class Singers and Entertainers

I specialize in securing the right talent suitable for motion picture theaters.

FRED LINICK'S THEATRICAL AGENCY

Hobbs Bldg., 68 W. Washington Street - - - Chicago, Ill.
Suite 45-46 Tel. Randolph 6010

$1.75 PER 1000

IN LOTS OF 2000 ASSORTED
HIGHEST QUALITY

Post Cards
of ASSOCIATION, UNIVERSAL and MUTUAL PLAYERS

The Keystone Press
Distributors
12 E. 15th St., N. Y.

$1.75 PER 1000

IN LOTS OF 2000 ASSORTED
SEND FOR SAMPLES

"Agfa"

MOTION PICTURE FILM

Used by Makers of Quality Films

WRITE FOR PRICES

Sole American Agents

Raw Film Supply Company

15 East 26th Street New York, N. Y.

THE INSPECTOR OF POLICE

A heart gripping story in three reels
A THRILLER
Now Booking Wisconsin and Chicago

EXCLUSIVE FILM COMPANY

167 W. Washington Street Chicago, Ill.

THE INDUCTOR-COMPENSATOR

An Alternating Current Transformer for Motion Picture Arc Lamps

Every claim made for superior merit, high efficiency and current saving qualities has been proven by over five years' constant service. Nearly 3,000 INDUCTOR COMPENSATORS now in use.

PRICE:
110 Volts, 60 Cycles....................$50.00
220 Volts, 60 Cycles.................... 50.00

Prices for special transformers to control other voltages and cycles quoted on application. Order from your exchange or from

BELL & HOWELL COMPANY, Designers and Manufacturers
217 West Illinois Street :: :: :: :: Chicago, Illinois

PENNSYLVANIA EXHIBITORS

Every one concedes that
Kalem's Biblical Masterpiece, in 5 reels,

"From the Manger to the Cross"

IS THE GREATEST FEATURE AND THE GREATEST MONEY GETTER

Ever Produced,

For bookings write or wire

Dershimer and Grelle, OWNERS PENNA. STATE RIGHTS
406 Cameraphone Bldg. PITTSBURGH, PA.

The EXHIBITOR SAYS

"ERKER'S FOR EVERYTHING"
ERKER'S

Complete Equipment
for The MOTION PICTURE THEATRE
Send for Complete Catalogue
608 OLIVE ST ERKER'S ST. LOUIS, MO.

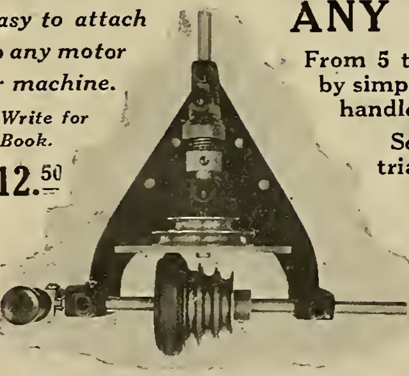
Easy to attach to any motor or machine.

Write for Book.

$12.50



ANY SPEED

From 5 to 30 minutes by simply moving the handle.

Sent on week's trial.

$12.50

W. G. Preddey
669 HAIGHT ST.,
San Francisco,
California

EXHIBITORS' HEADQUARTERS

CALEHUFF SUPPLY COMPANY
(Incorporated)
50 North Eighth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Jobbers in Edison, Powers and Motiograph Machines and Parts

Machines Repaired by Expert Mechanics. Genuine Parts Only Used

SPECIALTIES

Mirror Screens
Chairs
Tickets
Pianos
Bio & Electra Carbons
Special Gundlach Lenses
Condensers
Edison Transformers
Ft. Wayne Compensarcs
Asbestos State Booths
Asbestos Wire
Switches
Plugs
Spotlights
Gas Making Outfits
Limes
Film-Cement
Branch General Disinfectant Co.
Scenery, Stage Effects
Theaters Bought, Sold, Rented

CHAS. A. CALEHUFF, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

EYE COMFORT LIGHTING System

So necessary to the success of every Motion Picture Theatre that we engineer 60 Theatres a month.

This is a free service to Motion Picture Theatre Managers.

Distance Screen to Rear of Auditorium........................
Ceiling Height........................
Width of House........................
Name........................

NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO.

Chicago
229 W. Jackson Blvd.

New York
505 Fifth Ave.

BARGAIN SALE OF FEATURES

These films, in splendid condition, are offered for sale subject to being unsold on receipt of inquiry. Send cash with order and avoid disappointment. Lithographs for every feature.

Spectre of the Sea	2250	Messter	$120
The Gypsy Girl	2000	Eiko	70
Hypnotism, or Dark Power	3200	Savoia	150
Vengeance of Edgar Poe	1800	Lux	75
For Her Love	3200	Savoia	80
Sent Adrift	3200	Deutche Biog.	120
Red Rose of the Apache	2750	Pasquali	75
Frontier Child	2000	K-B	60
Child of War	2000	Broncho	100
Altar of Death	2000	K-B	100
The Fire Bug	3000	Dausk	100
Life's Game of Dice	2800	Messter	60
The Diamond Miniature	1950	Pathe	60
Kings of the Forest	1800	Selig	80
Great Mine Disaster	2000	Eclair	50

2,000 reels, first-class films, on commercial quality, all complete from title to tail piece, sprockets unimpaired.

Everything in stock from a camera to a bottle of cement.

G. W. BRADENBURGH

231-33 N. 8th St. Phila., Pa.

PATRIOTIC NOVELTY
FOR
MOVING PICTURE THEATRES

LOUISE M. MARION'S

NEW POEMS

With Beautiful Colored Illustrations of the

CIVIL WAR

are crowding the theaters wherever she presents them.

LARGE, ATTRACTIVE BANNERS furnished for this work. Terms reasonable. Miss Marion is booking in New York State until Sept. 1st.

ADDRESS

LOUISE M. MARION

466 W. 23rd St., New York City

High-Class Vaudeville Sketch

"MOTHER AND SON"

ANNOUNCEMENT

We are now printing the word "Eastman" on the margin of all our Cine film. We want the exhibitor to know when he is and when he is not getting Eastman film. It will be to his advantage—and ours.

Of course it will take time for such identifiable films to reach the consumer—so don't expect results at once—but it's a step in the right direction—for your interests and ours.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.

BIO
CARBONS
IN ALL THE WORLD
NONE OTHER SO GOOD
MORE USED EVERY DAY
CARBONS

BIO CARBONS

CHARLES L. KIEWERT CO.

NEW YORK
165 Greenwich Street

MILWAUKEE
114 Huron Street

SAN FRANCISCO
[illegible] Sutter Street

AND ALL LIVE FILM EXCHANGES AND SUPPLY DEALERS

MOVING PICTURE THEATRE Mailing Lists For Sale

17,522, United States and Canada, $40.00, or $3.50 per thousand for such States as you want.

Also

648 Film Echanges, U. S.,	$3.50
49 Manufacturers & Studios, U. S.,	1.00
34 Moving Picture Machine Mfrs. & Dealers,	1.00
231 Film Exchanges, Foreign Countries,	3.00
520 Moving Picture Theatres, Foreign Countries,	3.00

This is the largest and most complete and correct list of Moving Picture Theatres to be had any place in United States; also Film Exchanges. This list has just been corrected up with all 1913 City Directories and Telephone Books in United States; also the Exhibitors at the recent exhibition at New York, together with several Film Exchange Companies' Mailing Lists, all consolidated into this, duplicates thrown out, names thrown out that have come back within a recent mailing and new names added to.

We also furnish all other classes of Mailing Lists covering United States and Foreign Countries.

Ask for our "SILENT SALESMAN" No. 61, for September.

Send check with order.

Trade Circular Addressing Co.

166 West Adams Street, Chicago

Established 1880

THE CATTLEMAN'S DAUGHTER

Make Your Lobby Display Attractive

There is nothing more fascinating to the public than a bright brses frame to display your photos or posters.

We make Lobby and Theatre Fixtures and Brass Rails of every description.

Don't fail to visit our complete Show Rooms at

101-103 FOURTH AVE.,
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Write for Cotalog

Established 1882.

The Newman Mfg. Co.
715-721 Sycamore St.
CINCINNATI, OHIO

PICTURES
CHANGED DAILY
TO DAY
THE FRENCH SPY
THE DREAM
TO MORROW
PATHES WEEKLY
THE MANIAC

Brass Railings of every Description

BRASS RAILING
BRASS EASELS
BRASS FRAMES
BRASS WICKETS
PUSH AND KICK PLATES DOOR GUARD RAILS
ELECTRIC SIGNS
ELECTRIC LAMPS
BRASS LETTERS
BRASS SIGNS
DISPLAY FIXTURES
PLATING OF ALL KINDS
BRASS GRILLES
BRASS CASTINGS
BRASS FITTINGS
SPECIAL BRASS WORK
TILE LETTER SIGNS

SPECIAL TO-DAY
MONEY TO BURN
EDISON

Fairbanks-Morse
Portable Electric Plant for Moving Picture Shows

With one of these outfits you can give shows in small towns where electric light is not available or where the charges for current are too high. The engine runs on Kerosene, making the operating cost almost nominal.

Capacity of outfit sufficient to run machine, lights in hall and sign outside. Enables you to start up as early and run as late as you desire.

Write for folder No. CS2059, giving full information and prices. State whether you want 60 or 110 volt outfit.

Fairbanks, Morse & Co., 900 S. WABASH AVE.
CHICAGO, ILL.

Motor Generator Sets, Belt Drive or Direct Connected

SPECIFY

GUNDLACH
Projection Lenses

when ordering new machines

You may as well get the best lenses with the machine as to buy them later.

Supplied to order with Powers Cameragraph, Motiograph, Simplex, Standard

Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Co.
808 Clinton Ave., So., Rochester, N. Y.

IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

FEW MORE STATES OPEN FOR

TORTURE WITHIN PRISON WALLS

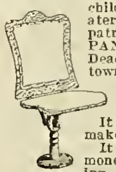
FOUR REEL FINANCIAL DRAMA

One, Three and Six Sheets, Heralds and Colored Photographs

WATCH FOR OUR COMING SENSATION

NEW YORK FILM CO., 145 West 45th Street, New York City

OH! MR. EXHIBITOR ! !



Think of the motherless, the fatherless, and the childless homes as the result of theater panics. Protect the lives of your patrons by installing our "ANTI-PANIC" THEATRE CHAIR. 26 Dead at Cannonsburg, 176 at Boyertown, 575 at Iroquois Theater, Chicago. Make these horrors impossible. Our chair is a friend to the Public.

It advertises your theater and makes your business grow.

It is a space-saver, life-saver, money-saver. Gives 25% more seating.

It will make your theater all aisles. It is the only sanitary chair. It is the world's greatest theater chair, perfected to the highest degree. Write today for circular A.

THE HARDESTY MFG. CO., Canal Dover, Ohio U. S. A.

OPERA CHAIRS

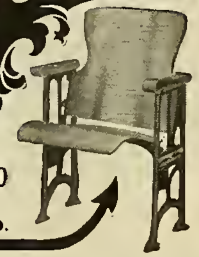
FOR EVERY PURPOSE
1,000 STYLES

ESTABLISHED 1865
WRITE FOR CAT. NO. 31

115-117 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.
The A. H. Andrews Co.
Branches in all Leading Cities
New York Office, 1165 Broadway.
Seattle Office, 508-10-12 First Ave., So.
San Francisco Office, 728 Mission St.

OPERA CHAIRS

Latest and Best in Seats



SEND FOR OUR PRICES BEFORE BUYING

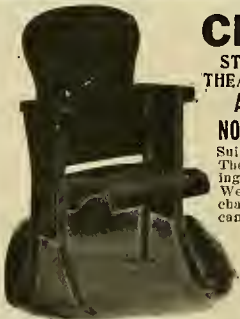
BENNETT SEATING CO
127 EAST PEARL ST.
CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Steel standards will not break

STEEL OR IRON STANDARDS

Eastern Representative: Fletcher W. Dickerman, 61 North Seventh St., Telephone 126 Branch Brook, Newark, N. J. Southern California Representative: California Seating Co., 1110 Van Nuys Building, Los Angeles, Cal. North Western Representative: H. A. Johnson Seating Co., 911 Western Ave., Seattle, Washington.

The Wisconsin Seating Company
New London, Wisconsin, U.S.A.



CHEAP

STEEL FRAME THEATRE CHAIRS ABSOLU ELY NON-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small Theaters and Moving Picture Shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs

Also seating for Out-of-door use. Address Dept. W.

STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Rapids, Mich. New York: 150 5th Ave. Pittsburgh: 318 Bissel Blk. Philadelphia: 1943 Market St. Nashville, Tenn.: 316 No. 4th Ave.

For Rent—FILM—For Sale

Do you want good service cheap? Write today.
NATIONAL MOVING PICTURE CO.,
Ellsworth Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

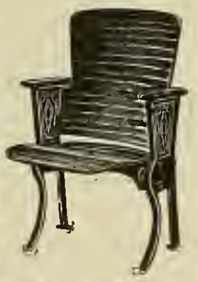
WE CAN HURRY

YOUR ORDER OUT

STAFFORD Chairs excel all others.

Heavy Five Ply seats and backs.

The last-forever kind, that you are using long after you have forgotten the price.

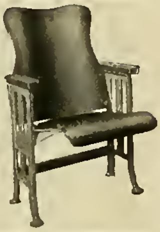


STEEL CHAIRS TOO

We carry several kinds of good chairs in stock, all guaranteed.

ASK FOR CATALOG 305

E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO.
CHICAGO, ILL.

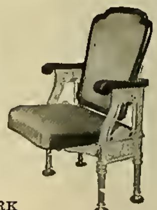


It pays to discriminate when you buy

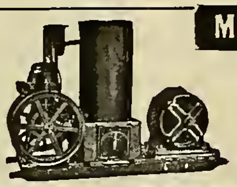
THEATRE SEATING

WRITE TODAY for Cat. V2 (Moving Picture Chairs) and Cat. V3 (Upholstered Chairs)
Send Floor Sketch for Free Seating Plan.

Widest range of styles and prices. Large stocks.



American Seating Company
216 S. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO. 15 E. 32nd St., NEW YORK



MOVING PICTURE ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANT

Used and Highly Endorsed by the United States Army.
BIGGEST SENSATION IN THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Can be operated by a boy 10 years old. One customer writes: "Plant running like a top and delivering the 'juice' right along every day for our moving picture house. Costs us about one-tenth as much as public service. Also pumps water to all our buildings; 2,000 gallons per day."

Write today for Bulletin 101. It is a mighty interesting booklet.

(163) DETROIT ENGINE WORKS, Dept. 102, DETROIT, MICH., U. S. A.

Richardson's Handbook

For Managers and Operators of Moving Picture Theatres

The Best Book of the Kind $2.50 per Copy Postage Paid

Moving Picture World
17 Madison Avenue New York City

AUTHORIZED DISTRIBUTORS FOR POWERS, MOTIOGRAPH, SIMPLEX, EDISON AND STANDARD MACHINES

Picture Theatre Equipment Co.

THE BIGGEST MOTION PICTURE SUPPLY HOUSE IN AMERICA

21 East 14th Street, New York City

CONDENSERS—BOOTHS—TICKET CHOPPERS—REELS—REEL CASES—BOOTH CABINETS.

WE EQUIP MOTION PICTURE THEATRES COMPLETE

Stop the Leakage

Use Corcoran Tanks.
No. 6 price list is a money saver.
A. J. CORCORAN, INC.
11½ John Street New York City

"FOTOPLAYER"

the instrument that supplies
MUSIC FOR THE PICTURES
The American Photo Player Sales Co.
130 Kearny St., San Francisco. Cal.

We have a Catalogue of full line of Moving Picture Machine repair parts ready to put in your machine at reduced prices. We make them, and for that reason can sell them very low. We also sell Stereopticons for $12.00; Calcium Jets, $3.00; 100 Carbons, $2.00; Condensers, 55c; Arc Lamps, $2.25; Stereopticon Lenses, 50c; Slide Carriers, 25c; Moving Picture Objectives, $3.75; Jackets, $1.75; Ticket Holders, 75c; Rheostats, $4.00; 50 Candle Power Stereopticon Lamps, 75c.

L. HETZ, 302 E. 23rd Street, New York City

THE SIMPSON SOLAR SCREEN

The only Metallic Screen without seams, patented. Buy the real thing. Beware of imitations

ALFRED L. SIMPSON, Inc.
No. 113 W. 132nd St., N. Y. City

Sargent's Photoplay Service

To aid those who wish to guard against the formation of bad writing habits, or who wish to estimate their progress, I offer the following service:

Script Criticism For a fee of two dollars for each reel, I will read your manuscript and write a personal letter, pointing out the faults of plotting, technical development, manuscript preparation, etc. Sometimes I can help you to make the script salable, but I do not guarantee a sale. I do not revise manuscript; I do not typewrite it, nor do I offer it for sale. I simply write you a letter that tells you what the trouble is.

Plot Estimates If your stories do not sell and you want to know why, send me five synopses and one full script. I will criticise the script and tell you whether it is your plot or your development that is wrong. The fee for this service is $5 for the five synopses and additional plot. Synopses must not run more than 300 words each. Send a synopsis of your undeveloped plot and fee of one dollar and you will be advised as to whether it will pay you to develop the same.

Please Note My fees do not include envelopes or return postage. Send prepaid and self addressed return envelope and remit in New York exchange; not local checks. I reserve the right to return unread (with fee) any story or plot that does not warrant treatment. All scripts must be typewritten.

EPES WINTHROP SARGENT
Box 70, Madison Square Station, NEW YORK CITY

Ornamental Theatres

PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

Theatres Designed Everywhere

Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
2549 Archer Avenue, :: CHICAGO, ILL.

Phone Stuy 5265
(Inc)
Motion Picture Photographers
220. East 14th St.
·New York City·

Developing and Printing at 4c per Foot
in any length
Titles 5c per Foot (Tinting Free)
All Work on Eastman Stock

Photographs for Lobby Display, $5.00 per 100 Up
COLORED WORK AT LOW PRICES
Prompt Deliveries All Work Guaranteed

M
M
FLORENCE ROBERTS IN "SAPHO"
FC

"Majestic" IS Majestic in the Possession of Such a Feature As "SAPHO" (In Six Reels)!

But the point is WILL YOU POSSESS IT? What booking arrangements have you made? Are you going to have it this year or next? Have you done anything in the way of advance announcements? Placarded "Sapho" as the Florence Roberts version, with Florence Roberts (herself) in it? As a clean version, dedicated to "the sons of America"? As a $20,000 production, wonderfully acted? You haven't been asleep on the job, we hope! There's so much you could have said about "Sapho" that it's almost criminal if your lobby isn't full of advertising. And always remember: JUST THE NAME ALONE WILL BRING 'EM IN.

Well, Here's "One Round O'Brien's Flirtation" At Last, Starting Off That O'Brien Series!

We're out of English on this. What more can we say about O'Brien and his "Flirtation"? Week after week we've been telling you pleasant truths about this picture and this series. "One Round O'Brien's Flirtation" was released Tuesday, Aug. 26. Get it—that's all—curtain. THE NEW THREE GOOD ONES: Sunday, Aug. 31, "A Trade Secret," with Marguerite Loveridge and Lamar Johnstone; Tuesday, Sept. 2, "A Perilous Ride," with Lamar Johnstone again, and (on the same reel) "The Great Santa Monica Road Race," very thrilling; Saturday, Sept. 6, "The Turkish Bath," with Fred Mace. There are no photoplay favorites like New Majestic favorites!

"NEW MAJESTIC"

"It Boomed 'Mutual' Business Right In Midsummer!"

Business Offices: NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.

All-Year-Round Studios, Brooklyn Heights, Los Angeles, Cal.

G. MÉLIÈS

Keep your eye on this spot for the release date of

THE YELLOW SLAVE

IN THREE PARTS

The picture with the genuine Japanese atmosphere. Produced in Japan.

Copyrighted, 1913, by G. Melies

September 4th

A DAY AT SINGAPORE

A most interesting trip around the show places of Singapore, Straits Settlements, one of the largest seaports in the world.

G. MELIES, 204 East 38th St., New York City

AMERICAN-ECLAIR

FEATURE FILMS

WIRE YOUR EXCHANGE!

I WANT

EVERY ECLAIR

THEY ARE THE

AMERICAN STANDARD

TRY OUR SPECIAL HERALDS, $2.00 A THOUSAND, AND BE DELIGHTED. YOU WILL ENJOY OUR NEWSY BULLETIN—IT'S FREE TO ANY EXHIBITOR, NO MATTER WHAT SERVICE YOU ARE USING NOW.

225 W. 42nd ST., NEW YORK CITY.

QUALITY AND QUANTITY

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH NO. 6A

The Modern Motion Picture Machine

"CAMERAGRAPH" for 16 years has stood for perfection with the trade. Its QUALITY has always been conceded by them to be of the highest possible standard.

The merit of an article is best expressed in its popularity; and popularity is responsible for the volume of business transacted.

The QUANTITY of CAMERAGRAPH sales exceeds by over 65 per cent. that of the entire moving picture machine business of the American trade.

POWER'S PERFECT PROJECTOR PRODUCES PROSPERITY

Write for Catalogue G containing full details

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

88-90 GOLD STREET, NEW YORK

THE LEADING MAKERS OF MOTION PICTURE MACHINES

Vol. 17. No. 11 September 13, 1913 Price 10 Cents

H. E. HOFFMAN

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "Ivanhoe" (Imp).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

MOTHS
TC
FC 13

THANHOUSER STARS AND THANHOUSER QUALITY

ARE IN THE MUTUAL SPECIAL IN FOUR REELS "MOTHS" WITH MAUDE FEALY

Scenario by Lloyd F. Lonergan

The Mutual Film Corporation announces as a special release the great OUIDA play of the above title. Miss Fealy, starred in this film, is known from coast to coast as a legitimate theatrical star, and has positively never been seen to better advantage than in this motion picture of "MOTHS." With her is a special Thanhouser cast, including such favorites as
WILLIAM RUSSELL, GERDA HOLMES, HARRY BENHAM, MRS. LAWRENCE MARSTON, LILA CHESTER.

"MOTHS" has been described as the most extraordinary description of a woman that has ever been penned. Remember:

> "She has chastity, and she had also courage."
>
> "She was the martyr of a false civilization, of a society as corrupt as that of the Borgias, and far more dishonest."
>
> "She is innocent always, and yet—when the moths have gnawed the ermine, no power in heaven or earth can make it again altogether what it was."

You must not miss this Marvel-Play and its wonderful star. There are wonderful lithos, too, and they should attract people to a play that will hold them.

Special terms and bookings can be had exclusively through the office of THE MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION, Masonic Temple, 71 West 23d Street, New York City.

The Thanhouser Three-a-Week

Released Sunday, Sept. 7th

HIS LAST BET

One of the best of our entire output to date of Sunday comedies. And the wonderful thing is, it is an all-men's comedy. You never thought it was possible to "put over" a funny film without some GIRLS in it, did you, now?

Released Tuesday, Sept. 9th

TAMING THEIR GRANDCHILDREN

The mischievous kids were handed over to the old folks for correction by their despairing parents—and, lo! they made said old people young again and decidedly loath to curb the kids in their pranks. Indeed, they joined with them!

Released Friday, Sept. 12th

THE MESSAGE TO HEADQUARTERS

Three reels of thrill. A young Italian, officer in the Carabineri, saves an American tourist in Italy from bandits, and so incurs the everlasting enmity of these evildoers, who have confederates in all parts of the globe. Visiting the United States, he is captured by American confederates of the bandits, and only escapes through a fellow-captive Yankee detective's message to headquarters.

THANHOUSER FILM CORPORATION :: NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.
Thanhouser Stars! Thanhouser Features! Thanhouser Quality!

FIVE-A-WEEK

Essanay

Coming Sept. 12th Coming Sept. 12th

"GRIST TO THE MILL"

(IN TWO PARTS)

A powerful dramatic sermon teeming with exciting situations. A feature attraction that will please the most critical. Thrilling scenes with a touch of the pathetic that makes this a positive hit. Irene Warfield, E. H. Calvert and Richard C. Travers featured. Heralds and posters now ready.

Released Tuesday, Sept. 9th

"SUNLIGHT"

A beautiful and interesting love drama featuring Francis X. Bushman, Beverly Bayne, Helen Dunbar and Frank Dayton.

Released Wednesday, Sept. 10th

"MR. TREATER'S TREAT"

A hully good comedy filled with thrills. Take a ride with us on the scenic railway and the chutes.

Released Thursday, Sept. 11th

"BONNIE OF THE HILLS"

A gorgeous Western dramatic spectacle, featuring the California beauty, Marguerite Clayton.

Released Saturday, Sept. 13th

"BRONCHO BILLY REFORMS"

An unusual and exciting Western drama featuring G. M. Anderson.

Coming Sept. 19th Coming Sept. 19th

"THE RIGHT OF WAY"

(IN TWO PARTS)

One of the most thrilling and sensational railroad stories ever projected on the screen. A play that can easily be called "The Dynamo of Magnetism." It grips your audiences and will hold them from the first to the last stirring scene in this remarkable photoplay. See the automobile with the chauffeur at the wheel fall over the cliff into the gorge fifteen hundred feet below. A THRILL IN EVERY SCENE BUT ONE. Francis X. Bushman featured. Heralds and posters now ready.

THE PUBLIC ARE WISE—DEMAND NEW CLEAN POSTERS. Three sheet posters of all Saturday releases will boom your business. Posters are lithographed in full four colors, 35c each. You can order these from your exchange or direct from Essanay Film Mfg. Co., 521 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago. Your lobby display will look attractive if you use photographs of ESSANAY players, 8 x 10, $3.00 per dozen. You can secure these from the Players' Photo Co., 177 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.

Essanay Film Manufacturing Co.

521 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
Factory and Studio, 1333 Argyle Street, Chicago, Ill.
Branch Offices in London, Paris, Berlin, Barcelona

UNIVERSAL FEATURES

They so far outclass any other features on the market that there is no longer any comparison between Universals and others. The reason for this is simple. The Universal has the greatest facilities of any concern in the world for making rich productions. It has the power, the money and the ambition necessary to outdo the attempts of any and all other film manufacturers. The improvement in Universal films in the past few months has been little short of marvelous! If you are not showing the Universal program you are overlooking the greatest money-maker in the business!

Two Wonderful Animal Thrillers!

At an enormous cost we have gathered a magnificent collection of wild animals at our western producing ranch. These are being used in big feature pictures with startling results. You will soon have a chance to see the first two "animal thrillers."

"IN THE COILS OF THE PYTHON"

Two reels that team with genuine excitement. A 101-Bison that will be the talk of your town! September 16.

"THE GIRL AND THE TIGER"

A three-reel animal picture that is worth five reels at least. Every foot of it contains action and "punch."

Universal Film Manufacturing Company

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"
CARL LAEMMLE, President
Mecca Building, Broadway and 48th Street, New York, N. Y.

UNIVERSAL FILMS TRADE MARK UNIVERSAL FILMS TRADE MARK UNIVERSAL FILMS TRADE MARK

are SIMPLY WONDERFUL

The Universal's policy is to protect the small exhibitor and help to keep him from being crushed by syndicate competition. We could make more profit temporarily by putting our big features on the market as a state-rights proposition. But the little exhibitor who cannot afford to pay big extra prices for state-rights features would never get the benefit of our efforts. By putting them out as part of our regular program the small exhibitor has an equal chance with the big one. That's the Universal's policy, and if you like it, show your appreciation and reap the benefit at once!

"Ivanhoe" Has Startled Europe!

Europe has awakened to the fact that the Universal knows the feature production business from top to bottom. The sales of "Ivanhoe" have smashed all records in England, and the orders are still pouring in. We are producing the finest posters obtainable for this three-reel feature.

"IVANHOE, IVANHOE, IVANHOE"

Imagine the opportunity this great story affords King Baggot. And depend on it, he has done the best work of his life.

"IVANHOE, IVANHOE, IVANHOE"

The battle scenes are terrific. The settings are gorgeous. The costuming is lavish. Get "Ivanhoe" if you have to fight for it.

Universal Film Manufacturing Company

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

CARL LAEMMLE, President

Mecca Building, Broadway and 48th Street, New York, N. Y.

State Righ

THE ADVERTISING MATTER

The assortment of paper and special advertising matter for this feature is perhaps the most varied and descriptive ever issued with a four-reel subject. The paper includes four kinds of ones, two kinds of threes, one six, special heralds, announcement slides, and an elaborate assortment of lobby displays.

A FIGHT for

Adventures of A Gentleman

BOOKING POINTS

(1) Produced by one of the biggest feature organizations in the country under the personal direction of Herbert Blaché, a manufacturer of years of practical experience in feature film making.

(2) The scenes are short and snappy, and there's a big climax and a punch in every reel.

(3) A sensational round-up of the gang by the police is made with the use of "Defiance," one of the speediest motorboats in the country. The race is thrilling and sensational, and ends with the spectacular explosion of the engine in the boat in which the gang tries to escape.

(4) The paper is attractive and of the business-getting kind.

BLACHE AMERI

INCORP

FORT LEE

ts Special

CAST AND PROPERTY

An all-star cast is used, and among the personnel are actors and actresses of such prominence as Barney Gilmore, Darwin Karr, George Paxton, James O'Neil, James Johnston, Joseph Levering, Vinnie Burns and Marian Swayne — all known to the public in general and the picture fans in particular. The properties used are elaborate and expensive and the locations interesting and attractive.

MILLIONS

Burglar—in Four Reels

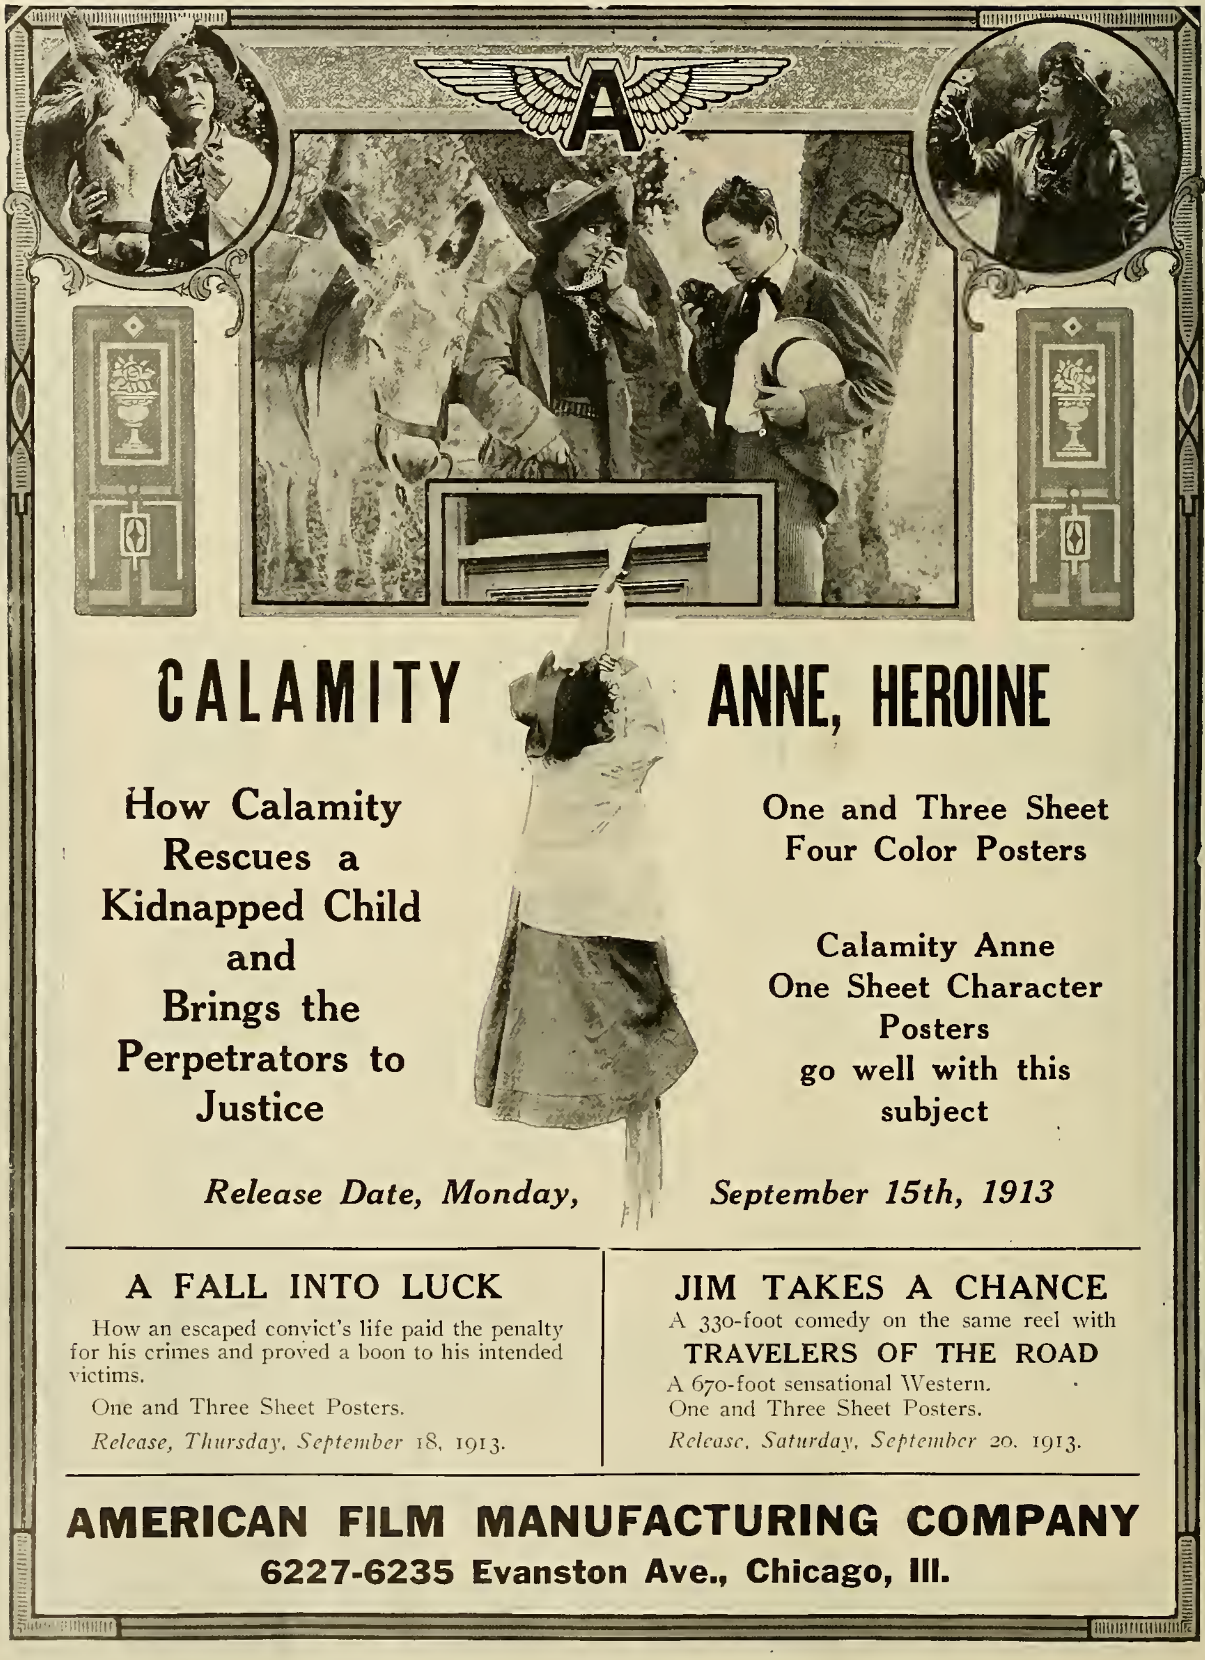
THE STORY

Calculating, ingenious and crafty, a gentleman Raffles, through his acquaintance and friendship with a millionaire-banker's daughter, cunningly learns her family affairs and cleverly uses his information to advantage. "Raffles" and his confederates have a remarkable organization, as well as an original equipment. The band uses a double house, one side furnished elaborately as a gentleman's household, while the other is equipped with the paraphernalia of an organized criminal establishment. The thick party walls dividing the two houses have secret panels and passages known only to the gang leader.

CAN FEATURES

ORATED

NEW JERSEY



CALAMITY ANNE, HEROINE

How Calamity
Rescues a Kidnapped Child
and Brings the Perpetrators to Justice

One and Three Sheet
Four Color Posters

Calamity Anne
One Sheet Character
Posters go well with this subject

Release Date, Monday, September 15th, 1913

A FALL INTO LUCK

How an escaped convict's life paid the penalty for his crimes and proved a boon to his intended victims.

One and Three Sheet Posters.

Release, Thursday, September 18, 1913.

JIM TAKES A CHANCE

A 330-foot comedy on the same reel with

TRAVELERS OF THE ROAD

A 670-foot sensational Western.
One and Three Sheet Posters.

Release, Saturday, September 20, 1913.

AMERICAN FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY

6227-6235 Evanston Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Broncho Headliners

"The Land of Dead Things"

2 Reels. September 17th, 1913

Showing a terrible and devastating sandstorm on the desert. Terrific hand-to-hand struggle between Indians and settlers. Battle to the death between U. S. troops and Sioux Indians.

Swept away from their companions in a terrific sand-storm on the desert, Benton, his wife and little girl are lost. While he is searching for water, Indian scouts steal the child. The mother follows her baby to the Indian camp, and is taken prisoner. Natamba, squaw of the Sioux chief, grieving over her dead baby, takes the little white girl to her heart and orders the mother put to death. Benton comes upon the dead Indian. Surmising what has happened, he disguises himself in the red-skin's clothes and feathers. Stealing into the Indian camp, he too is taken prisoner. Natamba, softened by the grief of the white woman assists her and the child to escape. Benton, suspected of this, is made to run the gauntlet. Half-dead from the kicks and blows of the Indians, he plunges into the river and escapes. The troop of a neighboring fort rescue Mrs. Benton and her child. She tells her story. The soldiers stampede the Indian's horses routing the Indians and burning the camp to the ground. Benton makes his way to the fort, where he and his little family are reunited. Natamba, alone with her dead, sadly watches the work of the white men, whose flesh and blood she had saved from the land of dead things.

Broncho Motion Picture Co.

Long Acre Bldg., 42d St. and Bdwy.

NEW YORK CITY

MUTUAL PROGRAM EXCLUSIVELY

Kay-Bee Features

"The Reformation"

1 Reel. September 19th, 1913

A Gripping Drama of Peculiar Significance. The Story of a Fascinating Woman Thief In Society.

At a social function, Jim Blondon, society thief, steals a priceless diamond, which he places in his mouth. He transfers it to the beautiful Janeth, his partner, by kissing her good-night. Detectives search him, and finding nothing, shadow him to the woman's house. He pleads with her to reform and turn straight, she laughs at him. Declaring it his last job he leaves. She escapes by changing clothes with her maid. Some months later, Jim, thoroughly reformed, is now a first-class detective. He is put on the case of a wealthy married man, who, entangled in the toils of a society adventuress, is breaking his wife's heart. Jim, trailing his man, comes face to face with the woman, Janeth. She refuses to give her victim up; the police, who have gotten on the trail of the woman, break in. The wealthy victim escapes through a window, and the female Raffles, the stolen jewel in her possession, is taken prisoner, the reformed crook getting the credit and promotion for the capture.

A Cowtown Reformation

1 Reel. September 26th, 1913

A western comedy-drama, filled to the brim with action, cowboys, suffragettes, an unlucky minister, and other things.

N. Y. Motion Picture Corp.

Long Acre Bldg., 42d St. and Bdwy.

NEW YORK CITY

MUTUAL PROGRAM EXCLUSIVELY

Keystone Comedies

"The New Baby"

1 Reel. September 4th, 1913

A Pretty Comedy of Childhood's Happy Days

Maurice, the only child of Markowitz, has things all his own way. His reign is supreme, licking the other kids in the block, keeping the house in an uproar and making the life of the Irish policeman on the beat one continual chase. But to the proud parents he can do no wrong. Then things change. A baby boy arrives and Maurice is neglected and forgotten. With his tiny playmate, Billy, they hatch a plot, deep and dark, and on the promise of one dollar, which his father had given Maurice, Billy kidnaps the new baby and carries it off to the dog house in his yard. Things begin to happen, the distracted mother and father search in vain and call in the "p'leece" force, who look up chimneys, under beds and carpets, and even in the coal scuttle. Maurice refuses to "come across" with the bribe, and the young kidnapper loses no time in "squealing" on his partner in crime. The baby is returned, all is forgiven, and Billy gets his price, while Maurice shares honors with the new baby.

KEYSTONE FILM CO.

Long Acre Bldg., 42d St. and Bdwy.

NEW YORK CITY

MUTUAL PROGRAM EXCLUSIVELY

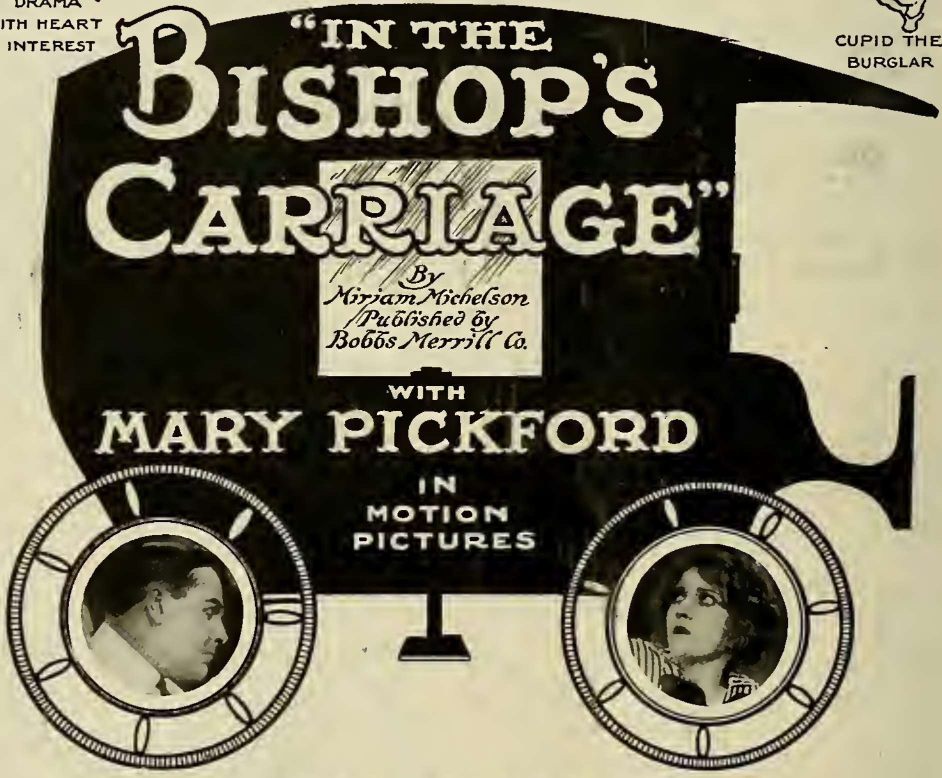
"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

A CIRCLE has no end—neither has Famous Players Success.

A DRAMA WITH HEART INTEREST

CUPID THE BURGLAR

DANIEL FROHMAN PRESENTS



"IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE"

By Miriam Michelson Published by Bobbs Merrill Co.

WITH

MARY PICKFORD

IN MOTION PICTURES

Released September 10th

A fascinating drama of the underworld that approaches tragedy and ends in romance—an interesting combination of the thrilling incidents and dramatic episodes of the subject.

"IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE"

IN THREE PARTS

is a strong "vehicle" for Mary Pickford's Charming Art,

Produced by the

FAMOUS PLAYERS

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
TIMES BUILDING
NEW YORK

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

ALL ROUND the universe—
Famous
Players
Fame!

"30
FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

EXHIBITORS

:an obtain bookings in their respective territories for Mrs. Fiske in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," "In the Bishop's Carriage," presenting Mary Pickford, and

FORTHCOMING RELEASES:

Henry E. Dixey in
'Chelsea 7750"

Lillie Langtry in
'His Neighbor's Wife"

Laura Sawyer in
"An Hour Before Dawn"

James O'Neill in
"The Count of Monte Cristo" ınd all future "Famous Features" from the exchanges that have contracted for our entire annual output, listed as follows:

'amous Players Film Co. of New England
larry Asher, Gen'l Mgr.
)0 Boylston St. Boston, Mass.
MAINE, NEW HAMPSHIRE, VERMONT, MASSACHUSETTS, CONNECTICUT, RHODE ISLAND

'amous Players Exchange, Masonic Temple Bldg., 23d St. cor. 6th Ave., New York City. PHILADELPHIA OFFICE 1331 VINE STREET.
NEW JERSEY AND EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA

'he Casino Co., Dimes Bank Bldg., Detroit, Mich.
MICHIGAN

'amous Players Film Service Co.
:hattanooga, Tenn.
NORTH CAROLINA, SOUTH CAROLINA, GEORGIA, FLORIDA, ALABAMA, TENNESSEE, MISSISSIPPI, LOUISIANA

'rogressive Motion Picture Co.
Pacific Bldg.
San Francisco, Calif.
CALIFORNIA, NEW MEXICO, NEVADA, ARIZONA, OREGON, WASHINGTON

Wm. L. Sherry Feature Film Co.
Wm. L. Sherry, Pres.
Times Bldg., New York City
ENTIRE STATE OF NEW YORK

Famous Players Film Service,
Jas. Steele, Gen'l Mgr.
125 4th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.
WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA, WEST VIRGINIA, OHIO, KENTUCKY

New Grand Central Theatre Co.,
Grand & Lucas Ave., St. Louis, Mo.
MISSOURI

Southern Feature Film Programme Assn.
Royal Theatre Bldg., San Antonio, Texas
ARKANSAS, OKLAHOMA, TEXAS

Famous Players Film Service
Bert Barnett, Gen'l Mgr.,
Temple Court Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.
MINNESOTA, NORTH DAKOTA, SOUTH DAKOTA, WISCONSIN

Kansas City Feature Film Co.
A. D. Flintom, Gen'l Mgr., Gayety Theatre Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.
IOWA, KANSAS, NEBRASKA

Notable Feature Film Co.
612 Judge Building, Salt Lake City, U.
COLORADO, WYOMING, UTAH, IDAHO, MONTANA

XCHANGEMEN: During the week Wisconsin joined the STATES UNITED for "Famous Players Success." Soon all the following states will join the progressive list. Don't you want to be first in

DELAWARE
MARYLAND

DIST. OF COL.
VIRGINIA

ILLINOIS
INDIANA

DOMINION OF CANADA

FILM COMPANY

ADOLPH ZUKOR PRES.
DANIEL FROHMAN
MANAGING DIRECTOR

"30
FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

“The Last Da

The Greatest Film on Earth Nine Reels of Overwhelming Magnificence
Acted by Europe’s Foremost Artists Staged on a Stupendous Scale

No State Rights For Sale

“The Betrothal”

The great work of Alexander Manzoni, dramatized in six reels by Pasquali. THERE ARE OTHER VERSIONS, but none like Pasquali. THE TRADE IS HEREBY WARNED that Pasquali has a suit pending in Italy against another producer over this subject, and that it is copyrighted in America. The future actions of the Pasquali American Co. regarding this subject will depend upon the outcome of the suit in Italy. The Progressive Motion Picture Co. has bought this picture to book in connection with Famous Players Production on the Pacific coast, and E. Mandelbaum has secured the rights to Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky.

“High Treason”

A thrilling military picture in four parts. The Empress Feature Film Co., Indianapolis, Ind., has the rights for Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. The National Feature Film Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., has Eastern Pennsylvania and adjacent southern states. All other territory open.

“The Power of Innocence”

A wonderful drama, in most exquisite photography, with a heart-gripping plot. Empress Feature Film Co., Indianapolis, Ind., has the rights for Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. National Feature Film Co., Philadelphia, Pa., has Eastern Pennsylvania and adjacent southern states. All other territory open.

Pasquali American Co., Inc.

H. J. Streyckmans, Gen. Mgr.

ys of Pompeii"

An Unprecedented Spectacle Thrills and Sensations Beyond Belief
Five Horses Killed in Chariot Scene Magnificently Costumed

Booked in America's Best Theatres

"The Two Sergeants"

The most absorbing military drama ever seen on a screen. Before this film was advertised, and before it had been properly assembled and titled, there were six bidders for the entire rights to the United States. Mr. E. Mandelbaum, 607 Columbia Bldg., Cleveland, O., has secured from us the exhibition rights to this great production, and all communications for booking should be addressed to him.

A. Capossi, one of the best actors in all Europe, is the leading man for the Pasquali Co., and his work in "The Two Sergeants" is extraordinary. This is a film that can be shown in any theater on earth, before the most exacting and critical audience. It is a masterpiece and will be one of the most talked of films in the country.

Don't forget: E. Mandelbaum, 607 Columbia Bldg., Cleveland, O., owns all exhibition rights. See him for booking.

Suite 1904, 110 W. 40th St., N. Y. City

World's Tower Building

"Another House Packer!"

That's the way exhibitors are speaking of the General Film Company's new Exclusive Service. It has been recognized immediately everywhere as the very thing for which really progressive men have been waiting.

It gives you absolute protection in your territory on a new series of exceptionally fine single and multiple reels. You get nothing but the work of the producers whose names stand at the top of the heap in this country—Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Lubin, Kalem, Kleine-Cines, Melies, Pathe, Selig, Vitagraph.

The cost to you depends entirely upon the extent of the territory that you want us to protect for you. We guarantee that your rights within a given time and a given space will not be violated.

A theatrical man of the first rank has been placed in charge of this Exclusive Service. His judgment, based on long experience in the Theatrical and Motion Picture fields, is making a record-breaker of this service.

Write us at once and get prices on your territory before your competitor gets in first. Address Exclusive Service Department.

General Film Company, 71 W. 23d St., N.Y.C.

Still Hitting the High Spots

Another week sees seven more multiple wonders—ranging from clashing action to delightful romance and howling farce.

That's the beauty of General Film Service—it covers such a range of human emotions. Your audience can't be bored for a second. Every picture seems better than the one before.

We would like to list the single reels, too, but there isn't room. But look at these multiples—a new one every day, sometimes two.

General Film Company
200 Fifth Avenue, New York

"The Fifth String"

Selig—2 reels. Released Sept. 15

John Philip Sousa, the March King, wrote this powerful story of a musician's supernatural ability gained at the cost of his life. The Devil gave young Diotti a magic instrument, upon which he could play even well enough to win his reluctant lady, but when he touched the fifth string, the charm was broken and he paid the forfeit. Copyright, The Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"High Treason"

Kleine-Cines—2 reels. Released Sept. 16

This picture was made in Rome on the day Italy declared war against Turkey. All the excitement of a population mad with war fever is shown in actual streets and with actual people. The war scenes themselves were taken, many of them, on the field during the Balkan War. Unique realism.

"Trooper Billy"

Kalem—2 reels. Released Sept. 17

Frederick Paulding's play has had a setting that makes it better, by far, than the stage version. Indians attacking a stockade, for instance, is the climax. Action in every inch—the straining and grappling of hand-to-hand encounters, the clash of body against body, the fight to a finish. A Western play with a wonderful punch.

"The Clod"

Lubin—2 reels. Released Sept. 18

A story that shows a new angle on the horror of war. A simple Mexican farmer, content in the prosperity and love about him, sees everything in his world snatched from him by the ravages of war. Dulled at first, he fights blindly, impotently against it all—and is shot with a laugh.

"Saved by the Enemy"

Edison—2 reels. Released Sept. 19

A Civil War story with a love theme of unusual power. Two rivals—one an officer, the other a private—quarrel over a girl. The private strikes his superior and is condemned to death. The girl's efforts to save him take her through Union lines to the head of the Confederacy. Plot and counterplot surge through this harrowing romance.

"The Right of Way"

Essanay—2 reels. Released Sept. 19

The struggle of a man and his daughter to keep a railroad from passing through the graveyard where the man's wife is buried. It looks like a losing fight, until chance throws the young chief engineer into their home. Then—but that's as pretty a conquest of love over a corporation as you can imagine.

"Our Wives"

Vitagraph—2 reels. Released Sept. 20

The adventures that befall two rollicking husbands who back a beautiful actress in her new opera. The complications that involve the star's irate husband, a newspaper reporter, the opera's composer, the two luckless "angels" and their wives, make as screaming a farce as ever delighted a picture audience.

THE HOUSE OF SELIG

SELIG LEADS OTHERS FOLLOW

SELIG CREATES OTHERS IMITATE

"THE FIFTH STRING"

A Remarkable Musical Fantasy.

Written by John Philip Sousa, the Famous "March King"

Through Arrangement with Bobbs-Merrill Co.

In Two Wonderful Reels

The remarkable story of a bewitched violin, containing five strings, each one of which symbolizes some phase of life, "the fifth string" typifying death. This symbolic story is gripping in the extreme and exceptional in its appealing moral. Featuring Mr. Thomas Carrigan.

Released September 15th

Another Quartette of Selig Single Reel Successes

September 16th

"THE TOILS OF DECEPTION"

A dissatisfied and ambitious young woman who covets a beautiful necklace, finds herself very much embarrassed, buying it on trust and then losing it before she has paid for it.

September 17th "TOBIAS WANTS OUT"

Tobias, the raw recruit, who marches into trouble more readily than he takes to his regular duties, pretends to be deaf and dumb in order to avoid service, but is finally forced to speak his mind.

Sept. 18th "THE REDEMPTION OF RAILROAD JACK"

"Railroad Jack" a ne'er-do-well, in rescuing the plucky girl station agent from the wreck of her railway velocipede, accomplishes his own redemption. A picturesque drama.

September 19th "THE REJECTED LOVER'S LUCK"

Two brothers are in love with the same girl and the one rejected goes away in grief, makes a fortune and returning finds her a widow in distress. He settles her troubles by winning himself a wife.

Soon to be Released

"IN THE MIDST OF THE JUNGLE"—SELIG'S greatest wild animal masterpiece—IN THREE REELS—Featuring Miss Kathlyn Williams. Released through General Film Company's "exclusive service."

"THE LOVE OF PENELOPE"—A beautiful, one reel drama. Released through General Film Company's "exclusive service."

On the Way

"THE SPOILERS"—From Rex Beach's famous novel—in eight reels—SELIG'S supreme masterpiece. Featuring Mr. William Farnum.

"THE ADVENTURES OF KATHLYN"—The most wonderful, expensive, elaborate and widely exploited series of wild animal pictures ever produced.

Watch for Them

SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY

BRANCH OFFICES THROUGHOUT THE WORLD
EXECUTIVE OFFICES: 20 E. RANDOLPH ST.
CHICAGO, ILL., U.S.A.

THE WORLDS FOREMOST PRODUCER

A SPLENDID, HIGHLY SENSATIONAL KLEINE-CINES (In Two Acts)

"For His Brother's Crime"

For Release Tuesday, Sept. 23, 1913 Copyright 1913 by George Kleine

(Copyright, 1913, by George Kleine)

Both in love with the same girl, both poor, and both determined to make their fortune, John obtains honorable employment, while George takes the easier road to temporary affluence but eventual defeat. They are brothers, and when George robs the home in which John is employed, John, caught by an automatic camera, takes the blame for George's deed—a foolish but noble act that results in a long penitentiary sentence for John and the winning of Maude Meriden by George with his ill-gotten gains.

How John escaped from prison by leaping from a fast-moving train, how he confronted his cowardly brother, the wrangle which ended in shooting and the final adjustment of a most remarkable case of heroic self-sacrifice, makes a two-reel of strong dramatic appeal, characterized by situations of great strength and feats of much daring.

You will like "FOR HIS BROTHER'S CRIME," for the sake of its splendid moral effect and business-pulling powers.

One, three and six sheets with all Kleine subjects. Released through General Film Co. Complete line of advertising matter, including heralds, press items, etc.

George Kleine
166 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.

THE MULTIPLE REEL

PATHEPLAYS

ARE IN THE COURSE OF CONSTRUCTION. THEY WILL AMAZE THE EXHIBITOR BY THEIR TECHNICAL EXCELLENCE, THE PERFECT PHOTOGRAPHY, THE ABSOLUTE FRESHNESS OF IDEA AND EXECUTION, AND THEIR THRILLING PLOT AND COUNTERPLOT, SO—

WATCH FOR THEM!

THEY'RE COMING!

SAVED BY THE ENEMY

A DRAMA OF THE CIVIL WAR

In Two Parts Released Friday, September 19th

With Edna Flugrath, Herbert Prior, Ben Wilson, Robert Brower, and others.

Captain Kincaid and Private Hartley, C. S. A., are both in love with the beautiful Belle Varney. They quarrel while on duty and Hartley is sentenced to die for striking a superior officer. Belle, after a long ride, wins Jefferson Davis' pardon, but the Yankee troops capture the wires running into General Gordon's camp, where Hartley is confined. Just as they intercept the pardoning message, Kincaid recaptures the wires and, discovering the message, destroys it. A Yankee operator, at the risk of his life, sends the message through and the firing squad is stopped on the way to the execution ground. Kincaid, returning with his prisoners, is confronted by General Gordon and the man he tried to kill and is stripped of his commission.

COMING EDISON SINGLE REEL RELEASES

The Great Physician

A beautiful symbolical drama, extraordinary both in theme and photography.

Released Saturday, September 20th.

*The Honor of the Force

A crooked cop who has joined the grafters is caught by a clever ruse.

Released Monday, September 22nd.

*The Stroke of the Phoebus Eight

Taken in Henley, England.

Moreton stroked his crew to victory despite the efforts of his rival to disgrace and imprison him.

Released Tuesday, September 23rd.

The Embarrassment of Riches

Pat Clancy, a laborer, finds poverty more to be desired than riches.

Released Wednesday, September 24th.

A Proposal from the Sculptor

The third "Who Will Marry Mary?" story.

Mary loses her heart to a sculptor only to find him engaged to a model.

Released Saturday, September 27th.

*The Stolen Models

They are both in search of the ideal: he paints her and she paints him. Cupid does the rest.

Released Monday, September 29th.

*One sheet posters. One and three sheet posters by the Morgan Lithograph Co., Cleveland, O.

TRADE MARK
Thomas A. Edison

THOS. A. EDISON, Inc.
239 Lakeside Avenue, Orange, N. J.
Makers of the Edison Kinetoscope, 1913 Model

LUBIN·FILMS

TWO REEL PICTURE EVERY THURSDAY

"THE CLOD" Two-Reel Thursday, September 18th

A fearful and most dramatic episode of the Mexican Revolution.

"Self Convicted"

Two Reel

Released Thursday, September 25th

A very strange story taken from a detective's note book and telling the unheard of circumstance of a detective arresting himself for a crime perpetrated years before. Jim McKefren, a sleuth, who has the record of never failing to land his quarry, is put upon the track of a man who committed a robbery. Mac, as he is called, reports to his superior that he is the man wanted for the crime, forced upon him by circumstances. The superior places the evidence in the case in the grate and compels Mac to light a match to it.

"THE SPECIAL OFFICER" Two Reel Thursday, October 2nd

A get-rich-quick man is beautifully foiled by Daddy Bowne, Special Officer.

FIVE RELEASES EACH WEEK

"PLAYING WITH FIRE" 1000 feet Tuesday, September 9th

A melodrama of the East and West, very intense.

"THE HILLS OF STRIFE" 2000 feet Thursday, September 11th

Very dramatic story of the Kentucky Mountains.

"PANAMA HAT INDUSTRY" 400 feet Friday, September 12th

Very interesting industrial picture taken in Panama.

"AN EXCLUSIVE PATTERN" 600 feet Friday, September 12th

A roaring farce, caused by many mistakes.

"THE MEDAL OF HONOR" 1000 feet Saturday, September 13th

A melodramatic Firemen story, with a punch.

"TO LOVE AND CHERISH" 1000 feet Monday, September 15th

Excellent problem play, ending happily.

LUBIN 5 Color Posters, One, Three, and Six Sheets
From Your Exchange or A. B. C. Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

LUBIN MANUFACTURING CO. PHILADELPHIA U.S.A

VITAGRAPH

"CUPID VERSUS WOMEN'S RIGHTS" Comedy-Drama Monday, Sept. 8th

They need a protector. The ladies don't think so. Cupid proves it is best to have one for life. Maurice Costello and Clara Kimball Young are the proofs.

"OLD MODDINGTON'S DAUGHTERS" Western Comedy Tuesday, Sept. 9th

He has six of them, all dazzlers and full of the real Western spirit from which States spring up. They handle a gun as well as the soldiers, who capture them.

"FORTUNE'S TURN" Drama Wednesday, Sept. 10th

Running away from one danger, he falls into another. It proves very fortunate for him and a child in a burning building. Ned Finley, Rose Tapley and Helen Costello are leads.

"THE TIGER" Dramatic Thursday, Sept. 11th

The trainer kills his wife. The beast, smarting under its master's abuse, serves, in the hands of the girl's father, to wreak vengeance upon him. Charles Kent and Anita Stewart sustain the dramatic situations with great power.

"SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE" Comedy Friday, Sept. 12th

If men want a "free leg" they should grant the same privilege to their wives. Here is an instance where one man is convinced. L. Rogers Lytton and Louise Beaudet prove it.

THE LOST MILLIONAIRE RELEASED
SEPT. 13th

DRAMA — SPECIAL FEATURE IN 2 PARTS. SATURDAY, SEPT. 13th

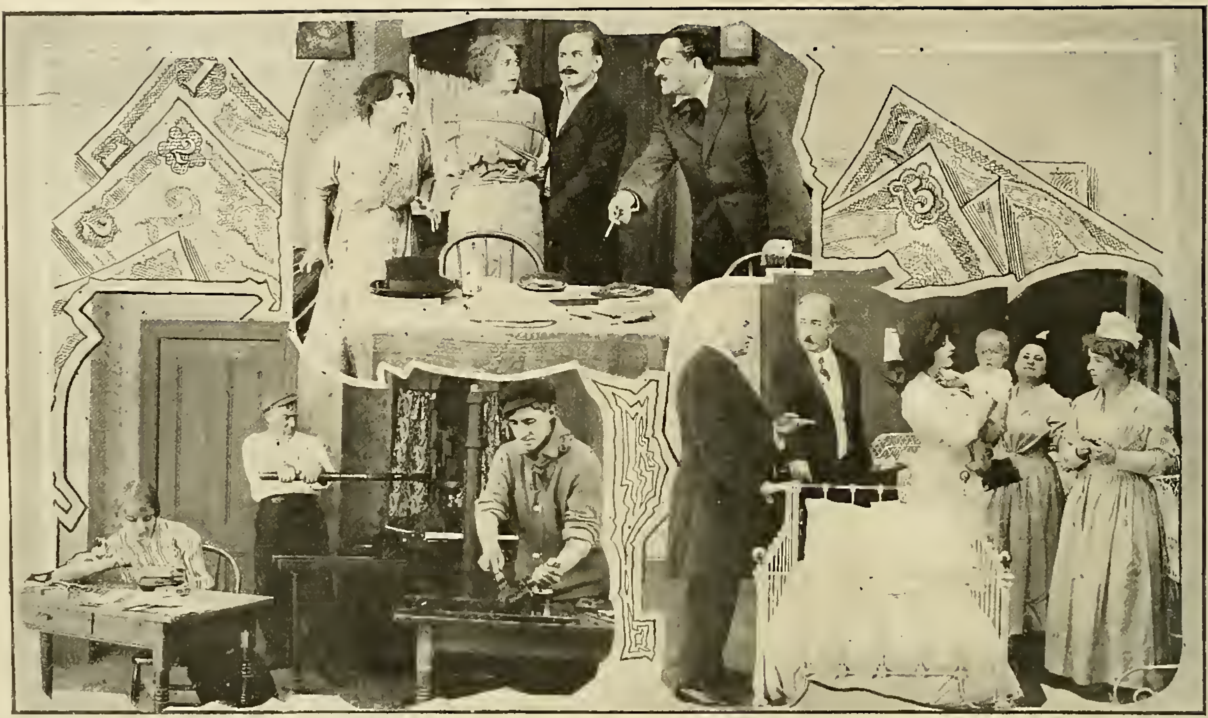
An accident makes him lose himself. He recovers his memory and finds the sweetest little wife and life-long happiness. A strange story with a happy ending. E. K. Lincoln, Anita Stewart, Charles Kent and Tefft Johnson are involved.

SIX-A-WEEK

"PUMPS" "SANDY GETS SHORTY A JOB" } Comedies	MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 15th.
"THEIR MUTUAL FRIEND"—Drama	TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16th.
"THE HINDOO CHARM"—Drama	WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17th.
"SUNNY, OR THE CATTLE THIEF"—Western Drama	THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18th.
"JOHN TOBIN'S SWEETHEART"—Comedy	FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19th.
"OUR WIVES"—Comedy. Special Feature in 2 Parts	SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20th.

The Vitagraph Company releases a special feature in two parts every Saturday and A COMEDY EVERY FRIDAY.
Vitagraph one, three and six sheet posters—special music for all special releases.

THE VITAGRAPH CO. of AMERICA, East 15th St. and Locust Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.



The Counterfeiter's Confederate

The roles of twin sisters who are brought face to face in the climax of this story are played by one person. The wonderful photography and acting which made this possible will causeyour patrons to gasp with astonishment. Two sisters meet, after twenty years, in a counterfeiter's den. One is a counterfeiter, the other an heiress. The blood-tie asserts itself when the former gives up her life to save that of her sister's sweetheart.

Released Monday, September 22d Special 1, 3 and 6-sheet Posters

A Midnight Message

An Unusual Photo Drama in Two Parts

There's a climax in this picture that is heartgripping in intensity. An elderly widower marries a girl many years his junior. Later he unjustly suspects his son and the wife of being in love with each other. His suspicions apparently confirmed, he orders his son to expiate the offense by self-destruction. But all ends well.

Get the Two Superb Special 1-Sheet Posters Also Special 3 and 6-Sheet Posters

Released Wednesday, September 24th

The Hobo and the Myth

Woozy Bill might have made a hit as "Pan" at a Society entertainment, but for the attractions of a champagne punch. And the result is a riot and a lost opportunity.

(On the same reel)

The Largest Duck Farm in the World

The feeding of 15,000 duck at one time is one of the interesting scenes showing the operation of the largest duck farm in the world.

Released Friday, September 26th

A Demand for Justice

The proposed dam at Fenwood would have robbed hundreds of citizens of their homes. Young Williams, an attorney, undaunted by the power of the man who proposed to bring this about, fought for his fellow-townsmen and won. The fight between the citizens and the laborers who are destroying their homes is wonderful in its realism.

Released Saturday, September 27th

Special 1, 3 and 6-sheet Posters

Coming Wednesday, October 1st

The Battle of Fort Laramie

The massacre of an Army Post, after terrific hand-to-hand struggles between red men and white and the burning of the post after victory has gone to the former, form the most vivid portrayal of Frontier Days ever attempted. Based upon an Historical Occurrence. In Two Parts. Watch for next week's announcements.

TRADE KALEM MARK

KALEM COMPANY

235-239 West 23d Street New York

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the
CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square.)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.............................President
E. J. Chalmers......................Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie............Vice-President and General Manager
The office of the company is the address of the officers.

WESTERN OFFICE—169 West Washington Street (Post Building), Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Main 3145.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands ....$3.00 per year
Canada ....3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (postpaid).......... 4.00 per year

ADVERTISING RATES.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING — no display — three cents per word; minimum charge, 50c.

NOTE.—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The index for this issue will be found on page 1222.)

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter.

Saturday, September 13, 1913

Facts and Comments

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD, ever anxious to increase its usefulness to every one of its readers, has made arrangements whereby all of its valuable information for the exhibitor will hereafter be delivered several hours earlier than heretofore. To effect this improvement, which we feel will be greatly welcomed, special arrangements had to be made with the printer, the news companies, the advertisers and the contributors. We have for a long time realized that the tabulated information contained in the paper, such as the release dates, etc., cannot get into the hands of the readers too quickly. Knowing how eagerly many thousands of our readers watch the movements of the mail about the time the paper is due, we have facilitated an earlier delivery and have the promise of co-operation by the news companies. We are now anxious to know whether every reader gets the full benefit of these new arrangements, and we therefore ask our readers to let us know. If there is any delay we want to know it, and each complaint will receive our prompt and immediate attention.

In this connection we would like to have it known and understood that subscribers dealing directly with this office and sending their subscriptions straight to the paper may be sure of receiving their copies at least several hours in advance of the time when they can buy them at the news stands. The value of direct subscriptions is therefore quite apparent. Direct subscribers not only get their papers more quickly but they secure a substantial saving in price. We greatly value direct subscriptions, and direct subscribers are always sure of our first attention.

* * *

THE start of the most promising season in the annals of American kinematography is a good time for taking a new perspective and getting a new grip. It is the purpose of this paper to march in the forefront of the moving picture procession and to keep pace with every phase of kinematographic development. We are constantly planning to make this paper more useful and thoroughly responsive to every legitimate aspiration and movement within the industry. Not the least manifestation of this desire to be useful will be the holding aloft of the higher ideals and an unswerving adherence to exalted standards of art and ethics. This is the best service which a paper devoted to moving pictures can possibly render to the cause. We have never believed and never will believe that our duty begins and ends with the printing of the news and the releases.

*

While seeking to maintain high ideals in pursuance of the policy of the founder of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD the utmost attention will be paid to the practical needs of our readers. In the department of projection vital and pressing problems of immediate importance to the exhibitor are solved by an expert who has made this subject the study of a lifetime and whose reputation has traveled beyond the seas. It stands to reason that under such guidance the difficult science of projection will be expounded with increasing profit to every manager and operator in the country. The value that comes with special talents and long years of training will assert itself more and more in the reviews and comments on the films. It will be our purpose hereafter to see and comment on every picture made, whether licensed or independent or occasional and irregular. The multiple reel, the making of which promises to become a separate branch of the industry, will receive the careful attention it deserves. Increased usefulness will likewise characterize the departments for advertising and scenario writing. With all of us doing our full duty we still need the hints and suggestions of our friends and readers. We count upon their co-operation in the future just as we have depended upon it in the past.

*

One word in conclusion. We believe that the profession of exhibiting moving pictures is constantly rising in importance. The "boom days" are coming to an end and the law of the survival of the fittest will go into effect. We sincerely believe that the steady reader of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD is bound to increase his efficiency and enjoy an advantage over his competitor who is satisfied with looking at the release dates. To get his full money's worth out of the paper the exhibitor must become a careful and conscientious reader. No man can succeed in this business unless he makes a study of it, and THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD is the most dependable reference book in all matters appertaining to any part of the industry. We are always pleased to answer questions, and never hesitate to take pains and trouble to satisfy correspondents. The moral of it all is: READ THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

Photoplay Principles.

By Louis Reeves Harrison

A MAN who adheres to high principles in any walk of life treads no path of roses. He may think he has mastered a subject, may be well equipped to express his views in print, and he may be generally sane and sound, yet he has abundant opportunity to err in writing several hundreds of thousands of words during a year for publication. If he happens to be a critic of other men's work, even if he adheres closely to creative and helpful criticism, he is bound to excite some antagonism, but it is better in the end for him to take a positive stand. Negative recommendations are of small general interest and still less value.

I have read a lot of theories relating to dramatic construction, and I do not know of anything easier for a well-informed man to do than make axioms on that subject, but those who are bound to attain success usually start with a solid foundation of good common sense, learn all rules, use those suited to their own ideas and reject the rest. Writers are obliged to analyze, classify and generalize on the subject in hand, but most of them are like preachers who storm from the pulpit, stronger in profession than in performance. I do not feel restricted as a playwright by any dogmas I lay down as a critic.

As a specimen of wholly unsolicited advice, and by way of a proper course of action for those aspiring to write successful photodramas, I suggest that they consider all views and simply reject those that are specked, that have the slightest appearance of being unsound. Simply acquire all the information obtainable on a subject and utilize only such portions as appeal to individual judgment. By way of adding to our general fund of information on the art of writing photoplays, I take the liberty of quoting from a letter recently written to me by a Boston playwright named John Remble:

"How can a professional writer take to photoplay writing seriously when his work must apparently be submitted to more or less incompetent editors, editors who in many cases seem to lack sufficient education to even know the correct meaning of the terms they employ in passing critical judgment on a script? Do not understand me as including all editors in this judgment—there are some, I am sure, who not only take their work seriously and earnestly but who bring trained minds to bear upon their labor; but they do seem to be in a rather hopeless minority.

"First of all, they bar what they are pleased to call 'narrativeness' in a script. According to them, and according to many other writers on the same subject, action should be the medium used and never narrative. As a matter of fact, if the photoplay was to be written in any but narrative form—what would that form be? A photoplay must tell a story, the screen to the eyes, the script to the editor and director, and there is only one way of telling a story not visualized and that is by the use of narration." (The words "not visualized" are inserted.)

Mr. Remble has strong dictionary support. The first definition given in my Century of "narration" is "the act of recounting or relating in order the particulars of some action." Photoplay scripts are commonly known as scenarios, and, from the theatrical point of view, a scenario is a sort of skeleton of the general movement of the plot and of the successive appearances of the characters. This form, stripped of all but bare indications of action, is sometimes used by directors, particularly those who write their own plays. If Mr. Remble eventually produces his own plays, he may adopt this handy form himself.

It might be possible for the writer of a farce-comedy for split-reel use to begin his script with a synopsis of a dozen or two lines and thereafter confine himself to a few brief directions in each scene, and I have reason to think that this is sometimes done. I have never, however, seen any scenarios accepted from authors outside of the studios, nor from men who may well be styled professional writers, those who provide most of the big plays, that were in other than narrative form, and many of them contained from five thousand to ten thousand words. A scenario of my own that Mr. Blackton produced exactly as it was written contained about six thousand words, and I found it hard work to cut that down for magazine publication.

In further illustration, I recently gave favorable notice to several photodramas produced by a leading house and made the discovery that they were all from one author. I am not at liberty to give his name, as his scenarios were shown me in confidence, but they were written with elaboration as well as care in the matter of detail. Now those are the very scenarios that are winning out in a large way. No live scenario editor need be distressed by their formidable appearance. If the matter is well presented from the outset, there is strong incentive to give it thorough examination, time better spent than that used in trying to make something out of the nothingness of the great mass.

In relation to producing interesting mental processes on the screen, Mr. Remble says: "Involved mental processes are behind every action, and reveal themselves in expression as well as action. Unexplained action would only lead to misconception on the part of the producer, since action varies and is formed by character. The author who creates a character alone knows and can explain the meaning of its actions and expressions, and he does it in a script as he does in a play to assist the director." Mr. Remble continues in a line with what appears in my article on double exposure in the "Motion Picture Annual" to place high value on showing what the characters think. I do not quote from his presentation of this value from lack of space and because it is now being appreciated by far-sighted producers.

It is a pleasure to hear from men of high ideals, who hope "that photoplays will attain something of the dignity of the drama," and the time is not far away when men of high ideals will be those most sought by producers "Until that time comes," Mr. Remble continues, "I do not see how intelligent and progressive writers can be expected to give their most serious thought to photoplays, or seek motion-picture expression for their best creations." Nor does any other professional writer of wide experience, but indications point to the approach of that period. It is coming through those producers who see the tremendous advantages of high-class feature plays.

"It is well enough," the Boston playwright says in conclusion, "to spend thousands of dollars upon effects, costumes and large casts, but it is infinitely more essential to carefully study the characterization and dramatic development of the scenario. Involved mental processes will not be found difficult by performers of intelligence, nor will a director find it hard to show the audience what the characters are thinking." Surely not! When the embargo on creative genius has been lifted, there will be visualized stories on the screen undreamed of in present philosophy, powerful dramas of contemporary life, and there will be general rejoicing when they come.

The Real Enemy.

By W. Stephen Bush

PERHAPS the most remarkable thing about the moving picture is its vitality. It would be hard to enumerate all the tests, trials and ordeals which it has survived with a joyous and smiling countenance. Monsters of ignorance, prejudice and stupidity have risen up against it and have been promptly flattened out. Hordes of cheap little men who saw nothing in the pictures but a variation of the dime museum or side show next assailed it like so many pigmies swarming upon the huge body of Gulliver. This vast swarm, ranging in harmfulness from the mosquito to the tse-tse fly, gave up the attempt and fled away as if pursued by clouds of smoke. Ape-like vaudeville came next, and all through the country sprang up so-called moving picture vaudeville exchanges. This atrocious brand of vaudeville was mixed with moving pictures. When the smoke of battle cleared away, moving pictures were found to be intact, while the cheap vaudeville disappeared in thin curls of odoriferous vapors. All this time an army representing every variety of the genus crank howled on, making God's orderly and peaceful day hideous with declamations against the moving picture. There were some men who conceived the idea that it was possible to corner moving pictures, but they found there was a hole in every corner.

Presently other weapons were employed. Press and stage began to ridicule the picture. Now, ridicule handled by men of brains and education is indeed a deadly weapon, and has often hurt the best of causes and the best of men. The shafts of ridicule must, however, be sent to their aim by the sinew of Ulysses, else they will speed not much further than the end of the bow. Men who spend their wit and satire in the daily press and eke out columns of "Humor" and "Irony" at so much per may shoot their arrows at the moving picture without the slightest possibility of harm. All the supposedly funny vaudeville sketches written and acted to parody the moving picture are pitifully lacking in real fun.

Within the last week, however, a more serious attempt was made to cast ridicule on the motion picture. A youthful playwright, not without some good comedies to his credit, trained the batteries of his wit and his poetic invention on the moving picture stage. If the reviews of the daily papers are any criterion the young playwright cut himself with the two-edged sword of ridicule. The critics went at him as a riotous crowd at the county fair "goes for" the colored gentleman who allows three shots at his head for five cents. The plan was called "Kiss Me Quick." One of the critics suggested an alteration in the title to the tune of "Kill Me Quick." It was another case of the double-edged sword in hands of no skill or cunning, and the result was disastrous to the presumptuous user of the deadly weapon. No one will deny that the moving picture offers a legitimate target for satire; indeed, it is a hard thing to look at some moving pictures and keep from writing a satire. If the thing had been cleverly done it would have been entitled to roars of Homeric laughter. There is no sting in a clever burlesque. A travesty conceived and executed in even a riotous spirit would not hurt the motion picture.

It is safe to say that the danger to the motion picture threatens not from without but from within. No friend of the picture fears for its life; it is like Dryden's Milk-White Hind, "fated not to die." There are, however, not wanting signs of a certain decrease of interest. For these signs the picture itself, or rather its producers, are responsible. We diagnose these signs as symptoms of weariness in consequence of the sameness of subjects and the close similarity of treatment.

The other day I happened to be in the projection room of a well-known producer. Seven or eight machines were going at once, showing advance views of certain coming releases. The object was to discover serious defects which might be remedied at the last moment before the films were sent out into the world. What a lesson these pictures afforded to the impartial and disinterested looker-on. I cast my eye over all of them, and before I had followed the action in each for more than five minutes it was perfectly apparent that though there were seven or eight pictures there were but two types represented in the whole series; one type was the melodrama and the other so-called farce-comedy. Analyzing still further, I saw all of the familiar individual types that had worn out their gloss of newness in less than a scant year after moving pictures became popular. There was the tramp and the freight car, there was the che-i-ild weeping at bedtime, there was the wronged working girl and the villain in his best evening dress, there was the "funny" chase with the running men and women falling and piling up in a confused heap and there was the interior of the police station and the usual message of distress with the whiskered sergeant ready to receive it. Here is the real enemy to the further upward course of the motion picture; here is the only real barrier to the further growth of its popularity.

Even the men who have grown rich on this sort of thing are beginning to realize that the public are getting weary of stereotyped screen work. The dreadful "Westerns," which but two and three years ago formed nearly forty per cent. of the average moving picture program, have been cast overboard, but the stale melodrama with all its ancient but not venerable props seems loath to follow suit. We may depend on it that the public will signify its weariness of all such threadbare stuff in a most telling and emphatic way if there come no change for the better.

The thing to strive after is a higher average. This applies both to the single reel as well as to the feature of two and more parts. We have seen the cheap agonies of the melodrama padded into many a three and four reel feature.

In what manner is this change for the better to come; how are the worst and most offensive of these hackneyed stories and characters to be eliminated? Perhaps a special convention or agreement of all earnest and ambitious producers may be suggested. A closed season for about three years may safely be declared on these overworked and senseless types:

The Outlaw,
The Sheriff,
The Queen of the Ranch,
The Half-breed,
The Bandit (Foreign and Domestic).
The Stage Child,
The Gambler,
The Gangster,
The Freight Car Tramp.

The list might probably be swelled if a vote were taken among exhibitors and the public generally. If these tiresome figures do not disappear soon the moving picture will come in for a lot of just ridicule, and ridicule based on justice always hurts.

The next result will be the failure of such pictures to pay dividends either to the producer or to the exhibitor. Such consequences are indeed slow in coming, but they are as unpitying as fate. The good will then suffer with the bad. The ridiculous excess of the so-called Western three years ago is a lesson to the point.

"The Ghost of the Hacienda" (American)

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

COMPANY No. 2 of the American Film Manufacturing Company is to be commended for excellent work in a two-reel subject, "The Ghost of the Hacienda," under the direction of Producer Ricketts. It is quite a time since I have seen any of Mr. Ricketts' work, but I can recall a number of fine productions made by him some years ago at Essanay's studio, in this city. Under his experienced direction it can be safely predicted that the future has in store for patrons of the American's product a list of meritorious subjects.

The new leading lady of Company No. 2, Miss Winnifred Greenwood, will be especially welcomed. She will be easily called to mind by her talented work in the role of Pauline Cushman, in the photodrama of that title by Selig Polyscope Company. In the titular role of the subject under review, Miss Greenwood is in every way acceptable. She meets all the requirements with the grace, ease and skill of an accomplished artiste, and her costumes are in fine taste.

The Proposal in "The Ghost of the Hacienda."

The American management has also a very promising acquisition in Edward Coxen, the new leading man of this company. As Jesse Thompson, the young civil engineer and accepted lover of Enid Hale (Miss Greenwood), Mr. Coxen is a good-looking, virile young man, a manly lover and thoroughly at home on horseback. His assumption of the role is at all times pleasing. George Field is to be commended for fine character work in the parts of Senor Tocquinado and El Capitan, and Wm. Tedmarsh deserves special mention for his impersonation of Pedro, the old Mexican retainer. Chester Withey is praiseworthy as Mr. Hale, owner of the hacienda and father of Enid.

There are several beautiful exteriors in these films. The interior views do not come out satisfactorily. The lighting is defective in some of them, and there is almost a total absence of half tones. The latter is evidently due to some oversight in the development of the negative.

Mr. Hale and his daughter, Enid, take possession of his latest purchase, the Hacienda de Alameda. It has been in the possession of Spaniards from Old Mexico, for hundreds of years. Old Pedro, the trusted retainer of the former master, is kept on the household staff. He sees in Enid a remarkable likeness to her aunt, Senorita Ysolda, who had been slain in the hacienda forty years before by El Capitan, a bandit.

Jesse Thompson, a civil engineer and son of an old friend of Mr. Hale, arrives at the hacienda. He is received as a member of the family, and the young people's love affairs progress so rapidly that young Thompson proposes and is accepted shortly after his arrival.

Senor Tocquinado, who lives on the adjoining estate, calls on the Hales. He also visits young Thompson a few days afterwards, while he is at work on the railroad. A strike among the laborers for back wages occurs during Tocquinado's stay, and it is stopped by the reading of a telegram from Thompson Sr., which announces that $10,000 in gold has been shipped by messengers to meet the wage list. The gold arrives and is stored in Hale's hacienda until the morning.

The Attack on the Hacienda in "The Ghost of the Hacienda."

Tocquinado, who is in reality the El Capitan of forty years before, determines to disguise himself, summon his old brigand gang, and raid the Hale hacienda. The band arrives shortly after midnight, but a withering fire from the windows of the mansion greets them. The ammunition of the defenders is soon exhausted and the robbers, headed by Tocquinado disguised as El Capitan, attempt to batter in the doors. Just as the heavy timbers are shattered by the shocks, Enid recalls Pedro's story of her aunt Ysolda. Assisted by her maid, she dresses herself as her aunt was dressed on the fearful night of her assassination. The robbers have just rushed into the hallway, headed by Tocquinado, when she comes slowly down the large stairway. The Mexican bandits cry out at sight of her and mutter prayers while they try to gain strength for flight. Tocquinado, who is suffering from heart disease, falls dead at the feet of the supposed ghost. Pedro pulls off the leader's mask and it is revealed that Senor Tocquinado and El Capitan, the old time bandit leader, are one and the same.

The release date is set for September 22.

AUTHORS' NAMES UPON THE SCREEN.

Word comes from the executive offices of the Selig Polyscope Company in Chicago to the effect that they will hereafter incorporate the names of the more popular scenario writers in the announcement title of their principal releases. Some twenty-five or thirty Selig contributors have already been accorded this honor. Recognition of the scenario writer has been agitated pro and con for several years and the Selig Company will undoubtedly receive much praise for its pioneer work in this line.

A TEXAS INCORPORATION.

The business of the Southern Film Service, of Houston, Texas, has been incorporated for $20,000. They carry a full line of moving picture machines, supplies and repairs and are building up a satisfactory film exchange business under the management of J. G. Withington.

Mrs. Fiske Triumphs as "Tess."

The Famous Players' Five-Part Production Is a Charming Picture—Strong In All Departments.

By George Blaisdell.

AT THE Lyceum Theater on Tuesday afternoon there were gathered by invitation of Daniel Frohman and Harrison Grey Fiske many friends of Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske. The occasion was the initial showing of the five-part screen reproduction of "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," in which Mrs. Fiske sustains the title role. The great actress repeats before the camera the success she achieved on the stage. The unfolding of the absorbing story of Thomas Hardy was followed by a silence that in itself was the best indication of the spell thrown over the entire house by this film drama. There was never a moment when the interest slackened. There was a steady pull at the heartstrings, lightened on rare occasions by flashes of humor, as for instance in the first part when the Durbeyfields are convinced of their descent from the knightly family of the D'Urbervilles. Again, at the wedding of Tess and Angel Clare, there is laughter through the tears as the three girl friends of the bride — and unavowed rivals — refuse to speak to her.

Scene from "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" (Famous Players).

The interest in this picture will, of course, center about Mrs. Fiske. Her admirers will not be disappointed. True it is that the appealing voice will not be heard; but there will remain the art of revealing through expression the tumult that surges in the bosom. The face of Tess may be as a piece of stone, but the eyes tell the whole story. You see, you feel, the tears. There are a multiplicity of strong situations. One of the most pathetic is where Tess, forbidden by her father to go for a clergyman that her unnamed child may not die unbaptized, awakes her sisters, and, in the bare attic, herself performs a ceremony. One of the most dramatic is where the husband of Tess, informed by his wife on the evening of the wedding day of her past in reply to a similar burst of confidence on his part, flies into a rage and later falls asleep by the fire. In a somnambulistic stroll he dreams that Tess is dead. He goes to the bridal chamber and finds Tess on the couch at the head of the bed. Picking her up in his arms he carries her downstairs, lays her by the fire, puts a candle at each side of her, and then returns to his couch. The woman who is to be bride in name only arises from the floor and places a mantle over the sleeping figure. The fifth reel is the strongest of all. It is here where Tess, deserted and her family in want, is again in the grasp of Alec D'Urberville, the betrayer; she is sought out by her husband, now of changed mind. It is too late. Tess goes to the room of D'Urberville. She returns and tells Clare that she has killed him. Clare takes his wife to the Temple of the Druids, where the two are found in each other's arms the next morning by the officers of the law.

Scene from "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" (Famous Players).

The support of Mrs. Fiske is uniformly excellent. Criticism may be made as to the comparative youth of Raymond Bond, who plays Angel Clare. Mr. Bond, however, has played in the company of Mrs. Fiske and is said to have been her selection for the part. David Torrence is strong as Alec D'Urberville. The father and mother of Tess were played by John Steppling and Mary Barker. They were the chief figures of the first reel, and their excellent character work is deserving of high praise. Mr. Steppling is an experienced camera player; his portrayal of the dissolute John Durbeyfield shows it. It was Mrs. Barker's first appearance in a picture. It is one of the tragedies of the screen that it also was her last. She did not live to see projected the film in which is preserved a record of the drama in which she had appeared in every speaking performance. James Gordon, who will be recognized by picture followers, is excellent as the robust head of the dairy farm.

The backgrounds were chosen with rare good judgment. In truth, it is in this factor of the picture, as well as in Mr. Murphy's artistic interiors, that will be noted one of its chief claims to distinction. There is the great palace of the D'Urbervilles and its surrounding grounds. The rose garden is a thing of beauty. Many of the settings were applauded by the Lyceum audience, and all deserved it. Some of the scenes of rural life, of meadow, stream and hill, will linger in the memory—even in the memory of those who see many pictures. The photography matched the locations. Not only was it exceptional in quality; but, by reason of the unusual skill displayed in the filming of sunsets and cloud effects, it will stand in a class by itself.

Taken altogether—considering the story, the acting, the direction, the backgrounds, the photography—"Tess of the D'Urbervilles" is a great picture. Speaking calmly, the writer believes it one of the greatest ever made. It will redound to the credit of American kinematography. For this result we may thank Adolph Zukor, Daniel Frohman, Edwin S. Porter and J. Searle Dawley, whose splendid coöperation has made it possible.

"THE RIVALS" IN KINEMACOLOR.

William Winter Jefferson In His Father's Famous Role of "Bob Acres."

It has always been a matter of great regret to chroniclers of the drama that the celebrated impersonations of great actors of the past survive only in tradition, aided by a few photographic poses and pages of description. These latter differ so, according to the standpoint and mental focus of the spectator, that after a few years only tradition remains. The little tricks of manner, expression and gesture which go to make up that indefinable yet indispensable asset of an actor known as "personality" cannot be preserved except through the medium of that very impersonal machine, the moving picture camera.

The late Joseph Jefferson was taken by the Biograph in certain scenes of his famous "Rip Van Winkle," but by that time he was too old to appear before the uncompromising camera in his equally celebrated impersonation of Bob Acres, in "The Rivals." However, his son, William Winter Jefferson (named after the veteran critic who has best described Jefferson's art), determined that Bob Acres should be reincarnated through the medium of Kinemacolor, and plays the part in frank imitation of his father.

The scenes, however, have been selected with a view to providing realism impossible on the stage of Jefferson's time. Most of them have been taken on the beautiful estate of E. M. Smathers, at Larchmont, where the house and gardens are of the real old English style. The play is being staged by Theodore Marston, and Mr. Jefferson is surrounded by an excellent acting company, including Lorraine Frost, late leading lady with William H. Crane; George Staley, Dallas Anderson and other legitimate players.

Miss Margaret Prussing, who has been a member of the Chicago stocks of the Selig Polyscope Company, has resigned her position with that organization to enter the cast of William A. Brady's "Little Women," which will open shortly in New York.

"Silent Heroes"

Two-Reel Broncho War Drama.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

THIS is an unusual story because the plot-interest is aroused by natural sentiment rather than by tricks of theatricalism. It is in the regular order of military plays for the hero—he is called "Burton" in this case—to prove his courage after suffering from accusation of cowardice, but development of the story is decidely more in line with what might be expected of a manly young American in the "Silent Hero." That there have been so many war stories of no particular merit in themselves, depending almost entirely upon action in the field to redeem them, with scarcely an atom of originality as an excuse for their existence, is due to the amateur. He soon runs short of ideas, where a professional writer would gather in the giving, and flounders badly in attempting to make some other man's ideas appear to be his own. This has led to the manufacture of plots by hands unskilled and a monotony of production very trying to the patience of motion picture audiences.

Scene from "Silent Heroes" (Broncho).

While it is necessary to consider the structure of a play in measuring one of its leading characters, it is almost as important to correctly measure the leading character in considering a play. Burton is a young American, a soldier by training, a member of the home guard in a small southern town when the retreat of Lee makes it imperative to call out reserves. It is in the nature of things for him to respond and to do so with racial manliness under stress, unless some powerful motive exists for his remaining at home. The Civil War revealed that there was no cowardice in such men—they were among the greatest fighters known in history—and the many exhibitions of cowardice on the screen constitute so many libels on those who laid down their lives that we might live in safety and comfort.

Scene from "Silent Heroes" (Broncho).

It is, therefore, a relief to see the genuine man portrayed. Burton resigns from his company at a moment every man is needed at the front from motives of loftiest courage. Greater than man in his work of destruction is man's creator, the mother. The young man's mother, herself of heroic material, lies at the point of death, in as sore need as her country. Her son decides to help fight her battle and brave the odium attached to those who were able and unwilling to go to the front. Instead of bearing it in silence—the title is misleading—he resents the imputation as any sane and true-hearted American would under the circumstances. His conduct is logical while he stands by his mother, and his heroism after her death is plausible.

The second reel is filled with stirring scenes of battle, in which Burton participates after his tender sacrifice, some of the most spirited scenes being laid in a southern village street. The barricade, hand-to-hand fighting is intensely realistic. Even the after-scenes preserve the atmosphere in showing the results of battle, the surgical operations and pathetic recognition by friends and relatives of those who gave all they had to give for the sake of family and home. There is a certain nobility preserved to the end. Bronchos are weak in titles and there is no excuse for this. It would require no great intellectual effort to be more original, nor in selecting appropriate names for this line of plays.

ONLY TWO HUNTERS OF BIG GAME NOW ACTIVE.

R. T. Cunningham, big game hunter, late with Colonel Roosevelt, in Africa, has retired, weary of risking his life in the dangerous pursuit.

W. Kenyon has lately returned from Norway to London, for the purpose of outfitting for his last expedition into Central Africa.

Arthur J. Aylesworth is already hundreds of miles on his way North from Edmunton, into the unknown reaches of the MacKenzie Basin with an equipment of everything from cook department to sleeping bags, and five thousand rounds of ammunition. Ten pack horses, guides, cooks, assistants, three camera men, a director, and 30,000 feet of film is a part of the equipment, and will permit Aylesworth to get everything from hunt pictures to dramatic stories of the frozen North.

The expedition will, in part, follow the outposts of the Hudson Bay Trading Company, for which one of the most noted French-Canadian voyagers and guides has been secured.

Mr. Aylesworth upholds the claim of Wiljhalmur Stefannson, the Arctic explorer, that there is a tribe of blonde Eskimos, whiter than white men, numbering over 300, and they will be recorded in film, before this intrepid nimrod again stalks south of 53!

The Canadian Government and game wardens of Western States have fortified Aylesworth with documentary permission to depict the life, habits and method of killing, one specimen of each of the big game of North America, now rapidly becoming extinct.

Offices for the exploiting of this variety of Far North pictures have been opened upon the ninth floor of the World's Tower Building, 110 West 40th Street, with Ernest Shipman, who is interested in the enterprise, in charge of its business affairs.

KLEINE POSTERS CREATE SENSATION.

What is probably a unique record in the sale of posters, is being established by George Kleine in offering theaters one, three and six sheets for less money than the cost of manufacture. What has always been considered a revenue maker for the film manufacturer has been turned to the debit side by Kleine in an effort to provide the highest grade of theatrical poster for the picture business. No finer lithographs can be made. Instead of the cheap make-shift usual to picture advertising, Kleine's lithographs are superior to those offered by big circuit theatrical companies. Owing to the splendid recognition given, the exchanges are increasing their orders steadily.

"DOOM OF DARKNESS" A SUCCESS.

The four-reel dramatic feature of the True Feature Company, entitled, "The Doom of Darkness," has met with a most cordial reception both at the hands of the critics and the exhibitors. The feature is now booked in various parts of the country and new applications from pleased exhibitors are constantly coming into the offices of the company in the Tower Building, 110-112 West 40th Street. The True Feature Company have a big stock of high quality features on hand. They announce a special four-reel release, "'Twixt Heaven and Earth," of tremendous interest. Their dramas from the world of sports are also in great demand.

"Twickenham Ferry"

A Reliance Pastel.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

A QUAINT production of exquisite exteriors made in illustration of the song:

'Tis but a penny to Twickenham Town.
The ferryman's slim and the ferryman's young
He has just a soft twang in the turn of his tongue;
And he's fresh as a pippin and brown as a berry

And 'tis but a penny to Twickenham town.

It adds variety and charm to the program to break away at times from the strict limits already surveyed and carefully mapped out by those who believe that the photoplay should be exactly thus and so. It must not be forgotten, also, that poetry and the drama were in very close alliance and may yet return to their former association. I do not mean by poetry such a lyric as that just quoted, rather that which is delicately artistic or endowed with the quality of poesy, especially that which recalls the flavor of a time that has gone forever, yet which deals with the unfading love of young hearts.

I'm for the ferry.
The briar's in bud; the sun's going down
How shall I get me to Twickenham town
She's a rose in her bonnet and looked as sweet
As the little pink flower that grows in the wheat
With her cheeks like a rose and her lips like a cherry
You're welcome I'm sure to Twickenham ferry.

Scene from "Twickenham Ferry" (Reliance).

A half-spoiled young artiste of grand opera is induced to sing the quaint old song into a phonograph just before her departure to the country for a complete rest. She sets out heart-free, spiced for adventure, and descends at a wayside station. She is confronted by a youth as brown as a berry, who offers to carry her across the stream to where she can board during her stay. He becomes fascinated on the way when she sings the verses she has used in making a phonographic record, and falls in love like another countryman did in Charles Reade's story of Peg Woffington.

The opera singer is another such enchantress as Peg, and it amuses her to trifle with the ardent rustic, all unaware, as was Woffington, that there was a previous attachment. The young ferryman has a sweetheart. She goes to the singer and pleads so eloquently that the artiste is finally moved. She writes a note to the rustic who is as "fresh as a pippin" and tells him that their little romance is over. He pines after she goes until he hears "Twickenham Ferry" played on a phonograph, when he recognizes the loved one's voice, and becomes aware of her identity. He goes to the city and finds her, but leaves when she dispels his illusions by artifice.

He returns heart-broken to woodland scenes that were endowed with new beauty by her presence and becomes reconciled to the sweetheart of other days, but—

"The briar's in bud; the sun's going down—
He's not rowing quick, and he's not rowing steady.
You'd think 'twas a journey to Twickenham town.
O. hoi! and O. ho! You may call as you will,
The moon is arising on Petersham Hill,
And with love like a rose in the stern of a wherry
There's danger in crossing to Twickenham Town."

"The Red Powder"

A Three-Part Apex Feature.

Review by Hugh Hoffman.

THE Germans are beginning to be heard from. With this picture to judge by, it is pretty safe to predict that in the not far distant future our Teutonic friends will be setting the pace in the making of motion pictures. This one, "The Red Powder," which we had the pleasure of viewing recently, is the best German production that has come to our notice. The acting is perfect; the photography is as clear as crystal; the settings are well chosen, and the story is good. In addition to this, the film is full of sensational incidents that must have required an extraordinary amount of executive ability on the part of the director.

Scene from "The Red Powder" (Apex).

These sensational incidents include the complete demolition of a stone building by high explosives, some great mob scenes, numerous blasting scenes, a motor boat pursuit, the annihilation of a sail boat by explosion, a run of fire apparatus, and the situation of the arch plotter and his innocent wife and child suspended from a derrick above a frantic mob clamoring for their lives. These mob scenes are wonderfully well done. There are at least two hundred men and women who are genuine working people and their action in showing a violent discontent speaks volumes for the director.

The story in general tells of a chemist who works out a formula for a new high explosive. With the exception of one ingredient, the formula is stolen by a fellow worker. The inventor is killed by a premature explosion and the man who stole his formula floats a large company on the existing supply of the red powder. When this gives out he is unable to produce more and the company fails. The real inventor, on his death, imparted the missing ingredient to his family, and when the thief is arrested the family comes into possession of the complete formula.

PHOTOPLAYERS HAVE LIVE MANAGER.

In Benny Singer, the Photoplayers Club of Los Angeles possesses a live manager. He not only runs the club with efficiency, but keeps the good will of all its members. Mr. Singer is from New York, and was for a long time connected with the Palmer and Madison Theaters, while he was stage director for many of the Hoyt productions. He also had a long experience with club and hotel business, being either manager or head steward for hotels in New York, Buffalo, San Antonio, Texas, and Los Angeles. He ran the hotel at Redondo Beach among others. Mr. Singer firmly believes that the Photoplayers Club will be one of the foremost Bohemian clubs in the states, and it is surely heading that way. The latest innovation is a Saturday night beefsteak dinner—it is a popular one, too.

Mr. John F. Pribyl, personal representative of W. N. Selig, is undergoing a rather serious spell of illness. The doctors have pronounced the ailment a combination of yellow jaundice and peritonitis. Mr. Pribyl's condition has somewhat improved during the last week and he is again able to be at his desk at the Selig offices.

Moving Picture Educator

UNDER WATER PICTURES.

WHEN pictures were first beginning to become educational; and the choice of subjects became an interesting one, it was only natural that the hope became real that not only birds and animals would be shown upon the screen but also fishes and other denizens of the waters. That reproductions of the beautiful tanks in the aquariums might be assured was at that time quite an anticipation of value, even as pictures of the animals in the various zoological gardens were being produced, to the delight of thousands of young people who had no other way of becoming acquainted with these attractive inhabitants of the jungles. That which in those early days seemed an ambitious achievement was, however, destined soon to become an insignificant little thing.

Animals in captivity soon ceased to satisfy; nothing less than pictures of them in their own native surroundings would suffice. Accordingly intrepid huntsmen and photographers were soon establishing themselves in the jungles of Africa and India, so that to-day we have "Wild Birds in their Haunts" and "Beasts of the Jungle," in all their thrilling naturalness, wildness and savagery.

In like manner pictures of fishes in confinement are too tame and unreal to satisfy either naturalist, scholar, or student; consequently under water pictures must be obtained. Fortunately we are living in times when one has only to suggest a great undertaking, and some one is soon ready to endeavor at least to carry out the purpose, no matter how seemingly impossible or hazardous. In this instance the son of a man who invented a submarine tube is using that tube to descend hundreds of feet beneath the water to obtain these unusual pictures. The end of the tube is fitted with a chamber in which three men can work and live for several hours on one supply of air. If necessary, electric lights are used, and fishes being attracted thereby are photographed in large numbers. Pictures were taken at various depths, from fifteen feet to fifty feet; at the present time no very great depths have been tried. One method was to suspend a bait so that it hung in front of the window from which the pictures were to be taken; fishes large and small were attracted, and a picture, unique in a collection of such a divers kind of fishes, as would, of course, be otherwise impossible, was secured. As a special picture one of the party agreed to dive past the windowed chamber, when only at the fifteen feet depth; as he shot past the window his picture was perfectly taken. These intrepid photographers are planning to cruise in the West Indies, where pictures of greatest interest are anticipated; they do not hesitate to predict that within a very short time they will be able to take pictures of anything under water.

Under these conditions and circumstances, we are assured of as wide a range and as interesting a series of pictures as at present produced in any line of educational work; the results will be of a value beyond computation.

A Useful Bit of Knowledge.

No lover of moving pictures has failed to notice that in many pictures there is often a strong wind blowing, giving unusual movement to trees and the garments of people in the picture. To many this has perhaps seemed only an incident, perfectly natural, yet strangely omnipresent.

One explanation given for this is, that if the pictures were taken with the air perfectly still, whenever the players themselves were also still, the effect might be to produce a "dead" picture; hence it is always better to have things moving. Accordingly the better photographers select a time when the wind is somewhat active. A reel is much more effective when a general movement characterizes the whole subject—trees swaying, waves tossing, skirts flying and hair "blowing in the breeze." In a moving picture it is essential that things be kept moving. Another reason is that the atmospheric conditions are more favorable to photography when the air is in motion; it is also clearer; pictures of a more snappy character can be taken at such times; for these reasons camera men select windy days.

It is possible that many people, especially young people, will be glad to possess those little bits of knowledge, seemingly simple, yet of vital importance. The writer has often heard comments upon the "windiness" of pictures, and has often wished that more people were acquainted with this fact and lesson; the "why" in pictures is always profitable.

"TIMBUCTOO OF THE SOUDAN" AND "CASABLANCA IN MOROCCO."

These pictures have a distinctively interesting value peculiar to themselves. Unlike anything common to the public knowledge they reveal cities as yet untouched by western methods or modern advances; save for the presence of a steam crane on the docks of Morocco there is nothing which is not native to the surroundings of these cities; typical of a civilization peculiar and independent in itself. The style of architecture shows the tops of the buildings as parallel to the ground, the roofs of the building being as level as the ground upon which they are built. The habits and customs of the people have continued unchanged for many generations, if not for ages. In this respect, when shown in schools, pupils will be able to see how the old world, in those parts, lived and thrived. There seems to be a certain average standard of medium prosperity in each of these widely separated cities; and a study of their details is intended to impart the value for which such pictures are taken. They will also, if preserved, in years to come, be most invaluable records of a history which is of importance in the study of places, peoples, types and customs.

AN EDUCATIONAL EXPERIMENT.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association, 92d Street and Lexington Avenue, New York City, is anxious to introduce educational motion pictures in connection with its social, philanthropic and educational work. Through the generosity of the president of the association, the association is in possession of a magnificent motion picture machine.

It is desired to conduct a great educational experiment with the motion picture films in this institution during this year. The attendance in the various departments of the Young Men's Hebrew Association was 229,000 last year. Those to whom the idea appeals are requested to communicate with Mr. Leo Mannheimer, Executive Director of the Association, at the address given.

AN EDUCATIONAL TEST.

The Bradford City Education Committee, Bradford, England, has made a practical test of the educational value of the kinematograph. Two classes, each numbering 1,200 of boys and girls separately, from the secondary schools of the city, have been formed to witness at one of the public halls a display of specially selected films—travel pictures, natural history subjects, etc.—and if the experiment proves satisfactory it is suggested that subjects dealt with during the school work of the session shall be included. This is said to be the most practical attempt that has yet been made in England, London excepted, to test the value of the kinematograph as an educational adjunct. In London the education committee of the country council has recently decided to install the kinematograph in a number of the council schools.

The Ryno Film Company, producing "Dragon" films, is releasing a three-reel feature, entitled "The Blindness of Courage" or "Between Two Loves." In producing this feature no expense has been spared, and the thrilling scene of the complete demolition of an Indian stockade nearly cost the life of the director, Jack Noble.

"Get Off At Lubin"

The Largest Outdoor Studio in the World—A Printing Plant With a Capacity of Seven Million Feet Per Week.

WITHIN a few weeks the Pennsylvania Railroad will change the name of a station on one of the main lines near Philadelphia. The name "Betzwood" scarcely warm on the map and known to but a few faithful commuters will be metamorphosed into "Lubin." There is good cause for the change. The telling of the cause unfolds a most instructive and interesting chapter in American moving picture history.

Every detail of the story is worth recording, for it shows most convincingly how the moving picture always manages to cross the line first. So many influences nowadays work on behalf of the moving picture, some consciously and others unwittingly, and this story deals with the latter kind.

"Betzwood," be it known, was named after a thrifty German who more than a quarter of a century ago began to mix an acceptable brew of malt, hops, water and some other things known to chemical experts. Like most men who prefer to minister to the material rather than the spiritual comforts of mankind, this thrifty German piled up much currency and when he had far more than he could expend in ordinary ways he bought a large and splendid estate on the banks of the Schuylkill, not far from historic Valley Forge. Nature had favored this region beyond others and presented itself to her admirers in "various moods." Of this more anon. Suffice it to say here that Betz had an eye for natural beauty, that he was fond of beautiful trees and green lawns and hedges and that he had the money to indulge his tastes. Thus it came to pass that a sort of Paradise grew up on the confines of the counties of Philadelphia and Montgomery. The estate formed no inconsiderable part of Montgomery County; public roads ran through the grounds, there were ponds and breaks, miniature gorges and canyons. Some called it the Switzerland of Eastern Pennsylvania. Then one day about three years ago Betz passed over to the great majority and his heirs came into possession. Here enters Lubin. He made an offer to the heirs; it was accepted and thus Betzwood will cease to be and the station, for some years to come at least, will be known as Lubin.

I will anticipate the Pennsylvania Railroad and drop Betzwood right now and give it the name of Lubin. I have seen all the big studios of Europe and have duly admired them. Lubin rivals the greatest and best of Italy and France. It is, to begin with, far larger than any other outdoor or indoor studio. In the Indian days of Pennsylvania history they used to measure land by the distance a swift runner could traverse from sunrise to sunset. It would take just about this measure to indicate the tremendous size of Lubin. There is no producer to-day, either here or abroad, with finer facilities for making fine pictures. I refer not alone to the splendid varieties of wild and artificial landscape and to the glorious views, but also to the extraordinary clearness and purity of the air and the crystal water.

It is the intention to do a great deal of printing at Lubin, not for the Lubin studio alone, but for the public generally. The technical equipments for this printing are simply perfect. Tom Cochran, the Napoleon of Moving Picture Advertising and now one of the Lubin chiefs, has condensed a vast budget of information, interesting to every reader, into tabloid form. I am quoting from his report:

Building No. 6, which is part of the laboratory proper, is seventy feet wide and two hundred and ten feet long. The first floor is used for perforating and the second floor for the printing department. There are one hundred and fifty perforating machines located in the perforating rooms, set on rigid concrete foundations, with a capacity of one million feet of film per day. These perforating and printing machines are all of special design and were made in the machine department of the Lubin Manufacturing Company. The two hundred and fifty printing machines in the printing-room have a daily capacity of one million, one hundred thousand feet per day. There is a fireproof vault adjoining the perforating room, capable of holding five million feet of raw film. The perforating and printing machines are operated by electric motors, all shafting and belting being concealed.

The several departments are so arranged that the raw film is handed to the operator in the perforating room; when perforated it is conveyed by a conveyer to the printing room. The negatives are taken from the fireproof vault, which adjoins this room, and when the positive is printed it is passed to the operator at the winding tables where it is wound on a frame. It is then placed on a track and this track runs through the developing, washing and toning rooms.

First the film is developed (this room containing forty-eight developing tanks with a capacity of eight hundred thousand feet of film daily), then it is fixed, then it is taken from the dark room through specially constructed light traps. It then passes through the inspection department and when approved travels along the same track to the wash room (this room contains four washing machines, with a capacity of nine hundred thousand feet of film per day), where it is given a most thorough washing in clear, pure spring water.

When a positive is to be tinted or toned it is passed on to the toning tanks, from there it is put on a conveyer, which carries it to the second floor where it is dried in a room which has a capacity of seven hundred thousand feet of film per day, or a total of three million, eight hundred and fifty thousand feet per week. This room is finished in pure white. (After alterations and additions are completed at the Philadelphia plant, which now has a capacity of one million, five hundred thousand feet per week, that plant will then have a capacity of two million, five hundred thousand feet per week, in addition to the new laboratory.) After the film is dried it is taken to the joining room, after being joined and again inspected by specially constructed testing projectors, it is put on a belt conveyer and conveyed to the shipping department.

The temperature and humidity in the printing, perforating, developing and drying rooms are all controlled automatically by thermostats. All the rooms are air tight, the air being admitted from the outside through the air washer, which removes all dirt particles from the air. The air is forced through galvanized iron ducts at the rate of seventy-five thousand cubic feet per minute. This apparatus is operated automatically.

New Lubin Laboratories On Old Betzwood Estate.

The cooling of the air is done by spring water; this air washer alone using seven hundred gallons per minute. The water for the developing and washing—in fact, for the use of the entire laboratory, is supplied from two tanks located on steel towers eighty feet high. Special mention might be made of the developer, hypo and washing tanks; these are all made of Asbestine stone, specially constructed. These tanks are encased in a separate cooling tank, the cooling of this water being automatically controlled by thermostats.

The chemicals for these developing and hypo tanks are mixed in the chemical room, located on the second floor. All chemicals flow in by gravity to the developing room. The washing machines are of special design and rigidly constructed and use three hundred gallons of water per minute.

The tinting, toning and glycerine tanks are also of Asbestine stone and are encased in cooling tanks and the cooling water automatically controlled by thermostats.

The film frames, after leaving the joining room, are sent by conveyer to the winding room. All the rooms in the laboratory have false ceilings.

Adjoining the administration building is a garage which can accommodate ten cars.

Building No. 3 is thirty feet wide and one hundred and ten feet long. The first floor is the shipping department and is also used for the storage of boxes ready to receive the finished films. The second floor is arranged for special projecting rooms.

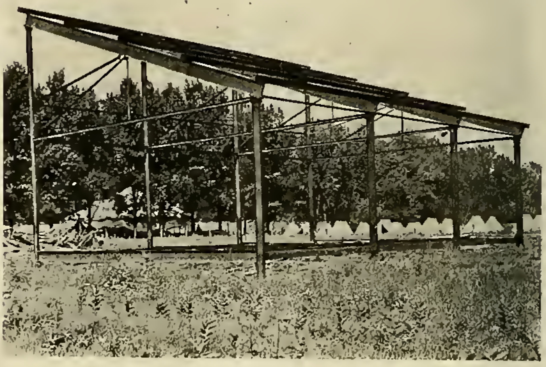
Building No. 4 is thirty feet wide and fifty feet long and is equipped as a power house. On the first floor are two boilers, one sixty horsepower, the other one hundred and twenty horsepower. The pumping machinery is capable of pumping twelve hundred gallons per minute. There is also located in this building a complete vacuum cleaning outfit. The second floor is used as an electrical laboratory and is connected with the projecting rooms in Building No. 3 by a covered walk.

The main laboratory is one hundred and twenty feet wide, four hundred feet long, and is of the same stone construction as the other buildings, the walls being thirty-six inches thick. No amount of money has been spared to make it complete in every detail. All foundations are of concrete and set in bed rock. At both ends of the building fire towers, sufficiently adequate for the five hundred employees in case of emergency have been built. The developing, washing and toning rooms are all located on the first, or ground, floor. The second floor is used for drying, joining, chemical laboratory and office of the laboratory manager.

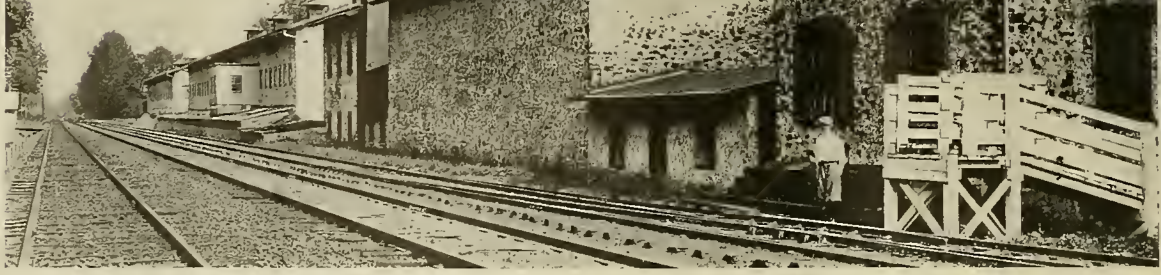
Adjoining the station is Building No. 2, or the Administration Building, three stories high, thirty-six feet wide and sixty feet long. The first floor is used at a kitchen, the cooking being done by electricity; three meals are prepared daily by high-class chefs. The second floor is arranged for private dining rooms for officials of the company and guests, also a general dining room where employees of the factory will lunch daily. The private and main offices of the company occupy the third floor and from the windows of the executive offices the entire plant can be overlooked, the heads of each department can be reached through the private telephone exchange and they in turn can communicate with the laboratory in Philadelphia through a private line.

The work on the estate is progressing finely. It was begun last May, and although a large force of workers have been busy ever since the designers and supervisors of the big undertaking, Mr. Ira Morrell Lowry and Edward L. Simmons, are impatient for the day of the great opening, which is now but a few weeks off. I spent the better part of a day at Lubin admiring things and I must not conclude without saying a word about the live stock. There are probably few villages in the country which have a finer assortment than Lubin. There are wild animals and tame animals, among the former I saw a herd of graceful deer, a flock of wild geese and some rabbits. Bears and other large game are expected soon and their homes of iron and stone are waiting for them now. The tame animals include an exceptionally fine lot of draught and farm horses, some blooded animals, a large herd of superbly bred cattle, sheep, pigs, ducks, geese, etc.

When a producer of the prominence of Lubin decides to put a generous share of his profits back into the business which has made him rich the news is well worth chronicling. The fact that Lubin will in large part be devoted to the work of outside printing is most significant.



New Studio in Progress of Construction.



New Lubin Laboratories On Old Betzwood Estate.

CHICAGO LETTER

By JAS. S. McQUADE

DR. GEORGE B. YOUNG, the health commissioner of Chicago, is an able, energetic official and earnest in his efforts to give Chicago the best hygienic conditions possible. He has been in the regular army so long, in his professional capacity, however, that he has not yet been able to divest himself of his martial authority sufficiently to brook opposition to his will, in his present civic capacity, without considerable fretting and chafing at the bit. This is strikingly shown by his attitude in the ventilation ordinance affecting moving picture theaters, which was held up at the last meeting of the city council, just before going into midsummer recess.

Dr. Young's policy,. if permitted to be enforced according to his wishes, would work great hardship on many deserving men and their families. It would, in fact, put many of them out of business. The question of time is a most important factor in this case. These owners of picture theaters are not opposed to health laws. They are desirous of having as good air in their theaters as it is possible to give, providing the requirements are not made impossible for them.

Dr. Young practically orders them to do as he says or go out of business. Now that these men get together for mutual protection and resist the enforcement of his arbitrary measure, Dr. Young accuses them of organized opposition to the ventilating ordinance for theaters, and asserts that a fund of $10,000 has been collected, and will be used to fight the enforcement of the ordinance. These men are fighting strictly within their rights, even if Dr. Young's statements be true. The proposed ordinance can be modified so that its observance will not mean the confiscation of an exhibitor's property or a deprivation of his means of livelihood for his family and himself, and yet conform to the laws of health.

The Moving Picture World has always stood for clean, wholesome, airy theaters, and exhibitors themselves have long since learned that they are the gainers by having their houses in such condition; but when it comes to the enforcement of such a drastic ordinance as is proposed by Dr. Young, it is well that he should be curbed by prudent aldermanic intervention.

Omaha Ordinance Regulating Picture Theaters.

City Commissioner Withnell, head of the department of fire and water, Omaha, recently introduced an ordinance regulating moving picture houses and large theaters in that city. The ordinance requires all theaters and places of amusement of any sort where movable scenery is used to have a fire curtain operated only from the stage. This is intended to prevent the use of curtains operated from the flies.

Other regulations apply only to moving picture houses, and, in brief, are as follows:

Aisles must be kept clear of obstructions or spectators during performances.

Exits must be provided as required by the building department, doors to open outwards and steps to be permitted only by express authority of the commissioner.

No movable scenery to be allowed.

Only the operator will be allowed in the machine booth, and he must remain there throughout every performance. The operator must be at least 18 years old.

The violation of any section is penalized by a fine of from $1 to $500.

Kleine Optical Co.'s New Catalogue.

There has been a remarkable demand for the new catalogue of the Kleine Optical Co., which was completed recently by Frank L. Hough, Jr., manager. The work of compilation occupied many weeks of unremitting labor, which required broad technical knowledge, a skillful handling of the subject matter devoted to the various departments, and a comprehensive view of what was necessary to illustrate the written pages appropriately. The result is an attractive, instructive book of 160 pages, the page being nine by six inches.

The paper used in the work is of fine quality, supercalendered, which, combined with good press work, brings out the illustrations clearly. The type used has been chosen with nice care, and a neat typographical appearance prevails throughout.

This catalogue is by no means a mere tabulation of articles and their prices. The introduction will be read with considerable profit by everyone engaged in the exhibition of moving pictures, and the descriptions of the leading makes of projecting machines, taken in connection with abundant explanatory illustrations, will serve as a valuable guide to all who desire to familiarize themselves with the various types. All the other adjuncts and aids necessary for the projection of good pictures on the screen are also carefully described and illustrated. The important subject, light, is amply treated, and managers and operators will be much benefited by a careful perusal of this section of the work.

In a word, this new catalogue commends itself to every up-to-date exhibitor, more especially to those who are building new houses or renovating the old. It will be difficult for anyone engaged in the exhibiting business to fail in finding any article or appliance necessary for the equipment of a modern moving picture theater in its 160 pages. The work is mailed free, on application, to all interested.

Contention Over Right to Film "The Sea Wolf."

The Bosworth Company, Incorporated, which was formed recently to produce pictures based on Jack London's stories, has already found a competitor in the Balboa Amusement Company, which is said to have started to produce "The Sea Wolf," on which Hobart Bosworth and his company of players are now engaged.

The Bosworth Company began work in the Crosby Studio, Los Angeles, on August 20th, having first spent several days in San Francisco on the ferryboat scenes, with which the film story opens.

"We will have the only production of London's 'The Sea Wolf' shown anywhere," stated William L. Roubert, personal representative of Mr. Bosworth, to Bonnie Glessner, of the Los Angeles Times. "The original Jack London contract entered into with the Balboa Amusement Company was forfeited on account of the first picture not having been completed within the given time. The time limit was placed in the contract in order that Mr. London could judge the merits of the production before the second picture was started. Finding the first picture unsatisfactory, Mr. London canceled the first contract, and entered into a contract with Hobart Bosworth and Frank A. Garbutt, who are the authorized producers of the Jack London film stories."

Mr. Roubert says that when "The Sea Wolf" is completed the company will be in a position to prove its claims and for all time still any rumors to the contrary.

"Every authentic London film will devote the first hundred feet to the author, who will be seen at work before the camera, as a special introduction," said Roubert, "and the Bosworth brand of film will bear London's signature as evidence of its genuineness. Furthermore, any infringing film of the London pictures will be promptly seized by the Bosworth Incorporated Company's representative and exhibitors will be liable to a heavy fine for each performance, according to the United States copyright law, so I don't anticipate any trouble when it comes to proving our right to the London stories."

Chicago Film Breveties.

William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, sailed for Europe on the steamship Imperator, Saturday, August 30th. The trip will be chiefly devoted to business and will last several weeks. Mr. Selig will visit the leading European capitals before returning.

* * *

Fred Lines, manager of the Lyceum Theater, 3851 Cottage Grove Avenue, was a visitor at the World office last week. The Lyceum is owned by Charles J. Schaefer, brother of P. Schaefer, of Jones, Linick & Schaefer. The Lyceum seats 750. Mr. Schaefer also owns the Garfield, on West Madison, which seats 800 people. Both these houses use licensed service and are showing to fine business, with 10-cent programs. Mr. Schaefer is now building a new theater, which will be known as the Keystone, on Sheridan Road and Dakin Street. It will be opened about November 1st. This house will seat 800 and will also use licensed service.

* * *

F. H. McMillan, formerly connected with the General Feature Film Co., this city, is now general manager for the M. & F. Feature Film Co., Chicago.

* * *

Stanley H. Twist, in charge of the publicity department of the Selig Polyscope Co., left for Los Angeles Tuesday, September 2nd, where he will remain for several weeks engaged in personal business for Mr. Selig.

* * *

Dr. F. B. Von Teuher, representative of the Selig Polyscope Co., now on his way to tour Brazil and other South American countries, was in Kingston, Jamaica, for a short stay when last heard from. On his former visit to Kingston, Dr. Von Teuber took a series of remarkable photographs of the city (which was then suffering from earthquake) from a balloon. The destruction caused by the great seismic shock was realistically shown in these pictures.

E. W. Lavezzi, of the Lavezzi Machine Works, 2940 Herndon Street, this city, visited the World office last week. Mr. Lavezzi's latest invention is a moving picture camera, specially designed for amateurs and professionals. The chief novelty of this instrument is its low price. The camera can be bought for $50.00, without lens. A lens will cost $15.00 and a tripod will cost $10.00. With this outfit some really remarkable results have been obtained. The camera holds 200 feet of film and we have seen some of the pictures taken by it run off on the screen, which show really good quality photography. Mr. Lavezzi claims that the intermittent action of this little machine will outwear the pin movement of any other, and that a perfect registration of the film is accomplished by means of a star and cam movement, with a special aperture arrangement. Those who wish to take moving pictures on a small scale, with a fair certainty of obtaining satisfactory results, can do so by using the Lavezzi moving picture camera and outfit. Mr. Lavezzi states that he will place on the market shortly a combination machine, including camera, printer and projecting machine, all in one. A harmless storage electric light will be furnished with this outfit, that will enable anyone, even a child, to handle it without danger. The outfit is designed for travelers who may wish to preserve certain scenes for home entertainment.

ANOTHER BENEDICT.

F. William Kamp

F. William Kamp, chief of the sales force of the Calehuff Supply Company, Inc., of Philadelphia, is about to become a benedict. Just when he will leave the joys of single life has not been announced. However, Mr. Kamp has confided in a few friends that it will occur within the next two months.

For the past ten years Mr. Kamp has been connected with the motion picture business, and he is one of the best mechanics and salesmen in the business. On his desk in the Calehuff Building there may always be seen at least a dozen used copies of the Moving Picture World, which he claims is the last word and the highest authority of the motion picture industry. Mr. Kamp is very popular with the exhibitors within his territory by virtue of the fact that he always gives them the correct advice and sees to it that their orders are promptly filled. Mr. Kamp has never had trouble with any one of his customers, and we venture to say that his magnetic personality will always be the means of bringing new comers to the Calehuff Supply Company.

GEORGE KLEINE TO ERECT A $375,000 THEATER?

Sam H. Harris, of the theatrical firm of Cohan & Harris; Sol Bloom, talking machine man and former music publisher on a large scale, and last, but decidedly not least, George Kleine, the producer of the now justly famous "Quo Vadis?" feature, are associated in the plan for the building of a theater on the south side of Forty-second Street, near Broadway, New York. When finished, the house will be used as an exhibition place for feature films. It will cost $375,000, and will be equipped with a large stage and up-to-the-minute facilities.

THEATER NAMED FOR JOHN BUNNY.

Fame still pursues our old favorite, John Bunny. A new theater is to be opened at 147th Street and Broadway, New York City, on the 15th of October, bearing the name of "BUNNY." By a strange coincidence, Mr. Schultz, of "Foxy Grandpa and Bunny" fame, is to be the manager. John Bunny has been invited to open this theater, which seats 1400 people, 800 on the main floor and 600 in the galleries. It promises to be one of the most magnificent and largest moving picture palaces in New York City.

FLICKERS.

Mr. George Balsdon, manager of the General Film poster service, has joined the happy throng of automobile owners. His is a large Cadillac.

* * *

I presume that Bert Adler, official scribe for the Thanhouser Company, got a little tired pushing his Ford home every time he invited anyone for a ride, while the other folks rode both ways, so he bought another car. This time it is an Overland roadster, and the fellow that sold it to him is pretty sure that it will carry him both ways, the same as the regular automobiles do.

* * *

Jim Hoff got back from his vacation, as red as a lobster, but a great deal fatter. It is a cinch that "late copy" didn't worry him for two weeks.

* * *

We had for a caller the other day, Mr. W. I. Davis, owner and manager of the New Theater, Morgantown, N. C. Mr. Davis is pleased with the results of his house, which is of six hundred seating capacity, showing a licensed program projected by a Powers No. "6-A". The house is of a fireproof construction, equipped with automatic sprinklers and a modern ventilating system. In a short time the New Theater will be only one of a chain of houses that Mr. Davis contemplates opening.

* * *

Our friend, Joe Brandt, the Universal booster, has gone. He is in Europe about this time, and you will hear from him occasionally through this column.

* * *

Fred Gunning has handed in his resignation to the Eclair Film Co., as general booster for Eclair and Union features, to take effect in a few days; after so doing, he will walk directly across the street and seat himself behind a roll-top in the offices of Warner's Features and hold down the job as assistant general manager.

* * *

Mr. G. W. Armstrong, president of the Theater Special Manufacturing Co., is making arrangements to move his plant from New York to Cleveland, Ohio, and expects to be in that city about September 15th, and wants to have all correspondence addressed to him or the company directed to Cleveland, Ohio. Do that, will you? Mac.

CORRECTING THE RECORDS.

The Moving Picture World is in receipt of a letter from Mr. E. C. Preston, secretary of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Nebraska, calling attention to grave errors in our story of the Nebraska League in the big convention issue of July 12th. It seems that we announced that William F. Stoecker was president when that office was held by Mr. Frank Harris and that we got the names mixed on two other pictures published in the story. While we plead guilty to the charges as enumerated by Secretary Preston, we offer in extenuation the explanation that we were unable to get replies to our requests for information addressed to the Nebraska officers and were obliged to do the best we could with what information we had or to leave Nebraska out of the edition entirely.

E. C. PRESTON,
Secretary Nebraska League.

Secretary Preston has our apology with the express request that he help us in future to the extent of supplying us all the information regarding the Nebraska League that will look good in print.

In his communication, Secretary Preston advises us that the Nebraska League Executive Board met with President Harris in Omaha and heard the report of National Vice-President J. E. Schlank, who was a delegate to the New York Convention. After the report was fully discussed, the board voted unanimously to stand by the National League and its president, M. A. Neff, to a finish.

EAGLE FEATURE FILM CO. MOVES.

The Eagle Feature Film Company, formerly located at No. 5 East 14th Street, New York, has moved to new and larger quarters in the Masonic Building at 23rd Street and Sixth Avenue. A fine line of new features has been taken on.

"The Two Sergeants"

A Powerful Six-Reel Pasquali Feature.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

MY feeling in watching this interesting photodrama was very much akin to that experienced in reading Les Trois Mousquetaires by Alexandre Dumas, the comradeship of men thrown into close association by the adventurous life and social interdependence of a military career furnishing the background for a story of splendid manhood. Lofty sense of honor, fraternal devotion, inflexible adherence to duty, and revenge—I would like to see an Italian play without that old passion—are all portrayed in masterly fashion. Tension is worked up to a high point towards the last, and the characterization is absolutely without flaw. I suppose the director who selected such admirable types and fitted them so appropriately to the action deserves his share of the credit, but I am a lover of fine acting, that of fine personality, and it counts for a great deal in my estimate of a play. It recommends the play because it is the play that makes fine acting possible.

Scene from "The Two Sargeants" (Pasquali).

In the drama of the future, or of that we should be forging just now, human character will be depicted as the expression and working of a marvelously made and highly complicated nervous structure, but nearly every known human passion can now be shown in its simple form by those who interpret screen stories with skill, and it is an intellectual pleasure for most of us to sit in front and study the varying moods pictured by actors of high ability, such as those of the Pasquali company seem to be. I became absorbed in watching the admirable impersonation of the two sergeants, one a bachelor and the other a benedict, both men of athletic build and dignified bearing, manly fellows of high courage and serious character, the Athos and Aramis of Dumas.

The married man is wrongfully accused of a crime at the outset and, in spite of his honorable career as an officer, is forced to accept the odium and become an outcast. He is wandering in a mountain gorge of wild beauty when the bachelor falls from a narrow foot-brige into a foaming torrent below. The benedict dives in and saves the almost-exhausted stranger, and the two men become sworn friends for life. They enlist in the army, the accused man under an assumed name, and win honors and promotion on the field. While in barrack life, the benedict wins the love of an old turnkey's niece, for whom a villainous aide-de-camp has conceived a hopeless infatuation.

This aide-de-camp, one of the most interesting villains ever shown on the screen, uses his confidential relation with the general officer to put his rival out of the way, when the two sergeants permit a poor woman and her children to pass a quarantine line established during an epidemic. The sergeants are found guilty by court-martial, but, in consideration of the extenuating circumstances, the death penalty is only imposed upon one. Lots are cast to see which shall be executed, and the aide is chagrined to find that his rival will go free—the married man having lost. The latter's family are at a nearby island, and he is permitted to visit his wife and children for a brief period, while the other sergeant remains as hostage, to be executed in his stead if he does not return by a specified time.

This situation has been seen in other photodramas, but it is worked up to a high pitch in this one by a secret and noble act of the unmarried man. He contrives to have the other delayed on the island until after the departure of the boat in order that he may be executed in his stead. The turnkey's daughter makes an attempt to save him, but he will not leave his cell. The arrival of the married man in the midst of his family is made all the more joyful by news that he has been declared innocent of the crime of which he was accused. While his wife and children are nearly overcome with happiness over the reunion and his re-establishment, while he is responding with a strange commingling of emotions to their attentions, the boat he was to take sets sail for the mainland without him.

High point of the story is reached when dishonorable liberty is forced upon the man sentenced to death. In a violent outburst of emotion, he tears away from those he loves and leaps into a tempestuous sea for a long swim to where the execution of his brother officer must take place. The villainous aide has the satisfaction of seeing his rival led out to be shot down by a squad of soldiers. The general officer is deeply grieved. It is made known to him that his aide's motive is that of private vengance, but he is obliged to enforce discipline at all costs. Meanwhile, the other sergeant is struggling desperately to cross the bay in time. It looks like a tragedy one way or the other to the end, but the plot is so ingeniously worked out that a happy termination and an artistic one as well finishes the story.

There is much to praise in the matter of both beautiful exteriors and consistent interiors; clear photography is given additional value by accurate tinting; but exceptional acting dominates in what looks like a successful production.

COMFORT NOVELETTE PICTURIZED.

By Reliance.

The Glow Worm, from the pen of Will Levington Comfort, which appeared in story form in Lippincott's Magazine, will be released as a three-part drama by the Reliance Company on September 6th. Mr. Comfort, who has written several novels, is probably best remembered as the author of "Rutledge Rides Alone." His stories abound in action and are well adapted to picture dramatization.

The Glow Worm is the name which has been given to a very beautiful and fascinating woman around whom a most unusual story of love and adventure has been woven.

The action of the story is laid in South America with a number of scenes enacted on board a large yacht. All of which gives ample opportunity for beautiful settings, an added charm to the drama in its new picture form.

HONEYMOONERS HOME FROM EUROPE.

One of Greater New York's best-known motion picture exhibitors, David M. Kerman, is fairly overwhelmed with congratulations upon the long-expected return last week of his attractive daughter and son-in-law, Mr. & Mrs. Irving Berkow, from their European honeymoon via the "Imperator." Hamburg-American's pier was crowded with a throng of admiring friends and relatives assembled to welcome home the handsome bridal pair. As the former Miss Kerman, the bride, was seen in some Vitagraph productions of note.

KLEINE OPTICAL COMPANY ISSUES CATALOGUE.

The Kleine Optical Company has just issued a very handsome catalogue covering the many items of theater equipment which that house offers for sale. Incidentally this little volume is more than a catalogue, inasmuch as it contains many articles of interest to theater owners. Practically every device that might be used in a picture theater has found place between the covers. It is offered free for the asking, is printed on a handsome white enameled stock and contains 166 pages.

MAJESTIC'S "FIGHTER" DEAD.

"Bull" Young, who appeared with Fred Mace in "One Round O'Brien Comes Back," and was signed for the O'Brien series that New Majestic is announcing, died in the Clara Barton Hospital, Los Angeles, recently as the result of a knockout blow received in a fight that wasn't a photoplay one. The blow was delivered by Jess Willard, another "white hope."

Members of the New Majestic Company who were to work with him in the "One Round O'Brien" series, attended the funeral. "Bull" is said to have been the "easiest handled" prize fighter who ever played in films. "A true gentleman all the time," was Fred Mace's comment.

Foreign Trade Notes

BRITISH NOTES.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

THE Barker Company, of London, have laid out for themselves what may be classed as one of the most difficult tasks that could be set to any producer—the portrayal by film of the "Life and Times of Queen Victoria." Early information indicates that in addition to the heavy expenditure to secure exact historical reproduction, that the Barker Company intend, where possible, to photograph their subjects amidst the actual scenes visited by the late Queen. The period embraced by the film is from 1835—1902, and I am told that the length of the finished product will approximate upon 6,000 feet.

* * *

A frequent comment by American trade visitors to this side centers around the absence of a screen club in London or any of the large provincial cities. At last an attempt is being made in the metropolis to form something of the kind and in a few weeks' time we may expect to see a cinema actors' institution spring into existence. Mr. J. E. P. Hughes is the acting secretary.

* * *

A calamity was narrowly averted on the South Coast the other day during the operations of a company of photoplayers. Mr. E. G. Baltey was taking the lead in a heroic rescue from drowning of his daughter, but at the critical moment a wave capsized the frail boat holding the cameraman and his instrument. The whole scene was upset and the three carried out to sea. They were subsequently rescued badly scratched and suffering slightly from shock.

* * *

The British & Colonial Company have just concluded taking the final scenes in a subject which for gross sensationalism would be very hard to surpass. The films were recorded from a balloon and the players in the principal scene were in aeroplanes and other balloons. The climax to the film is the chase of a balloon full of criminals by a man and a girl in an aeroplane. While at a height of 3,000 feet the girl in the aeroplane (Miss Marie Pickering) jumps from the machine into the balloon. She misses, but catches the guide rope and up this she climbs to the basket. This scene took over a month to complete and the services of three aviators—Messrs. Turner, Ewan and Verrier—were required to play the parts of the men chasing the runaway balloon.

* * *

During the past fortnight matters have moved with extraordinary rapidity in the trade in this country, no doubt in anticipation of a busier winter season by exhibitors. Indeed, owing to the truly exceptional number of feature films to be released next month by the British agencies of American and European producers, September is being generally spoken of as the "surprise month." American manufacturers who are contemplating rushing prints of the season's features over to this country for the beginning of the winter would be well advised to hold them back until nearer Christmas, for between now and October I am advised of the release of no less than thirty-three much advertised feature films by home and foreign firms.

* * *

Among the recent specifications for patents is a new lighting system for proprietors by Carl Zeiss, the famous lens maker; a new method of treating films to make them flameproof. by W. Mottershead and H. E. Tudor; a new method of removing dirt and scratches from films, by Paul Bohr, and a combination spool to hold both film and repairing ribbon for the edges. Another useful invention, by G. Robson, consists of a supplementary condensing lens placed behind the aperture of the masking device in ordinary projector lenses. The effect is to increase the illuminating power of the light by extra magnification.

A new kind of local picture—not a topical—is coming into vogue in this country. At Reading last week a local showman secured the services of the Reading Thespian Society in a scenario, in which a local dude persistently follows a charming local lady. This novel attraction, although hackneyed in design, proved an immense draw, for the sole reason that the scenes and characters were well known to the audience.

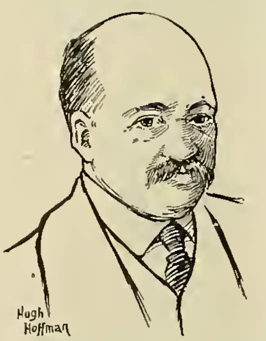
* * *

Lord Sackville, the peer who has been much in the limelight in London recently, is to lend his beautiful southern residence, Knole Castle, to the Edison players for a short while. The picture for which this setting will be utilized is, I understand, a gypsy story entitled, "A Daughter of Romany."

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

JAMES WILLIAMSON.

AN Englishman on his first visit to our country is often more interesting than one who has become accustomed to us and our ways. Every American can spot a Britisher the moment he opens his mouth, in exactly the same way that a Britisher on his native heath can tell an American under the same conditions. But Mr. James Williamson, president of the well-known Williamson Kinematographic Company of London, was somewhat of a puzzle to us when he dropped in at the World office, at the finish of his first visit to America. His speech is so Yankeefied that it was hard to believe that he was making his first visit to America, and were it not for his great reputation for veracity and integrity we would have had some doubts when he told us that he is a Johnny Bull to the very bone.



James Williamson.
(Sketch from life)

Mr. Williamson came over from England simply to study conditions and look over the ground with a view of taking home some practical ideas. He learned a number of things in the two weeks' time he was here, and covered much ground, visiting every large film-making studio that we have.

The Williamson Kinematographic Company, as everybody knows, is a large, reputable, London firm that manufactures cameras of high reputation; also printers, perforators and projectors. It was the Williamson Company that designed and perfected the Compact Marvel camera, that excellent little instrument for exhibitors to use in taking local events, and which is being handled in America by the Whyte-Whitman Company, of New York City. Mr. Williamson is a modest little man, with great powers of observation. Never by any chance would he be taken for a stolid Britisher. He is one of those Britons who could be dropped into almost any country and catch on swimmingly from the start, because his mind seems to be adaptable to changing conditions; in fact, that is why he came to America, to find out how conditions are changing and improving.

Upon being asked if he thought American producers in England had taught their British cousins any new tricks in picture making, he replied: "So far as the mechanical and artistic work are concerned I do not think American producers have shown us anything, but the one big trick they have taught us is to spend money. British producing firms have always been parsimonious in their expenditures for negatives. Then along comes the American, scatters money right and left and gets results. He pays good wages and gets good work. That is the answer.

"Another reason that British productions have been backward is because the manufacturer is limited in sales to the small home market. America is practically closed to us and the continent produces so much good stuff at so low a price that there is more money in importing film than in making it."

Mr. Williamson was originally a chemist by profession, and entered the motion picture business by way of amateur photography. At first he produced photoplays, but found that motion picture photographic mechanisms of a reliable kind were hard to obtain. He therefore began to make his own cameras and laboratory machinery. He perfected these machines to such a high degree, that the manufacture of laboratory mechanism became the main part of his business, and the producing end of it gradually diminished and dropped out altogether. In the space of a comparatively few years, the Williamson cameras, printers and perforators have come to be looked upon as a standard article of laboratory work, while the Williamson professional camera holds a place second to none in the estimation of expert camera men. The Williamson concern is now going in for trade printing on a large scale and has been at this work since the beginning of the year. Mr. Williamson sailed for England on August 23.

THE TRAGEDY OF REV. H. GOODWIN.

Some Interesting Data of His Life and His Work.

Apropos of the facts developed in the decision of the federal court in the case of the Ansco Co. against the Eastman Kodak Co., the Evening Sun prints some interesting revelations concerning the personality of the Rev. Hannibal Goodwin who claimed to be the orignal inventor of flexible film. Hannibal Goodwin died a few years ago but his widow and his son survive him.

This is what the Goodwin process consisted in:

"Dissolving nitrocellulose in a memstruum containing a hygroscopic element and an element which is non-hygroscopic, the latter element being of itself a solvent of nitrocellulose and of slower volatility than the hygroscopic element, depositing and spreading such solution on a supporting surface and allowing it to set and harden and dry by evaporation, thus spreading a photographically sensitive solution on the hardened film."

"But," says Mrs. Goodwin, a lady with the white hair of a sweet serenity, "I fear there was small sympathy for his efforts. We didn't think what he was doing amounted to anything and the idea of a patent was absurd. It was quite inconvenient to have his stuff about the house.

"But until the day he died, Mr. Goodwin mixed his chemicals. He called to mother just before the end and he asked for that yellow bottle on the shelf. When she brought it he looked at it, held it to the light as he used to do, as though he could see marvels in its composition and after looking at it he handed it back. 'It will all be over soon,' he said.

"Then he smiled. He meant there wouldn't be any more discomfiting of the housekeeping.

"He was indefatigable. Dr. William A. Smith, his physician, ordered him away when he was run down in health. Mr. Goodwin arranged to leave his parish and took his family with him. They went on Saturday. On Monday I remember that he was back here in the factories of Newark at work on the flexible film. He went everywhere in town for information, to manufacturers and chemists, specialists in various products. He worked scientifically, building his knowledge from the ground up. He studied and read and experimented endlessly. It is no wonder that he came through with the problem in the end."

When in 1887 the long search of the preacher was rewarded by a practicable film that did away with the necessity of carrying many pounds of heavy glass on photographing expeditions the mills of the gods had only begun to turn out grist. The waiting game had only begun. The story of the preacher's struggle to get a patent, opposed at every step by the firm now declared to be infringers, the true version of his labors, has been preserved by the Goodwin family in the words of Hannibal Goodwin himself.

There were years of legal opposition by the wealthy Eastman Company, which after attempting to patent a film of its own admitted Goodwin's priority. When that question was decided Goodwin thought the matter settled. Later he had occasion to say:

"But the victory was only the beginning of the hardest fight. The company's purpose was to prevent a patent from being issued. A vigorous onslaught was commenced against the patentability of my invention. No influence or efforts at the command of the company, representing many millions, were left untried. Most distinguished lawyers were set in array, old and new literature on photography was ransacked. Nearly forty alleged anticipating references were cited during the interference proceedings. My only hope was to hold my own until all the shifting devices of the law had exhausted themselves."

Asked what the result would be if the validity of his patent was destroyed through the discovery of new evidence the pastor calmly answered:

"My loss would be the public gain."

More certain it is than Hannibal Goodwin's Fabian philosophy itself that the lack of financial reward could not make him regret the years in the garret under the skylight that he cut through; for he had the heart to see that even though the validity of his patent was successfully contested the business of film making would be open to the public. He could never regret the bringing near of fauna and flora of distant lands. Alpine peaks and desert lands, the stars, the comets and eclipses and cowboys and horses in action. He foresaw the development of the moving picture when the cinematographic art was known as "series picture making photography." He saw that a flexible film meant memory, romance, stimulus, education, culture for the world in accordance with their needs.

WARNER'S FEATURES IN PROSPECT.

Warner's Features, Inc., have secured some notable productions for their feature program to be inaugurated the middle of September. Chief of interest among these is a four-reel version of Count Tolstoi's great tragedy, "The Living Corpse," produced in Europe, where the original settings were to be had in keeping with the theme.

Warner's Features, Incorporated, will, about the middle of September, move into its new quarters in the Leavitt Building, 126-132 West Forty-sixth Street, where it will have the entire eighth floor. In the meantime, the twenty-two Warner exchanges will be directed from the old office in Forty-fifth Street. A. Warner, however, will be found on the tenth floor of the Candler Building, where he is working out the details of the enlarged program. Among the productions which undoubtedly will be added to the former output of Warner's will be Ambrosio and Milano, and those of Marion Leonard and Giles Warren. Joseph A. McKinney, the secretary of the company, is co-operating with Mr. Warner, who is vice-president and general manager.

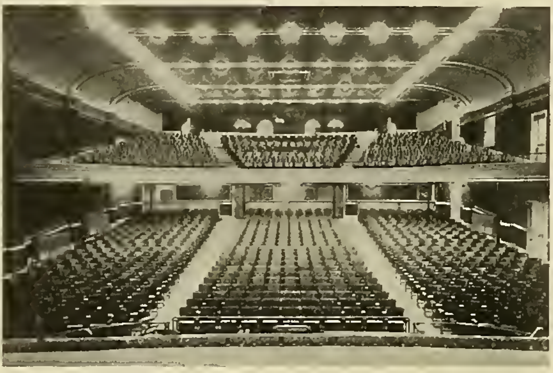
LILY BECK.

One of Great Northern's Charming Players.

Star Theater, Ithaca, N. Y.

A Well Managed Photoplay House in a Beautiful College Town; the Home of Cornell University.

OPERATING a motion picture theater in a college town is in most cases a job that would be shunned by the average manager. This is true by reason of the fact that the average college student, when he lays down his five or ten cents, feels that he has bought a proprietary interest in the place and is entitled to carry a part of it away with him if he chooses to do so.



Interior of the New Star Theater, Ithaca, N. Y.

Ithaca, however, differs from most college towns in many respects. Its location, in one of the garden spots of America, seems to invest it with a purity begotten by isolation from the sordid centers of commerce. Its closeness to some of the wonders of nature seems to inspire the inhabitants with higher thoughts and ideals. The exquisite setting of Cornell University is a silent daily sermon to every student and it has its effect in a high standard of refinement among the clean minded boys who go there.

There are some remarkable institutions in Ithaca and among them is the New Star Theater, which is looked upon by both students and citizens as one of the institutions of learning. An evening spent at the Star is an evening passed among ladies and gentlemen of breeding and culture. As clean as a pin, inside and out, this theater is conducted along legitimate and conservative lines, not even a poster being used to attract attention. It sets quietly on a side street and is frequently mistaken in the daytime for a bank by strangers in the city.

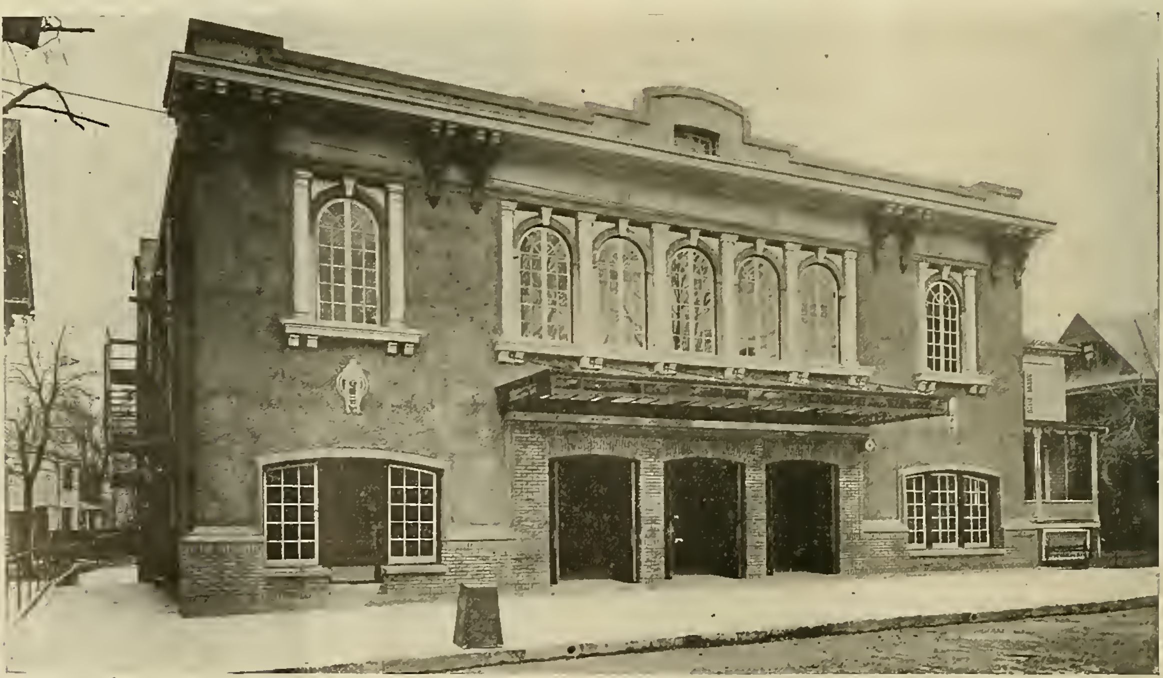
The Star Theater represents an investment of $50,000.00, and is owned by The Star Theater Stock Co., consisting of Fred B. Howe, president and general manager, John B. Howe, secretary and treasurer, F. W. Grant, vice-president, and Charles L. Hamer, business manager. Fred Howe and Mr. Hamer are old time vaudeville musicians and have a long record in the amusement business. The Howe brothers conduct a prominent dental business in Ithaca apart from their theatrical interests. All of the members of the firm are clean cut business men of good breeding and education. They are good examples of progressive and prosperous exhibitors who are looked up to by their fellow citizens. They own their own homes, and motor cars, and participate in the social activities of the city, where most of them were boys together.

The Star Theater Company began business in 1908 in a much less pretentious building at the corner of Tioga and Green Streets. This theater was called the Star and, although not now in use as a theater, it is referred to as the old Star. The new house was opened on September 18, 1911, just two years ago, and has been well patronized by the elite of Ithaca ever since. Every night a row of automobiles may be seen lining the curb on either side of the Star for some distance.

The New Star has a seating capacity of 1200, and every chair is upholstered in real leather, at a cost of $7 per chair. The stage is completely equipped to accommodate a road production if necessary, although so far nothing but vaudeville and pictures have been seen there. During the regular theatrical season two acts of vaudeville are used in conjunction with the pictures, and a five-piece orchestra, under the able direction of Prof. J. A. Noble, puts a finishing touch to a well selected program.

The building itself is constructed of hollow tile and concrete, faced with plaster and trimmed in white. One of the beauties of the building is the simplicity of its decorations. Nothing has been overdone and the general neatness of the house gives it the appearance of being a substantial institution.

An immense heating plant at the rear of the building serves to make the theater comfortable in winter. The dressing-rooms are located under the stage, and, besides being large and roomy, are equipped with many conveniences that are not usually supplied with theater dressing-rooms.



Facade of the New Star Theater, East Seneca Street, Ithaca, New York.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Busy In China.

DANTE'S INFERNO has reached China and the Arcade Theater, Tientsin, and the house is handling it with its usual line of special paper. A booklet, both in English and Chinese, is the most pretentious paper, but there are several other specials, issued one after the other to rouse and hold the interest. They have a form of paper called an Express, which is merely a circular issued, dated and timed by the Tientsin Press. One, for example, dealing with The Evil Genius is dated August 1 and issued at 10 A. M., while an earlier one, dated July 29, is issued at 2 P. M. There is a difference of thirteen numbers between the two. It seems to be a form of advertising extra run by the newspaper. Hustle is the price of success in China, but the Arcade hustles and keeps hustling. There are few American houses that would issue a special synopsis for a study of the honey bee, but it worked well in Tientsin.

Wants Some Adice.

Geoffrey Jefferson, of Ypsilanti, Mich., would be loved just as dearly if he did not write on both sides of the paper, but he sends an interesting letter, and here it is:

> Last January a Power's 6A was installed in Normal Hall at the State Normal College. From April to July we ran Friday nights only, showing "Rip Van Winkle," "As You Like It," "The Land Swindlers," the "Odyssey," etc., with one reel of scientific film, charging five cents for three or four reels. The president simply wanted us to pay the running expenses. We had ten performances in that time and cleared $56. Our hall seats 880. We have 1,400 students and a town of 7,000. We are half a mile from the business district, with two picture shows in that section, though neither offers as good a program as we give. This summer with six shows Friday and Saturday nights we cleared $63.54. We had Bernhardt in "Queen Elizabeth," "Pickwick Papers," "The Spy's Defeat," and the Selig animal features. This fall we want newer film, and as the General Film will not supply us with recent stuff because we use service only two or three times a week, we are going to try Universal film and use it nearly every Friday and Saturday. I have already booked "Beauty and the Beast," "Robinson Crusoe," "Pelles and Melisande," "Prisoner of Zenda," "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," "The Pit and the Pendulum," etc. I want to ask some questions about advertising, or rather tell you what I plan to do, and ask you to tell me what you think of it, or offer other suggestions.
>
> In three or four of the main streets leading out from the business district, I plan to erect bill boards taking three three-sheets, I plan to keep them up to date so far as possible. In the halls of the four largest college buildings I plan to have a place for two one-sheets in the main building, frames for the sets of photographs now issued and a frame in one of the large dry goods stores. In the college paper I shall take space for announcements, and in the local paper as well, when the attraction warrants it. When school opens I want to have a folder, about 4x6, telling about some of our features, giving names and dates as far as possible. The Famous Players' releases, which we shall get when fifteen days old, I plan to charge ten cents for. I want to leave these folders at all of the student boarding houses, one to be put at the plate of each student. We want to advertise our coming attractions on the screen. How far in advance should we advertise them? I often make lantern slides from scenes printed in The Moving Picture World. I am sending you one of my slides. We plan to buy a motion picture camera as soon as the money can be made.

Some Good Ideas.

Mr. Jefferson does not make it plain whether he is one of the faculty, an undergraduate or merely a speculator in amusement, but the one point that stands clearly out is that the scheme provides entertainment and instruction for the pupils, keeping them from the fascinating "down-town."

A college of fourteen hundred should come close to supporting a 900 house, but since it seems to be necessary to draw on the town folk, we think the bill board idea excellent. The boards from a rough skektch, carry a top board giving the special information and with the three sections lettered to indicate the days of showing. Such boards will certainly attract attention.

The boards and frames in the hall will reach the students, where the general boards appeal to the town people, and in combination will give full advertisement, though the college paper should be as liberally patronized as possible, and the local paper as well, where a special attraction will carry more than the usual appeal.

The folders, if used once at the opening of the fall term to call general attention to the house, will do good missionary work. The cover should carry the college colors, if possible. It might be practical to print in outline and lay in the colors by hand, if the run is not large. If it runs several thousand, it might be better to bind the book with cords of the college colors, white cord being dyed if the exact shade may not be had from stock. The folder should make special appeal to the college spirit and give as complete a schedule as possible, while giving no more promise than there will be performance.

The question of price is purely a local one, but we like the ten cent price for any program of reasonably new film. It might be a good plan to sell coupon books with dated coupons or strip tickets, such as are used for lecture courses, making some reduction for the entire series. This will ensure a steady patronage and often bring a student to a performance in the face of a stronger counter attraction merely because he already has the ticket.

In the matter of slides, Mr. Jefferson seems to go to too much trouble. He either letters a card and photographs that or makes a contact slide from a lettered negative. There is no reason why he should not letter directly on the glass, using one of the scores of devices printed in this and Mr. Richardson's department. The slide is very neatly lettered, but as good work can be done directly on the glass, which can be washed off after the text is obsolete and used again. Much can be done with a fifty cent box of opaque and a common scriber that can be bought for ten cents at a hardware store, or even a large pointed needle set in an old pen holder drilled with another needle made red hot.

By All Means a Trade Mark.

A rough sketch of a trade mark cut is sent, merely an oval with the lettering "Normal Motion Pictures." This Mr. Jefferson expects to have reproduced in cut and use on everything. It is a good plan, giving distinctiveness to all the work. It is a valuable feature to any house to have some device that immediately suggests the theater.

The camera will soon pay for itself in the matter of special film. The baseball, football and other outdoor sports can be "covered" photographically and shown as a special attraction or in connection with other film and pull in almost every one of the students and most of the town people with any college connection.

Advertising for coming film should not be done so far in advance that it kills the sale for more immediate attractions. The man who knows that something extra special is coming in two weeks may pass over the intermediate offerings, where he would take these in and then the other, too, if not permitted to see too far ahead. On the other hand, the big films should be advertised more than a week in advance, not with a definite date, but as "coming soon." Do not advertise so far ahead that the town houses can get the films in advance of you. You cannot engage film exclusively, and it is well not to advertise too far ahead. Even where you are certain you have an exclusive, you cannot always be assured that some other film of similar title will not show ahead. Where this is done a back fire should be started at once.

The college show seems to be growing in favor. In colleges where there is not yet a regularly booked show we think that some student working his way could arrange with the faculty for the use of the hall by paying the running expense and placing the machine at the disposal of the faculty for the showing of scientific films on off days, or even getting these films for the faculty.

Cuts Out Vaudeville.

W. J. Sornborger, of the Lyric, Sapulpa, Oklahoma, sends a cut of an advertising float for Robinson Crusoe with Robinson himself, Friday and the hungry cannibals. Better still, he writes that he has not only cut out vaudeville, but that he has induced others to do the same, with the result that the town is free from the sort of vaudeville that a picture house can afford. We think that most towns will support a single theater without vaudeville even where the others offer it, but in a small town it is sometimes necessary to go with the rest. Here Mr. Sornborger has not only ridden himself of vaudeville, but he has brought the others to his way of thinking; which is better yet. Here is his letter:

ROBINSON CRUSOE
3 PARTS
ROBINSON CRUSOE
Robinson Crusoe

> I am sending you under separate cover photo of my theater and efforts on Robinson Crusoe.
>
> My float, with its Crusoe, Friday and the cannibals caused no end of interest and comment, particularly among business men, and we unquestionably gave our patrons value received as the picture was above the average. I have a fair sized house and we kept it filled from 2:30 until 11:00. I could have very easily raised the price, but am certainly against such policy.
>
> There are three shows here, including an airdome, and most always a tent attraction of some sort. So we all have to hustle. Two weeks ago the three houses, including mine, got together and cut out vaudeville. I certainly hope it will be permanent.
>
> I opened this house in February last, and fought for four months to keep from putting on vaudeville; finally I had to, but now we are all on straight pictures, so I feel I have won something.
>
> This is my first offense to your department, but don't think we don't know you and your wonderful work. I have carried every number of the "Bible" of the last three years over most of the Western states.
>
> I have often had "business getters," which I thought of submitting, but other things have interfered and partly procrastination, too, but I want to say that I have gotten many valuable suggestions from your department, which I consider has been one of the important factors in the uplifting of the entire industry, surely the house policies of thousands of owners and managers.

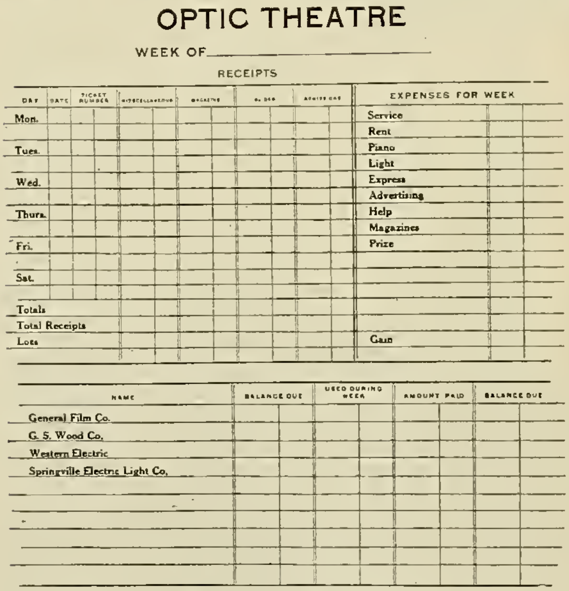
We are sorry that the other business getters were not sent in. If others have helped you through this department, help the others in your turn, when you are able, and pay your debt.

We assuredly do not think that the Crusoe float is too circusy. It is a subject that will stand all sorts of publicity schemes.

A Handy Sheet.

We reproduce a page from the loose leaf system of the Optic Theater, Springville, Utah, which the manager, Myron Mainwaring, kindly sends. In the reproduction the small type is lost, but the column heads read Day, Date, Ticket number, Magazine, Slides and Admissions.

With such slight changes as are required to cover local conditions this sheet will cover all items for the week and preserve the record in concise and comprehensive form. The advantage of using the loose leaf system is that the typewriter can be used to fill in the items, daily and weekly, the sheet being of such form that it can be slipped into the machine. Few managers keep their records in convenient shape, but more are coming to realize the importance of having their records in proper form.



OPTIC THEATRE

WEEK OF____________________

RECEIPTS

DAY	DATE	TICKET NUMBER	MISCELLANEOUS	MAGAZINE	SLIDES	ADMISSIONS	EXPENSES FOR WEEK
Mon.							Service
							Rent
Tues.							Piano
							Light
Wed.							Express
							Advertising
Thurs.							Help
							Magazines
Fri.							Prize
Sat.
Totals
Total Receipts
Loss							Gain

NAME	BALANCE DUE	USED DURING WEEK	AMOUNT PAID	BALANCE DUE
General Film Co.
G. S. Wood Co.
Western Electric
Springville Electric Light Co.

Too Scattering.

The Casino Theater, Sydney, N. S., sends in a throwaway and asks for an opinion. We think that if we ran a photoplay theater we would say something about the photoplays we offered. The bill has a type page of 7½ inches by 4½ inches, the page running the long way. Of this one inch and a quarter is taken up with the statement that "there are pictures and pictures, but if you want to see the World's best, the Casino is your stamping ground." It is added that no expense is spared to get the best and that each picture passes three censorships before being shown. All that may be interesting, but we think that most persons, even in Nova Scotia, are from Missouri and would like more definite information as to what they will see. It is announced that Pony Votes are given out, that the Casino orchestra is the best, that they have an instrumental trio as an added attraction and that there will be played the overture to one of the current musical comedies, but there is nowhere to be found a hint of the titles of pictures that are coming and no reference to pictures that have been shown, just a series of general statements with never a word of proof. Possibly the Casino does not know in time what the program will be, but in such a case we think we would arrange to find out or else not waste money on advertising that cannot pull. It would have been better, failing the names of the films, to have thrown the entire space to the musical act, which would at least have been properly advertising something specific.

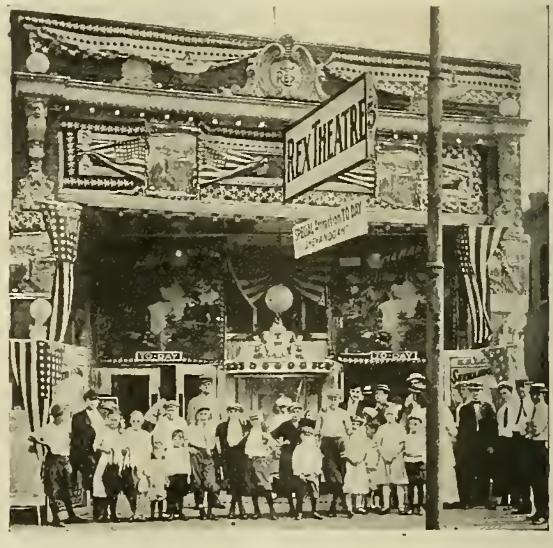
It does not pay to put too much on a bill intended to be read quickly. Better to boom one thing well than to divide a rather limited space into six boxes not one of which is phrased to pull business. It is better to plug and plug hard at one idea than to make general statements about half a dozen items. The musical trio might not have been very strong, but it would better have repaid advertising than the other things spoken of.

Another point noted is that while the house orchestra is so good that "All over Canada you hear it spoken of in highest terms," it had just undergone reorganization "to make it better than ever." The two lines fight each other and suggest insincerity of statement. If the orchestra was as good as all that, it did not need reorganization. If it needed reorganization it was not as good as stated.

Writing the simplest piece of paper needs thought and care. The more simple it is the more thought required. Where there is nothing to be said it is better to write nothing and save the useless expenditure, keeping the money to apply to other advertising when needed.

Booming Shenandoah.

This cut shows the Rex Theater, Columbus, Ohio, dressed for the Kalem Shenandoah, which Milton Phelps says did the biggest business in the history of the house, even with the temperature at 101. The cut shows how effectively bunting may be employed in the framing of lithographs, an effective idea where the subject is a patriotic one. If the children would move out of the way it would be seen that the advertising display is all out of the way of the crowd, only two lobby easels being used. The fact that the paper shows well above the heads of the crowd speaks for the value of this form of display.



Now a Two Year Old.

The Haynic Theater, Fairmount, Minn., celebrated its first birthday the week of August 11th, opening the celebration Monday night with the distribution of book marks in which a piece of film was inset as described some time ago in the case of an English souvenir. Hay and Nichols write:

> You will notice that we are readers of the Advertising for Exhibitors department, since we have borrowed both the form of the souvenir and the idea of making the celebration last a week.

They are more than that. In the past year they have been one of the most important and welcome contributors to this department and have put in more than they have taken out. We hope that ten years from now we will be able to chronicle their tenth celebration. One notable thing is that while they send clippings from two local papers evidently based on a house press notice, both the papers have rewritten the item to include their own tribute to the theater.

They also write that they are trying out the paper stencils mentioned in a recent department and will report when they have fully tried them out. We will appreciate it if they do.

Daily Dodgers.

P. E. Schilling, of the Greenwood (Miss.) Theater, writes that his company gets out a dodger every day in order to hold up the interest of the patrons through the warm weather. Instead of dodging the weather Montjoy and Schilling fight it and get the business. It costs something for daily dodgers, but not as much as it does to close down or run at a loss. They have fifteen fans and one large exhaust and with three shows a day manage to get the business. During the theatrical season they run one big road attraction each week and pictures the rest of the time.

The PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Got Watt?

EUGENE BERRY WATT, who has been doing business as the National Authors' Institute, in the Gaiety Theater Building, New York City, was arraigned in the United States Court Wednesday of last week, charged with conducting a swindle through the mails. After examination he was held in $2,000 bail to await trial. In presenting the case the fact that Watt has already served a two years' sentence for conducting a song publishing swindle was brought out. Watt was a lavish advertiser and is said by the Post Office Inspectors to have made $20,000 in the past two years through his scheme.

About a year ago the Institute advertised broadcast in the country papers, taking about ten inches of space for several insertions, the business being placed through an advertising agency. When the time came to collect the agency had faded from the map and its manager has not yet been located. Under newspaper practice the agency was responsible for the debt and little, if any, of the money was ever collected.

It is understood that the trial will bring out much evidence of interest.

Likes the Book.

Since her retirement from the editorial desk of the Vitagraph Company, Mrs. Beta Breuil has given part of her time to personal instruction and criticisms. She writes:

> Two had earnestly studied your first book on photoplay writing and in each case there was nothing for me to criticise in balance, construction, or form. I had no idea that a book could teach so much. Each is going to purchase your new book, and I think I owe it to you to let you know of its value in the cases that have come under my notice.

Naturally praise from such an authority makes us the reverse of sad and downcast, but please notice that she says that these writers "earnestly studied" the first Technique. They did not merely read it.

We welcome Mrs. Breuil into the teaching field. In her connection with the Vitagraph she gratuitously helped scores of writers to success, and she is exceptionally well qualified for the work.

Books.

"Writing the Photoplay," the text book by Dr. J. Berg Esenwein and Arthur Leeds, has just come from the press. Dr. Esenwein is editor of Lippincott's Magazine and literary expert for that firm as well as the dean of literary instructors and author of "How to Write the Short Story," the standard work in that line. Mr. Leeds is a well-known theatrical man and lecturer and the author of innumerable photoplays, most of which have been taken by the Selig and Essanay companies. He supplies the actual technical knowledge, while Dr. Esenwein brings to the work his undoubted skill and ripe teaching experience.

In its text the book follows closely the first edition of "Technique of the Photoplay' and this department, liberal extracts being made from both, as well as from William Lord Wright's, "Spectator," and others, but it is in no sense a compilation. The work is a careful and exact treatise on the subject, handled intelligently, comprehensively and with authority. Primarily intended to serve as the text book for the Home Correspondence Course, which Mr. Leeds will conduct, it is a book that will be helpful to all students of photoplay and should find a place in all libraries on technique. It is creditable in every way.

The second of Henry Albert Phillips' Authors' Handbook Series is "Art in Short Story Narration." Unlike his earlier "The Plot of the Short Story," this book, which is uniform in style and treatment, will not interest those who do not actually write fiction, where the earlier book was useful as well to photoplay writer and fiction author. But to the writer of fiction there is much solid and practical instruction to be gained from the volume, for, as a teacher of the fiction form, Mr. Phillips is highly successful.

Mr. Posner—Again!

George A. Posner, who is sometimes known as "the bell boy photoplaywright of Los Angeles," because he used to run an elevator in a hotel, comes forward and favors this paper with a few of his remarks.

This time Mr. Posner is peeved at our critics. He thinks that the critics are not "judicious," because they do not "exactly apportion credit or censure on details of plot construction amongst (!) author or producer."

We are sorry if the efforts of the critics do not meet Mr. Posner's approval, but perhaps Mr. Posner will cheer up a bit if he will sit down and think over a few things.

In the first place, the duty of a critic is to criticise. He is not hired as a mind reader, a second sight expert or anything of that sort. He gets money in a brown paper envelope every Saturday because he goes to the theater and looks at films, then comes back to the office and writes about them. That's all the Powers That Be expect of a critic. He looks at the film and tells what the film looks like. He is concerned only with what he sees on the screen. If what he sees on the screen is good, he says that it is good. If there are faults, he speaks of the faults as well as the good. His duties are purely and simply the criticism of the picture that is thrown on the screen. He cannot go back of the screen to place the blame and he is not expected to. He is not expected to know, for example, that Mr. Posner's script has been maltreated. He would not care a whoop in the heated thereafter if he did know. All that interests him is that in the production on the screen there are certain things done that should have been left undone, and other things have been undone that should have been done. He points out these facts both that similar error may be avoided in future and that the exhibitor who is going to get that film later on, and who is ever more ignorant of the existence of Mr. Posner than is the critic, may know what sort of a film to expect when the exchange writes him that they have booked "Kicked in the Kneck" for the following Tuesday. The critic is writing for the exhibitor, who has confidence in the critic's judgment, and who seldom finds it misplaced. They are both interested only in what is on the screen; not in what the producer has done to the scripts of Mr. Posner or any other writer.

Mr. Posner's letter displays an egotism that is not to be commended. No one said that Mr. Posner wrote the story. No one said that Mr. Posner was at fault. It was simply said that a certain produced story was faulty in construction as it appeared on the screen; a fact that Mr. Posner seems to be prepared to admit. No one on the MOVING PICTURE WORLD probably knows or cares who Mr. Posner is except this writer, and his labored and laborious effort to correct our critics is wearying in the extreme. As Mr. Posner himself says, "It is a condition of affairs over which the author has no control, and he must abide with it." This being the case, why does Mr. Posner waste valuable time—his and ours—in a profitless explanation.

Will one or two others please take the matter to heart and will those—including Capt. Peacocke—who clamor for credit on the screen please take notice that this is one of the reasons why we do not join the cry for full credit.

From Washington.

One of the Washington Circle of photoplaywrights sends in a chatty letter that is so full of meat we are passing it along. He says:

> Greetings from the Washington, D. C., branch of the Inquest Club.
>
> Since its inception, we have had meetings, regularly, once a week. The club now consists of three members! One lame duck nibbled, said he'd be tickled to death to join, as his scripts were being returned with persistent regularity, and then failed to show up!
>
> Now, I am by no means in a position to be proud of the number of scripts to my credit; but if I had sold none, I should have jumped at the chance to get in touch with others who had sold. That there are a large number of people in this town writing photoplays is certain. Yet there have been just three who have responded to the call! Either these writeres have sold little or nothing and are ashamed of it, or, if successful writers, they consider themselves too toploftical to condescend to meet their inferiors. That the former is true seems clear to me, rather than the latter; for I have found, in the short time that I have been at the game, that the real, sure enough writers, who have been successful, are always glad to get in touch with and help others who have as yet to win their spurs.
>
> A short time ago my wife, who has also offended in the literary line, received some verses belonging to another writer, in the same envelope with her own. She returned them, together with a friendly little note. Promptly she received a stamp and a cordial letter of thanks. At once we knew we had come in contact with one who knows the "game." That our judgment was correct was soon manifest, for we found several of her verses in "Lippincott's" and a splendid humorous poem in "Life." Not long after we received material intended for a lady in Rochester, N. Y. I returned this material and also inclosed a cordial note. We have yet to hear from the lady. Needless to say, too, we have seen nothing of her work in the magazines.
>
> Now, here we have the distinction between the real and the make-believe. These alleged writers who are ashamed to acknowledge they have sold little or nothing will remain failures. And I for one shall be quite content that they remain so; for they cannot be in earnest. Doubtless, they imagined from the correspondence school advertisements that there was some "easy money" to be picked up in the photoplay field. They probably have the same opinion we heard expressed the other night while we were attending the show, by a lady who sat next to us. She said to her neighbor that there was considerable activity just now in the moving picture line, that the work was quite simple; all was needed was to write a little "sketch" and there would be a big reward forthcoming. She said she intended to do a little in that line herself!
>
> If the photoplay writers in Washington are of this type, they might as well stay away from our club. If there are any real, sure enough writers in town—even if they have sold nothing, we will be glad to bid them welcome. But if they are of the type just described, and it seems they must be, for they have failed to show up, then we will be satisfied with our three.
>
> I almost had a case of heart disease the first time I met the leader of our club. A boy of 17! who had sold seven plays; and I, with my college education, could offer only one lone comedy! Of course, I had many other literary offenses to my credit, scientific articles, short stories, etc.; and my entry into the photoplay field was more recent that his. The scripts, too, that I had written were fewer than his. But, nevertheless, I was only too pleased to get in touch with one who had been more successful than I. Indeed, had I sold none at all, I should have come forward with the same eagerness. That our meetings have been successful is shown by the recent sale of a script of mine in less than two weeks' time to a company which buys little outside. Not only that, but I have many scripts that are being held for consideration, which I feel confident will sooner or later find a home.
>
> Now, if there are any writers in Washington who are in earnest —writers who are not looking for "easy money," who hope to get > something for nothing—let them come in. We will welcome them with open arms. But if we three are the only ones here who are in earnest, I must say I am heartily ashamed of Washington.

There is a lot in what this writer says about the courtesy and accessibility of the real people. Years ago, when we were writing magazine stuff about everything from disappearing gun carriages to soon-to-appear artists, we found that the bigger the man the more easy he was to get to and the nicer he was when you got there. People like Henry Clews and J. Pierpont Morgan, J. Q. A. Ward, F. Marion Crawford and Wilhelm Funk never found it necessary to "put up a front," in order to impress the passer-by. The hardest man to reach was the man who had yet to do things, but who was interesting because he might achieve something. It is the same way with writing.

As to Washington, it was our editorial experience that a lot of very poor stuff is turned out in the National Capital, and two of the biggest pests in photoplay still make their residences there, but there should be more earnest writers who are anxious to sit in with the rest and work and study.

These little circles we have established with the co-operation of local writers are doing more good than all of the correspondence schools can do if they run to the end of time. They give practical help and, what is more important, moral support. Get in, not alone in Washington, but in Boston, Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis or wherever there is a circle. A Buffalo writer has been trying to form a circle there. Surely there is more than one writer in Buffalo! No?

Keep On.

Not alone patience but persistence is what is needed in gaining success. The other day a beginner wanted to know if the fact that he has sold none of his first six scripts argues that he cannot succeed. We thought of about fifteen dollars worth of spoiled white paper that marked our own early efforts to become a fiction writer and of the piles of dead scripts we have been shown by others and answered "No." The same mail carried another letter from a correspondent who wrote that she had sold three of her first six for $110. You never can tell. Keep on and find out through experiment.

We Undeceive Miss Justice.

Miss Mabel Heikes Justice writes from her summer home:

> I always felt, however, that you "had it in" for the author invading the photoplay field, but yet, as you acknowledged recently, if some of us could not have made good, modestly though it may be, we should not have remained long.

Miss Justice does not read us correctly. We do get impatient when someone gets up every second week to remark somewhere that they can get more money for a fiction story than for a photoplay, but that if it is made worth their while—say from $200 to $500 a reel, they will come in and help save the photoplay. That is one of the best little goat-getters we know, but it is not because we resent the appearance of the fiction author, but because of the complacent superiority of tone.

About seventeen years ago the "dramatic sketch" became prevalent in vaudeville, and every actor of the dramatic stage was hustling around to help uplift vaudeville for a salary about three times as great as they were paid for five times the work in a drama. They all spoke condescendingly of the task before the engagement, and bitterly after their sloppy, sludgy sketch was rejected. They all thought that "anything was good enough" for vaudeville and never realized that they had to put the best that was in them into the twenty-minute act.

It is the same way now with the fiction author. In a lordly way he is willing to save the photoplay by contributing his name in connection with tenth-rate work, and we do not want that sort of author.

Our reasoning is this. An intelligent writer, who will take the trouble to study his work and who will work, can prepare in not more than half a day a script for which he can now obtain from $50 to $100. If he took the same idea and put it into story form, it would involve several days of revision and bring him possibly $100 to $250 or even more. We do not see why the fiction author should not sell for a half or a third a product that takes but one-fifth of the time required for a story. We do not see why he should be coaxed with a sum in excess of his earnings at the more difficult work (in the matter of labor required) of writing a story.

Above all, we do not see why he should disregard the first rule of workmanship and utterly ignore the demands of his market by writing to please himself instead of writing to please the purchaser. For such authors we have no sympathy and no use. For those who, like Miss Justice, herself, Louis Reeves Harrison, Bannister Merwin and some others who are content to be photoplay writers, we have always held out the welcoming hand. We think we have sold about as many fiction stories as the next man and are qualified to class as a fiction writer if number of titles sold or number of words written is to count, but when we went in to write plays we studied the field and the medium precisely as the novice and professional fictionist alike must do. We welcome the fiction author who makes himself a writer of photoplays. We have neither use nor respect for the man who wants $500 for a script that would disgrace the pupil of a correspondence school. That's all.

Inquiries.

NOTE—No questions can be replied to by mail. Look for your answers here. A list of addresses to which photoplays may be sent will be mailed on receipt of a STAMPED AND ADDRESSED ENVELOPE.

K. S.—We must pass that Ramo. Romaine Fielding played John Field in "Good for Evil" and Burton King was Burt. Harry Benham was Brown in "Brawn vs Brains." Arthur Hoosman was the other clerk in "A Substitute Stenographer."

M. McC.—J. W. Johnston was Jack in "The Stronger." Miss Greenwood is with American. Famous Player films are not licensed, but can be seen in licensed houses in some sections. The same applies to the other two players, both of whom work in special releases.

V. D. R.—The "natural" thing would not be to write an editor asking what a rejection slip means. You are told that the story is not suitable to the company's present needs, which is a clear statement of fact. Why it is not suitable is something that the editor is not required to explain. The main point is that the story does not suit the company in question, but the "why" is something that only the editor knows. It may have been returned for any one of a thousand possible reasons.

RUBENA.—Bless your heart, you don't bother us with your letters, we're used to them. Write as often as you please up to three times a day. The proper figure is 41. William West has played with Edison, but not the Kalem William West. There are two William Wests and two Robert Burns. Miss Bracken is with Broncho. Hope you pull down a prize.

E. D.—You are not required to send letters, press clippings and other inserted matter. These are prepared in the studio. You write this matter in your script at the proper place and let them worry. Most companies have a special department for leaders and inserts. It will cut your profits to a loss to send all this matter at present prices.

J. D.—A photoplay consists of a cast of characters, a synopsis of less than 250 words and the plot of action, sometimes called a scenario. The synopsis should be given first and very carefully prepared, for it is from this that the editor forms his opinion of the story. Leaders are inserted in the action where they properly fall, either before the scene to which they refer or in the scene itself where this is necessary. In this case it is called a cut-in leader because it is cut into a scene instead of being cemented in between two scenes. Ask all the questions you want so long as you ask intelligently. These questions are properly put and the Answer Man returns your compliments.

E. L. P.—Max Linder is supposed to be working in his own pictures. He has not been seen in American released films lately. There was a company called Bison that made a deal with the 101 Ranch people and became the Bison-101. There is no more difference between a leader and a subtitle than the fact that some people use one term and others the synonym.

J. H. T.—There are many classifications, but the general ones are first, second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth run, not more than ten days, two weeks, three weeks and thirty days old. Some exchanges date up to 90 days, but most regard as commercial any film older than thirty days. Junk is commercial film that is unfit to run because of an excess of scratches and patches.

J. H. F.—Mr. Barker played Father Riley in "The Banshee."

A. G. R.—Marshal Nielan (late with Kalem and now with Biograph), was the young doctor in "The Spirit of the Flag."

CORRECTION.—The Kay-Bee Identifier advises us that it was Miss Dorothy Davenport and not Miss Billy West that played Alice in "The Sea Dog."

R. A. D.—Essanay released "Bill" April 13 of this year. We are not able to locate that Vitagraph title. It seems to have been a subtitle.

B. R.—We do not know who is playing opposite Mr. August now. Miss Charleson will probably remain with the eastern Vitagraph companies.

N. B. H.—Mrs. Joe Knight was Prudence Cabot in "The House of Bondage." Miss Gertrude Claire was Aunt Betty in "The Boomerang" and also Mrs. Morton in "A Dixie Mother."

M. C. M.—Francis Ford is directing for Universal but does not seem to be playing.

J. R. A.—The addresses of those who wish to form circles are given only to residents of that city and then only by mail.

G. F. R.—Leader or subtitle may be used as you elect. Both are understood to mean the same thing. Notify the holding company by registered letter that the script is withdrawn, copy the carbon and send elsewhere. Do not send out the carbon. It will not be read.

W. I. G.—Miss Blanche Sweet was Theresa in "The Coming of Angelo." The first of the Mary stories was "The Escape from Bondage," released July 26, 1912. Look up the General Film Co. in the telephone book and ask them where the Melies pictures will be shown.

E. A. K.—This paper publishes weekly the synopses of all regularly released films in the United States and most of the specials. It is not an eastern nor a western paper nor yet is it confined to the United States. It goes all over the world, but aims particularly to cover the American field. Your second is a question almost too long to reply to here. The main difference is that a drama is told in dialogue, a story in narrative and a photoplay in action. The basic technique of art is the same whether you work in oil, watercolor or charcoal. The underlying technique of literature is the same, but each medium worked in presents certain differences.

G. M. D.—Simply write into the scene "Vision in part of scene showing Jack's first meeting" or "Vision in Jack's mother," or whatever it is you want. You do not make it a separate scene.

Technique of the Photoplay

(Second Edition)

By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

☞ Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue - New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Operators' Union Directory, I. A. T. S. E.

NOTICE—Each union is entitled to have its roster of officers, meeting nights, etc., listed here once per year, free of cost. Preserve this list, as it will not be republished. The mail address of the secretary should be included, and the address of regular meeting place, if any.

P. S. Local No. 285, Troy, N. Y.

Harry M. Brooks, president; John Stone, vice-president; Alphonse LeMay, recording secretary, 2227 14th Street; James Muldron, treasurer; S. P. Whiting, financial secretary.

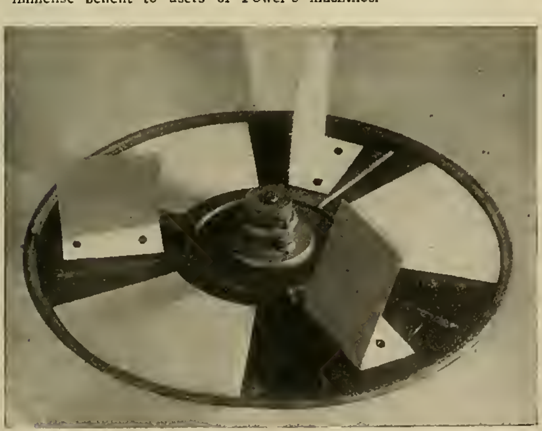
An Odd Thing.

Mr. J. S. Snively, proprietor Princess Theater, Paris, Texas, sends in samples of damaged film, for which injury the exchange has charged him $10.75. He asks my opinion as to how the damage could be caused, or how an inspector would go about finding $10.75 worth of damage in a film injured as the specimen shows, when there is not a sprocket hole broken.

The damage to this film is peculiar, and I cannot imagine any possible way in which it could be done in a projecting machine. It consists of slight indentations on the celluloid sides. These indentations are less than one-quarter of an inch apart, are in a straight line in approximately the center of the film, and are something like 3/32 of an inch in length, extending crossways of the film. Along the line of the indentations, lengthwise of the film, is a dull mark, showing that considerable friction has been applied. The indentation of the film is swelled somewhat on the celluloid side, which causes a corresponding depression on the other side, and this line of abrasion shows the film has been rewound quite a number of times since the damage was done, therefore I do not believe that friend Snively is responsible for it, assuming that the trouble was discovered immediately after the return of the film from his house. I very much doubt if these indentations would show on the screen, or at least show appreciably, and would consider a charge of $10.75 as excessive in any event, unless several hundred feet of the film were found to be thus injured. If the indentation does show appreciably on the screen, then that would be something else again. This much I will say, however, and stand by it, viz: that this film has been rewound a good number of times between the time the damage was done and the removal of the samples.

To the Users of Power's 6 Machines.

Brother L. D. Read, Clemmer Theater, Seattle, Wash., contributes an excellent photograph of an idea which ought to and doubtless will prove of immense benefit to users of Power's machines.



Brother Read has riveted sheet metal wings, about 1½ inch square, to his shutter, as shown. This has the effect of eliminating travel ghost by holding the slack out of the shutter and gears, so that there is no backlash. These little wings are set at an angle of about 90 degrees to the plane of the shutter, and by reason of the resistance of the air they act as a brake, and this resistance is absolutely constant at any given speed. If the wings are not made too large the resistance is hardly great enough to be noticeable at the crank. I would recommend this scheme to all Power's 6 operators who have any trouble with travel ghost due to worn gears or lost motion anywhere in the mechanism.

Another Endorsement.

Mr. John R. Van, proprietor of Van's Silent Players, from Northville, N. Y., writes as follows:

> Guil Pastile is the best ever. One-third more light with one-third less gas. I open next week and look for a good season. I never leave New York State. Do you know where I can buy Vitagraph three reel "Uncle Tom's Cabin?"

Vitagraph's "Uncle Tom" would, of course, be a licensed picture and therefore could be had from no other agency than the nearest office of the General Film Company. Licensed films are not supposed to be bought and sold, but are leased to the General Film Company's exchanges with a proviso for their return in six months.

Treed for Keeps.

Texas sends up the following wail:

> I am a member of I. A. T. S. E., Local 153, El Paso, Tex., and have been operating moving picture apparatus for the last six years. In that time I have been up a tree several times, but this is the first time that I have had to ask help. I can generally figure things out for myself, but I am up the tree for keeps now. We have two of the very latest motor driven Motiographs, and are using a radium gold fibre screen, at 103 feet. Thirty amperes through a Westinghouse rectifier; one 7½ and one 9 inch condenser; ¾ top and ⅝ lower carbon; everything in perfect alignment and adjustment; but still I am troubled with a sort of flashing, such as would be the effect of using a three-wing shutter with 60 cycle a. c. I am enclosing special form of shutter that I made for these machines, as the regular shutter gave too much flicker. If the trouble lies in the shutter, as I think it does, could you suggest another form that would do away with the flicker, and at the same time do away with the flashing?
>
> We are doing a very nice business here, using the Universal programme, which we find takes very well. Please do not print my name or town. I have several reasons for asking you not to do so.

Hum! Every time I think I have answered everything in the world, somebody promptly kills that idea by springing a new one. The shutter pattern submitted is simply an ordinary three-wing shutter, in which the width of each of the two flicker blades is increased to approximately the width of the main blade. This would tend to eliminate flicker, but would, of course, cut the light pretty heavily. If you have correctly described the effect, then I can give but one explanation, and that does not sound very reasonable. I do not know anything at all about the Westinghouse rectifier; I have not seen one of them in operation, nor has that company seen fit to furnish this Department with any information whatsoever concerning their device. However, I presume, of course, it delivers pulsating current, and it may be barely possible that these pulsations are sufficiently pronounced that the effect of the three-wing shutter blade getting into synchronism with the pulsations would be to some extent similar to the three-wing shutter getting into synchronism with one side of the alternation of the 60 cycle current. You can test this matter by putting on a two-wing shutter and seeing whether the trouble disappears. Another test is: if the effect only occurs at a certain speed, and disappears when that speed either increases or decreases materially, then it is a cinch I have correctly diagnosed the case, and you had better take the matter up with the manufacturer of the rectifier.

Threading In Frame.

Mr. A. C. Stewart, Star Theater, Rossland, British Columbia, Canada, writes:

> Am somewhat peeved to see that the Power people have put out something which I thought I was the inventor of, viz.: the lens focusing handle. I made the same thing a few weeks ago, by twisting a piece of wire around the moving part of the jacket, allowing the twisted ends to hang straight down and fastening the wire to the metal lens-jacket with insulating tape. Those having a separate dissolving stereopticon will find the following facilitates threading in frame: Nail a piece of tin on front wall where the light ray will strike it when the lamp-house is pushed over on sliding ways. Bend it at such an angle that the light will be reflected on the front end of the M. P. lens. Strips of brass bolted to carbon arms and extending out through the back of the lamp-house, with the lamp leads bolted at their outer ends, will save many burned terminals, and much cable. Are those soldering torches still available?

I do not quite understand what the separate dissolver has to do with that threading-in-frame scheme. That kind of terminal has been described in the department some time ago, and it is a very good plan where its use will not interfere with the rules laid down by the powers that be. No, the torches are no longer available, I am sorry to say.

A Legitimate Kick.

Mr. W. R. Chittenden, of Chittenden & Chittenden, proprietors of Marshall Opera House, Marshall, Minnesota, encloses $2.50 for a handbook and writes:

> Issue of August 17th makes it very apparent that there is great value in the handbook, and we have needed something of the kind. We are using a Motiograph, 1913 model, and have considerable trouble with loose shutter gear, and oil leakage from oil chamber on account of faulty castings, as screwholes enter chamber proper, instead of being wholly in casting at side of chamber. We are getting good light, using a 110 volt, 60 cycle a. c. through a compensarc, on the 30-40 notch, but it seems impossible to get rid of shadow of the arc on screen, though it is hardly noticeable when the picture is running. Will the handbook help us in this? We are using ¾ Bio carbons and can run eight hours on one carbon, halving the same? Would there be any advantage in using smaller carbons?
>
> Is there any agitation at present looking to the cutting out of the everlasting drinking scenes in films—especially in the licensed releases? We find that about seven out of ten productions bring in these scenes, and to such an extent it has gone that our people are commencing to comment. It seems impossible to get a picture without "booze," in some form or other.

If the oil casing is faulty, it is up to the Enterprise Optical Company to supply you with another, and they will undoubtedly do so. As to the loose shutter gear, you will have to describe it more in detail before I can help you. The Enterprise Optical Company recommend the use of white vaseline in their oil casing. It can be introduced by first melting in a squirt can. It would not, of course, leak out like oil. I think if you will study carbon setting, pages 204 to 212, inclusive, of the handbook, and set your carbons so that they burn as per C, figure 98, page 209, your trouble will disappear, though ⅝ carbons would be better than ¾ if you are only using 40 amperes a. c. I would suggest the increasing of your amperage to, at least, 50. I think the improvement in your picture would more than justify the added expense, but I would not use larger than ⅝ carbons even on 50 amperes of a. c.

As to the drinking scenes complained of, I believe your objection is well founded, and that there might well be an agitation started, but I know of none at present under way, looking to the reduction of this evil.

Easy Mark—Swindler—Look Out!

Mr. C. H. Rauschenberg, Charleroi, Pennsylvania, sets forth the manner of the hilking of Charleroi operators as follows:

> On July 7th last a man, claiming to represent a monthly magazine, visited the theaters in this vicinity, soliciting subscriptions among the operators at $1.00 per year, claiming the magazine was beginning a new department, especially for operators, in the current number. He had several old copies of the magazine for samples, and seemed fairly well versed in the operating profession, probably having been an operator himself before he started his present get-rich-quick scheme. He got a goodly number of the men around here for $1.00 each, and not one of us have heard from either him or the magazine since. He is described as a tall man, middle aged, medium build, sandy mustache and coarse features. He was somewhat under the influence of liquor when he came to see me and looked like a man who was habitually that way. If not too late it might be well to warn operators through the department, and thus protect them. I might add that I am unable to locate the address of the magazine, and none of the book stores here handle it.

Looks like you fellows have been worked for a bunch of suckers. That particular game is so old that it has a long, flowing beard, and the whiskers are turning grey. From what you say, I presume he did not even have the "current number" containing the alleged department, yet you fellows gave up one perfectly good dollar each to a man, who, you say, looked like a habitual souse, on an aged-wrinkled, time-scarred old con game of that kind. You ought to be ashamed of yourselves, but the fact that you are willing to acknowledge the corn and warn others makes us inclined to forgive your little excursion away from the realms of common sense and welcome you back into the fold.

Wants a New Screen.

The Happy Hour Motion Picture Palace, Oneonta, New York, propounds the following:

> Am thinking of installing a new screen. Would like your judgment as to whether a gold fibre or mirroroid screen would be best. My house is 20 feet wide, and the throw is 70 feet, with a 12-foot picture. Have large windows over my front doors, and two large windows back of the screen, as well as a good size back door, all of which I leave open in hot weather, but with drop curtains over them. This, however, gives me too much light in the afternoon, and makes the picture hazy. Please reply by mail as soon as possible.

I have told correspondents many times that personal replies will only be made where a minimum fee of $1.00 is enclosed. However, in future all those who enclose four cents in stamps, or a self-addressed stamped envelope will be sent a carbon copy of the department reply, thus saving much delay where an answer is wanted in a hurry.

I have also said many times that I cannot make comparisons of manufactured goods through the department. You will find that both the mirroroid and gold fibre screens are high-class articles and, in any event, I could only give you my own personal preference as between the two. The mirroroid is fully warranted against discoloration of its surface, and I believe the gold fibre is also.

Reducing Lens Diameter.

From Watertown, South Dakota, comes a letter which brings up a question which should be treated in the department, and, inasmuch as I believe the Kleine Optical man has overlooked one phase of the matter, I shall set it forth. Watertown has a Power's 6 machine, with a 26-inch e. f. stereo lens and a 2/3 size 6½-inch e. f. objective. The picture was hazy. Watertown overcame this by putting a paper ring against the objective lens thus reducing the opening to 1⅝ inches, which cleared the picture up. He wrote the Kleine Optical Company first, and forwards me their reply, part of which reads: "We would suggest that you entirely eliminate the paper rings and other obstructions you have placed in the motion picture objective."

Now, without dealing with the other phase of this matter, the Kleine Optical Company is in error here, because it is not the best practice to use a half or 2/3 size lens objective without stopping the same down; this, by reason of the fact that machine shutters are calculated to work with a lens of given diameter, and when this diameter is increased the shutter is not wide enough to nearly cover the lens while the film is in motion; therefore, there is likely to be a faint travel ghost, which probably will render the picture somewhat hazy. By this I mean that the travel ghost may not be very distinctly recognized as such, by reason of the fact that the rays of light which actually project the picture pass approximately through the center of the lens, regardless of its diameter. However, there are what might be called secondary rays which pass through the outer edge of the lens and reach the screen, but they are not strong enough, I believe, to produce a decided travel ghost effect, but rather a somewhat hazy appearance of the picture. This can only be overcome in two ways; viz: (a) By stopping down the diameter of the lens, which really does not appreciably reduce the light, or, (b), by increasing the width of the shutter blade. The latter, however, is not practicable, since, when you increase the main blade of the shutter you decrease the light, and increase the flicker unless you, at the same time, increase the flicker blade or blades in the same proportion, in which event there is a heavy loss of light—a very heavy loss—and some increase in flicker also. I think this is something the Kleine Optical man has overlooked, as we all overlook points at times.

From St. Paul.

Mr. George C. Johnston, Empress Theater, St. Paul, Minnesota, writes:

> This is the first time that I thought of writing you, but under the heading, "A Remarkable Performance," in the August 16th issue, I have found something to employ my pen. In this article you say that, in Tacoma, you found two machines wired in multiple (notice here you did not say they were pulling on the same source of resistance, which I think you mean). This, I think, is a very poor idea, for with a man pulling amperage above forty-five, it is next to an impossibility to strike an arc and get it burning right on the first scenes of the picture. And again, when one trims how is he to burn a crater and keep the other lamp lighted? Then, too, in case his source of resistance should give out it would kill the arc on both machines; then what? This same argument applies to the motor drive you speak of, for if his one motor gives out it forces him to again crank, or have a dark house. I have had a great deal to do with twin machine motor drives, and find that the more independent one machine is of the other the less chance there is of a dark house. Projection here is only fair, which is not due to any fault of the operators, but to the tightness of the strings on the wallets of the powers that be. I extend to you a hearty invite, from all the boys, to visit our Burg. Hope this is not far off.

The objections you name, friend Johnston, are present where the multiple plan is used. Unless I am in error, you will find that I mentioned them. The house need not be in darkness if an auxiliary source of resistance is kept ready for temporary use in case of emergency, and the breaking down of motor would simply call for hand cranking for a little while. But the objection as to burning a crater on new carbon is very real, and to my mind, is the only serious thing against the plan. I passed through St. Paul on my trip west, but lack of time prevented my stopping. Would indeed be glad to meet the boys of the Twin Cities of the Northwest.

Mistake Somewhere.

Brooklyn, New York, sends in the following:

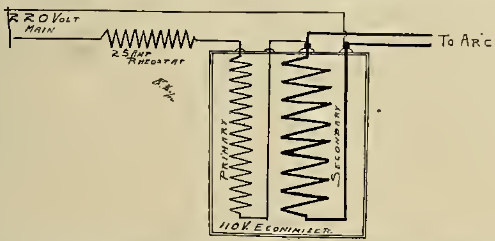
> Will you please tell me the carrying capacity of a wire having 91 strands, each strand being a number six wire. This is the wire an examiner gave me to measure. After finding the circular mills, which is 2,388,750, I looked up the wire table and could not find that number, so I asked the examiner to give me a different table, and he said there was no other table.

I guess you have made a mistake in measuring the strands, Brooklyn. Wire composed of 91 strands of number six would be an enormously big conductor, larger, I think, than any made. The examiner certainly did not use any such cable in his examination, and if he did he had no business to, since by no stretch of the imagination would an operator ever be called upon to figure the capacity of that size conductor. The largest conductor given in the electrical wire tables I have is 2,000,000 circular mills, which has a carrying capacity of 1,050 to 1,675 amperes, according to the insulation. But as far as I know no such conductor is in actual use, except in or immediately around large power houses. Anyway, no operator should be called upon to figure a wire of that kind, nor, I am sure, were you. What they probably gave you was a No. 6 wire with 91 strands, instructions for measuring which are fully set forth in the handbook and have also been published in the department. However, it would be impractical for an applicant to actually figure such a wire, since wire gauges are rather unreliable for such small wires. A micrometer caliper should be used to measure their diameter. You could, however, tell the examiner how the capacity is figured, which would, or should, serve the purpose. Multiply the diameter of one strand, in thousandths of an inch, by itself and multiply this by the number of strands, which gives the c. m. area of the whole cable.

From Montreal, Canada.

Montreal, Canada, contributes the following:

> Concerning "a problem," page 426, July 26 issue, this is how it looked to me. The evil of connecting resistance in series with the primary of the transformer is that the regulation of the transformer would be destroyed; that is to say, as the load comes on the secondary voltage would drop below normal, and as more load comes in it will keep on dropping. The same effect would take place if the resistance were put into the secondary side. As to what would happen to a 110 volt economizer with rheostat in series on 220 volts, I could not say definitely, as I have no data on the machines in question, but, assuming certain values, I imagine you would get about 40 amperes, if you were getting 40 on the 110 volt connection. If you want 90 amperes at the arc you would have to insert 7.54 ohms resistance in the primary to use it on 220 volts. If 60 amperes are wanted at the arc then 4.4 ohms resistance would be required in the primary circuit. I do not think this would have any ill effect on the transformer if used this way for a short time. There is, however, another method of connecting the two instruments in question, viz: leaving the arc leads as they are and connect only primary lead with one secondary and apply 220 volts to the remaining primary and the other secondary terminals, which changes your ordinary transformer to an auto-transformer. I have quite a few interesting tables on the efficiency of different systems and the behavior of arcs at different amperage, etc. These I made up to satisfy my own curiosity on the subject. They were compiled from my own tests made around town. If they would be of use to you, I would be very glad to send them along. Recently you mentioned the high amperage used for projection in Australia; there is one place in this city which uses 95 amperes of 110 volt a. c., projecting a 24 foot picture at 90 feet; another uses 85 amperes under similar conditions.



I have published the first part of this letter in order to show that there is much for even the wise ones to learn. The Montreal brother is, I believe, entirely wrong in his deduction, so far as his comment pertains to the use of resistance in series with transformer. As to his scheme of connection, as shown in the diagram, it looks to me as though the effect would be to turn the primary coil into a choke coil and cut out the secondary altogether. I cannot make anything else out of that diagram. Anyhow, I like to see these question discussed by the correspondents, and, therefore, submit the proposition, though I believe the Montreal brother is in error all the way through. I shall be glad to examine the tables mentioned and, if they seem to be of value, to give them publicity. However, am somewhat doubtful as to the practicable utility of tables of this kind.

The Matter of License.

I have spoken of this subject before, and will doubtless have occasion to speak of it in the future. The law is supposed to represent right and justice—it is supposed to. Will somebody kindly explain to me by what process of reasoning it is deemed to be right to compel a traveling operator to take anywhere from ten to one hundred examinations, and spend anywhere from $10 to $100 in license fees, in making a single tour with a moving picture show. Is it not a rather absurd and ridiculous proposition to assume that after a man has been licensed, let us say, for instance, in Baltimore, New York City, St. Louis, Chicago, San Francisco, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Cincinnati and perhaps a dozen other cities, and finally reaches Boston, only to be gravely informed that before he can presume to operate a moving picture machine in the State of Massachusetts he must be examined and licensed—again. Could absurdity and asininity go further? And supposing after having been examined and licensed in all these various cities, Boston pronounces him incompetent and refuses a license, thus declaring to an admiring public that the authorities in all these various cities don't know straight up and that it has remained for Boston to discover the fact that this man, who has a dozen or more licenses, has taken a dozen or more examinations, and perhaps has operated a moving picture machine for several years, is really a false alarm, and does not know how to operate.

Some may call this state of affairs a joke, but I call it an outrage on common sense. It would be bad enough if the States themselves did the licensing, granting recognition to each other's licenses, since then a traveling operator would only have to take a little less than fifty examinations in order to earn his daily bread and support his family anywhere in this glorious land of the free. But with cities compelling an examination, an operator might have to be examined perhaps several thousand times, if all cities adopted license laws, before he would be free to earn his living anywhere in this country, and we might have the spectacle of Squashville, Backwoods County, State of Arkansas, declaring a man incompetent, upon whom New York City, Boston, Baltimore and Washington had passed favorably. How absurd! As a matter of common decency; as a matter of common sense and fairness, the license of one city should be recognized by all other cities, at least so far as road showmen are concerned. With modern projection equipment there is mighty little danger of fire anyhow. I could show you instances where twelve-year-old boys have been operating a machine for many months, without anything out of the ordinary occurring—except very poor projection. If the cities do not want to do this, and the States won't take the licensing proposition into their hands, except in isolated cases, and recognize each other's licenses, then the dictates of common sense and inter-state commerce rights demand Federal licenses which would be good anywhere.

As a matter of fact, I think if the I. A. T. S. E. took the matter up with the proper authorities, possibly with the help of the American Federation of Labor, some arrangement could be made with the Federal government whereby road showmen could be given Federal examination and license, which would be available to road showmen only, and which would have to be recognized by the various States and municipalities. This would save road men an enormous amount of annoyance, as well as considerable expense, and it is high time that something of this kind was brought about. The present state of affairs is in restraint of inter-State commerce, as applied to moving picture amusement.

Editor is Honored.

Mr. Harry Martin, Olathe, Kan., hands the editor the following:

> This is my first communication, and the very first thing I want to tell you is that we were blessed with a great, big baby boy on last 4th of July. I wanted to name it after you, but did not know your first name, so compromised on Richard, which was as close as I could get to it. I have been operating for six years and I never expect to get so proficient that your books and Department will not be of value to me. I have an old trunk full of Worlds and have made me a large book from the projection clippings therefrom.

Many thanks for the honor you have paid me in naming the first, but it is an awful handicap to the kid to be named after the Man of Trouble.

Complete and Excellent Reply.

Philip Glaser, Local Union 306, New York City (old branch of Local 35), writes as follows:

> I did not receive the World of August 2d until today, but I hope I am not too late in answering, and that my answers will be printed with the rest. Question No. 1. Name the different parts of an electric generator (dynamo) and explain how the current is generated. Answer: The principal parts of a generator are bearings, shaft, armature, armature windings, commutator, brushes, field magnets, field windings, leads and terminal block. When the generator is not running, the field magnet still retains a very little of its magnetism, and is sending a very small amount of magnetic lines of force through the armature. Now, when the armature is started revolving the armature windings cut through these lines of force, and a very weak current is generated, but, weak as it is, it is strong enough to travel around the field windings, and as it travels around the field it makes the field a little stronger, and the field magnet sends more and more magnetic lines of force through the armature. As the magnetic field thus is increased, so is the current generated in the armature increased and this makes the field still stronger, and this action keeps up until the capacity of the field rheostat is reached, whereupon the voltage stops rising. If there were no field rheostat in series with the field, then this rise would continue until the field became saturated with magnetism, and could hold no more, then the rise would stop. Question No. 2. What purpose does the field rheostat of an electric generator serve? Answer: The field rheostat is connected in series with the shunt field of a generator. It is an adjustable rheostat, and is used to strengthen or weaken the field. As resistance is cut out on the field rheostat more current flows through the field coils, thereby raising the voltage, and as resistance is cut in it reduces the amount of current flowing through the field and thereby lowers the voltage. Question No. 3. What do you understand by a shunt wound dynamo? Answer: A shunt wound dynamo has a field of fine wire connected across from the positive to the negative brush, with a field rheostat in series. Part of the current which is generated is shunted through this field from the positive to the negative brush. Question No. 4. What do you understand by a compound wound dynamo? Answer: A compound wound dynamo has two field windings, a shunt winding with field rheostat in series as before described, and a second winding called a series winding. This series winding is wound on the same magnet core with the shunt winding, and is of thicker wire than the shunt winding. It must be of wire having as much, or more, carrying capacity than the line with which it is connected in series. Hope these answers reach you in time to be counted with the rest. Would suggest that all who are answering these questions send in to you a certain sum of money, and that the money be spent for a medal, the contributor getting the highest percentage being presented with the medal. What do the others think of it?

The questions have been held up for reasons which were explained last week. This hold-up is possibly temporary and possibly permanent. It was not the intention to have operators send their replies to the Department. There would be so many thousands of them that publication would be impossible, and the work of going over them would require a very considerable amount of the editor's time. This reply, however, is so excellent that I publish it in order to show the possible value to unions of taking this matter up. Brother Glaser's replies contain an excellent explanation of the questions involved and show that he understands dynamo action. Now, supposing they were posted in the unions' rooms. I venture to say that nine out of every ten members in the organization could learn much from them. Moreover, all the replies being posted, much discussion would be created as to who was right and who was wrong, which would tend to fix the correct knowledge, when given in a reply, in the minds of those interested. It is plain to be seen that Brother Glaser thoroughly understands dynamo action—as every operator should, but only a comparatively few do.

Address Wanted.

Mr. Paul H. Allen, East Liverpool, Ohio, says:

> I want to know where I may secure the Guil Pastiles; they listen good to me and I have to use gas from time to time. I have profited many times through the department. Have been cranking (no motors allowed in Ohio) for four years, and still learn something every day, Tuesdays particularly, for that is the day the Moving Picture World arrives. I take pride in the picture I put on, at least I did up to a week ago, when I had to quit active work in the projection field, and take up another line allied thereto. I have seen nothing from the Liverpool boys and suppose they are all too busy to write. We have four houses in East Liverpool, all large ones, and projection is, on the whole, good. By the way, what is the matter with projection in Little Old New York? I was unpleasantly surprised on my recent trip.. Why not a sub-division in your department for camera men, for we have our own troubles also?

I will be glad to give camera men space if they show a desire for it by sending in articles pertaining to their craft, but I cannot undertake to do much criticizing, as I am not myself an expert camera man. However, I think, myself, there is really need of something of the kind, and if the camera men get busy and do their part, I will manage to get by with mine somehow or other. There, now, it is up to you camera men whether you wish space in the department or not. As to the address, much as I would like to accommodate you, brother Allen, I feel that would be unjust to the advertising department of this paper. I do not believe it would pay the Guil Pastile man to carry a large space, but certainly he ought to, at least, give his address. It costs almost double the subscription price to send the World for a year, and the only reason we can give you the magnificent paper we do, is because we have the advertising patronage, and, conversely, of course we have the advertising patronage because the advertiser has found that Moving Picture World advertising pays. But if we did all the advertising in the various departments, there would not be any particular use in the advertisers paying for space, so you see how the matter lies. The Guile Pastile is undoubtedly a good article. Let the man who proposes to sell it, at least, give his address through the proper department. I have certainly done my part.

The "matter with projection in New York," is to be found largely in the fact that very few New York managers are paying, or are willing to pay, the price to get high-class work in the operating room; also a large percentage of the managers in this city absolutely don't know the difference between mediocre and high-class projection, and being in this condition, they are unable to check up the work of their underpaid operators and secure better results. It is also a fact that in certain sections of this city we still have Mr. Chase-em-Through with us in his most rabid form. In New York City the cost of living is abnormally high and, whereas, from $20.00 to $25.00 would secure a really competent, high-class mechanic in a small town, it won't do anything of the sort here in Gotham. Please understand that in this I am speaking broadly; there are exceptions to every rule. But taking the thing as a whole, if New York managers want really high-class results on their screens they will have to boost things up to, at least, $30.00 or $35.00, and they will never get uniform results until that is done. However, poor as New York projection still is, taken as a whole, it is vastly superior to what it was three years ago and it is still improving. Also in this connection let it be said that the New York operators' salaries on the whole have advanced and they will continue to advance for some time to come, because the New York manager will become more exacting as time goes on; he is going to demand better and better results on his screen and he is going to discover that those better results will cost him additional dollars in the shape of salaries. Another thing you should remember is that New York picture houses until recently have been limited to 299 seats, which in turn limits the income. Now that 660 seats are allowed you may see a change for the better.

Large Carbons.

During my recent trip through the West, I noticed a decided tendency towards the use of large carbons, the general practice being to use ¾ cored above and ⅝ solid below, for anything above 40 amperes d. c. I did not run into much alternating current in the West, as nearly all theaters rectify it into d. c., therefore, do not know what the practice is where alternating current is used.

In one place, I do not remember where, the operator was using ¾ cored above and a special ⅝ cored below, the core being very small. He claimed that by the use of a core of this kind the light was held steadier, and the general results were better. Now, I do not myself see any good reason why this should be, but, whoever the operator was, if he will set forth his reasons for the use of this carbon, and describe the benefits to be derived, I shall be glad to have it; also let us know the exact size of the core, and where the carbons can be had.

I have, heretofore, held that ⅝ carbons were best up to 45 amperes d. c., but I am willing to admit that very likely the ¾ may be used with advantage where the amperage exceeds 40, but I do not believe it is good policy to use anything larger than a ⅝ where the current drops below that figure, and I think where it falls below 25 a ½ is better than a ⅝. I also still hold to the opinion that better results are had through the use of a solid below, except that there might be advantage in a very small core, though I am somewhat in doubt as to that. The trouble with the large carbon is that if there is very much carbon back of the crater there is a much greater radiating surface and more substance to heat, therefore, the temperature of the crater will not, I believe, be as high as it otherwise would, and if the carbon be very large, in proportion to the amperage, say a ¾ carbon, and 25 amperes, this would result in very serious loss of light. However, if, on the other hand, the carbon is too small for the amperage, then it burns away too fast, the resistance is abnormally high, and there is a considerable tendency for the binder to burn away somewhat in advance of the voltatilization of the carbon, all of which makes for a brilliant but unsteady light.

In this connection too much stress cannot be laid upon the necessity for keeping the inside of the carbon jaws perfectly clean. There is considerable heat in the jaws, especially where the carbon is burnt down short, and, therefore, a considerable tendency to oxidization of the metal, thus forming a thin scale, which has very high resistance. My advice to operators is to keep careful watch of the inside of their carbon jaws and keep the metal perfectly clean. Also, in this connection, I wish again to advise operators to use graphite on their carbon jaw clamp-screws every day. Before starting the day's run remove the wing nut, squirt just a little kerosene in the threads of the bolt, and then sprinkle on some powdered graphite, after which put the wing nut back. Graphite is one of the best lubricants known to science, and it has very high resistance to heat. Clamp-screws thus treated do not have to be twisted up with a pair of pliers, since they work perfectly easy and free at all times, just as though they were well lubricated with oil. The kerosene is only to make the graphite stick until the nut is put back on. If the threads were dry the graphite would nearly all fall off as the screws were put back into place.

Light Trouble.

Mr. George Jones, Reading, Pa., writes:

> Am operating an Edison outside two-wing shutter type B machine; using 25 amperes, 60 cycle, 220 volt current. Have trouble with my light. Carbon holders are in good condition, as we only opened July 23 of this year. Instead of carbons burning properly they burn just like the top of a counter-sink, split down one side and cause a jumping flicker on the picture.

Well, friend Jones, your description sounds like a d. c. lamp burning upside down, but you say it is 60 cycle a. c. I see you are using ⅝ carbons, but you have not stated what form or type of resistance. Suppose you have the light company test the amperage at your arc and see if it is not a whole lot higher than you think; also let me know what the resistance is, that is to say, rheostat, transformer, or choke coil.

Haven't the Address.

Mr. A. W. Barthel, Brownsville, Tex., asks for the address of the Shipman Rewinder, which I described in the July 19 issue.

Sorry to say, friend Barthel, I haven't got the address of this manufacturer. I presume it will be supplied later through the advertising columns of the paper. If I recollect right it is somewhere in Pennsylvania.

What About It?

Cleveland, Ohio, writes:

> I have only been operating for a year and a half, but my work has been well spoken of. I would like to join the Union; I would have a better opinion of myself were I a member. However, having served my apprenticeship under a non-union man there is no man in the union (at least I cannot find one) who will talk to an outsider. I have never been able to get any line on what the union examinations are like, and am afraid of taking chances of failure. I am certainly tired of being snubbed and called a "scab."

Your desire to join the organization is laudable, and, in my humble opinion, if you are a man of good character and a capable operator, the fact of your having served an apprenticeship under a non-union man should by no means bar you from membership in the organization. I believe the Cleveland union is composed of men who are broad-minded enough to give you a fair examination; I certainly hope so. If you are a competent operator you have nothing to fear from a fair examination, and if you are not a competent operator you have no right inside the organization. I shall take the liberty of writing President Hurlburt, of Cleveland Local Union No. 160, concerning your case. Of course, I know nothing as to what the circumstances may be, but I believe the Cleveland boys are in error if they "snub" you, unless there are other reasons for such action, which you have not stated. The term "scab" is applied only to a man who takes another man's place in time of strike, and unless you have done this it cannot rightly be applied to you. You are simply a non-union operator, and the fact that you desire to join the organization shows good faith on your part—always assuming you have stated all the facts.

A Unique Scheme.

Mr. Ralph W. Brill, 124 Wurts Street, Kingston, New York, is out of a job, and forwards a neatly printed postal card, setting forth in detail, giving names and locations of theaters, his past experience, etc. Presumably, he is mailing these cards to various managers, and it is a pretty good scheme, too. The last two paragraphs read: "Winter 1912-1913, in business, Union Theater, Chadwicks, N. Y., near Utica, N. Y. Summer 1913 with Rudolf, Tannersville, N. Y. Ask them. Winter 1913-1914 with you if you need an operator and act quick." His experience, summer and winter, is given back to 1909.

Operators Are you perfectly satisfied with the results you get on the screen?

The new second edition of the

MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK FOR MANAGERS AND OPERATORS

By F. H. Richardson

will be the standard textbook on the subject for many years to come. Have you got your copy? 430 pages, [illegible]

Address all orders and remittances to

MOVING PICTURE WORLD,

Comments on the Films

Licensed

"THE MAN IN THE STREET" (Selig), August 28.—Gilson Willets, the author of this picture had a distinct idea and he has made us see it clearly. This fact sets the offering off from all the other regular releases today and the spectators gave it more of their attention; watched it very closely. The story is unusual, though it is not probable (except in the atmosphere of the picture) and is not what could be called a pleasant story. Its hero is a detective who, from being "the man on the street" rises to be the man in the club through his nerve. Its heroine is a kleptomaniac whom he saves from being found out. It is the man's nerve that makes the picture worth while. As a whole, it is cleverly staged by Oscar Eagle in most appropriate sets. Tom Carrigan plays the titular role and the girl who steals the necklace is played by May Buckley. Charles Clary is the rich man whose patronage helps Tom make good. Tom had won his interest through knowing how he could get a paper signed by a person many miles away at once—we ourselves had never seen the long distance writing telegraph at work, and this, clearly shown, is also an asset of the offering. The photography is of the best.

"HE FELL IN LOVE WITH HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW" (Vitagraph), August 28.—That the way to a man's heart is through his stomach is corroborated in this comedy by Page Spencer. The two young things, artists (Tom Morrison and Norma Talmadge), get married. Tom doesn't know how to cook and Norma sticks up her nose at it on account of high art. Mother comes and teaches Norma a lesson in how to keep a man's affection. In the first scenes it seems rather crude and furnishes no comedy, but when Florence Radinoff comes into the picture it rises to comedy and we can't help thinking that she had a good deal to do with this through her acting and the contagion of it, although the script, it so happens, woke up at that point too. Bert Angeles, the director, kept the plot running smoothly and, as far as possible, naturally. The photography is excellent.

"QUAINT CALCUTTA" (Vitagraph), August 28.—Just a few scenes that serve well as a filler to the farce on the same reel. They are clearly photographed and worth while.

"QUAINT SPOTS IN CAIRO" (Edison), August 27.—There is a note of freshness in these scenes and, above all. there is, or seems to be, much that is peculiarly Egyptian, such as the return of the pilgrims from Mecca. Narrow streets, gates, walls, graveyards and palm trees can be found in many places. The photographs are not so clear as some that we have looked at.

"ZEB'S MUSICAL CAREER" (Edison), August 27.—Zeb (William Wadsworth), is a farm boy and his instrument is the trombone; on the pitchfork he is not strong. The neighbors, it is shown, are not fond of his trombone work. Zeb has a dream in which we see him leader of the band connected with a troupe of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" players. The picture didn't get over strongly, but it has many things to commend it; certainly the players have done their parts well. The author is William B. Pearson and the producer C. Jay Williams.

"WHAT CUPID DID" (Essanay), August 27.—There are two snappy comedies on this split reel and it makes a good offering. The first brought out a roar of hearty laughter. The situation seems, at first, so queer that we didn't believe it was going to get over, but it results in the most amusingly preposterous mix-up of family relationships imaginable and the audience got hold of it in first-class shape. The house was full of laughter. The players show excellent team work and carried the picture well.

"HIS ATHLETIC WIFE" (Essanay), August 27.—The ability of the athletic wife (Gertrude Forbes) to put any opponent out with her half Nelson gets her into trouble. A business man's courtesy makes her think that he has stolen her purse which she has left on her bureau at home. She takes his, which looks just like it, from him, and he has her arrested. This also pleased the audience.

"HOW BETTY MADE GOOD" (Selig), August 27.—This picture opens with a view of Betty (Myrtle Stedman) plowing. It is pretty hard work and she trades her horse for a small department store in the village. A cowboy (Lester Cunio) accidentally shoots through one of her washboards and so gets acquainted with her and there's a love story begun. It is slight, but played with good fellowship—there's a bunch of smiling cowboys. At the end, after the ceremony, the girl won't let her health be drunk in anything but water.

"$1,000 REWARD" (Patheplay), August 27.—There is a certain pleasing unexpected outcome to this cowboy romance. This assures interest in it, though it is not what could be called a high-class story; has little real humanity. The players had not much chance to shine, but do all that was required. The backgrounds, a mountain lake and near-by scenes, are interesting. Crane Wilbur and Betty Grey have the romantic leads. Charles Bennett and Morris McGee have roles. The photography is clear enough for the story, but lacks artistic qualities.

"WHICH WAY DID HE GO?" (Vitagraph), August 27.—John Bunny seemed to enjoy the role of Mr. Henpecko, which he plays in this picture and is most amusing in it. The offering is full of fun, to which Flora Finch, as Mrs. Henpecko, adds her share. The plot in which Henpecko takes part with his daughter (Lillian Walker) against her mother who wants her to marry Hughie Mack and helps her to elope with Wallie Van, is cleverly arranged and gets its purpose over. There was much laughter in the audience; it will be a popular offering. Produced by George Baker from the script of Epes W. Sargent.

"BLACK AND WHITE" (Biograph), August 28.—A farce rather painful to watch. One man in the audience laughed at its more vulgar moments, but the sounds he made were not hearty.

"OBJECTIONS OVERRULED" (Biograph), August 28.—On the same reel with the foregoing. It also is not very funny. A tramp has a black slave.

"AN EPISODE AT CLOUDY CANYON" (Essanay), August 28.—The situation here is not at all new, but there is in its development enough that has not been pictured before to keep the interest awake. Those who have seen very few pictures will like it; for, although the photography of exteriors is very poor, the story is clearly and effectively told.

"LOST IN CAMBODIA" (Melies), August 28.—These backgrounds have never been pictured before (so far as we know) and are full of interest. A farcical story has been used to connect the scenes together, but it rather hinders the interest than helps. The photographs are poor.

"PATHE'S WEEKLY" (August 28).—The photography is much clearer than last Monday; topical and the items are of interest.

"A DAY WITH A HINDU FAMILY" (Patheplay), August 29.—A short hand-colored film showing the women of the house in the performance of their duties, among other matters making curry—and also they are shown eating it.

"THE ROAD TO MOREZ, FRANCE" (Patheplay), August 29.—On the same reel are many fine pictures of a railroad running on aqueducts across valleys and along the sides of mountains; also the town is shown in panorama.

"THE VALLEY OF THE BOURNE, FRANCE" (Patheplay), August 29.—On the same reel is another scenic, hand colored, which will interest.

"THE PRICE OF THE FREE" (Selig), August 29.—The picture will not make good entertainment, unless, perhaps, we expect morbid total abstainers. Too much footage was devoted to the scene showing the death of the wife, and that of the baby, too; it was necessary only to indicate the fact. Furthermore, it is not in reason to believe that three men, successful in business and apparently happy, should quit drinking because a weak man, after experiencing sorrow, becomes a bum. When the thread of a story is outlined by poetry instead of the usual subtitles it is well that the poetry should be of an exceptional quality—stuff that has stood the test. Given the script, there is no complaint against the producer of the picture or against the actors.

"HIS CONSCIENCE" (Lubin), August 29.—The theme is a variant of the story by Romaine Fielding, entitled "The Accusing Hand." A crook encounters at different times the searching look of one man, finally breaking down under the scrutiny. The scenes in double printing are well produced.

"THE CLOWN AND THE PRIMA DONNA" (Vitagraph), August 29.—The story will hold fairly well, but to the keen picture follower it will not grip as do most of the Vitagraph dramas.

"THE CAPTIVATING WIDOW" (Kalem), August 29.—There are laughs in this picture. Ruth Roland, as the widow, contributes to the fun, and so does Dick Coburn, as her sweetheart. Harry DeRoy is the rival whom John Brennan tries unsuccessfully to aid.

"MIKE, THE TIMID COP" (Kalem), August 29.—On the same reel is this burlesque by the same company. It made fun in a morning house.

"A RAILROAD CONSPIRACY" (Kalem), August 30.—This picture of the derailing of the small forward wheel of a locomotive is hardly convincing. The incident comes at the end of the story, which in its course fails to establish any particular interest. A locomotive driver discharged for drunkenness conspires with thieves to take a train containing valuable goods out on the road so his confederates may rifle the cars. The train is stopped by a repair crew, which lifts a couple of rails. Mrs. James B. Ross as the wife of the engineer does good work.

"THE ADOPTED BROTHER" (Biograph), August 30.—A picture that will not wholly escape the charge that it exploits Sunday school virtues or virtues that are conventionally and unconvincingly shown. Among its characters, it has a very good adopted brother, a brute of a big brother who drinks, a drunken book writer who turns out to be the hero's helper, and a couple of thugs. The rest are Western village characters. This reviewer cannot say that he enjoyed the picture, but it was made for a certain public that can safely be counted as fair.

"THE GHOST OF GRANLEIGH" (Edison), August 30.—For review of this film see page 943 of issue of August 30, 1913. It is by Bannister Merwin and is very good.

"A WESTERN SISTER'S DEVOTION" (Essanay), August 30.—Broncho Billy, as deputy sheriff, has to arrest a horse thief, brother of the girl he loves. He refuses her plea for her brother, so she dresses in her brother's suit and leads the deputy on a wild goose chase. This is not new and the action has not been played briskly. We can count the offering as fair, for it is clearly told and sensibly acted.

"HIS LAST CROOKED DEAL" (Lubin), August 30.—A story of a Western gambler (played by Henry King) who falls in love with the new postmistress (Dollie Larkin). He swears to give up gambling and she marries him; but, because of his reputation, no one will give him an honest job, so he finds it hard to support her. The rent falls due and they take cheaper lodgings where the wife falls sick. The gambler puts over one more crooked deal and is exposed. This leads to a pathetic scene at the bedside of his sick wife. There is a good deal of good stuff in this story The acting will please. We think it a very fair offering.

"THE BLIND GIRL OF CASTLE GUILLE" (Patheplay), August 30.—A beautifully poetic picture that is far better than the quotations from the poem by Longfellow that serve it as sub-titles. The stagecraft is wellnigh perfect and has provided some truly lovely scenes; and these the camera has caught perfectly. A good offering, not for its story, which is only fair, though poetical, but for its pretty pictures and its good acting. It will delight refined people more than those who are cruder.

"THE LONELY HEART" (Selig), September 2.—This story hardly will concern the men in any audience. For those women who find entertainment in a slow tale of a gossiping female interfering from no apparent motive in the charitable work of a neighbor the picture may contain some measure of interest.

"TRIMMING A BOOB" (Lubin), September 2.—Robert Fischer as the boob is entertaining in the skit in which he is cast.

"THE ENGAGING KID" (Lubin), September 2.—On the same reel Mae Hotely does some excellent work in a comedy written by E. W. Sargent. We see her putting on an eccentric makeup before the camera and we also see her after the makeup is removed.

"WHIFFLES DECIDES TO BE BOSS" (Patheplay), September 2.—There are hearty laughs in this ripping good comedy. Whiffles has as a partner a laughmaker of his own caliber in the man who gives him advice as to how to manage a wife, but who, as the film shows, is not one who takes his own.

"IN THE CAUCASIAN MOUNTAINS" (Patheplay), September 2.—On the same reel is a very short travelogue.

"THE GRECIAN VASE" (Edison), September 2.—Here is a picture out of the ordinary. It is a phantasy written by Richard Ridgeley, who also directs the making of the film. Adding to the interest of the production are the dances furnished by the members of the company of Gertrude Hoffmann. There are artistic settings.

"STONE THE WOMAN" (Essanay), September 2.—This picture is described as a symbolic story of facts as they exist. Very likely it is. Pictures showing brutal betrayals are unpleasant. When to these situations are added such titles as "Pass her, O maiden, with a pure proud face, if she puts out a poor polluted palm," and then many others of the same style, the pain is aggravated. Doris Mitchell, as the betrayed woman, fails to inspire sympathy. Bryant Washburn, the betrayer, was unnecessarily torrid in his initial lovemaking. By the way, what was the occasion of his entering the home of the woman? Was he a boarder? The house looked like a dwelling. Still, the fire rope over which he made his night departure would indicate a hotel. The scene of the wedding in the church was well staged.

"HIS LORDSHIP—BILLY SMOKE" (Vitagraph), September 2.—Edwin August and Charles Bennett do fine work in this comedy. Mr. August has the role of a cowboy who rebels at doing menial work for Lord Fitznoodle, played by Mr. Bennett. James Oliver Curwood writes the script and R. T. Thornby produces it.

"AMONG CLUB FELLOWS" (Biograph), September 1.—A comedy half-reel which gets many chuckles from the audience. Algy, the heartbreaker, is taught a well deserved lesson by the members of the club. Good pictures and a satisfactory plot.

"EDWIN'S BADGE OF HONOR" (Biograph), September 1.—An exceptionally good comedy release, on same reel with above. The convict eludes the "bonehead" prison officials in an amusing manner and then puts his fellow convict in a box and wheels him back to the prison, in order to get a medal of honor. This is thoroughly enjoyable, and with the above constitutes a very good release.

"THE CHRISTIAN" (Kalem), September 1.—A story that wins sympathy from the audience by the merit of sincere acting and in spite of the handicap of a difficult plot. The opening scenes in which the young man saves a girl from drowning were finely pictured and contain good photographic effects. Later the photography is less pleasing. It seems absurd that the man and girl should pretend to be brother and sister, but later developments justify this. The story contains considerable religious fervor and certain allegorical touches, but is generally pleasing. The end was overworked, but as a whole the picture is effective.

"PATHE'S WEEKLY," September 1.—Fifty flying machines starting from the ground at one time in France, snowballing on Mt. Tacoma, 250,000 business men working on Missouri roads. the Czar reviewing troops—these and many other interesting subjects make a strong number.

Licensed Special

"THE JEWELED SLIPPERS" (Selig), September 1.—In the main this two-reel offering, written by Gilson Willetts, tells an absorbing story. It concerns the attempted smuggling of two slippers set with $50,000 worth of diamonds. The scenes are laid in a club, on an ocean liner, and in a detective office. There are a confusing number of minor characters—too many club men and too many detectives. But the story moves along pleasingly and the gang is rounded up in an elevator in a satisfactory way. The betting feature could well have been spared, as it served to make the windup of the picture tedious. A pleasing number.

"THE INVADERS" (Kalem), August 27.—For an extended review of this special two-part offering see page 827, issue of August 23, 1913.

"THE GANGSTER" (Lubin), August 28.—A two-part melodrama which uses plenty of melodramatic license in choosing its situations, is full of action, but desires the sensational rather than the true. This is all right in measure, or so long as it can be made to convince; but in this case, so far as we can tell by our own attitude toward it, it fails to get over. We had the feeling that all this has been shown before and to the point of being wearisome. The scenes are beautifully photographed and almost all the players are good company; but they were asked to do the impossible and, especially the gangster, are full of counter suggestions. Nearly all these lesser melodramas have a following and those who like them like them a good deal—there seem to be some characters in whom the emotional side is perfectly guarded from the intellectual side. Such people may be strong intellectually; but they are much stronger on the emotional side.

"JOYCE OF THE NORTH WOODS" (Edison), August 29.—This two-reel drama is from the novel by Harriet T. McComstock. At no time does it rise much out of the ordinary. The first reel is valuable chiefly in establishing interest in what is to follow in the second. There is a strong scene when the wife, driven from home, seeks refuge in the home of the man who on account of his prison record had allowed Joyce to slip from him. The two are alone in the house. The ex-convict resolves the problem by departing and leaving his home to Joyce. There is a distinct punch when Joyce, after discovering the body of her dissipated husband in the woods, is joined by the man she has always loved and learns that he has likewise loved her. Mary Fuller plays Joyce and plays it well. Augustus Phillips has the role of the man who, does time to shield an erring brother. There is a large cast and a good one.

"BROKEN THREADS UNITED" (Essanay), August 29.—There is some good acting in this two-part story of country and city life. The tale is logical and well bound together—if we except the ease with which the simple maid from the country obtained a job with a moving picture company. (Still, it might have been several years ago, when things were different.) E. H. Calvert's work as the detective stands out; there may not have been much of it, but it was worth while. Mr. Commerford as the hoodwinked man from the country was good, as was his daughter, played by Ruth Stonehouse. Doris Mitchell found difficulty in her part of the adventuress, the loose woman who with the aid of one of her confederates lures the old man to marry her. She lacked the abandon, the cold-bloodedness, the nerve. The role should have been given to one more experienced in the ways of the world, which teaches this sort of stuff more surely than does the stage. Jules Ferrar as the dive proprietor was strong. "Broken Threads United" will make a good release.

"THE CALL" (Vitagraph), August 31.—This two-part production is an unusually strong picture. Two of the Vitagraph players here give us portrayals their friends will be justified in claiming as their best. Miss Storey in her interpretation of the wife shows a new angle in her versatility. Her work is powerful. Mr. Lincoln as the husband who leaves his wife to the man he believes she prefers and later returns to wreak his vengeance gives a performance that puts him in the first division of screen players. The story has a grip all the way. Gladden James well plays the unpopular role of the third corner of the triangle. Lovers of the spectacular will find a thrill in the railroad collision and the scenes that follow that of the wreck. There is welcome relief from the tenseness that runs through the play when the lumberman ventriloquist deceives a bystander. It is a good comedy. Ralph Ince writes the script and directs the picture. Also he has the part of the friend from home who is met by the lumberman in the Canadian woods. The latter part of the picture is unusually strong in conception and splendidly executed. It furnishes a suspense that will satisfy the most exacting picture patron.

Independent

"NEVER AGAIN" (Rex), September 11.—The main situation in this is intended as a practical joke, but the serious side of it gives the whole story a dramatic tinge which somewhat weakens its appeal. Two jags sit opposite each other in a club. One of them is given a revolver and the other painted with red ink, to look as if he had been shot. The results come very near being serious and in the end the husband is very repentant and swears he will never drink again.

"THE TRADE SECRET" (Majestic), August 31.—One of the best "business" story films shown for some time. The thieving brother attempts to sell out the secret formula for making dye, but is prevented by the old foreman. Both in acting and photography and plot this is above the average film. A good release.

"THE GYPSY QUEEN" (Keystone), September 11.—A good burlesque offering, free from offense, in which Mabel Normand appears as the Gypsy queen. The fat boy is tied to a tree, and as the live snake crawls toward him Mabel hatches up schemes for stopping the approaching rescuers. Quite laughable in places. A full reel number.

"THE TURKISH BATH" (Majestic), September 6.—The main situation in this half-reel comedy is very amusing and it seemed to us not quite enough was made of it. Fred's experiences in the bath cabinet, and the substitution of a smaller man for him made quite a good situation, but the end was weak.

"LAYING CORNER STONE OF NEW EXAMINER BUILDING" (Majestic), September 6.—Views of a Los Angeles ceremony, showing pictures of W. R. Hearst and other noted men on the coast. On same reel with above.

"A PERILOUS RIDE" (Majestic), September 2.—This number is full of spirited horseback riding and much melodramatic shooting. It has action, if not very much plot, and has some interest.

"THE GREAT SANTA MONICA ROAD RACE" (Majestic), September 2.—On same reel with above, pictures of the famous Pacific coast speedway. Barney Oldfield is shown changing tires in one scene.

"TAMING THEIR GRAND CHILDREN" (Thanhouser), September 9.—The laughter this brings out is due to the cleverness of the appealing Thanhouser children and the naturalness of the scenes rather than to the plot, which is very light. The grandparents agree to take care of the children, but soon discover their hands are full. The kids run away and attend a circus. A pleasing number.

"THROUGH THE NEIGHBOR'S WINDOW" (American), September 7.—A rather absurd little comedy, in which a young husband takes home a dummy from the cloak house during his wife's absence. The gossipy neighbors write his wife and, of course, she returns home post haste. Very little amusement.

"RED SWEENEY'S DEFEAT" (American), September 13.—The opening portion of this reel, showing Slim-fingered Annie in the West, gets up quite a legitimate interest. The attempted hanging of Red and his rescue by Annie constituted an abrupt drop into melodrama of the unconvincing type. The photography is better than the plot in this.

"BINKS ELEVATES A STAGE" (Imp), September 13.—No plot is discernible in this helter-skelter half-reel subject until the actor is mistaken for an escaped convict. The situation where he becomes frozen through has a gleam of humor in it.

"PIFFLES TRIES A NEW HAIR TONIC" (Imp), September 13.—On same reel with above; the amusing experiences of a bald-headed man with the Whirlwind Hair Restorer.

"THE SURGEON OF ABAJO" (Frontier), September 6.—Quite an appealing little film story, in which the jealous rival retains a letter written by the young doctor to his sweetheart. The love affair is broken off temporarily, but the girl becomes a nurse and later the rival is sent to the hospital for an operation. The subsequent scenes were interesting. Good photography helps along this number, though the story is none too strong in places.

"THE HAND OF PROVIDENCE" (Crystal), September 14.—A fairly good dramatic reel, with a strong finish. The forger escapes from prison, in a none too convincing manner, and enters the home of his wife, who believes him dead. He is shot during a struggle with the man she intends to marry.

"PLEASING HER HUSBAND" (Crystal), September 9.—Green chides his plain wife because she does not take more interest in dress. She suddenly begins taking up social life and Green repents of his former displeasure. Quite entertaining.

"SOME LUCK" (Crystal), September 9.—Belmont's horseshoe brings him a great deal of luck for a while and then trouble. On same reel with above. A fairly good number.

"MOTHER" (Powers), September 10.—A heart-interest story featuring a mother who goes to the city to find her erring son. "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" is a song quoted at the beginning. The scenes are filled with homely pathos which will have a strong appeal to some observers. The meeting of mother and son in the ranks of the Salvation Army was effectively shown.

"IN THE CYCLE OF LIFE" (Powers), September 12.—A picture of such decided unpleasantness that it leaves a bad feeling behind it. The young man drinks a pint of whiskey in his mother's presence and then follows his brother to the home of a fast woman. A quarrel ensues between Phil and the woman in which the latter is shot. Edwin assumes the blame. Later he hides in a church tower. His mother dies and he climbs out of the tower just in time to discover her in the coffin. He dies from the shock of this discovery. A plot of this sort does not possess enough probability or attractiveness to make it enjoyable.

"THE GOLD MESH BAG" (Gem), September 8.—The Gem Company has a brilliant group of comedy players and what they can do is plainly shown in this offering. It is a farce and gets over as pleasurable entertainment on the work of its players rather than on the fun in its situation. As an offering it is good, for it is full of comical individualities, facial twists and mannerisms that are now conventional and now original, but almost always funny. Ethel Grandin plays the heroine with plenty of dark eye-stabs with which she drives home comedy or tragedy according to her need. The others are not far behind in their support to her. It is an excellent offering. The tone of the photography is a bit harsh, but the pictures are clear.

"THE FIGHT AGAINST EVIL" (Rex), September 14.—A story with an intended moral, some of which is very obvious. It tells of a working girl who is led to the white slave market by a man whom she called in from the street when her mother died. The physician who attended the mother rescued her in time and gave her a home. It contains a good lesson for unsophisticated girls and also for parents. Margarita Fischer plays the girl. The picture is well done and worth while.

"ALGY FORFEITS HIS CLAIM" (Nestor), September 10.—Algy and the Western girl inherit a ranch together, with the provisions in the will that they are married. Algy tries Western life, and tires of it suddenly after some amusing experiences, so he gives up his share of the ranch. The photography is not very clear in places.

"THE JUDGE'S SON" (Broncho), September 10.—The scenes in this are so hurried that they arouse very little feeling. The story is one in which a judge is called upon to find his own son guilty of murdering a gambler for his money. Later, during an exciting attack of Indians on the court house, the real murderer confesses to the crime.

"THE POISONED WATERS" (Nestor), September 8.—An adaptation of a mythological tale, produced by Milton Fahrney. It will interest chiefly as a spectacle, the picture being filled with good backgrounds. The photography is excellent.

"THE GIRL RANCHERS" (Nestor), September 12.—Two girls, inheriting a ranch, decide to invite their young women friends and run it themselves. The result is a rather breezy picture, but, of course, in the end they have to call upon the men to assist them. A conventional comedy idea rather well handled.

"BINKS, THE HAWKSHAW" (Imp) September 6.—A burlesque full of good fun and fresh twists, mostly given to it by the players. It will make hearty laughter; is entirely wholesome and can be recommended as an amusing offering. The leading role is taken by George de Forrest, supported by Violet Mersereau. The photography and staging are all that could be desired.

"A GIRL GRADUATE" (Great Northern), September 6.—This comedy will win a quiet smile among people who see too much vulgarity in slapstick humor to laugh much at it. The title is somewhat misleading because the leading lady's education does not figure, except as an incident to her masculinity. In the efforts of friends to cure her of this trait and make her a feminine woman is the comedy contained. The situations are well developed.

"DOROTHEA AND CHIEF ROSAMATAZ" (Frontier), September 11.—A farce love story that will get by. The situation is new enough to serve. It may seem to the critical as silly, but the majority will probably laugh over it.

"STUNG" (Eclair), September 21.—A farce showing how three crooks are overreached by a fourth. It is not clear enough to be truly interesting or laughable; in fact, is quite obscure.

"CURIOUS FISH" (Eclair), September 21.—On the same reel is this perfectly photographed offering giving us some specimens of sea creatures. It is very interesting and full of instruction.

"PEARL AND THE POET" (Gem), September 23.—A very amusing comedy romance that will be acceptable entertainment to the many. Pearl White flirts with a poet and makes her fiance (Chester Barnett) jealous, so he gets the foot ball captain of his college team to watch and "do the poet up." Chester naturally loses her to the big athlete. These Gem players know how to act a farce and their work is popular.

"O WHAT A SWIM!" (Gem) September 23.—On the same reel is this farce of rural characters that is speedy and laughable, if a bit rough. Though by the second Gem company, it, too, is well acted and the photography is clear. The two will be liked.

"THE MANICURE" (Gem), September 15.—Ethel Grandin and Matt Moore have the leads in this barber shop romance with a farcical twist. It has a scene that is in questionable taste, showing as it does some under-the-table foot play that may offend many. The acting and staging of the offering are commendable and it is clearly photographed.

"LOVE ME, LOVE MY ANIMALS" (Gaumont), September 9.—Simple Simon receives word to care for the animals of the place in the absence of his relatives. He takes such good care of them that when the absent ones return they find the house occupied—the cow carefully tucked in bed, for instance. This French comedy will make more fun in some houses than in others, but surely will be greeted hilariously by the younger patrons.

"A CHILD'S INTUITION" (Solax), August 29.—Two children in this domestic drama do good work. The point of the story is the affection of the little ones for their grandmother and of their grief at her death. The recovery of one of the little ones from a serious illness when her sister brings in an old woman from the street and arrays the newcomer in the garb of the one who is gone furnishes a touch that will entertain those who are not critical. Mrs. Hurley is very motherly in the role of the grandmother. Darwin Karr and Marian Swayne play the father and mother.

"THE LOST COPPERHEAD" (Victor), September 5.—A melodrama with a good measure of suspense. Two children, actuated by natural curiosity, are seen trying to get into a box in which we know is a copperhead snake. The vivisection practicing doctor has missed the snake and with the police is trying to get it before any harm can be done. It looks as though the children (they are his) were going to get snake stung when they are reached and saved. This vivisection theme in pictures is neither one thing or the other to most people, but to many it is a bit unpleasant. The acting and staging of this offering are commendable.

"HIS LAST BET" (Thanhouser), September 7.—A good comedy number, in which a poor clerk masquerades as a rich young man at a summer resort. He makes a bet that he can reach Newark, N. J., in 24 hours without money. He gives himself up to the constable, who takes him to Newark, N. J. His flight down the road was very laughable.

Independent Specials

"THE BLOOD RED TAPE OF CHARITY" (Powers), September 12.—A story in two reels, written, directed and enacted in its leading role by Edwin August. There is considerable strength in the offering, but it has some bad faults. One of these is melodramatic and insincere acting. The gentleman crook and his woman companion rob numerous guests at a bazaar, among them the head of the charity organization. The money is given to a poor family which has made a vain appeal to the charity organization for help. The photography is good and in spite of numerous absurdities the picture has strong moments.

"THE VETERAN POLICE HORSE" (Thanhouser), September 2.—A sort of "Black Beauty" film story, in two reels, featuring an old police horse turned out to pasture. The horse tells its story to a young colt, the incidents, some stirring and others pathetic, being presented on the screen. This will have an especial appeal to lovers of animals, of whom there are many in every audience. The sidewise jerking of the camera added nothing to the picture and was very hard on the eyes of observers of the film.

"THE GLOW WORM" (Reliance), September 6.—A three-reel offering by Will Levington Comfort, telling an entertaining, well-directed and nicely proportioned story. The scenes are attractive and spirited for the most part, and the principal interest centers at the Isle De Oro, a famous gambling resort. Rosemary Thebe appears as the Glow Worm, a woman of uncertain charm, with whom the hero, Irving Cummings, falls in love. Irene Hunt was pleasing as the girl reporter; Norma Phillips was good as Electra, but the part was made too much of in the beginning, as for a time we thought the hero loved her. Not a powerful release, but an entertaining one.

"FOR THE CROWN" (American), September 8.—A two-reel offering of the romantic type, with Warren Kerrigan and Vivian Rich in the leads. The Coronation March was so solemn that we mistook it for a funeral. This sort of picture should start off with something very definitely understood by the observer, otherwise, as in this case, half a reel is practically lost before the story begins. The later scenes work up considerable animation and the misadventures of the young king were interesting. The closing scenes, in which the infant king is restored to his throne, were the best in the film.

"A BRIDE FROM THE SEA" (Victor), September 12.—This two-reel feature comes under the head of strong film entertainment. Its story is not a pleasant one, and yet, because of its forceful, intelligent treatment, it escapes the morbid note. Gertrude Robinson and James Kirkwood are the leading people in the cast, with Charles Graham giving a good interpretation of the cruel uncle. The girl marries the captain, who takes her to sea and throws her into a hard, unkind existence. Here the plot becomes somewhat trite, for the girl casts herself adrift and is rescued by strangers, her memory being gone. Later she marries a minister; the captain returns and a good dramatic situation is unfolded. The captain is drowned later. A strong, convincing offering.

"THE DIAMOND MAKERS" (Rex), September 11.—A lively, well-pictured two-reel film, in which Robert Leonard shadows the diamond manufacturers. Margarita Fischer appears as Sheda and she and her band of Hindus operate quite a time before they are rounded up. There are a number of purely sensational scenes, better done than usual, including the fight on the roof tops and the destruction of the diamond plant. The scenes at the masque ball were effective. The photography is good and the production as a whole successful.

"THE LOVE OF MEN" (Bison), September 6.—This picture will interest some houses on account of the fine backgrounds. These seem to be in foothills, and to this writer are new in Universal films and, for that matter, in others as well. There are fine views of forest, mountain and lake. Those theaters where the patrons are fond of Indian stuff will enjoy the story and its working out as well as the scenery. Mona Darkfeather has a conspicuous part in the cast. It is not quite clear as to why she espouses the cause of the two white men who are captured by the Indians. The same is true of the Indian who shot at one of the two men after their escape and failed to follow up his advantage when he could have shot the other. The picture is in two reels.

"THE FOREST ROMANCE" (Bison), September 9.—These two reels, produced by Mr. Montgomery and featuring Mona Darkfeather, are a little different from the conventional Indian picture. There are interesting illustrations of the building of an Indian encampment—the erection of wigwams, etc. It is practically a straight Indian story, the white man intruding in but one or two scenes. It is all well done. The selection of backgrounds is especially commendable.

"THE WORKER" (Ramo), September 1.—This three-reel melodrama produced by Will Davis has some strong scenes, well made. The first reel successfully establishes the atmosphere of the factory—of the workers and of their employer. There is some good acting by the members of the cast. There is a tendency perhaps on the part of the woman playing the step-daughter to overact at times, but it is a heavy role she sustains. There are three whose work stands out. There are Jack Hopkins, who plays the son of the employer; Stewart Holmes, the worker, and Mary Aldea, his wife. In the minor parts of factory workers there will be noted excellent character acting. The interest is well sustained. In the final reel there are good situations—with a thrill in some of them.

SLIDE ADVERTISING.

What the Public Thinks About It and What Effect It Will Have on Patronage.

By George M. Rittelmeyer.

FROM all quarters of the United States the patrons of moving picture theaters are complaining about the increasing number of advertising slides which are being forced upon them by the proprietors of these places of amusement, and are wondering why such a condition exists.

The average man or woman goes to the picture theater to be amused, and there is nothing that gets them out of patience more than to have to sit through a lot of advertising slides before the film is finally shown. To use a well known phrase "it gets their goat."

There are many who assert that the moving picture theater is an excellent place to advertise, because all ads are shown plainly on the screen where they can be seen and read by every man, woman and child in the house. This may be true, but I question their real advertising value very seriously. In the first place people come to the picture show for recreation and amusement, and not for the purpose of gazing at a lot of slides which are forced upon them irrespective of their wishes.

An advertisement must be remembered if it is expected to bring any results, and it is almost an impossibility to remember every slide that is exhibited, no matter how excellent it may be, or how much attention is paid while it appears on the screen.

Therefore, the question naturally arises, "What benefit does the advertiser derive from his ad?" Very little that I can see. The public cannot patronize the advertiser while they are in the theater, and his slide has been forgotten long before they reach home, so where does he derive any benefit from his publicity?

Is the audience interested in the ads that are shown on the screen? A few nights ago while in a moving picture show I looked around the house to see how many people were reading the slides that were being shown. I counted probably a dozen people in an audience of about one hundred and fifty. The balance of the crowd was passing the time away the best they could, waiting patiently for the ads to cease.

"Won't they ever get through with those ads?" I heard a woman sitting in front of me exclaim impatiently. "I am tired to death of looking at them."

She voiced the sentiments of two thirds of the audience, although she was, probably, not aware of the fact. This much at least I judged from the bored, tired expressions on the faces of a large number of those present. When at last, after a long delay, the first part of a two reel feature was projected on the screen, everyone in the audience manifested a lively interest. They were getting at last what they had paid their money to see.

The final scene of part one closed, leaving the audience in a state of suspense. They were intensely interested and eager for more action. Part two which was due to follow immediately was anxiously looked for. Hardly had the first reel unwound itself when the ads began to appear again, and they held full sway for five or ten minutes, and it is needless to say what the audience thought.

There is such a thing as carrying anything too far, and this certainly is being done with regard to slides. In almost every picture show in the country the proprietor tries to see how much advertising the public will stand for. As a gentleman remarked not long ago after coming out of a show, "It will soon be all slides and no films."

While it may not ever reach this stage, there is no getting around the fact that there are too many ads shown to suit the public taste, and it is the duty of the moving picture men of the country to remedy this state of affairs. In a few places the use of slides has already been discontinued. The proprietors were wise enough to read the handwriting on the wall and acted accordingly.

How long do you suppose the patrons of a legitimate theater would tolerate a miscellaneous lot of slides sandwiched in between every act? They would not stand for it at all, and the manager of the average theater knows better than to attempt such a thing. The same people who go to the legitimate theater as a rule also patronize the pictures, so why should they be forced to jump from the frying pan into the fire?

People who pay their money to see Maurice Costello, John Bunny, or any of the other popular actors are not keen about finding out which lawn mower is the best, or which coal will burn the longest. They can look in the newspaper at home and get this information before coming to the show.

There is no question but that slides are objectionable to the majority of the moving picture theater patrons, and there is no reason why they should submit to it tamely. It is an imposition on their good nature, and it should be resented. If the national advertisers and others who use the pictures as a medium for reaching the public could hear what some people say after having the same slides thrust upon them night after night, they would soon change their opinion about the value of this kind of advertising.

The moving picture men of America owe it to themselves and the public generally to discontinue the slide evil—for it is an evil in every sense of the word—and the day is not far distant when public sentiment will demand that advertising be kept out of the picture theater.

WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 1.

Messrs. Handlon and Rush will open on September 1 a moving picture theater at 440 Blake Street, Indianapolis, Ind. The name of the house will be the Bell, and it will have a seating capacity of 638. The dimensions are 35 feet by 120 feet. The structure represents an investment of $6,000.

McPHERSON & HOWE OPEN HOUSE.

The Bell Theater, a moving picture house at 314 East 5th Street, Los Angeles, Cal., was opened on August 14 by Messrs. McPherson & Howe. It is a straight picture house with a continuous show, running from 11 a.m. until 10.30 p.m. A ten-piece orchestra furnishes music. The seating capacity is five hundred and the admission price is five cents.

THEATRE ACCOUNTING SYSTEM.

Those who are looking for a thorough yet simple system of theatre bookkeeping will find the Theatre Record Ledger, published by J. V. Bryson, Minneapolis, a very good proposition. The Theatre Record Ledger is a theatre man's necessity. The book has been on the market for several years, and each year finds it improved and in more demand than ever.

At the Sign of the Flaming Arcs

By George Blaisdell.

THE Universal Film Manufacturing Company has had such marvelous success with "Ivanhoe" that no thought has been given as to the time of the return of Director Herbert Brenon and his company. William E. Shay has sailed to join Mr. Brenon, his old director. Mr. Shay will take the place of Mr. Baggot, who is returning to his native land. Mr. Baggot will finish his tenth reel before sailing. The company is at present in Paris. Miss Leah Baird is not yet tired of life abroad and will continue as leading woman of the European Imp Company. Mr. Shay is well known to the Universal's public. He has appeared in all of Mr. Brenon's recent successes, among which may be mentioned the title role in "Robespierre," the lead in "Kathleen Mavourneen," and as Jean Valjean in "The Bishop's Candlesticks." He is a splendid actor, and well worthy to take the place that will be left by reason of Mr. Baggot's return. It is probable that the president of the Screen Club is now on the high seas bound New Yorkward. He will be given a hearty greeting by his fellows here. In fact, it is safe to say that his reception will establish a record in the way of greetings to returning film men.

Talking with Robert H. Cochrane on Wednesday, the treasurer of the Universal Company said that "Ivanhoe," in which Mr. Baggot played the title role, is selling stronger than any picture ever made by the company. In England alone, Mr. Cochrane said, there have been sold 107 prints, or a total of 321 reels. The historical drama is also selling well in Germany and in other Continental countries. The company is more than satisfied with its experiment of commissioning Mr. Brenon to make pictures in Europe. An interesting fact in this connection is that when Mr. Brenon, tired out after his work in the production of "Robespierre" and other features, made application for a vacation of sufficient length to enable him to take a trip to Europe, the officers of the company demurred. Finally, however, he was allowed four weeks' absence. When the Imp director reached England he saw the possibilities for an American company in that tight little island, and cabled Mr. Laemmle recommending that the nucleus of an organization be sent over. The event has justified the artistic judgment of Mr. Brenon in recommending and the business sagacity of Mr. Laemmle in executing the move. That the company now has no thought of recalling the European organization is the best proof of the success that has flowed from the venture.

* * *

N. Machat, proprietor of among others the Nostrand Theater, in Brooklyn, is one of the first of the New York exhibitors to take advantage of the amended picture theater law. He is transforming this house to accommodate the limit of 600 seats. Some exhibitors have discovered so many jokers in the new code that they have despaired of making any enlargements. Mr. Machat is one of the fortunate ones, however. It is his intention to put in boxes with a total seating capacity of fifty. A slight advance in price will be charged for these. There will be but one showing an evening of films, of which there will be nine, one of these being Kinemacolor. Also there will be many specials shown. The seats are to be all on one floor. There will be a sumptuously fitted women's retiring room, and every effort will be made to cater to the comfort and convenience of patrons. It is expected that the new house will be ready for opening by October 1. Mr. Machat will spend $9,000 on the alterations.

* * *

In Paterson, N. J., Saturday afternoon, I saw in front of a picture house a poster of Vitagraph's two-reel "The Call." At the same time the announcement on the box office window of "Five Cents Admission" attracted attention. Knowing that the picture was a first run the combination was interesting to a New Yorker. Investigation proved the theater to be the Paterson Show, conducted by the Adams Brothers, and members of the big Moving Picture World family. It is a tidy place with 500 seats. An orchestra of three pieces furnishes good music. Four films are shown, two of which are first runs. Sixteen minutes are given to the running of each picture. Three or four features are shown each week. 'Twas a most pleasant visit. It is not often, by the way, that a World man reviews a first run picture so far from home.

* * *

In a recent issue of the Evening Sun, Acton Davies, that fine dramatic critic, reviewed the life work of Mrs. Mary Barker, who as Joan Durbeyfield, the mother of Tess in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," made such a hit in the film drama. Mrs. Barker, whose death occurred just before the first showing of the picture, had been on the boards forty-nine years. She had played in the support of nearly every important stage figure of her generation. She was in every production of "Tess," including all the revivals, always as Joan. Her recent appearances on the stage have been infrequent, owing to failing health, but she was one of the first secured for the support of Mrs. Fiske in the making of the pictured "Tess."

"The work was absolutely new to her," says Mr. Davies in the article referred to, "but her great natural ability as well as her adaptability and the heart she put into it made her the wonder of every one connected with the studio. An incident in connection with her camera portrayal was that she wore several articles of wardrobe which she had worn upon her original appearance in the role of Joan, among them a peculiar shawl of which she was very proud, and which when she appeared for the first rehearsal immediately attracted the attention of Mrs. Fiske, who remembered it through all those years. A private view of the pictures is soon to be given for Mrs. Fiske, and to this exhibition she had invited Mrs. Barker, who was looking forward to it with all of the interest and enthusiasm of a child. But Mrs. Barker is not to see it—the finger of the great Stage Manager beckoned and she responded to her last cue. And yet, who shall say that there was not a poetic recompense in her final appearance having been in the role she loved so much and with which she had been identified so long?"

* * *

Heard a couple of film men talking about anachronisms in costumes in "Tess." Maybe there are; but what of it? The story is there; the acting is there; the settings, the backgrounds, are there; the photography is there—very much there. The writer was so absorbed, so enthralled, in watching the splendid whole that he was not seeking minor flaws. The wise exhibitor will make provision for more than one showing of "Tess." He will give his patrons a chance to do some advertising on their own account; and make no mistake they will. For it is here reiterated that "Tess" is one of the greatest pictures ever made.

* * *

Bennie Schulberg sends this note, which fits in right here: "Regarding the allegation that the costumes in the picture were at variance with the period of the play, it may be offered in extenuation that Hardy at no time suggests any particular period in the story; that Mrs. Fiske has always played the production on the stage with modern costumes and sets, and that an authorized version of the story (published by Harper Brothers) illustrated the characters, if not in modern clothes, at least in recent garb, from which the conclusion may be deduced that the author desired to lend the impression that the story was laid in 1880 or '90. The idea that the period was more remote than that may have been created by the garb of the majority of the characters; but in the rural districts of England, even to-day, such dress may be found."

* * *

Jule Bernstein, who has just resigned as manager of the Mutual Exchanges, was surprised last week by his old associates at the Twenty-third Street headquarters with a present of a silver service of eighteen pieces. There was a little—or was it a big?—celebration uptown immediately after the ceremony, which was decidedly informal. There was no speechmaking. Mr. Bernstein is "resting up." This statement has no reference to the aforementioned celebration; but, contrary to a published announcement, he has made no business connection, although he has several propositions under advisement. He will take some time to think them over.

* * *

Darwin Karr, who for over two years has been leading man with the Solax Company and whose contract expired September 1, is touring New York State in the machine in which he has traveled so many miles between his Bath Beach home and Flushing and Fort Lee. Mr. Karr will pay a visit to his parents while away. On his return to New York on September 8 he will begin work with the Vitagraph Company. Many friends will wish Mr. Karr success in his new field.

* * *

The nominating committee of the Screen Club appointed by Vice-President Bunny to submit a list of officers to be voted for at the annual election on October 6 held a meeting at the club rooms on Tuesday evening. Six of the seven members of the committee were present. Owing to a difference of opinion as to club policy two of the members resigned from the committee. The remaining four completed the ticket. Among the nominees for board of governors for two years were the two men who had just resigned from the committee. As the bylaws of the club provide that no member of the nominating committee may be a candidate for office, and as it may be decided that the resignations can be accepted only by the appointing power, it is possible that the action of the committee will have to be ratified at a future meeting of a full committee.

* * *

Talking with Dave Wall on Wednesday about the Lyceum Theater showing of "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," I remarked upon the excellent work of one of the three maids, companions of Tess at the dairy farm, and suggested that she reminded one of Laura Sawyer, only she is not so tall as the new Famous Players star; that she possesses snapping eyes and a fetching smile.

"I know who you mean," replied Mr. Wall. "It's my wife."

"Boots" Wall it was.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by CLARENCE E. SINN

ORGAN MUSIC.

A MAN of many years experience as church organist and choir director, also as travelling concert pianist, has lately taken up playing for the pictures. He writes as follows:

> Dramatic music received and think it fine. I am engaged to play a $15,000 pipe organ and would like to know what class of music goes on organ in pictures. Can you tell me if it is usual to play waltzes and (so called) popular music, or only standard like "Lucia Sextette" etc. The favor of a suggestion would be appreciated. B. J. J.

Watch your pictures closely and see if they don't suggest a great variety of subjects—hence a great variety in the musical accompaniment. Nearly everything in the line of music may be called for some time in some picture. At first use your dramatic music only in those pictures in which the action is strenuous; not in the more quiet pictures. Fill in with whatever best seems suited to the theme of the picture. In the ordinary run of dramatic subjects, waltzes and intermezzos are much used as "fill-ins." The novelette and caprice are pleasing in scenes of light character; reveries and romances for pathetic scenes; some "cradle songs" are admirably adapted for these also. You should have something suggestive of other countries—Spain, Mexico, Ireland, Russia, etc. These are frequently needed. Oriental and Indian characteristics are invaluable. Bratton's "Star of India," Lampe's "Vision of Salome," Lorraine's "Zallah" and Pryor's "Egyptian Love Dance" should be in your library. (The piano arrangements are practical for organ.) A few grand marches like "Coronation," "Queen of Sheba," and "Tannhauser March" are often appropriate in pictures of the early Greek and Roman times. Try to keep a pleasing variety of music before your hearers, music that is in keeping with the atmosphere of your picture and which will center the attention upon the picture rather than divert it. Remember always, the picture is the show—the music an accessory. As to popular songs, they have a value certainly; the sentimental ballads are often particularly apropos to love scenes in some of the dramas. All sorts of popular songs can be introduced in comedies, but they should be memorized and only used when the scene suggests; this means usually that the title of the song and the action of the picture have something in common, and should be well known to your audience to be effective. "Rags" and lively stuff generally are good in lively scenes whether familiar to your hearers or not. As to the medleys of popular songs issued by the publishers, while these are all right on a concert program, they are a risky proposition in picture work if you are particular about having your music in keeping with the rest of the show. Used with any ordinary dramatic picture (and the most of them are that) the slow and fast movements in your medley will very seldom occur in appropriate parts of the picture; often it is just the reverse. You can play medleys or any form of concert music in the educational pictures, though even here the careful musician can help or mar. Your letterhead states that you have a large repertoire of classic and standard music. I should suggest that you pick out one picture each day to treat your hearers to some good standard music; it features both yourself and the new organ.

Professional Copies.

About every so often I am asked "where and how can I get professional copies of new music?" For the benefit of those who are only partly "in the know" I will say that music publishers send free music only to those whom they are convinced can further the sales of their music in paying quantities. In the larger cities the park bands, theater orchestras, dance orchestras and all organizations who play for large and changing crowds are supplied with the stuff which they (the publishers) are trying to popularize. Vaudeville performers and singers "playing dates" are also supplied with new numbers, but these usually go directly to the publishers' offices when they happen to play New York, Chicago, or any city having a branch office, and get what they want. The singer or musician in a small theater or small town, catering to a limited number of patrons, will generally find it difficult to convince a music publisher that he can add sufficiently to the music's popularity (and sales) to entitle him to a place on the free list. The only way to find out is to write directly to the publisher, tell him who you are, what you have and what you want. The rest of it is up to him. I know this subject does not properly come within the bounds of "music for the pictures," but I have answered dozens and dozens of letters (many of which contained no stamps for an answer, by the way) and so I take this opportunity of putting the matter before you all. I am only too glad to give any information I can, but in regard to professional copies you can get more and quicker information by writing to the music publisher than by writing to me. And your communication will be more apt to receive his prompt attention if you inclose a postage stamp.

Popular Music.

A letter from a manager who has a player piano is in line with a number of other communications on the same subject and for that reason I want to give space to a part of it. He says he has been ordering his rolls by guess and thus far has had good luck in selecting popular music—in some cases he has given a new song in his theater weeks before the local music stores had it. What he wants to know is how he can be positive in advance that he is ordering a "hit." He says in closing: "The gist of all this is: How can I find out in advance what pieces are good without hearing them? How can I know what selections are going to be popular all over the nation and bring them here early?"

Now if I were in that position I think I should try to keep in touch with the publishers of such music; write for their catalogues; watch the theatrical papers and see what the publishers are concentrating their advertising upon. The number they are "boosting" the strongest is usually the one they have the greatest faith in; very often this faith is not justified, but it was their one best guess. Nobody knows in advance what is going to be popular all over the nation. If I could tell that I would get a job picking winners for the music publishers and hire a clerk to count my money for me.

The "Cut-back" Again.

J. E. Dailey writes:

> I have lately taken up playing for the pictures and am puzzled by some of these quick changing scenes. Do you try to change music each time the scene changes, or how? It would be all right if the scenes were all of the same character, but sometimes they are so different that what fits one scene is wrong for the other.

This matter has come up a great many times in the past three or four years. I can do no better than quote from the Moving Picture World of December 15, 1910 (page 1345):

"Some pictures are shown in which the scenes alternate so rapidly as to make it impractical to change music with every change of scene. For example: A mother watching her dying child in one scene, and the father about to commit a burglary in the other. Ordinarily the first scene suggests a plaintive and the second a pizzicato or mysterious, but here there is time to play but a few bars of each—not enough to develop the scene, and the effect of such skipping about would be absurd. Here comes the "principal motive" again. The father is turning burglar for the sake of the child. The child dominates both scenes. Therefore your pathetic runs straight through until a scene occurs which is long enough to permit a change of music if such be necessary." (The "principal motive" is explained in the first part of same letter—same page.)

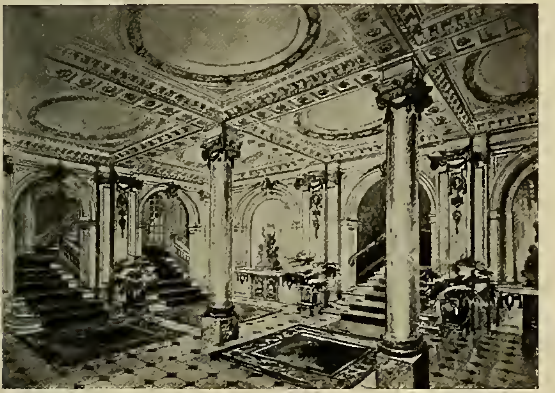
Among the Picture Theaters

News and Views of Houses Here and There

THE NEW HOME OF KINEMACOLOR IN PARIS.

An Account of Mr. Urban's Latest Theater.

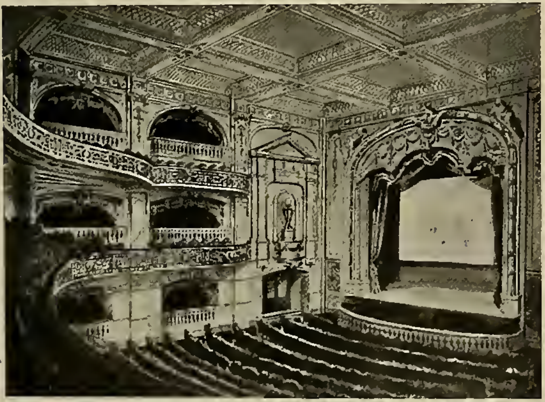
KINEMACOLOR, having established itself in London and New York, is about to lay siege to Paris also. The photographs accompanying this article represent the handsome theater which Mr. Charles Urban is building in the heart of the amusement center of the city, on the new Rue Edouard VII., so named by the municipality in grateful homage to the late sovereign. The projected memorial to King Edward will be reared just in front of the theater and Mr. Urban is awaiting the permission of His Majesty to name the new house the "Theater Edouard VII."



The Entrance Hall of the Theater Edouard VII.

The new theater follows the general lines of architecture of the numerous magnificent buildings in Paris associated with the name of Nenot. The decorative scheme is being carried out in consultation with the famous French architect by Mr. W. C. R. Sprague, whose work is so well known and appreciated in London.

The new building is in the true Renaissance style and the decorations exemplify a perfect color scheme of ivory and gold and Rose du Barri. There are several lounges and foyers and a tea room apart from the theater to which it is expected will be attracted the elite of Paris for the fashionable "five o'clock." There is a handsome colonnaded entrance hall, and the style of this part of the building and of the foyers may be gathered from the smaller illustrations. The theater has in addition to twenty private boxes ample seating accommodation for 800 persons—a number that might well have been increased to 1200—but that each patron will enjoy a generous allowance of twenty-two inches. It has long been a reproach to the larger Paris theaters that visitors are unduly cramped for room in the anxiety that is manifested to seat as many as possible in the theater. Mr. Urban intends to make a welcome break from this tradition, and in regard to staffing also he will follow English lines, avoiding the frequency with which, in Paris theaters, tips are demanded by attendants. The bar and tea room will be under the best possible service.



Interior View of the New Kinemacolor Theater In Paris.

Meanwhile Mr. Urban, at his new theater, will give continental investors an object lesson in the possibilities of Kinemacolor as an entertainment of immense value, no matter in what country it is presented. He will show that the wonders of this beautiful natural color process make an equal appeal to every nation and that everywhere those who follow the Kinemacolor star are sure of success.

NEW SPOKANE THEATER, SPOKANE, WASH.

We publish herewith an exterior view of the New Spokane Theater, Spokane, Wash., of which Sam U. B. Cohn is the manager. Mr. Cohn was formerly a newspaper man in the Northwest. The theater has a seating capacity of 1,200, and is always playing to capacity business. The program consists of three reels and three vaudeville acts for which an admission price of ten cents is charged. The pictures are projected on two Power No. 6 machines. Mr. Cohn's staff consists of twenty valuable employees.

Spokane Theater.

DREAMLAND THEATER, LYNN, MASS.

The Dreamland Theater, of Lynn, Mass., of which we herewith give photographic representation, is the pioneer picture house of that city. The house is owned by Messrs. S. Grant and H. F. Campbell and managed by Mr. J. O'Donnell. Among the feature productions that have been shown at the Dreamland are: "Dante's Inferno," "Homer's Odyssey," Blanche Walsh in "Resurrection," "Parsifal," "Satan" and many others. Being under capable management, the theater has always been a paying investment.

MOVING PICTURES
DREAMLAND
5
.USTRATED SONGS

Dreamland Theater.

COLUMBIA THEATER, WINNIPEG, MAN., CANADA.

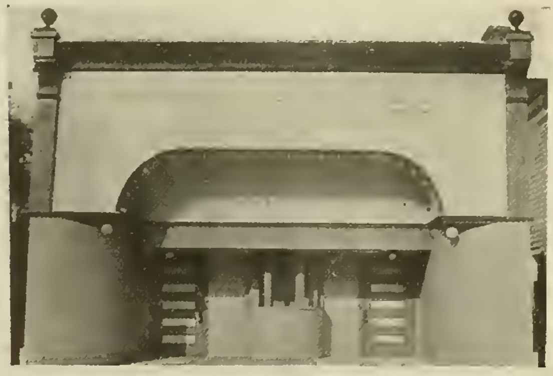
We publish herewith a photo-engraving of the Columbus Theater, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada. Its front is very artistic, and was built of white stucco, trimmed in gold. The house was built in 1911 and has been doing an excellent business with moving pictures. It has a seating capacity of 750, and the music is furnished by a seven-piece orchestra.

THE ORLEANS COACH
THE ORLEANS COACH

Columbia Theater.

TRACO THEATER, TOMS RIVER, N. J.

Even though Toms River, N. J., is a town with about 3,000 inhabitants it can boast of a fine moving picture theater. The name of the house is the Traca, and it is under the management of the Toms River Amusement Company, of which R. H. Tilton is the president, G. H. Alsheimer vice-president and F. W. Sutton, Jr., secretary and treasurer. The structure, which is located on Washington Street, near Main, has a frontage of thirty-six feet and a depth of eighty-six feet. The interior is nicely decorated and is furnished with steel frame chairs, of which there are 405. The ventilating system, consisting of oscillating and exhaust fans, keeps the air inside pure and cool during the entertainment. The system of ventilation employed in this picture house was planned by engineers of the Westinghouse Electric Company.



Traco Theater.

The operating booth is built of steel and asbestos. Two machines are used—an Edison and a Motiograph. Sixteen hundred candle power illuminates the exterior and the auditorium. The house is open only on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. On the former nights three reels and a two-piece orchestra form the show, for which an admission price of ten cents is charged, while on Saturdays the entertainment consists of five reels and a three piece orchestra. Fifteen cents is the admission on Saturdays. The Traco theater represents an investment of $8,000.

STAR THEATER, NEW CASTLE, PA.

We publish herewith a photo-engraving of the Star Theater, New Castle, Pa., which is owned and managed by M. Marks, who opened the house in May of this year, and has been doing very satisfactory business. The house has a seating capacity of four hundred and fifty, and standing room for one hundred. The decorations are of marble and tile. The building, which is absolutely fireproof, is one story high. It has a twenty-eight foot ceiling. The remodeling of the theater cost Mr. Marks $20,000. There has been installed all the latest and most up to date apparatus and appliances known in the picture business; in fact it is considered the most modern house in Western Pennsylvania. Mr. Marks, although a young man, is the pioneer picture man in his part of the state. He started in the picture business showing two reels a week. He has been using the General Film Company's service from its very beginning, showing three reels per day and changing program daily. Two Edison Model B machines are used, and the new Wurlitzer piano orchestra is quite an attraction. The lighting throughout the house is done by the indirect system.

Star Theater.

MAJESTIC THEATER, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

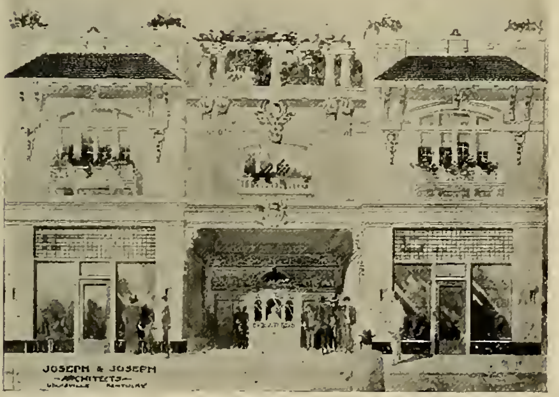
This photograph, taken April 10, 1913, shows the attendance always at the Majestic Theater, Third Street, San Francisco. Mr. Slater, the enterprising manager, knows the desires of his patrons. His pictures are finely projected.

Interior of Majestic Theater.

Competition has always been keen. Proof of Mr. Slater's able management is afforded by the fact that he has been in the present locality for the past five years, and that his theater is as popular as ever is shown by the above photograph.

CRESCENT THEATER, LOUISVILLE, KY.

What promises to be one of the handsomest moving picture theaters in Louisville is the Crescent, work on which will be begun by the National Moving Picture Company, of that city, in the near future. The Crescent, located in one of the desirable residential sections of the Kentucky metropolis, will be ready for the public on or about Thanksgiving Day. It will open with a program of exclusive motion pictures. Plans for the Crescent recently were completed by Joseph & Joseph, prominent Louisville architects. The Crescent follows largely the Spanish mission style, that being found the most appropriate and elegant under the circumstances, and best adapted to the peculiarly advantageous location of the play-house. The site on which the Crescent will go up is in a grove of trees, which make it an ideal location. Possibly a feature of the Crescent which will excite more discussion than any other is the use of sound effects. Daniel F. Martin, general manager of the National Moving Picture Company, is among the exhibitors who believe that, properly used, sound effects can add more to the naturalness of pictures than any other feature. Mr. Martin, all of this to the contrary notwithstanding, will feature his sound effects to the exclusion of features found in practically every other animated picture house. Second to the sound effects in the estimation of Manager Martin comes music. This is to combine the good points of most moving picture theaters. Both a pipe organ and an orchestra will be used. Some films, especially those appealing in pathos, or involving the death of some principal character, are best played to by the organ. There is a sweetness and dignity to this instrument, according to Mr. Martin, that is lacking in any other. The organ, tested in one or two theaters of the country, has proved highly successful in calling on the sympathies of the audience, and for that reason a specially-made instrument will be installed in the Crescent. On the other hand, pictures which are lively and piquant demand more snap and go, and are best accompanied by an orchestra.



Wash Drawing of Crescent Theater Now in Course of Erection.

The screen to be used in the Crescent will be of muslin with a black shadow box. There is to be no stage in the Crescent, though the usual proscenium will be found. In case the management ever desires to convert the house into a vaudeville theater, it will be necessary to knock out the rear wall. However, such a contingency is not expected at present, and no provision will be made for other than moving pictures. The indirect lighting system is to be used, having filled every demand without trouble. This system has been found ideal in amusement houses, providing a soft light which illuminates without causing a glare. Four flaming arcs will be installed in the front, while a big Chase electric sign will be visible for some distance.

The Cresent is to have a seating capacity of 650. It will be 50 by 150 feet in size, though all of this will not be devoted to the theater proper. The building will contain a couple of store rooms on the ground floor, as well as a hall on the second. Simplex machines will be used in the Crescent. The throw of 115 feet is expected to provide no difficulties for these well-known adjuncts of the business. The operating booth will be encased in automatic steel shutters, as usual. A cooling plant, steam heat and other provisions aiming at the comfort of patrons, will be used. The admission price will be ten cents, and that price is expected to give the Crescent popularity, in view of a tendency in some quarters to raise from the original dime. The color scheme of the theater has not yet been decided upon, but will be light, probably ivory. Ivory and gold have been suggested and may be adopted, though officers of the National would prefer a more unusual combination. Five performances will be given daily, two of these being in the afternoon and three at night.

The presidency of the National Moving Picture Company is now open. M. K. Allen is treasurer; O. C. Yates, vice-president; Thomas Thierman is secretary, and Daniel L. Martin, general manager. The Crescent will be one of a chain to be erected.

PALACE THEATER, BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

The accompanying photo-engraving is an illustration of the Palace Theater, 960 East Main Street, Bridgeport, Conn., one of Mr. P. Dawe's photoplay enterprises. The structure as it stands represents an expenditure of $15,000. Credit is due to Mr. Dawe for having had designed so pretty a picture house. As can be seen the entrance is not marred by a large number of posters, there being but three neatly framed ones in the lobby. The Palace has a seating capacity of 750 persons.

Palace Theater.

The Bijou Theater, 275 Fairfield Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn., which house has been leased by Mr. Dawe, is at present undergoing extensive improvements. Both houses use licensed pictures. Music is furnished by a four piece orchestra in both houses.

THE PLAY HOUSE, RICHMOND, TEXAS.

The Play House, Richmond, Texas, Philip Rich, manager, is a novelty in that the major part of the roof consists of movable skylights, practically converting the house into an airdome during the hot months and yet capable of being closed in a few minutes in the event of rain. The house is kept so cool that no fans are needed, even in the hottest days.

Interior View of the Playhouse.

Richmond has a white population of about 600, but even with this rather limited clientele Mr. Rich manages to keep his house well filled by means of judicious advertising. He charges fifteen cents for adults and ten cents for children.

Manufacturers Advance Notes

"SEEDS OF WEALTH" (Lubin).

Probably no story of child's ingenuity combined with sweet simplicity has ever been filmed that equals this strange and beautiful picture. It compels a laugh and a tear at the same time and the interesting little circumstance brings about an event which means happiness to a worthy couple of excellent sweethearts. The picture is one of the gems of the Lubin Studio.

Aline Maxwell, a pretty seamstress, is the sole support of her invalid father. She works in the household of John Lavino, a wealthy attorney. Most of her occupation being making dresses for Emily, the little four year old daughter of the Lavinos. The child is inordinately fond of Aline even to the exclusion of her own mother. Mrs. Lavino discovers that her son, Ralph, and Aline are in love and promptly commands her son to give up the idea of marrying the girl. Ralph refuses and Aline is notified to discontinue her work and leaves heartbroken. That Ralph might not know the truth she tells him that she does not love him. Deprived of her living she soon lapses into poverty, but little Emily frequently steals off to visit Aline, who lives near by. One day a diamond necklace is missing from Mrs. Lavino's room, the seamstress is suspected and her home being search, the jewel is found buried in a flower pot outside of Aline's window. The poor girl is arrested. Ralph, who is a young lawyer, defends her. The child being told why Aline is in prison tells that she had heard that diamonds were the seed of wealth and that she had taken tbe necklace and planted it in the flower pot that it might grow into a tree of money. Aline is released and her engagement to Ralph joyfully approved.

Scene from "Seeds of Wealth" (Lubin).

A DECLARATION BY ECLECTIC.

It is a well established fact to the trade at large, that the Eclectic Film Company has all its multiple reel productions copyrighted. It has announced this fact from the time it made its first feature release, and naturally enough its five-reel production, "The Mysteries of Paris," made no exception to this rule. Hearing of a surreptitious booking of a few piratical copies of the film, counsel was engaged immediately to look after its interests and was successful in seizing one print of the film in Cleveland, Ohio, several weeks ago.

"This experience did not seem to have the desired effect upon the infringers, as another copy was heard from in Greater New York. It was exceedingly difficult for the Eclectic Film Company to obtain accurate information sufficient time in advance to engage its attorneys to take action. On Saturday, August 23, finally an opportunity presented itself to seize another print of "The Mysteries of Paris," for which the exhibition rights in Greater New York were acquired by the Exclusive Features, Inc., 24 East 21st Street, New York City. The film was seized while being shown at the Willis Airdome, at Willis Avenue and 145th Street, by the United States marshal, together with all advertising matter that was used in billing the production at the theater named.

The Eclectic Film Company is determined that it will, regardless of time and money expended, protect its state rights buyers to a finish. The company has firmly decided to wage war to the knife with infringers, copyists, and illegitimate importers of films, who in any way conflict with the company's well-known feature productions.

The Eclectic Film Company wishes to have it distinctly understood that it will stand back of any buyer of its film with all the vast resources at its command.

GOOD MEN FOR WARNER'S FEATURES.

In order to carry out their idea of marketing a feature program the middle of September, Warner's Features, Inc., have secured the very best men to be obtained for the various positions of responsibility throughout their organization.

Samuel Grant, formerly in charge of the Gordon theaters throughout the New England States, and for the past six months general manager of the Warner's Exchange in Boston, has been made district manager for the territory east of Chicago. He is succeeded in Boston by H. F. Campbell who recently resigned from the Boston office of the Universal.

D. J. Chatkin, who until recently was in charge of the Universal office at Toledo, Ohio, becomes manager of Warner's Buffalo office.

Joseph Klein, brother of Arthur Klein, the theatrical agent, has gone to Atlanta to assume the duties of manager of that office.

Jack J. Gilroy has been succeeded in the New York Rental Office by Jacques Spiegel whose experience in the film business dates back to the days of the old Hudson Film Exchange. At one time during his business career, Mr. Spiegel was associated with the Kessell and Bauman Exchanges, and recently has been with the Mecca branch of the Universal.

A NEW SAFETY DEVICE.

Anton Szeliger, a young Austrian, who is the inventor of a safety device on moving picture machines, has recently arrived in this country, and is now staying in New York with a view of exploiting his invention here. The device is patented in this country and in most of the European countries. The particular merit of the invention consists in its further reducing the possibility of ignition in the magazne. In the patent the device is described as a "combination with a moving picture exhibiting apparatus of an electric motor for actuating its feeding mechanism and an electric lamp serving as the source of light for projecting the pictures, a casing through which the film passes from the supply reel toward the said feeding mechanism, a spring actuated knife slidably arranged in said casing adapted to sever said film, spring-actuated switches adapted to close the motor circuit, inflammable means in close proximity to said film for holding said switches in their operative positions against the actions of their springs, and a switch carried by said knife for closing said projecting lamp circuit when said knife is held in its operative position, whereby, upon burning of said inflammable means, said motor circuit is opened and the spring of the knife rendered operative, resulting in a severing of the film and in an opening of each projecting lamp circuit."

"GRIST TO THE MILL" (Essanay).

Essanay's release for September 12, is a two-reel production of unusual merit and introduces a new leading lady, Miss Irene Warfield, to the lovers of photodrama. Miss Warfield is a beautiful young lady and is possessed of an unusual amount of dramatic ability. Her work in her first picture has much to do with its success and she gives nromise of becoming a universal favorite before the year is out.

Scene from (Grist' to the Mill" (Essanay).

The theme of "Grist to the Mill" is an edifying example of woman's devotion to man under the most trying of circumstances. What will make it strike home is its truth to actual life. Many, many times has an unscrupulous man of wealth and power taken a fancy to the pretty wife of a poor and honest man and used his malevolent influence to separate them for his own selfish ends. It is only too true that in many cases the wife is, dazzled and flattered into dissatisfaction with her husband and his circumstances and becomes a ready and willing victim to some modern Iago. But in this instance we have the exception in a strong womanly character who has sense enough to see through the pitfall that has been prepared for herself and her husband. Her seeming indifference for the man she has wed is a terrible ordeal for him, but it is only a part of her well laid plan to trap the plotter and bring him to light as a lustful, scheming villain.

"PRINCESS OF BAGDAD" COMING.

The "Princess of Bagdad," which will shortly be released by the "Helen Gardner Picture Players," is of more than ordinary interest, as it is a correct reflection of Persian life and traditions, its author having resided for many years in the East, where he enjoyed peculiar advantages for observing the habits of orientals and for making an exhaustive study of their customs, both ancient and modern.

Sardi, the son of a shoemaker, has had the temerity to raise his eyes to the Princess Ojira (Miss Gardner), she reciprocates his love and they arrange a meeting, but are surprised by the Prime Minister, who arrests Sardi and has him taken before the caliph, by whom he is condemned to death for his presumption. He is, however, pardoned owing to the intercession of Ojira and, becoming possessed of enormous wealth through the instrumentality of a friendly Genie, is finally enabled to realize his ambition and marry the princess.

In this picture you are carried from the magnificence of the caliph's palace and the brilliancy of an eastern court to the most squalid streets of the tradesmen's quarters of Bagdad and are given a glimpse of the sordid narrow lives of the lower classes, then as by the touch of a magician's wand back to the entrancingly beautiful gardens of the palace with their profusion of oriental shrubbery playing fountains and innumerable slaves in the many colored garments of the harem.

The story is one of romance, intrigue and adventure and is filled with surprises of a truly oriental nature.

Mr. Charles E. Nixon, assistant publicity manager of the Selig Polyscope Company, has been spending the last two weeks amid the wonderful natural scenery of Glacier National Park, Montana. Mr. Nixon is accompanied by his wife and daughter, and a party of friends.

"FROM DUSK TO DAWN" (Occidental).

There is refreshing crispness in the theme and action of this four-part feature, in that it is written and produced without an attempt to dodge the main issue in approaching a subject that many authors handle most gingerly. Daniel Grayson, a young iron moulder, is too much occupied with affairs of his union and political matters to pay any attention to the women. The foreman and manager at the iron works where he is employed decide Dan is too much of an agitator, and force him to leave the works. An explosion occurs in which several men are killed, including Freddy Wayne, an apprentice boy to whom he had taken a great liking. This precipitates a strike. Dan is injured in a riot, arrested, and taken to the police station, where he meets Carlena Wayne, Freddy's sister, a laundry worker who has also been arrested on a charge of picketing. Following the settlement of the strike, Dan is nominated for governor on the working class ticket. So popular has he grown that all parties are fused to defeat him. Carlena takes active part in the campaign and they make headway until the "conspiracy" trial is sprung. In this scene Clarence Darrow, the great labor attorney, enacts the actual scene of the trial. The verdict of "Not Guilty" brings a wave of enthusiasm and Dan is elected governor; and with him a majority of the legislature. The passage of a "Right to work" bill brings a crisis, and Mrs. Alden takes Carlena, and they invade the governor's office to lend assistance to those who are urging Governor Grayson to sign the bill. Powerful influences are brought to prevent the signing. The plea of Carlena arouses old memories, and Grayson signs the bill and trades the pen to Carlena for her hand and they become "comrades for life."

FOR GOVERNOR DANIEL GRAYSON VOTE FOR DAN GRAYSON
Scene "From Dusk to Dawn" (Occidental).

State right will not be sold. A number of companies under the management of Ernest Shipman will tour various parts of the country.

"CALAMITY ANNE" (American).

Miss Louise Lester, better known to the picture public as "Calamity Anne," writes all her own scenarios in which she plays this character.

It may be interesting to know that "Calamity Anne" is a real character whom Miss Lester encountered some years ago before her advent in "movies."

The innate goodness of this "diamond in the rough" appealed to Miss Lester and in real life, just as Miss Lester portrays her in pictures, she is always ready to sacrifice her own comfort for the good of others and invariably gets into trouble fighting for what she believes is right.

The powerful appeal of this series, aside from the laughable comedy depicted by the lone woman with a jackass as her only friend, is the silver thread of self-sacrifice and goodness running through the pictures that appeal to all.

Miss Lester is popularly known in this character and even in pictures where she appears in entirely different roles she is pointed out as "Calamity Anne."

The rest of this series will be "Calamity Anne, Heroine," released September 15th, to be followed by "Calamity Anne's Sacrifice."

KLEINE-CINES PICTURE HAS REAL BULL FIGHT.

"For the Love of a Toreador," the title of a Kleine-Cines picture to be released in October, possesses several unique scenes, one of which is a real bull fight. Spanish actors recently brought from Rome by the Cines Company took part in this picture, and the bull fight was, therefore, staged exactly as the real affairs occur in Spain.

"IN THE BISHOPS CARRIAGE" (Famous Players).

"In the Bishop's Carriage," the famous story published by The Bobbs-Merrill Co., upon which a very successful and popular play has been based, will be released September 10th by the Famous Players Film Co. The film version of this noted subject presents Mary Pickford in the absorbing role of Nance, who with Fate as stage director plays many strange parts, until she eventually adopts a role that leads to love and happiness. The play is a fascinating drama of the underworld that approaches tragedy and ends in romance.

The story as told in the pictures introduces Nance Olden as an inmate of the Charity House. Falsely accused of theft and cruelly punished, she decides to rid herself forever of the matron's persecution. Pursued by the police, she takes refuge in the room of Tom Dorgan, the crook, where later he finds her. Both refugees from a doubtful justice, their common lot inspires them to establish a partnership in crime. After a daring theft of jewels, the loss of which is almost immediately discovered, Nance, in terrified despair, eludes the police by jumping into "the bishop's carriage."

A VISION OF THE PAST!

Scene from "The Bishops Carriage" (Famous Players).

From this incident a chain of thrilling adventures progress, until Nance is again rescued from the police by the timely intervention of Obermuller, a theatrical manager, who is impressed with her mimic talents and who offers her a position on the stage and a chance to travel the straight road. Now occurs a bitter contest between Dorgan and Obermuller for the loyalty of Nance, which is culminated by the arrest and conviction of Tom. Nance's admiration for Obermuller ripens into a requited love, and she attains fame and fortune as an actress. And then a shadow of the past crosses her path: Tom escapes and returns to claim her; but his purpose is defeated by Obermuller. Only once more is she tempted by the old fascination; only once more she steals—and then she really conquers her preying weakness, marries Obermuller and drinks the sweets of a righteous existence.

"In the Bishop's Carriage" is a strong "vehicle" for Mary Pickford's charming art.

MRS. LESLIE CARTER SAILS FOR KLEINE.

In accordance with an arrangement with George Kleine, Mrs. Leslie Carter sailed for France from New York, August 30, on the "Imperator" for the purpose of looking over the ground for a forthcoming Kleine-Cines production of "Du Barry," in which Mrs. Carter will enact the name part. She has made a great success of the stage version in America and therefore can be depended upon to make a success of it in pictures. Mrs. Carter was accompanied by her husband, Mr. Payne.

COPENHAGEN FILMS TO BE RELEASED SOON.

Richard E. E. Nathansohn has returned to New York from a business trip to Europe. While abroad Mr. Nathansohn secured the rights for the United States and Canada of the product of the Copenhagen Film Company, Limited, which will manufacture multiple reels. All of the European concessions of this company have been sold. A temporary office has been opened in Room 712, Vanderbilt Building, 132 Nassau street. G. J. Sneeby will be assistant manager. Mr. Nathansohn will begin releasing in October.

"THE GIRL GRADUATE" (Gt. Northern).

This is an amusing comedy creation in which Elsie Frolich and Carl Alstrup are featured in the leading roles. It bears a trifle of the suffragette theme, but not sufficient to make it an outright "votes for women" comedy. According to the story, Mr. Burton, a manufacturer, has arranged to entertain Charles Groves, a young engineer. Upon his arrival the latter is greeted by the two daughters of the household. Dorothy is a pretty and engaging girl, but her sister Ruth is of the more modern type, fond of athletics and mannish in her attitude and demeanor. Groves admires spirit and grit for the time being, but his thougths revert to Doris. The latter, however, is in love with another and she urges Groves to make an attempt to cure her girl graduate sister of her mannish ways. At a ball which is given a week later, Doris and Groves pretend to be much attached to each other, while the sister Ruth is left to play the part of a "wallflower." The plan works out excellently and instead of attending a meeting of the "Women's Protective Society," she consents to accompany Groves on a boat ride. During the short ride on the river, Ruth decides that she will renounce the ranks of the man haters. That evening, in her own home she is discovered by her fond parents sewing a button on Groves' coat. A prick from the needle and a kiss on the injured finger completes the cure.

Scene from "The Girl Graduate" (Gt. Northern).

There are many beautiful scenes enacted in the comedy and they are up to the Great Northern standard of excellence. The acting of Elsie Frolich and Carl Alstrup is calculated to prove a source of delight to those who view this film.

BLACHE ON VACATION.

Herbert Blache, president of the Exclusive Supply Corporation and identified with Madam Blache in the Solax Co., and also the head of the newly projected Blache American Features, is taking a well earned fortnight's vacation in the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania.

MOVING PICTURE MACHINES & LANTERNS
BRIGHTER THAN CALCIUM.
OZO-CARBI-LIGHT
PATENTED
NO SATURATOR—OPENS NEW FIELDS FOR MOVING PICTURES.
SPECIAL SLIDES TO ORDER
ALSO CARRY SLIDES ON ALL SUBJECTS
WHITE SLAVE SLIDES
DESCRIPTIVE MATTER
Moore Hubbell & Co.
713 Masonic Temple Chicago Ill Send for Catalogue A.

NOW BOOKING FOR NEW YORK STATE
BRENNAN OF THE MOOR
(Three reels of thrill and sensation)
FEATURING THE FAMOUS BARNEY GILMORE
Advertising matter includes 4 kinds of one sheets, three sheets, six sheets, photographs and announcement slides which we furnish free of charge.
BUFFALO FEATURE FILM CO., 48 Palace Arcade Bldg., Buffalo, N. Y.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum; postage stamps accepted

SITUATIONS WANTED.

A-1 OPERATOR—Capable electrician, desires position outside New York, preferably the West. Address ELECTRICIAN, care Moving Picture World, New York City.

EXPERT MOTION PICTURE OPERATOR—University training in mechanical engineering, competent demonstrator and lecturer, speaking several languages, wants position with opportunity to travel. Address A. CRAFT, 1554 Lakeview Ave., Cleveland, O.

WANTED—Second hand moving picture printer. State make. Address PRINTER, care Moving Picture World, New York City.

PICTURE MAN—With 6 years' experience, wishes position as manager in or out of town. I can operate. Address ELECTRA, care Moving Picture World, New York City.

AT LIBERTY—Trap drummer, play bells and xylophone. I have trap to produce every sound effect. I play every cue. State particulars, size of orchestra, hours, etc. Only permanent engagement considered. (Hello Henry.) HARRY M. SACKETT, 1310 Holmes St., Kansas City, Mo.

OPERATOR—Graduate Cincinnati Operators' School, operates any machine. Married. Best of references. Address M. E. W., care Monarch Amusement Co., Price Hill, Cincinnati, Ohio.

AT LIBERTY—Moving picture operator, six years' experience on Powers, Edison & Standard machines. Traveled through North and South. Worked in last place 3½ years. The very best references. Address G. T. J., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

AT LIBERTY—Experienced operator and manager, any machine, no boozer. Wife piano player. Address care of N. Clark, Waverly, Kansas, R. No. 1.

PIANO PLAYER—Professional theatrical musician. Leader, manager, composer, orranger, etc. Strictly sober and reliable. Eastern position preferred. MR. CHARLES J. W. JERRELD, 87 Waldo St., Holyoke, Mass.

VIOLIN LEADER—Experienced vaudeville and pictures, wants engagement. A-1 man, splendid library. Satisfaction or no pay. Address VIOLINIST, 121 Fairford West, Moose Jaw, Sask., Can.

THEATERS FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—Price $1,600, Moving Pictures, Opera House and Airdome. No competition, county seat, population 1,500, drawing population, 4,000. Opera chairs, electric light. Clears monthly $200. BLOOMFIELD THEATER, Bloomfield, Mo.

THEATERS FOR SALE—In Indiana and Illinois. Can give you just what you want from $1,000 to $10,000 investment, in small or large towns. Write CONSTRUCTION DEPARTMENT, LYRIC FILM & SUPPLY COMPANY, Terre Haute, Indiana.

FOR SALE—160 theater chairs, practically new. Also splendid screen. Make offer. MANAGER, Box 254, Lexington, Ky.

AN HONEST OPPORTUNITY—1,400-seat open air theater. 125th and Lenox. No competition, latest and best equipment; good lease; low rent. Illness and other business compel quick sale. D. H. SCULLY & CO., 57 East 125th St., New York City.

FOR SALE—Picture theater in town of 16,000. Fully equipped. Best location in city. New building, new outfit. Reason selling, connected in other business. Doing big business. Address BOX 295, Mattoon, Ill.

FOR SALE—Only first class theater in town of 12,000. Doing splendid business; attractive front; modern equipment; seating capacity, 400. Address 1409 Broad St., New Castle, Ind.

FOR SALE—Indianapolis picture theater. One of the best moving picture shows in Indianapolis, central location. Price $5,000. Owner wants to retire. Address W. A. FOLKERTH, 22-23 When Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

THEATERS WANTED.

MOVING PICTURE THEATER—Wanted in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, by big concern running a number of high class places now. Only large houses considered. State full particulars. H. C. HANCOOK, Larchmont, N. Y.

MOVING PICTURE THEATER—In small Ohio city. State full particulars in first letter. BOX 99, Y. M. C. A., Dayton, Ohio.

WANTED—To buy or rent, opera house or moving picture theatre. Have good state right picture for sale cheap, good front. R. N. DAVENPORT, Watertown, Wis.

THEATER FOR RENT.

TO RENT—A first-class moving picture house, fully equipped, capacity 500. Rent reasonable. Address GOLDBERG BROS., Glen Cove, N. Y.

FILMS FOR SALE.

50 FEATURE FILMS—2, 3, 4 reels each, and 500 commercial reels with full line advertising. Posters for sale. Many subjects practically new. Write for list. McINTIRE & RICHTER, 23 East 14th St., New York.

FOR SALE—Films in good condition, 2 and 3 dollars per reel. Portable asbestos booth, 40 dollars. We buy and sell anything pertaining to moving pictures. CONDOR FILM EXCHANGE, 154 Third Avenue, New York.

FOR SALE—"QUO VADIS" three reels, used ten days. Tennessee and Alabama. Finest lobby display on road. Good booking. Four hundred dollars. W. R. HART, Little Rock, Ark.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—One Simplex machine, complete motor drive. Powers 6-A, complete loop setter attachment, also Power's 6 complete, and Power's 5 head. All used only one week, very cheap. BESDINE, Room 603, 22 E. 21st St., New York.

FOR SALE—Edison 1912 model mechanism, in new condition, cheap, will guarantee, also two arc lamps. JOS. KAMPSCHROER, Lyric Theater, La Crosse, Wis.

FOR SALE—Cheap, Power's No. 5 moving picture machine with rheostat and lenses, complete. "Fall of Troy," two reels. "Cowboy Sports," one reel, feature 101 Bison and other one-reel features. Address A. J. SARDINO, Larned Theater, Syracuse, N. Y.

1 POWER'S NO, 5 picture machine complete. Excellent running condition. First seventy-five dollars takes it. THE NEWMAN MFG. CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

BRASS POSTER FRAMES—For one, three and six sheets. Also brass easels, brass railings. Write for complete catalog. THE NEWMAN MFG. CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY.

WANTED—Partner with $150, to take half interest in the moving picture show business. Would prefer to travel the United States and Canada. Must be a live wire and experienced in that line. For particulars, address PETER O. HARSTAD, Malba, Montana.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS—Perforators, Tripods and Tilts for sala. We buy Motion Picture Machines and films. SPECIAL EVENT FILM MFGRS. CO., INC., 248 W. 35th St., N. Y. City.

WILLIAMSON KINEMATOGRAPH Moving Picture Camera Outfit complete, new. Used three times. Will sell for $75. F. A. HOLMES, Brewster, N. Y.

WRITE FOR INFORMATION on Funch type "Precision" cameras, tripods, tilts. We ship for inspection. J. JANSON, 118 W. 44th St., New York.

CAMERA FOR SALE—Brand new improved ideal motion picture camera, manufacturers' guarantee, Tessar lens, 200 ft. magazine. A bargain, $60, subject to examination. McKEE, 3414 Fremont Ave., Seattle, Wash.

MISCELLANEOUS.

FOR SALE—One, two, three and four-reel subjects for sale with big lobby display, also one Standard No. 2, with Hallberg transformer, in A-1 condition. ROYAL, 21 East 14th St., New York.

UNBREAKABLE SLIDES—The new, round letter announcement slide, guaranteed not to crack, and will last many years. For circular address NEVER BREAK SLIDE CO., Omaha, Nebr.

FOR SALE—Fifty millimeter F. 3, 5 Carl Leiss camera lens, $20. WM. SALKEY, 100 3rd Ave., New York City.

WHAT WILL YOU EXCHANGE—Or give me for a $65 sectional asbestos moving picture booth? H. BRADY, Crandon, Wis.

WANTED SCENARIO—On "Life of Abe Lincoln," must be all facts. Submit same to SAM DRAME, care of Lubin Moving Picture Studio, Philadelphia, Pa.

GOOD JUDGMENT IN ADVERTISING

Consists of ability in placing copy with the publication guaranteeing Quality as well as Quantity of circulation. No other Moving Picture publication reaches so many Exhibitors and prospective purchasers as

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Calendar of Independent Releases

Universal Film Mfg. Co. Current Releases

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 7th, 1913.
CRYSTAL—Lost in the Night (Drama)................
ECLAIR—A Vegetarian's Dream (Comedy)............
ECLAIR—The Habits of Field Spiders (Scientific)........
REX—The Light Woman (Drama)...................

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1913.
IMP—Robespierre (Three parts—Drama)..............
NESTOR—Poisoned Waters (Drama)...................
GEM—The Gold Mesh Bag (Comedy)..................

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9th, 1913.
101 BISON—A Forest Romance (Two parts—Drama)..
CRYSTAL—Pleasing Her Husband (Comedy).........
CRYSTAL—Some Luck (Comedy)......................

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10th, 1913.
NESTOR—Algy Forfeits His Claim (Comedy)..........
NESTOR—Views of Stockholm (Scenic)..............
POWERS—Mother (Drama) ....
ECLAIR—The Banker's Daughter (Two parts—Drama).
UNIVERSAL—The Animated Weekly No. 79 (News)..

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11th, 1913.
IMP—The Shells (Drama)..........................
REX—The Diamond Makers (Two parts—Drama)......
FRONTIER—Dorothea and the Chief Razamataz (Com.)

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12th, 1913.
NESTOR—The Girl Ranchers (Comedy)...............
POWERS—In the Cycle of Life (Drama)..............
VICTOR—A Bride from the Sea (Two parts—Drama)..

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13th, 1913.
IMP—Binks Elevates the Stage (Comedy).............
IMP—Hy Mayer Cartoons (Novelty)...................
101 BISON—Wandering Folk (Two parts—Drama)......
FRONTIER—On Forbidden Paths (Drama)............

ADVANCE RELEASES.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 14th, 1913.
CRYSTAL—The Hand of Providence (Drama)............
ECLAIR—A Pawnee Romance (Drama)..................
ECLAIR—Hydrogen (Scientific)........................
REX—The Fight Against Evil (Drama)..................

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 15th, 1913.
IMP—The Fatal Verdict (Drama)......................
NESTOR—Beauty and the Ugly One (Drama)...........
GEM—The Manicure (Comedy)........................
GEM—Sam's Despondency (Comedy)....................

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16th, 1913.
101 BISON—In the Coils of the Python (2 parts—Drama)..
CRYSTAL—A News Item (Comedy)...................
CRYSTAL—A Bachelor's Finish (Comedy)..............

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17th, 1913.
NESTOR—The Stepson (Drama)........................
POWERS—The Pearl of the Golden West (Comedy)......
ECLAIR—Rob-Roy (Three Parts, Drama)................
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly No. 80 (News)..........

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18th, 1913.
IMP—Escaped from the Asylum (2 parts—Drama)........
REX—Never Again (Drama)...........................
FRONTIER—The Juvenile Kidnappers (Comedy).........

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19th, 1913.
NESTOR—The Battle of Bull Con (Comedy)............
POWERS—The Doctor's Story (Drama)................
VICTOR—Percy H. Baldwin, Trifler (Drama)............

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20th, 1913.
101 BISON—Through the Window (2 parts—Drama)......
IMP—Binks and the Bathing Girls (Comedy)............
IMP—Antics in Ink, by Hy. Mayer.......................
FRONTIER—The Ranchman's Double (Drama)...........

Mutual Film Corporation Current Releases

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 7th, 1913.
MAJESTIC—The Heart of a Fool (Drama) ....
THANHOUSER—His Last Bet (Comedy) ....

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1913.
AMERICAN—For the Crown (Drama) 1000
KEYSTONE—(Title Not Reported) ....
RELIANCE—Between Home and Country (Drama)....

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9th, 1913.
MAJESTIC—The Frame Up (Drama) ....
THANHOUSER—Taming Their Grandchildren ....

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10th, 1913.
BRONCHO—The Judge's Son (Drama) ....
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly No. 37 (News) ....
RELIANCE—(No Release This Date) ....

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11th, 1913.
AMERICAN—Through the Neighbor's Window (Com.)1000
KEYSTONE—(Title Not Reported) ....
MUTUAL—(Title Not Reported) ....
PILOT—(Title Not Reported) ....

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12th, 1913.
KAYBEE—The Waif (Drama) ....
THANHOUSER—The Message of Headquarters (Dr.)

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13th, 1913.
AMERICAN—Red Sweeney's Defeat (Drama) 1000
MAJESTIC—For His Loved One (Drama) ....
RELIANCE—The Clown's Daughter (2 part-Drama)...

ADVANCE RELEASES.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 14th, 1913.
MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported).......................
THANHOUSER—(Title Not Reported)..................

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 15th, 1913.
AMERICAN—Calamity Anne, Heroine (Drama)..........
KEYSTONE—(Title Not Reported)...................
RELIANCE—Twickenham Ferry (Drama)...............

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16th, 1913.
MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported).......................
THANHOUSER—(Title Not Reported)..................

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17th, 1913.
BRONCHO—The Land of Dead Things (2 parts—Drama)
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly No. 38 (News)...............
RELIANCE—The Disguise (Drama).....................

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18th, 1913.
AMERICAN—A Fall Into Luck (Drama)................
KEYSTONE—(Title Not Reported).....................
MUTUAL—(Title Not Reported)........................
PILOT—(Title Not Reported)..........................

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19th, 1913.
KAY-BEE—The Reformation (Drama)...................
THANHOUSER—(Title Not Reported)..................

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20th, 1913.
AMERICAN—Jim Takes a Chance (Comedy)............
AMERICAN—Travelers of the Road (Drama)...........
MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported).......................
RELIANCE—The Stolen Woman (2 parts—Drama).......

Exclusive Supply Corporation Current Releases

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1913.
F. R. A.—The Voice of the Wild (Feature Release)....

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9th, 1913.
GAUMONT—An Actor's Adventure (Drama) ....

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10th, 1913.
SOLAX—Dooley and His Dog (Comedy) ....
GAUMONT—Gaumont's Weekly No. 79 (News) ....

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11th, 1913.
GAUMONT—Love Me, Love My Animals (Comedy)....

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12th, 1913.
LUX—The Tax on Bachelors (Comedy) ....
LUX—Arabella's Rivals (Comedy) ....
SOLAX—Gratitude (Drama) ....

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13th, 1913.
GREAT NORTHERN—(Title Not Reported) ....

ADVANCE RELEASES.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16th, 1913.
GAUMONT—The Lion Hunters (2 parts—Drama)........

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17th, 1913.
SOLAX—Invisible Ink (Comedy).......................
GAUMONT—Gaumont's Weekly No. 80 (News)...........

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18th, 1913.
GAUMONT—Tiny Tim's Elopement (Comedy)............

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19th, 1913.
LUX—(Title Not Reported).............................
SOLAX—Western Love (Drama).......................

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20th, 1913.
GREAT NORTHERN—(Title Not Reported).............

Something you have been waiting for!

WATCH OUT!! WATCH OUT!!

for

DOMINO FILMS

IN 2 AND 3 MASSIVE REELS

Gigantic Naval Spectacles Picturesque Puritan Productions

Mark the Date of the First Release

(2 REELS) "THE BONDSMAN" (2 REELS)

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18th

A Red-Blooded Production of Wonderful Power and Dignity

To Exhibitor and Public : These two and three reel Feature Films of the Domino Motion Picture Corporation are peerless in Story, in Acting and Photography; The Producers of these Pictures have excelled their reputation for extraordinary and mammoth film spectacles in giving Domino Productions to the Exhibitor. The Mutual exhibitor showing Kay-Bee, Broncho and Keystone pictures will have additional cause to rejoice when the Domino Brand is added to the Program.

P. S.—Owing to copyright laws, the name EMPIRE, under which brand the above pictures were to be released, has been changed to DOMINO!!

Domino Motion Picture Corporation

LONG ACRE BUILDING
BROADWAY, at 42nd Street, NEW YORK CITY

MUTUAL PROGRAM EXCLUSIVELY

Calendar of Licensed Releases.

CURRENT RELEASES.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—A Modest Hero (Drama)...............
EDISON—Keepers of the Flock (Drama).............1000
KALEM—The Bribe (Drama).............1000
LUBIN—Seeds of Wealth (Drama).............1000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly No. 48 (News)........
SELIG—The Wheels of Fate (Special—2 parts—Drama).2000
VITAGRAPH—Cupid Versus Woman's Rights (Comedy-Drama).............1000

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9th, 1913.

EDISON—A Light on Troubled Waters (Drama)......1000
ESSANAY—Sunlight (Drama).............1000
LUBIN—Playing with Fire (Drama).............1000
PATHEPLAY—Sleufoot's Seventh Suicide (Comedy)..
CINES—The Mysterious Man (Spec.—2 parts—Drama).
SELIG—The Rancher's Failing (Drama).............1000
VITAGRAPH—Old Moddington's Daughters (Comedy-Drama).............1000

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10th, 1913.

EDISON—The Desperate Condition of Mr. Boggs (Comedy).............1000
ESSANAY—The Treater's Treat (Comedy).............1000
KALEM—The Fatal Legacy (Special—2 parts—Drama).2000
PATHEPLAY—Across the Chasm (Drama)............
SELIG—Around Battle Tree (Drama).............1000
VITAGRAPH—Fortune's Turn (Drama).............1000

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—Baby Indisposed (Comedy).............
BIOGRAPH—The Lady in Black (Comedy)............
ESSANAY—Bonnie of the Hills (Drama).............1000
LUBIN—The Hill of Strife (Special—2 parts—Drama)..2000
MELIES—Captured by Aboriginals (Drama).............1000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly No. 49 (News)........
PATHEPLAY—The Accidental Shot (Drama).........

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12th, 1913.

SELIG—Two Too Many (Comedy).............1000
EDISON—Caste (Special—2 parts—Drama).............2000
ESSANAY—Grist to the Mill (Special—2 parts—Drama).2000
KALEM—Wanted, a Plumber (Comedy)...............
KALEM—Too Many Cops (Comedy)..................
LUBIN—Panama Hat Industry (Industrial)............ 400
LUBIN—An Exclusive Pattern (Comedy)............ 600
PATHEPLAY—Young Hearts and Old (Drama)........
SELIG—Her Way (Drama)..........................
VITAGRAPH—Sauce for the Goose (Comedy)..........1000

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—An Unjust Suspicion (Drama)............
EDISON—The Green Eye of the Yellow God (Drama)..1000
ESSANAY—Broncho Billy Reforms (Drama)...........1000
KALEM—The Monogrammed Cigarette (Drama)......1000
LUBIN—The Medal of Honor (Drama).............1000
PATHEPLAY—A Jungle Flirtation (Comedy)..........
PATHEPLAY—Tahiti, the Picturesque (Travel)........
VITAGRAPH—The Lost Millionaire (Special—2 parts—Drama).............2000

ADVANCE RELEASES.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 15th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—His Hoodoo (Comedy)....................
BIOGRAPH—Dan Greegan's Ghost (Comedy)............
EDISON—The Island of Perversity (Comedy)............1000
KALEM—Retribution (Drama).............1000
LUBIN—To Love and Cherish (Drama).............1000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly No. 50 (News)...........
SELIG—The Fifth String (Special—2 parts—Drama)......2000
VITAGRAPH—Pumps (Comedy)........................
VITAGRAPH—Sandy Gets Shorty a Job (Comedy).......

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16th, 1913.

EDISON—Jerusalem and the Holy Land (Scenic)........1000
ESSANAY—Women (Drama).............1000
LUBIN—Fashion's Toy (Drama).............1000
PATHEPLAY—Mrs. Morton's Birthday (Drama).........
CINES—High Treason (Special—2 parts—Drama)........
SELIG—The Toils of Deception (Drama).............1000
VITAGRAPH—Their Mutual Friend (Drama).............1000

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17th, 1913.

EDISON—Cornwall, the English Riviera (Scenic)......... 400
EDISON—The Comedian's Downfall (Comedy).......... 600
ESSANAY—Sweet Revenge (Comedy)....................
ESSANAY—The Duck-Raising Industry (Zoology).......
KALEM—Trooper Billy (Special—2 parts—Drama).......2000
PATHEPLAY—The Merill Murder Mystery (Drama).....
SELIG—Tobias Wants Out (Comedy).............1000
VITAGRAPH—The Hindoo Charm (Drama).............1000

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—The Stolen Treaty (Drama)................
ESSANAY—The Broken Parole (Drama).............1000
LUBIN—The Clod (Special—2 parts—Drama).............2000
MELIES—(Title Not Reported).......................
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly No. 51 (News)...........
PATHEPLAY—Toad Traits (Zoology)...................
PATHEPLAY—Hot Springs and Geysers of New Zealand (Travel).........................
SELIG—The Redemption of Railroad Jack (Drama).......1000
VITAGRAPH—Sunny; or the Cattle Thief (Drama)......1000

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19th, 1913.

EDISON—Saved by the Enemy (Special—2 parts—Drama).2000
ESSANAY—The Right of Way (Special—2 parts—Drama).2000
KALEM—The Burglar and the Baby (Comedy)...........
KALEM—One Best Bet (Comedy)......................
LUBIN—The Love of Beauty (Drama).............1000
PATHEPLAY—Dr. Turn Turns the Tables (Comedy).....
PATHEPLAY—Harnessed Falls of the Northwest (Travel)
SELIG—The Rejected Lover's Luck (Drama).............1000
VITAGRAPH—John Tobin's Sweetheart (Comedy).......1000

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—For the Son of the House (Drama)........
EDISON—The Great Physician (Drama).............1000
ESSANAY—The Redeemed Claim (Drama).............1000
KALEM—The Breath of Scandal (Drama).............1000
LUBIN—Her Present (Comedy)........................ 400
LUBIN—His Reward (Comedy)........................ 600
PATHEPLAY—Her Brave Rescuer (Drama).............
VITAGRAPH—Our Wives (Special—2 parts—Drama)....2000

POPULAR PHOTOPLAYERS

One-sheet posters of Licensed Stars, 7 for $1.00 or 14 for $2.00, postage prepaid; singly, 15c. each. Photos, 11 x 14, of Association, Mutual or Universal Stars, $2.00 a dozen or 20c. singly, postage prepaid. High-grade quality postcards, 300 different Universal, Mutual and Association Players, 30c. a hundred or $3.00 a thousand. 35 samples for 25c. Send for complete list and free advertising matter.

EXHIBITORS'
ADVERTISING & SPECIALTY CO.
Arthur D. Jacobs, Pres.
30 Union Square, New York

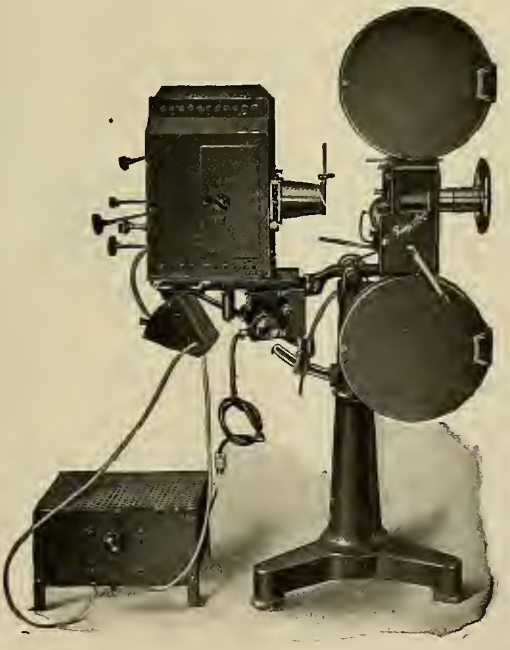
ANNOUNCEMENT

THE HEAVY DEMAND FOR

Simplex

projectors has been greater than the supply for the last nine months. In spite of strenuous effort and much overtime on the part of our factory, we have had to keep our good customers waiting from two to four weeks for Simplex machines. Our rule is to fill all orders in the same rotation as that in which they are received. We have no favored customers whose orders are given preference. We treat all alike.

While our output has been greatly increased, the new business at home and abroad has more than kept pace with it. Simplex is now practically as well known in England, Germany, France, Russia and South America as it is in the United States and Canada. Wherever this peerless projector has been introduced, the demand for it has rapidly increased.



The adoption of Simplex for Kinemacolor projection all over the world will in itself tax our capacity, for we are under contract to deliver several hundred machines of that type within the next ninety days.

For these reasons we most earnestly urge our friends to place their orders early for Simplex projectors and avoid the disappointment of not being able to get them on time. We want to supply everyone who is anxious to adopt the Simplex, but if you wait until the last minute before ordering, it may be impossible to get the machine on time.

Dealers will find it to their advantage to place a standing order and be sure of a dependable supply of a certain number of machines per week.

Write at once for Catalogue A

MADE AND GUARANTEED BY

PRECISION MACHINE CO.

317 East 34th Street, New York City, N. Y.

SELLING BY STATE RIGHTS ONLY

"THE BETROTHED"

(In Six Reels)

The ONLY truly remarkable production founded on Alexander Manzoni's immortal work, "I PROMESSI SPOSI." Yes, we know there are other versions. See them, then get the BEST—AMBROSIO'S.

PUBLICITY—2 1 sheets, 1 3 sheet, 2 4 sheets, 1 8 sheet heralds, cuts and two kinds of photos for lobby display

"Grandmother's Lamp"

(A Feature in Three Reels)

An extra good subject that will appeal to all picture-play goers. The most artistic picture of the year, yet exciting, thrilling and stirring. Some good territory still open. Get busy.

PUBLICITY—1, 3 and 8 sheet posters, heralds, photos and cuts

Ambrosio American Co.

15 East 26th Street, New York

When the Strong Joins with the Strong

RAMO

SIGNS WITH THE EXCLUSIVE

Beginning September 1st All Releases of the Ramo Company Will Form Part of the

EXCLUSIVE PROGRAM

2 THREE REEL FEATURES MONTHLY

When Is the Best Time to Wake Up?

After the Other Fellow Has Grabbed Everything?

Do you want to feel the chagrin of those exchange men in Northern Illinois, Texas, California, Nevada and Arizona, Washington, Oregon and Idaho, Eastern Pennsylvania, Western Pennsylvania and New England, who waited too long before attempting to contract for the

Exclusive Program

What would happen to your business if these brands were taken away from you today?

Gaumont Ramo Itala Great Northern
Dragon Eclectic Solax Ammex
Film Releases of America
Lewis Pennant Blache American Features

Also the All Star Feature Corporation's Master-Plays, beginning with Augustus Thomas' "ARIZONA"

WEEKLY PROGRAM

5 Three-Reel Features 7 Regular Releases

Exclusive Supply Corporation

220 West 42nd Street, New York City

CORRESPONDENCE

LOUISVILLE.

THE Central Film Service Company, of Louisville and Indianapolis, has decided upon a new departure in the exchange field, in the shape of a monthly magazine that will be published shortly. The new publication will be called "Service." The journal will be distributed free to exhibitors, and will embody in black and white the helpful suggestions and original ideas which have heretofore come to exhibitors from the Central in other ways.

Louisville exhibitors are eagerly awaiting the first release of the Imp English stock company, headed by King Baggot, which is reported to have completed its production of "Ivanhoe" on English soil, and among the scenes in which Scott's story was laid. Baggot is one of the most popular leading men in the business in Louisville as elsewhere, and exhibitors anticipate record audiences when the releases of this series of pictures begin to come in.

Simon Schafer, of New Albany, Ind., opened his Jeffersonville House, the New Majestic, on Saturday, August 30, with the Central four-reel service.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" was the leading feature of the week at the Novelty Theater, in Louisville.

Lubin's "Black Beauty" made a hit at the Majestic, in Louisville, during the first part of the week, the rather unexpected denouement meeting with the entire approval of the audiences at the big Fourth Street house. Next week will witness the production of the first of the Famous Players releases at the Majestic, "The Prisoner of Zenda" being the play.

Union organizers of the building trades are rather up against it at Lexington, Ky., on account of the scarcity of men there. Manager L. S. Ramsey, who is rushing the New Hippodrome Theater to completion, needs twenty carpenters for the building, but had two union men called off the work because a third carpenter was non-union. When he explained to the union organizer that he was perfectly willing to employ union men if he could get them, the latter saw the point, and conceded that Mr. Ramsey should be allowed to use any carpenters he could get.

The work of remodeling the new Princess Theater, of Lexington, Ky., under the management of Miss Carrie Bean, has been completed, and the pretty house looks like new, as a result of plenty of fresh paint, new paper and attractive decorating generally. The system of ventilation has been improved considerably, and the house should prove to be one of the most popular in the city under its new management.

Thomas J. Nolan, the Louisville architect, is preparing plans for a new building at Sturgis, Ky., for the Rakes Motion Picture Theater, among other buildings recently destroyed by fire. The new structure will be two stories in height, of brick and stone, and will measure 25 by 125 feet on the ground.

Henry A. Guthrie, representing the National Moving Picture Company, of Louisville, was in Bowling Green, Ky., recently, looking around for either a site for a picture show or an existing house for sale, to form one of the company's string of houses. He located a favorable site for a house, and after plans are completed will probably offer stock in the enterprise in that locality. Bowling Green people apparently like the idea, and a theater there should do well in the National's string.

Dan Norton, owner and manager of the Scenic Theater, of Ashland, Ky., is to have the lease of a new $10,000 house which is to be built in that city shortly by J. E. King. The new house will be much larger than the Scenic, with a balcony seating 200 persons and a lower floor large enough for 500. It is said that it will be one of the finest moving picture houses between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. Mr. Norton will operate the new theater as a ten-cent house, converting the Scenic into a five-cent theater.

The Princess, George Bleich's new theater at Owensboro, Ky., was opened recently with capacity audiences. The decoration and general appearance of the Princess are similar to those of the Empress, Mr. Bleich's older house. He intends to make the music a feature of the program, as at the Empress, and is on the lookout for musicians to complete his Princess orchestra.

The moving picture theaters at Pikesville, Ky., recently opened up again after a sixteen-day hiatus, caused by the disabling of the city's electric light plant by an electric storm. During the period following the storm the city had to depend on one generator at the power house for its current, and the theaters were consequently forced to suspend the operation of the films, and depend entirely on vaudeville programs.

The American Theater is the name of a recently opened picture house at Cloverport, Ky., which is reported to be doing a fine business in the river town.

The new Savoy Theater opened at Princeton, Ky., a few days ago, with a good orchestra, good ventilation and fans, and every provision for the comfort of the audiences. The pictures are popular at Princeton, and the new house is drawing a record business.

It is reported at Henderson, Ky., that arrangements are being made to convert an old building in that city into a theater, for use as a high grade motion picture and vaudeville house. It is said that the plans provide for a building which is to be up to date in every respect, and that the expense of making the necessary alterations will be considerable.

Miss Margarite Lawson, pianist at the Princess Theater, in Hopkinsville, Ky., resigned her position there recently and left on a vacation trip covering various eastern cities. Norman Sypher succeeds her. He is a musician of more than local fame, having played at a number of Kentucky resorts. He is said to have a repertoire of five hundred selections. Robert Cooper, violinist, and Joe Day, drums, complete the Princess orchestra.

The Rex Theater, at Hopkinsville, Ky., is to have a five-piece orchestra, in addition to its other attractions, according to Manager Shrode.

G. A. Duncan, of Carlisle, Ky., is said to be considering the erection of a theater, to be known as the Lyric, which will exhibit vaudeville and moving pictures.

C. B. Hunt, of Marianna, Ark., who has been for two years manager of the Princess Theater in that city, will open a new house to be known as the Majestic as soon as the building can be completed. It is an old building, and is now being remodeled by contractors. The estimated cost of the improvements and alterations being made is $3,000. The operating room is to be located outside of the building proper, thereby eliminating a good deal of the possible danger from fire. A new front and an inclined floor are among the other changes to be made.

G. D. CRAIN, JR.

ILLINOIS.

THE Fox Theater at Aurora announced that its patrons had treated the house great this summer and that it wished to reciprocate. Accordingly a feature week was prepared for the last week the house showed pictures and every day a multiple-reel feature was given for five cents. Among the attractions were "Satan," "Oliver Twist," "Tigris" and "Custer's Last Fight."

The Apollo Amusement Company, of Peoria, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $40,000 to do an amusement and theater business. The incorporators are George J. Jochem, Lyn C. Sieberrs and M. D. Doubet.

Walter and William Frederich, who recently purchased the Celestial Theater at Pekin, have been planning to make several changes in the house.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of DeKalb, recently conducted a discussion upon the moving picture problem.

The Majestic Theater at Peoria has ended its picture season.

Peter Pinkelmann, of Pinkelmann & Morest, owners of the Gem and Savoy at Quincy, recently took some pictures of Quincy to Kansas City, where he showed them in the Maze, owned by Peter Jacobs, formerly of Quincy.

Fred W. Heinz has taken a lease on the Fulton Opera House at Fulton.

The Royal Hippodrome Company, of Chicago, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000 to operate a theater. The incorporators are Henry Myers, Frank E. Davidson and Forest Garfield Smith.

Warren M. Rutter, of Louisiana, Mo., is said to be contemplating opening a picture show at Pittsfield.

Manager Lang, of Dreamland Theater, at Rockford, met an unusual obstacle in his work of putting in a handsome front to his house. He had the sanction of the landlord, who holds a long-time lease, but when the owner came along and saw the work he had it stopped, declaring that the building would be weakened. Lang had a competent architect draw the plans and felt that the delay was unwarranted.

The Lino Theater, of Chicago, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $2,000 to operate moving picture and vaudeville shows. The incorporators are George C. Fry, Howard McCay and Frank H. Dickey.

The Vermillion Amusement Company, of Danville, which recently was granted a charter by the Secretary of State, will call its new moving picture house in that city The Habit.

The picture houses of Litchfield will have less opposition this year, as the city will be without an opera house. Lyman Howe is booked for the city in December, but will play in a skating rink.

The Star Theater at Milford is affected by a new ordinance which places the ban on all sorts of Sunday amusements.

R. A. Shobe, of Saybrook, has purchased a picture show in Kentland, Ind., which he will operate.

Kincaid & Metcalf have re-opened their picture show at the opera house at Greenfield. They will give three reels of licensed pictures Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights.

The Johnston City Amusement Company, of Johnston City, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $3,000 to do a theater business. The incorporators are Louis Moroni, Emil Moroni and Santa Moroni.

S. C. James is the new proprietor of the Opera House at Flora. Pictures will continue to play a large part in the policy of the house.

Motion pictures will figure in the educational work of the Young Men's Christian Association at Aurora this year. They will also be used to some extent for religious lectures. It has not been decided whether any admission will be charged or whether the crowds may make a contribution as they pass from the hall. Secretary Hall is an advocate of the plan.

Joaquin C. Wilson, proprietor of the Star Theater at Clinton, plans to build a new home on East Main Street for his picture show. It will cost about $5,000. The house will be 21 x 128 feet and will seat 400 persons. A new mirror screen and indirect lighting system will be among the attractions of the place. He hopes to have it ready for occupancy by November 1, as the contracts have already been let.

J. B. Stine has closed his Colonial Theater at Hoopeston and removed to Lebanon, Ind., where he has engaged in the picture business.

F. M. Kendall has re-opened the Braden Brothers Opera House at Watseka with a three-reel picture show.

Walter Crothers has sold his picture show at Fairbury to Edward Gavin, of Pontiac.

Manger C. J. Law, of the New Palace Theater at Nokomis, is increasing the capacity of his house from 260 to 425 persons by building a 30 x 27 foot extension.

Leu & Koepping, of Moline, have awarded the contract to A. J. Endter, of Rock Island, to erect the new Grand Moving Picture Theater, which will cost about $10,000. An ornamental pressed brick front with marble finishings will give the new house a handsome entrance. It is hoped to have it completed some time in September.

Peter Setts, Jr., has purchased the moving picture business of J. H. Hartman at Highland and assumed charge of the Columbia Theater September 1.

The new Princess Theater at Joliet which was expected to be opened about the first week in September by Manager Rubens will have three picture machines instead of two.

The Chatterton Theater at Bloomington has booked the "Quo Vadis?" films and Lyman H. Howe's picture show to interpolate the season of dramatic and musical attractions.

The Industrial Moving Picture Company, of Chicago, has been negotiating with city officials and business men of Wilmette for a contract to take a series of pictures of Wilmette.

Columbus D. Behan, of the Advance Motion Picture Company, of Chicago, has secured the contract to film the exercises at the State Park at Starved Rock when the Daughters of the American Revolution will raise a flag September 6. This company will also make a reel of a big Catholic ceremony when three parochial schools are dedicated simultaneously. Many church dignitaries will be present and both pictures probably will go into the weeklies.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

OHIO.

INSTEAD of the usual method of taking a series of pictures of a local fire department, novelty is offered in the films made at Youngstown by M. G. Geiger, which will be used for the benefit of the Policemen's Pension Fund. A scenario was written, with the members of the police force and the fire department taking important parts. One scene showed the rescue of a young woman from a burning building and the department was given an opportunity to display the workings of its apparatus.

The Wyandotte Film Supply Company, of Columbus, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $50,000 to deal in motion picture supplies of all kinds. The incorporators are John G. Miller, M. A. Witte, J. Daly, C. Schnepf and L. Jording.

The license of the Imperial Moving Picture Theater, 282,884 McMickel avenue, Cincinnati, was ordered revoked upon report of the building commissioner that changes ordered had not been made.

Mike Bouson has assumed the ownership of Dreamland, the moving picture theater at 21 North High Street, Columbus. John Pekras has been retained as manager. The men formerly were partners.

Warren & Bryne will erect a new one-story building for their picture show at Westerville.

Pyle & Nicholls, of Cleveland, leased the opera house at Amherst for a month's run of pictures and vaudeville.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

WE SUPPLY
What Your Patrons Want

THE "10 IN 2"
REELS

THE "10 IN 2"
REELS

Released
15th
Sept.

A NEW DEPARTURE

Released
15th
Sept.

"THE FAITHFUL SERVITOR"

GAUMONT'S FIRST AMERICAN FEATURE

2 REELS
EXQUISITE
PHOTOGRAPHY

TAKEN IN OUR LOVELY MOUNTAINS
OF CALIFORNIA

AN EXCITING AND SPLENDIDLY ACTED STORY OF LIFE AMONGST THE BORDER BANDITS, SHOWING THE KIDNAPPING OF A LOVELY GIRL AND HER RESCUE BY THE NATIVE SERVANT MACHUDO.

ORDER AT ONCE. WIRE

Gaumont's 1503 World's Tower Bldg.
West 40th St., New York

NEW ENGLAND AND CANADA.

MANAGER "CY" BUNCE, of the Olympic Theater, South Boston, Mass., has returned home, after a vacation period, spent in Maine. In order to augment his programs of Licensed pictures, Mr. Bunce often runs some special Universal features, secured from Mr. J. A. Eslow, manager of the Boston office of the New England Universal Film Exchange.

Former Assistant Secretary Garrett, of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, is not working in that capacity any longer, as he has been engaged as assistant manager of the New England Universal Film Exchange.

The E. J. Carron Amusement Company, of Manchester, N. H., opened its new Star Theater last week. Business was fully up to expectations. The Star was rebuilt from a large structure formerly used as a church, and seats 1,100 persons. It is the only photoplay house in Manchester charging ten cents. The Star is thoroughly modern, and has been built without regard to expense. Mutual pictures were used the opening week, but Universal service has been contracted for. Famous Players reels will also form an important part of the programs, and Mr. E. J. Carron has every reason to believe that his corporation has a winner in the Star.

Mr. Joseph Roth, that able and amiable gentleman, presiding over the Olympic Theater, Boston, has had his front and lobby re-painted a handsome green. Mr. Roth tells us he finds it difficult to be away from Mr. Hugh O'Neill, manager of the Star Theater, Boston, as these two men are thick friends. Mr. O'Neill also finds it slow without his chum.

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, of Boston, was "filmed" one afternoon last week.

Manager "Nate" Brown, of the Broadway Theater, Everett, Mass., reports that warrants have been sworn out for the three rowdies who tried to "beat up" one of his ushers, after being ejected from the theater. Assault is the charge, and the three toughs have left town, with the police on their trail. Mr. Brown is doing exactly right in pushing this case to the limit.

Mr. Arthur Aylesworth, manager of the Lyceum Theater, Edmonton, Canada, is also a real hunter. Accompanied by four Indian and white guides, and eleven pack horses carrying supplies, and enough ammunition to start a regular war, Mr. Aylesworth has left for a six months' hunting trip in the northern districts. A good supply of moving picture cameras is being carried along, and some wonderful pictures should result. During his trip, Mr. George Aylesworth will care for the Lyceum Theater.

Mr. H. S. Davis, manager of the Bijou Theater, Greenfield, Mass., will reopen his house early in September, with a moving picture program.

Mr. W. A. Weseley (Weseley says so) has installed Manager Wilson, of Gardner, Mass., in charge of the Weseley Theater, Greenfield.

It is understood that Mr. Perry, of Bellows Falls, Vt., has secured Mr. W. A. Weseley as a partner in the new theater at Bellows Falls, which will be opened in the near future as a motion picture and vaudeville theater.

Mr. Herman Rifkin, representing the Eastern Feature Film Company of Boston, was in New York last week. Mr. W. E. Greene, the New England film man, was also in the big town. The Exclusive Supply Corporation was the cause, so they say.

Mr. L. B. Schloss, manager of Glen Echo Park, closes his season on Labor Day week. This park has had a most successful business.

The Princess Theater, Waterbury, Conn., changed its policy and ownership on August 18. Mr. F. Martin is now the manager, succeeding Mr. A. B. Cobb as manager and owner, owing to certain litigation over the joint partnership. Just at present the Princess has been attached by William Tracy & Sons, contractors, and also by the New England Engineering Company. The house will probably be operated by Mr. Martin as a straight photoplay house without vaudeville. Mr. Cobb's plans have not been perfected.

Messrs. Haliby and Edelson report that their Scenic Theater, New Britain, Conn., is doing very well indeed as a straight picture house. The Bijou Theater, also of New Britain, and owned by the same concern, offers moving pictures, on Saturday and Sunday only.

Mr. P. Nickerson, manager of the Russwin Lyceum Theater, New Britain, Conn., will reopen his house on Labor Day, but will start the season with stock company shows.

The new theater at New Britain, Conn., being built for Mr. William Fox, the well-known theatrical manager, is now nearing completion. Unless some unexpected delays occur, the house should be ready for its opening on Labor Day. The regulation Fox brand of vaudeville and pictures will be the policy. The new house is first class, modern and fireproof in every respect, and should do well. Mr. P. S. McMahan, manager of Keeney's Theater, will now have strong competition.

Lake Compounce, near New Britain, is doing a really remarkable business, with good programme of vaudeville and photoplays.

A very auspicious opening fell to the lot of the new Lyric Theater, Hamilton, Ontario, Can., on August 11. This house is offering vaudeville and pictures, and is first class in every way.

Mr. T. Logan, manager of the Majestic Theater, London, Canada, tells us that he has no difficulty in doing a capacity business, with a straight photoplay programme, no vaudeville being used. Mr. Logan states that a couple of reels of moving pictures were taken last week of interesting sections of London, which will be exhibited throughout Ontario.

Abbie Wright has reopened the Princess Theater, Montreal, Can., for the season, the feature picture for opening week being "East Lynne."

After a complete renovation, and freshly decorated, the Nickel Theater, Bangor, Maine, has reopened to good trade. The policy is a straight photoplay programme. The Nickel is now a handsome house and should do well. Manager Arthur Allen, of the Palace Theater, also of Bangor, is prospering on his policy of pictures only.

The Imperial Theater, St. John, Canada, the new Keith house, will be opened before long with vaudeville and pictures. Mr. Harvey L. Watkins, of the Keith interests, visited St. John this week, to attend to some details of the Imperial.

A well earned vacation was secured by Mr. John E. Comerford, manager of the Olympia Theater, Boston, who has been enjoying a two weeks' rest from his duties.

Mr. E. W. Currier, manager of the Opera House, Milford, Mass., presented "The Battle of Gettysburg" August 18-20, and business was of the capacity order. A big programme of vaudeville and pictures, augmented by a lady orchestra, should turn the trick for this house.

Mr. D. O. Gilmore, manager of the Court Square Theater, Springfield, Mass., offered Paul J. Rainey's "African Hunt" pictures the week of August 18. These reels have not lost their interest and pulled big trade for Manager Gilmore.

The Gaiety Theater, a moving picture house of Springfield, Mass., reopened for the season on August 18.

Mr. Charles W. Johnson, of Worcester, Mass., now owns the license of the Novelty Theater, a photoplay house of Springfield, Mass. The license was transferred to Mr. Johnson by L. W. Cushing.

The Salem Square Congregational Church property at Worcester, Mass., has been acquired by theatrical people. It is believed that Mr. B. F. Shea, a well known theatrical man, and lessee of the Worcester Theater, has secured the property, and has plans for a large theater, to offer vaudeville and pictures.

"On the Trail of the Spider Gang," a feature film produced by the Apex Film Company, 145 West 45th Street, New York, is being handled in the New England States by W. E. Greene, 100 Boylston Street, Boston.

"Quo Vadis" started on its eleventh week at the Tremont Theater, Boston, on Monday night, August 25. These masterful reels are drawing just as well as ever.

"Les Miserables" in motion pictures will be offered at Tremont Temple, Boston, for an extended engagement, starting on Labor Day night. These reels are advertised as having their first real presentation in this country, in Boston. The production, which is one of the most spectacular ever produced, is an Eclectic feature. There will be daily matinees besides the evening exhibitions.

B. F. Keith's big Boston theater may be turned into a photoplay house soon after the first of next year. This house is truly historic, as the Boston theater was employed by all the great artists, both American and foreign. The present lessees of the house may not renew their lease, in which case it is likely that motion pictures will be installed by Mr. Keith.

Mr. Henry Fitzgerald, a well known theatrical manager, is now stationed at Waterbury, Conn., where he is managing William Fox's theater, which is given over to the policy of vaudeville and pictures. Mr. Fitzgerald comes well recommended, and last year was Chicago representative for W. S. Butterfield.

The new Stratton Theater, Middletown, Conn., of which Mr. O. S. Hathaway is manager, had its formal opening last week. Edison talking pictures were a special feature, and business opened up very well indeed. Vaudeville and pictures will be the regular policy of the new Stratton, which is a first class house.

Mark Shain, manager of the Bay State Amusement Co., at 181 Tremont Street, Boston, was found not guilty in the city police court, on three counts of larceny as the outcome of an advertisement in the daily papers, guaranteeing a position for moving picture operators, after taking his course of instruction. Carl Anderson, of Skowhegan, Maine, and Charles Russell, of Brattleboro, Vt., were named as the losers, but, it is said, that they decided to go West following the arrests the police being unable to establish a case.

Manager Spencer of the Lyric Theater, St. John, Canada, closed that house on August 6, to install ne wopera chairs, and to redecorate the interior. A compltee overhauling will be given the Lyric, after which, Mr. Spencer will close his Unique Theater, of the same city, in order to install a new front and lobby. Both houses offer moving pictures.

The Nickle Theater, St. John, Canada, will very likely be closed down as soon as the Imperial is ready to open. Both houses are controlled by the same people. The Imperial, which is a first class house in every way, should be ready to open late this month. The proceeds of the opening night are to be given to charity, and the receipts will be divided between the Catholic and Protestant Orphan Asylums. Vaudeville and pictures are to be the policy of the new Imperial.

The Partola Theater, Edmonton, Canada, has just been acquired by Thomas Allen, of Toronto, who will run the house as a photoplay theater.

Mr. Ernest Moule, manager of the Apollo Theater, Brantford, Canada, reports excellent business, with moving pictures and songs. Mr. Moule was present at the New York Convention of the Exhibitors' League, and later visited Atlantic City.

The Auditorium Theater, Lynn, Mass., formerly managed by the Lindsey Morrison Stock Company, has been leased by the well known firm of Green & Abrams, who take charge on August 10.

The Lyric Theater Company has incorporated at New Haven, Conn., and has a capital of $50,000. Armidas Delmariso is the prime mover in this new concern.

Newburyport, Mass., a quaint New England town, was visited by moving picture cameramen last week and scenes of local interest secured.

The Eastern Feature Film Company, with a branch office at 224 Tremont Street, Boston, announces it has secured the New England State rights to the three reel picture "The Police Inspector."

HENRY.

IN THE SOUTHWEST.

IT is reported that the St. Louis Motion Picture Company, which has been at Albuquerque, N. M., since last fall, contemplates going to the Pacific Coast. President O. E. Goebel is said to be negotiating for the purchase of a studio in California.

The Dixie at Galveston found the Essanay "A Brother's Loyalty," with Francis X. Bushman, so popular that it booked it for a return date.

Folk dances by school children featured the "Seeing Muskogee" pictures taken at Muskogee, Okla.

J. Berlina has purchased the Auto Park moving picture show at Wharton, Tex., from P. A. Preddie.

A. M. Jacobs, of Waco, Tex., charged with permitting his picture show to remain open on Sunday, was acquitted by Justice Harvey M. Richey, who held that there was doubt in his mind as to whether the operation of the place under the donation plan was a violation of the law.

C. B. Hunt will be the manager of the Majestic, the new picture house in the McCulloch Building, at Marietta, Ark.

Moving pictures will be alternated with vaudeville and dramatic attractions in the new Temple Auditorium at Temple, Tex. The company has leased the house to Charles T. Brian, Jr., and S. Davis, of Waco, Tex. Davis will be resident manager.

Broken Bow, Okla., women will control the Crystal Theater in that city, Tiller & Knight having sold it to Mesdames W. T. Brooks and W. N. and M. C. Williams.

Houston, Tex., theaters have been featuring pictures pertinent to the Mexican situation, which have proved popular in view of the nearness of the seat of trouble. The Carter Roof showed the maneuvers of the Second Division of the United States Army recently and the Star Theater used 3,000 feet depicting the fall of Matamoros.

The Al Jennings Film Company, of Oklahoma City, Okla., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $30,000 to prepare motion pictures and exhibit them with lectures. The incorporators are Al Jennings, W. R. Crusoe and G. R. Hale, all of Oklahoma City.

The Knights of Columbus of Albuquerque, N. M., recently gave a public reception to the members of the St. Louis Motion Picture Company.

S. A. Arnold has sold the Lyric Theater and airdrome at Mena, Ark., to O. Richborg, of Ozark, Ark.

The Royal picture show at Holton, Kan., has been re-opened under the management of J. W. Wendell.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Steele, of Texas City, have bought the Cupid Theater at Belton, Tex., from Rayner & Ware.

The Tri-State Amusement Company, of El Paso, Tex., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $6,000. The incorporators are Frank N. Fickleton, Arthur E. Schuster, A. S. Cochrane and John J. McCourt.

J. B. Kent, the Chandler, Okla., cameraman, was recently at Winnipeg, Manitoba, to take pictures of a big cattle "stampede." He has a large amount of work on hand to complete for Miller Brothers of the 101 Ranch.

John R. Hearne, Jr., will be the lessee of the new motion picture theater to be erected in Crawford Street, Palestine, Tex.

E. E. Burns has opened the Bungalow Theater, a moving picture house at Durant, Okla.

Herbert W. Chaffee, general secretary of the Army Young Men's Christian Association stationed at Galveston, Tex., says that more than 200,000 men of the second division have attended the picture shows given by the Y. M. C. A. in the last five months. Four reels are given each night in tents at Fort Crockett and Texas City. The troopers were recently shown pictures of conditions in Mexico as they actually are.

Charles Coffin and S. A. Thorne have opened a moving picture show at Baldwin, Kan.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

WERE YOU EVER A VICTIM

of circumstantial evidence? If so, you will appreciate this appealing photoplay. At any rate, you'll be mighty anxious to see how a certain young lady is rescued from a decidedly awkward situation. A Parisian love story typical of the Latin Quarter. 1, 3 and 6 sheet posters; heralds; lobby photos; cuts.

Featuring MME. ROBINNE, as heroine, supported by an ALL-STAR cast from the celebrated Comèdie-Française, Paris.

TO SECURE GOOD TERRITORY—GET BUSY!!

A Few More Territories Open On Annual Contract

WHEN PARIS LOVES

(COPYRIGHTED)

In Three Parts Review Next Week Ready Sept. 18th

ECLECTIC FILM CO.

110 West 40th St. New York City

ECLECTIC FILMS
TRADE MARK
PARIS-NEW YORK

"THE CREAM OF THE EUROPEAN MARKET SELECTED FOR AMERICA"

IN THE NORTHWEST

W. JOHN, and Thomas Saxe have announced plans for a new one-story motion picture theater to be built on Seventh Street S at Minneapolis. Beyond the fact that a house seating 3,000 persons will be constructed the plans are in the tentative stage. It is proposed to build in conjunction with a four-story structure, to be erected by David Friedman, president of the Hub Clothing Company, and use the four-story front in the illumination scheme. It also is announced that a new picture house will be built at Hennepin Avenue and Eighth Street for S. L. Rothapfel, who has been manager for the Saxe Brothers' Lyric.

The Dream Theater, at Winona, Minn., has been sold to the Colonial Amusement Company by Harry Rolbiecki, who purchased it a short time ago.

The Pathe Company planned to take pictures of the unique sweet pea carnival at Bozeman, Mont., to be used for the weekly. The floral pageant makes it an unusually good subject. In one place forty acres of sweet peas are grown for seed.

Landen & Schrenzel have opened a moving picture show at Toledo, Wash.

L. E. Paterson, a cameraman of Portland, Ore., and a party of five recently started on a wagon expedition to the southern part of Oregon near Eugene to take some pictures of wolf, coyote and bear hunting.

The extension division of the Minnesota College of Agriculture will use moving pictures more extensively than ever before in its exploitation work at the State Fair, although a good many slides will be used for lectures. Among the lectures that will be illustrated by moving pictures will be "The Dairy Industry in Minnesota," "The Baby and the Cow" (a photoplay), "Clearing Land by Power and Powder" and "A Visit to the University Farm."

Fifteen different reels taken in all parts of the world will be a part of the unusual exhibit of the Holt Caterpillar Company at the interstate fair at Spokane, Wash., this fall. The company makes a caterpillar farm tractor and has been especially interested in filming agricultural scenes. Its moving picture tent will seat 800 persons.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

MICHIGAN.

FRED G. LASUTER, manager of a moving picture theater at Ionia, was found not guilty by a jury of violating the laws of the city when he opened his photoplay house on Sunday evening.

Edgar Lowenthal, who purchased the house of the Dreamland Theater Company on Oakland Avenue in Detroit for $30,000, will operate the place as a ten-cent photoplay house.

Grand Rapids exhibitors have shown themselves far-sighted and instead of opposing the municipality's free shows in the parks have welcomed them on the ground that they will convince many skeptics of the value of pictures and incidentally generate new business for the winter season when the park shows are not in operation. The first free show at Garfield Park drew a crowd of 1,500 persons.

Proprietors of picture houses in Hancock have been advised by Dr. L. M. Power, city health officer that they must fumigate their houses once each week.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

INDIANA.

THE lip-reading story of the mute who went to the picture show and saw the actors were saying naughty words has sprung up again and has been run as a special dispatch in many Indiana papers. The precocious youth is credited to Connersville.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has been filming the most beautiful spots along its lines in Indiana. The reels will be used as a part of the system's exhibit at the Pacific-Panama exposition at San Francisco in 1915.

Manager Willard, of the Palace Theater at Greensburg, was host to children from the Odd Fellows Home when his house exhibited the pictures of Greensburg.

Pearl Sears, owner of the Gem and Wonderland at Clinton, is also a writer of scenarios.

John E. Conley has taken over the Royal Moving Picture Theater at Terre Haute, Ind. The house will be re-decorated and re-modeled.

The Peerless Film & Supply Company, of Indianapolis, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000 to deal in moving picture supplies. The incorporators are Edward D. Crawley, Danville, and Floyd M. Shipp and Leon J. Bamberger, of Indianapolis.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

THE north end of Springfield, which is known as the old village of Ridgely, is to have a new moving picture theater which will be operated on Peoria road by Harry E. Swalley, 2022 Peoria road. He has erected a new building which has been fitted complete for a photoplay house. It will seat about 250 persons. The house is about two miles from its closest competitor and is the first to be started in the outlying districts of the city. It will have a large foreign population to draw from, and these people are good picture patrons.

The Central Feature Film Company, Gaiety Theater Building, which is headed by Fred Whitmer, has purchased the Illinois right on the Italian Pompeii Film Company's "Last Days of Pompeii" and has commenced playing Illinois dates. Good business was done at the Gaiety in Springfield, the Gaiety in Kankakee, and Redmon's Airdrome in East St. Louis. Leo Williams, formerly connected with the Lyric Theater, is in charge of the pictures. The company has also bought the feature "Conscience."

W. W. Watts, president of the Vaudette Amusement Company, of this city, has returned to Springfield after spending four and a half months supervising the opening and operation of his new Chicago house, the Vaudette. He reports that business is improving at the Chicago theater.

The Boulevard airdrome on South Fourth Street plans to operate its picture show with vaudeville until State Fair week at least. The Springfield photoplay managers are expecting a big week when the annual Illinois exposition is held in October.

D. M. Primm, of Springfield, and B. E. Caldwell, of Athens, have purchased J. P. Stutzman's picture show at Athens.

Isadore Bernstein, who is interested in the Capital and Amuse-U theaters in this city, has purchased the Empire Theater at Lincoln from Nases & Leach and has begun its operation. John Whiteside, of Springfield, will be his operator and Miss Ferne Hall ticket seller.

The Gaiety Theater, East Monroe Street, ended its season of pictures August 23 and went back into vaudeville. "We have had good business all the time," said Manager Frank Smith.

Peter Jacobs, formerly of Springfield, but later in the picture business at Quincy where he owned the Gem and the Savoy, is reported to have traded his Kansas City house, the Maze, to Pinkelman & Morest, of Quincy, who took over his Quincy houses. He will retire to the farm.

The Empire Burlesque Theater, on East Jefferson Street, is now featuring its moving pictures, giving its lobby display almost entirely to the photoplay attractions.

The Gaiety Theater building promises to develop a colony of moving picture and slide men. The Central Feature Company, E. B. Enos, of the Enos Feature Film Company, and Judson Spurway, of the Automatic Electric Sign Company, are now located there and Elmer Ott, of the Co-operative Amusement and Supply Company, is there temporarily.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

IOWA.

ROY OMANS, of Sioux City, the new owner of the Majestic Theater at Missouri Valley, has announced that he will eliminate vaudeville from his programs and give his patrons a clean family picture show. He will change daily and will give a five-cent Saturday matinee without a free list.

William L. Wells, of Northwood, has purchased the Lyric Theater at Nashua from N. Sorenson.

E. C. Houser and M. J. Kerwin, managers of the new Princess Theater at Iowa City, have decided upon a program of three reels for five cents.

Ray Vincent has purchased a moving picture show at Akron.

The Roper Theater at Council Bluffs, which recently installed a new $4,000 pipe organ, is featuring the instrument in its advertising, using the slogan "The Home of the Pipe Organ."

Edward Kirchen is now proprietor of the moving picture show at Griswold, which formerly was operated by H. P. Brown.

Ray Chasey is now manager of the Idle Hour Theater at Lamoni.

The Capital City Amusement Company, of Des Moines, filmed the encampment at Camp Hildebrand. The pictures were shown at the Gem Theater in Charles City.

Herman Hudsbeck is now engaged in the moving picture business at Coon Rapids.

Harry Davis has sold a half interest in the Cozy Theater at Odebolt to Jasper DeDoobbeleer, and they will conduct the house in partnership.

The Iowa State Board of Control has purchased a Power's 6-A machine at the request of Warden Sanders, of the state penitentiary at Fort Madison, and photoplays will be shown to the convicts once a week in the prison chapel. Educational releases will be sought.

Manager Hemsky, of the Crystal Theater at Cedar Rapids, had trouble with city officials over the exhibition of "Quo Vadis?" The city council is reported to have notified Hemsky not to put on the films, basing their order upon the fact that some of them had read the book and that in their judgment they were not fit to be seen. "As nearly as I can learn," the mayor is quoted, "the films show a large number of women more or less nude, more rather than less, and I suppose that's the reason why the admission fee for this film is doubled. It will not be allowed in this city." R. N. Abbey, of the Kansas City Film Company condemned the action of the mayor and commissioners in forbidding the pictures without seeing them as unfair.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

BUFFALO.

THE Bright Spot Theater Co., of Jamestown, N. Y., will use Universal service furnished by the Victor Film Co., of this city.

As the guests of Manager Laughlin, of the Majestic Theater, Buffalo, the inmates of St. Mary's Institution of the Deaf and Dumb, of this city, recently attended "Quo Vadis?" in moving pictures at that playhouse. "There are so few dramatic productions that our students can enjoy, owing to their peculiar affliction, that I am sure all of them appreciated this occasion," said Sister Alexius, the mother superior.

"Talking Pictures" have been extensively advertised by Manager Sherry as a special feature at the New Lyric Theater, Buffalo.

The Vitagraph feature, "The Line-up," a football story, was presented recently by Manager Bowe, of Keith's Columbia Theater.

The Mutual Film Corporation's Buffalo branch is located at 272 Washington Street and is successfully managed by Bert Diener. According to Mr. Diener, the local and State business of the branch has increased 50 per cent. since March. H. F. Brink, formerly manager of the Fillmore Theater, Buffalo, has become traveling representative for the company. The Hippodrome Theater, Rochester, and the Bijou Dream Theater, Buffalo, have just taken over the Mutual service. The Bijou Dream moving picture theater, managed by J. H. Beaver, has been considerably improved both inside and out. The seating capacity has been increased and a new mirror screen and a new Simplex machine have been installed. This is one of the coolest houses in Buffalo and occupies a valuable site at Main and North Division Streets.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" in moving pictures has been featured by manager Sherry, of the New Lyric Theater.

Moving pictures were used in Buffalo recently for demonstrating purposes at the International Congress on "School Hygiene."

Moving pictures intended for the uplift of the red men have been introduced by the Indian Association of America, under the direction of Cary W. Hartman, superintendent of industries on the Cattaraugus (N. Y.) Indian reservation. Mr. Hartman has been successful in gathering a strong committee of Indians who are taking an active interest in this work. The opening show of the pictures was given by Robert Rexdale. No admission was charged and visitors from the neighboring towns were welcome.

A recent report from Chautauqua, N. Y., says in part: "Mrs. L. Gainsburg, a moving picture actress of New York City, made a trip here in a Curtis hydroplane operated by Al. J. Engel, a Cleveland birdman."

George H. Verbeck, of 17 West Swan Street, Buffalo, recently bought "The Pilgrim's Progress," Ambrosio pictures, and "Voodoo Vengeance," animal pictures by the World's Best Feature Film Co.

BILLY BISON.

Among the Exhibitors.

Warwood, Mich.—A new moving picture house is planned for Warwood. L. N. Hoffmann will, in the near future, confer with a committee from the town council in regard to a building for that purpose.

Franklin, Ky.—H. H. Knapp has sold the Crystal Theater to the Dixie Amusement Co., Arthur Mitchell, of Russellville, has been chosen as the new manager.

Sac City, Iowa.—George Ferguson opened his new Star Theater.

West Point, Ky.—George Markham, of Covington, purchased the Jno. Buckingham property near the I. C. Depot, and will build a picture theater.

Enderlin, N. D.—H. E. Poole opened his new playhouse, New Grand Theater, to the public.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Plans are being prepared for the construction of a moving picture theater to be located at the corner of Pasadena Avenue and Avenue 56.

Janesville, Wis.—A. J. Kavanaugh, proprietor of the Grand Family Theater, has leased the Grand Theater at Crookston.

New York, N. Y.—Robert E. Rasmussen will erect a theater to cost $200,000 on the north side of Church Avenue.

Champaign, Ill.—Negotiations are being made between T. B. Webber, of Urbana, and the Varsity Amusement Company for the erection of a building on Main Street, just west of the Illinois Traction system office in Urbana for motion picture house.

Philadelphia, Pa.—William Eckbold Sons, 707 East Girard Avenue, are having plans prepared for a moving picture theater to be erected on East Girard Avenue.

Columbus, Ohio.—Plans are in the hands of architect J. S. Goldsmith for a large picture show to be built in Main Street, between 17th and 18th Streets, for J. H. Miller.

Toledo, Ohio.—The Laurel Theater at Detroit and Delaware Streets has opened up for business.

Coldwater, Mich.—The Happy Hour Theater has been sold to George Banta, of New York, who has taken possession.

Palestine, Tex.—The contract was let for the erection at an early date of a motion picture theater that will cost $12,500. It will be located on Crawford Street and will be leased by Jno. R. Hearne, Jr. Contractor C. J. Maffit was awarded the contract.

Dependable Feature Service

What the critics say about our four-reel state right feature,

"THE DOOM OF DARKNESS"

Moving Picture World.

"The picture is one of those that remain in the mind after they are seen, that hold the best class of people, that pay the exhibitor's dividends."

Billboard.

"The premier offering of the True Feature Co. speaks well for the future of that concern. A four-reel production under the above title contains photography such as any concern may well boast of, and the story, although not entirely new, possesses features of heart interest which will appeal to everyone. The product is the work of the Continental Kunst Film Society, which has been shown but little in this country."

Dramatic Mirror.

"A really exceptional and thoroughly admirable film acted with intelligent sincerity and deep feeling of the spirit and power underlying. Photography is excellent. This film, in four reels, is worth the exhibitor's best attention."

New York Telegraph.

"'The Doom of Darkness' is a four-part feature and contains much that is especially interesting. In photography the film is excellent. In acting, the part of the girl stands out above those of the others, but the acting is assuredly good throughout."

Two features of unimpeachable quality every week. Are you interested? Write and learn something to your advantage, whether you are exhibitor, exchange man or state right buyer.

THE TRUE FEATURE CO.

110-112 West 40th St. WORLD'S TOWER BUILDING New York City

Telephone 578 Bryant Sole American Agents for the Continental Art Film Society

Get On Our Mailing List

LICENSED FILM STORIES

LUBIN.

TO LOVE AND CHERISH (Sept. 15).—Edith Foster is wooed by two men, Ralph Blake, a struggling young homesteader, the other Bruce Sanford, a rich rancher. The girl marries Ralph. Three months pass and Ralph becomes very ill, all the work of the homestead falling on Edith. She becomes worn and dissatisfied. Bruce, hearing of Ralph's illness, goes to the shack and tries to condole with Edith. The girl, however, checks his advances. Later it is found that Ralph's sickness has left him dumb and partly paralyzed. He is unable to walk, using an invalid's chair to get around the house. Edith's dissatisfaction grows until one day Bruce finds her in the yard sobbing. He tempts her to go away with him. Edith resists, but finally agrees. Bruce tells her to meet him at the gate. Edith dresses in the bedroom and returning to the main room, finds Ralph there reading. After telling Ralph that she is going to the village, Edith notes that the window in the main room gives a view of the gate, where Bruce is waiting. She wheels Ralph into the bedroom where he cannot see, and when she leaves, closes the old-fashioned slat shutters on the main room window. Ralph misses his magazine and wheels into the main room to get it. He notes the closed shutters and wheels over to open them when he sees Bruce persuading Edith to go with him. Unable to speak or rise, Ralph undergoes a terrible agony of emotion that turns his hair snow white. When he sees Bruce and Edith drive away together Ralph makes another desperate effort to rise and speak. Suddenly his tongue is loosed and he calls Edith, but too late. Gradually he rises to his feet, totters to the wall, gets his rifle and hat and staggers toward the front door. At the railroad station Edith finds in her handbag the marriage certificate. This she crushes and breaking away from Bruce, she starts running back home. Ralph finds he is too weak to walk. When he opens the door he sees Edith coming back. In the revulsion of feeling he decides not to let her know what he saw and climbs into the wheel chair, thoughtlessly taking the rifle with him. Edith, coming in, feels sure that Ralph knows nothing. She goes to the bedroom, where he greets her in the same tender way. Her eyes perceive the rifle, however, and, snatching off his hat, she sees the white hair. Then she realizes that he did see all. Ralph forgives her and they start life anew with Ralph's powers of speech and walking restored.

FASHION'S TOY (Sept. 16).—Mrs. Morson, a woman of fashion, visiting the country with her cavalier servants, is attracted by the beauty of Nora Barton, and as a whim carries Nora off to the city with her. She dolls her up and takes pride in her protege until she discovers that her admirer, Morgan Hendricks, is taking more interest in Nora than herself. She drives Nora from the house and the girl walks back home. Jim Brooks wants her, but she contrasts her rural suitor with the trim elegance of the city swain. Hendricks comes to win back Nora. She is delighted until she demands a ring and he explains that he didn't exactly mean to marry her. She retreats. Hendricks seizes her. Jim hears her cries and comes to the rescue. She decides that an honorable man is more to be desired than a fashionable libertine.

THE CLOD (Special—2 parts—Sept. 18).—Pedro Mendez is a big, simple-minded Mexican farmer. He is strong, but slow and so dull mentally as to be a mere clod. With him on his farm are his wife and a crippled mother, all of the same stolid type. When Pedro is in town getting his supplies he learns of an intended revolution and is asked to join the recruits. He cannot understand what it is all about; they try to explain, but his simple mind cannot grasp the meaning. He sees the drilling, but goes on his way back to the farm saying nothing to his wife or mother. Later a troop of revolutionists coming by confiscate his horses. He would remonstrate, but the gold lace of the man in command and his authoritative manner cow the clod and he permits the theft. Later a band of guerillas raid the farm and carry off his chickens and cattle. A retreating band of rebels use his house as a barricade. He sees his home begin to crumble. Their members become fewer and they try to make him fight, but he will not; so he and his mother are sent to the attic out of the way, and his wife commanded to bind the wounds of the injured. She is killed by a bullet. The house catches fire and the rebels exit to meet the other soldiers. Pedro staggers out with his crippled mother in his arms. Outside he lays her under a tree and goes back for his wife. When he brings his dead wife out he finds that his mother has died. He looks at the two figures, at his burning home and then at the battle that is swinging about him. His dormant passion and strength are at length aroused. He gives vent to the terrible cry, and wrenches a musket from a dead soldier near him. He turns upon the battling soldiers. There is no desire for heroic action, but simply a mad animal desire to kill and appease his passion. He rushes into the melee and lays about him with the clubbed musket. As the battle passes around him they turn and shoot him with a laugh. He staggers against a support and looks about him dully. Everything has gone—wife, mother, home and all. He understands less now what it is all about than before, and slowly sinks to his knees, falls forward and rolls over on his face.

THE LOVE OF BEAUTY (Sept. 19).—Nellie Williams is in love with Jim Ambrose, a blind youth, and Jim is just as greatly in love with Nellie. While he is blind he realizes repeatedly her beauty of character in her helping the poor, her treatment of him in giving her time to read to him and take him walking. Also, he feels her great love for everything beautiful and is positive that she must be wonderfully beautiful herself. When he tells her so it hurts to the quick, but so long as he cannot see, it makes no difference. Finally a specialist decides he can give him his sight through an operation. The operation is a success and Nellie sees Jim as he gains his sight. His rapture over his mother's beauty, the beauty of the sunshine, pictures, flowers, etc., only serve to make her suffering greater, and when a rather homely housemaid enters he turns from her in such evident loathing that Nellie cannot stand it any longer and runs home, vowing never to let him see her and torture her with that same look. Jim vows Nellie must be even more beautiful than his mother and keeps asking why she hasn't been in to see him. His mother realizes the trouble and makes excuses. Later Jim meets a beautiful girl whom he thinks must be Nellie and he is disappointed when he learns it is not her. He phones her, but she refuses to allow him to call. He decides he will and goes to her house. Meanwhile Nellie has been seized upon by a group of her children friends and is deeply engrossed in reading them fairy stories when Jim is admitted. Her back is toward him and he calls her name. She gets up and faces him. He thinks it can't be his Nellie. She assures him it is and is heart broken at the look on his face and flees from the room. He seeks out the beautiful girl, and her treatment and lack of appreciation in regard to the flowers he brings her and her small kid brother startle him into a half realization of the difference between the two, the one lovely in her physical beauty, the other endowed with a beautiful character. They go out and he leaves her on the corner, while he takes a blind beggar across the street. She resents his leaving her there alone for a beggar and a quarrel results. It is the finishing touch and he goes back to Nellie to win her forgiveness. Needless to say, he is forgiven now that he understands.

HIS REWARD (Sept. 20).—Auntie, who is exceedingly homely, is always fond of butting in on the young girls' fellows and trying to steal them away. One day at the seashore, while they are all enjoying themselves, auntie appears in a bathing suit. She is compelled to go in bathing alone, because no one wants to go in with her. While she is in the water she pretends to drown, and Jim, who is sitting with the crowd on the beach, thinking she is really in the precarious situation, starts in the water to rescue her. He carries her out of the water, and, while the crowd is cheering, auntie declares that she will marry her preserver, but Jim swears that she won't. He climbs on top of the boardwalk, and throws shells at her to drive her away and at last succeeds. She decides to lay for another victim, and when she sees Paul walking along the beach she drowns for his benefit. Paul is about to make a heroic rescue, when Jim arrives on the scene and dissuades him. About this time Jack happens along and seeing auntie in the water, is about to rush in and save her, when he is stopped by Jim, Paul and the crowd, and told that this is her scheme for getting a man and that she will want to marry him. He, like the rest, is willing to let her drown. While they are all watching her antics in the water, she decides that no one is coming to rescue her, so she calmly stands up in the water which is only waist deep and walks ashore. The crowd enjoys a good laugh at auntie's expense.

HER PRESENT (Sept. 20).—Laura Bell, a winsome young miss, while spending her vacation at a fashionable summer resort, is besieged with suitors. She announces that she will marry the one who gives her the most acceptable present within a week. Jack gives her candy by the ton, Tom sends her flowers every hour in the day, but Sam goes in to the fight more extravagantly and buys jewelry. Ben, the last, but not the least (in Laura's mind), can think of nothing that will put him in the race. Time wanes and the last day has arrived; they all, with the exception of Ben, go bathing. While the boys and Laura are enjoying themselves in the ocean, Ben is walking the beach. At a lucky moment, for Ben, while the boys are talking to some other girls, Laura meets with an accident. Ben, who has been watching her, sees the predicament she is in, rushes away and soon returns with a paper of safety pins, which proves by far to be the most acceptable offering.

VITAGRAPH.

PUMPS (Sept. 15.)—Among the guests invited to Mrs. Van Weston's ball are May Carter and Maurice Lane, strangers to each other. Each of them when getting ready finds that new dancing pumps are necessary, and go out to buy new ones. Both Maurice and May get footgear that is too small and, as a result, they endure torture during the dancing. Going out into the garden they take off their shoes to relieve their feet and surprise each other in stockinged feet. They enjoy a great laugh at their mutual expense and before they part arrangements are made for further meetings.

SANDY GETS SHORTY A JOB (Sept. 15).—Sandy and Shorty drift into town on the top of a box car. They get away from the yard and Sandy pulls the ever-ready flask from his coat. Alas! It is empty. Sandy sees a gang of men at work and persuades Shorty to get a job there, and get the price of a drink. Sandy enjoys an easy time and presently attempts to come over and boss the job. The foreman comes along and forces Sandy to work alongside his partner. Neither of them work any too well so the foreman decides to show them how it should be done. When he takes off his coat Sandy notices a full whiskey flask in his pocket. He abstracts it cleverly, manages to get away from the scene with his friend, and they proceed to enjoy themselves to their hearts' content.

THEIR MUTUAL FRIEND (Sept. 16).—Disgusted by the unsanitary conditions of the flat in which she lives, Patty Gordon, a pretty young artist, writes anonymously to John Richardson, asking him to investigate the conditions of his tenements Plainly dressed, Richardson goes down to the tenements and rents an apartment for himself, so that he may see first hand whether or not there is cause for complaint. He is accompanied by his dog, Dick, a valuable thoroughbred collie, who, seeing Patty's door open, enters and makes friends with her.

Patty paints a picture of Dick, which she intends to enter in a coming competition. She ties a note to Dick's collar addressed to his master, asking his permission to exhibit the picture of his dog. Richardson sends back another note saying "yes" and, in gratitude, Patty sends back to him the dog again acting as messenger, a sketch of the animal. Richardson at once goes to call on her with his thanks and a strong friendship grows up between them.

One day when Richardson is out for a walk with Dick, a couple of thieves see the dog, which they steal while his master is in a cigar store, and afterwards sell to a dog fancier. Patty is broken-hearted when she hears of Dick's loss.

A day or two later Patty receives a check for $500, having won the prize for her painting. Going to the bank to cash it, she passes an animal store and sees Dick in there for sale. She gives her check for the dog and joyfully takes him back to his master, who takes this opportunity to tell her of his love for her. They are soon married.

COMING!
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED
4,000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

MUSIC — THE VERY LATEST — MUSIC

ORGAN ORCHESTRIONS

PLAYS TWO WAYS

AUTOMATICALLY
AND
BY HAND

MEETS EVERY REQUIREMENT

An instrument of this kind will meet the requirements of any first-class picture theatre. You can play popular, classic, sacred or dance pieces, as the instrument is only limited to the kind of music desired.

BUILT FOR ANY GIVEN SPACE

THEY REPRODUCE THE PLAYING OF THE GREATEST ORGANISTS

ELIMINATE EXPERIMENTS

When you purchase a WELTE instrument you eliminate experiments. Your value is represented in every detail, as is attested by being in the homes of the wealthiest and most representative people in the world.

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

M. WELTE & SONS, Inc., 273 Fifth Avenue, N. Y. City
ESTABLISHED 1832

NEW ENGLAND EXHIBITORS

The Famous Players Circuit of Theatres Is Now Forming. Now is the Time to Book for the Season of 1913-14. Don't Let Your Competitor Beat You to It. Get in Line While You Can.

SARAH BERNHARDT in "QUEEN ELIZABETH" Was a Wonderful SUCCESS. JAMES K. HACKETT in the "PRISONER OF ZENDA" Was Even BETTER. But the coming PRODUCTIONS OF THE FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM CO. WILL OUTRIVAL BOTH in QUALITY and DRAWING POWER.

Below are only a few of the Coming Famous Players Releases:

MRS. FISKE in "TESS OF THE D'URBERVILLES"
MARY PICKFORD in "THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE"
HENRY E. DIXIE in "CHELSEA 7750"
LILLIE LANGTRY in "HIS NEIGHBOR'S WIFE"
LAURA SAWYER in "AN HOUR BEFORE DAWN"
JAMES O'NEIL in "THE COUNT OF MONTE CRISTO"

And "100" other Features of Merit which are Ready for Bookings. Be the First to Secure an Exclusive Contract for Your City.

Full Information on Request. All Communications Answered Promptly.

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM CO. of NEW ENGLAND

Telephone, OXFORD 2580 100 BOYLSTON ST., BOSTON, MASS.

THE HINDOO CHARM (September 17).—Advised by his friends to seek a second wife so that his children. Helen and Dolores, may know a mother's care. Sir Edward Tilbury marries Phyllies, the daughter of Lady Olivia Gower, a leading social light in Calcutta.

One day, after they are married, Nattoo, an Indian fakir and "devil priest," enters the compound of Sir Edward's house and greatly frightens Phyllis and her mother with the snakes that he carries. Phyllis beats him and thrusts him off the grounds, warning him never to return again. Nattoo swears to be revenged and watches for the first opportunity to do her harm.

Phyllis, who is not very fond of children, does not take much notice of Helen and Dolores, who are greatly disappointed in their new mother, of whom they had hoped so much. One day, hurt because Phyllis has ordered them to run off and play by themselves, they go out of the compound and wander about the streets of the city, where they meet Nattoo. The fakir, who sees that something is the matter, hears that the reason for their crying is that their new mother does not love them. He gives Helen a poisonous charm, telling her to put it in her mother's tea when she is not looking, and saying that it will make her love them. Helen rushes home as fast as she can and finds Phyllis taking afternoon tea in the garden. While she is reading the paper, Helen drops the charm in her tea and sits down to await results.

Dolores, who suspects that something is wrong, meets her father on the street in his automobile. She tells him of the fakir and they at once rush home, arriving just in time to save Phyllis from taking the poison. The "charm" proves to be an effectual instrument in bringing the family together, for Phyllis realizes how much the children wish to love her and gives them her own love in return.

SUNNY; OR THE CATTLE THIEF (Sept. 18).—Sunny and Bob are very much in love and although her father refuses to give his consent to their marriage, Sunny manages to meet her lover as much as she pleases. Mr. Weston has told Bob that he will not agree to their marriage until his herd of cattle equals his own. In the spirit of fun, Sunny procures a bottle of branding acid and puts Bob's initials on an equal division of her father's herd.

Wilson, a rival for Sunny's love, seeing Bob's initials on Weston's cattle, decides to put him in wrong, hastens to the sheriff and accuses Bob. Bob, who has come up with him, overhears his accusation, and denies it. A struggle ensues, Bob's pistol is discharged and Wilson is shot in the wrist. The sheriff and his posse go in pursuit of Bob, who fled after the shooting. Sunny hears of this and decides to go to Bob's assistance.

The sheriff and his posse lay in wait for Bob, expecting him to come that way. Sunny, who has reached this point, with the same expectation, forces a way through the bushes, following the trail of the posse. She is heard by the sheriff and his men and they, supposing it to be Bob, discharge their pistols into the brush. They rush forward, hoping to arrest their man. They are greatly surprised to find Sunny. They carry her home to her father, who sets about making an investigation of the false branding of his stock. Wilson, who is standing upon the stoop outside the house accidentally discovers the empty bottle which contained the acid, under the steps, where Sunny had hidden it. She makes a clean breast of it to her father and tells him that she did it because she loves Bob; hoping to secure his consent to their marriage.

Matters explained, Mr. Weston is convinced that it would be foolish to interpose his objections longer and at once agrees to their marriage and gives them his blessing.

JOHN TOBIN'S SWEETHEART (Sept. 19).—Bidding Lizzie, his sweetheart, a fond farewell and promising ever to be true to her, John Tobin, a fat middle-aged sailor, goes off on his ship, bound for foreign lands. The ship is wrecked and John is cast up on the shores of a cannibal island in the South Seas, the sole survivor from the wreck. He is captured by the king of the tribe, Etumalivo, who decides that he has a nice fat morsel for dinner.

Just as he is about to be put into the pot, the king's daughter catches sight of him and begs his life from her father. His life is spared by the king and Tobin becomes the chief of his bodyguard.

When a hostile tribe makes war upon the island, Tobin scares the savages away by firing his revolver, which the king regards as magic. As a reward for his services the king tells him to marry the princess.

Lizzie, having waited two years for John's return, marries a retired sea captain and lives very happily with him until his death a few years later. She bethinks herself of her old lover and sets out to find him. She finds a John Tobin, another fat man, in a home for old sailors and marries him, under the impression that he is her former lover. John Tobin, number two, does not undeceive her as he does not want to lose a comfortable home.

As for John Tobin, number one, he has all he can do to look after his rapidly increasing family of blackamoors, his wife presenting them to him, first one, then two and then three at a time. With the constantly increasing cares of family and of state, he at last forgets all about Lizzie and eventually dies one of the most honored men of the cannibal tribe.

STOP
Forgetting

Some very good States are still open for our excellent productions.

They have made good everywhere, and will get money for you as well.

"THE MIRACLE"
4 REELS

"THE GANGSTERS"
4 REELS

"Torture Within Prison Walls"
4 REELS

"Last Days of Pompeii"
4 REELS

If the question of cost stood between YOU and US, we will now quote you our SACRIFICE PRICE, for territory still left open.

New York Film Co.
145 WEST 45th STREET
NEW YORK

Our New Feature
"The Contrabanders"
Will be READY NEXT WEEK

OUR WIVES (Special—2 parts—Sept. 20).—Chandler and Blair are induced to become "angels" for an opera company. Hilda Deveaux is to assume the leading role, and after they have seen Hilda they become enthusiastic backers of the show.

Atlantic City is selected for the preliminary performance. Blair and Chandler are anxious to attend. Their wives insist upon going too. "The Fleur De Lis" is a dismal failure. The two "angels" see their investment collapse. The next day they hurry to Hilda's hotel and tell her they are ruined and have decided to commit suicide, showing farewell letters. Hilda placed them on the table. Hilda's husband has employed a detective to follow her. He sees the men in her room. Mrs. Chandler and her daughter, Mrs. Blair, entering the room, find their husbands' hats, forgotten as they hid themselves. The husbands hear somebody coming and jump into Hilda's trunks. The trunks are locked and Blair and Chandler are carried to New York City.

The opera is to open that night in New York. The detective reports to Hilda's husband what he had seen at Atlantic City and also that the two men are in her trunks. The old man takes the detective to the library to await the coming of the trunks. Hilda's maid comes into the sitting room, unstraps the trunks now arrived, and releases the two men. She tells them their suicidal letters have been published. She forces them into another room when she hears approaching footsteps, followed by the appearance of Mrs. Chandler and Mrs. Blair, dressed in deep mourning.

In the meantime, the author of the opera, Prof. Simbel, comes to see Hilda, and the maid pushes him into one of the open trunks. Hilda's husband tells the two women all he has heard. The detective opens the trunks, and finds the Professor. The two "widows," convinced their husbands are dead, set up a howl. The reporter, who has come from Atlantic City, places his arms consolingly around both women. Blair and Chandler come forth and accuse their wives of duplicity. The women plead forgiveness, but their husbands refuse. Hilda and her friends enter the room. The opera has made a decided hit and is a New York success. Chandler and Blair forgive their wives and all ends happily.

ESSANAY.

WOMEN (Sept. 16).—Marguerite Emerson is slightly injured by an automobile and is brought to her home by the owner of the machine. Just as Mr. Travers is about to leave Mrs. Emerson, her husband comes in. At sight of the other man, Emerson is half crazed with jealousy, and orders Travers out. His wife tries to explain, but he will not listen to her. He finally tells her to go, too. Marguerite leaves the house, taking with her a picture of her little daughter. Dejectedly seated on a bench in the park, she is seen by a man and a woman passing in an automobile. At sight of the lonely figure, they stop the car and the woman, after winning the girl by her show of sympathy, takes her to her home. In the meantime, Emerson discovers that he has wronged his wife, and with the help of a detective frantically starts a search. They find Marguerite just in time to save the unsuspecting girl from her supposed benefactors.

SWEET REVENGE (Sept. 17).—Mr. Phil Culture provokes his friends by boasting of his remarkable strength and physical perfection. In order to get even, four of his friends decide to play a joke on him. One at a time they meet him and each man tells Mr. Culture that he looks ill. By the time the fourth man greets him with the same information, he is so worked up that he is really beginning to feel ill, and presenty has to be assisted to his home, where he is put to bed and the doctor called. His friends waylay the doctor and let him in on the job. Mr. Phil Culture "comes to," however, when he overhears his friends talking and laughing about him. His strength returns, and getting out of bed, "cleans up" the bunch.

THE DUCK RAISING INDUSTRY (Sept. 17).—An interesting educational picture, featuring one of the largest duck farms in the country, and showing the various ages of the fluffy little creatures from the time they are hatched.

THE BROKEN PAROLE (Sept. 18).—"Red" Lewis, after being arrested for robbery, is let out on parole. He manages to evade the detectives, gets out of town and starts life anew in the far West, where he marries and settles down on a ranch. For five years a detective has searched for him, and traces him to the Western town, where he finally apprehends his man. "Red" asks permission of the detective to see his wife and bid goodbye to her and his little daughter. The detective is so touched with compassion as his prisoner broken-heartedly bids his little family goodbye, that, taking the law in his own hands, he gives Lewis his freedom, and leaving the grateful and happy trio, he goes back East alone.

THE REDEEMED CLAIM (Sept. 20).—George Ingraham is refused a loan by all the money lenders in town, until one of them accidentally discovering that a vein of gold runs through Ingraham's land, offers to lend him the money on the property, with the understanding that he is to

Don't Get Excited

Does This Sound Like Action?

The Battle With the Bull

The Fatal Fall Over the Cliff

Down the Well to Liberty

The Denunciation at the Crossroads

The Flight of the Fugitive

Excitement While You Wait in

"The Voice of the Wild"

(4 Reels)

FILM RELEASES OF AMERICA

Exclusive Supply Corporation
(Distributors)
220 West 42d Street, New York City

BULLETIN No. 2

SPECIAL EXTRA EXTRA SPECIAL

THE STREETS of NEW YORK

PRODUCED BY THE

Pilot Film Corporation

will prove the greatest box office winner in years

PERFECT PHOTOGRAPHY
PERFECT ACTING PERFECT STORY

The Class of the Four Reel Thrillers

SEE
New York by Night

SEE
The $100,000 Bank Swindle

SEE
The Great Tenement Fire

AND — WELL

Wait for BULLETIN No. 3

OHIO, MICHIGAN, WISCONSIN, INDIANA and KENTUCKY EXHIBITORS.

THIS IS ALL AT YOUR SERVICE.

WRITE OR WIRE ME AT ONCE.

HERMAN J. GARFIELD
AMUSEMENT ENTERPRISES
Columbia Bldg., CLEVELAND, O.

WANTED: Two more experienced lecturers and good bookers for the above attraction. :: :: ::

take possession if the money is not paid back by 12 o'clock noon on September 30th. Mr. Orr, the young Government assayer, who had been notified of the find, meets Grace Ingraham and becomes very much interested in her. While out riding together on the morning of the 30th, the girl tells the man that her father is about to lose his property, as he is unable to pay off the mortgage due that day. When he finds that both father and daughter are ignorant of the fact that gold has been discovered on their land, he is furious, and getting the money himself, gives it to the girl, who is able to pay it off just in time to save her father's property.

THE RIGHT OF WAY (Special—2 parts—Sept. 19).—James Phillips' heart and soul are centered in the little graveyard adjoining his home, where he had laid to rest his beloved wife. Every morning and evening, with his daughter, Rosemary, he would go to the little cemetery and weed and water the little plot of ground he held so sacred. He hears one day that a railroad is to be built through Fairfield, and the road-bed is to take in the graveyard. The old man swears that while he lives a railroad will never cover that spot.

The pathfinders for the great steelway arrive, and when Phillips hears they have come, gets his shotgun and stands guard over the grave. He sees the engineers with their surveying instruments enter the burying ground and aims at them, but Rosemary, who has followed her father, prevents the shot from hitting either of the men by her quick action in pulling aside her father's arm. The next morning the surveyors find all their stakes have been pulled up during the night and at first suspect Phillips, but they learn that they have another adversary when Rosemary says: "It wasn't daddy, it was I," when they attempt to arrest him. The surveyors realizing they are up against a hard proposition, send for the supervising engineer to come and straighten up matters.

The young chief engineer, Robertson, arrives at the railroad station and is met by a friend, who tells him that he is five miles from where the surveyors are working and offers to send him out in his automobile. Robertson accepts his friend's offer. The chauffeur had been drinking heavily all day and the ride out to the railroad camp is a vivid and perilous one. Robertson saves himself by jumping over the back seat of the car just as the drunken chauffeur drives headlong over a high cliff and is dashed upon the rocks below. The engineer has fallen unconscious at the edge of the precipice and is found there by Rosemary, who calls her father and some of the neighbors to the young man's assistance. They carry him to Phillips' house, where he is taken care of by Rosemary and her father. When he regains consciousness the girl learns that she has played the good Samaritan to the man who is going to eject them. While passing through a neighbor's yard, she sees a box marked dynamite and forms a plan to beat the railroad. Taking the box, she mines the fields with the sticks, and when Robertson is ready to put his men to work, the girl tells him what she has done. The laborers refuse to stay, and no persuasion or threat on Robertson's part can induce them to return to work. He afterwards discovers that the "dynamite" sticks are only pieces of arc light carbon.

The staunch fight that father and daughter have put up appeals to the heart of the engineer, and he wires the company advising a slight detour. The next day he receives an answer saying the road is willing to make the detour. He takes the message to Phillips and Rosemary, who are rejoiced at the news.

Robertson is ready to go back, but is unwilling to leave without Rosemary, whose kindness to him while he was laid up, and the plucky spirit shown during her father's fight, have made her dear to him.

GEORGE KLEINE.

THE SIGN OF THE BLACK LILY (Cines Special—2 parts—Sept. 2.)—Mr. A. Duncan traveled in the best society and was generally a gentleman of high esteem among the fashionable element of the city. Mr. Duncan met Mr. Castlemain and the latter told him that he proposed leaving for his villa for a brief stay at the sea shore. Oddly enough, Castlemain had no sooner left his home when thieves entered and looted the place. Kitty Castlemain, returning from the depot in her motor, suffered the inconvenience of a breakdown, and was met and assisted home by Mr. Duncan, a coincidence which explained itself to Kitty some days later.

James Fox, a private detective of renown, was called and the news soon spread to the stronghold of "The Black Lily Gang" that Fox was after them. Hence, Kitty received an anonymous note, suggesting that if she would like to regain her jewels, to send someone in whom she had confidence to the Aqueduct. This note she gave to Fox, who sent his assistant to shadow the bearer of the note back to the stronghold of the gang.

A sensational motor car race followed and the important capture of one of the gang by Fox, who, with assistants, made his way to the secret meeting place of the gang, and by dint of much effort managed to find the secret spring that opened the door. Exultingly, Fox stepped into the room, the walls of which suddenly rose before him, revealing a dozen of the gang, revolvers in hands. Suddenly the very floor beneath his feet gave way and the detective was precipitated into a deep pit, which, at the pressing of a button on the part of one of the gang, began rapidly to fill with water. Meanwhile the police were active. They also discovered the secret button marked by the sign of a black lily, and, after a valiant fight, managed to overpower the criminals.

Meanwhile one of the gang had taken a message to Duncan. The messenger was shadowed by an assistant of Fox, who returned to the gang headquarters with the information that Duncan was really the leader of the band. Fox then disguised himself as one of the important lieutenants of Duncan, and, going to the Castlemain Villa, where a reception was being held, managed to convey a message to Duncan. The old man stepped into the garden and then Fox, with his evidence complete, revealed the wary old criminal as the real head of "The Black Lily Gang."

THE MYSTERIOUS MAN (Cines Special 2 parts—Sept. 9).—Professor Mortimer and his daughter Helen go to a health resort for a short stay. Before leaving, Helen says good-bye to Robert Marsh, her sweetheart, who promises to join her in the course of a few days. At Clear Springs they meet acquaintances and engage in the varied sports of a big resort. Several days later Robert Marsh, Helen's sweetheart (who is a detective) arrives for a little visit with Helen.

One night Count Desbro, who, with his wife and daughter, have been occupying rooms at the resort, is amazed to find a note upon the floor of his room threatening him with the loss of his daughter unless he places in the shrubbery at the corner of the terrace the sum of $2,000. The note was signed "The Mysterious Man." Loving his daughter above all things, the Count thought it safe to yield to the blackmailer, and that night "the mysterious man," a slender, well-built fellow, wearing a wide hat and heavy beard, crept into the terrace and slipped away with the money. In the morning Desbro related his experience to the guests, and with his wife and daughter hurriedly left the resort.

Some time later, "the mysterious man" sought out a fresh victim. Finding a stray boy on the street, "the mysterious man" gave him a threatening note to the aged and wealthy Greville. When the old gentleman received the note, he promptly telephoned the police, who set upon the track of the boy at once. Convinced of the child's innocence, the police were nonplussed. Meanwhile Greville is deliberately shot by "the mysterious man" in the grounds about the big hotel.

Robert Marsh found many happy moments alone with Helen, until finally the news of these outrages impressed him and he confided his intentions to her of running down the guilty party. Most of the guests left the resort. Marsh's intention to take up the case was accentuated by the conduct of Professor Mortimer, when he found Marsh making love to Helen.

Calling at police headquarters, Marsh closely examined the two threatening notes written to Count Desbro and Greville. His quick mind discovered a peculiarity in these notes, namely, that the writer was evidently in the habit of not crossing his "Ts." With this scant clue, Marsh took his way back to the hotel.

In the meantime Helen and her father had a stormy interview and he made her write a letter to Marsh, asking him not to attempt to see her again. To this note Mortimer himself appended a brisk line of warning against Marsh attempting to see his daughter. When Marsh received the note, despite his sorrow, he was amazed to find that Mortimer had failed to cross his "Ts." Although tortured by a terrible suspicion, Detective Marsh prepared a trap for the unknown criminal. With the chief of police and an assistant, he wrote a letter to Professor Mortimer commanding that the sum of one thousand dollars be placed on his desk that night under pain of death for size 8x10 of all 2 and 3-reel FEATURES of the following: KALEM, EDISON, THANHOUSER, LUBIN, BRONCHO, KAY-BEE, RELIANCE, PILOT, MAJESTIC, AMERICAN.

PHOTOGRAPHS FOR LOBBY DISPLAY

Set of 12, $2.00. Set of 6, $1.00.

KRAUS MFG. CO., 14 E. 17th St., N. Y.

DISTRIBUTORS WANTED IN CANADA, FAR WEST and SOUTH for our PHOTO PLAYERS POST CARDS, Association and Independent, 300 different players.

TO THE TRADE

Negatives Developed. 1c per ft.

PRINTS MADE ON

Eastman Stock.... 4½c per ft.

(In quantities over 5,000 feet)

Including Tinting and Toning

TITLES, 8c per ft.

Prompt deliveries. All work guaranteed.

Commercial Motion Pictures Co., Inc.

108 W. 101st Street. New York City

Telephone, 6724 Riverside

Changeable Illuminated

PROGRAM SIGN

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

ZENITH MFG. CO.

Box 252 Cincinnati, Ohio

MAKE MOVING PICTURES

WITH

Our Ideal Motion Picture Camera

Excellently constructed, beautifully finished, simple to operate, fitted up with a B. & L. Zeiss Tessar Lens, I. C., F 3-5, one of the best and fastest lenses in the market; holds 200 feet stock.

Send for Illustrated Catalogue

PRICE COMPLETE $75.00

Motion Picture Camera Co., Inc.

Dept. A 5 West 14th Street, New York

WE sell all standard makes of moving picture machines, parts and all accessories.

Wanted—To buy second-hand machines of all kinds.

For Sale—200 reels film, $2.50 per reel, and up. Send for list. Film service? Yes!

WICHITA FILM & SUPPLY CO., Inc.

122 North Market St. Wichita, Kansas

The House of a Thousand Features

EXCLUSIVE SUBJECTS

M. & F. Service

167 W. Washington Street

CHICAGO, ILL.

SEND FOR LIST OF NEW SUBJECTS

COMING!

THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO

THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED

4,000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

Lobby of Coleman's Theater, Westchester Ave. and 156th St., New York City.

The RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN pleases the most exacting managers

New York, Aug. 31, 1913.
Mr. G. H. Callaghan,
Am. Theatre Curtain Co.,
New York.

We are using your Radium Gold Fibre screen at our theatres.

We are very much pleased with the projection on same, the effect on the eye is pleasing and details are very strongly brought out.

We can sincerely recommend Radium Gold Fibre to theatres who are now not getting results with other projection screens.

Sincerely Yours
Coleman Bros.

AMERICAN THEATRE CURTAIN & SUPPLY CO.

Sole Manufacturers
105 N. Main Street, St. Louis, Mo.

G. H. CALLAGHAN, 1465 Broadway, New York
GEORGE BRECK, 70 Turk St., San Francisco, Cal.
DISTRIBUTORS

NOT ONLY
NEWEST
BUT
BEST!!
FIND OUT WHY—
TO-DAY!!

KINEMACOLOR COMPANY

For particulars address the office closest to you

NEW YORK
1600 Broadway

CHICAGO
538 So. Dearborn St.

CINCINNATI
132 E. Fourth Ave.

PROVIDENCE
509 Westminster St.

KINEMACOLOR PICTURES

refusal. This the trio signed "the mysterious man." When Mortimer received this note his teeth chattered with terror and his courage almost failed him. Determined to find out who had learned his secret, he arrayed himself in his wide black hat, long coat and beard, and, revolver in hand, took up his vigil behind the desk.

That night Marsh and his two assistants, hooded and masked, greeted "the mysterious man" in his own lair. A hand-to-hand fight followed, in which Marsh tore off the disguise of "the mysterious man," showing him as none other than Professor Mortimer. Behind the door Helen watched with mingled feelings. Her shriek brought Marsh to her side, thus proving that while Helen had lost a dangerous and worthless father, she had gained a better and stronger protector.

FOR HIS BROTHER'S CRIME (Cines—Special—2 parts—Sept. 23).—George and John Bronson are brothers, very poor and in love with Maude Meriden. George proposes to Maude, but is told by her mother that he cannot marry her until he has obtained a position. John secures employment as a butler in the home of Mr. Parsons. George, meantime, departs from the straight and narrow path and plunges into a life of dissipation. His money gone, burglary is the next step. One night George climbs into the window of the Parsons' home quite unaware that his brother is employed there. In cracking the safe he manages to get the big door part way open when turning, he finds himself face to face with his brother, John. He flees. John instantly draws open the safe door and at that second there is a blinding flash, followed by the appearance of Mr. Parsons and the other members of the household. Taking a camera from a hidden recess in the safe, Mr. Parsons confronts John with his photograph. On this evidence of theft, John is sent to prison. Here he passes six years of a ten-year sentence.

Meanwhile, George, having made a rich haul, pulls himself together and comes back to claim Maude Meriden. The couple are maried and are living happily. One day when John is being transferred to another prison he leaps from the train and, in his convict garb, with his hands manacled together, creeps into a blacksmith's shop. His pleadings warm the stolid opposition of the blacksmith until the latter finally cuts away the handcuffs. Some weeks later John makes his way to his brother's home, confronts him with his wife present, and denounces him as the real thief. Detectives are called and in the ensuing excitement John shoots and seriously wounds his brother, George. John is then taken away and tried for the shooting affray, as well as his escape from prison.

Realizing that death is close at hand, George writes a last letter in which he confesses the original theft and the fact that he has been masquerading as a gentleman while his brother, John, has suffered in prison. This letter he gives to his wife, which succeeds in freeing John. One year later John asks Maude to become his wife.

EDISON

JERUSALEM AND THE HOLY LAND (Sept. 16).—A beautiful study of Palestine, including street life in Jerusalem, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the gardens of Gethsemane, the Mosque of the Faithful, Bethlehem, the river Jordan, the Dead Sea, Jericho and the Sea of Galilee.

CORNWALL, THE ENGLISH RIVIERA (Sept. 17).—A picture of rare artistic merit, showing the giant cliffs of the famous Cornish coast with great waves crashing against them. Scenes are also shown aboard the bark "Alma," which was stranded on the rocks.

THE COMEDIAN'S DOWNFALL (Sept. 17).—When Bob Buster, the famous comedian, saw Semolina Brown sitting on a park bench one morning, his heart filled to the point of overflowing. For Semolina was unmistakably a militant suffragette and she was just the type Buster had been looking for. So Buster sat down on the next bench and made a careful sketch of her. It was a singularly unfortunate thing that the suffragettes should select Thursday night for their rally in Holborn Hall, because on that same night Mr. Bob Buster was scheduled to appear at the Holborn Club in his latest character sketch.

"Holborn Hall" does sound very much like "Holborn Club,' if two people happen to be in a great hurry, and that is probably the reason why Bob Buster, dressed in the costume he had carefully copied from Semolina, was enthusiastically greeted by an excited throng of women, while Semolina was clapped on the back by several jovial men and congratulated on the excellence of her makeup. Semolina realized that a mistake had been made when she saw from the stage of the Holborn Club that the entire audience was composed of men. None the less, she was by no means averse to making a few converts, and she plunged into her fervent speech. Naturally enough, the crowd, still thinking her to be Buster, roared and Semolina, infuriated, leaped from the platform and smote a stout individual in the front row, who seemed to be particularly amused. A small riot followed and Semolina was dragged from the building by two policemen.

Poor Buster rushed on the stage at Holborn Hall without realizing in the least where he was, and remarked:

"To begin with, let me say that I firmly believe a woman's place is in the home." He never exactly remembered what happened after that.

SAVED BY THE ENEMY (Special—2 parts—Sept. 19).—John Hartley and Edward Kincaid had loved Belle Varney ever since they had been schoolmates together. At the outbreak of the Civil War, Kincaid resigned from West Point, and came home to offer his services to the Southern cause. The day after he arrived, he discovered that Hartley and Belle were engaged. It is doubtful if there was ever a woman who was not attracted by the gold lace of a soldier. When Belle saw Kincaid, tall and handsome in his new uniform of Captain in the army of the Confederate States, she found a place in her heart for regret, and two or three days later broke her engagement with Hartley.

It is a woman's privilege to change her mind as often as she likes. As soon as she had broken the engagement Belle was sorry, and met the infatuated Kincaid with a coldness that astonished him and filled him with bitter resentment against his rival. Actuated partially by patriotism and partially by pique, Hartley enlisted as a private in the Southern army. Kincaid in pretended friendship, had him assigned to his own company. One night, on the eve of a battle, Kincaid taunted Hartley with his ill luck in love. From veiled innuendo he proceeded to active insults. Hartley stood it as long as he could and then knocked the other down. Belle read in the papers that Hartley had been condemned to death for striking his superior officer and instantly set out for the Confederate camp. She told General Cordon the entire story of the bad feeling between the two men, and begged him not to punish Hartley for an action which had been committed solely in defense of a woman's honor.

The General was sympathetic, but powerless to act. At his advice, Belle rode to Richmond and interviewed Jefferson Davis. On the way she was captured by Union scouts who, when they learned the purpose of her mission, released her and hastened her on her way. President Davis granted Hartley a reprieve of one week in order that he might make a thorough investigation of the case before giving a final judgment. During the week that followed, the Union scouts cut the wires between Richmond and General Gordon's division, and twisted to their own advantage all messages sent in either direction. The scouts were captured by Kincaid at the very moment the message from Davis ordering Hartley's pardon had reached them. Kincaid refused absolutely to allow them to carry out their generous plan of transmitting it to Gordon. At the risk of his life the Union operator sent the message. Hartley was freed in the nick of time and Kincaid was stripped of the uniform he had disgraced.

THE GREAT PHYSICIAN (Sept. 20).—A little smiled played about the physician's mouth as he walked down the street. The smile passed away and his face grew tenderly grave as he stopped before a house. On the door there flamed a cross in white dazzling light. Within the house a mother knelt beside her sick child. She looked up as the physicina came to her side.

"You will cure my child?" she asked eagerly.

"I will cure her," said the physician, "but she must come with me. I have a garden filled with laughing children, where white flowers bloom and thrushes sing. Let her come with me, and she shall play there happily forever."

A frightened look crossed the mother's face, and she flung her arms about the child.

"No, no," she cried, "I will not part with her."

The child moaned because of the fever and the pain, and the mother wept.

"Why must she suffer so?" sh crid. "Can no one soothe her torment?"

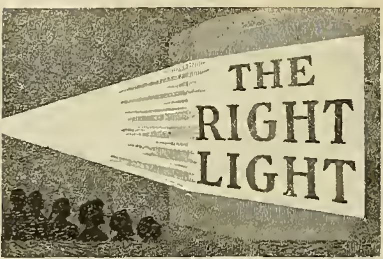
Then she sank back in affright, for a tall figure in a black cowl stood beside her.

"I will give her surcease of pain," spoke the cold voice. "In my arms she shall sleep without dreaming. Give me your child, oh mother, I am Death!"

The mother shrieked, and flung herself protectingly across the child's body.

Then suddenly the room was filled with unearthly radiance, and the mother, looking up, was afraid, for a Shepherd stood beside the bed.

"Twice have I called," said the Shepherd in a sweet deep voice, "and twice have you refused



Direct Current Arcs

can be used on an A. C. circuit—less flicker, easier focussing, less waste of light, and better pictures—with the aid of the

Westinghouse-Cooper Hewitt Rectifier Outfit

The outfit is all contained in a case less than 4 feet high and about 18 inches square. There is no moving machinery. Just connect the outfit to the A. C. lighting circuit and use a D. C. lamp in the usual way.

Send for Folder 4205.

Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co.
East Pittsburgh, Pa.
Sales Offices in 45 American Cities.

Sargent's Photoplay Service

To aid those who wish to guard against the formation of bad writing habits, or who wish to estimate their progress, I offer the following service:

Script Criticism For a fee of two dollars for each reel, I will read your manuscript and write a personal letter, pointing out the faults of plotting, technical development, manuscript preparation, etc. Sometimes I can help you to make the script salable, but I do not guarantee a sale. I do not revise manuscript; I do not typewrite it, nor do I offer it for sale. I simply write you a letter that tells you what the trouble is.

Plot Estimates If your stories do not sell and you want to know why, send me five synopses and one full script. I will criticise the script and tell you whether it is your plot or your development that is wrong. The fee for this service is $5 for the five synopses and additional plot. Synopses must not run more than 300 words each. Send a synopsis of your undeveloped plot and fee of one dollar and you will be advised as to whether it will pay you to develop the same.

Please Note My fees do not include envelopes or return postage. Send prepaid and self addressed return envelope and remit in New York exchange; not local checks. I reserve the right to return unread (with fee) any story or plot that does not warrant treatment. All scripts must be typewritten.

EPES WINTHROP SARGENT
Box 70, Madison Square Station, NEW YORK CITY

COMING!
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED
4,000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

Singing and Talking Pictures?

THE TALKAPHONE

Film exchanges and exhibitors, now is your chance to do business. You will sail easier if you can go to your exhibitors on a fifty and fifty per cent. basis with one reel commercial, two and three reel feature, and one reel of talking pictures, changed daily.

We can sell you talking picture film at ten cents per foot, records ranging from fifty cents to a dollar each; talking machine, $50.00 single; $100.00 double.

We have now ready over 800 subjects; if interested, please write for our list. Can also sell you synchronized disc film and record.

We are playing all first class theatres throughout the United States and Canada; now playing the following theatres and cities:

Worcester Theatre, Worcester, Mass.	Sept. 8 to 10
Casino Theatre, New Bedford, Mass.	Sept. 11 and 12.
Royal Theatre, New Bedford, Mass.	Sept. 13.
Auditorium, Waco, Texas	Sept. 8 to 10.
Hancock Opera House, Austin, Texas	Sept. 11 to 13.
Opera House, San Marcos, Texas	Sept. 15 and 16.
Opera House, Lockhart, Texas,	Sept. 17 and 18.
Opera House, Yoakum, Texas	Sept. 19 and 20.
Grand Opera House, San Antonio, Texas,	Sept. 21 to 23.
Opera House, Taylor, Texas	Sept. 24.
Byers Opera House, Ft. Worth, Texas	Sept. 25 to 27.
Dallas Opera House, Dallas, Texas	Sept. 29 to Oct. 1.
Opera House, Sherman, Texas	Oct. 2 to 4.
Opera House, Denison, Texas	Oct. 6 to 8.
Durant Theatre, Durant, Okla	Oct. 9 to 11.
The Overholser, Oklahoma City, Okla	Oct. 12 to 14.

DOWNTOWN AMUSEMENT COMPANY

No. 4 St. Marks Place New York City, N. Y.

---

30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR — 30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

EXHIBITORS IN Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas

Famous Players Film Company

PRESENTS

MRS. FISKE, in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles"

Produced under the direction of

Daniel Frohman and David Belasco

AMERICA'S TWO GREATEST PRODUCERS.

Mrs. Fiske in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," is the first release of the "30 Famous Features A Year" series, and gives promise to equal the success that this company achieved in its production of

Sarah Bernhardt in "Queen Elizabeth."
James K. Hackett in "The Prisoner of Zenda."

Sept. 10th, the second of the "30 Famous Features" will be released,
Mary Pickford in "IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE."

Wide-awake exhibitors will arrange to secure this exclusive Service if they want to give their patrons the best that filmdom produces. Indicate your interest and we will send full information.

Start now by wiring for the Service so that you are one of the first to show Mrs. Fiske in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles."

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM SERVICE

Bert Barnett, Gen. Manager

Sole Distributors for Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas.
555 TEMPLE COURT BUILDING, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR — 30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

THE · COPENHAGEN · FILM · COMPANY · LTD.

CFC

Trade Mark

COMING SOON!

FILMS

All Europe Contracted

United States and Canada Open for Contracts

The Copenhagen Film Company, Ltd.

712 Vanderbilt Bldg., New York

me. This time I will not be gainsaid. Weep not, oh mother, I, who am Life and Death, am also Immortality."

Then he lifted the child in his arms and carried her away, although the mother's arms still held the little shape on the bad, now growing so cold.

THE ISLAND OF PERVERSITY (Sept. 15).—Stella Dale has two lovers—Harry Brigham, an artist, is her favorite and the other, a fellow called Smith, is the choice of her father. Whenever Mr. Dale finds Stella and the artist alone he tries to break up the party. On one occasion when he turns up with Smith and finds the girl posing for Harry, he sends her away with Smith and intimates to the artist that Smith is his choice.

Once he intercepts a letter of Harry's and finds it is to make an engagement for a boating party. He gets Smith and they plan that instead Harry and Stella the governess shall go. Smith, a poor oarsman, catches a crab and after drying for some time they get stranded on an island with no means of getting back. The governess, despite Smith's protests, takes the whiskey bottle and putting a message in it, throws it out to sea. Later the bottle is found by Harry, and, catching sight of the empty boat, he gets a rescue party together.

In the meantime, the castaways have rigged up a tent of the steamer rugs and are without provisions, but a few clams which Stella gets and which Smith cannot eat. Smith on the whole makes himself rather disagreeable and Stella is wishing some-one would come and rescue them. Smith and the governess become very friendly and poor Stella is left almost entirely out in the cold. She is almost in despair when she sees a speck on the sea. She watches it very closely and to her delight it comes nearer and as it does, takes the form of a rowboat. Soon she recognizes her father and then Harry. At last they have arrived within hailing distance and in a few moments their keel grounds on the sand. The father jumps out and is rejoiced to see his daughter safe and sound, then to his amazement Smith explains that the attraction for him is in the direction of the governess. Harry and Mr. Dale come to an understanding and with Stella in his arms, the artist is firmly convinced that "All's well that ends well."

BIOGRAPH.

DAN GREEGAN'S GHOST (Sept. 15).—Dan fired the Dago, the true Irish boss he was. But Italian blood was up and the tricky Dago stole a bomb into Greegan's house. Then he waited for the boom that was to make good Irish stew. A pop from a champagne bottle sent him away a-gloating, but oh me, oh my, Dan Greegan's ghost in the morning!

HIS HOODOO (Sept. 15).—The floor-walker was some masher, but like all over-ripe fruit, there was the last crush. There he waited on the north corner of Main Street for a lady with a lily to pass. They were numerous that day and so were their beaux. That was where the masher got mashed.

THE STOLEN TREATY (Sept. 18).—On the day of the meeting which should settle the controversy regarding the Panama Canal, the Japanese Embassy commissioned Olga to obtain a copy of the agreement. The young Secretary to the Secretary of State became her dupe, but the detective succeeded in recovering the stolen treaty by a clever unwinding of threads taking thereby a desperate and thrilling chance.

FOR THE SON OF THE HOUSE (Sept. 20).—In the home of ease and refinement a new life opens to the girl. She no longer is obliged to resist the sordid way of poverty and sin. The woman's indulged son, overcome by his weakness and debt, robs his mother. It is then the girl saves the home from disgrace.

KALEM.

TROOPER BILLY (Special—2 parts—Sept. 17).—Kate Graham and her twin brother, "Trooper Billy," as he is affectionately called, are the guests of Col. Blake at a Western army post. Lieut. Blake, the Colonel's son, is in love with Kate.

Sun Jewel is the mother of Sunrise Beek, a half-breed. A refusal by the colonel to recognize her son as his own causes her to inform the half-breed of his parentage. The latter demands recognition by his father, but is ordered off the post.

Beek secures vengeance by slaying "Trooper Billy," knowing the colonel loves the boy as his own. Stetlow, scout, sent out to find Billy, returns with the boy's hat. Kate is heartbroken and Stetlow thrusts his advances upon her, to be driven from the room by Lieut. Blake, who arrives in time to witness the incident.

Beek and Stetlow plan to deliver the fort into the hands of the Indians. A detachment sent to look for "Trooper Billy" is divided by a ruse, one-half of it turning back toward the post. A plot to wipe out Lieut. Blake's detachment is overheard by Kate, who is disguised in her twin brother's clothes.

By heroic work, Kate rescues Lieut. Blake and his men and all return to the post in time to save it from falling into the hands of the Indians. Beek, believing that Stetlow has betrayed him, makes his way into the fort, where he finds his man in the colonel's room. A terrific knife encounter takes place, which ends in the death of both men. Stetlow, however, lives long enough to receive Kate's forgiveness. Kate's bravery is lustily cheered by the soldiers.

THE BURGLAR AND THE BABY (Sept. 19).—Driven to desperation by his wife's nagging, Mr. Nag, who ordinarily is as meek as any lamb, rebels, and is ordered to leave the house. He does, and when offered the opportunity to follow the burglar's trade, jumps at it.

Habit forces him to pick up a squalling baby in the first house he enters and this brings about the arrest of himself and confederate. The latter pry the bars of their cell apart, crawl out, and then do the same for Neg. He crawls out of the cell, stretches himself—and crawls back again. Curling himself on his cot he shakes his head gleefully, "No, Boys," says he "Home was never like this. I stay here!"

ONE BEST BET (Sept. 19).—Bud has a tip on a "sure thing" at the track and steals the money his wife has hidden under the mattress. He places the money in his pocket, but before he gets out of bed the following morning his wife sends the suit to the cleaner's. When Bud finds that the money has gone with it, he hastens to recover the suit.

He finds the tailor shop closed, however, and tries to break in. He is arrested and about to be taken to jail, when the tailor appears and Bud gets his money—but too late to bet. He returns home and replaces the stolen money. And just in time, because his wife, suspecting that he has stolen it, looks in the hiding-place. Finding the money in the accustomed place she repents of her "unjust" suspicions and gives it all to Bud. To cap the climax, Bud learns that his "sure thing" has lost.

THE BREATH OF SCANDAL (Sept. 20).—Nowhere on earth will gossip spread on speedier wings than in a country village. Consequently, when Mary Lane, the school mistress, affianced to the minister, is seen carrying a child in her arms concerning which she will tell nothing, her character is soon torn to tatters. And foremost among her traducers are Mrs. Wolf, the village gossip, and her son Joe, both pillars of the church.

But the child is the daughter of Sarah, a village girl whom Mary prevented from putting an end to her misery. Mary undertakes to care for the unfortunate girl's child until the mother can make arrangements to leave the village.

Mary's silence concerning the child, even when questioned by her sweetheart, causes the village to ostracize her, and she finds that the school door has been closed to her. Her troubles are capped by an order to leave the house where she has been boarding.

Learning of the trouble her good angel has brought upon herself, Sarah denounces Joe Wolf. The villagers urge Mary to resume her position as schoolmistress, but the minister announces that he has a better one for her—that of his wife.

RETRIBUTION (Sept. 15).—Imogene is a flirt, but really loves Jack, and they become engaged. While visiting a relative she meets Bob, a sturdy country youth. Her propensity for flirting comes to the surface and Bob becomes madly infatuated. It is his first great love and he fairly worships the woman. This is a new experience for Imogene and although it appeals to her vanity, she fears that the youth will commit some mad act and promises to marry him rather than undeceive him.

Imogene returns home. The weeks pass and Bob receives no answer to his letters. He goes to the city in search of his sweetheart and finds her in Jack's arms. The boy loses his head and shoots Jack. He makes no attempt to escape and is sentenced to five years' imprisonment, while Jack, who has recovered, marries Imogene.

Five years later Imogene is a widow, and again starts on her mad career of breaking hearts. She meets Count De Launay and falls in love with him. They are married. After the ceremony they repair to their hotel. To Imogene's surprise, her husband steps into an adjoining room. The vain woman sits down in front of the dressing table and admires herself in the mirror. Suddenly her husband's reflection appears in the mirror before her: not Count De Launay, with his distinguished "Imperial," but Bob, the ex-convict, in his prison apparel. She falls at his feet without a cry as he gazes sternly upon her.

LAEMMLE LUCK

Use Your Brains!

Just because you may never have shown Universal films in YOUR theatre is no sign that they are not the best in the world. And I claim they ARE the best, barring none. Come! Sit in the projection room of any of my offices, see the newest Universal films (one, two and three reelers) and have your eyes opened to the fact that you are actually showing your patrons something not half so superfine as that Universal program! Don't be a hide-bound slave of habit. Use your BRAINS!

CARL LAEMMLE, President

The Laemmle Film Service

204 West Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
252-A Hennepin Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.
1312 Farnum Street, Omaha, Neb.
Hubbell Building, Des Moines, Iowa

Agents for All Makes of Machines and Accessories

"The Biggest and Best Film Renter in the World"

MUSIC
For Moving Pictures

Violin, Flute, Clarinet, Cornet and Drum parts have been added to the popular "Orpheum Collection" of piano music. Practical for piano alone or any number of above instruments with piano.

Prices for First Series (No. 1)

Piano 58 cts. Violin 40 cts. Flute 35 cts. Clarinet 35 cts. Cornet 35 cts. Drums 30 cts. Other parts are in preparation. Send for free sample page.

The second series (No. 2.), is same instrumentation and price as No. 1. No. 3 is ready for piano alone; other parts in preparation. (This is dramatic and descriptive stuff; not dance music.) Now being used in every part of the English speaking world.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1501 SEDGWICK ST. CHICAGO, ILL.

COMING!
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED
4000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

No More Rewinding

STATE RIGHT MEN

Here Is Your Chance!

The DELANEY Non-Rewinding Film Reel

Does away with rewinding; you can figure out for yourself what this means to the business. Can be attached in a few minutes to any make of projector without costly changes. Come and SEE. The first lot will be ready in November. For state and territorial rights address

Delaney Specialty Manufacturing Co.

Chamber of Commerce Building, Detroit

THE exhibitor who buys a screen that has Mirroroide plainly stamped thereon, buys the best projection surface the world affords. It's quality from the cloth up. (Canvas.) This canvas is metalized by automatic machinery, by a process entirely our own. Absolutely water-proof it is naturally adaptable to any climatic conditions. It is sold under a positive five-year guarantee not to crack, peel, or change in color. In addition it carries the endorsement of thousands of satisfied exhibitors, the world over. Common sense tells you that to get these qualities at a moderate price absolutely requires long experience, efficient organization, resources, and equipment.

MIRROROIDE is the original. The only rough or matte metalized projection surface on the market. It gives you perfect projection close up, or at any angle, free from haze, glare, or eye strain, and that out-of-focus effect so noticeable in all other metallic screens. It also gives you projection as clear as a crystal, with a net saving of one-third in your juice bill, still over 100% brighter than you have heretofore obtained.

"Your eyes can't deceive you." Get our large free samples. Test any way you desire—Write us today. It will not obligate you.

THE J. H. GENTER CO., Inc.

NEWBURGH, N. Y.

The largest manufacturers of metalized cloth and metalized glass bronzes in the world. Patents pending. Metalized glass bronzes ready to use. Stand 2200 degrees Fahrenheit. For decorating your theatres, radiators, etc., use our bronzes. 20 different colors. Sample postpaid, one-half pint $1.00.

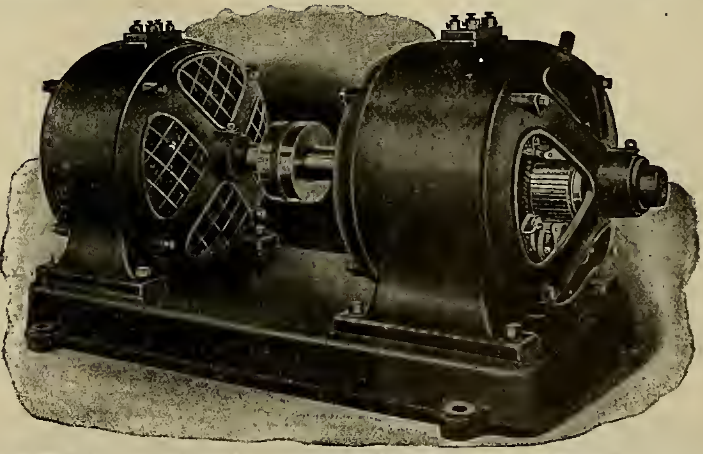
THIS IS SO GOOD YOU OUGHT TO READ IT AGAIN!!!

A Word from HALLBERG, the ECONOMIZER MAN

I'm not much on a "hot air" spiel,
I only want to have you feel
It's worth your while to try me out
And see what I can bring about
By way of service in my line
Which tens of scores call superfine.
And you would do so, happily,
If I knew you and you knew me.

Whate'er I advertise, I do.
I don't claim what I can't put through.
I don't say I am "just as good,"
I take the lead by "sawing wood."
I carry stock and spend the "dough,"
Put out a line none else can show;
The truth of which you sure would see
If I knew you and you knew me.

So put all doubting thoughts aside,
Get in my wagon—take a ride;
And putting faith in what I say,
Just let me drive you New York way
And show you all that's up to snuff;
Just take a look, boys, that's enough
To make you strong for Hallberg stuff,
Then I'll know you and you'll know me.



Hallberg A.C. to D.C. Adjustable from 25 to 60 Amp., D.C.

Factory Selling Headquarters for POWERS, SIMPLEX, MOTIOGRAPH and EDISON MACHINES, "HALLBERG" STANDARD A. C. ECONOMIZERS, "HALLBERG" D. C. ECONOMIZERS, MERCURY ARC RECTIFIERS, MOVING PICTURE MACHINE and FLAME ARC CARBONS. I EQUIP THEATRES COMPLETELY

Free Circulars on all makes of M. P. Machines, but Hallberg's Big Catalogue, 100 Pages, Costs you 25c. by mail.

J. H. HALLBERG. 36 E. 23rd Street. New York

PATHEPLAY.

PATHE'S WEEKLY, NO. 47, 1913 (Sept. 4).—New York, N. Y.—New York defeats Cincinnati by a score of 2 to 1 after a brilliant pitching duel between Demaree of the Giants and Ames, the ex-Giant.

Asbury Park, N. J.—Six hundred and fifty youngsters are marshalled in the annual baby parade witnessed by 75,000 admirers, including Governor Fielder, of New Jersey.

Keokuk, Iowa—Governor Dunne, of Illinois, and Governor Clarke, of Iowa, attend the celebration inaugurating the formal opening of the Keokuk dam, which will supply water power to Iowa, Illinois and Missouri.

London, England—An attempt to arrest Sylvia Pankhurst while she is addressing a crowd of suffragettes precipitates a riot between women and police.

New York, N. Y.—The value of dogs as an aid to the police is proven by dogs themselves in a public demonstration of their abilities held in Van Cortlandt Park under the auspices of the New York Sun.

Red Bank, N. J.—The entries of society leaders compete for the prizes awarded for hunting horses at the Monmouth's County Fair.

Franklin, N. H.—The farm on which Daniel Webster, the famous orator, was born, is restored to first class condition and the celebration in honor of the event is opened by Governor Felker, of New Hampshire.

Sherbrooke, Quebec—This little town is stirred as never before by Harry K. Thaw's arrest and detention here after his escape from Matteawan Asylum to which he was confined following his acquittal of slaying Stanford White.

Johannesburg, South Africa—The burning of the railway terminal is laid at the door of the striking miners and the mobs that gather in the streets are charged by the police and many of the strikers are mortally injured.

MRS. MORTON'S BIRTHDAY (Sept. 16).—The party in celebration of the birthday of Mrs. Morton brought the leading lights of the social world to the Mortons' mansion, and the young matron enjoyed the day immensely, little knowing the grief that was to follow. Her husband lost his fortune when the bottom fell out of the cotton market, but he said nothing to her. That night he planned to recuperate his loss with a robbery ingeniously devised, but the hand of fate intervened and he paid the penalty for his crime.

THE MERRILL MURDER MYSTERY (Sept. 17).—The evidence pointed clearly to Dan Merrill as the murderer of his uncle, at least the circumstantial evidence did. But Dan's personal friend, Detective Byrnes, could not believe him guilty. Byrnes set to work to clear the boy and, starting with the finding of a tiny diamond chip, he succeeded in fastening the crime where it belonged, after some strikingly novel adventures.

TOAD TRAITS (Sept. 18).—A comprehensive study of the toad family is conducted in this film which was made under the direction of Dr. Ditmars, the curator of reptiles in the New York Zoo. Dr. Ditmars is an authority on the subject which is herein presented and for that reason there can be no question of the reliability of the information dispensed. The film shows and explains the characteristics of the entire species, the spade foot toad, the poisonous toads, the African water toad and others too numerous to catalog, but of surprising interest to every one.

HOT SPRINGS AND GEYSERS OF NEW ZEALAND (Sept. 18).—New Zealand is noted, among other things, for the number of its geysers and hot springs. Many of them are now inactive the proof of their destructive power upon vegetation is everywhere visible. The film shows this and points out a peculiar though familiar sight, a boiling hot spring within three feet of a stream of cold water. The hot water is used by the women for washing clothes and the cold water for the rinsing process. Another interesting view is that of Pigeon rock geyser, which shoots every twelve minutes with absolute regularity.

HER BRAVE RESCUER (Sept. 20).—Senor Luis Soto loved Juanita Acosta ardently until he met Mabel Berry, a young American girl, whose life he saved when her horse ran away. Straightway Luis forgot Juanita. But Juanita was not so easily to be put aside. Her heart raged and her temper rose at the insult and she determined to be avenged. One bright day she found her brave lover assisting the beautiful Mabel across a wooden bridge. Juanita demanded of Mabel the reason for the theft of her lover. Luis interposed an objection to the question and Juanita promptly pushed him overboard. That was quite enough for Mabel and she left the scene never to return. Juanita kept Luis in the water and would not let him land until he promised never to offend again.

THE ACCIDENTAL SHOT (Sept 11).—John Flagg, a revenue officer, fell in love with Rose Watkins the moment he saw her, but when his duty told him to arrest Rose's mother he did not let love interfere, neither did Rose let love interfere when duty told her to protect her mother. By clever maneuvering the girl got Flagg's gun away from him, and when he persisted in arresting Mrs. Watkins, Rose shot him. Rose's mother went to jail all right, but there Flagg's duty ended and rather than punish the girl he loved for her loyalty to her mother, Flagg freed her of all responsibility with the simple declaration to the police that he was wounded by an accidental shot.

YOUNG HEARTS AND OLD (Sept. 12).—Horace Willoughby marries Julia Sinnett, a girl of lower station in life, which greatly vexes Horace's uncle and guardian. Uncle Josh refuses to see Horace and his bride when they call, but Mrs. Watson, Uncle Josh's housekeeper, has an idea. The idea is put into practice and as a result, Julia, the bride, melts the heart of old Uncle Josh and he finally admits the wisdom of his nephew's choice.

MELIES.

CAPTURED BY ABORIGINALS (Sept. 11).—A party of English explorers make their way into the uncivilized region of northern Queensland, Australia, and pitch camp. Jennings, one of the number, taking a little walk from the camp, is surprised by a tribe of aboriginal black fellows, who at first mean to kill and eat him, but beholding his white skin—the first white man they had ever seen—believe he is a god and receive him in honor. They are more convinced of his deity when he obtains fire from a match, whereas their method is antiquated and long.

The black fellows amuse Jennings with a "Corroboree," a native savage dance, after which he wishes to make his departure, but the aboriginals hold him a prisoner of honor. Next morning all go hunting, the aboriginals with their spears, Jennings with his gun. The report of his gun so scared them that they flee. The Englishman attempts escape, but is tracked by the skilled black fellows and brought back to the chief.

The chief, taking Jennings aside, surprises him by talking English, and explaining that he once lived among the white men, but has concealed the fact from his fellows, wishing them to preserve their primitive happiness. He offers to aid Jennings escape if he promises to leave the land forever and take his white friends with him. The chief gives his fellows "pituri," the opium of built to order by letter, drawings or samples in small or large quantities. Machines, stars, cams, sprockets, etc.

Moving Picture Apparatus
LAVEZZI MACHINE WORKS
2940 Herndon St. Chicago

THE CATALOGUE OF
BRUSH ELECTRIC LIGHTING SETS
contains much that is valuable about electric lighting in general, and moving picture work in particular. Send for it.
THE CHAS. A. STRELINGER CO.
BOX MP-2, DETROIT, MICH., U. S. A.

Junior Professional Camera
and Film Making Outfit, simplest method, none better. World's greatest productions made with this camera. Expert advice and guarantee. Tripods, Tilts, Printers, Perforators, Raw Film, Lenses. Developing done, whole building to the business Write for catalogue.
Eberhard Schneider, 219 Second Ave., N. Y.

"Worth many times the price."
"Would not attempt to run our house without it."
"Cannot afford to miss a single number."
"Read it from cover to cover each week, advertisements and all."
Above are a few extracts from recent letters of subscribers to the
Moving Picture World
It gives the biggest value to its readers. Send your yearly subscriptions direct and have it mailed to your address every week for less than six cents per copy. Domestic, $3.00. Canada, $3.50. Foreign, $4.00.
Moving Picture World
17 Madison Avenue, New York City

AUTHORIZED DISTRIBUTORS FOR POWERS, MOTIOGRAPH, SIMPLEX, EDISON AND STANDARD MACHINES
Picture Theatre Equipment Co.
THE BIGGEST MOTION PICTURE SUPPLY HOUSE IN AMERICA
21 East 14th Street, New York City
CONDENSERS—BOOTHS—TICKET CHOPPERS—REELS—REEL CASES—BOOTH CABINETS.
WE EQUIP MOTION PICTURE THEATRES COMPLETE

COMING!
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED
4,000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

Helen Gardner

in

"A Princess of Bagdad"

An Original Arabian Nights' Story. Written and Directed by Charles L. Gaskill.
Copyrighted, 1913, by Helen Gardner.

Projecting Length, 130 Minutes. Divided Into Three Parts and Nine Chapters. The Artistic and Money-Making Successor to "Cleopatra." Brilliant Photography. Absorbing Story. Beautiful Settings. Gorgeous Costumes. Played by Artists.
State Rights Only. Wire or Write.

Produced in Miss Gardner's Studio at Tappan-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., U. S. A.

Sole Selling Agents—CHAS. L. FULLER DISTRIBUTING CO., 472 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y., U. S. A.

World's Largest Mfrs. WURLITZER Established 1856

A Wurlitzer PianOrchestra in Healy Theater, Fort Worth, Tex.

Write for 32-page booklet, showing

Wurlitzer Automatic Musical Instruments

in the leading picture theatres of the country.

The Wurlitzer Instruments furnish better music than musicians and reduce expenses. 50 different styles; time payments; big catalog free. If you can't call, write to our nearest branch.

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Company

CINCINNATI 117-121 E. 4th
NEW YORK 25-27 W. 32d
CHICAGO 329-331 S. Wabash
PHILADELPHIA 1835 Chestnut
ST. LOUIS 912 Pine St.
CLEVELAND 800 Huron Rd.
BUFFALO 701 Main
LOUISVILLE 426 W. Greene
COLUMBUS, O. 57 E. Main

MOVING PICTURE THEATRE
Mailing Lists For Sale

17,522, United States and Canada, $40.00, or $3.50 per thousand for such States as you want.

Also

648	Film Echanges, U. S.,	$3.50
49	Manufacturers & Studios, U. S.,	1.00
34	Moving Picture Machine Mfrs. & Dealers,	1.00
231	Film Exchanges, Foreign Countries,	3.00
520	Moving Picture Theatres, Foreign Countries,	3.00

This is the largest and most complete and correct list of Moving Picture Theatres to be had any place in United States; also Film Exchanges. This list has just been corrected up with all 1913 City Directories and Telephone Books in United States; also the Exhibitors at the recent exhibition at New York, together with several Film Exchange Companies' Mailing Lists, all consolidated into this, duplicates thrown out, names thrown out that have come back within a recent mailing and new names added to.

We also furnish all other classes of Mailing Lists covering United States and Foreign Countries.

Ask for our "SILENT SALESMAN" No. 61, for September.

Send check with order.

Trade Circular Addressing Co.

166 West Adams Street, Chicago
Established 1880

Unaphone and Octaphone

two brand new away-from-the-ordinary

MUSICAL NOVELTY INSTRUMENTS

Made especially to meet the requirements of the motion picture theatre. Operated by electricity—played from keyboard, like piano. These instruments are entirely different from any others on the market, Mr. Exhibitor. They possess a wonderfully rich and sweet tone, and will institute enthusiasm in your audience.

Write for descriptive Catalogue "F"

J. C. DEAGAN 1770 Berteau Avenue Chicago, Ill.

the Australia aboriginal and soon they sink into profound slumber. He then carries the white man on his shoulders so as to leave no tracks and taking him to his camp in safety returns while his men still sleep. So that when they awake and can find no trace of the stranger, they raise their arms to the skies, believing he has returned there.

SELIG.

THE TOILS OF DECEPTION (Sept. 16).—Tom Buckley is inclined to give his vain and pretty wife everything that she desires, but stocks are down and he is worried. His wife observes a necklace of peculiar design that was recently given to a friend and covets it mightily. Her husband, who has the ticker-tape about his neck, complains that present pressure is too great to admit of further family burdens in the form of a necklace. The young wife notices in the window of a jewelry shop (where they have an account) a necklace, the exact counterpart of the one she admires so ardently. She goes in, takes the necklace home on approval, thinking that merely viewing the bauble at home will satisfy her longings, and she can return it before the bill reaches her husband. The jeweler is not acquainted with her entire design, but readily assents and gives up the necklace. She has other jewels at home, notably a baby, and through one of those curious chances the childish fingers clutch the necklace, and it is carried away in the folds of its garment. The mother goes to look for the necklace, with the view of returning it to the jewelers. She finds, to her dismay, that it has disappeared. She gives herself over to frantic search and then unavailing tears. At this juncture her friend comes in wearing the counterpart of the necklace, which arouses her tears more fiercely than ever. The sympathetic friend finally learns her secret, insists upon loaning her necklace to replace the one she has lost, until it can be found, or her husband mollified. After considerable hesitancy she accepts the loan, and returns the necklace to the jeweler. The nurse, who has been visiting with the big policeman in the park, discovers the necklace in the baby carriage, and rushes home with it. At the same time father comes in from the stock exchange, much relieved by a rise in the market. So all goes well, happiness is restored, and vanity is gratified.

THE JEWELED SLIPPERS (Special—2 parts—Sept. 1).—The detective agency with which John Street, a detective, is connected learns that a pair of jeweled slippers worth $50,000 is to be smuggled into the country. Street is detailed to track the smugglers. When Nance Rutherford is asked by Webb, her fiancee, to wear a certain pair of black slippers on landing, the full purport of the Marconigram her father received is made apparent to her. While the slippers do not show any trace of being anything but plain black slippers, they nevertheless are concealing a filigree of diamonds under their outer covering. Webb finds it necessary to ask his fiancee to do this when Eulalie, a Spanish dancing teacher, has refused him. Street is at the pier to meet the Rutherfords, and he cautions Nance to phone Webb to come tonight to get the slippers. At the home of the Rutherfords Street rips off the outer covering of the slippers and displays the diamonds. He requests Nance to stand with the slippers on where Webb will see her upon entering, while he and Ruthferford retreat to a secluded spot. Webb reprimands her for her apparent carelessness and is about to take the slippers when he is captured by Webb and bound. The shock unnerves Nance. She decides not to take her dancing lessons from Eulalie, with whom she had made an appointment, and calls her on the wire. While the back of Nance is turned, the slippers, which had been placed on her dresser, attract the attention of an organ grinder's monkey, who steals one of them. The astonished organ grinder is examining the slipper when it is snatched from him by Eulalie, who has just arrived.

Smith is informed that one of the slippers has been stolen, and, observing the organ grinder, comes to the conclusion that the monkey has stolen it. Just as Street comes out of the house the organ grinder is knocked down by Rutherford's machine and his organ smashed. Rutherford offers the Italian "hush" money, but the latter refuses and tells him that he had better go to the padrone, the owner of the instrument, to settle. Rutherford takes him in his auto to the den of the padrone. Street hails a taxicab and goes after the Italian.

In the meantime, Duval, the leader of the smuggling gang, learns from Eulalie that Webb is bound. The husband of Eulalie, Goaquin, goes to the residence of the Rutherfords in the guise of a customs officer. In this attire he manages to secure the other slipper and also secures permission from Nance to take Webb away. At the padrone's den, the Italian organ grinder describes Eulalie to Street as being the person who snatched the slipper out of his hand. He immediately goes to the Rutherfords' home, where he learns all that transpired. Perceiving the whole state of affairs, Street hurries with aid to the den of the smugglers and captures all of them.

Picture Theaters Projected.

Rockford, Ill.—A stock company has been organized here for the purpose of erecting a moving picture theater to have a seating capacity for 800 persons. F. Sterling is chairman of the building committee.

Chicago, Ill.—B. Ackerman, 5547 Madison avenue, is planning to erect a one and two-story theater, 120 by 40 feet, to cost $30,000.

Chicago, Ill.—D. Kemp is planning to remodel his theater building.

Chicago, Ill.—Henry Myers is planning to erect a large hippodrome with a seating capacity of 2,700 persons and cost $200,000. The structure will measure 125 by 250 feet, two-story; contain six stores, five apartments and a restaurant. The dimensions of the stage will be 86 by 40 feet. It will be known as the Royal.

Greencastle, Pa.—Jacob Shank has been awarded the contract to erect a two-story theater and skating rink 45 by 100 feet, to cost $6,5000, for George Hellman.

Moberly, Mo.—E. Fritch, will build a two-story theater, 57 by 125 feet, to cost $25,000.

Newark, N. J.—Toplits and Street, Philadelphia, Pa., have been awarded the contract for the erection and steel work of the new seven-story $300,000 Keith-Proctor office building and theater to be erected on Market street. The structure was planned and designed by Arland W. Johnson, 105 West 40th street, New York City.

Troy, N. Y.—Frank Acker, Central near Rock avenue, has been awarded the contract for the erection of a one-story moving picture theater, 23 by 100 feet, to cost $3,000, for D. H. Calhoun, 18 Ford avenue.

Coining, N. Y.—Fay White, Bank Building, has let the contract for the erection of a one-story theater and store building, to contain three stores, 63 by 70 feet, to cost $15,000.

Plainview, Texas.—Grans & Korder have prepared plans for a moving picture theater for J. W. Grans. Mr. Donner is the lessee.

Muscatine, Ia.—E. M. Heule, is planning to build a three-story moving picture theater, 50 by 100 feet and to have a seating capacity of 700.

Wilmar, Minn.—A stock company has been formed here of leading citizens for the purpose of erecting a two-story theater with balcony, 60 by 125 feet, to cost $25,000. It is to have a seating capacity of 1,200. The project is held in abeyance for the time being.

Clinton, Wis.—This city is planning to erect, in the near future, a two-story auditorium and city hall, 52 by 110 feet.

Troy, N. Y.—Toplits & Street, Philadelphia, Pa., have been awarded the contract for the erection of a new theater to be built by Keith & Proctor in this city, to cost $200,000.

10
10
$10
$5
$5
$10
$5

Don't Throw Money Away
DON'T EXPERIMENT
TRADE YOUR OLD PICTURE MAchine for new, modern, up-to-date outfit by paying a little difference. We carry in stock all makes of machines, also have a few second-hand and rebuilt machines for sale cheap. Write us—
Stelzer Brothers
417 Broadway - Lincoln, Ill.

THE SIMPSON SOLAR SCREEN
The only Metallic Screen without seams, patented. Buy the real thing. Beware of imitations
ALFRED L. SIMPSON, Inc.
No. 113 W. 132nd St., N. Y. City

Stop the Leakage
Use Corcoran Tanks.
No. 6 price list is a money saver.
A. J. CORCORAN, INC.
11¼ John Street New York City

"FOTOPLAYER"
the instrument that supplies
MUSIC FOR THE PICTURES
The American Photo Player Sales Co.
130 Kearny St., San Francisco. Cal.

We buy and sell Second Hand Films and Moving Picture Machines
WESTERN FILM BROKERS
538 S. Dearborn Street Chicago, Ill.

THE CATTLEMAN'S DAUGHTER

Make Your Lobby Display Attractive
There is nothing more fascinating to the public than a bright brass frame to display your photos or posters.
We make Lobby and Theatre Fixtures and Brass Rails of every description.
Don't fail to visit our complete Show Rooms at
101 - 103 FOURTH AVE., NEW YORK, N. Y.
Write for Catalog
Established 1882.
The Newman Mfg. Co.
715–721 Sycamore St.
Cincinnati, Ohio

I Can Show You How to Save Money
just the same as I am thousands of exhibitors.
Did you ever hear of my Theatre Record Ledger System?
For $2.50 (plus 20c mailing) I will send you the only complete ledger and bookkeeping system ever published—a system that you can separate every expense—also record your receipts—sent to you guaranteed. "A better system than you ever had or your money back."
Send me your order today.
J. V. BRYSON, Pres.
THEATRE RECORD PUB. CO.
252 Hennepin Avenue MINNEAPOLIS

COMING!
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED
4,000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

Greatest of all Popular-Price Vaudeville Attractions

BRISTOL'S EQUINE WONDERS

THE BIGGEST AND BEST HORSE, PONY AND MULE EXHIBITION IN THE WORLD

15 --- BEAUTIFUL COLLEGE EDUCATED ANIMALS --- 15

ELEGANT STAGE EQUIPMENT AND PARAPHERNALIA. SPECIAL CAR REQUIRED. FIVE PEOPLE TRAVEL WITH THE ORGANIZATION

TWELVE MILITARY PONIES, groomed and caparisoned to the highest degree of perfection, performing a series of evolutions and maneuvers that are a revelation in animal training. The most beautiful exhibition of the kind ever presented. An equine phalanx par excellence.

"RUBY," the Funniest of All Trick Mules. Not the ordinary, vicious, "unridable" type, but a real comedienne. Her funny antics bring roars of laughter from young and old. She dearly loves a romp with the children at the daily receptions after the matinees. Her rocking chair reposes are unique.

"DIAMOND," the trotting-bred contortion horse, whose demonstration of animal intelligence and feats of agility surpass the imagination.

For over twenty years Professor WILLIAM BRISTOL has been the acknowledged "Superman" of the horse training craft, and each year his performance improves more than sufficiently for him to retain his title unchallenged and undisputed. He has had many an imitator, but never an equal. Bristol's Record Breaking Equine Paradox is a SURE-FIRE HIT. If you want to increase your business, address the only authorized manager,

W. S. CLEVELAND, 1402 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY, for "Trimless" Tip-Top Bookings. The Best of Everything. Try the CLEVELAND-FIDELITY BOOKING SERVICE. No "Con," No "Buttons," No "Society Emblems," No Stalling

SIEMENS & CO. manufacture but One Grade of Picture Carbons.

These are Imported and sold under our mark as

"Biograph Brand"

All 12" Carbons are double-pointed.

Packed only in Cartons, as shown.

L. E. FRORUP & CO.
232 GREENWICH ST. NEW YORK

Get Right With Your Patrons

F. J. REMBUSCH

Get a "MIRROR SCREEN"

It is finest PLATE GLASS.
It is a real Mirror.
It is in a class alone.
There is nothing like it.
Write today for our new snow-white finish
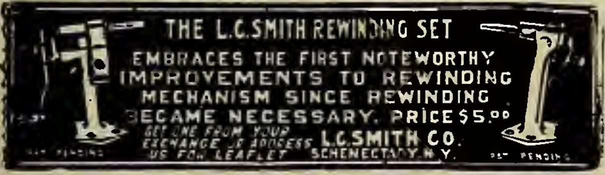
It puts "Perfect" in Perfection.

MIRROR SCREEN CO., Shelbyville, Ind.



THE L.C. SMITH REWINDING SET

EMBRACES THE FIRST NOTEWORTHY IMPROVEMENTS TO REWINDING MECHANISM SINCE REWINDING BECAME NECESSARY. PRICE $5.00

GET ONE FROM YOUR EXCHANGE OR ADDRESS US FOR LEAFLET

L.C. SMITH CO. SCHENECTADY, N.Y.

THE INSPECTOR OF POLICE

A heart gripping story in three reels
A THRILLER
Now Booking Wisconsin and Chicago

EXCLUSIVE FILM COMPANY
167 W. Washington Street Chicago, Ill.

EXHIBITORS' HEADQUARTERS

CALEHUFF SUPPLY COMPANY

(Incorporated)

50 North Eighth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Jobbers in Edison, Powers and Motiograph Machines and Parts

Machines Repaired by Expert Mechanics. Genuine Parts Only Used

SPECIALTIES

Mirror Screens
Chairs
Tickets
Pianos
Bio & Electra Carbons
Special Gundlach Lenses
Condensers
Edison Transformers
Ft. Wayne Compensarcs
Asbestos State Booths
Asbestos Wire
Switches
Plugs
Spotlights
Gas Making Outfits
Limes
Film-Cement
Branch General Disinfectant Co.
Scenery, Stage Effects
Theaters Bought, Sold, Rented

CHAS. A. CALEHUFF, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

Booking High-Class Singers and Entertainers

I specialize in securing the right talent suitable for motion picture theaters.

FRED LINICK'S THEATRICAL AGENCY

Hobbs Bldg., 68 W. Washington Street - - - Chicago, Ill.
Suite 45-46 Tel. Randolph 6010

THE INDUCTOR-COMPENSATOR

An Alternating Current Transformer for Motion Picture Arc Lamps

Every claim made for superior merit, high efficiency and current saving qualities has been proven by over five years' constant service. Nearly 3,000 INDUCTOR COMPENSATORS now in use.

PRICE:
110 Volts, 60 Cycles....................$50.00
220 Volts, 60 Cycles.................... 50.00

Prices for special transformers to control other voltages and cycles quoted on application. Order from your exchange or from

BELL & HOWELL COMPANY, Designers and Manufacturers
217 West Illinois Street :: :: :: :: Chicago, Illinois

Richardson's Handbook

For Managers and Operators of Moving Picture Theatres

The Best Book of the Kind $2.50 per Copy Postage Paid

Moving Picture World

17 Madison Avenue New York City

INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES

UNIVERSAL

NESTOR.

BEAUTY AND THE UGLY ONE (Sept. 15).—The Ugly One leaves his mountain home to woo Beauty of the prairie. Brawn also feels the spring call and wends his way to the home of Beauty. The Ugly One pleads for love, but is denied and Brawn wins Beauty. Later Beauty goes to row on the river, but her canoe is overturned and she is saved by the Ugly One, who still lingers in the neighborhood. Recovering from the first shock, Beauty, in her delirium, takes Ugly One to be Brawn and clings to him. The Ugly One at first thinks she loves him for his heroism, then realizes that he is playing another's part. He takes her to his mountain home and his mother helps restore her mind.

Brawn misses Beauty and searches for her. Finding the canoe, he mourns her as dead until hope rises again. He follows the trail toward the Ugly One's home. The Ugly One, meanwhile, takes his rifle and waylays Brawn on the mountain trial. He is about to shoot him down when love conquers temptation and he lets Brawn go unharmed. Brawn goes to the cabin and the sight of him restores Beauty's mind. She is led away by Brawn and the Ugly One, sobbing like a child, sinks to his knees and seeks solace in his mother's caresses.

BISON.

IN THE COILS OF THE PYTHON (2 parts—Sept. 16).—Charmed by the fair face of an unprincipled adventuress, Capt. Bainbridge, of His Majesty's Indian Army, takes advantage of the furlough granted him, and deserts his wife and child to flee with her. Crushed by his brief note of farewell, Mrs. Bainbridge determines to join her brother, Clifford, who is a professional hunter of big game in the interior.

Clifford is in love with Edith, a neighboring plantation owner's daughter, and she warns him about incurring the enmity of the natives by discharging a faithless Sukah. He does not heed her, and the natives plot to kill him. Edith overhears the plot and sends her brother, Paul, to put Clifford on his guard. Clifford, who has meanwhile left on a hunting trip, is followed by Paul and the rebellious natives under the Sukah.

The Doolewallahs, or native burden bearers, bringing Mrs. Bainbridge and her son to her brother, lose their way in the jungle and amid savage animals and hideous snakes, the nervous woman suffers torture. One of the natives sees Paul, and realizing he is going to warn Clifford of the plot, the Sukah conceals a cingalee in a three which hangs over a path, and as Paul rides by he is jerked from his horse by the cigalee's purgee, or turban. The Sukah orders Paul tied, but his vengeance is frustrated by a huge python, in whose deadly coils the Sukah dies. Mrs. Bainbridge and her bearers find Paul in close proximity to the deadly serpent, and she shoots it and liberates Paul, who escorts her to her brother's home, where a glad reunion takes place.

Five years later, Paul has learned to love his friend's sister and her little son, but she cannot accept his love while her faithless husband lives. Oswald, her son, loves the hunters and begs his mother to allow him to accompany his uncle Clifford on his trips. Refused permission to go, he saddles his little pony and starts after his uncle into the jungle. Missing him, the mother and Edith begin to search for him. The Jumadah tells of his riding away on his pony, and the three, frantic with fear, take guns and start for the jungle in search of him.

Capt. Bainbridge and his party are also hunting game in the vicinity, and the captain, seeing tigers and wishing to bag the game himself, separates from his men and rides into the jungle alone. Edith, Mrs. Bainbridge and the Jumah separate in the jungle in their search for Oswald, and after thrilling encounters with several large Bengal tigers, the party is reunited and little Oswald found. His mother is still missing, however, and a search for her is now made by the entire party.

Bainbridge, in chasing a tiger, comes upon two huge pythons lying in the road, which frighten his horse, causing him to be thrown and fatally injured. Unable to move or raise himself from the ground, Bainbridge lies helpless while one of the pythons coils about his body. Here, in the coils of the python, his deserted wife finds him breathing his last. She shoots the snake and drags him to safety. Joined by the rest of the party, Bainbridge breathes his last, and the wife and son turn weeping to Paul for comfort.

REX.

NEVER AGAIN (Sept. 18).—Mrs. Bowles determines to leave her husband if his dissipation continues. One evening at the club Bowles and his crony, Phil, sit opposite each other dead to the world through drink. Disgusted with them, other members of the club decide on a joke which they hope will work a cure. They make Phil's face up to appear as though he has been shot and in Bowles' hand they place his revolver, the cartridges having been replaced with blanks. They hide and await developments.

The club steward comes to awaken the stuefied men, observes what he supposes to be a tragedy, and rushes frantically to the telephone to notify the police. His cries arouse Bowles. He opens his eyes and gradually fixes them on Phil's face. The sight sobers him and when he discovers the revolver in his hand he imagines that he has, during his drunk, comitted murder. He flees just before the police arrive.

After an exciting chase which brings them all back to the club, the supposed corpse is found to be alive and well. Explanations follow. The lesson strikes home, however, to Bowles and returning to his wife, who is about ready to leave, he secures forgiveness by swearing, "Never again."

THE WALL OF MONEY (2 parts—Sept. 21).—Mr. McQuarrie, a factory owner, living alone in his large mansion while his son is away at college, has become miserly and works his men night and day, paying them the lowest wages possible. Daily accidents occur at the factory, due to the old, defective machinery used. The men have become very discontented and rumors of a strike begin to pass around among them.

Young Neilan, who has spent his spare hours designing machinery protected against accidents after many weeks of hard work, completes his plans and at a meeting of the men they decide to send a committee to the monopolist to present the plans and request that the ideas be used to safeguard them against possible accidents. A meeting is arranged.

The monopolist, expecting trouble, has requested two detectives to be present in an adjoining room; and just before the committee arrives, his son, Wallace, returns from college. The father explains the presence of the detectives, and asks the son to leave the room while he interviews the committee.

The committee is announced, and Neilan, as spokesman, states their request, producing his plans. McQuarrie refuses their demands and the men freely express their opinions of him. Lloyd becomes threatening when the detectives come on and order the men out. Wallace overhears the entire conversation in the adjoining room, and expecting some day to step in and take his father's place, he asks him for permission to work in the factory and study the conditions that prevail there. The father, however, has different ideas for his son's future and tells him to go to the seashore instead and spend his vacation there.

Wallace agrees, but instead of going to the seashore he goes to the factory instead, unknown to his father and secures work. Here he is introduced to Neilan, who, thinking him a brother workman, invites him to come to his home to live with him and his sister, Pauline, to help keep the little home going. Wallace meets Pauline. They become interested in each other, to the delight of Neilan, who has taken a liking to Wallace.

Neilan's sweetheart, Toddles, is the daughter of old Lloyd, a co-worker. Lloyd's son, Bart, a young lad, is also employed at the factory, and a week later is injured in an accident caused by defective machinery. The injury proves fatal, and the father, who is wrapped up in the boy, is almost driven crazy with grief.

Wallace, who has witnessed the accident, realizes the mistake his father is making in denying the demands of the men. He determines to go to his father and convince him wherein he is wrong. Rossin, a factory employee who has suspicioned Wallace at the very beginning of being a spy employed by the monopolist, follows Wallace to his father's house. Seeing him enter the house, Rossin returns and tells Neilan, and to prove his assertion, takes Neilan to McQuarrie's home, where they see Wallace coming from the house.

Wallace is unable to make his father change the existing conditions in the factory and returns to devise some way of winning him over. Neilan, not knowing Wallace's relationship to the monopolist, now also suspects him of being a spy and refuses him entrance to his house. Pauline when told of what has occurred, does not believe Wallace guilty, but is convinced when she sees him going into his father's home.

Old man Lloyd becomes insane with grief over his son's death and determines to revenge himself on McQuarrie. Just as he is about to leave the house with dynamite and fuse, Toddles intercepts him and, discovering his purpose, pleads with him not to commit murder. He locks her in a closet and leaves.

Neilan and Pauline, coming to see Toddles, hear the noise in the closet. Neilan releases her and she tells of her father's intentions. Pauline admitting her love for Wallace, pleads with Neilan to go and save McQuarrie. Neilan hurries to the house in time to put out the fuse. Aroused at the attitude of the monopolist, Neilan enters the house to denounce him and Wallace.

He enters the room just after Wallace has succeeded in winning his father's consent to let him run the factory to suit himself. Wallace explains the situation to Neilan and tells him he will be made assistant manager. Neilan, overjoyed, asks forgiveness for mistrusting Wallace, and the two young men hurry away to their sweethearts to tell them the good news. Wallace takes charge of the factory, raises the men's wages, installs safe machinery and gives them their Saturday afternoon holiday.

CRYSTAL.

A NEWS ITEM (Sept. 16).—Chester and Pearl are sweethearts. Belmont also admires Pearl and is jealous of Chester. He causes to be inserted in the newspaper an announcement of Chester's forthcoming nuptials with a wealthy society girl. He shows the newspaper to Pearl. She is indignant and asks Belmont to get her letters back from Chester. Belmont promises to do so and goes to Chester's rooms. He gets the letters and is about to depart when Chester returns. He hides in a box couch. Chester enters, and notices that his desk is open and discovers Belmont. Pearl telephones to him and berates him for his duplicity. He shoots off a revolver and she thinks he has killed Belmont. Chester sits on the couch and catches Belmont's hand. Belmont spends an uncomfortable ten minutes. Chester decides to visit Pearl. He does so. Belmont succeeds in getting out and also goes to Pearl's house. Chester explains that the news item is false. Belmont enters and attempts to give Pearl the letters she wrote to Chester. Chester takes them and upon his confronting Belmont he confesses that he made up the story to win Pearl. She forces him to go and Chester is left in full possession of the field and Pearl's love.

THE BACHELOR'S FINISH (Sept. 16).—Bluff and Gruff, bachelors, live at a boarding house. Bluff is continually drunk. Gruff to give him a scare tells him that the night before, while drunk, he asked their landlady, who is a shrew, to marry him. Bluff nearly faints. The next day he is again drunk. He makes love to the housekeeper and remembering Gruff's joke, again asks her to marry him, thinking to make good. The housekeeper's brother arrives in the midst of the lovemaking and insists upon immediate marriage. Bluff returns, and Gruff sobered by the seriousness of the situation seeks his advice. Gruff promises to get a fake minister. He induces his friend Luff to play the part of minister. Luff later determines to keep out of it. Meanwhile the group is waiting. The Rev. Dr. Parks stumbles into the house through accident. The brother asks him to perform the ceremony, and Bluff thinking him the fake minister, goes through with it. The next day Gruff meets Luff and finds out that he did not go through with his end of the joke. He informs Bluff that he is really married. Bluff nearly collapses, but really when brother brings in eight children and introduces them to Bluff as his wife's children and consequently his own.

MISPLACED LOVE (Sept. 21).—"Slip" Hines and "Long" Jim, two crooks working confidence games, are forced by Detective Mallory to desist. "Slip" leaves town. He goes to a farmhouse in the country and is taken in as a boarder. Mr. Simmons, the honest farmer, his wife, and pretty daughter Rose are attracted by the gentle manner of the crook. He makes love to Rose. She believes in him. Mr. Simmons catches him hugging Rose and orders him from the house. Rose decides to go with him, and leaves a note that she has gone to the city to be married to him. She goes and they take a room in a boarding house. There he proposes immediate marriage. He goes out and gets his friend to masquerade as a minister and perform a mock marriage ceremony. The landlady's daughter proposes getting another witness, and goes out for one. By chance, she meets her friend, Detective Mallory, who recognizes the two crooks. "Slip" escapes by jumping through the window. Rose, heartbroken, writes to her father, asking forgiveness and asking also, to be taken home. Her father tears up the letter. Time passes and Rose is forced to eke out a livelihood as a stenographer. She is employed in that capacity in the office of Frank Hammond, a wealthy stock speculator. He becomes very much attached to her. She goes out one day and to her surprise, upon her return she finds "Slip" in deep conference with Frank. He is playing the part of a smooth man of the world and is trying to inveigle Frank into buying some worthless stocks. They recognize each other. He writes a note on a card threatening to kill her if she exposes him. She goes out and telephones the police. Detective Mallory is sent and after a struggle "Slip" is arrested. Frank is grateful to Rose for her help in saving his investment and the affection he held for her ripens into love. She accepts his proposal and they get married. Rose hankers to see the old man again, and she induces Frank to go up with her on a visit. They are just in time to witness a scene whereby the sheriff is

Minnesota, North and South Dakota Exhibitors

"SATAN" or the "DRAMA OF HUMANITY" in Four Parts—7 Reels

Just released for your Territory. The first picture ever played in the New York Hippodrome and one of the biggest successes on Broadway, where it played to capacity business at the Broadway Theatre, New York. For information and terms apply to our representative, B. L. Feinblatt, care of Hotel Vendom, 19 South Fourth St., Minneapolis, Minn., or to the owners of that territory, as well as to that of the rights for the City and State of New York.

THE SUPREME FEATURE FILM CO., 64 E. 14th St., New York, N. Y.

Von Duprin SELF-RELEASING FIRE EXIT DEVICES

Simple in construction; unexcelled in workmanship; strong to withstand the severest handling; failure to operate is impossible. Thousands of these devices in use on schools, churches, theatres, auditoriums, factories, department stores, etc. Any hardware dealer can furnish them.

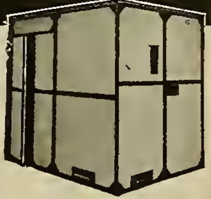
VONNEGUT HARDWARE CO.
General Distributors
Indianapolis, Ind.

Ask for catalogue No. 10D.

See Sweet's catalogue, pages 794 and 795.

SAFE EXIT IS A UNIVERSAL DEMAND

J-M Transite Asbestos Wood Booths



Absolutely fireproof. Prevent noise of machine from disturbing audience. Cannot become electrically charged or grounded.

J-M Booths conform to all the requirements of state and municipal regulations, insurance authorities and inspection departments wherever ordinances compel the use of a fire-proof booth.

Furnished in portable and permanent types. Write our nearest Branch for "J-M Theatre Necessities" Booklet.

H. W. JOHNS-MANVILLE CO.

Albany
Baltimore
Boston
Buffalo
Chicago
Cincinnati
Cleveland
Dallas
Detroit
Indianapolis
Kansas City
Los Angeles
Louisville
Milwaukee
Minneapolis
New Orleans
New York
Omaha
Philadelphia
Pittsburgh
San Francisco
Seattle
St. Louis
Syracuse

Name	Length	Class	Posters	Price per ft.
A Girl Without a Country	3000	drama	1-3-6 sheets	7c
Hypnotism or Dark Power	3200	"	1-6 "	4c
Whims of Fate	2100	"	1-3-4 "	5c
Stuart Keen	2700	(sensational)	8 style 1-3-6 sheets	6c
Caprice of Fortune	2000	drama	1-3 sheets	5c
The Gypsy Girl	2000	"	1-4 "	5c
Hungry Dogs	2000	"	1-4 "	4c
For Her Love	2100	"	1-3-4 "	4c
Mexico vs. Spain Bull Fight	2000	(sensational)	1-3-4 "	8c
The Flooded Mine	2000	drama	1-3 "	3c
James Patterson, Detective	2700	"	1-3 "	3c
Through Fire and Water to Happiness	3000	exclusive	1-3 sheets, banner and photos	7c
Lieut. Daring and Photographic Pigeons	1500	drama	1-3 banner	4c
Kings of the Forest	2000	animal drama	1-3-6 sheets	3c
The Wild Cat	3000	exclusive	1-4 "	4c
Custer's Last Fight	2100	Kay-Bee	1-3-6 "	5c
Adventure of Lady Glane	3000	exclusive	1-3-6 "	8c
Modern Enoch Arden	2000	exclusive	1-3 banner	3c
Right to Exist	3000	DeKage	1-3-6 photos	8c
The Black Viper	3000	Monopol	1-3-6 photos	8c

1000 reels with posters, good condition, complete at $5,00 per reel. Same condition without posters, $3.00 per reel. Special exclusive feature films bought on a commission of one cent per foot.

G. W. BRADENBURGH, 802 Vine Street
Bell Phone. Cable, Bradfilms, Phila.

SCHOOL DAYS ARE NEAR

and the exhibitors are going to book the greatest educational feature they can get. We have it.

"HIAWATHA"

No other classic ever aroused so much interest in our schools as this weird legend of the American Indians, and the same can be said of the picture production.

F. A. Thaler, manager New Princess Theatre, Van Wert, O., says: "I ran 'HIAWATHA' to capacity business and will say it is a very high-class attraction. Brought people into my house that were never in before. Would advise all to book it, as it will do your house credit."

Ask About Your Booking Now

We request all Managers, regardless of size of your house, to write for our booklet on Views and Reviews.

Ft. Defiance Feature Film Co., Defiance, Ohio

PENNSYLVANIA EXHIBITORS

Every one concedes that
Kalem's Biblical Masterpiece, in 5 reels,

"From the Manger to the Cross"

IS THE GREATEST FEATURE AND THE GREATEST MONEY GETTER

Ever Produced,

For bookings write or wire

Dershimer and Grelle, OWNERS PENNA. STATE RIGHTS
406 Cameraphone Bldg. PITTSBURGH, PA.

STEVE P. HETTEBERG

of Cincinnati, O., for the past six years one of the dominating Film Exchange Personalities in his section, is open for a proposition to handle either a regular or a Feature Film Exchange; know the business from A to Z; have the widest acquaintance amongst Exhibitors, and am conceded to be the highest class business getter in this territory.

Formerly with the Lubin, Pittsburgh Cal. Light, General Film Co., Central Film Service of Indpl. and the Mutual Film Corp.

Only a high-class proposition desired. Address

STEVE P. HETTEBERG
109 West 5th Street CINCINNATI, O.

about to dispossess the old couple for non-payment of a mortgage. Frank saves the old homestead. Rose is reconciled to her parents and her folly in placing her faith with the crook is forgotten.

GEM.

THE MANICURE (Sept. 15).—Billy and Tessie are greatly in love with each other. Tessie, tiring of sitting around the house and doing nothing, decides to learn manicuring by correspondence. Billy tries to dissuade her, but doesn't succeed. After her third lesson as a manicure, she persuades her father to let her work in his barber shop. Her first customer, Percival, is practically butchered and when the porter upsets the water intended for his hands, down his neck, confusion reigns.

FRONTIER.

THE JUVENILE KIDNAPPERS (Sept. 18).—Jack and Mary, children, meet at school and through childish troubles are brought into close friendship. Jack is the son of a widower and Mary, the daughter of a widow. Mary's mother grieves over the loss of a baby girl and friend Jack, on discovering this, determines to supply the want with his own motherless baby sister.

Mary and Jack conspire together, with the result that one night they steal the baby from the cradle while the nurse visits with the grocer boy and take it to Mary's doorstep. Believing, of course, that it has been left there by some poor woman, Mary's mother takes it in.

In the meantime Jack's father has started a wild search for the missing baby. Detectives who have been called into the case become suspicious of the boy and with the father, follow him to the widow's home. She is threatened with arrest as a kidnapper when Jack steps in and shoulders the blame. Noting the widow's reluctance in giving the baby up the widower permits her to keep it on one condition—that she marry him.

THE RANCHMAN'S DOUBLE (Sept. 20).—Widow Craige has twin sons. Bob is self-sacrificing and the main support of his mother. His twin, Harry, is the opposite type, one who frequents the beer halls and public dances. In one of his drunken orgies Harry starts an argument with an associate over a girl. His friend is accidentally shot with his own gun. Harry, believing himself a murderer, flees from the city. The news of this killing causes the death of the mother.

Years pass by and Bob, with his savings, leaves for the West to try ranching. His sweetheart and her mother he leaves behind, with the promise that he will send for them shortly.

Meantime Harry, having gone from bad to worse, has joined a band of outlaws. Circumstances bring him near his brother's ranch, with the sheriff hot upon his trail. Bob is arrested by mistake and made a prisoner in the county jail. Harry, having seen the arrest, decides to impersonate Bob and take possession of his ranch. This he does and he even goes so far as to receive the sweetheart and her mother, who arrive from the East several days following.

But something tells the girl that all is not well, and she seeks the advice of the sheriff. There is an investigation, which results in the death and confession of Harry. Bob comes into his own shortly afterward.

POWERS.

THE PEARL OF THE GOLDEN WEST (Sept. 17).—The Pearl of the Golden West is an extensively proportioned lady, who is proprietor of the Knockout saloon. The sheriff, a brave and daring man, save in the face of danger, lays his heart at the Pearl's feet.

The City Chap, tall, slim and elegantly powered, rides into the scene on his bicycle. The Pearl immediately falls for his charms. He teaches her to ride his bicycle and is entertained at her home with great ceremony. Meanwhile the jealous sheriff has found a newspaper clipping, which says the City Chap is a bicycle bandit who has deserted his wife and fourteen children. Triumphantly he takes this news to the Pearl, who hides the City Chap under the table. The Pearl doesn't believe it and drives the sheriff away, but in the City Chap's pocket she finds a picture of him with his wife and fourteen children. She forgives his perfidy and later he receives word that his wife has secured a divorce. They decide to be married and go to the saloon to say goodbye. The sheriff is broken-hearted, and as the happy couple mount a tiny donkey and go off on their honeymoon he blows out his brains.

THE DOCTOR'S STORY (Sept. 19).—The old doctor of a small fishing village is entertaining one of his city friends, and, while sitting near the beach, the friend suddenly sees a young woman, prematurely grown old and gray, dressed in a wedding gown, with flowing veil, looking about as though waiting and watching for someone. Her peculiar actions and attire arouse the friend's curiosity, and the doctor volunteers to tell the unfortunate girl's story.

At her mother's deathbed Katherine Crane assumes the care of her younger sister, Dora, and in order to maintain their little home and provide an education for Dora, Katherine does dressmaking. She sends the younger girl to a boarding school, where she enjoys life, heedless of the cost to Dora.

The doctor loves Kate, but she rejects his proposal because she already loves Tom, the fisherman. Tom proposes, but Kate refuses to marry him until Dora is through school. After several years of toil for Katherine and pleasure for Dora, the younger girl comes home, and Katherine immediately accepts Tom's proposal and begins the making of her wedding dress.

Dora returns and Tom is at once impressed with her. This admiration quickly grows into love, which is reciprocated by Dora, all unknown to the unsuspecting Katherine. And when Katherine's wedding dress is finished, Tom and Dora elope, leaving a note for her. The blow robs her of her reason, which materializes into an obsession that each day will be her wedding day, and attired in her gown and veil she haunts the beach, waiting and watching for the lover who never returns.

UNIVERSAL.

ANIMATED WEEKLY, NO. 78 (September 3).—The Panama Canal.—Finishing touches on the Panama Canal. The greatest engineering feat ever attempted by any nation.

Historical Pageant.—The early history of Manhattan is re-enacted in historical and legendary pageant in Central Park, New York City.

Exciting Auto Races.—Louis Disbrow, the mile track champion, wins the feature event of the auto race meet, Libertyville, Illinois.

Canine Policemen.—The best trained dogs in the world perform many exciting feats at the police dog trials, New York City.

Raising of Oil Steamer.—The German oil steamer "Gnthell" is successfully raised at Baton Rouge, Louisiana. This steamer sank in ninety feet of water while loaded with a cargo of oil and is the largest ever raised in the Mississippi River.

Athletes at Berlin.—One hundred thousand athletes meet in the world's largest stadium, Berlin, Germany.

Weekly Fashion Hint.—Black and white, combined with bright green or purple, form many of the latest Autumn dresses. The Ladies' Home Journal Pattern Company.

The Cowes Regatta.—The Royal Regatta on the Solent. The greatest yachting event of the year in Europe.

War Chiefs Honor Colonel Cody.—Secretary of War Garrison and General Leonard Wood are met by "Buffalo Bill" upon their arrival in Denver.

Races at Red Bank.—Many prominent horsemen compete for prizes at the Monmouth County Fair, Red Bank, New Jersey.

The Use of Dynamite.—New Method employed in clearing timberland by the use of high explosives.

Arrival of Lord Haldane.—Viscount Haldane, the Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, arrives on the Lusitania. He is the first Lord High Chancellor to abandon temporarily the custody of the Great Seal and go to a foreign country.

Asbury Park Baby Parade.—In proud and gorgeous array before Queen Titania and thousands of spectators, seven hundred babies parade at Asbury Park, New Jersey. Sub-title—Queen of the Carnival.

Stars of Filmdom—Olive Temple (Universal).

FOR SALE 50 FEATURES First Class Condition
Elegant Advertising Matter. 1000 COMMERCIALS
VERY CHEAP
INTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS
5 WEST 14th STREET, NEW YORK

McKENNA
BRASS
RAILINGS
EASELS
GRILLES
CUSPIDORS
KICK
PLATES
POSTER
FRAMES
Write for Catalog.
McKenna Bros. Brass Co.
PITTSBURGH

FOR SALE OUTRIGHT
2,500 FEET NEGATIVE
"Cowboys' Reunion at Oklahoma City, Okla."
WESTERN FILM BROKERS
538 S. DEARBORN ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

WANTED—Comedy stories for pictures. No scenarios. Just good, new, bright ideas briefly stated. Prompt pay and attention given. Send stamped self-addressed envelope to EDITOR, CRYSTAL FILM CO.
428 Wendover Avenue, New York City.

WHEN YOUR PICTURE MACHINE NEEDS REPAIRING
WHY DON'T YOU SEND IT TO US!
We have the best equipped machine shop in the country and can repair any make of machine. Write us and get acquainted.
WE BUY SECOND-HAND MACHINES.
GEO. M. HOKE SUPPLY CO.
176. N State St. (bet. Lake and Randolph) Chicago, Ill.

TRY US
for printing, developing and titles. No order too large for our capacity, or none too small for our careful attention. Films renovated by our special Paris Process.
PARISIAN MFG. & FILM RENOVATING CO.
4940 Wentworth Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

We have a Catalogue of full line of Moving Picture Machine repair parts ready to put in your machine at reduced prices. We make them, and for that reason can sell them very low. We also sell Stereopticons for $12.00; Calcium Jets, $3.00; 100 Carbons, $2.00; Condensers, 55c; Arc Lamps, $2.25; Stereopticon Lenses, 50c; Slide Carriers, 25c; Moving Picture Objectives, $3.75; Jackets, $1.75; Ticket Holders, 75c; Rheostats, $4.00; 50 Candle Power Stereopticon Lamps, 75c.
L. HETZ, 302 E. 23rd Street, New York City

COMING!
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED
4,000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

THE VIVAPHONE

SINGING AND TALKING PICTURES

SCENE FROM "JIMMY VALENTINE"

A SUCCESS EVERYWHERE. For State Rights Apply

VIVAPHONE & FILMS SALES CO.
INCORPORATED
110-112 West 40th Street, New York City
A. BLINKHORN, Sole Agent U. S. A. and Canada

"Agfa"

MOTION PICTURE FILM

Used by Makers of Quality Films

WRITE FOR PRICES

Sole American Agents

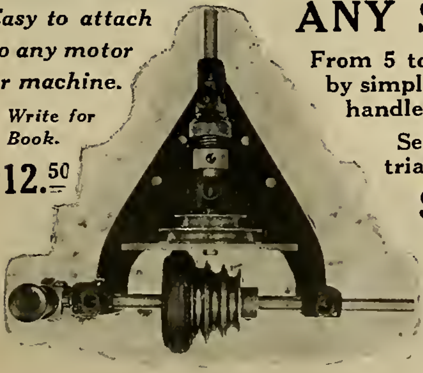
Raw Film Supply Company
15 East 26th Street New York, N. Y.

REPAIR

Moving Picture Machines, Stereopticons, Lenses.

HENRY MESTRUM

Succ. to C. B. Kleine Send for Catalog.
385 SIXTH AVE., NEW YORK. Opposite Masonic Building



Easy to attach to any motor or machine.

Write for Book.

$12.50

ANY SPEED

From 5 to 30 minutes by simply moving the handle.

Sent on week's trial.

$12.50

W. G. Preddey
669 HAIGHT ST.,
San Francisco,
California

People Will Go Out of Their Way to See Good "Movies"

Isn't it worth your while to insure the steady patronage of your present clientele by not only offering them the best films you can secure, but the best and clearest pictures that these films can produce?

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses throw an absolutely true-to-life image on the screen and bring out details that an ordinary lens leaves obscure.

Brilliant pictures are the best recommendation your house can have, and Bausch & Lomb objectives and condensers are the best lens equipment—regularly supplied with the Edison and Nicholas Power Machines and the professional's preference.

Sold by all film exchanges. Owners and operators will find special interest in our free booklet.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.
566 ST. PAUL STREET ROCHESTER, N. Y.
NEW YORK WASHINGTON CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO

STATE RIGHT OPERATORS

The greatest moral photodrama of season—

Conscience

Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kansas, Missouri, Colorado, Texas, Oklahoma and Greater New York sold.

Will sacrifice remaining territory at bargain rates. First come first served.

Two 1 sheet, a 3 and a 6.
Heralds, photos and slides.

CONSCIENCE FILM CO., 110 West 40th St., New York City

EYE COMFORT LIGHTING System

So necessary to the success of every Motion Picture Theatre that we engineer 60 Theatres a month.

This is a free service to Motion Picture Theatre Managers.

Distance Screen to Rear of Auditorium..............................
Ceiling Height..............................
Width of House..............................
Name..............................

NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO.
Chicago
229 W. Jackson Blvd.
New York
505 Fifth Ave.

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION.

RELIANCE.

BETWEEN HOME AND COUNTRY (Sept. 8).—During the Civil War, Captain Ward, a Southern officer, enters the Northern camp and manages to steal some plans. He is followed by a posse. When he reaches his own home he goes in, thinking to throw them off the scent. His wife and two children anxiously watch the windows. Suddenly the little boy spies the Northern men approaching and warns his father. As the soldiers draw up at the porch, Ward and his wife lock the front door and retreat to the library.

The men break through into the main hall and seeing the closed door of the library, commence to batter it down. Ward's wife suggests that he don a gown of hers, while she puts on his cap and coat. As the men dash into the room, they pay no attention to the huddled form of a woman bending over her children, but follow what they suppose to be Ward, into the next room, allowing the soldier to escape from the house by a rear door. The men soon discover their mistake and start after Ward. The officer in command remains, however, and attempts to make love to the wife, who is alone and unprotected.

Her little son, realizing her danger, runs from the house to his father's hiding place. He tells Ward, who for a moment hesitates. He does not know whether to go ahead with the plans or back to save his wife. Love conquers and he returns to the house where he knocks the Northern officer down.' The boy rides on to the Southern camp, warns them of his father's peril. A party of soldiers is sent back with him and they arrive in time to put the Northern men to rout. Then Ward triumphantly hands the plans to his general, glad he has been able to fulfill his duty to his country as well as to his wife.

AMERICAN.

CALAMITY ANNE, HEROINE (Sept. 15).—Calamity Anne is trudging along the country road with her burro in tow. Tommy gets stubborn and refuses to travel further until he gets something to eat. The tactics amuse an auto party passing along and a little girl of the party furnishes a banana for Tommy. Calamity and the girl become friends and upon receiving the card from the girl's father, Calamity promises to call at the home.

The automobile party passes two tramps who recognize the millionaire and his daughter, whom they have contemplated kidnapping. They follow the auto and kidnap the child from her home, while the maid and her sweetheart are engrossed in their love-making.

In the meantime Calamity finds the tramps' camp and enjoys their untouched meal. After being refreshed she journeys on and meets the young lover in search of the child. She recognizes him as an old friend. He tells his trouble and Calamity finds it is the little girl she has learned to love.

The tramps hide the child in a deserted barn. Calamity rescues her and captures the tramps. The child wants Calamity to stay with her, but the beautiful home is too much for poor Calamity. She climbs out of the window to find out how poor Tommy is and spies the lovers in distress because they haven't the money to get married. She puts her arms around them, gives them her reward she receives for finding the child and tells them to be happy.

A FALL INTO LUCK (Sept. 18).—Living alone in the hills with her cripple brother, Harry, Jane Edwards finds life pretty hard. An unkempt stranger showing marks of a hard life, receiving food at their door is not satisfied, but attempts to insult the girl. Her brother, trying to drive him off, is knocked down and abused, when the timely arrival of a young prospector, who is driving in the hills, drives off the renegade. On the hillside the prospector is attacked from behind and thrown over a cliff. The prospector, stunned and landing on a projection not far from the top, is seen by the girl, who goes to his rescue. He starts to climb up; in his ascent he discovers traces of gold. To get his claim in working shape he must suspend himself with a rope around his waist. The renegade, thinking of the girl unprotected, turns back and finds the rope fastened at the top of the cliff. Looking over he sees the prospector at work. Harry, the cripple, sees the renegade stoop to cut the rope and shoots, while the prospector is surprised to hear the shot and on ascending finds the dead man.

A sheriff with a few deputies is scouring the hills for the renegade for whom a large reward has been offered. Harry is thanked by the prospector as the sheriff arrives, who hands the prospector a notice offering a reward for an escaped outlaw, dead or alive. With a smile on his face the prospector hands it to Harry, who, recognizing the picture, leads the sheriff away to the body, while the prospector and Jane decide to join hands as life partners.

JIM TAKES A CHANCE (Sept. 2(?)).—Dora is to visit her uncle in the West; she is informed that the boys at the ranch are all anxiety over her coming. In the spirit of fun, Dora determines to masquerade as a spinster. Uncle is in on the joke and shares Dora's amusement in seeing the shock of disappointment which the boys receive as Dora steps from the stage coach. Jim, the foreman of the ranch, is too good-natured to show his disappointment and offers to carry the spinster's grip into the house. By doing so he excites the laughter and ridicule of the boys.

Later Jim goes further and teaches the spinster to ride a horse. Cupid gets busy under the make-up and Dora's girlish heart begins to beat warmly for the handsome cow puncher. In spite of the laughter and ridicule of the boys, Jim is head over heels in love with the supposed spinster. He asks her to be his wife—she removes the disguise and reveals herself to Jim in all her youth and beauty. Jim is at first astonished and then delighted. He takes the lovely Dora in his arms as his promised wife.

TRAVELERS OF THE ROAD (Sept. 20).—A young prospector, Joseph Harbison, starts out on his journey, and enroute meets a group of prospectors playing cards. He enters into the game, with the result that he makes a considerable winning. Leaving them, he continues on his journey and meeting a gypsy woman and her daughter, decides to have his fortune told. Drawing out his bag of money to pay the girl, he excites the older woman's cupidity and she invites him to remain with them, which he agrees to do. Calling her daughter aside the mother suggests that she make advances to the young man to gain his confidences and when he sleeps they will secure his money and decamp; but because he was a light sleeper they fail in their attempt, and when morning comes he resumes his journey.

Further up the road he comes upon an emigrant wagon of homeseekers and is invited to ride with them. Attracted by the beauty of the daughter of the old colonist, Harbison accepts their kind invitation. When evening comes they stop to camp. In the morning the gypsies have overtaken them and the daughter seeing Harbison among the homeseekers and attentive to the young girl, her jealousy is aroused and the mother and daughter plan to cause them trouble. Knowing the hiding-place of a number of outlaws in this vicinity, the gypsies plan to seek them and obtain their assistance in the carrying out of their revenge. The outlaws have planned a daring hold-up of the stage and while the gypsies are hurrying to locate them the robbery is committed. The stage goes on its way and along the road meets the homeseekers' wagon. They tell of the incident, and the gypsies overhear the conversation. They have lingered nearby, but now hurry to find the outlaws. They find them and tell them if they will take the trouble to rob the wagon the colonists will find many treasures contained therein. The outlaws advance on the travelers' wagon and fire upon the persons riding in it, one of the first shots wounding the old father. The young daughter and the prospector are left to fight the outlaws, but they are worsted in the fight. The two escape with one of the horses of the outlaws and in the running fight win against the outlaw who gave pursuit. The stage returns with a lot of miners who give battle to the remaining outlaws and succeed in overcoming them. The young prospector and his new found friend reach the town of Success almost exhausted, but nearer to each other because of their experience as travelers of the road.

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

MUTUAL WEEKLY NO. 36 (Sept. 1).—Lettonia, Ohio—Many injured as the Eastern Express from Chicago to New York is wrecked.

Paris, France—Women's swimming contest.

The Fashion in New York.

London, England—Colonel Cody, England's greatest airman, falls with his hydroplane, meeting a terrible death.

Washington, D. C.—Four ranchmen making a 20,000 mile ride from this city to San Francisco, are to be photographed with each Governor in front of the Capitol of his respective State,

ON THE BORDER LINE

No. 2
EASEL

IT PAYS
to make an attractive
LOBBY DISPLAY
Our Photo and Poster
Frames are it

Best Quality { Brass / Compoboard / Glass } Used

Hanging Frames, with Glass $4
Easel Frames : : : : 6

Write for our Prices
on other styles

Theatre Specialty Mfg. Co.
357 W. 42d St., New York

AMERICAN MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS

are acknowledged by the leading expert film producers to be the finest and most accurate Cameras in the world.

We also manufacture a complete line of Studio and Dark Room Equipment.

AGENTS FOR EASTMAN RAW FILM
Send for Catalogues

American Cinematograph Co.
617-631 W. Jackson Blvd. Chicago, Ill

LET US DO YOUR
Developing and Printing

WE WILL DEVELOP YOUR NEGATIVE, MAKE YOU A POSITIVE PRINT AND SHIP WITHIN 24 HOURS FOR 5c PER FOOT COMPLETE.
SATISFACTION GUARANTEED
BY OUR FIFTEEN YEARS' EXPERIENCE
EASTMAN STOCK USED ON ALL OUR WORK

FILM TITLES and ANNOUNCEMENTS
3 Feet for 25 Cents
IN ANY LENGTH

GUNBY BROS., Inc.
199 Third Ave. New York City

NEW MACHINES
TIME or CASH
ALL MAKES
A Modern Machine Will Double the Profits
SEND FOR NEW CATALOG
Allowance Made on Your Old Outfit
We have some BARGAINS in REBUILT MACHINES.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO.
" Everything from Screen to Booth ".
160A No. Fifth Ave. CHICAGO

COMING!
THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO
THE GREATEST WAR PICTURE EVER FILMED
4.000 ACTORS 800 HORSES

OPERA CHAIRS

Latest and Best in Seats

SEND FOR OUR PRICES BEFORE BUYING

BENNETT SEATING CO
127 EAST PEARL ST
CINCINNATI, OHIO.

STEEL OR IRON STANDARDS

Eastern Representative: Fletcher W. Dickerman, 61 North Seventh St., Telephone 126 Branch Brook, Newark, N. J. Southern California Representative: California Seating Co., 1110 Van Nuys Building, Los Angeles, Cal. North Western Representative: H. A. Johnson Seating Co., 611 Western Ave., Seattle, Washington.

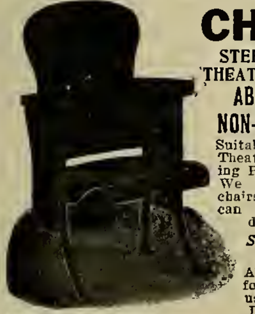
The Wisconsin Seating Company
New London, Wisconsin, U.S.A.

Steel standards will not break

DO YOU WANT A BRITISH AGENT?

We are open to undertake sale of films, or letting or purchase of exclusives. Bank references and deposit. Central offices & Projection room

THE STATE FILM AGENCY,
191 Wardour St., LONDON, W., England
Cables: — Kinesafs, London. Codes: — Anglo-American, 4th edition; A. B. C. 5th edition.



CHEAP

STEEL FRAME THEATRE CHAIRS
ABSOLUTELY NON-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small Theaters and Moving Picture Shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs

Also seating for Out-of-door use. Address Dept. W.

STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Rapids, Mich. New York: 150 5th Ave. Pittsburgh: 318 Bissel Blk. Philadelphia: 1943 Market St. Nashville, Tenn.: 315 No. 4th Ave.

OH! MR. EXHIBITOR!!

Think of the motherless, the fatherless, and the childless homes as the result of theater panics. Protect the lives of your patrons by installing our "ANTI-PANIC" THEATRE CHAIR. 26 Dead at Canonsburg, 176 at Boyertown, 575 at Iroquois Theater, Chicago. Make these horrors impossible. Our chair is a friend to the Public.

It advertises your theater and makes your business grow.

It is a space-saver, life-saver, money-saver. Gives 25% more seating.

It will make your theater all aisles. It is the only sanitary chair. It is the world's greatest theater chair, perfected to the highest degree. Write today for circular A.

THE HARDESTY MFG. CO., Canal Dover, Ohio
U. S. A.

It pays to discriminate when you buy

THEATRE SEATING

WRITE TODAY for Cat. V2 (Moving Picture Chairs) and Cat. V3 (Upholstered Chairs)
Send Floor Sketch for Free Seating Plan.

Widest range of styles and prices. Large stocks.

American Seating Company
218 S. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO. 15 E. 32nd St., NEW YORK

OPERA CHAIRS

FOR EVERY PURPOSE
1,000 STYLES

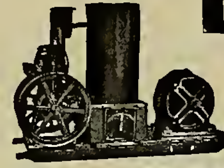
ESTABLISHED 1865
WRITE FOR CAT. NO. 31

115-117 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The A. H. Andrews Co.

Branches in all Leading Cities

New York Office, 1165 Broadway.
Seattle Office, 508-10-12 First Ave., So.
San Francisco Office, 728 Mission St.



MOVING PICTURE ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANT

Used and Highly Endorsed by the United States Army.

BIGGEST SENSATION IN THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Can be operated by a boy 10 years old. One customer writes: "Plant running like a top and delivering the 'juice' right along every day for our moving picture house. Costs us about one-tenth as much as public service. Also pumps water to all our buildings, 2,000 gallons per day."

Write today for Bulletin 101. It is a mighty interesting booklet.

(163) DETROIT ENGINE WORKS, Dept. 102, DETROIT, MICH., U. S. A.

As the Operator Looks at it

As the Operator Looks at It

Just notice how easy this operator takes it. He doesn't have to work over a dangerous juice consuming rheostat at furnace heat anymore since the

Fort Wayne Compensarc

was installed.

He can control the machine perfectly now with one hand--gets a clearer, whiter, steadier light and can adjust it to any of the three intensities without even the faintest flicker.

When we sold this machine we guaranteed it would absolutely

Cut 2-3 from the Monthly Lighting Bill

That sounded almost too good to be true, but they put one in on our 30 day free trial plan.

Did the machine "make good?" Well, the first month it reduced the bill from $22.70 to $9.24 and they operated more hours and got better light than ever before.

We can do just as well for you regardless of what voltage you are using and if you will send for our little free booklet, we'll explain how we do it.

Remember you are paying the Lighting Company 66 2-3 per cent more then you need to every day you wait.

Fort Wayne Electric Works
of General Electric Company
1402 Broadway
Fort Wayne, Indiana

EXCLUSIVE FILM CORPORATION

GAUMONT.

AN ACTOR'S ADVENTURE (Sept. 9).—A break in the mundane round of an actor's life causes considerable perturbation to Jean Loupin, a vaudeville artist. Having purchased a second-hand coat, Jean proceeds to try it on, and while so engaged he feels something in the lining of the coat. Upon closer investigation it proves to be a note calling for help —William Burgon and his sister are prisoners in "The Retreat" at Arkell! Romantic feelings are aroused in the breast of the actor, and he sets forth on what he feels may prove a very interesting and exciting adventure.

Arrived at "The Retreat" Jean sends in a note craving an interview, but although the interview is granted, Loupin is everywhere regarded with deep suspicion, and looks of grave distrust are levelled at him. He goes away apparently satisfied, but in the dead of night secretes himself in the spacious grounds of "The Retreat" and effects an entrance to the house. A slight mishap in failing to draw the library curtains proves the cause of his undoing, and the intrepid Jean Loupin soon finds himself in a most unpleasant position—bound like a trussed fowl and condemned to die by the nauseating and asphyxiating odors of coal gas. He struggles to burst his bonds, ineffectually at first, but eventually smashes a window and uses the broken glass wherewith to cut the ropes that bind him. And then Jean takes his revenge. Striking a match he applies it to the gas-laden air at the moment his would-be murderers rush into the room, and the instantaneous explosion exterminates the whole vile gang.

It is only a matter of moments before Jean has the unhappy William and Ethel Burgon freed from their position of danger in the burning house, and the subsequent interrogatory at the police office leaves us convinced that the erstwhile hapless pair will soon come into their own again, now that their cousins' evil machinations have been effectually squelched.

LOVE ME, LOVE MY ANIMALS (Sept. 11).—Simple Simon's Auntie Jane asks him to keep house whilst she and Uncle Tom are away on a short vacation, enjoining Simon to "be good to the animals—love them as you love me!" Simon is thoroughness personified, and carries out his Auntie Jane's instructions so literally that the animals have one great time. Simon is certainly "good to the animals," and in every conceivable way endeavors to love them as he loves his auntie. The resultant chaotic condition of things at auntie's menage can better be viewed than described, but it includes pigs and horses in the front parlor, the brindled cow in auntie's own bed, and suchlike reversions of the ordinary trend of farm life.

George, the gardener, considers it is his duty to inform auntie by letter that she had better return home at once—"You will find your house in a lovly state, bleeve me yors truly George"—and Simple Simon is only saved from severe castigation at his uncle's hands by the kindly intervention of Cousin Gertie, who loves Simon because he has such a kind heart.

RAMO.

LOVE AND GOLD (August 13).—Mary Benson lives with her grandfather, a miserly old man, who compels her to bring home her wages to him. She is taken ill at her work and returns home only to be accused by her grandfather of feigning illness, and is ordered from the house. Mary leaves and faints at the entrance of the Landers' home and is assisted into the house by Jack Landers, who persuades his father to allow her to remain with them until she recovers. Jack's father disapproves of the growing attachment between Jack and Mary, as he wishes Jack to marry an heiress. Overhearing Jack and his father discussing this topic, Mary leaves rather than have Jack oppose his father's wishes.

Mary learns of the sudden illness of the old miser and rushes home, only to be followed by Jack. Jack's father, now thoroughly aroused, follows his son to the miser's home, determined to put a stop to the affair.

The old miser, in his delirium, sees his gold turn to dross and on regaining his senses, appreciates the nothingness of gold and the allness of love, and when Jack's father arrives and intimates that the miser's granddaughter is inacceptable because of poverty, the miser discloses that his granddaughter is in reality a very rich girl. Jack and Mary are married.

DANGEROUS SYMPATHY (August 20).—Pagano, a young physician, attends the sick bed of Marie's mother, who lives with Marie and Luigi, Marie's husband, in the Italian quarter of New York. Marie's mother dies, and Pagano is affected by Marie's sorrow, and in sympathy, gives her a flower and promises to send her others, thus arousing the jealousy of Luigi.

A week later Pagano remembers his promise as he is buying roses for his fiancée. He also sends a bouquet to Marie, with a pleasant message. The florist gets the cards mixed. The fiancée gets the flowers with Marie's card and believes Pagano false. Luigi gets the bouquet for Marie and the card meant for Pagano's fiancée addressed "Dearest," and making an appointment. He thinks Marie is false and as the reverse of the card gives Pagano's address, he sets out to revenge his wrong. Marie follows to prevent violence, if possible.

In the meantime, Luigi enters the doctor's home under the pretense of illness. Luigi forces the door of the doctor's laboratory and soon has the doctor at his mercy, when Marie enters in time to save the doctor's life. At this moment the doctor's fiancée comes in to tax Pagano's falseness. Explanations follow wherein the exchange of cards is made obvious.

THE SPRINGTIME OF LOVE (August 27).—Arthur Finley is in love with Lois Barker. Her father objects, insisting that Lois shall marry Jack Dayton. Lois and Arthur agree to elope and leave a note for her father. Secretly Lois goes to meet Arthur, but seeing Jack, she hides behind some bushes at the edge of a cliff—the ground caves in and hurls her to the bottom unconscious. Arthur, after waiting a few hours, returns home, believing Lois' father prevented the elopement. Lois, found by strangers, is taken to their home. She does not recover until the next morning. The father reads his daughter's note and becomes angry. When Lois has recovered sufficiently to return home he disowns her. Jack, having faith in Lois, seeks to learn the truth. Arthur begs the father for his consent to the marriage. The father accuses him. Arthur resents. The old man strikes Arthur, but Jack's timely arrival, accompanied by the stranger who aided Lois, explains everything, and the father regrets his hasty judgment. Arthur, who has been searching for Lois, eventually finds her, and brings her back. The father gladly consents to the marriage.

LUX.

THE TAX ON BACHELORS (Sept. 12).—Billy Gaydog is a young bachelor who scorns the wiles of the fair sex and manages to remain unharmed by cupid's dart until the ripe age of twenty-nine. At this point in his career a law is passed imposing a tax upon unmarried men. Like many another young fellow Billy's little game is promptly put a stop to and he hastens in search of a bride with most amusing results. The haste with which bachelors hasten into matrimony, results in as many as one hundred marriages in an hour. All the matrimonial agencies are "sold out" and the fun is fast and furious in the Tax on Bachelors.

ARABELLA'S RIVAL (Sept. 12).—Harold is introduced to his aunt's protege, the fair Arabella. Unfortunately Harold does not consider Arabella even passing fair. Her type of beauty in fact is one which can scarcely be called popular. Harold is in love with his cousin, but as Harold's aunt has a lot of money he does his best to please her and become engaged to Arabella. However, his cousin finally succeeds in defeating the ends of fortune, and Arabella retires somewhat hastily while Harold and his cousin are left in peace once more.

SOLAX.

INVISIBLE INK (Sept. 17).—Billy was flirtatious. At the summer hotel he planned to outwit Ruth's father, and write her a letter in invisible ink planning to elope that night. Writings in this invisible ink had to be heated before the symbols would appear. By an interesting chain of circumstances, the love-sick old maid, Flora, got the letter. Enraged at the sight of the blank paper, she angrily set a match to it, and the words of love appeared! The romantic soul thought they were meant for her and she was in such a trepidation of realized love that when Ruth and her father unexpectedly came in the room, the letter fell unnoticed from her belt. Ruth's father found it, and thought it had been dropped by his daughter. That night he locked her in her room, but when Billy signaled with his auto horn, and Flora ran out, he thought Ruth had escaped, and followed on horseback. Ruth was awakened by the commotion and thinking Billy perfidious, she climbed out of the window and followed on a motorcycle. Billy and Flora were being married when Ruth's father appeared. And then the men discovered Flora's identity. She expressed her love for Billy and threw her arms around his neck. Ruth entered at this compromising situation. She would not listen to Billy's explanations, and indignantly strutted off. Flora turned to Billy—"I am still here, Cutey," but Billy rudely repulsed her, and she fell fainting in the arms of the disconcerted minister.

WESTERN LOVE (Sept. 19).—Young Richard Henderson, the son of a wealthy ranch owner, meets a siren at a wayside inn. Henderson soon surrenders to the spell of this fascinating creature's charms and for a long time is at her very mercy. He does not know her past, nor does he know that she earns her living by dancing in country taverns. His love for her not only blinds him to her frailties and unmoral past, but also to the suffering love which Dawn White secretly cherishes for him in her bosom. Events shape themselves in time so that Richard is forcibly brought face to face with conditions as they exist in reality and his love for the dancer turns to hate. However, he cannot cast off the spell of his enchantress, and her spirit seems to pervade the very atmosphere which he breathes; even when he proposes to Dawn, the figure of Dawn fades from his view and he imagines he is placing the engagement ring on the finger of the dancer. This freak of imagination almost drives him insane, but by a turn of events, he is saved from himself and eventually marries the girl who really loves him and whom he soon learns to love and cherish.

FEATURES

GAUMONT.

WHO KILLED GEORGE LAMBERT (3 parts—Feature Subject).—Mr. Beck, a financier, called away on business, tells his wife that he may be obliged to write her for money, but does not care to take any large amount of money with him—she can bring it to him if he finds it necessary. A fortnight later, as Mrs. Beck is going out to dinner, a letter is brought to her in which her husband explains that it is essential he should receive $5,000 by the midday following. She is to bring the money in bills to a house indicated at Gardon, to which the most direct route is by rail to Vinay, thence by motor. Mrs. Beck is rather puzzled by the message, but decides to go, and shortly afterwards starts on the journey. By the same train there travels a bank-clerk, carrying $10,000 in gold and bills. George Lambert is the name of the bank clerk.

At eleven o'clock the train reaches Vinay, the only travelers to Bardon being Mrs. Beck and Geogre Lambert. A few miles along the road the automobile breaks down, and it is with difficulty that the nearest inn is reached. Here it is definitely ascertained that the repairs are too complicated to complete before the morning, and the innkeeper regrets that he cannot supply a carriage for some hours. Mrs. Beck and George Lambert are accommodated in adjoining rooms. Lambert makes the best of a bad job and quickly goes to sleep, but Mrs. Beck is restless. She hears a trap being driven into the inn yard and makes a bargain with the driver to take her to Gardon immediately, at a very early hour in the morning. Upon her arrival Mrs. Beck finds Gardon House, where she expected to meet her husband, is uninhabited. She is faced by a mystery!

At 7 a. m. the auto is in shape again, but the innkeeper finds the lady gone and the clerk lying dead in bed! Later the police arrive. They decide that the bank clerk was suffocated with chloroform, and a quantity of saturated cotton-wool is found in Mrs. Beck's room. In the wallet in which the banknotes were carried, is a list of the numbers of the stolen bills, all of which were for large amounts.

Learning that Mrs. Beck went to Gardon, the officials proceed thither, and when confronted, Mrs. Beck declines to explain her presence in the village, and although the discovery in her handbag of notes stolen from the bank-clerk takes her by suprpise, she still refuses to explain. She vigorously defends herself against the accusation of murder, but is arrested forthwith.

Mr. Beck has completed his business and returns home, en route reading of the arrest of his wife. His home is searched and the letter which led Mrs. Beck to start for Gardon with the money is declared by him to be a forgery. The police have followed up the clue of the chloroform bottle left behind and the original prescription—which the doctor denies having written. Beck is struck by a resemblance in the writing and it is at once seen that the letter received by his wife and the prescription are the work of the same hand.

Mystery thus succeeds mystery. The original receiver of the chloroform is traced and arrested, and plucking off his false beard and mustache, we see he is the driver of the auto from Vinay to the inn. Beck's valet had informed him that Mrs. Beck had followed the letter's instructions, and his intention was to stupify her whilst in the car, but Lambert's arrival upset his plan. When all was quiet he drugged the clerk and removed the banknotes, then when Mrs. Beck left her room to talk to the driver of the cart, he seized the opportunity to go into her room. He changed the notes he stole from the clerk for those carried by Mrs. Beck, but left the bottle and some cotton-wool behind him. He states that it was not his intention to kill George Lambert, but an overdose of chloroform was responsible for this.

TRUE FEATURES.

THE MISER'S WARD (Feature Subject—3 parts.) —An old miser sees, with great alarm, that his young and pretty ward is in love with a handsome youth. He knows that upon her marriage he must give up the precious hoard which belongs to his ward, but upon which he has come to look as his own property.

He resorts to all the tricks that miserly guardians have been famous for in romance from time immemorial. He locks the pretty ward in an attic, only to find that love laughs at locksmiths. With the assistance of her daring lover, who thinks nothing of climbing up a wall almost one hundred feet high, she succeeds in escaping. The young Romeo is found to be as resourceful as he is ardent in his love. Scaffolding of his own invention helps him to run away from the old miser. Just when it seems as though the lovers would be caught, they have an improvised ambulance come to their rescue, and at another danger point they escape by giving the old man the scent of the wrong auto. There is, of course, no doubt about the end of all this. After all these hairbreadth escapes by land and by water, the lovers get into the office of the Justice of the Peace just a lap ahead of the old miser.

THE CYCLIST'S LAST LAP (3 parts—Feature Subject).—Surry, the cycler, takes part in a great international motorcycle race and returns winner, and at once becomes a hero to the friends of the sport. Two young girls are rivals for the affection of the great cyclist. One, the love of his youth, and the other the daughter of a powerful cycle manufacturer. He marries the daughter of the latter.

To advertise his cycles, the prospective father-in-law of Surry ties him up with a contract in which he promises never to use any cycle but such as are manufactured by him. Surry is now in the ascendant. Sudden acquisition to wealth does not in any way diminish his love of the sport of motorcycling, and he is again entered in a race more important and sensational than the first, out of which he comes victor. It is in the second race that he establishes the world's record of one-half mile in 52½ seconds. Through a trick of his rejected sweetheart, it is made to appear that Surry has been guilty of a violation of the racing laws, and he is disqualified and heavily fined.

From this time forward, the star of Surry begins to wane. He is barred from most of the courses, and when at last he succeeds in getting an engagement he meets with a fearful accident which for a long time destroys his ability as a rider, and he is greatly distressed by poverty. A rich widow, greatly interested in sports, engages him as her chauffeur. She pets him for a while but soon tires of him. He is again on the rugged edge of poverty. It is, however, a long lane that has no turning. Surry succeeds in saving the life of a woman who was in imminent danger of being killed by a horse. It turns out that the woman he saved was his wife. The prejudices of the father-in-law are now conquered and a reconciliation takes place.

DARE DEVIL DOLLY (3 parts—Feature Release).—Little Dolly Miller has just turned six. Her father being an auto enthusiast and the winner of many prizes, she is anxious to follow in the footsteps of father, and when the latter returns from a great race in which he beat all competitors, the little girl, who has secretly mastered the art of driving, prevails upon her mother to let her drive the car in which they are to ride out to meet the returning father. The father is delighted with the skill shown by his little girl, who shows her cleverness in turning and other difficult feats. Little Dolly insists now on returning home, riding in her own car. The father in a spirit of fun consents and there is a good deal of joking and fooling between the parents and the child, until the father proposes a race. The little girl catches up the idea quickly, but disaster overtakes her almost at once. Her car makes a bad turn and she is thrown into a ditch, barely escaping with her life. The father blames himself for the accident, and upon arriving home, in the presence of all the servants, forbids his child to ever enter an auto again.

Now follow a series of thrilling episodes in which the little girl takes a prominent part and which keep the interest of the spectator keyed up to the highest pitch. Dolly's parents have been invited to attend a banquet given them by an automobile club. While on the road to the club, the parents of Dolly stop to assist a couple, man and wife, who had been severely injured in an accident that has happened to their car. They learn that the name of the injured people is also Miller. The newspapers announce that Mr. and Mrs. Miller have been mortally injured and the message is rushed to the automobile club. The little girl, who thinks her parents have been killed, forgets all else and jumps into her car and starts to drive to the place where the accident happened. While Dolly is gone the Millers appear at the door of the club in the best of health. Then it turns out that Dolly is in her car. She again suffers shipwreck on the road and it would have gone ill with her, had not a good-natured tramp, come to her rescue. The tramp turns out to have been a victim of misfortune, and when his story is learned by Dolly's parents they show their gratitude by giving him permanent employment.

FAMOUS PLAYERS.

TESS OF THE D'URBERVILLES (Feature Subject).—Parson Tringham discovers that John Durbeyfield is the lineal descendant of the ancient and knightly family of the D'Urbervilles. Tess, his eldest daughter, has inherited all the weakness and passions of her ancestors. Durbeyfield abandons himself to a life of ease and indolence, and to advance their financial prospects, Tess is sent to claim relationship with the rich and powerful D'Urbervilles of the adjacent county. Tess encounters Alec D'Urberville, who deceives her, and in humiliation she returns home, where her child is born. The child eventually dies, and Tess makes a determined struggle to reclaim her ruined life. She meets Angel Clare; the two fall in love, and once more her future begins to promise happiness. After their marriage, Angel tells Tess of a former fall from grace, and Tess promptly forgives him and relates her indiscretion with Alec D'Urberville. Shocked by the revelation, Angel leaves her until he can bring himself to forgive her.

Destitute, Tess is again found by D'Urberville. He offers her protection and support, and she again pays the price for existence. In the meantime, Angel's love reasserts itself, and he returns. He finds her in luxury and splendor in D'Urberville's home. Torn with despair as she sees her last chance of happiness slip away, Tess in insane anger kills Alec. Her crime is detected, and she surrenders herself to the law.

In a grim, gray prison, safe at last from the world that had tempted and cursed her, Tess spends the remaining years of her life with her broken heart and shattered hopes, a martyr to man's wrong.

RAMO.

THE WORKER (State Rights—3 parts).—Dissatisfied with conditions at Bradford Mills, the workers protest in vain against the long hours and starvation wages. James Bradford, the autocratic owner, repeatedly refuses to meet their demands, and the natural consequences is a threatened strike.

Bradford's son, Jack, finding home associations disagreeable since his father's second marriage, goes to the city, and the gay life of the cafes and restaurants finds in him, wealthy and alone, a constant and somewhat reckless supporter. The father of Madge Dale, his fiancée, threatens to break off their engagement, and this, coupled with his father's illness and Madge's attitude, moves Jack to return home.

The strike is called. This, together with a bad heart attack, brought on by the accidental shooting of Jameson, one of the most violent workers, causes Mr. Bradford's death. This state of affairs greets Jack on his return; and now by his father's will, being the owner of the mills and the bulk of his father's money, he straightway opens the mills and endeavors to relieve the dire poverty caused by the strike. Jack's step-mother, who is practically ignored by the will, plans with her brother to ruin Jack and dominate the mills.

Jack makes frequent rounds of the poverty-stricken section in his endeavor to better the workers' conditions, the sickness of Mrs. Jameson's little child calling him frequently to her house. In this, the step-mother sees an opportunity to strike at Jack through Jameson, counting on his jealousy, and she causes a false rumor concerning these visits to reach Jameson. She also shows an innocent letter from Mrs. Jameson to Jack so torn by her as to read like a love note. Jameson is fooled, and seeing Jack again with his wife, loses his head and attacks Jack.

Fearing a fatal result from this act, Jameson forces his way into the step-mother's house, seeking aid and protection from her, but she, frightened at his wild appearance and in the endeavor to evade him, falls down the stairs. Jameson, half dazed with this latest catastrophe, and Jack's unexpected appearance, is apprehended. Jack thereupon learns of Jameson's motive for the attack and the step-mother, frightened and injured, admits the plot. Jameson returns to work at Jack's request, a stauncher and wiser worker. Jack receives full credit from Madge for keeping his promise to be a worker,

AMONG THE EXHIBITORS.

Hermosa Beach, Cal.—Gus. Koch, a wealthy Pasadenan, will erect a new moving picture theater building on corner Pier Avenue.

Logansport, Ind.—The Nelson Theater will be reopened to-day, under the management of the C. S. & C. syndicate. E. F. Carruthers, manager.

Orlando, Fla.—W. R. O'Neal and Judge Cheney are reported as to erect a theater to replace present opera house.

Spartanburg, S. C.—F. K. Hottal will lease a moving picture theater on East Main Street, to be erected by Wilmington, N. C. capitalists.

Ishpeming, Mich.—Ed. J. Butler, who recently secured possession of the Ishpeming Theater, will make many improvements in it.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Jno. T. Saunders has been awarded the contract for the erection of a moving picture theater to be built at 733 East Chelton Avenue for Shore and Rubin. Cost, $12,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—William Eckbold & Sons, 707 East Girard Avenue, have plans for moving picture theater to be erected on East Girard Avenue.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Borzner & Wood are preparing plans for moving picture theater for Herman Liberman at corner 27th Street and Girard Avenue.

Lamoni, Iowa.—Last week L. C. Webb sold his interest in the Idle Hour picture show and Ray Chasey has been put in as manager by the new owner, Mr. Webb, retired.

Petoskey, Mich.—The new Temple Theater has just opened for business.

Lancaster, Ohio.—A modern theater to cost $25,000 will be erected by Edward Mithoff on Main Street.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Plans were filed for the erection of the new Knickerbocker Theater at 4040 Market Street. Cost, about $80,000.

New Lexington, Ohio.—S. G. Smith, proprietor of the Theatlrium moving picture theater, has leased the opera house from Frank D. Rarick, and will open it for Fall and Winter season.

Fresno, Cal.—The Empire Theater is being remodeled. Located on J. Street.

"Worth many times the price."

"Would not attempt to run our house without it."

"Cannot afford to miss a single number."

"Read it from cover to cover each week, advertisements and all."

Above are a few extracts from recent letters of subscribers to the

Moving Picture World

It gives the biggest value to its readers. Send your yearly subscriptions direct and have it mailed to your address every week for less than six cents per copy. Domestic $3.00. Canada $3.50. Foreign $4.00.

Moving Picture World
17 Madison Avenue, New York City

DATE BOOK from Sept., 1913, to Sept., 1914, including names and locations of our 700 Theatres, Supply Houses and amusement places in Chicago. Vest pocket size. Prepaid, 25 cents. Address

CHAS. D. McCUTCHEON
3105 Hanssen Court Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE

500 Trust Reels in first class condition

$15.00 per reel and up.

Commercial Service $1.00 per reel per day.

SCHILLER FEATURE FILM CO.
140 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

WE CONTROL BOOKINGS

In Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Iowa

"ON THE STEPS OF THE THRONE" in four parts.

"SALOME" in three parts.

"NEMESIS" in three parts

"ON THE TRAIL OF THE SPIDER GANG" in three parts.

Coming—"THE BLACK SNAKE" in four parts.

Write for our complete list.

SCHILLER FEATURE FILM CO.
140 N. Dearborn St. Chicago, Ill.
Agents for Lapins Dramagraph

INDEX

TO CONTENTS.

ADVERTISING FOR EXHIBITORS....1167
AMONG THE PICTURE THEATERS....1181
AT THE SIGN OF THE FLAMING ARCS....1179

BUFFALO....1198

CALENDAR OF LICENSED RELEASES....1190
CALENDAR OF INDEPENDENT RELEASES..1188
CHICAGO LETTER....1161
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Licensed)....1175
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Independent)..1176
CORRESPONDENCE....1194

FACTS AND COMMENTS....1151
FOREIGN TRADE NOTES....1164

GET OFF AT "LUBIN"....1159
"GHOST OF THE HACIENDA, THE" (American)....1154

ILLINOIS....1194
INDIANA....1198
INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES....1214
INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES....1224
IN THE NORTHWEST....1198
IN THE SOUTHWEST....1196
INQUIRIES....1170
IOWA....1198

JAMES WILLIAMSON....1164

LICENSED FILM STORIES....1200
LICENSED RELEASE DATES....1226
LOUISVILLE....1194

MANUFACTURERS' ADVANCE NOTES....1184
MRS. FISKE TRIUMPHS AS "TESS"....1155
MICHIGAN....1198
MOVING PICTURE EDUCATOR....1158
MUSIC FOR THE PICTURE....1180

NEW ENGLAND AND CANADA....1196

OHIO....1194

PHOTOPLAY PRINCIPLES....1152
PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT, THE....1169
PROJECTION DEPARTMENT....1171

REAL ENEMY, THE....1153
"RED POWDER, THE" (Apex)....1157

"SILENT HEROES" (Broncho)....1156
SLIDE ADVERTISING....1178
SPRINGFIELD, ILL.....1198
STAR THEATER, ITHACA, N. Y.....1166
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Licensed)....1200
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Independent)....1214

TRAGEDY OF REV. H. GOODWIN, THE....1165
"TWICKENHAM FERRY" (Reliance)....1157
"TWO SERGEANTS, THE" (Pasquali)....1163

TO ADVERTISERS.

CARBON IMPORTERS.
FRORUP, L. E....1213
KIEWERT, L. C....1228
REISINGER, HUGO....1223

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.
AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO....1218
BELL & HOWELL....1213
CALEHUFF SUPPLY CO....1213
DELANEY SPECIALTY MFG. CO....1209
DETROIT MOTOR CARS CO....1219
FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC CO....1219
GENERAL ELECTRIC CO....1225
HALLBERG, J. H....1209
HOKE, GEO. M....1216
KLEINE OPTICAL CO....1223
LAVEZZI....1210
MOORE & HUBBLE....1186
PICTURE THEATRE EQUIPMENT CO....1210
SCHNEIDER, E....1210
SMITH, L. C. & CO....1213
STRELINGER, CHARLES A....1210
WESTINGHOUSE ELECT. MFG. CO....1206

MISCELLANEOUS FEATURES.
ALMO F. F. CO....1229
AMBROSIO FILM CO....1192
APEX FILM CO....1232-33
BATTLE OF WATERLOO....1230-31
BUFFALO F. F. CO....1186
COPENHAGEN F. CO....1207
CONSCIENCE FILM CO....1217
ECLECTIC FILM CO....1197
FAMOUS PLAYERS....1138-9
FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM CO. OF NEW ENGLAND....1201
FAMOUS PLAYER FILM SERVICE....1207
FILM RELEASES OF AMERICA....1203
FORT DEFIANCE F. F. CO....1215
FULLER'S CHAS L., DISTRIBUTING CO....1211
GENERAL FILM CO....1142-43
GREAT NORTHERN SPECIAL F. F. CO....1228
NEW YORK FILM CO....1202
PASQUALI FILM CO....1140-41
SUPREME F. F. CO....1215
TRUE FEATURES....1199
VIVAPHONE CO....1217

FILM BROKERS.
INTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS....1216
WESTERN FILM BROKERS....1212-16

FIREPROOF APPARATUS.
JOHNS-MANVILE CO., H. W....1215
TRAINER, C. W....1229

FILM EXCHANGES.
BRADENBURG, G. W....1215
EXCLUSIVE FILM SUPPLY CORP....1193
EXCLUSIVE FILM CO....1213
GUNBY BROS....1218
HETZ, L....1216
LAEMMLE FILM CO....1208
M. & F. FILM SERVICE....1204
NORTHERN FEATURE FILM EXCHANGE...1229
SCHILLER F. F. CO....1221
WICHITA FILM & SUPPLY CO....1204

INDEPENDENT FILM MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN....1136
BRONCHO FILM CO....1137
CRYSTAL FILM CO....1216
ECLAIR FILM CO....1235
GAUMONT CO....1195
KAY-BEE....1137
KEYSTONE....1137
MAJESTIC....1234
PEERLESS M. P. CO....1189
SOLAX....1134-5
THANHOUSER....1130
UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURERS....1132-3

LICENSED FILM MANUFACTURERS.
EDISON....1147
ESSANAY....1131
KALEM....1150
KINEMACOLOR CO....1205
KLEINE, GEO....1145
LUBIN....1148
MELIES....1235
PATHE FRERES....1146
SELIG....1144
VITAGRAPH....1149

LENS MANUFACTURERS.
BAUSCH & LOMB....1217

MISCELLANEOUS.
ADVANCE M. P. CO....1229
AMERICAN CINEMATOGRAPH CO....1218
BUSHMAN, FRANCIS....1228
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS....1187
CLEVELAND, W. S....1213
COMMERCIAL M. P. CO....1204
CORCORAN, A. J....1212
DERSHIMER & GRELLE....1215
DOWNTOWN AMUSEMENT CO....1207
EASTMAN KODAK CO....1228
GARFIELD, H. J....1203
HETTEBERG, STEVE....1215
KRAUSE MFG. CO....1204
LINICK, F., THEATRICAL AGENCY....1213
McCRAY & McCRAY....1229
McCUTCHEON, C. D....1221
MESTRUM, HENRY....1217
M. P. CAMERA CO....1204
NATIONAL TICKET CO....1224
NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO....1217
PARISIAN MFG. & FILM RENOVATING CO..1216
PREDDY, W. G....1217
RAW FILM SUPPLY CO....1217
SARGENT, E. W....1206
STANGE, A. C....1239
STELZER BROS....1212
THEATRE BROKERAGE EXCHANGE....1229
TRADE CIRCULAR ADDRESSING CO....1211
VONNEGUT HDW. CO....1215
ZENITH MFG. CO....1204

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
AMERICAN PHOTOPLAYER SALES CO....1212
DEAGAN, J. C....1211
SINN, C. E....1208
WURLITZER, RUDOLPH....1211
WELTE, M. & SON....1201

PROJECTION MACHINES.
EDISON....1147
MOTIOGRAPH....1229
POWERS....1236
SIMPLEX....1191

OPERA CHAIR MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN SEATING CO....1219
ANDREWS, A. H....1219
BENNETT SEATING CO....1219
HARDESTY....1219
STEEL FURNITURE CO....1219
WISCONSIN SEATING CO....1219

POSTERS & FRAMES.
A. B. C....1222
AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO....1226
EXHIBITORS' ADV. & SPECIALTY CO....1190
GENERAL FILM CO....1227
McKENNA BROS. BRASS CO....1216
NEWMAN....1212
THEATRE SPECIALTY MFG. CO....1218

PROJECTION SCREENS.
AMERICAN THEATRE CURTAIN CO....1205
GENTER, J. H....1209
MIRROR SCREEN CO....1213
SIMPSON SOLAR SCREENS....1212

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.
DECORATORS' SUPPLY CO....1229

ONE, THREE and SIX SHEET POSTERS Now Ready for

Lubin's Two Reel Subject "THE CLOD" Released Sept. 18th

Kalem's Two Reel Subject "TROOPER BILLY" Released Sept. 17th (Two Styles of One Sheets for this)

ALSO THE FOLLOWING LARGE SIZE POSTERS FOR THE RELEASES OF THE WEEK OF SEPT. 15th to 20th

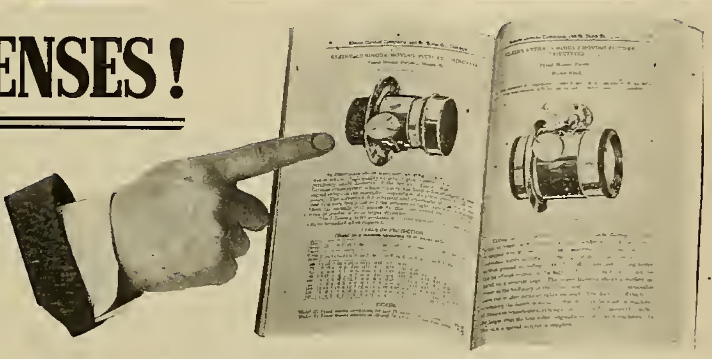
KALEM
3-Sheet RETRIBUTION
6-Sheet BREATH OF SCANDAL

LUBIN--1 and 3 Sheets
TO LOVE AND CHERISH
FASHION'S TOY
THE LOVE OF BEAUTY
HIS REWARD

BIOGRAPH--3-Sheets
His Hoodoo
The Stolen Treaty
For the Son of the House

A. B. C. COMPANY -:- -:- Cleveland, Ohio

SEE THESE LENSES!



A CHEAP service will produce clean-cut, stereoscopic pictures if projected through a good lens—an EXPENSIVE service demands good lens if you must obtain your money's worth.

LENSES FROM
$6.00 to $325!

We offer you the widest possible range of choice. We SPECIALIZE in Projection Lenses—from the most inexpensive to the finest manufactured. Perhaps you require an additional lens—want a better one or an extra for emergencies?—if so, deal direct and obtain the benefit of wholesale prices.

WRITE FOR OUR WONDERFUL FREE CATALOGUE

just from the press, containing 166 pages, printed on a fancy enameled stock, profusely illustrated and containing information invaluable to the theatre-owner or the man who expects to be.

IF YOU REDECORATE OR BUILD

you will need this handy little book every minute. Not a dull, dry price-list, but a compendium of live suggestions for making your house more beautiful, more comfortable, more up-to-date—increasing its dividend power two-fold. Also—the largest and most complete list of theatre equipment, with prices and description. Within its covers you will find lists of every possible item from tickets to curtain.

THERE ARE NO STRINGS TO THIS OFFER. IT'S FREE. JUST DROP A LINE AND SAY "SEND US CATALOGUE." ADDRESS DEPT. W.

KLEINE OPTICAL CO.

166 N. State Street GEO. KLEINE, President Chicago, Illinois

"ELECTRA" CARBONS
MADE ESPECIALLY FOR MOVING PICTURE WORK
ELECTRA
PINK LABEL
TRADE MARK
GUARANTEE OF PERFECT PROJECTION FOR A.C. & D.C.

"ELECTRA"—a pledge of quality. The name "Electra" has stood for the best projector carbon since the beginning of the motion picture industry.

Sold by exchanges and supply houses everywhere.

HUGO REISINGER

11 BROADWAY. NEW YORK.

INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES

AMERICAN.
Aug. 30—Jack Meets His Waterloo (Drama)..1000
Sept. 1—While There's Life (Drama).........1000
Sept. 4—The Poisoned Chop (Drama).........1000
Sept. 6—Mysterious Eyes (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 8—For the Crown (Drama).............1000
Sept. 11—Through the Neighbor's Window (Comedy) 1000
Sept. 13—Red Sweeney's Defeat (Drama).....1000
Sept. 15—Calamity Anne, Heroine (Drama)...1000
Sept. 18—A Fall Into Luck (Drama)..........
Sept. 20—Jim Takes a Chance (Comedy)......
Sept. 20—Travelers of the Road (Drama)....

AMBROSIO.
June 28—The Exploits of the Randin Gang (2 Parts—Drama) ....
July 6—The Little Puppet Seller (2 Parts—Drama) ....
July 12—In the Hands of Conspirators (2 Parts Drama) ....
July 19—The Triumph of Strength (2 Parts—Drama) ....
July 26—The Missionary's Sister (2 Parts—Dr.)

BISON.
Aug. 16—Soldiers Three (2 Parts—Drama)....
Aug. 19—The Iron Trail (2 parts—Drama)..
Aug. 26—The Mystery of Yellow Aster Mine (2 parts—Drama) ....
Aug. 30—The Gratitude of Wanda (2 parts—Drama).............................
Sept. 2—Pelleas and Melisande (3 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 6—The Love of Men (2 parts—Drama)..
Sept. 9—A Forest Romance (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 13—Wandering Folk (2 parts—Drama)..
Sept. 16—In the Coils of the Python (2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 20—Through the Window (2 parts—Dr.)

BRONCHO.
Aug. 13—The Quakeress (2 parts—Drama)....
Aug. 20—The Heritage of Eve (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 27—The Madcap (2 parts—Drama)......
Aug. 31—The Broken Thread (Drama).........
Sept. 3—The Gambler's Pal (Drama)..........
Sept. 7—May and December (Drama).........
Sept. 10—The Judge's Son (Drama)...........
Sept. 17—The Land of Dead Things (2 parts—Drama) ....

CRYSTAL.
Sept. 2—Much Ado About Nothing (Comedy)..
Sept. 2—Baldy Belmont and the Old Maid (Comedy)..........................
Sept. 7—Lost in the Night (Drama)...........
Sept. 9—Pleasing Her Husband (Comedy)....
Sept. 9—Some Luck (Comedy)...............
Sept. 14—The Hand of Providence (Drama)....
Sept. 16—A News Item (Comedy)...........
Sept. 16—A Bachelor's Finish (Comedy)......
Sept. 21—Misplaced Love (Drama).............

DRAGON.
June 30—Our Future Heroes (Topical)..........1000
July 7—The Ticket of Leave Man (2 parts—Drama)..............................
July 14—The Organist (Drama)..............
July 21—Memories of Long Ago (Drama)......
July 28—The Bride of the Sea (Drama)......

ECLAIR.
Aug. 24—Thirteen at Table (Comedy)..........
Aug. 24—Sea Worms (Scientific)..............
Aug. 27—The Better Father (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 31—The Runaway Uncle (Comedy)......
Sept. 3—Steel (2 parts—Drama)..............
Sept. 7—A Vegetarian's Dream (Comedy)....
Sept. 7—The Habits of Field Spiders (Scientific)
Sept. 10—The Banker's Daughter (2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 14—A Pawnee Romance (Drama)........
Sept. 14—Hydrogen (Scientific) ....
Sept. 17—Rob-Roy (3 parts—Drama)..........
Sept. 21—Stung (Comedy)....................
Sept. 21—Curious Fish (Zoology)..............

FRONTIER.
Aug. 9—On the Ranger's Roll of Honor (Dr.)
Aug. 14—The Suffragette Tames the Bandit (Comedy) ....
Aug. 16—The Retribution of Ysobel (Drama)...
Aug. 21—Sailing Under False Colors (Comedy)
Aug. 23—The Eyes of the God of Friendship (Drama) ....
Aug. 28—A Much Wanted Baby (Comedy)....
Aug. 30—Maya—Just An Indian (Drama)....
Sept. 4—Flirty Florence (Comedy)............
Sept. 6—The Surgeon of Abajo (Drama)......
Sept. 11—Dorothea and the Chief Razamataz (Comedy) ....
Sept. 13—On Forbidden Paths (Drama).......
Sept. 18—The Juvenile Kidnappers (Comedy)..
Sept. 20—The Ranchman's Double (Drama)...

GAUMONT.
Aug. 19—An Explorer's Tragedy (Drama)....
Aug. 20—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 76 (News)..
Aug. 21—A Tree Mendous Proposition (Com.)
Aug. 26—Saved by His Child (Drama).........
Aug. 27—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 77 (News)...
Aug. 28—Two Jilted Lovers (Comedy).........
Sept. 2—The Fatal Bell (Drama)..............
Sept. 3—Gaumont's Weekly No. 79 (News)..
Sept. 4—"Some" Fireman (Comedy)..........
Sept. 9—An Actor's Adventure (Drama)......
Sept. 10—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 80 (News)..
Sept. 11—Love Me, Love My Animals (Comedy)

GEM.
Aug. 4—Bob's Baby (Comedy)................
Aug. 11—A New Way to Win a Girl (Comedy).
Aug. 18—The Would-be Detective (Comedy)...
Aug. 18—The Elks at Rochester (Topical).....
Aug. 25—What Girls Will Do (Comedy)......
Sept. 1—A tale of a Fish (Comedy)..........
Sept. 8—The Gold Mesh Bag (Comedy)......
Sept. 15—The Manicure (Comedy)............
Sept. 15—Sam's Despondency (Comedy).......

GREAT NORTHERN.
Aug. 2—A Shot in the Dark (Drama).........
Aug. 9—The Five Copies (Comedy)............
Aug. 16—A Mistaken Identity..................
Aug. 23—The Hypnotist (Comedy).............
Aug. 23—From the South of Sweden (Travel)..
Aug. 30—Faded Beauties (Comedy)............
Sept. 6—A Girl Graduate (Comedy)..........

GREAT NORTHERN (Universal).
June 28—The Flying Circus (3 parts, Drama)..
July 26—The Governor's Daughter (2 parts—Drama)............................
Aug. 23—The Great Circus Catastrophe (3 parts—Drama) ....

IMP.
Sept. 1—The Trail of the Serpent (Drama)....
Sept. 4—The Pursuit of Jane (Comedy-Drama)
Sept. 6—Binks, the Hawkshaw (Comedy).....
Sept. 6—Humors of Summer, by Hy Mayer (Novelty)..........................
Sept. 8—Robespierre (3 parts—Drama)........
Sept. 11—The Shells (Drama)..................
Sept. 13—Binks Elevates the Stage (Comedy)..
Sept. 13—Hy Mayer Cartoons (Novelty).......
Sept. 15—Fatal Verdict (Drama)............
Sept. 18—Escaped from the Asylum (2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 20—Binks and the Bathing Girls (Com.)
Sept. 20—Antics in Ink by Hy Mayer (Novelty)

KAY-BEE.
Aug. 15—The Flame in the Ashes (2 parts—Drama) ....
Aug. 22—An Orphan of War (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 29—The Green Shadow (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 5—The Ironmaster (2 parts—Drama)...
Sept. 12—The Waif (Drama)................
Sept. 19—The Reformation (Drama)..........
Sept. 26—A Cowtown Reformation (Comedy-Drama) ....

KEYSTONE.
Aug. 14—A Chip of the Old Block (Comedy).
Aug. 18—(No Release this date).
Aug. 21—The Firebugs (Comedy)..............
Aug. 25—Baby Day (Comedy)..................
Aug. 28—Mabel's New Hero (Comedy)........
Sept. 1—Fatty's Day Off (Comedy)..........
Sept. 1—Los Angeles Harbor, Cal. (Travel)..
Sept. 4—The New Baby (Comedy)............

LUX.
Aug. 15—The Poisoned Dagger (Drama)........
Aug. 22—Over the Garden Wall (Comedy)....
Aug. 22—The Registered Letter (Comedy).....
Aug. 29—His Chance (Drama)............... 950
Sept. 5—A Timely Reminder (Drama)......... 910
Sept. 12—The Tax on Bachelors (Comedy)..... 455
Sept. 12—Arabella's Rival (Comedy).......... 540

MAJESTIC.
Aug. 23—Bashful Bachelor Bill (Com.-Dr.)..
Aug. 24—The Lady Killer (Comedy)...........
Aug. 26—One Round O'Brien's Flirtation (Com.)
Aug. 30—(Title Not Reported).
Aug. 31—A Trade Secret (Drama)............
Sept. 2—A Perilous Ride (Drama)...........
Sept. 2—The Great Santa Monica Road Race (Topical) ....
Sept. 6—The Turkish Bath (Comedy)........
Sept. 7—The Heart of a Fool (Drama)....
Sept. 9—The Frame-up (Drama).............
Sept. 13—For His Loved One (Drama)......

MUTUAL WEEKLY.
Aug. 13—Mutual Weekly, No. 33 (News).....
Aug. 20—Mutual Weekly No. 34.............
Aug. 27—Mutual Weekly No. 35..............
Sept. 1—Mutual Weekly No. 36..............
Sept. 8—Mutual Weekly No. 37..............

MUTUAL EDUCATIONAL.
July 24—Does Gontran Snore? (Comedy).......
July 24—Through Turkey; the Black Sea (Travel) ....
July 31—Funnicus Wins the Race (Comedy)...
July 31—Microscopic Animalculae Found in Stagnant Water (Scientific).......

NESTOR.
Aug. 29—Cupid's Bad Aim (Comedy)........
Aug. 29—Two Hearts and a Thief (Comedy)
Sept. 1—The Oath of Conchita (2 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 3—Gold and Water (Drama)...........
Sept. 5—Won by a Skirt (Comedy)...........
Sept. 8—Poisoned Waters (Drama)...........
Sept. 10—Algy Forfeits His Claim (Comedy)..
Sept. 10—Views of Stockholm (Scenic)........
Sept. 12—The Girl Ranchers (Comedy).......
Sept. 15—Beauty and the Ugly One (Drama)..
Sept. 17—The Stepson (Drama)...............
Sept. 19—The Battle of Bull Cou (Comedy)..

POWERS.
Aug. 27—Everybody's Wearing Them (Com.)
Aug. 29—The Folly of It All (Drama).......
Sept. 3—The Surrender (Comedy-Drama)......
Sept. 5—The Reincarnation of a Soul (Drama)
Sept. 10—Mother (Drama) ....
Sept. 12—In the Cycle of Life (Drama)......
Sept. 17—The Pearl of the Golden West (Com.)
Sept. 19—The Doctor's Story (Drama).........

PILOT.
July 24—The Sure Tip (Comedy).............. 500
July 24—The Bug Professor (Comedy)........ 500
July 31—Loyal Hearts (Drama)..............1000
Aug. 7—The Green-Eyed Monster (Com.-Dr.)..1000
Aug. 14—(Title Not Reported.)
Aug. 21—(Title Not Reported).
Aug. 28—Getting the Evidence (Drama)......

RAMO.
Aug. 6—Checkered Lives (Drama)............1000
Aug. 13—Love and Gold (Drama)..............1000
Aug. 20—Dangerous Sympathy (Drama).......1000
Aug. 27—The Springtime of Love (Drama).....1000
Sept. 1—The Worker (State Rights—3 parts—Drama)............................3000
Sept. 3—The Black Opal (Drama)............1000

RELIANCE.
Aug. 23—Success (2 parts—Drama)..........
Aug. 25—The Girl Spy's Atonement (Drama)..
Aug. 27—Peg of the Polly P (Comedy-Drama)..
Aug. 30—The Social Secretary (Drama).......
Sept. 1—Feeney's Social Experiment (Comedy).
Sept. 3—(No Release This Date).
Sept. 6—The Glow Worm (3 parts—Drama)..
Sept. 8—Between Home and Country (Drama)
Sept. 10—(No Release this Date)............
Sept. 13—The Clown's Daughter (2 parts—Dr.)

REX.
Aug. 28—A Woman's Stratagem (Drama)......
Aug. 31—The Call (Drama)..................
Sept. 4—The Evil Power (2 parts—Drama)....
Sept. 7—The Light Woman (Drama)..........
Sept. 11—The Diamond Makers (2 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 14—The Fight Against Evil (Drama)...
Sept. 18—Never Again (Drama)...............
Sept. 21—The Wall of Money (2 parts—Dr.)..

SOLAX.
Aug. 27—A Terrible Night (Comedy)..........
Aug. 29—A Child's Institution (Drama)......
Sept. 3—Men and Muslin (Comedy)..........
Sept. 5—Retribution (Drama) ....
Sept. 10—Dooley and His Dog (Comedy)......
Sept. 12—Gratitude (Drama) ....
Sept. 17—Invisible Ink (Comedy)..............
Sept. 19—Western Love (Drama)..............

THANHOUSER.
Aug. 29—A Spartan Father (Drama)..........
Aug. 31—Frazzled Finance (Comedy-Drama)....
Sept. 2—The Veteran Police Horse (2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 5—(No Release This Date).
Sept. 7—His Last Bet (Comedy)............
Sept. 9—Taming Their Grandchildren..........
Sept. 12—The Message to Headquarters (Drama)
Sept. 7—His Last Bet (Comedy)...........
Sept. 9—Taming Their Grandchildren (Comedy-Drama) ....
Sept. 12—The Message to Headquarters (3 parts—Drama) ....

VICTOR.
Aug. 15—The Heart of a Jewess (2 Parts-Dr.)
Aug. 22—The Ghost (Drama).................1000
Aug. 29—His Vacation (Comedy-Drama)......
Sept. 5—The Lost Copperhead (Comedy)......
Sept. 12—A Bride from the Sea (2 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 19—Percy H. Baldwin, Trifler (Drama)..

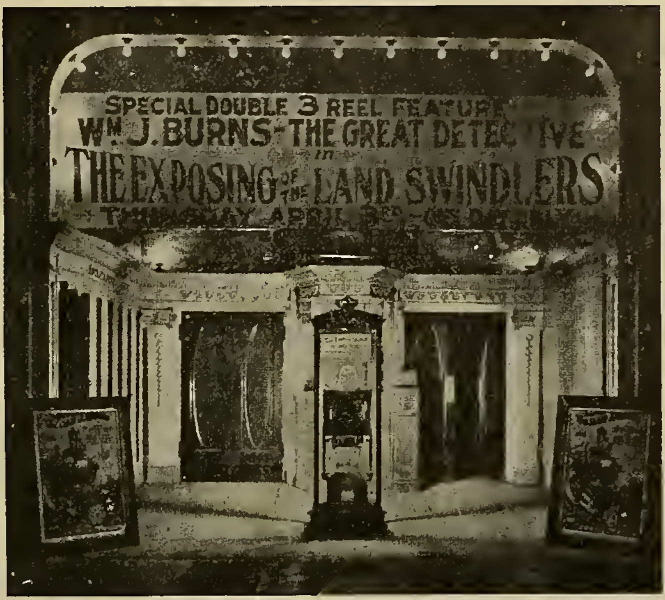
ROLL TICKETS

PRICES
Five Thousand - - $1.25
Ten Thousand - - $2.50
Twenty Thousand - - $4.50
Twenty-five Thousand - $5.50
Fifty Thousand - - $6.50
One Hundred Thousand - $8.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000, $2.50. Stock Tickets, 6c per 1,000. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
SHAMOKIN, PA.

The Trade Mark of the Largest Electrical Manufacturer in The World.



SPECIAL DOUBLE 3 REEL FEATURE
Wm. J. BURNS - THE GREAT DETECTIVE
in
THE EXPOSING of the LAND SWINDLERS
THURSDAY APRIL 3RD

A G-E Rectifier Will Advertise Your Theater

A G-E Rectifier in operation in front of the entrance of a moving picture theater is an excellent advertisement. Any mechanical device in operation attracts attention, and the peculiar greenish blue light given off by the rectifier is noticeable even on the most brilliantly lighted streets. In addition, the presence of the rectifier indicates to those who are well informed that the pictures will be projected by the most modern method, and therefore they will be of maximum brilliancy.

The G-E Rectifier not only advertises the theater and improves the projection of the pictures, but it also reduces the expense of operating the lamp by eliminating rheostat losses.

Write our nearest office for booklet B-3107 explaining the operation and advantages of the rectifier.

General Electric Company

LARGEST ELECTRICAL MANUFACTURER IN THE WORLD

General Office: Schenectady, N. Y.

ADDRESS NEAREST OFFICE

Atlanta, Ga.
Baltimore, Md.
Birmingham, Ala.
Boise. Idaho
Boston, Mass.
Buffalo. N. Y.
Butte, Mont.
Charleston, W. Va.
Charlotte, N. C.
Chattanooga, Tenn.
Chicago, Ill.
Cincinnati, Ohio
Cleveland, Ohio
Columbus, Ohio
Davenport, Iowa
Dayton, Ohio
Denver, Colo.
Detroit, Mich.
(Office of Agent)
Elmira, N. Y.
Erie, Pa.
Indianapolis, Ind.
Jacksonville, Fla.
Joplin, Mo.
Kansas City, Mo.
Keokuk, Iowa
Knoxville, Tenn.
Los Angeles, Cal.
Louisville, Ky.
Mattoon, Ill.
Memphis, Tenn.
Milwaukee, Wis.
Minneapolis, Minn.
Nashville, Tenn.
New Haven, Conn.
New Orleans, La.
New York, N. Y.
Omaha, Neb.
Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburg, Pa.
Portland, Ore.
Providence, R. I.
Richmand, Va.
Rochester, N. Y.
Salt Lake City, Utah
San Francisco, Cal.
St. Louis, Mo.
Schenectady, N. Y.
Seattle, Wash.
Spokane, Wash.
Springfield, Mass.
Syracuse, N. Y.
Toledo, Ohio
Washington, D. C.
Youngstown, Ohio

For Texas and Oklahoma business refer to Southwest General Electric Co., (formerly Hobson Electric Co.)—Dallas, El Paso, Houston and Oklahoma City.

For Canadian business refer to Canadian General Electric Company, Lt'd, Toronto, Ont. 4043

This Trade Mark The Guarantee of Excellence on Goods Electrical.

LICENSED RELEASE DATES

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Edison, Kalem, Lubin, Patheplay, Selig, Vitagraph (Special).

Tuesday—Edison, Essanay, Patheplay, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

Wednesday—Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Patheplay, Vitagraph (Special).

Thursday — Biograph, Essanay, Lubin, Melies, Patheplay, Selig, Vitagraph.

Friday—Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Patheplay, Lubin, Vitagraph (Special).

Saturday—Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Patheplay, Vitagraph (Special).

BIOGRAPH.

Aug. 23—Two Men of the Desert (Drama)....
Aug. 25—The Crook and the Girl (Drama).....
Aug. 28—Objections Overruled (Comedy).......
Aug. 28—Black and White ,(Comedy).........
Aug. 30—The Adopted Brother (Drama)........
Sept. 1—Among Club Fellows (Comedy)......
Sept. 1—Edwin's Badge of Honor (Comedy)..
Sept. 4—A Woman in the Ultimate (Drama)..
Sept. 6—The Strong Man's Burden (Drama)..
Sept. 8—A Modest Hero (Drama)............
Sept. 11—Baby Indisposed (Comedy)..........
Sept. 11—The Lady in Black (Comedy)........
Sept. 13—An Unjust Suspicion (Drama).......
Sept. 15—His Hoodoo (Comedy)...............
Sept. 15—Dan Greegan's Ghost (Comedy)......
Sept. 18—The Stolen Treaty (Drama)..........
Sept. 20—For the Son of the House (Drama)..

EDISON.

Aug. 22—The Mystery of West Sedgwick (Special—2 parts—Drama).............2000
Aug. 23—A Proposal from the Spanish Don (Being the second story of 'Who Will Marry Mary"—Drama).......1000
Aug. 25—A Mutual Understanding (Drama)....1000
Aug. 26—A Mistake in Judgment (Com.-Dr.)...1000
Aug. 27—Quaint Spots in Cairo, Egypt (Travel) 400
Aug. 27—Zeb's Musical Career (Comedy)...... 600
Aug. 29—Joyce of the North Woods (Special—2 parts—Drama)...................2000
Aug. 30—The Ghost of Granleigh (Drama)....1000
Sept. 1—The Younger Regeneration (Comedy)..1000
Sept. 2—The Grecian Vase (Phantasy)........1000
Sept. 3—A Series of Tallulah Falls (Scenic).. 225
Sept. 3—The Girl, the Clown and the Donkey (Comedy)............................ 775
Sept. 5—The Awakening of the Man (Special—2 parts—Drama) 1000
Sept. 6—Slander's Tongue (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 8—Keepers of the Flock (Drama)......1000
Sept. 9—A Light on Troubled Waters (Drama).1000
Sept. 10—The Desperate Condition of Mr. Boggs (Comedy)..........................1000
Sept. 12—Caste (Special—2 parts—Drama)....2000
Sept. 13—The Green Eye of the Yellow God (Drama)............................1000
Sept. 15—The Island of Perversity (Comedy)..1000
Sept. 16—Jerusalem and the Holy Land (Scenic).1000
Sept. 17—Cornwall, the English Riviera (Scenic) 400
Sept. 17—The Comedian's Downfall (Comedy).. 600
Sept. 19—Saved by the Enemy (Special—2 parts—Drama).........................2000
Sept. 20—The Great Physician (Drama).......1000

ESSANAY.

Aug. 19—The Man in the Cabin (Drama)......1000
Aug. 19—The Whip Hand (Drama)...........1000
Aug. 20—The Accidental Bandit (Comedy)....
Aug. 20—Making Hay with Modern Machinery (Industrial)......................
Aug. 21—The Sheriff of Cochise (Drama)....1000
Aug. 22—The Power of Conscience (Special—2 parts—Drama)...................2000
Aug. 23—Broncho Billy's Mistake (Drama)..1000
Aug. 26—The Love Theft (Drama)............1000
Aug. 27—His Athletic Wife (Comedy).........
Aug. 27—What Cupid Did (Comedy)..........
Aug. 28—The Episode at Cloudy Canyon (Dr.)..1000
Aug. 29—Broken Threads United (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Aug. 30—A Western Sister's Devotion (Drama)1000
Sept. 2—Stone the Woman (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 3—Mr. Dippy Dipped (Comedy).........1000
Sept. 4—Hard Luck Bill (Comedy)...........1000
Sept. 5—While the Starlight Travels (Special—2 parts—Drama)...................2000
Sept. 6—Broncho Billy's Conscience (Drama)..1000
Sept. 9—Sunlight (Drama)...................1000
Sept. 10—The Treater's Treat (Comedy).......1000
Sept. 11—Bonnie of the Hills (Drama).........1000
Sept. 12—Grist to the Mill (Special—2 parts—Drama)...........................2000
Sept. 13—Broncho Billy Reforms (Drama)......1000
Sept. 16—Women (Drama)......................1000
Sept. 17—Sweet Revenge (Comedy)...........
Sept. 17—The Duck Raising Industry (Zoology)
Sept. 18—The Broken Parole (Drama).........1000
Sept. 19—The Right of Way (Special—2 parts—Drama)...........................2000
Sept. 20—The Redeemed Claim (Drama).......1000

KALEM.

Aug. 22—Fool Luck (Comedy)................
Aug. 22—Deceiving Uncle Asa (Comedy)......
Aug. 23—The Smuggler's Last Deal (Drama).
Aug. 25—The Blind Basket Weaver (Drama)..1000
Aug. 27—The Invaders (Special—2 parts—Dr.)2000
Aug. 29—The Captivating Widow (Comedy)...
Aug. 29—Mike, the Timid Cop (Comedy)......
Aug. 30—A Railroad Conspiracy (Drama)......1000
Sept. 1—The Christian (Drama)..............1000
Sept. 3—The Sacrifice at the Spillway (Special—2 parts—Drama)................2000
Sept. 5—Boggs' Predicament (Comedy).......
Sept. 5—Children of the Tenements (Topical).
Sept. 6—The Hand of Destiny (Drama)......1000
Sept. 8—The Bribe (Drama)..................1000
Sept. 10—The Fatal Legacy (Special—2 parts—Drama)...........................2000
Sept. 12—Wanted—A Plumber (Comedy).......
Sept. 12—Too Many Cops (Comedy)..........
Sept. 13—The Monogrammed Cigarette (Drama)1000
Sept. 15—Retribution (Drama)................1000
Sept. 17—Trooper Billy (Special—2 parts—Dr.).2000
Sept. 19—The Burglar and the Baby (Comedy).
Sept. 19—One Best Bet (Comedy).............
Sept. 20—The Breath of Scandal (Drama).....1000

GEORGE KLEINE.

July 25—Honor Thy Father (Cines special—2 parts Drama).......................
Aug. 8—By Unseen Hands (Special—2 parts—Drama—Cines) ....
Aug. 12—The Mong-Fa-Tong (Eclipse—Special—2 Parts—Comedy-Drama)..........
Aug. 19—The Clown's Revenge (Eclipse—Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Aug. 26—The Human Bridge (Cines Special—2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 2—The Sign of the Black Lily (Cines—2 parts—Drama—Special) ....
Sept. 9—The Mysterious Man (Cines—2 parts—Drama—Special)..................
Sept. 16—High Treason (Cines—Special 2 parts—Drama)............................
Sept. 23—For His Brother's Crime (Cines—Special—2 parts—Drama).........

LUBIN.

Aug. 23—The Tenderfoot Hero (Drama)......1000
Aug. 25—On the Dumb Waiter (Comedy)......
Aug. 25—Her Wooden Leg (Comedy)..........
Aug. 26—The Reformed Outlaw (Drama).......1000
Aug. 28—The Gangster (Special—2 parts—Dr.)1000
Aug. 29—His Conscience (Drama).............1000
Aug. 30—The Last Crooked Deal (Drama)......1000
Sept. 1—A Mountain Mother (Drama).........1000
Sept. 2—The Engaging Kid (Comedy).........
Sept. 2—Trimming a Boob (Comedy)..........
Sept. 4—The Road to the Dawn (Special—2 parts—Drama)......................2000
Sept. 5—In the Southland (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 6—In the Toils (Drama)................1000
Sept. 8—Seeds of Wealth (Drama)............1000
Sept. 9—Playing With Fire (Drama)..........1000
Sept. 11—The Hills of Strife (Special—2 parts—Drama)...........................2000
Sept. 12—Panama Hat Industry (Industrial)... 400
Sept. 12—An Exclusive Pattern (Comedy)...... 600
Sept. 13—The Medal of Honor (Drama)........1000
Sept. 15—To Love and Cherish (Drama)........1000
Sept. 16—Fashion's Toy (Drama)..............1000
Sept. 16—The Clod (Special—2 parts—Drama).2000
Sept. 19—The Love of Beauty (Drama).......1000
Sept. 20—Her Present (Comedy).............. 400
Sept. 20—His Reward (Comedy)............... 600

MELIES.

July 17—The Poisoned Darts (Drama).........
July 17—A Chinese Funeral (Typical).........
July 24—Javanese Dancers (Manners and Customs)...............................1000
July 31—It Happened in Java (Comedy-Drama) 1000
Aug. 7—Snapshots of Java (Scenic).........1000
Aug. 14—The Robber of Angkor (Drama).....1000
Aug. 21—In the Land of Fire (Drama).......1000
Aug. 28—Lost in Cambodia (Comedy)..........1000
Sept. 4—A Day at Singapore (Scenic).........1000

PATHEPLAY.

Aug. 15—Cosmopolitan Life in Cairo, Egypt (Manners and Customs)............
Aug. 15—On the Lakes of Bayriach, Bavaria (Travel) ....
Aug. 15—Picturesque Jura, France (Travel)...
Aug. 16—The Turning Point (Drama)..........
Aug. 18—Pathe's Weekly No. 42 (News).....
Aug. 19—Napoleon Whiffles, Esq. (Comedy)...
Aug. 20—Strange Traits of Serpents (Zoology).
Aug. 20—Auto Polo—The New Thriller (Sports)
Aug. 21—Pathe's Weekly No. 43 (News)......
Aug. 21—Stung! (Comedy) ....
Aug. 22—The Lizard (Zoology)................
Aug. 22—A Visit to the Ruins of Pompeii (Travel) ....
Aug. 23—The Mexican Gambler (Drama)......
Aug. 25—Pathe's Weekly, No. 44 (News)......
Aug. 26—The Hostage (Drama)...............
Aug. 27—$1,000 Reward (Comedy)............
Aug. 28—The Cook's Revenge (Comedy).......
Aug. 28—Pathe's Weekly, No. 45 (News)......
Aug. 29—A Day With a Hindoo Family (Manners and Customs)...............
Aug. 29—The Road to Morey, France (Travel)..
Aug. 29—In the Valley of the Bourne, France (Scenic)..........................
Aug. 30—The Blind Girl of Castle Guille (Dr.)
Sept. 1—Pathe's Weekly, No. 46 (News)......
Sept. 2—Whiffles Decides to be Boss (Comedy)
Sept. 2—In the Caucasian Mountains (Travel)
Sept. 3—The Climax (Drama)................
Sept. 4—Pathe's Weekly, No. 47 (News).....
Sept. 4—Fickle Fortune's Favor (Comedy)....
Sept. 4—With the Natives of New Zealand (Manners and Customs)...........
Sept. 5—The Otter (Zoology)................
Sept. 5—On the Abruzzi (Travel)............
Sept. 6—The Price of Jealousy (Drama)......
Sept. 8—Pathe's Weekly, No. 48 (News)......
Sept. 9—Sleufoot's Seventh Suicide (Comedy)..
Sept. 10—Across the Chasm (Drama)..........
Sept. 11—Pathe's Weekly, No. 49 (News)......
Sept. 11—The Accidental Shot (Drama)........
Sept. 12—Young Hearts and Old (Drama).....
Sept. 13—A Jungle Flirtation (Comedy).......
Sept. 13—Tahiti, the Picturesque (Travel).....
Sept. 15—Pathe's Weekly, No. 50 (News).....
Sept. 16—Mrs. Morton's Birthday (Drama).....
Sept. 17—The Merill Murder Mystery (Drama)
Sept. 18—Toad Traits (Zoology)..............
Sept. 18—Hot Springs and Geysers of New Zealand (Travel).................
Sept. 18—Pathe's Weekly, No. 51 (News).....
Sept. 19—(Title Not Reported)...............
Sept. 20—Her Brave Rescuer (Drama).........

SELIG.

Aug. 19—Tobias Turns the Tables (Comedy-Drama) 1000
Aug. 20—The Ten Thousand Dollar Toe (Com.)
Aug. 20—Scenes in Moroland (Scenic)..........
Aug. 21—Fate Fashions a Letter (Drama)....1000
Aug. 20—The Good Indian (Drama)............1000
Aug. 25—The Water Rat (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Aug. 26—The Adventures of a Watch (Drama)
Aug. 26—They Were on their Honeymoon (Com.)
Aug. 27—How Betty Made Good (Drama)......1000
Aug. 28—The Man in the Street (Drama)......1000
Aug. 29—The Price of the Free (Drama)......1000
Sept. 1—The Jeweled Slippers (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Sept. 2—The Lonely Heart (Drama)..........1000
Sept. 3—The Way of Life (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 4—Howlin' Jones (Comedy).............
Sept. 5—Man of the Woods (Drama).........1000
Sept. 6—The Wheels of Fate (Special—2 parts——Drama)........................2000
Sept. 9—The Rancher's Failing (Drama).....1000
Sept. 10—Around Battle Tree (Drama).........1000
Sept. 11—Two Too Many (Comedy)...........1000
Sept. 12—Her Way (Drama)..................1000
Sept. 15—The Fifth String (Special—2 parts—Drama)...........................2000
Sept. 16—The Toils of Deception (Drama).....1000
Sept. 17—Tobias Wins Out (Comedy).........1000
Sept. 18—The Redemption of Railroad Jack (Drama)...........................1000
Sept. 19—The Rejected Lover's Luck (Dram)..1000

VITAGRAPH.

Aug. 19—Those Troublesome Tresses (Com.)..1000
Aug. 20—Better Days (Drama)................
Aug. 20—In and About Calcutta (Travel).....
Aug. 21—A 'Maid of Mandalay (Drama)....1000
Aug. 22—Playing the Pipers (Drama)........1000
Aug. 23—The Feudists (Special—2 parts—Comedy) 2000
Aug. 25—When Glasses Are Not Glasses (Com.)1000
Aug. 26—A Doll for the Baby (Drama)........1000
Aug. 27—Which Way Did He Go? (Comedy)...1000
Aug. 28—He Fell In Love With His Mother-in-Law (Comedy-Drama).............
Aug. 28—Quaint Singapore (Travel)...........
Aug. 29—The Clown and the Prima Donna (Dr.)1000
Aug. 30—The Call (Special—2 parts—Drama)..2000
Sept. 1—The Passing of Joe Mary (Drama)..1000
Sept. 2—His Lordship—Billy Smoke (Comedy).1000
Sept. 3—The Kiss of Retribution (Drama)....1000
Sept. 4—The Lonely Princess (Drama)......
Sept. 5—The Baby Elephant (Educational)....
Sept. 5—Pickwick (Comedy)..................
Sept. 6—When Women Go on the Warpath (Special—2 parts—Comedy).......2000
Sept. 8—Cupid Versus Women's Rights (Comedy-Drama).......................
Sept. 9—Old Moddington's Daughters (Comedy-Drama).............................1000
Sept. 10—Fortune's Turn (Drama).............1000
Sept. 11—The Tiger (Drama)..................1000
Sept. 12—Sauce for the Goose (Comedy).......1000
Sept. 13—The Lost Millionoire (Special—2 parts——Drama).........................2000
Sept. 15—Pumps (Comedy)....................
Sept. 15—Sandy Gets Shorty a Job (Comedy)..
Sept. 16—Their Mutual Friend (Drama).......1000
Sept. 17—The Hindoo Charm (Drama).........1000
Sept. 18—Sunny; or the Cattle Thief (Drama)..1000
Sept. 19—John Tobin's Sweetheart (Comedy)..1000
Sept. 20—Our Wives (Special—2 parts—Com.).2000

SEND 50 c. For a set of six of the handsomest photogravures of licensed players, size 7 x 9½, including MARY FULLER, MARC MacDERMOTT, ORMI HAWLEY, ARTHUR JOHNSON and others.

AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO., First National Bank Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

MR. EXHIBITOR, LOOK, READ!!

Beautiful photographs of the leading actors and actresses playing in licensed films. Finished in soft gray. Size 22x28.

GWENDOLINE PATES
PATHE FRERES

Price, 40c each
Postage Prepaid

Crane Wilbur
Maurice Costello
Francis X. Bushman
Gilbert M. Anderson
Marc MacDermott
Arthur Johnson
Mary Fuller
Ormi Hawley
Katherine Williams
Gwendoline Pates
Octavia Handworth
Lillian Walker

ORMI HAWLEY
[illegible]

ALL
MASTERPIECES
OF PHOTOGRAPHY

MARC MACDERMOTT
EDISON

A smaller size, 11 x 14 in same style and finish as above of Harry Myers, Lottie Briscoe, John Bunny, Guy Coombs, Ruth Roland, Beverly Bayne, Edith Storey, Earle Williams, Lillian Wiggins. Helen and Dolores Costello, Paul Panzer.

Price, 20c each
Postage Prepaid

GILBERT M ANDERSON
BRONCHO [illegible]

GENERAL FILM COMPANY, Poster Department

(Formerly Photoplay Advertising & Specialty Co.)

71 W. 23rd Street and 440 Fourth Avenue, New York; 121 Fourth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.; 1022 Superior Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio; 7th and Walnut Streets, Cincinnati, Ohio; Equity Bldg., Detroit, Mich.; 218 Commercial Street, Boston, Mass.; 122 Pearl Street, Buffalo, N. Y.; 737 Broadway, Albany, N. Y.

!! COMING !!

"THE SERPENT'S FANG"

A Feature Photo-Drama Presented by the Pioneers in the Field of Features

EXCLUSIVE SUPPLY CORPORATION PROGRAM

GREAT NORTHERN SPECIAL FEATURE FILM CO. 42 EAST 14th ST. NEW YORK CITY

BIO
CARBONS
Carbon
IN ALL THE WORLD NONE OTHER SO GOOD
MORE USED EVERY DAY
BIO CARBONS

CHARLES L. KIEWERT CO.

NEW YORK 165 GREENWICH STREET
MILWAUKEE 114 HURON STREET
SAN FRANCISCO 12 SUTTER STREET

AND ALL LIVE FILM EXCHANGES AND SUPPLY DEALERS

ANNOUNCEMENT

We are now printing the word "Eastman" on the margin of all our Cine film. We want the exhibitor to know when he is and when he is not getting Eastman film. It will be to his advantage—and ours.

Of course it will take time for such identifiable films to reach the consumer—so don't expect results at once—but it's a step in the right direction—for your interests and ours.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN

Watch for Coming Releases of

ESSANAY Ithaca Co.

Theo. W. Wharton, Managing Director

SHERLOCK HOLMES SERIES

Eight subjects to choose from—two reels each. Territory in Indiana, Kentucky, Wisconsin (south of Green Bay), Illinois (north of Springfield).

Almo Feature Film Co. (Inc.)

D. W. McKinney, Mgr.
36 W. Randolph St., Chicago
Phone, Randolph 2345

Headquarters for

ASBESTOS

CURTAINS and PICTURE BOOTHS

Send for Booklet

C. W. Trainer Mfg. Co.
39 Pearl St., Boston, Mass.

For FEATURE FILMS

address

NORTHERN FEATURE FILM EXCHANGE

ulte 405, Schiller Building, Chicago
Phone Central 6229

SEND FOR OUR NEW LIST

$3.50 CRYSTAL WHITE
$4.00 SILVER FINISH

Curtain Coatings

PREPAID

ALFRED C. STANGE, 15 S. Leavitt St., Chicago, Ill.

Advance Motion Picture Co.

Commercial, Industrial and Educational Film Mfgrs.
Chicago.

General Offices.
547-549 Peoples Gas Bldg.

Factory and Studio
950 Edgecomb Place

GET WISE—USE OUR SUPPLIES

McCRAY & McCRAY

Amusement Brokers
Dealers in
Everything for the Theatre
We sell it for less—Write for list.
306 Madison St., FAIRMONT, W.VA.

WE BUY, SELL and RENT

Moving Picture Machines, Film, and Opera Chairs

THEATRE BROKERAGE EXCHANGE

440 S. Dearborn St. Chicago, Ills.

LYCEUM
LYCEUM THEATRE
ALL SEATS 10¢

Ornamental Theatres

PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

Theatres Designed Everywhere

Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.

2549 Archer Avenue, CHICAGO, ILL.

1002-M Motiograph

THE APPROVED MOTIOGRAPH MOVING PICTURE MACHINE

The Acknowledged Standard the World Over

Up-to-date EXHIBITORS take NO CHANCES. They KNOW—by experience and will have only the best, the MOTIOGRAPH.

And Here Are Other Facts:

THE MOTIOGRAPH MACHINE IS BUILT IN ONE FACTORY, IT'S OWN. It is built ONLY of the best material money will buy. It is built under the direct supervision of the officers of the company. IT IS NOT AN ASSEMBLED product of many factories, and NO EXPENSE is spared in keeping far ahead of the times.

Don't take our word for it. Write for catalogue, or come and see for yourself, and have our demonstrator show you the parts that are hardened and can never wear out by ordinary usage.

Manufactured by

The Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company
564 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

EASTERN OFFICE:
21 E. 14th Street, New York.

WESTERN OFFICE:
833 Market St., San Francisco.

"THE LITTLE CORPORAL"

The greatest battle of history, reproduced on a scale truly worthy of so sublime and awe-inspiring a subject! A picture that commands the attention, respect and admiration of all, with nothing to offend North or South —East or West!

Thousands of men and horses charging into a maelstrom of death and destruction in a manner bringing home to all with new meaning Gen. Sherman's everlasting epigram--"War Is Hell!!"

THE BATTLE OF

The "surest fire money getter" ever projected on a screen!!

All ready now for the word "FIRE!" Write or wire quick

WATERLOO FILM CO.

P. P. CRAFT MGR.

Surging masses of gaily caparisoned humanity struggling over shell-swept hill and plain, drenched with torrents of patriots' blood!

WATERLOO

A picture with a more than triple appeal---to the sensation seeker, the student, the curious, the lover of the stupendous and spectacular---and to the world at large!

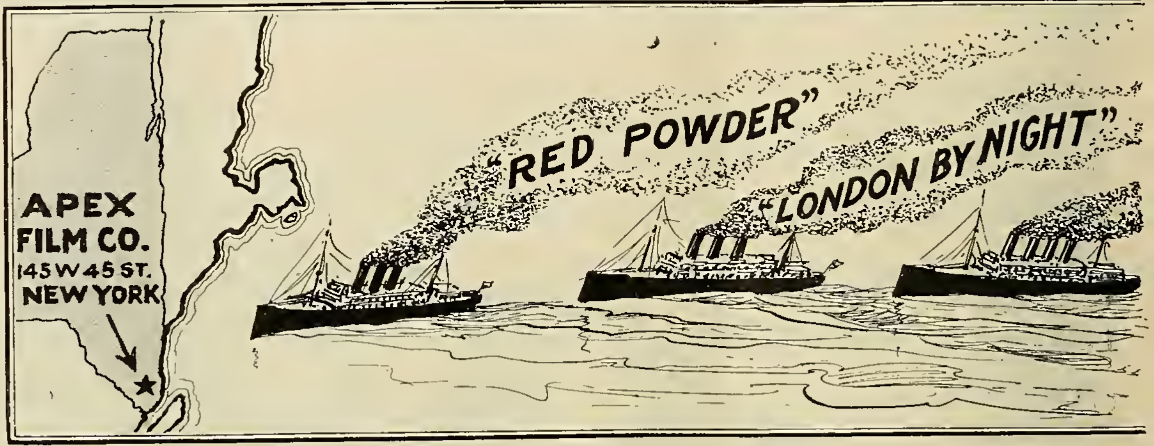
Striking and beautiful pictorial posters in great variety from the Otis Lithographing Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. Feature Buyer:

Don't let your competitor get this knockout! Like Wellington, Be There First!!

145 WEST 45th STREET
NEW YORK CITY

"THE IRON DUKE"



EACH INCOMING SHIP BRINGS A WORLD TO ENRICH THE FEATURE

LOOK OVER THESE "LIVE ONES"

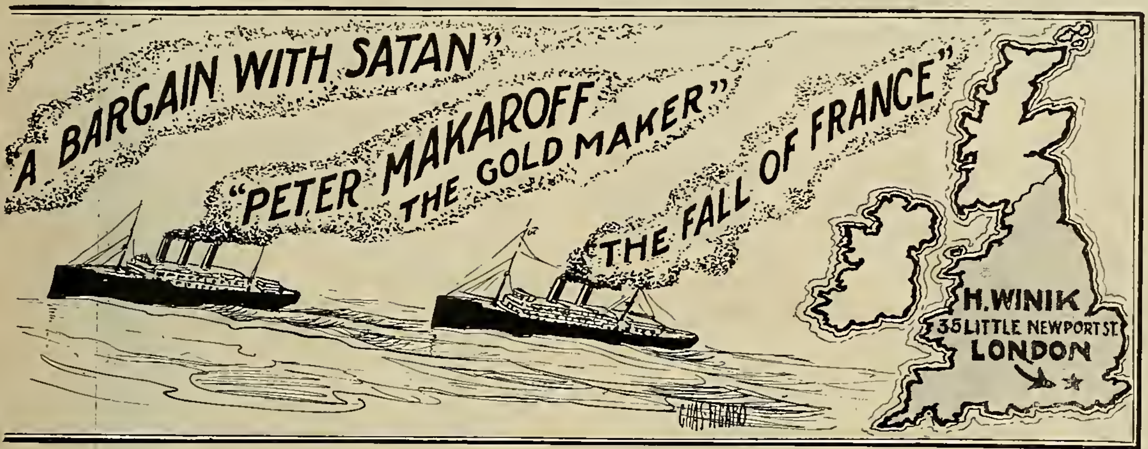
"The Blacksnake" 4 reels of sensationalism, dealing with Russian court life, including a fierce struggle with a wolf pack on the snow-clad plains. LIMITED territory left.

"Red Powder" As live as the name; the thrilling story of an invention in high explosives, that costs the life of the discoverer and the thief who stole his formulae.

"London by Night" A drama of heart interest with a punch in every foot; spectacular racing scenes, etc.

"A Bargain with Satan" A beautiful photo drama staged in romantic, historic Prague; wild Bohemian student life woven into a gripping, interest sustaining tragedy of mysticism, love and despair.

"Peter Makaroff the Gold Maker" Rich in human interest; the story of a modern alchemist who "made good" and brought upon himself a punishment rivaling that of his mediaeval prototypes.



"A BARGAIN WITH SATAN"
"PETER MAKAROFF THE GOLD MAKER"
"THE FALL OF FRANCE"
H. WINIK
35 LITTLE NEWPORT ST.
LONDON

FILM TREASURE FROM THE OLD BUYERS OF THE APEX FILM CO.

COMING —

"THE FALL OF FRANCE"
"AVE MARIA"
"THE ENGINE OF DEATH"
"BY WHOSE HAND?"

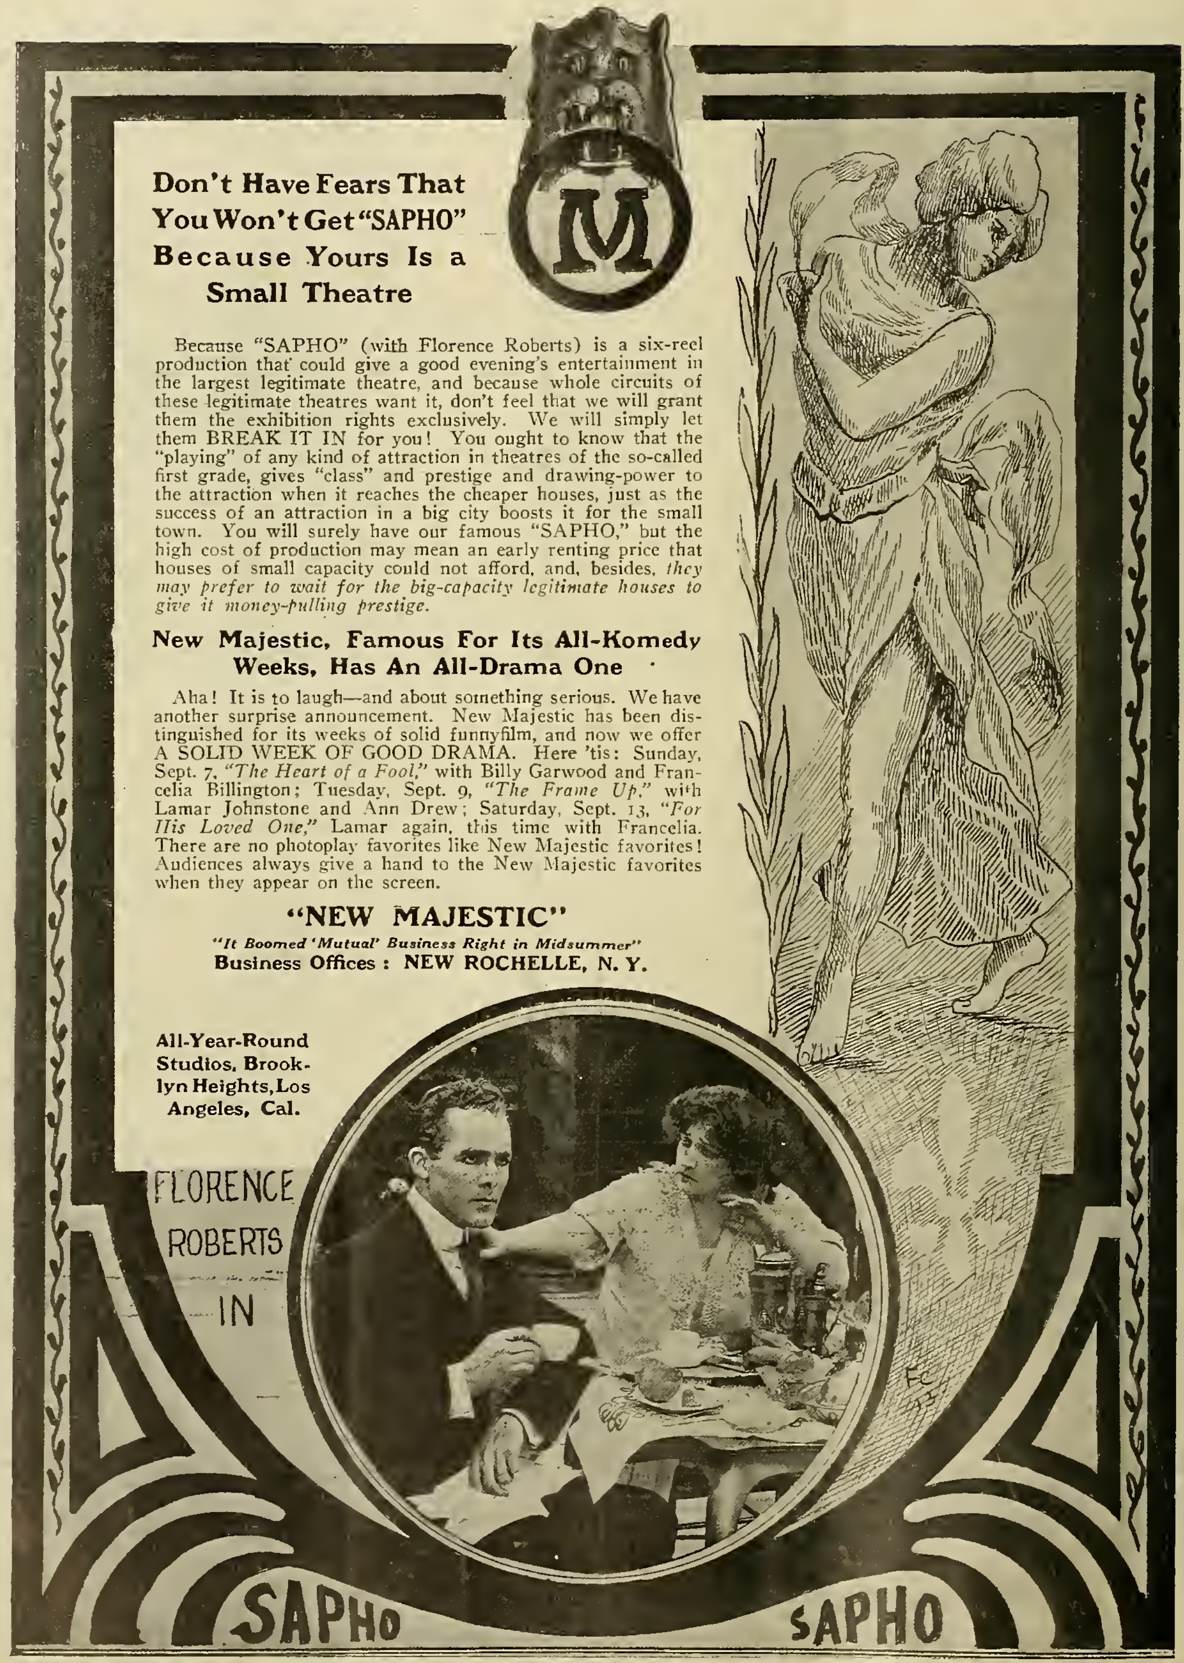
EACH A "KNOCKOUT"!!

Every Apex Feature is fully equipped with a splendid line of pictorial lithographed advertising material from The Otis Litho Co., Cleveland, O. Every one is the best on the market.

For the "Real Thing" wire or write quick

APEX FILM CO.

145 West 45th Street, New York City 35 Little Newport Street, London, W.



Don't Have Fears That You Won't Get "SAPHO" Because Yours Is a Small Theatre

Because "SAPHO" (with Florence Roberts) is a six-reel production that could give a good evening's entertainment in the largest legitimate theatre, and because whole circuits of these legitimate theatres want it, don't feel that we will grant them the exhibition rights exclusively. We will simply let them BREAK IT IN for you! You ought to know that the "playing" of any kind of attraction in theatres of the so-called first grade, gives "class" and prestige and drawing-power to the attraction when it reaches the cheaper houses, just as the success of an attraction in a big city boosts it for the small town. You will surely have our famous "SAPHO," but the high cost of production may mean an early renting price that houses of small capacity could not afford, and, besides, they may prefer to wait for the big-capacity legitimate houses to give it money-pulling prestige.

New Majestic, Famous For Its All-Komedy Weeks, Has An All-Drama One

Aha! It is to laugh—and about something serious. We have another surprise announcement. New Majestic has been distinguished for its weeks of solid funnyfilm, and now we offer A SOLID WEEK OF GOOD DRAMA. Here 'tis: Sunday, Sept. 7, "The Heart of a Fool," with Billy Garwood and Francelia Billington; Tuesday, Sept. 9, "The Frame Up," with Lamar Johnstone and Ann Drew; Saturday, Sept. 13, "For His Loved One," Lamar again, this time with Francelia. There are no photoplay favorites like New Majestic favorites! Audiences always give a hand to the New Majestic favorites when they appear on the screen.

"NEW MAJESTIC"

"It Boomed 'Mutual' Business Right in Midsummer"

Business Offices: NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.

All-Year-Round Studios, Brooklyn Heights, Los Angeles, Cal.

MÉLIÈS FILMS

Another Japanese Multiple!

The JAPANESE SWORD MAKER

IN TWO PARTS

A Drama of Old Japan—Japan of the Middle Ages—with all its pomp and intrigue.

Watch for the Release Date

SEPTEMBER 11th

Captured By Aboriginals

The thrilling adventure of a white man among the savage aboriginals of Australia. Produced in Australia employing native aboriginals.

PRODUCED IN JAPAN.

AMERICAN-ECLAIR

FEATURE

FILMS

Wire Your Exchange Tonight

THAT YOU WANT TO JOIN THE

Eclair Happy Family

TELL HIM YOU WANT

EVERY ECLAIR-UNIVERSAL FEATURE

THEY ARE THE

AMERICAN STANDARD

IN QUALITY AS WELL AS IN NAME

225 W. 42nd ST., NEW YORK CITY.

THE PERFECT PROJECTION

OF

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH NO. 6A

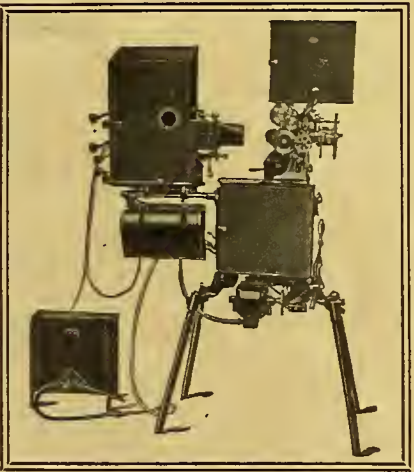
Many years of labor and mechanical research on the part of Mr. Nicholas Power, have accomplished PERFECT PROJECTION.

Its high standard is fully recognized by the trade, and the following letter bears testimony to its worth:—

> Dear Sirs :—
>
> In the reproduction of the Paul J. Rainey African and Arctic pictures, perfect projection has been absolutely necessary.
>
> After carefully comparing the merits of Power's Cameragraph with other machines, the Jungle Film Co. decided on the Power's Cameragraph.
>
> We are using over 30 machines in our various shows, where they are giving entire satisfaction.
>
> Yours truly,
>
> J. C. HEMMENT.

THERE ARE MANY EXCLUSIVE FEATURES OF THIS

PEERLESS PROJECTOR



Write for Catalogue G giving full details

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

88-90 GOLD STREET, NEW YORK

THE LEADING MAKERS OF MOTION PICTURE MACHINES

Vol. 17. No. 12 September 20, 1913 Price 10 Cents

H. E. HOFFMAN

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

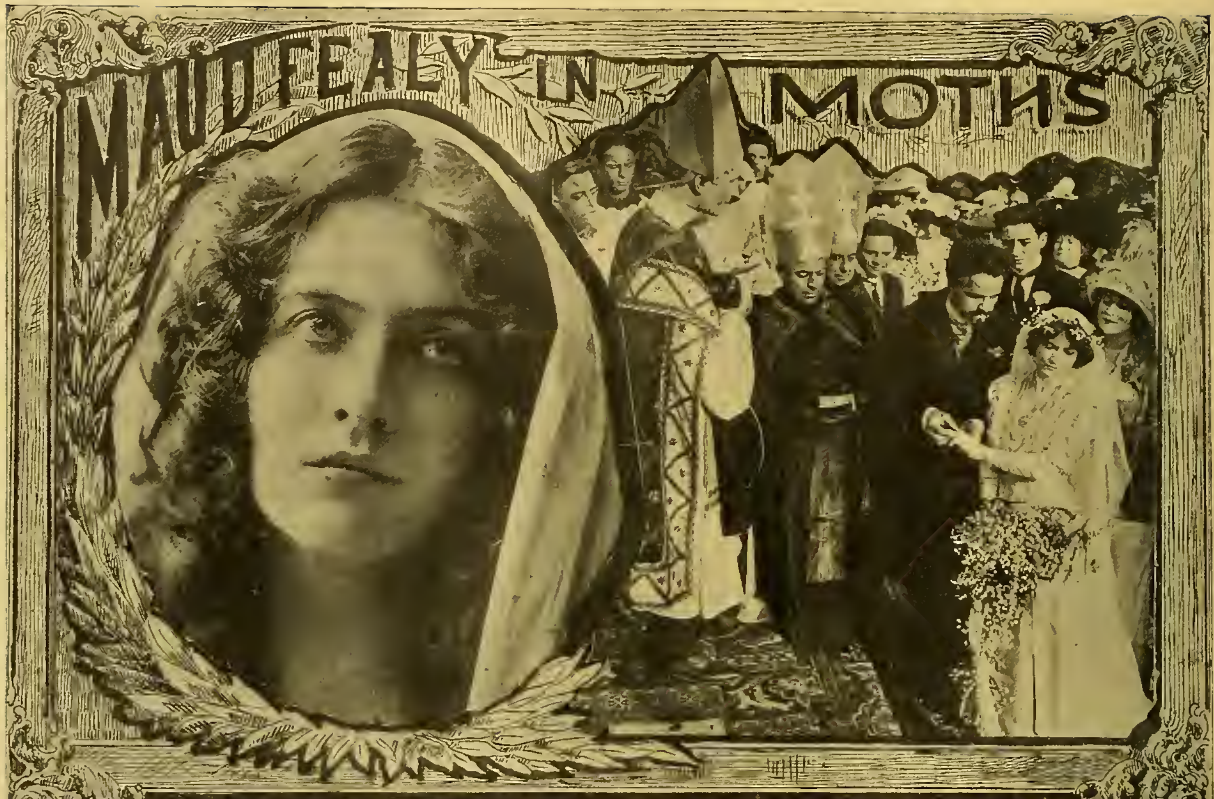
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "Hard Cash" (Edison).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510



Thanhouser has made the best four reel heart-interest drama of the year, in the Mutual Special "MOTHS" with Maude Fealy

The Mutual Film Corporation announces as a special release the great OUIDA play of the above title. Miss Fealy, starred in this film, is known from coast to coast as a legitimate theatrical star, and has positively never been seen to better advantage than in this motion picture of "MOTHS." With her is a special Thanhouser cast, including such favorites as

WILLIAM RUSSELL, GERDA HOLMES, HARRY BENHAM, MRS. LAWRENCE MARSTON, LILA CHESTER

"Moths" has been described as the most extraordinary description of a woman that has ever been penned. Remember:

"She has chastity, and she had also courage."

"She was the martyr of a false civilization, of a society as corrupt as that of the Borgias, and far more dishonest."

"She is innocent always and yet—When the moths have gnawed the ermine, no power in heaven or earth can make it again altogether what it was."

You must not miss this Marvel-Play and its wonderful star. There are wonderful lithos, too, and they should attract people to a play that will hold them.

Special terms and bookings can be had exclusively through the office of THE MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION, Masonic Temple, 71 West 23rd St., New York City.

THE THANHOUSER THREE-A-WEEK

Sunday, Sept. 14th—NO RELEASE, because of three-reeler of preceding Friday

Tuesday, Sept. 16th—REDEMPTION

Florence La Badie is here shown in one of her very best roles of the year. The story is a striking one of a man's reformation.

Friday, Sept. 19th—FLOOD TIDE

Muriel Ostriche and the Thanhouser Kid have marvelous parts. And Eugene Moore is even better than in a "Spartan Father"—see for yourself.

Coming! All the time—to your lobby—THE THANHOUSER PLAY POSTER. It solves the posterless reel problem. Ask your exchange man the cost. ¶ COMING! The Thanhouser Kidlet, in "Taming Their Grandchildren," Tuesday, September 9th. ¶ COMING! The Thanhouser Kid, in "The Message to Headquarters," Friday, September 12. ¶ COMING! The Thanhouser Twins (Triumphant Return), in "Life's Pathway" (date soon). ¶ COMING! Eugene Moore (Triumphant Return), in his personally directed picture, "Flood Tide," Friday, September 19. ¶ COMING! A staggering list of THANHOUSER CLASSICS in two and three reels and featuring such stars as MARGUERITE SNOW, JAMES CRUZE, FLO LA BADIE, MIGNON ANDERSON, WILLIAM RUSSELL, HARRY BENHAM, DAVID THOMPSON, RILEY CHAMBERLIN, THE KID and KIDLET. Coming!

THANHOUSER FILM CORPORATION, NEW ROCHELLE, NEW YORK

THANHOUSER STARS ! THANHOUSER FEATURES ! THANHOUSER QUALITY !

FIVE-A-WEEK

Essanay

Released Sept. 19th Released Sept. 19th

Book This Thrilling Railroad Drama

"THE RIGHT OF WAY"

(IN TWO PARTS)

A startling and sensational railroad melodrama teeming with exciting and thrilling situations. Francis X. Bushman featured. Heralds and posters now ready.

Released Tuesday, Sept. 16th

"WOMEN"

An unusual and interesting dramatic object lesson that is bound to please your patrons. E. H. Calvert, Doris Mitchell, Marguerite Ives and Jules Ferrar featured.

Released Wednesday, Sept. 17th

"SWEET REVENGE"
"THE DUCK RAISING INDUSTRY"

A side-splitting comedy full of clever situations, and an educational subject you will enjoy.

Released Thursday, Sept. 18th

"THE BROKEN PAROLE"

One of the most sensational Western dramas produced in months. Book this.

Released Saturday, Sept. 20th

"THE REDEEMED CLAIM"

A drama of the West with thrills and sensations featuring G. M. Anderson.

Coming Friday, Sept. 26th Coming Friday, Sept. 26th

"IN CONVICT GARB"

(IN TWO PARTS)

One of the most sensational melodramas ever produced. A thrill in every scene and a scene never to be forgotten in every thrill. E. H. Calvert, Richard C. Travers, Ruth Stonehouse, Bryant Washburn and others portray roles in an unusual manner. For a money getting, box-office attraction book this feature. Heralds and posters are now ready.

THE PUBLIC ARE WISE—DEMAND NEW CLEAN POSTERS. Three sheet posters of all Saturday releases will boom your business. Posters are lithographed in full four colors, 35c each. You can order these from your exchange or direct from Essanay Film Mfg. Co., 521 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago. Your lobby display will look attractive if you use photographs of ESSANAY players, 8 x 10, $3.00 per dozen. You can secure these from the PLAYERS' PHOTO CO., 177 N. STATE ST., Chicago, Ill.

Essanay Film Manufacturing Co.

521 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Factory and Studio, 1333 Argyle Street, Chicago, Ill.
Branch Offices in London, Paris, Berlin, Barcelona

The most marvelous feature films on earth are now being released every week by the Universal. There are so many of them and they are all so superb that no advertisement can possibly do justice to them!

Go to the Nearest Universal Exchange
and See Them Sure!

The feature that smashed all selling records in Europe!

"IVANHOE"

3,700 Feet.

The most expensive picture the Universal ever made, and every dollar "shows on the screen." It will make your theatre the most talked-of amusement place in town. King Baggot and Miss Leah Baird, supported by a wonderful English company and directed by Herbert Brenon, have produced a masterpiece. Demand it AT ANY PRICE.

"BLEEDING HEARTS" 3 Reels

or "Jewish Freedom Under King Casimir of Poland"

Do you remember the terrific success of "The Sorrows of Israel" and "The Heart of a Jewess"? Well, this latest picture of the Hebrew series, "Bleeding Hearts," is so far superior to those great works that there is no comparison. Words cannot describe it. Watch for "Bleeding Hearts," and demand it, demand it, demand it!

"IN THE COILS OF THE PYTHON" And "THE GIRL AND THE TIGER"

2 Reels — 3 Reels

Two of the most daring wild animal pictures ever produced. They will cause your patrons to gasp with excitement and will give them the kind of thrills they demand. Regular theatrical posters!

COMING! This Month

"Rob Roy"---2 Reel Eclair, Sept. 17
"Through the Window"---2 Reel 101-Bison, Sept. 20
"The Wall of Money"---2 Reel Rex, Sept. 21
"A Puritan Episode"---2 Reel Eclair, Sept. 24

COMING! This Month

"Genesis 4-9"---2-Reel Rex, Sept. 25
"Blood Red Tape of Charity"---2-Reel Powers, Sept. 26
"Justice of the Wild"---2-Reel Nestor, Sept. 29
"Shon the Piper"---2-Reel Bison, Sept. 30

Universal Film Manufacturing Company

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"
CARL LAEMMLE, President
Mecca Building, Broadway and 48th Street, New York, N. Y.

EXTRA! EXTRA!

MISS
FLORENCE LAWRENCE

the highest salaried actress in the moving picture field, will make her re-appearance in Universal films on Friday, October 3rd, in a 2-reel feature entitled

"THE CLOSED DOOR"
(TWO REELS)

—This picture and all other "Victor" brand Universal films in which Miss Lawrence appears will cost you extra money. Your exchange cannot afford to let you have it at regular prices. Owing to the top-notch salary paid to Miss Lawrence and to the unusual expense we have gone to in producing pictures worthy of her great fame, we have been compelled to charge the exchanges more than regular prices.

—Regardless of cost, get every Florence Lawrence feature released! Not only are they perfect gems, but Miss Lawrence's photograph shown in your lobby with the announcement, "Florence Lawrence Here Today," will cause you to do a capacity business. It is up to you to grasp every golden opportunity like this the instant it comes your way. It means something to you to be able to advertise the most popular picture actress in the world!

—Miss Lawrence has completed three two-reel features, and she is more than wonderful in each and every one. Her inimitable flashes from comedy to drama, from laughter to tears; her extreme vivacity and indescribable charm, are all shown at their best. The first picture is a delicious treat. The second is better. The third is better still. Make immediate plans with your exchange to get these features, and DON'T QUIBBLE ABOUT PAYING EXTRA!

Universal Film Manufacturing Company

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"
CARL LAEMMLE, President
Mecca Building, Broadway and 48th Street, New York, N. Y.

PIONEERS, AND STILL LEADING

OUR NEXT FEATURE OFFERING

"THE SERPENT'S FANG"

A Meritorious Production Out of the Ordinary

A Feature Photo-Drama in Two Reels Replete With Sensational Incidents of Circus Life and Carrying an Appealing Story of Genuine Heart Interest

Posters in Sizes of One, Three and Six Sheets, Descriptive Heralds and Artistic Photos

Copyrighted 1913 TERRITORIAL RIGHTS NOW OPEN Infringers, Beware!

EXCLUSIVE SUPPLY CORPORATION PROGRAM

Great Northern Special Feature Film Co.
42 EAST 14th STREET NEW YORK CITY

SEE AMERICANS FIRST·
A

THE GHOST OF THE HACIENDA

A Two-Part Mexican Drama, Featuring

Ed Coxen and Winnifred Greenwood

Portraying thrilling adventures with a band of Mexican brigands.

One, Three and Six Sheet Posters. Release Monday, Sept. 22, 1913

Mrs. Carter's Campaign

Humorously depicting how a woman was elected Mayor of Cartersville.

One and Three Sheet Posters Release Thursday, Sept. 25, 1913

Master of Himself

Featuring J. Warren Kerrigan in a social drama.

One and Three Sheet Posters Release Saturday, Sept. 27, 1913

AMERICAN FILM MFG. COMPANY
CHICAGO

Broncho Headliners

"Silent Heroes"

2 Reels. September 24th, 1913

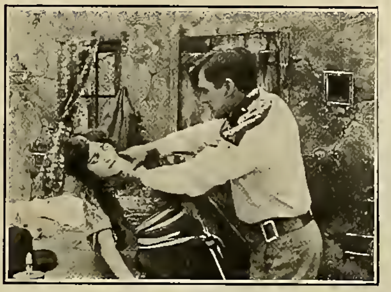
A beautiful story of Civil War days, impressive and touching; a faithful son's loyalty to mother and country. Filled with scenes of battle and strife that quicken the heart and fascinate the eye.

Branded as a coward and a weakling, Tom Burton refuses to leave the bedside of his dying mother. His town's people consider this a subterfuge to escape from enlisting in the Confederate ranks, and sneers and insults are heaped upon him. His mother, unable to stand the stigma placed upon her boy, hastens her own death by refusing to take the medicines which are ordered for her. She dies. Tom's sweetheart, Winnie, declares that he is a coward or else he would leave his mother and fight for the South. He has become estranged from her on this account, and when his mother is gone, Tom decides to leave without seeing her. Word of an attack by Northern raiders is brought to Tom by a messenger. The small force of Confederate soldiers are disorganized and without a leader. Tom jumps into the breach, leads the men against the Northerners and in a terrible battle repulses them. While engaged in hand-to-hand conflict, he is mortally shot and dies, a hero among heroes. In a vision his mother stretches forth welcoming arms, as he joins her in the land of silent heroes.

Broncho Motion Picture Co.

Long Acre Bldg., 42d St. and Bdwy.
NEW YORK CITY
MUTUAL PROGRAM EXCLUSIVELY

Kay-Bee Features



"The Forlorn Hope"

1 Reel. September 26th, 1913

A pathetic and gripping drama of the golden west. Exciting stage-coach hold-up. Running fight between sheriff and bandit, his own son.

Discouraged and broken at his inability to strike it rich, Billy Griffin, the Sheriff's son, is down to his last cent. Driven desperate by his hard luck, he conceives a plan to hold up the stage coach which is carrying a large shipment of gold to the station. He writes his old mother, telling her he has "struck it rich" and will be home in a few days. The old lady tenderly places a light in the window for her boy's return. Meanwhile Holt, a desperado, plans to rob the stage coach also. His wife, terrified, notifies Sheriff Griffin, and he starts out with his posse to intercept the coach. The Sheriff's son, about to hold up the shipment of gold, sees, from his hiding place, Holt halt the driver and make off with his booty. At the same time the bandit sees him and fires, wounding Billy in the arm. Griffin returns the fire, killing Holt. He is carrying the gold away, when the Sheriff, who has heard the shots, gets on his trail and mortally wounds his own son. The heart-broken officer, grasping the situation, hides his erring son's body, and, dragging the box of gold back, places it beside Holt's silent form. The posse bring the body back to town, while Sheriff Griffin places in his last resting place the boy whose forlorn hope was of no avail.

Note.—The above film, "The Forlorn Hope," will be released on September 26th, 1913, in place of "The Reformation," which was listed for this date. The latter film will be released in the near future.

N. Y. Motion Picture Corp.

Long Acre Bldg., 42d St. and Bdwy.
NEW YORK CITY
MUTUAL PROGRAM EXCLUSIVELY

Keystone Comedies

"Mabel's Dramatic Career"

1 Reel. September 8th, 1913

A comedy of absolute novelty and real laughs. A peep behind the scenes. The Keystone players at work in studios.

Zeke falls in love with Mabel, his mother's hired girl. He presents her with an engagement ring, but his fickle affections soon turn when Lola, a beautiful city girl, pays a visit to the farm. Her heart "busted" at his perfidy, Mabel leaves the house, and her going is assisted by Zeke, who pushes her out the door. He throws his heart, and incidentally Mabel's engagement ring, at Lola's feet, but she in turn, "busts" his dreams by laughing at his uncouth avowal of love. Meanwhile the "hired help" has fallen into a job with a moving picture company and after many years has become an acknowledged "movie" queen and favorite, besides the wife of the director. Our friend Zeke, mourning his first love, stumbles into a picture house one night and to his at first amazement and then horror, finds his beloved "hired girl" in the clutches of the "villyon." Her boob lover follows her through many narrow escapes and tight situations until at last, beside himself, he shoots up the villain; also the audience. Following Mabel's persecutor to his home, he is about to "pop" him through the window when he is drenched by a pail of dirty water thrown from an upper window, and retires disgusted from the scene.

KEYSTONE FILM CO.

Long Acre Bldg., 42d St. and Bdwy.
NEW YORK CITY
MUTUAL PROGRAM EXCLUSIVELY

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

RIDE TO SUCCESS—"IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE."

A "FLASH" OF GENIUS

Illuminates

"IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE"

BY MIRIAM MICHELSON
PUBLISHED BY
BOBBS MERRILL CO

WITH

MARY PICKFORD

IN MOTION PICTURES

A delightful combination of humor, sentiment and pathos.

IN FOUR REELS

Released Sept. 10

Produced by the

FAMOUS PLAYERS

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
TIMES BUILDING
NEW YORK

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

Another group of states have joined the progressive list during the past week. Success is contagious.

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

EXHIBITORS

:an obtain bookings in their respective territories for Mrs. Fiske in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," 'In the Bishop's Carriage," presenting Mary Pickford, and

FORTHCOMING RELEASES:

Henry E. Dixey in 'Chelsea 7750"

Lillie Langtry in 'His Neighbor's Wife"

Laura Sawyer in "An Hour Before Dawn"

James O'Neill in "The Count of Monte Cristo"

ınd all future "Famous Features" from the exchanges that have contracted for our entire annual output, listed as follows:

'amous Players Film Co. of New England Iarry Asher, Gen'l Mgr. 00 Boylston St. Boston, Mass.	MAINE NEW HAMPSHIRE VERMONT MASSACHUSETTS CONNECTICUT RHODE ISLAND
'amous Players Exchange, 3d St. cor. 6th Ave., N. Y. C. Phila. Office, 1331 Vine St.	NEW JERSEY AND EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA
'he Casino Co., Dimes Bank Bldg., Detroit, Mich.	MICHIGAN
'amous Players Film Service Co. :hattanooga, Tenn.	NORTH CAROLINA SOUTH CAROLINA GEORGIA FLORIDA ALABAMA TENNESSEE MISSISSIPPI LOUISIANA
'rogressive Motion Picture Co. Pacific Bldg. San Francisco, Calif.	CALIFORNIA NEW MEXICO NEVADA ARIZONA OREGON WASHINGTON
ansas City Feature Film Co. . D. Flintom, Gen'l Mgr., Gayety 'heatre Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.	IOWA KANSAS NEBRASKA
Wm. L. Sherry Feature Film Co. Wm. L. Sherry, Pres. Times Bldg., New York City	ENTIRE STATE OF NEW YORK
Famous Players Film Service, Jas. Steele, Gen'l Mgr. 125 4th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.	WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA WEST VIRGINIA OHIO KENTUCKY
New Grand Central Theatre Co., Grand & Lucas Ave., St. Louis, Mo.	MISSOURI
Southern Feature Film Program Assn. Royal Theatre Bldg., San Antonio, Texas	ARKANSAS OKLAHOMA TEXAS
Famous Players Film Service Bert Barnett, Gen'l Mgr., Temple Court Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.	MINNESOTA NORTH DAKOTA SOUTH DAKOTA WISCONSIN
Notable Feature Film Co. 612 Judge Building, Salt Lake City, U.	COLORADO WYOMING UTAH IDAHO MONTANA

Famous Players Feature Corp., 28 West Lexington St., Baltimore, Md.

DELAWARE MARYLAND DIST. OF COL. VIRGINIA

:XCHANGEMEN: The Famous Feature Program is making all kinds of a sensation throughout all the states in which it is presented. It will do the same in

ILLINOIS INDIANA DOMINION OF CANADA

FILM COMPANY

ADOLPH ZUKOR PRES.

DANIEL FROHMAN
MANAGING DIRECTOR

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

MYSTERIES OF PARIS

Adapted from Eugene Sue's Famous Novel

In Five Parts Approximately 5000 Feet

Positively the most intensely interesting photo-drama ever produced. Competent critics have pronounced this production of the city of never-ending mystery. Never again will such a state right opportunity present itself. This feature is the acme of the film-making art and possesses money-making possibilities never reached by any other film. You positively lose a great opportunity if you do not buy the rights for any of the following territories:—

THE LURE

1. Maine, New Hamp., Vermont, Mass., R. I., Conn.
2. West Pennsylvania and West Virginia.
3. Md., Delaware, District of Columbia and Virginia.
4. Michigan and Wisconsin.
5. Northern Illinois.
6. Southern Illinois and Eastern Missouri.
7. West. Missouri, Kansas, Ark. and No. Oklahoma.
8. Southern Oklahoma and Texas.
9. Minnesota, North and South Dakota.
10. Nebraska and Iowa.

Select your territory and wire for price and particulars. Act at once, if you do not want your competitor to steal a march on you. If convenient, call at our offices and review the film; there's a treat in store for you. Judge for yourself.

1, 3 and 3 different 6 sheet posters,
12 lobby-photos, heralds and cuts.
Sample posters and heralds on request.

ECLECTIC FILM CO.

110 West 40th St.
New York City

"THE CREAM OF THE EUROPEAN MARKET SELECTED FOR AMERICA"

WHY NOT SECURE THE BEST?

In other words, book all of the famous Eclectic "hits." Everyone of them a forerunner of success. Both time and money were lavished in producing these marvelous and unusual productions; the cream of European ingenuity. Our hand-colored features stand pre-eminent.

ATTENTION, STATE RIGHTERS!

You simply must realize that to secure good territory (not much open) you've got to act, and act soon. Otherwise your competitors will beat you to it. Don't wait until it's too late, but write at once. Or wire, it's quicker. Our annual contract will interest you; ask us about it. It means the saving of money to you.

THE WHEEL OF DESTRUCTION

Two Parts

Here's a picture that has no equal. Every minute contains a new thrill. A motor race that sets the pace; an auto wreck that is the crowning sensation of filmdom. A jealous suitor nearly succeeds in wreaking revenge by a dastardly attempt to murder his rival.

THE THRUST OF HATE

Three Parts Hand Colored

The power of human emotions is vividly demonstrated in this thrilling photo-drama. Hate, prompted by revenge, is the double-edged weapon employed in a tragic, hair-raising duel. This feature is a positive triumph of hand-colored photography.

WHEN PARIS LOVES

Three Parts Ready Sept. 18th

The love stories of Paris are world-famed, and this one is no exception. An appealing photo-play that portrays the danger of circumstantial evidence and the reward of virtue. A corking good film featuring and an All-Star cast from the universallv famous Comedie-Francaise, Paris.

MME. ROBINNE

READ THE CRITICAL REVIEW ON PAGE 1264 IN THIS ISSUE.

ECLECTIC FILM CO.

110 West 40th St. New York City

ECLECTIC FILMS TRADE MARK PARIS-NEW YORK

"THE CREAM OF THE EUROPEAN MARKET SELECTED FOR AMERICA"

Protect Your Territory

Exclusive Service—A brand new proposition to positively protect your territory. A service which will be distinct, separate, different from anything your competitor can run.

Think of having your program so far in advance that you can advertise it as much as you like, and your competitor cannot profit by your efforts as he has in the past. You are protected!

The progressive theatres are getting in line for this service now.

Let us explain to you its many advantages.

Address Exclusive Service Department

General Film Company, Inc.

71 West 23rd Street, New York

Get the Big Bulge!

Smith has a house on this side of the street. Brown has one on the other side. Smith said to himself:

"I'm sick of trying to draw people with a half-way program. I'm going to get the big bulge on Brown. I'm going to run programs that the people will come a long way to see. I don't care about drawing them. I want 'em to come, naturally, and come again and keep on coming. It's General Film for mine!"

Are you a Smith or a Brown? Are you conscious of having the big bulge on that other man? You can't get it from poor pictures, no matter how you boost them or how loud you talk about them.

People can see, man alive! One trip to a mediocre house makes them ready to look elsewhere. General Film Service brings them back, time after time, and again and again. We don't do it. You don't do it. The pictures do it.

They're just better—that's all. They've got the big bulge. If you haven't got it on the other man, get it now. It's just a question of sooner or later. Make it sooner—today.

General Film Company, Inc.
200 Fifth Avenue, New York

"The Young Mrs. Eames" and "Sissybelle"

Selig—2 reels. Released Sept. 22

A dashing young widow is Mrs. Eames. Among her suitors is an ardent youth who starts a whirlwind courtship. But her daughter comes home from the convent, the youngster switches his attentions, and the mother marries a faithful bachelor. "Sissybelle," telling how a spoiled boy was made into a man, is on the same reel.

"For His Brother's Crime"

Kleine-Cines—2 reels. Released Sept. 23

A burglar enters a wealthy man's house where his brother is employed as a butler. The robber escapes, leaving his brother to be caught before an open safe in which a camera is concealed. The butler goes to jail, and years later escapes. Action comes when he enters the house where his brother lives, married to the girl both brothers loved.

"A Midnight Message"

Kalem—2 reels. Released Sept. 24

The story of a father's suspicion of his son. A middle-aged man comes home to find his young wife in the arms of his son. The butler successfully puts the worst construction on the situation until the wife's jewels are found in the servant's pocket. Then events move fast. A powerful, gripping picture, full of surprises.

"Self-Convicted"

Lubin—2 reels. Released Sept. 25

If you committed a robbery to save your mother's life, and if years later you became a detective and were put on your own trail—what would you do? Here's a story of a man thus strangely placed. He faced the issue squarely and was ordered to burn up his own finger-prints.

"In Convict Garb"

Essanay—2 reels. Released Sept. 26

The story of a good man who went wrong and a bad man who went right. The bank cashier had everything on his side; yet he defaulted, and hired a crook to help him out. The gang was caught and jailed. The man of education becomes surly, then vicious; steals the warden's child and gets away. But his old crook friend, a "trusty," spoils his plans.

"Hard Cash"

Edison—2 reels. Released Sept. 26

A splendid picturization of Charles Read's famous novel.

Three generations have found deep satisfaction in the human understanding of this undying story. The events caused by fourteen thousand pounds in hard cash involve an old man's suffering, an untrustworthy banker's greed and unnatural treatment of his son and the final restitution that brings happiness.

"Under the Daisies"

Vitagraph—2 reels. Released Sept. 27

It took a long time for this man's conscience to catch up with him, but it did when he went to criticise a new play and recognized the story of his own treatment of a trusting country girl. He had won her and cast her off when his love died. The famous playwright of the day put it all in his play and the critic's remorse made him sign his own death warrant.

THE HOUSE OF SELIG

SELIG LEADS OTHERS FOLLOW

SELIG CREATES OTHERS IMITATE

"THE YOUNG MRS. EAMES"

A Powerful, Emotional Drama

Modern and Moving Throughout Its Warp and Woof. Actress and Authoress in Leading Role.

A close study of social conditions with a strong and continuous heart interest. A fascinating widow loves a man much younger than herself, who falls in love with her daughter. She happily learns this before it is too late and sacrifices her own happiness for that of her child.

On the same reel with

"SISSYBELLE"

The story of a boy, who grows up to be a real man through the change of environment.

Released September 22nd

SINGLE REEL SELECTIONS

September 23rd "BUMPS AND WILLIE"

These far-famed tramps have opportunity to operate an automobile, which they do with such vigor that a policeman takes them in charge—A mad and merry photoplay.

September 24th "SPELL OF THE PRIMEVAL"

A man-about-town surfeited with the artificialities of life in a great city, flees from his bohemian friends of the club, loses himself in the mountains and loses his heart to a fair maid that makes his life brighter and better—A fine little romantic play.

September 25th "THE CAPTURE OF 'BAD BROWN'"

A vigorous bit of westernism, with picturesque frontier types and inspiring out-of-door atmosphere, that invests a lively and interesting story with fun and fancy to point a moral.

September 26th "THE POLICEMAN AND THE BABY"

Everybody is interested in a baby as the light of the home and the joy of the heart—The bigger the man, the more likely the spell of the littlest child is for him. This is the way it impresses big Jim Mulvihill, who has one of his own.

ON THE SAME REEL WITH

"THE TAJ MAHAL, AGRA, INDIA"

The last resting place of an Indian princess—Properly accredited as the most perfect and beautiful building in the world.

Soon Ready—"THE SPOILERS"

THE GREATEST NOVEL OF OUR NEW NORTHWEST EVER WRITTEN

SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY

S

BRANCH OFFICES THROUGHOUT THE WORLD
EXECUTIVE OFFICES: 20 E. RANDOLPH ST.
CHICAGO, ILL., U.S.A.

S

THE WORLDS FOREMOST PRODUCER

(Copyright, 1913, by George Kleine)

A Charming, Interesting, Unusually Strong Kleine-Cines

"MISGOTTEN GAINS"

Release Tuesday, Sept. 30

You will like "Misgotten Gains" for the sake of its clever acting and charming story. How two thieves, parading in the best society until midnight, utilized the "wee" hours of the morning to rehabilitate finances!

By sheer chance they come across a letter from a retired Captain, complaining that his daughter is becoming a great burden and he would like to marry her off, adding a fat dowry, provided a chap with a title came along. How one of the thieves came close to succeeding and how a young naval officer, in love with the girl, exposed the villainy, after passing through many adventures, makes a thoroughly delightful tale that never has a dull moment!

The house of Cines represents all that is best in pictures. Located in Rome, Italy, working under enviable climatic conditions, surrounded by a wealth of "settings" not possible to the American manufacturer, it is little wonder that "Cines" and "best" are synonymous as applied to multiple reel subjects.

REMEMBER THE DATE IS
TUESDAY, SEPT. 30, 1913

1, 3 and 6 sheets with all Kleine pictures. Also heralds, bulletins and a complete publicity service.

(Released through General Film Co.)

GEORGE KLEINE
166 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.

PATHEPLAYS

Are the pillars which hold the motion picture business above the dead level of the mediocre.

By featuring all the

PATHEPLAYS

At your house you are sure of a constantly growing patronage of the better sort and the kind that sticks!

BOOK NOW

All the regular releases--both single and multiple reels

PATHE PLAYS

IT MEANS MORE MONEY IN THE BOX OFFICE TILL

PATHE PLAYS

HARD CASH

Adapted from Charles Reade's celebrated novel

In Two Parts Released Friday, September 19th

Capt. Dodd sets sail for home carrying with him fourteen thousand pounds ($70,000). He arrives after a fierce battle with pirates and against a violent storm at sea, and deposits his hoard in a bank with an iron-clad reputation. Unbeknown to Dodd the bank was just then on the verge of bankruptcy and although he hastens back to demand his money the same day he had deposited it, he is refused—because it was "after business hours." At the news Dodd falls to the ground in a fit of apoplexy and is removed to an insane asylum. The bank President's son, however, is in love with Dodd's daughter and demands that the money be returned. The sequel is thrilling and Dodd gets back his reason and his freedom. Does he get his money?

COMING EDISON SINGLE REEL SUBJECTS:

	RELEASED		RELEASED
Jerusalem and the Holy Land	Sept. 16	Embarrassment of Riches	Sept. 24
Cornwall; The English Riviera	" 17	A Proposal from the Sculptor	" 27
The Great Physician (Symbolic)	" 20	The Stolen Models	" 29
The Honor of the Force	" 22	Daughter of Romany	" 30
The Stroke of the Phoebus	" 23

TRADE MARK
Thomas A Edison

THOS. A. EDISON, Inc.
239 Lakeside Avenue, Orange, N. J.

LUBIN·FILMS

TWO REEL PICTURES EVERY THURSDAY

"SELF-CONVICTED" Two-Reel Thursday, September 25th

A great detective story with reformation rewarded.

"The Special Officer"

Two Reel

Released Thursday, October 2nd

This story pictures a dramatic episode in which Daddy Bowne, a grand old man, gets the best of a get-rich-quick swindler and saves the bank from disgrace and possible failure. It has a pretty love romance interwoven which will be very acceptable to sweethearts. Daddy runs some risks, but comes out all right, and the crook gets all that is coming to him.

"BREED OF THE NORTH" Two Reel Thursday, October 9th

Excellent dramatic story of the Northwest Lumber Region.

FIVE RELEASES EACH WEEK

"FASHION'S TOY" 1000 feet Tuesday, September 16th

A strange love tale, interesting and romantic.

"THE CLOD" 2000 feet Thursday, September 18th

A fearful and most dramatic episode of the Mexican Revolution.

"THE LOVE OF BEAUTY" 1000 feet Friday, September 19th

A pathetic romance which ends in love and happiness.

"HER PRESENT" 400 feet Saturday, September 20th

Very comic episode which ends in a good match.

"HIS REWARD" 600 feet Saturday, September 20th

A good old-maid joke which will make you laugh.

"POKER PAID" 400 feet Monday, September 22nd

A rube is fleeced, but wins out beautifully.

"THIS ISN'T JOHN" 600 feet Monday, September 22nd

A real farce, but John laughs last.

LUBIN 5 Color Posters, One, Three, and Six Sheets
From Your Exchange or A. B. C. Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

LUBIN

LUBIN MANUFACTURING CO. PHILADELPHIA U.S.A

LUBIN

VITAGRAPH

"PUMPS"
"SANDY GETS SHORTY A JOB" } Comedies Monday, Sept. 15th

1. A pair of shoes and a pair of lovers. The first pair leads to the mating of the second pair. 2. Sandy leads Shorty to it. He draws his pay in advance; the rest is easy.

"THEIR MUTUAL FRIEND" Comedy-Drama Tuesday, Sept. 16th

They are strangers, but through the services of the young man's dog, they start a mutual admiration society that ripens into love and ends in matrimony. Earle Williams in the lead, supported by Naomi Childers.

"THE HINDOO CHARM" Drama Wednesday, Sept. 17th

It is of evil intent. By a happy mistake it wins the love of a stepmother for her husband's children, whom she had previously ignored. Maurice Costello, Clara Kimball Young, Helen and Dolores Costello make up the cast.

"SUNNY, OR THE CATTLE THIEF" Western Drama Thursday, Sept. 18th

She brands her father's cattle, her lover is accused of trying to steal them. She goes to his rescue, gets shot and confesses she is the thief. All ends happily.

"JOHN TOBIN'S SWEETHEART" Comedy Friday, Sept. 19th

She waits, while he goes to the Cannibal Isles and marries a fat damsel. His sweetheart, in despair, marries another, while John reigns as king of his realm. Hughie Mack, Flora Finch and John Bunny are all concerned.

"OUR WIVES" Comedy, Special Feature in Two Parts Saturday, Sept. 20th

Their hubbies run after an actress, get locked in her trunks and are mourned as dead. Fun runs riot before everything is straightened out. Harry Morey, Lillian Walker, Wallie Van, Ada Gifford and Louise Beaudet make things hum.

"OUR WIVES"
RELEASED SATURDAY SEPT. 20.

SIX-A-WEEK

"DADDY'S SOLDIER BOY"—Drama MONDAY, SEPT. 22nd.
"EXTREMITIES"
"SCENES IN SINGAPORE" } Comedy and Topical TUESDAY, SEPT. 23rd.
"THE OTHER WOMAN"—Drama WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 24th.
"THE RACE"—Drama THURSDAY, SEPT. 25th.
"BUNNY FOR THE CAUSE"—Comedy FRIDAY, SEPT. 26th.
"UNDER THE DAISIES"—Drama, Special Feature in Two Parts SATURDAY, SEPT. 27th.

THE VITAGRAPH COMPANY RELEASES A SPECIAL FEATURE IN TWO PARTS EVERY SATURDAY, AND A COMEDY EVERY FRIDAY. VITAGRAPH ONE, THREE AND SIX SHEET POSTERS—SPECIAL MUSIC FOR ALL SPECIAL RELEASES.

THE VITAGRAPH CO. of AMERICA, East 15th St. & Locust Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Atheist

The explosion which results in the return of the Atheist's belief in God is wonderful in its reality. Prior to the upheaval, he stands as a mocker of all things holy. Then comes the awful accident, which buries his men under tons of rock.

Released Monday, September 29th
Special 1, 3 and 6-Sheet Posters

The Battle at Fort Laramie

A Stirring Story of Frontier Days in Two Parts

Seldom has a picture shown the terrific action crowded into the scene depicting the massacre of the troopers at Fort Laramie. How their death is avenged makes a wonderfully exciting picture.

Get the Two Superb Special One-Sheet Posters.
Also Special Three and Six-Sheet Posters.
Released Wednesday, October 1st.

And the Watch Came Back

It's impossible for Jack to get rid of the watch he innocently steals. What happens when he finds it belongs to his future father-in-law makes a corking comedy.

(On the same reel)

Historic Boston

To see this picture is the next best thing to making a trip to Boston. Every spot hallowed by History is shown.

Released Friday, October 3d.

The Railroad Inspector's Peril

The heroine's leap from a speeding freight train into the lake, while pursuing a bandit, is one of the exciting features.

Released Saturday, October 4th.
Special One, Three and 6-Sheet Posters.

Coming Wednesday, October 8th

The Riddle of the Tin Soldier

In Two Parts.

Featuring Miss Alice Joyce In a New Role.

TRADE KALEM MARK

KALEM COMPANY

235-239 West 23d Street New York

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the
CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square.)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr. .... President
E. J. Chalmers .... Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie .... Vice-President and General Manager
The office of the company is the address of the officers.

Western Office—169 West Washington Street (Post Building), Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Main 3145.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands .... $3.00 per year
Canada .... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (postpaid) .... 4.00 per year

ADVERTISING RATES.

Display Advertising Rates made known on application.
Classified Advertising—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, 50c.

NOTE.—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to Moving Picture World, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The index for this issue will be found on page 1330.)

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter.

Saturday, September 20, 1913

Facts and Comments

A CHARMINGLY naive and ingenuous correspondent is somewhat indignant because an intelligent reader criticised the pitifully weak imitation of a great classic subject. Our correspondent thinks such criticism is entirely out of order because the spurious imitation "has made money for the people that bought it." While in this guileless frame of mind our correspondent might as well work out a prospectus on the Profits of Plagiarism or capitalize the Benevolent Union of Literary Burglars and Classic Highwaymen. Paraphrasing a famous dictum, we might say that his principle seems to be: "The money justifies the junk."

*

It is quite possible that barefaced and boastful plagiarism may bring profit to Smith and may be the means of Jones buying an automobile, but what of the rights of the plagiarized victims and what of the effect of such misleading hodgepodges on the industry in general? How will it affect the reputation of the motion picture? Of course, Jones and Smith care little about that and only regret that such tricks cannot be perpetrated oftener. When, however, they appeal to us to abstain from criticism because it may possibly disturb their comfort or diminish their profits, their naivete rises to the dignity of the most exalted and sublimated "nerve."

* * *

PEOPLE are by no means getting tired of motion pictures, but there is no denying that they are more discriminating and that they want more quantity and better quality. With this finer sense of discrimination has come a willingness to pay better prices of admission. All over the country there has been a slow but sure and steady advance in the prices. Even here in New York City, where progress has by no means kept pace with the rest of the country, there are more ten, fifteen and twenty-five cent houses than ever before. Moving picture patrons are for one thing better and more comfortably housed than ever before and the management is everywhere on the look out for the best on the screen. Music has shown great improvement and the illustrated song has almost ceased to be heard. There are in many theaters here and in other parts of the country an atmosphere of refinement and a tone of dignity which were almost unknown four or five short years ago.

* * *

A FRIEND of The Moving Picture World writes from Thibet, which still holds the undisputed title of "Darkest Asia," to the effect that a company of native Thibetans has recently purchased a large quantity of European and American films, mostly spectacular subjects and crude comedies. According to our correspondent pictures showing scenes of drinking and fighting are the most popular. We are glad to learn, however, that subjects of a more useful nature are included in the supplies purchased. With proper management the moving pictures in Thibet, with a great central theater in Lhasa, ought not only to prove profitable but turn out a source of civilizing influences to those benighted regions. Of all the proofs of the educative value of the motion picture the events in Thibet are among the most encouraging.

* * *

WE earnestly hope that no self-respecting exhibitor of motion pictures will feel tempted to show any of the numerous portrayals of current crime and scandal with which the market has lately been flooded. The idea of coining money out of the misfortunes of men or women who happen to get into the limelight via the yellow press is unspeakably digusting to every person of the commonest decency. The deluded creatures who cannot see what a revolting spectacle they afford to the community whether they are the producers or exhibitors of these crime and scandal films are the worst enemies of the moving picture industry. Their utter lack of shame and human feeling arm the censorship cranks with new weapons. In refusing to exhibit these crime and scandal films moving picture men ought to add a word or two of condemnation and make it plain to the "booking agents" or sellers for these concerns that they might be in better business. They are not squeamish in such matters on the European continent, but even the Italian government has just now prohibited any filming of an American about to be tried for a capital crime in the Italian courts. The common sense of decency is happily international. The American public will not long tolerate the sort of outrage which calls for police interference in Southern Europe.

The Player

By Louis Reeves Harrison.

ONCE in a while some interesting personality is detached from the throng of interpreters in the screen story, like a glowing star hung out in the sky amid a thousand twinkling sparks. Artist is the name given to this exceptional performer, a term of too many other meanings to be of striking significance—there are artists tonsorial and vaudevillainous—but it is the only one at hand. It is the artist, using that word in its finest sense, who teaches the playwright humility, who grasps the dramatic poet's full purpose and so illumines it that all may read its true meaning.

Insufficient this language of ours, a vast ocean of words though it be, to sound the tone of thoughts sublime. Music may stimulate emotion and set imagination aflame; Poetry may move with grace that charms; Painting and Sculpture may suggest with mute appeal, but even the reflected personality of a mighty player has a tighter grip upon the heart, and, holding fast by its tendrils, may more powerfully sway the mind, as evidenced by the tens of millions attending theaters in this country every day. It is either the player or the play or, what is more reasonable, the two in combination that is responsible for the tremendous popularity of moving pictures. I should be inclined to add pictural beauty as a powerful adjunct, but the human element is the dominant one.

The author of a novel is playwright, director and interpreter, selecting his words as representative types and depending upon his command and arrangement of them for his medium. The work of the dramatist is only half wrought when it leaves his hands. The medium of conveying his thought to the people is nearly always beyond his control and subject, in screen drama especially, to much unwise modification. The skilled photoplaywright starts with a conception intended for appeal to the whole public, drawn with infinite pains for that purpose, and he frames it to suit the people through the performer, but how often does it reach the player in form suited to intelligent presentation?

I would like to have someone with wider studio experience than my own, who has visited the studios in and around New York oftener than I have, refute what I have said over and over again, that the dominant factor in the production of a photodrama is the one intervening between creator and interpreter, the director. It only requires a slight misconception of a play, as of a statement, to seriously alter its entire meaning; hence there is a growing need, one becoming rapidly urgent in the onrush of great features, for a broader path from playwright to player.

The amateur play, the summer with one little sparrow of an idea in it, from which the director evolved something he hoped might elevate long-suffering humanity or cheer the masses in their groping toward his standard of enlightenment, may have had gratifying dividend results in the good old days when scenarios were roughly estimated to be worth five dollars a bushel, but the groping masses are beginning to grow restless. They like the players—those of interesting personality are welcomed with joy—but it is becoming less vital to them that the director should have a green gasoline wagon than that favorite performers should be given something worth their while to perform.

Of all three influences upon the audience, that which is most direct is the player. It is to his intelligent grasp of the subject matter of a drama that both producer and creator of the great features to come must look for the kind of representation that is going to win. There must be something more than stage directions to set his mind aglow—the torch of the thinker must light that of the interpreter—and that something can best be secured in co-operation. If it is impossible or considered impracticable for all three forces to work for a common end, any important modification of a scenario should not be made on the sole authority of a director.

When the full meaning of the author does not reach the actor, when the intervening element is an arbitrary one, the player is subjected to a wooden performance of his role, with only an imperfect comprehension of what it is all about. He may easily catch the spirit of large plays adapted from novels, or from successful stage performances, but my remarks all apply to the original play and especially to the big issue, the modern feature production. No artist can successfully interpret what is interrupted and seriously changed on its way to him from the author.

So many elements enter into the complete product, the director, the camera man, the property man, the factory superintendent, and others, whose failure in detail means danger to the whole, that a most important fact has come to be disregarded. The telling of a story on the screen is a two-fold art. The two prime essentials are genius in the conception and genius in the representation. The genius of a true artist is so great that his personality has given wondrous luster to imitation jewels. The reason that he seldom reaches the full measure of his powers is that it has become a habit to tinker with scenarios. The director may only remove a little, but that little is too often the essence of the play, the tiny touch of genius that, like the grain of sand in the oyster, is needed to produce a pearl.

It is said that the average author does not know how to write for the player. It has also been said that the Great Bard succeeded because he wrote for this or that player. How old errors persist! Think for a moment of his many charming heroines! For what ladies were they written? Their roles were assigned in his day to boys with smooth faces. The truth is that he understood, as do successful writers of stories for publication, as theatrical people rarely do, the necessity of characterization without eccentricity. In the shuffling and dealing of old plots adapted from all sorts of sources, in dependence upon dressing types with wigs and costumes, small attention is paid to the characters presented in action. It was not his claim for a pound of flesh that immortalized Shylock—it was because the playwright made this wondrous characterization the essence of an idea.

If a veritable artist is to assume the lead in a play, he should be given a view of the author's conception and asked to make every possible suggestion that can intensify interest in the principal character. Such suggestions deserve the highest consideration of an author, even to the point of rearranging a play to suit them. If both creator and interpreter are sufferers from arbitrary and often unwarranted intervention, they should better realize the necessity of harmony of action in what is essentially two-fold. The final adjustment must, from the very nature of it, be the work of many minds to win the whole audience.

After weighing the gifts and deficiencies of those who make intelligent screen portrayal of dramatic stories possible, and after giving due consideration to the disabilities under which they labor, I have come to a higher estimate of their capabilities than ever and to a realization that their maximum working efficiency has not even been approached

The Plotless Play

By W. Stephen Bush

IN their eagerness to escape from the killing monotony of melodramatic doings on the screen many producers have gone in pursuit of the purely spectacular. He is the greatest dramatist who can invent a new automobile accident or a new cataclysm that will stand being filmed by the moving picture camera. The motto is: "Better a poor story with plenty of thrills than a good story in which there is no grand opportunity for falling off roofs, dancing on the top of elevators, climbing up the steep mountain side, being realistically threatened by wild animals, thrown in the air by collisions of trains or tumbling from motorcycles, etc., etc."

The trouble with the plotless spectacular production is obvious. Not only is the supply of spectacular features limited in the very nature of things, but even the best spectacles lose their thrills if they are repeated too often. When you see a bull fight for the first time it thrills you with horror. When the simple countryman sees, for the first time in his life, the daring feats of the lion tamer he stands rooted to the ground. Every great spectacle thrills for the first time, but when it is served up as a steady diet it begins to pall.

Whoever is bold enough to feed the populace with spectacles only must find new thrills every forty-eight hours. Nobody realizes this better than the circus people. It is hard for them to supply the new set of thrills once a year. A theater or any sort of amusement enterprise which is before the public three hundred and sixty-five days in the year will soon be a bankrupt in thrills if it seeks to supply them by the day. The spectacular is only an incident in the program of the theater or the moving picture, while with the circus it is first, last and all the time the great staple. To plunge into the spectacular from the melodramatic is like escaping Scylla to succumb to the perils of Charybdis.

The program for the exhibitor of the future and the great task for the producer is to give the public the real picture play in which the idea dominates and in which the spectacular is but an incident—a trite saying perhaps, but one which cannot be repeated and urged too often. The picture playwright must redeem the situation. The little play built by the little playwright for a consideration not exceeding the vast sum of one hundred dollars must be relegated to the rear and perhaps disappear entirely to give way to the man who has something to say and who knows how to make it plain in pictures. He is the man who makes the crowds come. Without him either the silent or the speaking stage cannot endure. We still need the eye "in fine frenzy rolling."

"When on the spindle, spun to endless distance,
"By Nature's listless hand is twirled,
"And the discordant tones of all existence
"In sullen jangle are together hurled,
"Who then the changeless orders of creation
"Divides and kindles into rhythmic dance?
"Who brings the one to join the general ordination
"Where it may throb in grandest consonance?
"Who bids the storm to passion stir the bosom?
"In brooding souls the sunset burn above?
"Who scatters every fairest April blossom
"Along the shining path of Love?
"Who braids the noteless leaves to crowns, requiting
"Desert with fame in Action's every field?
"Who makes Olympus sure the gods uniting?
"The night of man AS IN THE BARD REVEALED."

Gentlemen of the producing fraternity, masters of commercial organization, have you really thought that you could sail the vast ocean of life in relays of cheap canoes? The topsoil was so rich in pure ore that you fancied no digging would be needed after the first and second layer were exhausted. What a lesson is there in store for you. Let me gaze with you at the commercial aspect of things, which always wields such persuasive power. For adaptation of plays intended for the speaking stage exchanges all over the country are paying three and four times more than for other features. It is not at all certain that the screen adaptation of the most promising play will be a winner, indeed old moving picture men have their serious doubts, but the public is so hungry for real plays on the screen and so tired of amateurish concoctions that exchanges are willing to take the risk and pay the higher prices. They are paying for the idea, not for the original idea to be sure, but for the first filming of an original idea. There is your commercial value of the original idea. Now if the recast of a play and its mere possibility as a screen success makes such an appeal, what may we not expect of the playwright who has the gift to express himself on the screen directly. Right now millions of moving picture patrons are waiting for such a savior. I sincerely believe that in the great moving picture studios both here and abroad there are enough first class artists to aid such a playwright by their knowledge of screen needs and screen possibilities.

He will owe nothing whatever to the traditions and precepts of the speaking stage, nor will be need to bend his knee to the fetish of a technique which has never been more than a series of more or less plausible conventions. He will come in all his might the creator of his own ideals and of his own standards.

Nor need he fear to go without his proper hire. To him will be due not the wretched pittances of the past, but a just share in the profits of the labor of redemption. I cannot tell you where to find him, but it is quite certain that you will NOT find him timidly knocking at the gate with many others. Do not look for him in the dramatic breadline. Do not expect to find him in the conclaves of situation mongers who cannot see beyond the letter and to whom the spirit will ever be a book with seven seals.

The drama, either on the speaking or on the silent stage, is not a succession of attitudes. The real dramatist is the man that spoils the attitude and brings out the throbbing heart of man and woman where it can be seen just exactly as it is. Conventions can be smashed on the screen and we do not need the aid of words to take off the veneer and show the sombre useful truth with its heart-piercing and yet healing lessons.

A careful analysis will show that an altogether large percentage of screen plays consist of attitudes. The "Look-Pleasant" sort of photograph on which the subject assumes a look and pose altogether different from his every-day, wear-and-tear reality is dreadfully tiresome, and may be all right on the walls of the home parlor, but as a true picture of life it is a failure. It is the same with the picture play of the attitudinizing variety. A series of attitudes, no matter how pretty and dramatic, will never constitute a drama and supply a plot. It will not be long before the delicate nerve of the box-office will be affected by the plotless play. The probable loss in money will be heavy and will grow bigger the longer the reign of the plotless play will last.

"Perils of the Sea."

A Two-Part Special by the Kalem Company, Noteworthy for Beautiful Scenic Effects.

THE "Perils of the Sea" depicted in this excellent Kalem production are not all the dangers that beset those who "go down to the sea in ships," but just a few of the happenings that overtook a young man who left home to seek his fortune in foreign lands. Commendable photography, a fine sense of selection of scenic effects and the excellent work of the principals of the cast combine to produce a picture of more than ordinary merit.

The story is somewhat hackneyed, but the imagination of the author, who must have read "Robinson Crusoe" and "Hard Cash" at some time in his life, has given a new twist to the theme and justified the introduction of thrilling bits of adventure and delightful natural backgrounds. There are no makeshifts about the realism and the details of a fire at sea and the escape of the survivors are true enough to satisfy the most critical.

Scene from "Perils of the Sea" (Kalem).

The cast is an excellent one. Carlyle Blackwell, Jane Wolf, William H. West, J. W. Horne and a charming ingenue, Billie Rhodes, who is a recent addition to the Kalem western stock, are the principals.

Scene from "Perils of the Sea" (Kalem).

The story opens on an office scene in which Edward Langdon (Mr. Blackwell), is remonstrating with his brother David (J. W. Horne), because of the latter's dissolute habits. The matter is brought to the attention of the father (W. H. West), in whose office the boys are employed and who expresses displeasure with his wayward son, refusing a request for money. Edward supplies David with the money his father denied him and he hastens to join his friends in a game of poker where he is a looser. Subsequently David takes a sum of money from his father's strong box at home in which act he is surprised by Edward, but when their father is heard approaching David escapes leaving Edward to face the music.

To protect his brother Edward permits his father to believe that he is guilty of abstracting the money and is ordered out of the house. This scene is not as convincing as it might be for we are loth to believe that a father would condemn a trusted son so summarily under the circumstances; but that is the way it goes and Edward packs his duds and gets out under the cloud of suspicion. Unable to find employment he decides to leave the country and ships as a common seaman on board a steamship. When far out at sea the ship catches fire and is entirely destroyed, but a few of the crew and passengers escaping in an open boat.

Upon embarking Edward wrote to his mother telling her that he had shipped on the steamship Columbia, so, when the newspapers announce the loss of the Columbia by fire at sea, their is grief at Edward's home, for the story says that not a man survived. Realizing that he has been the cause of his brother's disgrace and death, David confesses that he took the money from his father's safe.

Turning back to the survivors of the ill-fated Columbia the picture shows them drifting in the open boat and in dire extremities. Some have died of privation and the rest are exhausted for lack of food and water. Edward, a sailor and a girl (Billie Rhodes), alone show signs of life. Finally land is sighted and the three struggle ashore, more nearly dead than alive.

Five years is supposed to have elapsed when we are again shown the survivors, clothed in skins and living in caves in the most primitive manner. Edward and the girl have withstood the long period of privation, but the simple life has told on the sailor who shows a savage desire for the possession of the girl. His efforts are frustrated by Edward and, finding his attempts baffled the sailor jumps from a high rock into the sea and is lost.

Shortly afterward the providential sighting of a steamship provides a means of rescue for the castaways. Edward is about to set fire to the beacon he has prepared against this time, when the girl comes to the front and demands her woman's privilege of disposing when the man does not propose. So, before Edward is permitted to touch off the signal fire he must first promise the girl, which he does, whereupon the rescue is allowed to proceed. What happens afterward is left to the imagination, for there the picture ends.

It is a good picture and will find many admirers, because of the beauty of portrayal, furthermore it was unanimously selected for the Exclusive Service Department of the General Film Co.

HENRY E. DIXEY AMONG FAMOUS PLAYERS.

Henry E. Dixey, the famous legitimate star, one of the old favorites of the American stage, is presented in "Chelsea 7750," an original drama of the underworld, written and directed by J. Searle Dawley, to be released September 20th by the Famous Players Film Co. In the role of an eminent detective, Mr. Dixey is afforded ample opportunity to utilize the fine powers for which he is noted. In a relentless and thrilling pursuit of a resourceful gang of counterfeiters, Mr. Dixey is provided with one of the strongest parts which in all his extended and versatile career he has ever portrayed. Startling revelations, ingenious machinations and overwhelming climaxes crowd fast in succession. Mr. Dixey is supported by Laura Sawyer, who as his daughter and a female detective, assists him in his triumph over the criminals, and "House Peters," in the role of Professor Grimble, the master mind of the counterfeiters.

MADAME BLACHE WORKING AT LAKE HOPATCONG.

Madame Blache, president of the Solax Company, and a company of 50 people, together with property men and numerous assistants and an equipment of three wagon loads of properties and scenery, have left for Lake Hopatcong where numerous scenes in the forthcoming Solax feature, entitled, "Rogues of Paris" will be staged. The transfer of the company and the equipment to this famous lake resort means an expense of more than $2,000. A feature of the work up in the country will be the erection of army pontoon bridges and the use of a castle at the present time owned by the Russell Sage estate. Included in the company are Vinnie Burns, Claire Witney, Mrs. Truesdale, Joseph Levering, Frannie Fraunholz, Wallace Scott, James Johnson, James O'Neil, supers, attendants, etc.

“Hard Cash”

A Two-Reel Edison Feature from the Novel by Charles Reade.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

THIS novel lends itself admirably to adaptation for photoplay purposes because the author's treatment of his plot works up some striking effects and situations. The central figure is an old sea captain, who has accumulated the equivalent of seventy thousand dollars in hard cash and carries it with him on his last homeward voyage. The money is intended to sweeten the lives of his wife and daughter, but nearly everything that befalls him interferes with its delivery to his loved ones. This idea is essentially dramatic. Everything opposes him. One action swiftly follows another as circumstances yield to the man, but he is nearly overcome at last by a tragic situation which is, however, logically and happily relieved in the end.

The fate that presses Captain David Todd on and on through a desperate fight at sea, in which he sinks the pirate vessel—the scenes aboard ship and the actual destruction of the pirate vessel are shown—to deposit his money in a bank that is on the verge of failure, is even better suited to the drama than to the novel. Such a subject can, however, be treated in a novel and in a photodrama much better than in a novel and in a stage drama because the proportions and development do not have to be materially readjusted in the first case. There is practically nothing that the novel and the screen story can not relate, whereas there are decided limitations of time and space imposed upon the stage performance, and the first two, it will be eventually seen, are very closely related in form.

Scene from “Hard Cash” Edison).

The escape of Captain Todd later on from a burning insane asylum is graphically depicted in the Edison production. His breaking out the asylum with the banker's son—the latter has been unjustly incarcerated because he discovered his father's infamy—is attended with a lot of hazardous work, some daring athletic feats, and their pursuit by the keepers is perfectly suited to similar situations of suspense seen only in moving pictures. The two men reach a bold coast, and one scene in this part of the photodrama is a veritable gem. It follows the fall of Captain Todd over a precipice and shows a grand sweep of rugged coast in such perfect picture balance as to reveal big artistic judgment on the part of the play's director. This particular picture would inflame the imagination of a master painter.

The splendid cast in this feature merits more space than is allotted to a critical review. So many of the best members of the Edison players are grouped in it that their work can only be commended in a general way. To Charles Ogla is assigned the lead, the character of Captain Todd, and he fails in no particular to make the impersonation effective. Such plays afford the actor opportunity to show his value, and they do this because they are originally constructed by authors familiar with proportion and composition, who do nothing in a haphazard manner, not inventing as they go along, neither falsifying in the preparation nor in what we are led to expect. The fact that this well-guided company has been rather conservative in selection of subjects is far from being a bad sign. They are going to authors of to-day for some of their new plays and following a wise course to the best end.

Celebrate Lowry's Birthday

General Manager of Lubin Plant Acknowledges Twenty-five Years and is Given a Dinner.

Wednesday, September 10th, was a sort of red-letter day at the big plant of the Lubin Manufacturing Company in Philadelphia. The cause of the celebration was that the twenty-fifth birthday of the general manager of the plant, Ira M. Lowry, happened on that date, and the little army of picture people united in making merry over the occasion as an evidence of their esteem. It was a very genuine demonstration, too, for General Manager Lowry has, in the short time that he has guided the destinies of the Lubin Company, endeared himself to its employees by fair treatment and appreciation of effort. The result is that every mother's son—and daughter—of them are shouting for Lowry, and working like nailers to help him make good for Lubin.

While Mr. Lowry was the recipient throughout the day of the heartfelt congratulations of the Lubin forces in general, the big event, the climax of the occasion, happened in the evening when about forty heads of departments, directors of production and editors of scenarios, with a few personal friends, retired to a little old-fashioned road-house at Jeffersonville, Pa., conducted by one boniface, Tom Brown, and there made merry till the small hours. It was a happy gathering, and the representative of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD who was favored with an invitation is glad that he was there, though he possessed at one time a fear that he might not arrive intact and at the same time.

Yes, it was some ride. Jeffersonville Inn is just twenty-two miles from the Lubin studio in Philadelphia and the roads are rough all the way. The party left the studio at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening in several automobiles and the last machine in the procession passed under the wire at Tom Brown's at 6:33. Harry Myers, in his high-powered roadster, came in first, but no one saw him at any time from the start to the finish. The trailers passed through clouds of dust when they hit bits of the road that were not oiled, but it could only be surmised that Harry was on before. Arthur Hotaling was a close second with his big yellow roadster, and every chauffeur seemed to believe that they had to keep those two speed-devils in sight, even though their cars were not equipped for the task and they were not familiar with the road. The WORLD man occupied a car in company with Arthur Johnson, Hugh D'Arcy and Lawrence McCloskey. No one lost his nerve, but it was fortunate that the car was equipped with a canopy top. Possibly it felt worse than it really was, but we were glad when the Inn was reached.

Excellent arrangements had been made for the dinner. The company had a large room tastefully decorated for the occasion and the dinner was served piping hot and on time, cooked only as they cook things to eat down in old Pennsylvania. Look it over: Oysters on the shell; celery, olives and radishes right out of the garden; boiled fish and potatoes; roast chicken — you would take your hat off to that chicken — lima beans, corn on cob and mushrooms, also picked that morning for this occasion. There were trimmings of roman punch, salad, cheese and crackers, ice cream and coffee.

Drinkables? Sure there were drinkables: martini cocktails, claret, plenty of champagne and a choice sip of creme de menthe at the finish. Broadway couldn't have laid a better cloth and fare. If you happen that way don't pass up Tom Brown's.

Present at this delightful dinner were the following named Lubinites and guests: Ira M. Lowry, general manager of the Lubin plants of Philadelphia and Betzwood; Tom Hopkins, studio manager; Shannon Fife, Clay M. Green, Edwin Barbour, Norbert Lusk, Emmett Campbell Hall, George Terwilliger, all of the scenario department, and Lawrence McCloskey, head of that department; H. A. D'Arcy, publicity department; R. W. McFarland, manager of the production department of Betzwood; Charles Goldsmith, secretary of the Lubin Company; Arthur D. Hotaling, Joe Smiley, Harry Myers, Arthur Johnson, Edgar Jones, John E. Ince and Barry O'Neill, directors; Edward L. Simons, consulting engineer; J. Tessier, chief machinist; Kempton Green, Earl Metcalf, Charles Brandt and Clarence Elmer, photoplayers; Tom Cochrane, factory manager for Philadelphia and Betzwood; Louis Hall, assistant engineer; Isadore Schwartz, assistant studio manager; Harry Nugent, executive department; William Kerry, purchasing agent; Burton George, assistant director; Siegmund (“Pop”) Lubin, daddy of them all, and J. L. Feibelman; Stanley Lowry, George Fleming and James L. Hoff, guests and friends of the guest of honor.

During and following the dinner there was a talkfest, in which many compliments were paid Mr. Lowry. Clay Green read a humorous scenario that created a great laugh. Letters and telegrams from Romaine Fielding, Wilbert Melville, Frank Erickson and the mother of Mr. Lowry were read.

The party broke up after they were completly talked out and then motored back to Philadelphia at a pace fully within the speed limit. It was a great time and an enjoyable one.

"High Treason" (Cines-Kleine)

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

THE Cines-Kleine two-reel subject, "High Treason," to be released September 16, can lay claim to a compelling story and to excellent production and photography. One cannot fail to be impressed that these films can well be referred to as affording a strong contrast to the "padding" that is too frequently observable in some so-called feature subjects. One's interest is held throughout, without a waver, and the action is always brisk, leading us at times through thrilling and tragic scenes. Objection may be made that the glimpses of war given in the pictures are rather tame, since the opposing force is never seen in the camera's field, but it must be remembered that the main object of the story is to reveal the cause of the war and the fearful consequences that overtake the people who are responsible.

Particular attention should be bestowed on the talented characterizations of the principals in the cast. Charles Maestro (the Chilo of "Quo Vadis?") again treats us to brilliant character work in the role of Benjamin Harris, the daring and unprincipled banker of the story. There is a finish in the acting of Mr. Maestro in this part that will delight every lover of photodramatic art. Again is he proficient in the art of make-up and again does he succeed in creating a strong and distinctive personality. He is always as careful in dressing his characters as he would be if he were preparing for presentation at Court. And this, in itself, is an excellent observance that can be heeded with profit by many photoplayers.

Scene from "High Treason" (Cines).

The leading man, Maurice Anverso, is fully equal to the important requirements necessary for a forceful portrayal of Charles Rossi, the wireless operator, who falls before the temptings of his extravagant wife and the rich bribe offered by Banker Harris. The fight made by conscience and honor in this fearful mental struggle is vividly shown. If Mr. Anverso had the art of Mr. Maestro, in facial make-up, his Rossi would be still more acceptable.

That accomplished actress, Miss Ida Talli, whose delightful impersonation of Aunt Betty in "A Lession From the Past," is still pleasantly recalled, is seen as Mrs. Rossi, the extravagant wife and the temptress of her husband. This character is in strong contrast to that of Aunt Betty, and Miss Talli's impressive and viperish portrayal fills one with revulsion and disgust for the unhappy woman.

The opening scene shows the farewell of Lieutenant Paul Rossi to his parents, as he goes to join his regiment on the frontier.

His father, Charles Rossi, is a government wireless operator. He is a nervous, worried man, due to the extravagances of his wife. Benjamin Harris, a prominent and conscienceless banker, is a friend of Rossi. He has been speculating on the decline of stocks, in the expectation that war with another power will soon be declared by his country. He knows that Rossi is in need of money and offers him $50,000 to change a wireless message which is expected at the war office. Rossi refuses, but his wife, who has overheard the conversation, begs of him to take the money for the sake of their son. Where the banker failed, his wife influences her husband to perform the infamous deed.

When the wireless message arrived, which was entirely pacific in its nature, Rossi changed it so that it indicated that peace negotiations had failed and that war was inevitable.

As a consequence, war between the two nations was declared, and the first victim of the strife was Lieutenant Paul Rossi, who was shot at the head of his troops, while leading a gallant charge. When his father read the news of his death, he fell almost insensible and sought to hide the truth from his wife. She, however, read the news item and was overcome by hysteria. She was aroused from her anguish by the report of a pistol . She rushes into the adjoining room and finds her husband has committed suicide.

Nor does Banker Harris, the author of the crime, escape. The government discovers his perfidy and treason and he is led off to prison to await his doom.

"When Paris Loves" (Eclectic).

By George Blaisdell.

THE Eclectic Film Company will release on September 18 this three-part picture. In every respect it matches the standard set by its predecessors. The cast stands out. It is from the Comedie Francaise. This latter fact is sufficient of itself to establish the rank of the players. Leading the group is M. Ravet, who will be recognized by followers of the screen as one of its greatest artists. Of heroic mold, he is one of the big men gifted with brains to match his physique. His role is that of a father determined his son shall marry as he dictates. Mlle. Robinne is charming as the artist who loves as devotedly in her prosperity as she did in the days when she was fighting for recognition. Mr. Alexandre gives a fine interpretation of the artist son, in whom filial obedience is planted so strongly that he renounces the woman of his heart but not strongly enough to permit him to marry a woman he does not love. The old axiom that if you cannot marry the woman you love be sure to marry one that loves you has no weight with him. Mlle. Bovy will win sympathy in her part of the woman whose affection is not reciprocated; who, when she realizes the futility of it, takes by the hand the man who so gently has told her of his love for another and leads him straight to his parents and in their presence breaks the engagement by returning the ring reluctantly given.

The story interests throughout. It opens in a studio in Paris. Jean and Gabrielle are in love. Their apartments adjoin. Living with Gabrielle is her little sister. Jean has successfully passed his examination at the Fine Arts, and his friends celebrate the occasion in his rooms. As Gabrielle picks up her little sister to leave the revelers decide to adjourn in a body. They take Jean with them. Gabrielle slips into Jean's studio to clear up the table. Enters Gaston, the father of Jean; he has come to learn why the son has failed to obey his command to return home. He sees Gabrielle, who departs. Gaston has not removed his derby hat. He follows Gabrielle, sees the child, and jumps to conclusions—as false as they are hasty. Gaston waits for Jean, and on his return sternly, imperiously, directs the son to go with him.

At his home Jean is inconsolable. He reads newspaper reports of Gabrielle's success. The girl selected by the father returns the engagement ring. Jean's mother decides to take matters into her own hands. She takes her son to Paris. They go to the Salon, where they meet Gabrielle, surrounded by admirers. Gabrielle tries to ignore Jean, but the effort is weak. Later the mother goes to Gabrielle's home, and after persuasion induces her to come to the hotel. Jean, his head bowed, looks in the mirror and sees Gabrielle. He puts out his arms and the woman comes to him. It is at this time that Gaston, who has followed to Paris, enters the room. Still with his hat on, he denounces son and sweetheart. The mother explains the situation—that the child is Gabrielle's sister and that the artist is in every way worthy of their son. It is a real situation. The hat comes off with a sweep, Gaston kisses the forehead of Gabrielle, and returns her to Jean. The sternness has disappeared. All are happy.

It will be seen that here are many opportunities for holding a house—scenes that in the hands of these most competent players are of dramatic power. The settings are on a par with the quality of the acting, the photography with both.

PEERLESS WILL NOW BE DOMINO FILMS.

The new brand of naval and Puritan productions to be made by the New York Motion Picture Corporation, will be known as Domino films. These pictures were first advertised as Empire, and then later changed to Peerless, but owing to copyright laws, they will be called Domino.

The Battle of Waterloo.

Multiple Reel of the Waterloo Film Co.

PROBABLY one of the most dramatic events in history was that stirring one which put an end to the destructive career of Napoleon Bonaparte. Fascinating as was this upstart, who ruled by virtue of superior military genius, or remarkable character and lofty ambition, he was a perpetual menace to the peace of Europe, an active volcano of sudden and terrific eruption. His tremendous egotism made him ruthless—he destroyed friends and foes with equal indifference—and the civilized world gave a sigh of relief when he was at last sequestered at St. Helena.

The high point of his history was reached at Waterloo, where his masterly militarism was declining because of physical infirmities, and also because he met in Wellington a genius of determination.

The extremely difficult task of giving a picture of the entire operations at Waterloo has been undertaken in this film, but it is not possible to gather its varied scenes within camera scope. Large ensembles are frequently shown with great bodies of infantry and cavalry in motion, but the smaller actions, such as the bitter struggle over a single gun, will prove the most exciting to those in front.

The sub-titles and maps of this production are especially good in aiding the spectator to grasp the situation; the types are admirably selected, that of Wellington being especially good, and the horrors of war are depicted during the closing scenes with great force and realism. In this respect, as well as many others, the portrayal has considerable educational value.

The manufacturer of this British film has been inclined to repeat somewhat in some of the scenes, especially in the first three reels. The last two reels are altogether free from this, however, and are justly worthy of high praise.

The production, as a war picture, is one of the most wonderfully realistic that has yet been attempted and has received very extensive notices in the British papers, where they should be good judges of anything representing this tremendous episode in European history.

The Duke of Wellington.

Scene from "The Battle of Waterloo."

"In the Bishop's Carriage."

Famous Players' Four-Part Feature.

By George Blaisdell.

IT is several months since picture lovers have seen on the screen Mary Pickford in a new film. In this refined melodrama they will see Little Mary in a new light. "In the Bishop's Carriage," from the book of Miriam Michelson, is a crook play; nevertheless its treatment is so artistic, so delicate, so finished, that it will please every division of society. In its delineation of the character of the charity girl who falls out of the clutches of the virago in the charity house into the hands of the thief—out of the frying pan into the fire, as it were—and then under the influence of a man animated by honest motives, the picture is more than interesting; it is instructive. Nance's attempts to reform, her failures, and her final triumph over wrong will be followed with the closest attention. Dave Wall, as Tom Dorgan, the crook, gives a splendid performance. His work is restrained at times, yet showing, when the occasion justifies it, every ounce of force necessary to carry over a situation. He has much to do, and it is all well done.

Scene from "In the Bishop's Carriage" (Famous Players).

House Peters, in the role of Obermuller, the theatrical man, makes his debut on the screen in this picture. He makes good. It is a popular part, one that will carry all the way the sympathy of the observer. Mr. Peters is tall, of good figure, and altogether of pleasing personality. John Steppling plays Mr. Ramsey, the bibulous husband who is robbed of jewels belonging to his wife. This versatile actor's work is always finished and always good to see. Grace Henderson, who will be recognized by screen followers, plays well the role of Mrs. Ramsey. Mme. Dalberg is the star actress who leaves temptation in the way of Nance, the former companion of the crook, given a chance on the stage. Her delineation is effective, convincing. George Moss as the bishop will be enjoyed. His consternation at the discovery of a pretty young woman in his carriage makes a delightful bit of comedy. Howard Missimer is the plain-clothesman. What little he has to do is well done, as it is bound to be.

Scene from "In the Bishop's Carriage" (Famous Players).

"In the Bishop's Carriage" cannot be described as a love story. There are two scenes in it, though, where the affection of the girl whose life has been such a rough one comes to the surface. The first, where Nance, after her successful debut on the stage, is surprised in her room by the entrance of Dorgan as she is contemplating the bouquet thrown to her by an admirer, will stir the heart. The escaped convict, demanding that Nance return to him, is in turn surprised by the entrance of Obermuller. Nance flies to him for protection. It is the awakening of the good in a heart that has been trained to evil. The second is where Obermuller and Nance, on the waterfront, watch the departure of a tramp steamer bound for India, bearing on board Dorgan. If the love element is lacking its absence is atoned for by the presence of the note of suspense—in continuity. Thrilling situations abound; situations legitimately thrilling, made so by the art of the author and the skill of the director and the fine acting of the players.

The interest is established in the first scene, where Nance is beaten by the matron. Her escape and pursuit by the police and the finding of shelter and protection in the rooms of Dorgan mark the beginning of a train of adventures the number of which precludes description. It is just one after another. One scene deserves special mention. Nance visiting the star actress has seen jewels. The force of habit is too strong. She fights against her inclination to steal—and falls. No sooner has she taken them, however, than she repents and rushes to the room of Obermuller. She throws them on bis desk. "I stole them," she confesses; and then pleads: "Why can't you keep temptation out of my way?" The action of the theatrical man will recall the nobility of the fine old bishop when the gendarmes brought in Jean Valjean.

The play is almost entirely of interiors. The settings are skillfully and tastefully constructed. One that will stand out is the theater scene on the occasion of Nance's debut as an actress. Among the outdoor views are those of a hotel roof garden and fine residential neighborhoods. The photography is excellent. "In the Bishop's Carriage" is a strong picture.

DAVID HORSLEY BACK FROM EUROPE.

Signalizes His Arrival by a Dinner to Members of Film Press—To Enter Exhibiting Field.

On Wednesday, September 10, David Horsley returned to New York from his vacation in Europe. On Tuesday he wirelessed his right-hand man, Earl J. Hudson, to send out invitations to representatives of the trade press to meet him Wednesday evening at the Hotel Astor. Mr. Hudson arranged matters speedily. To greet Mr. Horsley were besides Mr. Hudson, Roland E. Blaisdell of Mr. Horsley's staff; William M. Petingale, W. A. Johnson, Joseph W. Farnham, Wendell P. Milligan, Fred Beecroft, Arthur Leslie, George Du Bois Proctor and George Blaisdell. After spending a couple of hours at a round table in the Orangerie discussing a fine dinner and trying to bring Mr. Horsley's knowledge of the local film situation up to date, the party adjourned to a room on the eighth floor, where Mr. Horsley talked over his plans with his friends.

The chief item of interest brought out was that Mr. Horsley, after five and a half years spent in manufacturing films, has decided to enter the exhibiting field. He says a number of his friends have asked him to join them in securing a chain of theaters—good ones and large ones—for the exhibiting of motion pictures. It is Mr. Horsley's idea to obtain, so far as the present market may permit, a selected program, based on merit. It is not intended to restrict the territory covered to any one city or state.

Mr. Horsley sailed from New York with Mrs. Horsley and their son on June 26. After three weeks in England and Scotland the former treasurer of the Universal Company went to the Continent, which they pretty well covered. Mr. Horsley says that the demand abroad is for multiple-reel dramas and half-reel comedies. He says the larger foreign manufacturers have an advantage over American competitors by reason of the difference in salaries paid to players. It was observed by Mr. Horsley that the manufacturers abroad were giving much attention to educational and scenic films. One interesting bit of gossip brought back is that the makers of "Quo Vadis?" underestimated the drawing power of the picture and got comparatively little money out of it.

"Victory"

A Five Part Drama of Latin America, as a Vehicle of Illustrating the Work of the United States Navy.

Reviewed By Hugh Hoffman.

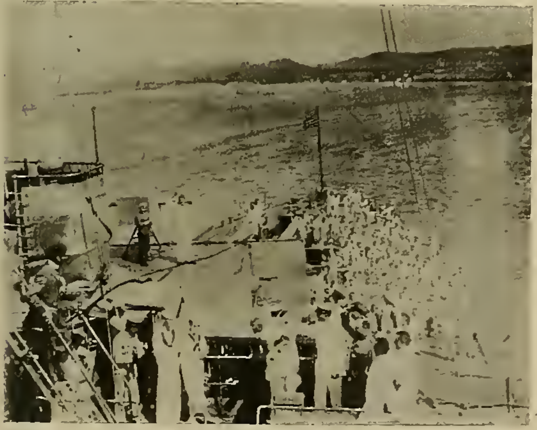
AS an illustration of the vast changes in methods of warfare, this picture overlooks nothing in the way of modern equipment, and shows how far the army and navy has progressed over the days and ways of '61. As an undertaking of motion picture production it comes as near being gigantic as any producer would care to have it.

Few ordinary observers, perhaps, will ever give a thought to the difficulty of obtaining permission from the Secretary of the Navy to use battleships in a moving picture for commercial purposes. Few, if any, will realize the difficulty of making such a picture even with full permission granted.

Scene from "Victory" Showing Hydroplane.

The picture at the start called for considerable capital. It was necessary to transport a company of thirteen to tropical America. Then came the difficulty of handling marines, soldiers, battleships, hydroplanes, explosives, wireless telegraphy, railway trains, diplomats, high power guns and Spaniards.

The picture was produced by J. Parker Read, Jr., and with all his past experience as a producer he would never have gotten through with his work were he not a fluent speaker of the Spanish language. Most of the scenes were done in Cuba, from Havana all the way to Santiago.



Scene from "Victory" (Victory Film Co.).

Critics are often deceived as to the effect a picture will have upon theater goers when the picture is reviewed in silence within a manufacturer's projecting room. There everything is cold and gloomy and the picture has to stand or fall by its merits or faults. Shorn of the glamour of music and applause many a picture has been condemned that has later vindicated itself before the court of last resort, namely, the public. Such a picture is "Victory." Seen in a bare commercial exhibiting room it falls flatter than a pancake, yet the picture has recently been shown for a week in one of New York's largest and best theaters to immense business and to the satisfaction of all concerned.

One reason for this deceiving state of affairs is that some pictures need music and effects to bring them out. After all, a cannon firing in a picture is nothing but a puff of smoke. It is not half so thrilling or convincing as when the roar of the gun is heard. An attack of soldiery is always more sensational when accompanied by accelerated music. The patter of musketry gives zest to skirmish scenes, and so on and so forth ad infinatum. "Victory" was put forth by its sponsors as a patriotic picture, with a view to enlightening American citizens in respect to their Navy. If this were not the case permission would perhaps not have been granted for the use of the ships and other apparatus. Therefore, as the production presumes to be purely patriotic, it is no more than fair to make allowance for the right kind of music to emphasize it and provide the proper enthusiasm.

As a story "Victory" does not rise to any considerable dramatic eminence. On the bare presentation it seems commonplace. It deals with treachery and intrigue; and yet when we think back a few years we must realize that the United States undertook a war in Cuban waters that was brought about by treachery and intrigue. Even now in one part of Latin America our government is much concerned over certain high handed proceedings that have taken place. The events that lead up to any war are usually commonplace and sordid, ofttimes with murder as an incentive. At any rate, such is the story. It tells of the love of two men for a diplomat's daughter; one a U. S. Navy Lieutenant, and the other a Spanish officer. The Spaniard finding himself eclipsed hatches out plots against the Americans involved in his disappointment. These plots mature to the extent of precipitating a land and naval battle during which all the modern methods of warfare are brought into play.

HERMAN SMIDT OPENS FEATURE EXCHANGE.

Sure it's Herman. There's only one Herman Smidt. If ever it came to a vote to decide who is the most popular exchange manager in New York City, Herman Smidt would be found way up at the top of the list, running one, two, three. And now look what he is doing; he is opening his own exchange. For seven years he has been booking and handing out reels to almost every exhibitor in greater New York, at one time or another. During that time he has built up an acquaintance of the widest scope in the metropolitan district. Five of his seven years were spent with the Alfred Weiss film exchange on 6th avenue near 14th street. When the General Film Co. took over the Weiss exchange Herman continued there as chief booking clerk. When the Kinetograph Company was formed he became identified with it in the exchange department and after its purchase by the G. F. Co. he went to the Mutual exchange at the old Weiss quarters where he remained until a few weeks ago.

Herman H. Smidt.

During his long experience Mr. Smidt learned the exchange business from A to Z. He endeared himself to hundreds of exhibitors by his accommodating ways and his rare good nature. Whenever motion picture men speak of Herman Smidt they agree that there was never a fairer and squarer exchange man in the business. How a photographer ever managed to catch Herman looking so serious was hard to imagine until he explained that this picture was taken on his wedding day. When Herman bawls out an operator for being late with his reels it is a sarcastic sermon and an oratorical masterpiece. Then, when he has finished, that famous Billiken smile of his comes out, like the sun breaking through a dark cloud, and he is happy again.

The new exchange will be known as The De Luxe Feature Film Company, with offices in the Masonic Building, 6th avenue and Twenty-third street. With Mr. Smidt's ability and with his immense following in the trade, his new business should be a big winner from the start. He is going to handle the best line of features that money can buy, and it will all be new and clean and the kind that exhibitors want. No junk or dupes for Herman.

Vitagraph's New London Offices

Commodious and Imposing Quarters Recently Opened on Charing Cross Road—Evidence of Remarkable Growth of Foreign Business.

GEORGE H. SMITH, London representative of the Vitagraph Company of America, arrived in New York on the steamer Oceanic, Wednesday, September 3, for a short visit and consultation at the home offices of the company. Mr. Smith brought with him some photographs of the new London offices of his company which have just been opened at Nos. 31 to 33 Charing Cross Road. Our British contemporary the Kinematograph Weekly gives in a recent issue a highly complimentary description of the new Vitagraph home which it terms "the last word in up-to-date offices."

The VITAGRAPH Co.
The VITAGRAPH Co.

Vitagraph Office In London.

"It is difficult in bald type," says the Kinematograph Weekly, "to do ample justice to the elegant, commodious and refined suite of offices that now represent the Vitagraph Company's headquarters in London. The front is of solid mahogany and the windows themselves have a refined air that is characteristic of the whole building. Passing the liveried official at the door, we enter the salon, where the various publications of the firm, typewriting, addressing, telephoning, etc., are carried out, and one notices how carefully each detail has been thought out in order that the whole may give a good impression. The electroliers are of the newest design in carbonized silver, the walls are unique in their coloring and general effect, the office furniture and carpets are of the best and there is a feeling that the firm which possesses this discriminating choice of its surroundings has goods to sell of an equally high-class nature.

George H. Smith, Vitagraph Representative In London.

"At the back of the salon, on the right hand side, are the secretary's offices and the accountant's department, both of which are airy, light and convenient. Alongside is Mr. Smith's private office, which, though of a luxurious appearance, gives definite signs of hard work and energetic business. Under this suite of offices is to be found the splendid projection room, one of the largest and best fitted show rooms in London. At the Charing Cross Road end is the projecting room, containing an Ernemann and an Indomitable machine, plenty of space being set aside for rewinding, storage, etc. Between fifty and one hundred persons can comfortably be seated to watch the screen at the other end, and as there are three exits there is ample means for safety should fire occur. Every care has been taken against trouble, fire-proof walls, fire-proof partitions and every conceivable precaution having been adopted. Behind the screen is to be found the safe depository, a huge fire-proof room containing a mammoth safe, in which the week's releases are deposited. Alongside of the projection room, the poster department is unique in its dimensions and in the thousands of posters it contains; these are carefully pigeon-holed and ample bench room is given for packing and despatching. Here, again, an exit can be obtained to the upper part or to the goods entrance at the rear of the building. The whole of the premises show pride and careful thought in their arrangement and everything has been done to get the most effective working by the numerous staff."

As an evidence of the remarkable growth of the foreign business of the Vitagraph Company nothing could be more conclusive than the establishment of these splendidly elaborate offices. Since entering the foreign market the Vitagraph Company has made three separate moves, each time to larger quarters, and its sales have increased correspondingly.

On Mr. Smith's arrival in port he was met by his brother, A. E. Smith, who joined the Oceanic at quarantine with his big steam yacht. After the party had passed the customs, they went aboard the yacht and sailed away to A. E. Smith's summer home at Oyster Bay. In the party were W. T. Rock, A. V. Smith and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Reader, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Deyer and a number of friends.

RONALD READER SAILS.

Ronald A. Reader, Paris representative of the Vitagraph Company, who with Mrs. Reader has been visiting friends in New York for the past several weeks and transacting a little business with the heads of his company, sailed away on the steamship Oceanic Saturday, Sept. 6. A large party of friends were at the pier to bid Mr. and Mrs. Reader bon voyage. Their staterooms were beautifully decorated—one in red and one in white—a profusion of flowers, loose and in baskets, baskets of fruit, boxes of candy and other presents, almost monopolized the place. "Pop" Rock was there and champagne flowed freely. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Rock, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Connors, Mr. and Mrs. McNichols, Mrs. Carl Willat, and C. S. Burton.

Mr. Reader returns with elaborate plans for the extension of the Vitagraph Company's business in Europe.

A TEMPERAMENTAL PICTURE ACTOR.

Not all the funny things we see and hear are confined to the vaudeville circuit or musical shows. During the taking of the picture "Hard Cash" by the Edison Company recently, it was necessary to build a portion of a ship—the forward deck—for a battle scene. This was constructed in such a way that it could be rocked to get an ocean swell effect. The extra men called for the picture and who were not in this particular scene furnished the motive power, as it was at some distance from the studio and sufficient stage hands were not available.

Among the number was one man, some kind of a foreigner, by the way, who considered rocking the ship far beneath his histrionic powers; and when he was requested to lend a hand, struck an attitude—head and shoulders back, left foot forward, coat buttoned tightly across his manly chest, one hand thrust into his coat, between the second button and the place where the third should have been—but wasn't, and delivered his little "spiel." "Vat? Me? Me? Rock de sheep? Nefer! I am an actor; I am here to act, to do somezing gran. Rock de sheep? Me? R-r-ock de sheep? Nix! I am an actor, not a R-r-ocking horse." And with that he stalked off in the direction of Rockaway Beach.

"SEEING UNIVERSAL CITY" CARS OPERATING.

The enterprise was started by D. F. Finlav, F. C. Tainter and W. H. Catlin and it would appear that the venture was going to be a big success. The cars hold thirty people and the charge is one dollar for the thirty-five-mile trip through to the Universal City.

CHICAGO LETTER

By JAS. S. McQUADE

AT the meeting held September 6, in the Masonic Temple, the members of the Chicago branch of the International Motion Picture Association adopted unanimously the running of a three-reel program for five cents and of a five-reel program for ten cents.

Secretary Smith states that it was the largest meeting held for some time, 150 members being present. Everyone in the hall was given the privilege to express his opinions frankly before the vote was cast, and only three recalcitrants could be found. The objections made by these people were chiefly confined to the charge made for the balcony in theaters where 10-cent programs are run. When the vote was taken, even they forgot their differences and the adoption was made unanimous. The new rule will go into effect Monday, Sept. 15.

Secretary Smith informs me that the association will stand by every member in good standing on the proposed ventilation ordinance. As the ordinance is now worded, it will close many good theaters and inflict hardship on others.

The association has appointed a committee of five to take up the question of the new scale submitted by moving picture operators. On this committee are Wm. J. Sweeney, chairman; Fred Schaefer, J. D. Rose, James J. McNarney, and L. C. Krebs. A meeting was held by the committee on September 10.

Secretary Smith informs me that the International Motion Picture Association in Chicago has been increased by 55 members since August 10, and that a number of additional applications are now pending.

Mutual's New Offices in Mallers Building.

The offices of the Mutual Film Corporation, in the new Mallers Building, Madison and Wabash Avenues, were visited last week. They are located on the fourth floor and occupy about 5,000 square feet of floor space.

One is immediately impressed by the tasteful appearance and solid tone of the appointments. The furniture and fixtures are of mahogany, and clear plate glass is used in the doors and dividing sections of the various departments. This gives almost an unobstructed view of every department from the main office, which overlooks Wabash Avenue, and which is occupied by J. E. Willis, district manager, and R. C. Seery, manager of the Majestic branch. Adjoining are the program and booking departments, which lead into the shipping and receiving rooms, these in turn connecting with the supply room, the poster department and the inspection room. A large steel vault, conforming strictly with the city requirements, serves as a storage room for films. The projection room is very neat and cozy and will seat about 150 people. Excellent ventilation prevails throughout the entire offices.

Mr. Willis is much pleased with his headquarters, which he facetiously calls a big showroom—and it is. He can see from his office nearly everything that is going on, at any time. Manager Seery is always in close touch with the various departments in his charge and things are running as smoothly as if the premises had been occupied for years. Possession was taken Wednesday, Aug. 20.

Mr. Willis and Mr. Seery state that business has increased remarkably since the new offices were opened and they confidently look for still greater results. Mr. Willis appointed a new manager for the Mutual branch in Minneapolis during a recent visit to that city.

A Thrilling Scenic Subject.

Director Le Saint, of the Selig Polyscope Co., recently took a company of players for a three-weeks' sojourn at Cascade, in the high Sierras. Mr. Le Saint had in view the utilization of a remarkable project in which the Pacific Light and Power Corporation is engaged at the present time and which will cost them millions of dollars. This company has maintained a camp of 3,000 men for over a year in the heart of one of the wildest and most picturesque spots in these mountains, and has constructed 56 miles of scenic railroad in the face of almost insurmountable obstacles and difficulties.

The Superintendent of Construction, F. M. Thebo, welcomed the photoplayers and gave them every aid in his power to secure some of the most startling effects yet seen in moving pictures. Dynamite explosions, men balancing across dizzy ravines on wire cables, runaway lumber cars shooting down the inclined railway, water cascading from monster dams, giant forest trees sent crashing into rushing streams—all these were caught by the camera man. Miss Stella Razetto, of the Selig stock company, thrilled the hardy men in the mountain camp by some daring stunts, and it is said that the pictures will have a dramatic as well as a spectacular value.

By the use of a specially arranged observation car some remarkable scenic effects were obtained, which, in connection with those already referred to, will serve to advertise the marvelous and rugged grandeur of the famous Sierras.

Film Censorship in Japan.

Even Japan is establishing a film censorship these days, and the educational department, instead of the police department, is intrusted with the task, according to the Official Gazette, a Japanese publication. The regulations are as follows:

The producers and dealers in films for cinematographs, as well as those showing the films, must apply to the Educational Department for official sanction of the films which they may consider as forming part of the common education of the people, by producing samples of such films, together with explanatory statements concerning them.

The films or pictures handed to the department for the purpose of official recognition, in accordance with the above article, shall be returned to the applicants at their request, but the authorities will in no way hold themselves responsible for damage that the films or pictures may sustain while preserved by the department.

The expenses required for the return of such films or pictures shall be borne by the applicants.

The films or pictures recognized by the authorities will be inscribed with the words, "Recognized by the Educational Department," and no alteration must be made of films or pictures already recognized.

The titles of the films or pictures recognized by the authorities, as well as the names of the applicants who have obtained such recognition, will be published in the Official Gazette.

A Geographical Stretch of Imagination.

"Stroller," that clever contributor to Kinematograph, has the following paragraph in the issue of August 28:

"America claims to have solved the problem of the crying baby in the picture theater. At Seattle, near Washington, an enterprising showman has built along one side of his theater a large glass inclosed room, in which mothers and nurses may sit with their noisy babies and still see the pictures. What next?"

"Stroller" by all means should pay Yankee land a visit. Scribes of the trade will be glad to welcome him. He will find that Seattle is not quite so "near Washington" as he, doubtless through an oversight, writes it.

Chicago Film Brevities.

F. P. Bloomfield, for six years the traveling representative for the Mirror Screen Co., Shelbyville, Ind., has been appointed to a similar position by the American Curtain Supply Co., of St. Louis. Mr. Bloomfield is now in Chicago, where he will remain several weeks in the interests of his company.

* * *

J. C. Wilson, manager of the old Star Theater, Clinton, Ill., called at the World office September 9. He stated that he is building a new theater, which will be called the Star and that it will seat 350 people. The old Star was leased property. The new house will cost $8,000, and great pains has been taken to make it up to date in every respect. The Decorators' Supply Co., of Chicago, put in the front. The indirect lighting system, installed by the National X-Ray Reflector Co., will be used. Universal programs have been contracted for.

* * *

The big underground fire on South State Street, this city, September 2, did not injure the Gem Theater nearby, as was at first supposed. When the fire broke out in the building fifty feet to the north, the patrons in the house rushed out, but no one was injured. The Gem is owned by Fichenberg and Selig, who state that their business has been in no way affected by the fire.

The Chicago office of Warner's Feature Film Co., Inc., will be moved to more spacious quarters in suite 500 A, of the Powers Building, 37 South Wabash Avenue, this city, on or about September 20. Phil H. Solomon, the present general manager of the Middle West, believes that the new location will be much more convenient for his customers. The new office will be Mr. Solomon's headquarters.

* * *

Charles T. Smith, manager and part owner of the Star Theater, Elgin, Ill., visited the World office September 8. The Star was opened by Mr. Smith on February 15, and business has been very satisfactory. The former owner could not make it pay. The Star seats 675 people and charges 5 and 10 cents, according to the program offered. Mr. Smith was formerly part owner of the Lyric Theater, in Elgin.

* * *

H. E. Aitken, of the Mutual Film Corporation, was in the city September 8 and 9.

* * *

George Berg, at one time auditor and head bookkeeper for George Kleine, has taken charge of the feature film department in the office of the Mutual Film Corporation, in the new Mallers Building. Mr. Berg reports very fair business.

* * *

Charles E. Nixon, of the Selig Polyscope Company's publicity department, and also a well known scenario writer for that firm, returned last week from the Glacier National Park on the Canadian boundary, after a two weeks' vacation. While in the new national park, Mr. Nixon met a number of foreign travelers, who expressed the opinion that the park surpasses even Switzerland for rich, restful beauty. The flowers bloom right up to the borders of the glacier, something that fairly amazed the visitors. The camps of the visitors were all of the Swiss chalet type, affording a picturesque series of groups at all the most interesting points in the beautiful resort.

IRENE WALLACE.

One little lady of the Universal acting forces seems to have struck her forte. She is Miss Irene Wallace, an actress of Scotch-Irish parentage who has come to the front through her unexpected ability to enact Jewish roles. Miss Wallace had been appearing in musical comedy and vaudeville until she was recently engaged for motion picture work with the Victor Company. Her first appearances before the camera were in support of Miss Florence Lawrence, under the direction of Harry Salter. She did not attract any particular attention to herself until she happened to be cast for a minor part in a Jewish story picture, entitled "Nihilist Vengeance." Her work in this piece stood out so well that it was a surprise to the management. Sometimes it happens that persons of Celtic origin having the Spanish strain are excellent portrayers of Jewish types, and vice versa. Miss Wallace comes naturally in this category, and the result of her first Hebraic performance was that she was cast at once for the lead part in "The Heart of a Jewess," in which she arose to the occasion beyond all expectations, under the able direction of Sidney Golden. She is now looked upon as a star in this particular line and will probably make it a specialty. Miss Wallace has just finished the lead in another big Jewish production entitled "Bleeding Hearts or Jewish Freedom granted by King Casimir of Poland."

Miss Irene Wallace.

Each of her appearances as a leading woman has shown vast improvement and in due course of time she will, no doubt, be considered as the leading exponent of Hebraic parts.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

The New York offices of the Golden State Motion Picture Company, exploiting "100 Years of Mormonism"; The Occidental Moving Picture Company, presenting "From Dusk to Dawn;" and other enterprises presided over by H. M. Russell of Los Angeles, removes from the 7th floor of the Candler Building to the 9th floor of the World's Tower Building, No. 110 West 40th Street, New York City. Ernest Shipman will hold down the desk as general manager.

"The Mystery of the Yellow Room"

Three-Part Union Feature.

By George Blaisdell.

THE story on which this picture is based comes from the pen of Gaston Leroux, who is described as a Frenchman with a list of mystery stories to his credit—stories in whic hthe uncovering of criminals through deduction plays a prominent part. We have become so familiar with this style of detective tale through the writings of Dr. Doyle that instinctively we attempt a little of it on our own account when we see on the screen a situation promising a mystery. In the particular story under discussion the observer will have to watch the developments with unusual keenness or he will be liable to miss a vital point. What will most effectually lead astray is the fact that the man for whom search is being made is a detective, himself assigned to clear up the mystery. We see a man with a beard assail the wife from whom he was ten years before separated. He had been arrested just after a runaway marriage in England. The wife, believing him dead, is now engaged to another. Desiring to conceal from others the visit of her husband she had locked herself in her room. In her sleep she has, dreaming, discharged a pistol and fallen to the floor.

Scene from "The Mystery of the Yellow Room" (Union Features).

Her father, breaking into the room, sees on the woman's throat the marks of the attack. Recovering consciousness, Mathilda does not enlighten her questioners. A reporter, an amateur detective, goes to work on the case with Inspector Larson. The latter is beardless. The newspaper man uncovers clues that finally lead him to suspect the detective. He gradually builds up his case, and proves the correctness of his reasoning. The husband, when calling on his wife, had worn a beard that duplicated the natural growth of ten years before. The climax, in which the reporter, after obtaining from the detective the vital marriage certificate, permits him to escape, brings a happy ending. The paper is destroyed and there is no documentary impediment to the marriage of Mathilda and her lover. This brings up a question of morals which will be debated by some and ignored by others.

The story will interest. Mme Laurence Dulac, of the Comedie Francaise, plays Mathilda; Marcel Simon, of the Rejane, has the role of the reporter, and Paul Escoffier, of the Antoine, sustains the parts of the husband and detective. The acting is convincing. The photography is good. The settings and backgrounds are carefully selected. There is an abundance of action. One factor that will he noted is the celerity with which premises are established and the story started on its way.

AMERICAN MAKES ADDITIONAL LAND PURCHASE

Mr. S. S. Hutchinson, President of the American Film Mfg. Co., has purchased for the company a plot of land which practically doubles its holdings in Santa Barbara, California. There will be erected an outdoor studio, and a large corral will be provided. There is now ample room for at least four stage settings at the same time.

OBSERVATIONS

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN

THE confidence of promoters in the drawing power of motion pictures and the players in them who have become famous was strikingly illustrated by the selection of John Bunny and Lillian Walker as King and Queen of the Coney Island Mardi Gras. For several years this annual festival has been the greatest incentive for pride and hope on the part of the business men of the resort, and the selection of the king and queen has been looked upon as one of the most important of the preliminary details. Each year preceding the present one the selection has been made by popular vote, and the cost to the successful candidates and their friends has been enormous.

* * *

The contestants have been leading business men and popular social people of Greater New York, and the interest aroused by the battle of the ballots has been relied upon to a great extent as the magnet to draw the crowds to the scene of festivities. This year Mr. Bunny and the fair Miss Lillian walked to the throne without contest, or the slightest voluntary movement on their part. It has been said by some people, even by many who cannot be consistently charged with jealousy, that the two popular players sought the honor as a means of advertisement, or were placed there for the same purpose by the company with which they are connected. But neither version of the reason for the uncontested selection of the two players as the stars of the great event is correct. Neither of them anticipated, or thought of, the honor until a representative of the Mardi Gras committee made a personal call and asked them if they would accept it. This is not a press agent yarn, but a statement based upon actual facts. When it is considered that one of the kings was so elated over his election that he presented the queen with a $1,200 necklace and in one place during the week of festivities spent nearly five hundred dollars in wine, none can fail to pardon Mr. Bunny and Miss Walker for any pride and enthusiasm they may have displayed as a result of their uncontested selection. But "King Bun and Bride," as their intimates termed them, carried the honor very gracefully and unostentatiously. Both continued their studio work up to within a few hours of their coronation and are back on the job again after having been the objects of homage on the part of hundreds of thousands of people without the slightest indication of enlargement of the cranium. And, it may be added with propriety, King John did not distribute any diamonds while upon the throne. Otherwise he was all right. That perpetual smile of John's was a winner and more than made up for what he lacked in Adonis-like charms. Miss Walker carried the beauty end of it with flying colors.

* * *

A story requiring authentication has been circulated to the effect that when John Bunny awoke on the morning following the close of his reign he laboriously arose from his bed, stretched himself, and murmured, "The kink is dead! long live the kink! O, what a beautiful dream."

* * *

A prominent theatrical publication is responsible for the statement that one of the largest vaudeville syndicates in Greater New York, which started out a year ago with the determination to show that motion pictures had not displaced vaudeville in popularity, is shy on dividends. The paper attempts to temper the effect of the statement by pointing out that the real cause for the unfavorable condition was an exaggerated estimate of the drawing power of talking pictures. It is hard for some of the old line amusement people to reconcile themselves to the real conditions. They fight to the last ditch against admitting the power motion pictures have with the amusement public and this last attempt to discredit it is as hollow as the many that have preceded it. None connected either directly or indirectly with the motion picture business attached importance to the last launching of talking pictures. They looked upon it as a temporary winner and smiled when people asked them if they were going out of business when "talkies" got working. The declaration made in these columns a year ago that talking pictures were still in the stage of development holds just as good to-day. They will come, but not in the near future. Their perfection is one of the most difficult problems in the scientific world. When it is satisfactorily solved the men on the ground floor will have the envy of the Rockefellers, and that will be going some.

* * *

Much has been said in the public press recently, favorable and otherwise, regarding the taking of motion picture views of the white slave trials at San Francisco, Cal. From a standpoint of custom and enterprise the taking of the pictures was entirely proper. They should be as immune from criticism on the part of the press as their own still views, and far more so than the detailed reports of the testimony given at the trial. The more the newspapers agitate the subject the more clearly they bring to public view the strength of the contention made by motion picture people that motion pictures and the press go hand in hand, so far as constitutional rights and privileges are concerned. No press publication can consistently urge censor restrictions against the pictures and then shrink behind the constitution when placed upon the carpet. No newspaper will admit that motion pictures are closely allied with it as a source of information and enlightenment to the public, but the day will soon come when they will at least tentatively admit it by abolishing the bulletin displays now made and substitute motion pictures. It is closely trailing the display in public places of still views showing events of the day. As motion pictures have displaced still photography in innumerable other fields, so will they move up in this respect.

* * *

Taken from any point of view that can be suggested, all fair-minded people must concede that the persistent agitation for censorship is wholly inconsistent, if not unjust, when directed against motion pictures alone, and it cannot be justified by the contention that manufacturers and exhibitors of the pictures are prompted by pecuniary considerations in their fight against censorship regardless of the moral consequences. The real contention of the picture people has a constitutional backing that cannot be successfully attacked, and the first to realize this should be the press that is still harping on the censorship question. When looking at the situation squarely one is forced to the conclusion that the newspapers pursuing this course have ulterior motives that are far more repulsive to the sense of morality than anything charged against the motion picture people. There is a species of bribery in their tactics that makes them absolutely blind to the spirit of fair play and the old axiom that, to be successful, a contestant must appear in court with clean hands.

* * *

Considering the long and bitter contest made in Greater New York for an increase in the seating capacity of motion picture theaters, there is a remarkable tardiness on the part of the promoters to take advantage of their success. It is said many of the people who were expected to be the first to move are holding back to see what can be accomplished toward securing standing room privileges closer to those enjoyed by the regular theaters. If this is the motive, it is a mistake. The public did not favor the enlargement of the theaters for the standing room it would afford them. They wanted more seats. Standing is particularly tiring to women and children, and as they form a large percentage of the patronage, no time should be lost to give them what they want. Care should be taken by exhibitors that they do not render themselves subject to the charge of inconsistency that is lodged against their opposing agitators.

SCHOFIELD GOES ABROAD.

W. H. Schofield, for the past few years a salesman with the Raw Stock Film Company and the Ambrosio American Company, has resigned and is now on his way to Europe, having sailed on the Oceanic September 6. Mr. Schofield will visit the motion picture centers of Italy and Germany during his stay abroad and it is believed that he will have some interesting announcements to make upon his return.

TOM INCE LEADS FIRE FIGHTERS.

A forest fire in the Topango Canyon district near the Kay-Bee-Broncho ranch on August 27 brought out Tom Ince's entire force of cowboys and Indians as volunteer fire fighters. At the first signs of the conflagration Ince sent out a number of scouts to locate the blaze and followed them with a hundred fully equipped fire fighters. By dint of hard work on the part of the picture men the fire was subdued in about five hours and thousands of dollars saved to the settlers whose property and lives were threatened by the conflagration.

American Theatre, Salt Lake City

By F. H. Richardson.

The American Theater, Salt Lake City, was opened for business July 8th, 1913. It is one of the magnificent photoplay houses of the West. The decoration of its front is of a quietly beautiful, and entirely pleasing type. Within, the auditorium is backed by a marble foyer 14 feet deep by 90 feet wide, at either end of which is a broad stair mounting to the balcony. The floor of the lobby is of tile, in neat patterns, and the wall decorations of both the lobby and auditorium are in panel effect, without any flaunting glitter to offend the eye. The lobby is finished in gold and red, with marble and black onyx for the floor trimmings; the ticket office is also of marble. The walls of the lobby contain sixteen panels, the largest 22 x 28 inches, in which will be placed, under glass, portraits of moving picture celebrities, this idea being carried out through the foyer, stairway and halls. In the lobby are drinking fountains.

The lighting is of the indirect variety. Each chandelier, of which there are many, contains 18 lights, and on the walls are many brackets carrying single and group lights. Each light can be instantly reduced to half candle power. The illumination is exceedingly well distributed and very effective. I do not, at the moment, remember the seating capacity, but the main body of the house measures 165 feet by 90 feet, and the seating capacity is large, as is shown by the photograph. The seats are upholstered in leather, and would be a credit to any house devoted to the regular drama. The interior decoration is in the Renaissance style, with lavender, pink and gold as the dominating colors. The front row of seats is 22 feet from the screen. The ventilating system consists of a 25 horse power centrifugal fan, eight feet in diameter by six or seven feet in width, capable of delivering 60,000 cubic feet of air per minute. This air is carried under the floor of the auditorium through large ducts, whence it is led to 800 mushroom ventilators located under the seats of the main auditorium and balcony. Before passing through the fans the air is drawn through a huge bank of pipes and through heavy sprays of water, the latter removing all the dust particles and reducing the temperature, and the former supplying heat in cold weather. The water-spray is supplied by a five horse power motor which operates a suitable pump. A complete vacuum cleaning system has been installed.

The orchestra consists of eight pieces, supplemented by a large Kimble pipe-organ, the pipes of which are located, in two banks, one on either side of the screen. This organ cost $30,000 and is equipped with thirty stops. The screen itself is 22 feet wide and is surrounded by a wide border of black. The operating room is located in the center at the front of the balcony; it is of ample size and has plenty of ventilation. Brother Worthen is in charge of projection with Brother Stanley as his assistant, both of the Salt Lake City M. P. O. Union.

Mr. Rex Midgeley is manager of the American. Mr. Midgeley is an up-to-date man, who has great faith in the future of the photoplay business, and who realizes that the income of the huge investment represented in the theater under his charge, depends, to a very large extent, upon what his operators place upon the screen of his theater. He showed us through the house with very evident pride, in which he was entirely justified, since the American is, as I said in the beginning, a magnificent theater, which does credit to its owners, its manager, and to the photoplay in general. Mr. Midgeley and his business were the subjects of a page article in our issue of February 22nd, 1913.

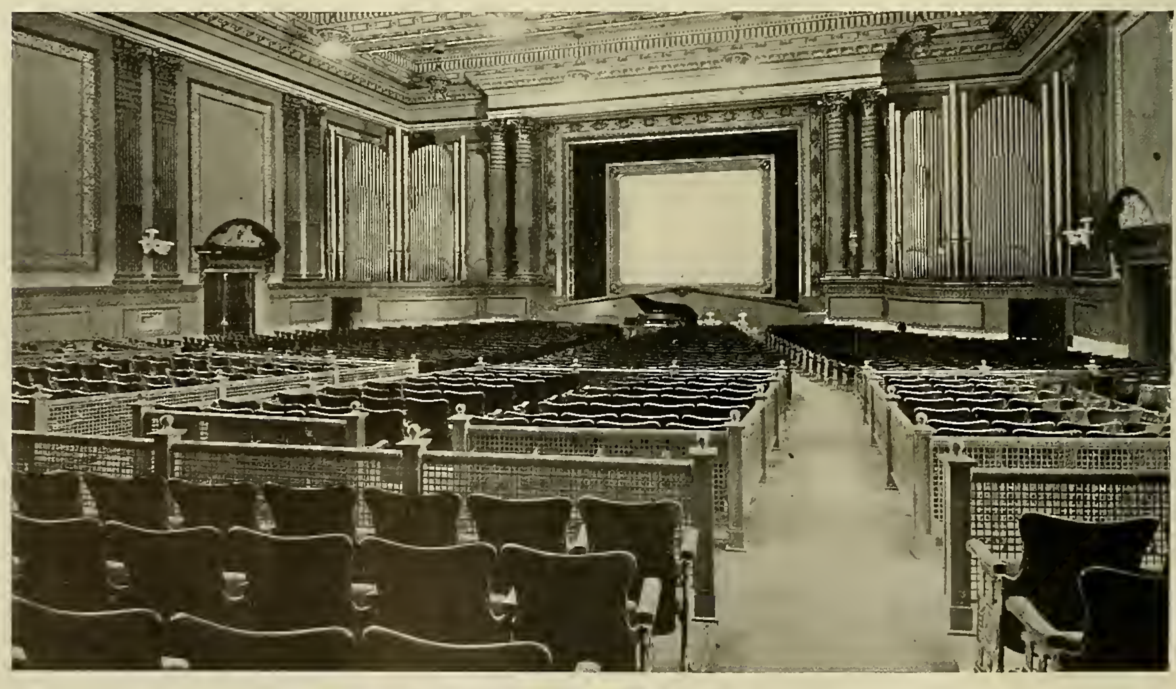
"HALLBERG" LIKES THE HOT WEATHER

J. H. Hallberg, the Economizer Man, reports fine business even if the weather is a little warm. He has sold Power's No. 6A equipment to Frank Brothers, Waterbury, Conn., three Power's No. 6A machines to Blanding Electrical Supply Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and one Simplex Machine to the same concern; A. C. to D. C. Economizer equipment to E. W. Hanke, new Studio Theatre, Bridgeport, Conn. This A. C. to D. C. Economized is equipped with the new double lamp attachment which Mr. Hallberg will be pleased to exhibit to any of his customers who may be interested.

HISTORICAL FILM CO. RECRUITING ACTORS.

Eustace Hale Ball, general manager of the Historical Film Company, with executive offices at One Madison Avenue, New York, is on the hunt for certain types for some historical costume work which is being planned by the company. Here is an opportunity for young men and young women with ability and stage experience to get in touch with the new work. Artists will be granted interviews between 10-12 each morning during the coming week and should bring photographs for the files of the company.

Mr. Stanley H. Twist, director of publicity and business lieutenant of the Selig Polyscope Company, left Chicago on Saturday, August 30th, for an extended trip to the Pacific Coast, where he will attend to some business matters for the Selig Company, as well as some personal matters. Mr. Twist expects to be gone some three or four weeks.



View of Auditorium of American Theater, Salt Lake City.

Foreign Trade Notes

BRITISH NOTES.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A QUESTION that is being eagerly discussed at present by one section of the London press is "Are 'stars' wanted for cinema plays?" The efforts of some of the most notable luminaries in the legitimate theatrical world are compared with those of the most obscure cinema super and the inference drawn is that the professional photoplayer, however mean in cast, is superior on the screen to the mighty actor-knight of the ordinary stage. The general opinion of the writers in question seems to be that theatrical "stars" are not wanted for any other purpose than that of advertisement.

* * *

In a new volume of his, Mr. V. Steer, an individual well known in the trade and formerly editor of "Pathe's Gazette" here, classes the most notable and costly "exciting moments" in film plays by the world's leading producers. In the face of such outstanding productions as "Quo Vadis?" he gives pride of place in spectacular effect to the bridge destruction in Kalem's "Siege of St. Petersburg" and to the railway collision in the same company's "War's Havoc."

* * *

Things are evidently moving fast and furiously with the Vitagraph Company. Mr. G. S. Smith, the London agent has, I hear, just rushed off to New York to complete arrangements with the head office respecting their releases in this country during the winter season. By the way, the syndicate which is exploiting Miss Florence Turner's photoplaying abilities has just announced a twin-reel sensation entitled "Jean's Evidence" for release next month. Reviewers state this film the best featuring Miss Turner's famous collie.

* * *

The Lubin agency has also awakened to the value of a little extra inducement to exhibitors. This week they have issued a circular with a new advertising competition for British exhibitors showing Lubin films. The first prize is a Brockliss projector, the second nearly $50 worth of theater accessories, and the third goods, value, $24.

* * *

The average American visitor to London is extraordinarily prejudiced against films that do not hail from "across the streak." Only the other day a party of American visitors—with whom London is at the moment swarming—besieged the offices and showroom of the Western Import Co. in the West End and were entertained by Mr. Roy Aitken to a program of new American features.

* * *

The Vitagraph Co. have successfully petitioned Judge Greenwell in the Newcastle County Court for the winding up of the North British Film Service of Newcastle who were indebted to the petitioners to the extent of approximately $1,000.

* * *

The Clarendon Co. are shortly to produce a new series of costume plays illustrating important incidents in English history. The first, "King Charles," is almost completed and may be released in both countries in a few weeks.

* * *

The specification is published this week at the Patent Office of a new apparatus invented by Mr. R. Klein, of Islington, combining a projector employing stop-released pictures on leaves fastened by the edges to a moving carrier, and a synchronizing gramophone. The spindle of the latter is mounted in such a fashion that by merely regulating a clutch the operator has complete and minute control of either the projector or gramophone, or both.

* * *

The "Northern," as the Manchester Kinematograph exhibition is being termed has definitely been fixed for Oct. 4th—18th in the City Exhibition Hall, Manchester. The display will not, of course, be so pretentious as the London Exhibition last Easter and American firms desiring to exhibit can secure sites through Mr. Walter Cawood, 196 Deansgate, Manchester.

* * *

A party of Americans in London had an unusually novel experience the other day. They had been traveling from Gibralter to London, visiting cinemas all along the route, but none of them came up to their expectations. Some American films were shown in London, but usually the theaters were most inaccessible, and many of the party feared they must return to their homes without seeing their favorite pictures. One of the number passed The Western Import Co., of 4 Gerrard Street, London W., and entered to inquire the nearest theaters. She was cordially invited to visit the showrooms with any of her American friends. It was surprising how many Mutual "fans" there were at once. A party of 24, representing six different states in the Union was made up, and the afternoon proved most delightful. The party first visited the establishment and saw the preparation of the films, then went into the largest of the three projection rooms, where a selected program of American films was given. Tea was served during the afternoon to the guests. Mr. Roy E. Aitken, the directing manager, and Mr. Mannering, the London representative, made the party very welcome.

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

WARNER'S FEATURES SENDS EDWARD BARRY TO EUROPE.

On September 13th, Edward Barry will sail for London on the Olympic, accompanied by his wife. He goes as a special representative of Warner's Features, Inc., and will assist Mr. S. L. Warner, now in charge of the office at 18 Cecil Court, to equip and maintain enlarged quarters in or near 'Flicker Alley."

Mr. Barry will handle the Warner American productions in all countries of the world outside of the United States. His experience in the film business dates back eight years; in 1906 he was placed in charge of Midlands branch of the Chas. Urban Trading Co. In 1908 when the Cine Co. opened an office in London, Mr. Barry accepted the position of sales manager, and later he came to America and represented the Cine interests here until Cine films were licensed. He has been sales manager for the Ambrosio-American Co. and the Raw Film Supply Co. here in America, for the past two years; is a charter member of the Screen Club and leaves behind a host of friends who will wish him success abroad.

W. N. SELIG GOES ABROAD.

One of the several motion picture celebrities sailing for Europe on the "Imperator," August 30, was Col. Wm. N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Co., of Chicago. There is no especial significance attached to Mr. Selig's migration, it being his custom to make an annual voyage to Europe. Mrs. Selig and their daughter are at present on the other side and it is probable that they will all return together.

THE NEW CELIO COMPANY OF ROME.

"Venomous Tongues" is the first release of the new Celio Company of Rome, Italy, whose output in America will be handled by George Kleine. This is a "two reel" and will feature the new leading woman, Miss Francesca Bertini and the famous Italian actor, Mr. E. Ghione. Miss Bertini is well known in America for her splendid work as a former leading woman of the Cines Company.

ZEZZA SUCCEEDS BARRY.

Mr. G. Zeeza will succeed Ed Barry as manager of the American Ambrosio Company and the Raw Stock Film Company. Mr. Zezza has been connected with the Ambrosio Company's American office for the past two years and is familiar with the trade. Aside from that he is a good business man and one whom it is a pleasure to meet.

Moving Picture Educator

"Guns and Gun Play"

THE Rev. Franklin C. Smith, of Durango, Colorado, the rural dean of the Protestant Episcopal Church, for Southwestern Colorado, and also president of the social service commission for the same state, has just sent us a letter that we would like to have every manufacturer, exchange and exhibitor read, mark, learn and inwardly digest. We do not altogether agree with some of the things that Father Smith says but as to the inanity, untruthfulness and general undesirability of "gun play" as he describes it and as we, too, often see it, there can be but one opinion, a very good deal less of it would be very thankfully received. Father Smith is not only a picture "fan" but in his own field of education he is second to none. Here is what he says:

> Every great invention that ministers to the service of humanity, whether for utility or pleasure is capable of abuse, and the great invention of the moving picture film is no exception to this rule. Consequently I wish to voice an humble protest against what appears to me to be a widespread and common prostitution of a noble enterprise.
>
> Let me say first, that I write as a warm friend of the moving pictures in general. There are two kinds of criticism, you know, that which is merely destructive, and that which is constructive. The former is the weapon of the "knocker," the latter is usually friendly and aims to be helpful. Please consider this constructive criticism, because I am not only a regular patron of the picture theaters, but also believe fully and firmly in the tremendous and almost unlimited educative value of the film. In addition, as a minister, I must confess to something almost like jealousy when I realize how much larger a congregation the moral of a tale has through the film than I can ever hope to have with my sermons. Besides this, the pictures are a great boon to humanity in their pleasure-giving power; they are indeed the poor man's theater. Hence, I most emphatically endorse the pictures in the main both as an educator and as an entertainer.
>
> Being such a noble enterprise, the pain of finding defects is so much the greater. I am not expecting perfection, but I would like to call attention to what seems to me to be a grave danger in many of the pictures now on the market, namely: the constant presence of the "gun" and of "gun play." Of six pictures, seen the other day, four of them were filled with this ad nauseam and, in fact, "guns" and "gun play" seem inseparable from all stories of so-called "Western life," although they are not by any manner of means confined to this class alone.
>
> Now, in the first place, this sort of thing does a grave injustice to the West and to Western life, and everybody out here is really getting very tired of it. I not only live in the West, but have been all over it, and I have rarely seen a "gun," much less seen "gun play." It is true they were carried and used in the early days, but if they are to be found today, it is only in some of the most out-of-the-way corners of this vast country, for the very good reason that the West itself has put this amusement down with a stern and rigorous hand, and today you will not find as many "guns" in the whole West, probably, as you can see in a week's run at a moving picture theater.
>
> In the second place, the constant presence of the "gun" and the invariable recourse to its use, educates the young in a very dangerous way, that is a menace to our American life, both East and West. Both young and old see the pictures and the constantly repeated course of action has its psychological effect on their minds, and in consequence, subtly, but none the less surely, the spectators, especially the ignorant and uneducated and children are taught that "recourse to the gun" is the proper method of procedure under given circumstances. The pictures, all of them, even the merely entertaining ones, are educating the masses, but "guns" and "gun play" only educate them into barbarism.

We endorse most heartily everything in the above as to the childishness and asininity of "gun play" and we shall rejoice just as cordially as Father Smith will when it is done away with, and so, too, will most of the manufacturers and exhibitors. The sole reason for the "gun play" or as one exhibitor has most aptly named them, the "hardware" pictures is that the public want them. The manufacturers and exhibitors are not in the picture business for their health or for altruistic purposes, and they can hardly be blamed for making the pictures that sell. The pictures sell because the people that go to the theaters want to see them. If the persons who see the objectional pictures are sufficiently in the majority either numerically or influentially and will voice their disapproval with sufficient emphasis, the kind of picture they object to will vanish quickly enough. About a year or so ago one of the manufacturers started a series of wild west stories that did meet with such disapproval, and the series promptly stopped. What has been done once can be done again. It is up to the west to make the move.

A Man Who Knows.

We have just received a note from Mr. H. H. Johnson, of of Lyric Amusement Company, of Champaign, Illinois, accompanied by a mass of printed material that well nigh took away our breath. When we had gotten through reading it all we were very glad indeed that he had sent it and we want to congratulate him on having done some of the best work of its kind that we have seen. Mr. Johnson and another photoplay house split up between them, each week, a full page of the Saturday edition of the Champaign paper. Four columns are taken up with two paid advertisements, the other three columns are devoted to news items about the two houses or about the picture business in general. Mr. Johnson has done most of the "news gathering" work and he has certainly done it well. He turns out stuff that not only picture lovers but everyone else will read with interest, and more than that, he knows how to get or select stuff that will appeal to the educator and other "highbrow" classes. The other manager either does not know or does not care what he puts in and in consequence his stuff is "deadly," dull and wearisome. If he does not care, his case is hopeless; but if it is simply "don't know," he ought to hire some one who does to do the work for him. His present methods waste his energies and lose him money.

Gets You Interested

One part of Mr. Johnson's news matter is made up of snappy little notices about the plays he is going to run during the ensuing week. They are only a few words each, but they give the gist of the story and they tell it in such a way that they make you want to go to the theater and see the whole thing. Besides this, Mr. Johnson seems to have missed very few, if any, opportunities of calling attention to the moral and "uplifting" points in the different stories. He has not lugged it in head first, nor has he preached about it; he has simply worded his notice so that the story as he tells it appeals to our universal beliefs of the truth, the beautiful and the good. This is excellent because it appeals to all classes. Every human being has a better nature and likes to have it appealed to even when he does not know what it is that is being appealed to or what causes his pleasure; but a notice like Mr. Johnson's has this added "punch" for the educator, namely, that he sees how that particular picture can be of service to him in his own work. If Mr. Johnson has done this unconsciously he has hit on one of the most effective means of "getting" the educator that we know of; if h hase done it consciously, he deserves to be complimented on his acumen and farsightedness.

Sows Good Seed

The other part of Mr. Johnson's news matter is made up of items clipped, condensed or revised from the Moving Picture World, and a few original articles written by himself. He writes us that in this part he has tried "not only to disseminate information as to the players, the producers and the educational value of the picture, but to give also something that would be of interest and benefit to every one in the town," and that he has "tried to handle it for the uplift of the business and of the public whether they were patrons of his competitor or not." He has certainly done this and done it too in an exceptionally good way. We hope that he will not only keep up the good work, but that he will keep on posting us as to any other wrinkles and ideas of the same kind he tries so that we can pass them along.

GARDNER COMPANY WILL HANDLE OWN PICTURES.

Hereafter all productions of the Helen Gardner Picture Players will be marketed by that company and not by the Charles L. Fuller Distributing Company. This applies to all pictures that have been produced, as well as future productions. Communications should be addressed to Helen Gardner Picture Players, 472 Fulton Street, Brooklyn.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Billboard Advertising.

WITH an increase in the number of reels as well as an increased number of houses holding more than the old three-hundred limit, the matter of advertising away from the house is becoming a more important question. It has been and will always be a subject for debate whether the billboard or the newspaper advertising carries the greater weight.

As a general rule newspaper advertising, provided that a proper space for display may be had within the cost limit set, is by far the better medium, not so much for the advertising itself as for the reading notices that such advertising carries with it, but many houses, particularly in the cities, cannot afford the heavy cost of theatrical display advertising; for theatrical advertising is invariably the highest classification on the rate cards. This is the result of the general newspaper practice of charging "all that the traffic will bear," but it keeps out of the newspaper columns much advertising that could be inserted were the photoplay theaters given the same rates as are made other users of similar space.

Frank T. Montgomery insists on making a straight contract the same as a dry goods house, buying a thousand lines or more at the bottom price and waives the right to the reading notices that are the real reason for the higher price being charged for theatrical advertising. This is practicable only where large contracts may be made. The small advertiser cannot make this arrangement.

But even where newspaper advertising can be had, it is better to use some billboard space, and this holds good nowhere more strongly than in the case of a photoplay theater. The children do not read the newspapers, and in some sections the adult patronage does not do much reading. In any case an eye-catching poster greatly aids the effect of the paper advertising. Even where the papers are relied upon to supply the amusement hints, the catchy poster will center the interest on some subject more effectively than the announcement of a title in ten point type. Just as the pictures appeal more strongly to the average audience than the printed story, so does the poster make a stronger appeal than type without illustration.

Needed More Than Ever.

With the coming of the multiple reel feature the exhibitor is able to concentrate his effort. He can have several pieces of paper of different sorts to advertise one feature instead of three or four one sheets each for a different subject. He can obtain eight sheet stands as well as threes and make a display that will compare favorably with the dramatic theaters. The trouble is that most exhibitors centralize their efforts in the lobby of the house instead of putting the paper out where it can be made to reach those who will not pass the house. Well dressed lobbies are aids in business getting, but unless every person within the radius of the house passes the house itself the most elaborate lobby display will avail the manager nothing.

It is seldom that this condition obtains. We will suppose that a house in a city suburb is located on a street leading to a trolley line. Those who must pass the house to reach the trolley will see the lobby posters. Those who live on the other side of the tracks may never even see the house. A billboard on the other side of the tracks would bring an offering to the attention of the people on that side as well. It is well enough to argue that the persons of a locality all seek the local centre, but this statement is not quite correct.

Question of Cost.

At present the cost of paper is still rather high because comparatively small editions are used for single subjects. The practice of renting or loaning one and three sheets with the film is a bad one, though at first glance it would seem to effect a saving. Of course where paper costs ten or fifteen cents a sheet and a subject is displayed by an exhibitor for but one or two days, the cost seems excessive, but already the greater use of paper has cut the price generally from fifteen cents a sheet to ten, and a greater use of paper should still further reduce the cost. But even at ten cents a sheet, if the display of twenty sheets costing two dollars, plus posting charges will increase the business ten or fifteen dollars, the cost is not excessive and the investment shows a profit. Motion picture exhibitors are too apt to consider costs by themselves and not in comparison with the results obtained.

But before paper is posted or billboards are erected, there should be a close study of the grounds and the boards should be built where they will do the greatest good. It is better to pay $25 or $50 a year for a couple of boards in a good position than to erect the boards in a vacant lot where no charge is made but where, on the other hand, there are few passersby. The lines of travel should be noted. It will be found that at some street corners four times as many persons wait for the car as may be found on the blocks above or below. If an advantageous location may be had there it would be better to pay a little more for the stand than to build where there is little traffic.

On the other hand it may be that a block further toward town you may reach still more people and many of those who board the car further down the line and there it may be possible to get space for several stands.

In billing away from the house it is particularly important to bill by days instead of dates. There are plenty of strips to be had announcing that a subject is "Coming Thursday" or whatever it may be. These are far better than a special date and at the same time are cheaper. To bill the subject without showing any day or date is a waste of money, and in most cases it will pay to go over the boards each night and freshly strip with a "Today" each poster for tomorrow's bill that the men going to business may be freshly reminded that this is the day of showing. Three things are important on a poster, the title of the release, the name of the house and the date of showing. See that all are there.

Building the Boards.

The best boards are built of sheet metal with a moulding of metal or wood. They should be surmounted by a panel for the name of the house and should have a projection ledge at the top to shed the rain as much as possible. This is particularly important where the boards are set against the side of a building where the entire drip of the wall runs over the paper. Even where there is no overhead drip the ledge protects the top of the paper where the paste is most quickly soaked. Where lumber is used instead of metal the boards should be strongly cross braced at the back to prevent warping as much as possible and should be given two or three coats of good paint. The frame, in any case, should be painted a neutral color that will not fight with the more vivid colors on the sheets; a slate gray or dark brown will do, the gray being the better. Keep the boards in good condition and touch them up occasionally.

Matters of Cost.

The cost of the boards is largely governed by local circumstances, but they are not expensive. In most communities and the suburbs of the cities the picture theater is regarded as a semi-civic institution and generally it is possible to obtain permission to erect the boards at no greater cost than the weekly presentation of passes, but where payment is demanded it should not run more than $50 a location a year. In places where the painted signs and regular posting boards force the prices up it is better to have recourse to window display. Obtain a few cheap frames if you can get them at reasonable price, and use one or half sheets. If you cannot get the frames use stretchers. It is seldom that a hung bill looks well and the frame or stretcher gives a finished look to the bill that often will get it into a window where the loose bill will be refused.

The distance from the house to the boards is purely a matter of judgment. Unless your opposition is within three or four blocks of you it is better to post to within a little more than half the distance between your house and the next nearest. If there is no opposition post just a little beyond your probable radius in the hope of coaxing down those who can be coaxed. It does not pay to paper lavishly too far from the house, but a single board announcing the next really good feature, will more than pay for itself if conspicuously posted on some traveled thoroughfare. Keep always in mind the fact that the main purpose of advertising is not so much to get the people you already have as to win new patrons, while at the same time you keep your regular patrons informed as to your coming bills. Do not post more than a week ahead save in the case of some extraordinary feature, but, on the other hand, do not trust merely to your next day's bill. Have some coming attractions. It was recently argued that if you announced on Monday your Thursday attraction, the possible Monday patron might save his money for Thursday night instead of coming both Monday and Thursday. It is possible that this might hold good in a few isolated cases, but as a general thing for every patron thus lost a dozen will be gained, so the balance is in your favor.

Don't put up paper for something you do not expect to get but which looks good on your boards. Stick to what you know you will have.

Relative Values.

Just how to apportion the paper is a nice question that in a way each exhibitor must solve for himself. As a general thing each day should have its share of paper, but if you have some specially attractive subject coming that will make new business, it would be well to keep about half the boards busy with this attraction for a week before its showing, even though the other programs may be neglected. A make-good feature that will bring new people to the house is worth much more than the daily bill in eventual returns and it will pay to advertise it heavily. If you use many features it will pay you to have certain eight sheet boards devoted entirely to the features and teach your patrons and might-be patrons to turn to these boards in search of the novelties. The way to make a fan is to get him to coming and at first he must be coaxed with features.

That Kraus Contest.

The Kraus Manufacturing Company has decided to keep the photo-gelatin post cards recently commented on for a unique contest. They purpose selling the set of 30 intact to managers handling licensed film with a prize contest that is a test of skill and therefore entirely within State and Federal laws. The cards are to be distributed as souvenirs as the manager may decide, either a new one each week or a new one each off day until the full thirty have been given out. The cards are to be tinted and returned to the house by those desiring to enter the contest, and a total of fifty dollars is split up among the contestants in accordance with the decision of the manager, the prizes either being sent from New York, which sounds important in the small towns, or the money is sent to the manager to be distributed himself.

There are a number of interesting angles to the scheme in the matter of outside the house advertising. The cards are being sold at two or three for five cents by novelty stores, which also handle fanciful subjects for coloring, the card taking photo tints nicely. Drygoods and department stores, stationers, druggists and photographic houses handle the cards and colors and many will accept a frame for display in their windows for the sake of advertising their colors. Contests that are dependent purely upon the skill of the contestants are in no sense lotteries and this seems to be an attractive scheme that is without legal entanglements.

Where To Sit.

Here is a clipping from the Cameraphone bulletins that will make good program matter for any house. We think that the last paragraph, relative the quick transition from the shaded theater to the sunlight should be printed in italics and run frequently in the program.

> WHERE TO SIT IN A PICTURE.
>
> An expert oculist provides the following rules for those who choose their own seats in this theater:
>
> Sit where you can read script on the screen. This is the superlative test in moving pictures. Typewriting is often more difficult to read than script, but its use for some reason is not frequent.
>
> Children should sit so far up front in the theater as to make it unnecessary for them to lean out into the aisle or to assume some other unusual attitude in order to see the screen.
>
> If you find that your eyes tire, you will do well to refrain from looking at the picture until the tired feeling passes.
>
> The subdued light in this theater will rest the most tired eyes, but care should be taken in going into bright sunlight from the theater. Permit the eyes to open slowly as you leave. You will note that there are several degrees of light in the interior, but, of course, this calculation to save your eyes cannot be carried on in the street. As you walk toward the entrance on your way out you unconsciously pass through several varieties of light and shade.

Pearce Bulletin Improving.

Under the management of Pulitzer and Stier, the Pearce Weekly Bulletin, New Orleans, shows improvement. There is more real reading matter and an improving typographical appearance. Nearly a column is devoted to the formation of the New Orleans Inquest Club, though its presidents, Julian Louis Lamothe, is working for the Spotlight, a rival publication. Next time Bennie Pulitzer will please remember to add that all Inquest Clubs are derived from the parent society founded by THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD. By the same token, that Fichtenberg program has not shown up this week. Will someone please take notice.

Good For Once.

J. B. Love, of the Elite Theater, Rome, Georgia, hits it right when he says any novelty will make good once. That's what makes it a novelty. He sends in some dodgers printed on wall paper and adds the suggestion that any wall paper house will have a lot of old sample books that it will be glad to give away.

The dodger in question gains in that the text carries out the idea, the main lines reading:

> Look!
>
> We are tearing the wall paper from the walls to make room for the crowds that will want to see
>
> TO ABBEVILLE COURT HOUSE
>
> The picture made by Charles M. Seay in Rome, Ga.

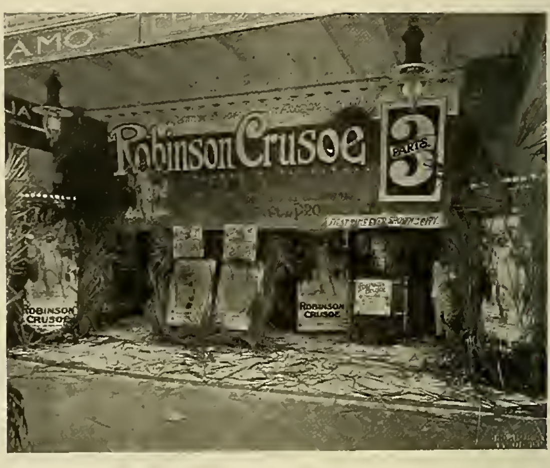
And the poster will not be so very far from the truth, for the picture made in "our town" is always the biggest draw that can be had.

Riding On Tickets.

The double auto load of girls shown on this page is an excursion party arranged by the Electric Theater Advertising Company, of Dayton. They were the successful contestants in a ticket selling contest (which the company thoughtfully fails to describe) in which $57,000 worth of tickets were sold. The girls met at Toledo and were taken to Niagara Falls and Toronto by G. A. Edwards and Charles Zetler, who manage the company and who conducted the campaign.

More Crusoe Display.

Robinson Crusoe seems to have lent itself unusually well to display. We have shown a Crusoe float, but this lobby display of the Alamo Theater, New Orleans, is something out of the ordinary.



The photograph is loaned by the Consolidated Film and Supply Company, of New Orleans, which says that W. H. Gueringer and Carl Goldberg, of the Fichtenberg enterprises, lay awake nights thinking out lobby displays. They think to some purpose, but we wish they would stay awake daytimes, too, and send us an occasional photograph of the displays instead of waiting until the exchange remembers us. Funny how people will doze off. Now there is N. R. Chaney, of the Orpheum, Hillsboro, Ohio, who's been asleep since 'way back last spring. If Mr. Chaney is in the audience, will he please stand up and make a few remarks?

Change of Title.

The Idle Hour Educator has become the Amusement Guide and Editor Smithers retires in favor of the Guide Company. This is following the New Orleans idea where both the Pearce and Fichtenberg enterprises farm out the program privilege. The house chat is replaced by patent inside stuff not germane to the pictures, and we think that this is a mistake. It costs a little more to set type than to cut up plate matter, but the advertiser will only stay in the paper that will bring results and there is enough boiler plate without using it in the photoplay publication. More pages are run and there is more advertising, but the change is not for the better. The real value of the house organ in its value to the house in the aid it gives in building up and holding interest and cooking receipts can never take the place of items about the players.

Films and Food.

The Huntingdon Motion Picture Company seems to have a system by which you purchase a ticket for one of their three houses and get a transfer to another, seeing two shows for five cents, at least that is what their advertisement suggests. One house runs five reels and the others three each and the advertisement is headed "eight reels for five cents"—which is too much for the money. In case you do not want to see both shows, you can take your transfer tickets down to the grocery store and exchange ten of them for a can of beans or fifteen for a can of salmon. This mixing of films with food is something new. We do not see that it is altogether desirable.

HOWARD'S
EXCURSION
HOWARD'S
EXCURSION

The PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT
Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Inquest Club Call

ALL photoplaywrights and students of photoplay residing within hailing distance of New York and who wish to work and study with the Inquest Club this season are invited to send a self-addressed postal card to the Inquest Club, Box 70, Madison Square Station, New York City. The club has no fees or dues and the sole qualification for membership is that the applicant is interested in photoplay writing and willing to study. This year meetings will be held on the second and fourth Mondays of each month, instead of weekly. While arrangements have not been concluded it is probable that we shall sit in our former Morgue in Keene's Chop House, first seeing the performance at some nearby theater. Full particulars as to time and place will be given prior to the first meeting

New members (and some of the old as well), will please note that the purpose of the club is to study photoplay writing through the discussion of produced plays just witnessed by the members and by other means. Last year several directors were invited down, but the efforts of certain persons to acquire a pull through the introductions thus gained has resulted in the abandonment of this feature. You will be aided in your studies at no more cost than the payment for such refreshment as you may order, but you will not be aided to build up a pull. If you want to study come and be assured of welcome. If you want to graft, stay away. There will be no chance to graft. The Inquest Club did considerable good last season. We hope that this year will be even more productive of result.

This is not a club for men alone. The ladies will be welcomed and are at liberty to bring an escort if desired.

Two Reel Talk.

Several have written to know if there will be any more stories on writing the two reel. There will be when some of the writers who have promised contributions get the time to put their thought on paper. Editors are busy people and we have to wait on them. Meantime just think over the recipe.

Write a strong one reel story.
Write a better and faster second reel.
Simple, isn't it?

Change Reliance Address.

Make a note on your address slips that the address of the Reliance Company is now 537 Riverdale Avenue, Yonkers, N. Y. Other addresses have been given as the present correct address, but this is supplied by Hopp Hadley and is the official address.

Wright, Too.

William Lord Wright asks that emphasis be given the fact that he does not criticise photoplay manuscripts. He does not criticise a script for a fee and he does not criticise a script because you are the sole support of a widowed mother, because you have a sore toe, because your early education was neglected or for any other reason. He would like to help, but he has numerous activities and he cannot spare the time that his correspondents demand of him.

He is doing what he can to help along, but he cannot spend an hour working over the script of a total stranger who doesn't even have the decency to enclose return postage and he asks our aid in heading off this influx of advice grafters.

And by the same token will the aforesaid please note that the Moving Picture World does not include free criticism with the price of its subscription. It does not give criticism, sell criticism or attempt in any way to dispose of manuscripts. The subscription price of the paper is three dollars a year. For that sum any reader is welcome to ask as many technical questions as he desires provided these questions do not involve the handling of any manuscript, and that the questions are intelligently put. This is good value for three dollars and more. It cannot be expected that several two dollar criticisms will be thrown in free. There are publications that offer criticism for moderate fees. The criticisms are worth what is charged in some cases, but this paper does not find it necessary to run side lines in order to augment its income.

Please take notice.

Script Prices.

Some time ago Marc Edmund Jones, in the Dramatic Mirror, advanced the argument that at the present prices he could not afford to revise his scripts. Now his side partner, Julian Louis Lamothe, declares that revising his scripts with care does not bring him in a better price and hints that he will send them out in first draft. The Mirror's "Film Man" concludes that there must be something wrong with a condition which induces a state of affairs wherein the workman must scamp his job in order to show profit. There is.

In one company, for instance, one of the members of the firm appraises each script and marks the price that is to be paid. Mindful of the high cost of living, the prices marked seldom exceed $25. No one of the responsible persons is a competent judge of literary value. The difference between $15 and $25 merely represents the state of mind of the reader at the moment.

Another company seldom pays more than $25. If the produced film is more than unusually good a bonus is sent the author whether the extra merit is due to the work of the author or to a sympathetic production by the director. In few studios are the scripts priced intelligently by a man who really knows literary values and photoplay values as well.

On the face of it there would seem to be no incentive to the author to do this best, yet, on the other hand, there are companies where good work is properly rewarded, where a good script is more generously remunerated than one that merely contains the germ of a good idea and where the man who marks the prices is competent to pass judgment on all angles of the script.

In the case of Mr. Jones he is not yet writing good scripts. He has excellent ideas, but also some bad film mannerisms, including a fondness for starting his story in the middle and visioning back for explanation as well as an overfondness for trick work. We have seen none of Mr. Lamothe's scripts, but do not question his statement that better work has not brought better prices, yet.

The point is simply this. The business today is in a vastly better shape than it was three or four years ago, but it is still in the hands of men who have come to regard $25 or $35 as being enough for any script because it is all they have ever had to pay. They gauge the price by the supply and the demand, and the supply of scripts of a sort is more plentiful than the demand. To these makers of film anything that is a story is a good enough story.

That, however, is no excuse for poor work on the part of the author. The time is coming—and coming soon, at that—when a story must be good in order to sell, and the man who does good work now, in the face of small prices and discouraging conditions, will be in the front of the waiting line when the editor who can judge literary and narrative value is permitted to pay what he thinks a story is worth and not what his employer thinks all stories should be worth.

As one man put it just the other day: "A lot of men have got to die before the business gets good." Meantime wait with cheerfulness for the publication of the obituary notices and do your best that you may have a reputation for doing good work when it is needed, and while you wait make your first submissions to those discerning companies that now pay according to merit and not in accordance with a fixed scale or according to how their breakfast agrees with them.

Those Schools.

The recent arrest of the proprietor of a correspondence school for alleged fraudulent use of the mails and the announcement that he had already served one term in prison for the song publishing swindle has brought out the interesting fact that these schools are all violating the law, not in that they profess to teach photoplay writing by mail but through the glowing, glorious lies they tell.

One recent comer into the field virtually promises that the head of the school will sell for the pupil the five scripts sent in as practice work for not less than $25 each. This is a downright and deliberate lie. The cost of the course is $15. The return is $125 if the promise made is fulfilled. Surely this is an admirable investment, but there is not one writer in a thousand whose first five ideas are salable at any price.

In a recent experiment one woman who possessed more than the usual allowance of imagination and who was well educated sought to develop an idea that would be worth making into a script. She submitted some ten or twelve ideas, a third of which were the same old things. Of the others not one had the requisite punch. It would be absurd to contend that this school course could sell five of her first twelve ideas, let alone her first five. Such a promise, therefore, is fraudulent and illegal, and the use of the mails to advertise this school is also fraudulent and illegal.

If you have been deceived into taking a correspondence school course that has not proven to be in accordance with its promises, write the Post Office Department at Washington and the Inspectors will do the rest, but they act only on complaint, so you must do your part. The National Authors' Institute is the third to be closed through their activities.

Sold First Two.

The Rev. Clarence J. Harris has had an unusual experience. He wanted to write plays and sent for a copy of Technique of the Photoplay just after the first edition was sold out. With no other help than that received through this department, he wrote six plays to date. The first, a one reel, was taken by Broncho, and the second, a two-part story, was accepted by American. The others are still at their first port of call. This is an exceptional record—a very exceptional record, but it shows that it can be done if you go at it right. Mr. Harris says:

> I am pleased to find I can now secure your book for which I sent months ago. Finding I could not buy at that time, I studied your pages in the Moving Picture World. That is all I have studied, since I began to write three months ago, or less. I consider your pages of great value and through them I have gotten started with success.
>
> My first military play was taken by Broncho and paid for in four weeks. My next was a two reel drama, taken by the American. I have received helpful comments and suggestions from others and have four two-reel dramas which have been sticking for a month and over.
>
> I tell you this simply to show you that your pages are appreciated by me and are no doubt by many others. I anticipate the study of your book with great pleasure.

One Point On Two Reels.

There is one thing that the author should avoid in writing two part stories. You are properly told that the introduction must all come in the first reel, but that the first reel should also contain matters of interest. We find that too many authors, laying down the lines of their story, become so interested in their argument that they forget to add the proper movement, so that now and then they force in some bit of sensation to take the place of the missing plot-action. This is not good practice and must be eliminated. Do not put in a sub-punch every few scenes, but write the explanatory action in such a form that each scene is, of itself, interesting to the spectator. Your first reel must be as interesting as a single reel story and your second reel must be better. Your first reel will not be good if all the real interest is in four or five scenes and composed of extraneous matter forced in to make it interesting. If you cannot write a gripping and interesting first reel, no matter what your second may be, your story will fail. You must grip the interest in the first three hundred feet and make the appeal stronger in each succeeding hundred feet. You would not read the fiction story that did not claim your interest until you were half way through. It is the same with the two part story. At the end of the first reel the spectator must be so vitally interested that he can hardly wait for the reels to be changed.

A Prose Poem of Production.

This clever prose poem (it is a poem if you will read with rhythm), is contributed by George Groeber, of the Dayton Daily News. It fits so exactly the prevailing condition that we gladly give it space, with our thanks to Mr. Groeber.

> Jest what I wish to say is, once, I too was an untutored dunce. Thinks I the photoplays I write, air better by a golldurned sight, than most of them my vision greet upon the moving picture sheet. What pull some authors musta got, with editors to sell such rot, BUT when my own first script I seen, enacted on the movie screen, O PIFFUL! (Out that cussword ripped, when hold upon my language slipped). When I come to, I turned and fled, like arrow swift I homeward sped, straightway up to the attic went, upon my knees, in reverence bent, and prayed Almighty to forgive poor me, for never while I live, will I again an author flout, for work some imbecile turns out. I added postscript to my plea, if the Good Lord his way could see, to give, in wise benevolence, directors jest one grain of sense.

Visions.

If we had our way we would fine every photoplaywright who put visions into a script. This goes double for "fade to" and treble for more intricate forms of trick work.

Some writers have what virtually amounts to a mania for trick stuff. They seek to bolster up a poor idea with effects. Any time a director wants to waste a few days or a couple of weeks, he can put in the trick work himself and do it better than the outsider, but the man outside has no business whatever writing in tricks if he is in the business to get checks and not merely to wear out his typewriter and waste postage stamps.

The reason is that trick work takes time. You write in that as Jim sits in his cell he sees a vision of the crime, then he sees home and mother and his Sunday School teacher and the good old pastor and the girl back home and a lot more of the same sort. You put it in the envelope and sent it off, feeling that this scene will save a rather weak plot, "because trick work always goes."

But the director looks at it this way: Every foot of vision means two feet of picture. More than that it means that he has a fine chance of spoiling a couple of hundred feet of film and spending a day or two getting the scenes that are spoiled. He must keep track of every inch of film in that vision scene all through the various changes and, perhaps, he can do nothing else until the visioning is done. All of this means hard work and perhaps nothing but failure at the end. At best he takes a couple of days extra to get the stuff and for these extra days he gets no thanks.

Write the story that will be good without visions. Let the director put in the visions if he wants to, but do not trust to the visions to pass the rest along.

If you lived on tidewater and went for a row, you would not row upstream against the tide and row back downstream also against the tide when it turns when you can row down with the tide and back with the tide with little or no effort.

It is the same way with the studio and trick work. They prefer the good story without visions to the story that is good because of a lot of visioning, and they will not take the latter when they can get the former.

In a story the other day eight visions were called for because the visions were written in to tell something that happened before the play began. There was absolutely nothing to prevent the use of these scenes as the prologue of the play, and this would have replaced trick work with straight turning and at the same time would have left the story more clear. To put it another way, some studio was asked to add several hundred dollars to the expense of a production because an author either did not know how to handle her story or because she thought that trick work would help along the appearance.

Make good with the story. Do not use trick work as a crutch for the lame plot, because editors do not care for cripples.

Experience.

We know, from letters received, that the experiences of others help the beginner along the road, and here seems to be an unusual experience. It is written by a girl who five years ago was getting $4 a week as a houseworker, who wanted to get ahead. She writes:

> About three years ago, I thought of a simple little patentable device, a necessity. I tried to get my friends financially interested. They giggled and snickered over my invention and I couldn't raise the price. So I concluded to save enough to pay for the patent myself. I was getting $4 a week doing housework, so I saved three long, long years and then I had $60.00 saved. I wrote the patent lawyers to get me a patent, and they wrote back that I was just one month too late, as the patent had been taken out a month before. Pretty tough? If you could read of some of my past experiences and failures and how I got a sudden ambition to get rich quick when I was sweet sixteen, maybe you wouldn't smile. I took the $60.00 and bought a typewriter with $30.00 and invested $30.00 in a song. The typewriter is paying for itself as I sold the 4th and 7th comedies I wrote, and Mr. Sargent, I certainly appreciate your department, as it is the only schooling in scenario writing that I have had, and as I have sold 2 plays out of 10 I consider my progress promising. Please excuse me for?

There's a girl who is going to get somewhere. She doesn't want to get even with the song swindlers, but is willing to write that off against experience. Instead, she is plugging harder than ever on plays. We wish that she would send her name and address next time she writes.

Inquiries.

NOTE—No questions can be replied to by mail. Look for your answers here. A list of addresses to which photoplays may be sent will be mailed on receipt of a STAMPED AND ADDRESSED ENVELOPE. No question can be replied to that necessitates the handling of a script.

RICHARD ROE—Please give better identification of the first Biograph character. We know they do not use names, but you can do better than that. Miss Florence Lee seems to be the other Biographer. The old lines are down between Licensed and Independent films at present. Miss Alice Hollister was the governess in "The Hidden Witness." We have no cast for the Nestor.

M. E. D.—Majestic produced "The Fraternity Pin." We know no company specializing in college stories. Edison uses the names of authors on the title for the screen. Universal has announced its intention of doing so, but Lubin made the same announcement months ago, yet never did.

E. L. S.—Neither company mentioned is buying much stuff. Ask for the scripts back. If you cannot get them, withdraw the story by notification by registered letter and then watch their product closely.

M. H.—John Bunny is not dead. Read back for your second question. We told a few weeks ago.

J. M.—No announcement has yet been made as to the release of Vitagraph's "The Life of Daniel." It will be released as a General Film feature.

B. J.—The Frank Cramer we occasionally mention in the Photoplay Department, has no connection, directly or indirectly, with any photoplay school. About one writer in a million sells his first five scripts, with or without help. You may be the millionth man, but the odds are against you. Three alleged schools have been closed by Post Office Inspectors so far. Keep away.

F. D.—Address the Chicago office of the company in regard to the photograph of the player.

J. R. A.—We know of no reliable person who will revise and sell your scripts on a percentage basis.

H. D. B.—Miss Josephine Luria was Ruth in "The Broken Vase." We do not know if she is a Denver girl. That's asking too much of an Answers Man.

J. B.—Such a carefully propounded inquiry deserves a more complete reply than we can give. The Kay-Bee Identifier knows him only as Mr. Vosburg. If any one knows Mr. Vosburg's first name, we'll be glad to print it. We get no assistance from the Kay-Bee in identifying characters.

W. K.—No company that we know of gives preference to the work of beginners. They want the best they can get; not the worst. Keep on until you are no longer a beginner and then you'll begin to sell.

RUBENA—You write more letter to less question than even Flossie C. P., but keep on, because we rather like it. Minor Watson was Dave in "Rescuing Dave." Earle Metcalf was the artist in "Into the Light."

R. H. C.—The length of a story is judged by the length of the scenes, plus leader and inserts, not by the number of scenes, or the number of words. It is essential that you write the leaders in their proper place in the script. The cast of characters must be given on the synopsis page.

H. S.—Only typewritten scripts are considered now.

W. A. W.—As the Answers Man did not see the release in question he is not able to discuss it with you. Sorry.

W. H. S.—That the script is held is a point in your favor. Wait eight weeks.

MME. X.—Cyril Gottleib was Tom in "An Orphan of War." Miss Louise Glaum had the title role in "The Quakeress." The Thanhouser cast is not given.

E. D.—Glad you escaped the toils. Don't write Christmas stories. There will be few made this year. Change it to a general theme. Films stay current from six to nine months, and the Christmas story goes stale too quickly.

Technique of the Photoplay

(Second Edition)

By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

☞ Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue - New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Operators' Union Directory, I. A. T. S. E.

NOTICE: Each union is entitled to have its roster of officers, meeting nights, etc., listed here once a year, free of cost. Preserve this list as it will not be republished. The mail address of the secretary should be included, and the address of the regular meeting place, if any.

Local No. 206, Topeka, Kansas.

Guy W. Stone, President; M. Dale Jones, Vice-President; Charles R. Henderson, Recording Secretary, 313 Monroe Street, Topeka, Kans.; Harry E. Collins, Financial Secretary and Treasurer; Edward H. Neff, Business Agent. Meets every two weeks from Sunday, August 24th, 1913. Second floor Rosen Building, 418 Kansas Avenue.

Department Endorsed.

Under the seal of the M. P. M. O. Union No.......of.............., New York, comes the following:

> Let the good work go on. There are bristle-backs in every large city, who think the world was made for them alone. Many of them do not hold their positions through ability. If it were not for the organization behind them they would have to return to the "hod." The members of Local No......are eager to acquire knowledge of their profession, and cannot commend your efforts to supply the same too strongly. Several of our members have your handbook and treasure it very highly. It has filled a long-felt want, and should be in the hands of every operator.

This letter is signed by the secretary of the union and bears the seal; therefore, it is official. Evidently the operators of Local Union........ have read what I said concerning a hostile union in a certain large city, and they are on the San Francisco side, rather than on the Man-Afraid-Of-Knowledge side. The secretary of Local......has expressed a whole lot of good, hard, rock-bottom truth in a few words, and these words are going to ruffle the temper of some of the guilty ones, and ruffle it good and strong. That is the whole trouble with Mr. Man-Afraid-Of-Knowledge. He does not know much, knows he does not know much, and is trying to use the strength of the organization to bolster up an untenable position. He is too infernally lazy to study, and is afraid to have anybody else given opportunity to study, because he fully realizes that if this is done his already precarious position is still further weakened, and his fingers may eventually have to curl, not lovingly, but firmly, around the handle of a very substantial hod. The position of Local......is absolutely correct. They have, by this action, placed themselves unequivocally in line with San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Toronto and the other progressive unions of the I. A. I have said, and I again repeat, that no organization has any reason to fear the dissemination of knowledge, provided its own members take the same advantage of the avenues opened to knowledge that others do, since they can make just as much use of it as the other fellow can, and they have the added advantage of an organization. But I want to say further than this I have no patience, nor sympathy, with the union which seeks to impede progress, and prevent the spread of knowledge, because they fear that a non-member will take greater advantage of it than will their own members. The name, number and location of the union is omitted to protec the organization from a charge of heresy.

Quite a Scheme.

Lodi, California, contributes the following:

> For the benefit of operators and managers I will give instructions how to transfer any picture from any newspaper to a slide. First make a solution as follows: Shave one-half a bar of plain laundry soap, and boil it in six quarts of water until thoroughly dissolved. When cold, add one pint of turpentine and two-thirds of a cup of borax; stir well before using. Prepare a slide with a light coat of light varnish and let dry hard before each additional picture. In order to print the picture on the slide, dampen the picture with the solution, after which blot it and apply it to the prepared slide, rubbing down firmly with the back of a tablespoon, which prints the picture.

While we thank the Lodi friend for this contribution, he is not very plain on some points. What I presume he means is that he thins ordinary, light-colored varnish with turpentine, and coats one side of the cover glass with the same, allowing it to dry; after which he dampens the picture with the solution, blots it with ordinary blotting paper, lays it on the varnished side of the glass, and, after rubbing it down firmly, peels the paper off. What he means by "allowing to dry hard before each additional picture," I do not know.

Lodi also has removed the oil cup from his Power's 6 oil casing and placed it at the top, plugging up the lower hole, of course. The only trouble with this scheme is liability to get too much oil in the casing, which will cause it to run out through the bearings. The Power's Company at one time placed the oil cup near top of casing, but later placed it near the bottom, for the reason stated.

Kansas City, Missouri.

I had from 11.45 A. M. to 5 P. M. in Kansas City, and as no one knew that fact, or when I was due there, I just spent the time visiting old scenes, and looking into projection matters and moving picture things in general.

It seems to me there is a fine, large opening in Kansas City for a man, or company, who will put in a moving picture theater modeled along up-to-date lines; say, like the American Theater, Salt Lake City, or the Isis Theater, Denver.

I first called at the Palace Theater, but the manager was out and the man in charge did not seem to be absolutely certain whether he was alive, or had already passed into the Realm of Shadows, so I wandered up to 12th Street and called at three or four poster-plastered nickel shows, with results far from encouraging. I finally mustered up courage to ask a listless 12th Street manager whether or not there were any really good moving picture houses in town. After gaping, rubbing his eyes, and indulging in a good stretch he studied hard for a couple of moments and concluded to inform me that the 10th Street Theater, in 10th Street, and the 12th Street Theater, in 12th Street, were the best examples in the city, volunteering the further information that these two were real classy and very nifty specimens of the genus moving picture theater. First, I tramped over to the 10th Street house and introduced myself to the manager, Mr. M. J. Lyons, who is personally a most pleasant gentleman. The house, itself, has a fair lobby, but is of the ordinary store-room type, though of rather generous size. There was altogether too much daylight, even for strong projection light, but, as a matter of fact, the projection light was weak, yellow and very poorly handled. Mr. Lyons, I learned, also managed the Palace., From there I went to the 12th Street Theater, managed by Mr. Wm. Smith. This house also is of the store-room type, though large, seating 662 people. The light here was very good and was well handled. I did not meet the operator in either house. I was told there is a large theater, now closed, which an enterprising man with money could secure, and that it was well located for moving pictures. It seems one of the big theatrical syndicates, I think they said the Shuberts, took it over to eliminate competition, and would now be glad to lease it for movies. I give this yarn for what it is worth, but if it is true it is, in my opinion, well worth investigation. If I wanted to get into the exhibition end of things, I certainly would give Kansas City a good looking over. It is well supplied with small houses but, if the 10th and 12th Street theaters are the best, is totally lacking in up-to-date moving picture theaters.

Borrowing Money.

From Athol, Massachusetts, comes a letter from a brother in which he complains that a certain operator, formerly a member of Auxiliary No. 1, of Waterbury, Connecticut, is a swindler. His specific complaint is that this man, who has been expelled from Auxiliary No. 1, displays a union button, and borrows money from operators. He mulcted the correspondent to the extent of $5.00.

Without going into this case further, let me say that the operator who loans money simply on the evidence of the union button, is very foolish indeed. In fact, I do not believe in this thing of loaning money to strangers, even though they be union members, except possibly in very exceptional cases, and where money is so loaned it should be done by the organization and not by the individual. The union button is not conclusive evidence the man is even an operator, much less a member of the union. There are many ways in which a man can acquire a union button which does not rightly belong to him. He could find it; he could steal it, or he could buy it in a pawn shop, or second-hand store. But, beyond this, let me say that even a card is not conclusive evidence, though it is usually accepted as such, for cards are frequently lost or stolen, and for this reason the union card ought to bear the photograph of the owner, the same as many city license cards do, and the card should be impressed with the seal of the union in such a way as the same covers a portion of the photograph. This would make the card prima-facie evidence that the man was a union operator. But it would by no manner of means prove that he was justified in asking a loan.

Tension Equalizer.

Mr. H. W. Griggs, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, who is a practical operator, has invented a tension take-up equalizer. Brother Griggs forwarded a working model to this department for inspection. Unquestionably, the device will work, but my verdict was that it was rather too complicated. Mr. Griggs now writes that he has reduced the complication by fully one-half, which will make it a practical device, and, no doubt, he will furnish complete description to those interested in the purchase of such an article. This department has many times pointed out the crying need for a practical device which would equalize the pull of the take-up on the film throughout the run. Brother Griggs' invention will do this, I believe, and if he can make it simple enough to be commercially practicable there is undoubtedly a field for it.

That Law.

The following resolution was presented to the late Convention of the I. A. T. S. E. by the delegates, whose names are appended thereto, and was by the Convention adopted. It, therefore, is now law.

> ARTICLE 3, Section 15. No member of the I. A. T. S. E. of the United States and Canada shall be permitted to contribute or write for publication, in any unauthorized book, paper or magazine, any article setting forth any criticism, ideas or opinions as to the past, present or future policy of the I. A., or giving any information or answering any questions regarding the craft that might assist non-union men to compete with the I. A. members when on strike. That all criticisms, complaints, appeals, suggestions, etc., shall be made only by circular letter or letters direct to Locals, officers or members of the I. A., and in accordance with the I. A. laws. A fine of not more than $50.00 or less than $5.00 shall be imposed for each violation of this clause, subject to expulsion for repeated violations.
>
> SIGNED: G. Kingston Howard, No. 181; B. A. Spellbring, No. 224; E. D. Miller. No. 2; Louis Krouse, No. 37; A. E. Sovlt, No. 175; H. F. Lampman, No. 154; E. C. Scobey, No. 194; Ben DeLion, No. 185; L. G. Dolliver, No. 162; A. S. Hadden, No. 170; W. D. Shank, No. 173; Jas. F. Burke, No. 182; W. F. Canavan, No. 143; Peter Boyle, No. 162; S. M. Hulbert, No. 160; Henry Lacy, No. 165; Myer Goodman, No. 182; Edwin Healey, No. 259; H. M. Davis, No. 144; D. Farquhar, Aux. 9; W. W. Ladd, No. 154; C. A. Porter, No. 250.

The reading of the names signed to this document was a distinct surprise, since there are those of men there whom I never would have believed, without the evidence of my own eyes, would append their names to any such proposed resolution, thereby lending the approval of their organization to its passage. And now, without any passion, let us examine the "law," and see what it really means. In the first place, it proposes that no member of the I. A., either in the United States or Canada, may express, in public print, any criticism, any idea, or voice any opinion whatsoever as to the past, present or future policy of the organization. This is a direct attempt to throttle free speech, and it is beyond any question of doubt directly in opposition to the laws of the land. Moreover, it is a most vicious piece of legislation, since it operates to prevent advancement, or to eliminate abuses; that is to say, it would so operate if it could be made effective, which it cannot, both by reason of its obvious illegality and by reason of the fact that, with just a little common sense exercised, no proof will be had, sufficient to convict any member of transgressing this valuable "law."

But this is not really the most serious phase, since that part of it only operates to retard the true progress of the organization. The real super-refined, double-connected, high pressure brand of foolishness is displayed when the organization proposes to stop the education of operators. The real meaning of the clause, "Or giving any information, or answering any questions regarding the craft that might assist non-union men to compete with I A. men when on strike," is that the organization proposes to prevent the education by the same means. If this kind of legislation could be made operative, it would instantly prevent any member of the union from even so much as asking a question through the Projection Department or through any other similar source, since it could be claimed that the answer might help a non-union man also, and "place him in better position to take a union man's place in time of strike." And it would, too, for that matter, but if an organization has got to the point where it has got to maintain its prestige by stopping the dissemination of knowledge, shutting off all information without supplying its place with anything, then it is in a bad way indeed. In early days of trade unionism, away back fifty or a hundred years ago, this was the policy adopted, but I had supposed that organized labor had outgrown such childish ideas. Imagine, if you can, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the highest type of, and most successful organization we have, taking such a position as this. Some of you operators spring that kind of proposition on a locomotive engineer and see what he says to you. So far as I know the I. A. has the distinguished honor of being the only labor organization which has, within the past twenty years, attempted to suppress the spread of knowledge—to stop the car of progress and roll its wheels backwards.

Well, gentlemen, it won't work. In future no operators' name will appear on communications conflicting with the "law," unless he expressly gives his permission. Only those letters emanating from managers and owners will carry the name of the writer; also, no union's name will appear, or its location, so, after all, what is your little piece of foolishness going to accomplish?

I am of the opinion that some of the signers of that valuable document did not realize what they were signing. It would have to be shown to me that such men as Dolliver, of San Francisco, and Ladd, of Seattle, stand for any such policy as this. I do not believe either they or their organization to be in favor of it, and if the San Francisco organization is in favor of any such thing, then I have been badly fooled in that union.

It is an exceedingly serious matter, gentlemen. This apparently innocent resolution strikes a blow at the whole business of exhibition of moving pictures, in that it seeks to limit the improvement in projection, if not entirely stop it; but it is an even worse blow to the I. A. itself, in that its real meaning is, that the unions propose to use themselves as a battering ram rather than as an engine of advancement.

The I. A. purposes to enter upon an active campaign of organization, particularly of the operators. Under any ordinary circumstances it would have the hearty co-operation and support of this department, just as it has had in the past, but when it announces a policy of this kind, right at the beginning of this campaign, why an entirely different complexion is put on things and one hardly knows what to do. This department has time and again said, and in the process of so saying, it has reaped the opposition of hundreds of managers, that it heartily favors the organization of the operators. This department has done a great deal to advance the organization of the men I think that President Shay fully realizes this to be a fact, whether the signers of this resolution do or not; therefore, this particular attempt at assassination comes with an exceedingly poor grace. The future course of this department, so far as the organization is concerned, will to a considerable extent depend upon the answers received, as to how many unions and individuals are opposed to this sort of thing. The resolution seems to say that the I. A. does not want the support of the department. If this is a fact, and that idea is supported by the majority of unions, and by a large number of individuals, then in the classic language of the street, "I should worry." It is up to you, gentlemen, so let us hear what you have to say about the suppression of the spread of knowledge, remembering that you need have no fear of getting into any difficulty with the I. A. through any communication sent to this office. Mark all communications "not for publication."

Moral Support.

Mr. W. M. Calvin, Superintendent Water and Light Department, Skiatook, Oklahoma, writes:

> Under the heading, "A Remarkable Performance," you "discovered" one rectifier serving two machines. I indulged in a broad smile, for I used that particular system for two years. (I have been on the outside looking in one year and one month.) I never dreamed that I was doing anything out of the ordinary, and you can do the same thing with one compensarc. I often wonder what manner of man you are that you can have patience with all the ignorance exhibited to you in your capacity of editor of this department. I simply could not do it. I sometimes get all worked up just reading the letters. I firmly believe there is more crass ignorance and stupidity engaged in the manufacture, sale, rental and exhibition of motion pictures than in all other occupations combined. As to your remarks regarding "The East and the West," page 742, August 16th issue, you did not speak hard enough. I have not had an opportunity of joining the I. A. T. S. E., but I will say that ignorance is one of the great handicaps to organized labor. It is appalling. Just think of the unsafe hands in which are placed a wonderful and beautiful piece of mechanism. I notice "Page 741" where one "operator" came in looking for a "Bobbin." (He was not a member of the Seattle union, you may take it from me, Ed.) Education in their craft should be the watch-word of everyone worthy the name of projection machine operator, for the heaven knows it is needed. Keep up your fight for the dissemination of knowledge and if they press you too hard, just whisper "help" and you will get plenty of it to assist in the elimination of the boneheads. I am not actively engaged in operating just now, for two reasons; viz: I do not happen to own a show at this time, and don't know of an owner who wants high-class projection bad enough to be willing to pay for it.

Well, friend Calvin, I do not think I will be "pressed too hard," and I already have ample evidence that the element, which opposes the dissemination of knowledge, is far in the minority, and there is hope even for them. You misunderstood my comments with regard to the use of a rectifier on two machines. What struck me was not the connecting of a lamp in multiple on a rectifier, a simple enough thing in itself, but the combination of that scheme with a clutch-shaft connection between the two projectors. You just read that again, and see if you do not understand it a little differently. As to the ignorance displayed, I can remember the time when I, myself, was in complete ignorance of all these matters, but I was willing to learn; moreover, I was anxious to learn, and I did learn. I left no stone unturned in a search for knowledge of projection. I have got all kinds of patience with the man who doesn't know, but is willing to ask questions and find out, but I have not a particle of patience with the man who doesn't know, doesn't want to know, and is determined to hold everybody else down to his own level. Ordinarily I do not pay any attention to him, but when the accredited representative of a large union, as well as an international organization, undertakes to publicly advocate the suppression of knowledge, and the prevention of its dissemination, it is high time to call a decided halt and inform those gentlemen that they cannot reverse progress or back up the wheels of time. Come again neighbor! Good, live letters of this kind are doubly welcome.

Is He Qualified.

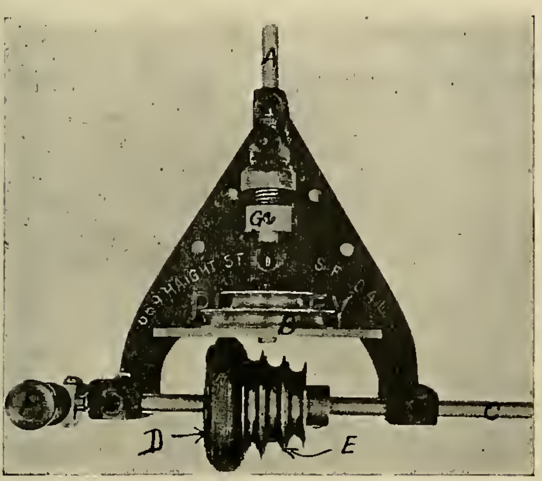
Topeka, Kansas, puts up the following proposition:

> I am qualifying to become a moving picture operator under a local Topeka operator, but intend to accept a position back East soon. Will you kindly mail me some of the questions that are asked by some of the strictest cities or states, so I may know when I am some ways near qualified?

I could not do this, even were I disposed to, for the very simple reason that nobody knows what questions an applicant may be asked. Each examination consists of questions propounded on the spur of the moment, one question usually suggesting another to the examiner. Broadly speaking, an applicant must understand electrical action thoroughly, in-so-far as it applies to projection circuits. He must understand resistance, how it acts, what its purpose is, and the effect of different connections. He must understand transformer action, and how to connect up transformers in different ways. He must understand fuses and their actions, as well as the why and wherefore of their installation. He must understand how to figure wire capacity, as well as why wire has a "capacity," and he must know what will happen if that capacity is exceeded. He must also understand moving picture mechanism, and the why and wherefore of lens action. In fact, he must understand his business as an operator, and must not only know that a light results when he brings the carbons together, but must also understand all the different things which take place in the circuit when the arc is struck, and understand them thoroughly. He should also understand motors, as well as have some knowledge of dynamo action, since he may, at any time, he called upon to handle either or both. It is not only necessary that he know that when he turns the crank of a machine, with a film in and the light on, that a picture on the screen results, but he should also know the why and wherefore of that result, in all its phases—and it has a surprising number of "phases," too.

A Mechanical Speed Controller.

Mr. W. G. Preddey, the inventor of the Preddey Economizer, San Francisco, California, has invented a mechanical speed controller for motor-driven projection machines, which same looks like an excellent device. It was my pleasure to shake hands with Brother Preddey, during my recent visit to 'Frisco, and he impressed me as a thoroughly honorable gentleman, who has abiding faith in the goods he manufactures. I am sure anything he puts out will be fully up to the mark.



The illustration shows the working of the thing very plainly. We are looking down on the top of the device, which is bolted on the left hand edge of the machine table, just in front of the lamp-house, or it may be bolted to a shelf attached to the wall in front of the machine, or it could be bolted to the right hand edge of the baseboard, just in front of the lamp-house, with the belt running to the pulley on the crank-shaft of the projector. Shaft A carries friction disc B, to which is attached a two-speed pulley, from which the belt runs to the projector pulley. Shaft C carries friction wheel D and cone pulley E. The shaft is attached to speed control handle F, and is, by it, moved longitudinally through the boxing, carrying friction disc D and cone pulley E sideways in relation to friction disc B, and, of course, the nearer wheel D is to the center of disc B, the faster the projector will run, and vice versa. The motor sets directly under the device, the belt passing over cone pulley E, so that, by means of adjustment of lever F, and the changing of the belts on the two cone pulleys, a wide range of speed may be had. The motor must not be less than 18 inches away from the controller. If set closer the belt will give trouble. Movable collar G compresses a coil-spring against the boxing, and thus governs the tension between friction wheel D and friction disc P. Mr. Preddey suggests a 6-inch pulley on the lower sprocket shaft of the projector.

The Same Old Story.

Terryville, Connecticut, writes enclosing money order for a handbook and says:

> I find many excellent things in the department, but I have seen no comment on the splicing of films. If operators would use a little more care and intelligence in splicing, we would all be very grateful. I was in Hartford last week and saw one film run which had to be framed seven times; and that is going some. Speaking of operators' duties, I would like to tell you a good one of an operator who had to do about everything there was to be done about the theater, and top it off with a thirty-six mile trip every Sunday (72 miles round trip), all for $15.00 per week, with the promise of more pay, which never came.

What was all that trip about? I hardly see how a weekly trip covering seventy-two miles would or could have anything to do with operating. As to splicing, the Hartford manager must have been purchasing a very low class of film service. But, even so, he should have returned that reel to the exchange. It was an outrage on his audience to run it, just as it would have been an outrage on his operator to have compelled him to have repaired it. While there is undoubtedly a great deal of carelessness on the part of operators in the making of patches, still I think a considerable part of the poor work is due directly to the fact that much of the splicing is done by incompetent helpers, or boys, who are hired to do the rewinding. In many instances these rewinders are ushers, who don't know how to make a patch in the first place, and, in the second place, don't care whether the splice is properly made, or is not properly made, so long as it will stick together. It is the duty of the exchange, however, to cut out all poor splices and misframes. If exchanges did their duty in this direction, and did it thoroughly, the whole trouble would be stopped, because the exchanges would soon learn where the poor patches came from, and call a halt on the manager, or operator, who was producing them. Poor splices are responsible for a multitude of sins. Not only do they cause misframes, but they cause the losing of the loops, and the jumping of the picture on the screen as the splice passes through, all of which is very, very bad indeed.

Which Current?

Massachusetts propounds the following:

> I am building a new theater and would like information as to the following: I want d. c. at the arc and the power company is willing to furnish me with 110 volt a. c. or 500 volt d. c. Would you advise me to get a d. c. economizer from 500 to arc voltage, or use a. c. and get an a. c. to d. c. economizer, or use a. c. on the arc?

I would use a 110 volt a. c., rectifying the same into d. c., of course, since the use of alternating current for projection is somewhat out of date. While it would, I think, be better to use the 500 volt supply, viewing the matter purely from an economic standpoint, it would be dangerous to bring 500 volt wires into a theater, and, moreover, current of that voltage should not be handled by anyone but an experienced electrician, and even he should handle it very carefully. Under no circumstances would I recommend the bringing of 500 volt wires into a theater. If you have an electrician who is capable of handling that voltage, and you locate your motor-generator in a separate building, all right; but even so I would not regard the difference in economy as sufficient to justify the risk of accident.

The T. M. A.

Mr. C. Wallis, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, says:

> With regard to my letter in August 23rd issue, you do not agree with me in the T. M. A. matter. It seems you think the T. M. A. is another union, and which might conflict with the I. A. T. S. E. In this you are in error. The T. M. A. is the theatrical fraternal society and is not a union and hence there could not be a conflict of authority. I hope, therefore, you will see my suggestions in a new light.

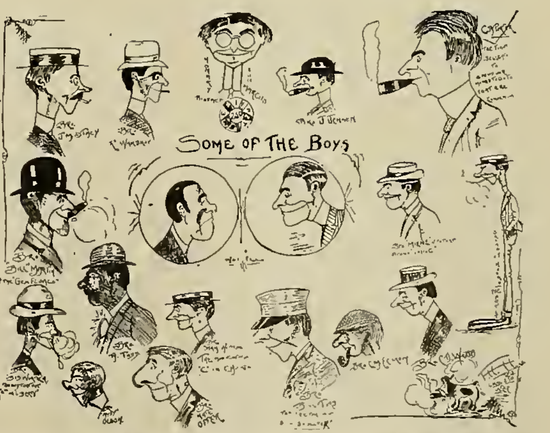
I have heard of the T. M. A. a great many times, and I know that it is a fraternal society or association. If I remember rightly the name is the Theatrical Mechanics Association. I do not know, however, what, if any, authority or jurisdiction it claims. If there could be no conflict of authority between the two organizations, then quite possibly your suggestion might be a good one. I would, however, have to know more about the T. M. A., its aims, its objects and purposes before answering as to that. I was too hasty in my former reply, for which I apologize.

Burlington, Iowa.

I was obliged to lay over in Burlington, Iowa, from 7 to 11 P. M. and utilized the time in calling on some of the moving picture theaters. My first stop was at a house near another theater called the Comet. Unfortunately my notes containing the name of the manager and operator are lost. I regret this for both were courteous, affable gentlemen who welcomed the editor warmly. This little house is producing a good picture with a. c., using a Power's 6, which the operator informed me had not been touched with a screw-driver since its installation eighteen months ago. The manager had tried an experiment in making his own aluminum screen and it did not work well. The picture looked spotted, due to fault in the screen, but the light was white, bright and well handled. The Palace Theater, Jefferson Street, is under the management of Mr. L. P. Blank, but friend Blank is by no means what his name denotes. Instead, he is a very live wire. His operator is projecting a really fine picture with 110 volt, 60 cycle current. The light is white and brilliant and was well handled. Mr. Blank took me up to the Eagle's Club and proved to me that the Eagles do not live entirely on water. He should take shame to himself for thus shattering my high opinion of the National Bird.

The Elite manager held converse through the ticket selling opening; its a good thing he did not venture outside, or let me in, else I surely would have kidnapped him.

The manager-proprietor of the Comet, Mr. F. H. Vogt, is trying to do the impossible, viz.: project a good eleven-foot picture on a twenty-five-foot throw. The light was shadowy and far from brilliant. Poor business was reported by all managers, due to the extremely hot weather.



Sketches of the Salt Lake City Operators, Sketched by Frank, Alias "Skinny," Hicks, Operator.

How Long To Use It.

During the past four years hundreds of correspondents have propounded the question: "How long ought my projection machine to last?" So frequently has this particular query been put to me that I have concluded to devote a little space to its answering through the department. In the first place, it would be impossible to give a reply which would fit all cases. The length of time during which a projection machine may be profitably used depends upon the manner of its using (whether it it run at normal speed or greatly over normal speed), the competency of the operator to handle the mechanism intelligently, as well as his willingness to put into the operation what knowledge he does possess; the kind of oil used, and whether a sufficient quantity of it is fed to the machine, and the rapidity with which improvements in projection mechanisms are brought about.

I have had managers proudly exhibit projectors, which they claimed to be, and I guess really were, six, seven and eight years old. Of course, practically nothing of the original machine remained except its frame. All the moving parts had long since been renewed, and some of them had been renewed several times. In fact, the renewal process had cost far more than the original sum paid for the machine.

Purely from a mechanical standpoint, if the machine be in the hands of a competent operator, who handles it intelligently, giving it the necessary care, using a lubricant of good quality, and enough of it, a moving picture mechanism ought to run a total of perhaps 2,000 hours without any repairs at all, and it might even reach as much as 3,000, though few machines receive care enabling them to make such a record.

And now, by the way of an interesting digression, let us see what this means. The intermittent movement of the projection machine, when that machine is running at normal speed, acts 16 times each second, or a total of approximately 1,000 times per minute, or 60,000 times per hour, and multiplying 60,000 by 2,000 we have the enormous total of 120,000,000 times the intermittent has acted in 2,000 hours, or 180,000,000 times in 3,000 hours, which I think is about all anyone could reasonably expect of iron and steel.

Of course, if a thin oil of inferior lubricating quality, such as some of the most widely advertised patent oils, is used, this performance would be, to all intents and purposes, impossible; it could only be hoped for where the intermittent is properly lubricated. The gears of the mechanism also must receive adequate lubrication of the right sort, or their life will fall far below the 2,000 hour mark, since they are subjected to heavy and constant strain, and the same is true of the bearings, particularly the high-speed bearings.

However, even when parts do wear out they can be replaced, and the machine made practically as good as new again. But all this is precisely the phase of the matter which I wish to discuss in this article. This matter of repairing an old mechanism can be, and in too many cases is, carried altogether too far. During the past few years improvements in projection machinery have been of almost weekly occurrence.

To such an extent is this true that the projectors of today would hardly be recognized as the legitimate offspring of the projector of even five years ago. The modern machine presents a totally different appearance, and in many ways it is entirely different. Its gears, spindles and other moving parts are heavier; its lamp-house and lamp bear but little resemblance to the type in use five years ago. The outside three-wing shutter has been added to the projection machines during that time, and its adoption has very largely eliminated the highly objectionable flicker which was the invariable result of the use of the old-style inside two-winger. Many safety devices have been added, and the forms of those in use five years ago have been vastly improved. The machine of today gives a very steady picture—less jumping and vibration, as well as less flicker. Adjustments have been added to its lamp which allow the operator to handle his light and maintain a perfectly clear screen at all times, a thing which was totally impossible with the old-style lamp. More than this the modern tendency is towards increased amperage, and the newer lamps are made much heavier than the old type.

Taking all these things into consideration, I believe that, in view of the rapid strides manufacturers are making in the improvement of the projection machine, it is false economy to use a projector for an extended length of time. Any improvement in projection machines which will give better results on the screen will improve box office receipts, since those receipts depend almost entirely upon the excellence of the results placed before the audience on the screen, and if there is any appreciable improvement on the screen there will also be in the box office receipts, and it would thus require but a short time for the new projector to pay for itself. Personally, I believe those managers who so proudly exhibited those old machines were something a little worse than foolish. To my mind they were simply saying: "Look at this machine and see how unprogressive I am. Why, I am using an old out-of-date mechanism that any live manager would have thrown into the back yard five years ago. Not me though! I am using it yet."

Well, I do not believe in any such policy as that, and don't ever expect to believe in it. Use a little judgment and common sense, remembering that the moving picture business has advanced, and is advancing, all along the line, and it is up to the manager to progress with it. Remember also, that in almost any business in this old world of ours you have got to spend money to make money, and the tight-wad is seldom found at the top of the ladder of success. By this I do not mean that I believe in throwing money away, but, on the other hand, there is such a thing as being entirely too much the other way.

Try, Try Again.

Mr. George T. Jones, Wilmington, N. C., writes:

> I have just installed a new Power's No. 6A, which is working fine, outside of a little ghost trouble. I have tried two 6½ condensers and the ghost was pretty bad; next tried 7½ and 6½ and it was most out, but still I can see it. I moved the lamp house backward and forward. Have a picture 15 feet at 65.

You have about a four-inch e. f., and a 6½ behind, and a 7½ in front ought to fit. However, suppose you try two 7½. Probably they will fix you up.

Multiple Connection.

A member of Local 126, Fort Worth, Texas, sends in the following:

> Regarding your article, "A Remarkable Performance," issue July 16, I would like to make a few remarks. The Tacoma brother who is using a three-year-old rectifier tube is certainly entitled to a big bunch of credit for the way he has handled it to secure this long service. My best record, so far, is a year and a half. As regards the two projection arc lamps hooked up in the multiple, why, it has been at least five years since I have used them any other way, either with or without a rectifier, and there have been mighty few occasions when I have had a dark house. All pictures are interrupted by a slide between reels, the same advertising the coming picture, and the light fades from one to another. Every house in town uses the same plan. For three years I have been using a lineshaft drive for my machine, the same being operated by one motor. I found this scheme in Oklahoma, and have installed one in my operating room here. The shaft is driven by a motor attached to one end. The driving pulleys for the projectors travel freely on the shaft. The sleeve-clutch traveling with the shaft engages with a stud or pin in core of the pulley. This is one of the best, if not the best, device I have ever found, as it gives a steady pull and an equal speed for both machines. Have mounted a motor on a hinged base, with a regulating screw on the other end. The motor is constant speed and by raising or lowering the same, to get proper tension on the driving belt, I can get any speed necessary and maintain it all the time. While I am on the subject, I would like to say that projection in this city is on a much higher plane than is the rule in the East, and the boys are constantly striving for better results, realizing the fact that better results and higher efficiency make for higher wage scales. We are about to inaugurate a sort of help-each-other scheme in the local, so that those who know will help those who want to know, which means the raising of the efficiency of the local as a whole, in which the Projection Department will play a large part.

The only criticism I have on your motor-drive scheme is that as I understand you it would not be practicable to quickly change speed, whereas I have always maintained that the speed should be under the instant control of the operator at all times, and that it should be changed quite frequently to fit the action of any particular scene of the film. Oh, yes, and by the way, another thing; if I understand you rightly, the pin in the sleeve-clutch engages with the stud in the core of the pulley. If that is true, it seems to me you would have to slow the motor down to almost, if not quite, a stop, or else start the machine with a terrific jerk; but I guess I have misunderstood you. Doubtless, your clutch brings the machine up to speed gradually, without affecting the speed of the motor.

I want to particularly compliment you on what you have said about the Fort Worth men and their help-each-other scheme. How different that is from the talk I listened to from the officials of a mid-West union a few weeks ago. The union that has the idea you boys have is a credit to the I. A. T. S. E., from any and every point of view, and I congratulate you most sincerely on the enterprise of your members. You never said a truer thing in all your life than that increased efficiency makes for higher wage scales. You may get the higher scale without increased efficiency, but in that event your foundation is of sand and your structure is held up by sheer force of the organization, instead of by the force of the organization combined with real ability in its individual members. That is what I am fighting for, and you can take it from me that I am going to continue to fight for that, utterly regardless of whether the non-progressive element likes it or not, and you can also take it from me that the Projection Department will be here fighting for the best interests of the men when those same non-progressives are gone and forgotten. Anything the Projection Department can do for your union, and for any other union, which evinces a spirit of this kind, will be done; you can gamble on that.

Pueblo, Colorado.

What a time I had shaking hands with old friends in Pueblo which was, for several years prior to 1904, my home. Mr. George M. Morris, manager of Dreamland Theater, who is an old-timer in the amusement business, as well as an old-time friend, did the honors. I visited several Pueblo theaters, as many as time would permit, and formed some very pleasant personal acquaintances. Moving pictures have captured the Pittsburgh of the West. Even the Grand Opera House is now a 5 cent theater, though it for years enjoyed the distinction of being a $1.50 legitimate theater. But the call of the silent drama was too strong, and it has claimed the Grand for its own. Our old friend Morris, now the manager of the Dreamland Theater, was a pioneer in the amusement field in Pueblo. George's specialty is to promote some amusement proposition, nurse it along until it is on a paying basis, and then turn it over, bag and baggage, to some one else. Shame upon you George!

Operators Are you perfectly satisfied with the results you get on the screen?

The new second edition of the
MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK FOR MANAGERS AND OPERATORS
By F. H. Richardson
will be the standard textbook on the subject for many years
Address all orders and remittances to
MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

Comments on the Films

Licensed

"FICKLE FORTUNE'S FAVOR" (Patheplay), September 4.—It has been said that money flies. A dollar bill, in this rough and tumble farce, takes unto itself lively wings. The crowd that follows covers some very interesting points on Manhattan Island and at length finds itself on Coney Island, a place not far away as some people know. It seems quite convincing that the bill should betake itself thither, and then the ending is also especially good and as convincing. Prominently among those who follow the illusive note are Rose Gore and Charles Arling. A good comic release.

"WITH THE NATIVES OF NEW ZEALAND" (Patheplay), September 4.—On the same reel is this interesting and clearly photographed bit dealing with manners and customs. There is a pleasant touch of humor in it and we found it entertaining. The two on the one reel make a good offering.

"HOWLIN' JONES" (Selig), September 4.—An amusing little comedy by William Duncan's company which certainly kept the audience interested and made them laugh. There is enough freshness in it to make it go and it is pretty well acted with William Duncan and Myrtle Stedman in the leading roles, the former as an eye-glass cowboy, an English aristocrat. We can safely commend the offering; it will be liked.

"A WOMAN IN THE ULTIMATE" (Biograph), September 1.—Verda, a graceful figure, is the woman in whose fates this picture is chiefly interested. Stepdaughter of a scoundrel, she is being compelled to help in his badger work by decoying intended victims. This girl is played by Lillian Gish and she walks gracefully through the part. When the badger aims at fleecing a rich young man (Henry Walthall), her disgust at the business which had been coming to a head compels her to rebel. The villain, Charles Mailes, has enough control of her to make a dramatic climax; but it is not convincing and so not very effective.

"HARD LUCK BILL" (Essanay), September 4.—This picture would have been over a hundred per cent. more funny if it had been made in five hundred feet instead of a full thousand. The action has been rather obviously "nursed" all through; yet even so, the picture has merits that keep it going. "Hard Luck Bill" is played by V. A. Potel who has recently come to the Essanay forces and will be much better known when more people see his work. In this character an engaging, irresponsible, good-for-nothing, he is not quite so good as in his last leading role; but he makes a distinctive impression and is amusing.

"PATHE'S WEEKLY" (No. 47), September 4.—The most interesting topical we have seen in some time. There is an unusually fine item in a picture of a riot crowd in Johannesburg, South Africa, that is charged by mounted police. Nearly all the other items are quite worth while and some of them are excellent.

"A DAY IN SINGAPORE" (Melies), September 4.—Perhaps too many feet were given to these scenes in Singapore, on account of the dark photography. We have never seen pictures of this chief city of the Strait Settlements and were glad to be able to look at them. The offering includes street and water scenes with some buildings. It has good educational value.

"A SERIES OF TULLULAH FALLS, GEORGIA" (Edison), September 3.—A short series of views, clearly taken, of a mountain torrent that is soon to be choked into pipes and made to serve mankind by helping in the world's work.

"THE GIRL, THE CLOWN AND THE DONKEY" (Edison), September 3.—A picture made around the tents of an itinerant circus and giving us a not very clear-cut story of sentiment. Part of it is taken up by a circus parade that is poorly photographed and hardly worth while, as it doesn't help the story a whit. It will be acceptable, because there is good stuff in it, although the situation is old—even the Edison Company has used it before and in a better picture. The little things in it, the circus scenes and sparkles of humanity, give to it its value. It was produced by Charles Seay from a script by Walter Taylor.

"MR. DIPPY DIPPED (Essanay), September 3.—A farce with not very much in the way of scenario behind it. The costumes are bathing suits and it was taken at some big pleasure beach. The flirtations shown are not very comprehensible, although slightly farcical.

"THE CLIMAX" (Patheplay), September 3.—Octavia Handworth plays another part as the unwilling servitor of crooks of which her brother is leader. We find her rebelling in the first scene after which she makes her own living as a nurse. William Cavanaugh, the brother, enters Wilbur Crane's house. There is a struggle and the owner is shot. The crook takes refuge with his sister, who saves him from the police. She tends Crane and the picture's romance begins. The brother learns that she is married to a rich man and comes to get money from her; is recognized by the husband and coolly shot. Without further comment, the exhibtior will know whether this will go well in his house.

"THE KISS OF RETRIBUTION" (Vitagraph), September 3.—A country girl's sweetheart goes to the city, where he falls under the spell of an adventuress who faints into his arms in the office of a fashionable hotel. Such wiles would hardly bother a man of common sense, in fact, the adventuress is quite without atmosphere all through and this gives the offering a certain sloppiness all through, makes it rather distressing. The role is played by Julia Swayne Gordon and the character was the fault not of her, but of the script, which is real.

"THE WAY OF LIFE" (Selig), September 3.—Not many spectators will find much in this picture that corresponds with real life. It has things that are not convincing and it is not told in the usual atmosphere of life; the changes are apt to be too abrupt. For instance, there is a character who seems to be a model and not a very respectable one and who suddenly turns out to be an heiress. Again, we find a very pretty and very well dressed girl living alone in the woods and she tells a story of poverty and distress that would excite pity, if one could believe a word of it. The story has some value; but, as entertainment, the offering stands on its scenes alone. They are perfectly photographed.

"IN THE SOUTHLAND" (Lubin), September 5.—A melodrama in which the heroine's weak point, the point through which the villain can attack her, is her sick brother—this added to the fact that she is poor. She and her brother have come to Florida for her brother's health and the villain lends them money to buy a farm and the hero gets a job with them as a hand. Another character is introduced, also a hand, and this man is to help the villain and, later, make a dying confession that will frustrate him. The story progresses smoothly, obeying all the melodramatic laws in order to excite our sympathy for the heroine, and taking all the melodramatic privilege it wants. It is only fairly acted. We believe that many people like such pictures and that there is a demand for them. Some, of course, have seen too many to be longer interested. George Nicholls produced this from the script of Epes Winthrop Sargent. Edwin Carewe and Ernestine Morley play the leading romantic roles. George Nicholls plays the villain's role.

"NAN OF THE WOODS" (Selig), September 5.—The story of this offering is not trite; but it has not been made very convincing, though it holds our attention till we know its outcome. Both Nan and her father seem to weaken the effect of the picture, as a whole. Very unnatural, they have no apparent reality and the players have not been able to give atmosphere to them to interest us. But, even without them, we would not dare call the story strong. It is fair and has some excellent scenes and has been pretty well played. Some of the scenes are not perfectly clear as to photoplay; but most of them are.

"THE OTTER" (Patheplay) September 5.—It was no easy matter to get this picture of one of the most timid of creatures, the otter, in his wild haunts. In it, views of his action even under water have been secured and pictures of him capturing his prey, fish, are shown. One of these is almost too big for him to negotiate. The picture is hand-colored and is pretty clearly photographed. An excellent offering.

"IN THE ABRUZZI" (Patheplay), September 5.—Very good, hand colored views of the mountains in the southern district of Italy are given in this picture. We see hill towns set picturesquely in steep valleys on hillsides. Some original ways of hair dressing are shown.

"THE LONELY PRINCESS" (Vitagraph), September 4.—A picture full of artistic views taken in Venice. The simple story goes very well in this setting and may be said to belong with "Marjory Daw" in the artistic school of American magazine stories. There is no punch to it; it is rather wise, humorous and calmly pleasing. In such a film, photography is of primary importance and has been well managed—many of the scenes are lovely and all romantic and in good atmosphere. W. A. Tremayne is the author and Maurice Costello the producer. With Clara Kimball Young he plays the leading role. W. V. Ranous, as the Italian prince, father of the girl, does some perfect character work.

"PICKWICK PAPERS" (Vitagraph), September 5.—"The Adventure of the Hunting Party" is given humorous illustrations in this offering with John Bunny as the hero, Pickwick. In this role, he pleased the audience greatly and, in truth, seems made for the part so perfect is he in it. The characters, mostly taken by English players, are all excellent and make the picture a decided success. The typical English scenes add much to its value.

"THE BABY ELEPHANT" (Vitagraph), September 5.—On the same reel is this short bit that is interesting, though not clearly photographed.

"BOGGS' PREDICAMENT" (Kalem), September 5.—Boggs (John Brennan) has the gout and has to have his foot kept elevated. His valet is holding it up while he sleeps. Remembering an engagement with his girl, he ties Boggs' foot up and, later, a burglar comes. It is laughable nonsense, but it makes laughter.

"BRONCHO BILLY'S CONSCIENCE' (Essanay), Sept. 6.—Admirers of Broncho Billy will regret to learn that he is killed at the close of this reel, but his death will probably not be permanent and they will undoubtedly have a chance to see him again. The story is a Western thriller in which love and jealousy play an important part. The shooting of the ranch owner was not very probable, as it was shown, but considerable ingenuity was shown in the way Billy contrived to place the blame on his rival. Later Billy's conscience haunts him and he dies from a fall taken while out of his mind.

"THE STRONG MAN'S BURDEN" (Biograph), Sept. 6.—A well acted film story, but with a rather unattractive plot. The dying mother calls in her two sons, one a police officer and the other a worthless fellow. The latter drinks the wine used for his mother's medicine and attempts to steal her money, but is thwarted by the officer. Later the officer finds his brother robbing a house. He shoots himself in the wrist and pretends the thief escaped. A reel of about ordinary interest.

"THE PRICE OF JEALOUSY" (Patheplay), Sept. 6.—While the plot of this film story is not very convincing or attractive, the development of the various scenes contains considerable interest. Two girls disguise themselves as men and go to visit an Indian camp. One refused to cut her hair and her jealous rival reveals her sex to the red men. Later Ida's conscience troubles her. She has a vivid dream of her friend being burned at the stake. She goes to the rescue and takes a terrific fall down a cliff, which resulted in her death. This fall was very realistically shown. A novel variation of the ordinary Western film.

"SLANDER'S TONGUE" (Edison), Sept. 6.—The appealing feature about this drama of small town life is its natural development and the careful character work accomplished by the performers. Bessie Learn gave a convincing representation of the girl, Sue, and the effect of a few fine clothes, both on herself and her neighbors, was clearly shown. The author, Frank E. Woods, succeeded in getting a lot of human nature into this story. At the last moment the girl is rescued from the clutches of the "town sport" by her benefactress. A good release.

"THE HAND OF DESTINY" (Kalem), Sept. 6.—This story is not essentially new, and lacks conviction in some respects, but it is consistent and well acted. The young railroad man, after being discharged for taking a drink on duty, conspires with three others to wreck a train. He recognizes his daughter on the train just as he is about to explode the dynamite and refuses to blow up the bridge. The action in the beginning is rather slow, but later becomes more animated. Good photography helps the reel very much.

"A MODEST HERO" (Biograph), Sept. 8.—A good offering. It is the old kind of story that we have heard called the Biograph stand-by; but there is a good deal of freshness in it and it not only interests, but excites. The girl is alone in the house with the thug; but the reasons for his being there are not trite, nor is the outcome of it. There is a slightly humorous touch of nature in it that is especially commendable. Walter Miller plays a man too lazy to help his wife (Lillian Gish) clean house, who sends a hired man (Charles Mailes) to take his place and himself goes fishing. The helper stops at a saloon and while he is getting drunk, a second-story man (Harry Carey) goes to the house, claiming to be the helper, and begins work with the purpose of "cleaning the house out."

"THE BRIBE" (Kalem), Sept. 8.—Exhibitors who were at the Kalem outing during the recent convention played roles in this picture. It is a political melodrama and the crowds at the Kalem outing as audience helped Producer R. G. Vignola make his speech scenes. The story is fair, but not above the ordinary. The situation is quite possible, and while there are some things in its development that seem hardly probable and some of it that is not wholly clear (the reason for the delay in the marriage ceremony. for instance) it holds the interest and that, after all, is the main thing. The players (including Delegate George P. Plain of the Maryland State League, who took a good look at the camera) do very well. Raymond Bloomer as the reform candidate didn't wear his hat like a business man mayor. His political rival (Arthur Donaldson) made a good conventional melodramatic villain. Alice Hollister plays the heroine; Richard Bartlett her first fiance, and Helen Lindroth the villain's accomplice, who later gives his plot away.

"PATHE'S WEEKLY NO 48" (Sept. 8).—The two a week topicals are justifying themselves in the more timely quality of the items. This week the picture of the New Haven wreck comes in time to be of real news interest. Other items are good and the photography. while still a bit thick in places, is better than it was last spring and in the summer.

"KEEPERS OF THE FLOCK" (Edison), Sept. 8.—A very good picture for all kinds of spectators, but especially for cultivated ones. The story, by Bannister Merwin, deals with English country life and its chief object is atmosphere, that is, it aims to show what life is like in such an English village. There is no doubt about its success, both in its story, which is human and true, and in its atmosphere. The producer, Charles Brabin, has chosen a typical old time village, the camera did its part perfectly. Of the players, Marc Mac Dermott and Miriam Nesbitt have the leading roles assisted by English actors, among whom are Charles Vernon, James Lefre and Phyllis Stuckey. A very desirable release.

"SEEDS OF WEALTH" (Lubin), Sept. 8.—Excellent photography and fine sets are this picture's chief merit. In substance, the story is trite; it has not been made, at all points, clear enough to pass as natural and is very unconvincingly acted. Take one instance which is the most palpable. The leading woman is crying before the window because her money is gone. The object of this is to let the child see her crying so, though we are watching, she waits until the child comes in sight before she really begins the tears—such things are very poor. The child did not help the story by one gesture, but was a constant burden on it. The offering is by Shannon Fife and was produced by Barry O'Neil.

"SLEUFOOT'S SEVENTH SUICIDE" (Patheplay), Sept. 9.—A farce with a brand new idea, and which won favor with the audience. There is good entertainment in it, although it might have been made much more natural by a more simple production; the over elaboration seemed to make it appear theatrical. It deals with a darkie frolic and has only dusky players. Sleufoot has been refused by Mandy again and we see him writing his seventh testament. A box owned by a comic opera troupe has fallen from the wagon and in it there are suits for seven devils. A half dozen colored pussons of Sleufoot's neighborhood find these and then they have fun with Sleufoot.

"IN THE TOILS" (Lubin), Sept. 6.—One of the best business stories shown in some time by George Terwilliger, with Lionel Adams, Marion Barney and Maidel Turner in the leads. Win, the hero, unwittingly allies himself with some land fakers. He goes to a country town and sells stock to many of the residents. When he learns that the company is crooked, he faces the music and says he will pay back the money himself. He does so, after some months, but the picture does not show where he made his money. The final episode, wherein the motor boat was blown up, weakened the climax instead of adding to it. Good photography and fine pastoral scenes help this picture, which is worth while.

"OLD MODDINGTON'S DAUGHTERS" (Vitagraph), Sept. 9.—Old Moddington is an immigrant on his way across the plains with seven daughters. It is in the old Indian days and the party is traveling with covered wagons and on saddles. The story is just the Indian and rescue story; but is told with touches of humor which tickled the audience and which make the picture a very fair offering. The daughters marry soldiers or else officers. William Lisenbee is the author and W. J. Bauman produced it. One or two of the backgrounds make lovely pictures. Most of the photography is good.

"LIGHT ON TROUBLED WATERS" (Edison), Sept. 9.—The Maine coast with a rocky promontory forms the background of this romantic story. At the end, the heroine throws the villain, the wrecker who had been trying to lure the ship of her lover on the rocks, over this promontory after a most unconvincing struggle. The backgrounds are excellently chosen and very well photographed and the author, Monte Katterjohn, has drawn two or three interesting characters; but character drawing is more effective in a realistic story than in an ultra-romantic and very unconvincing one like this. It seemed a bit tiresome to us. The producer is Walter Edwin. Mary Fuller and Augustus Phillips have the interesting roles.

"THE RANCHER'S FAILING" (Selig), Sept. 9.—The failing referred to is drink. But the rancher (Al W. Filson) is rich and has a pretty daughter (Camille Astor) who is being courted by a scoundrelly schemer (Herbert Rawlinson). Hobart Bosworth is the ranch foreman and the story's hero. In the development of the situation there is enough freshness to keep the final outcome hidden, and so it holds well. There are no especial beauties of background or acting in it, although the photography is fair.

Licensed Specials

"THE AWAKENING OF A MAN" (Edison), September 5.—A two-part special that is not unqualifiedly a success. There are two parts to it and one of these is a story of business life and the other is all kinds of a historical sport and doesn't help the business story very much; has touches of unintentional comedy and is altogether, we believe, a mistake. This story of business should have been kept wholly as a business story and there was plenty of chance to do so, as the author's one pertinent, illustrative incident amply shows. The idea is first-class and, even now, with all the historical incidents left scrupulously out, it would be a good offering. As at present it is Bannister Merwin's worst recent failure. There are some fine characters in it. The hero, Benjamin Wilson, does some really astonishing work in his picturing of five different figures; he is especially fine in his portrayal of Wentworth, Sr., at the time of the panic in 1834, and as Wentworth, Jr., changing from a weakling into a man of sense. Dan Mason's picture of a kindly old family servant is also worthy, as is William West, in the old clerk of the house. Every play, with one exception, is commendable. The picture was produced by George Lessey.

"WHILE THE STARLIGHT TRAVELS" (Essanay), September 5.—A special offering in two parts which are quite different in complexion and not vitally connected. In fact, the first reel, with its complete story, is better as a feature offering, it seems to us, than the two reels together, the one with its poetic story of prehistoric man, set in backgrounds filled with good atmosphere and beautifully photographed; the other with its, by comparison, commonplace and rather trite story of the Civil War with its photographs not perfectly toned or natural, except in one or two exceptionally fine scenes. Of the players not very much can be said, except that they carried the action smoothly and clearly forward. As a whole, the offering, in spite of the fact that there have been several pictures of prehistoric people, will excite favorable comment. That first reel is surely very beautiful and its story is good. Doris Mitchell has the leading feminine role in both parts, with Richard Travers opposite to her in both parts.

"THE SACRIFICE OF THE SPILLWAY" (Kalem), September 3.—A two-part special offering made in a quite different background from any pictures we remember. It was played along a canal on which there is a race-way that carries loaded canal boats across a hill and sets them in the water on the other side and the freshness of all this adds materially to our interest in the picture's story. This story is melodramatic, but acceptable. Its weakness, as a picture, comes from the fact that there are too many love stories in it which gives bigness to it at the expense of dramatic effectiveness. There is little to be said of the players; they do acceptably. Herbert Tracy showed intelligence in his drawing of the clown detective. Irene Boyle, as his partner, had too many tricks; her country girl would have seemed more natural with half the mannerisms. Miriam Cooper, the canal boat belle, will be liked. Mary Ross does well as Martha. Bob Walker makes a good conventional villian, and Val Cleary has the build and the ability and is an excellent hero. It is clear in its photography.

"THE ROAD TO THE DAWN" (Lubin), September 4.—A two-part special picture that makes a fair offering. The situation has an appealing sentiment, but the story, although the climax is very good, fails to convince and is a bit too conventional. It was not really good enough for a two-part offering, but might have been a big picture in a thousand feet. It shows us how a child recalls old memories (a love story), to a drunken blacksmith and, without rubbing in his determination not to drink any more or making it sentimental, it clearly shows that he is trying to reform. Tempted beyond his strength, he is one night about to take the child's ring to buy liquor when he discovers that it is one he made for the sweetheart of his youth and so knows that it is her orphan child he has taken in and is caring for. This strengthens him and we have a happy ending. Arthur Johnson plays the blacksmith and Lottie Briscoe the mother of the child. The child was not a very happy choice for this picture; there wasn't enough life in her as an actress.

"THE WHEELS OF FATE" (Selig), Sept. 8.—A melodrama in two parts. It has for its feature scenes a well suggested panic on board a lake steamer; crowded with passengers, it has struck a submerged obstacle and is going down. The villain, who has murdered his fishing companion and accused the hero of the crime so that he can run away with the wife, is on the sinking ship and the woman is with him. Conscience-stricken and about to die, he confesses to the woman and then has the wireless operator send the message to the governor and to the warden. They receive it just in time to save the man who is shown as on his way to the death chamber. It also comes in time to save the "inspiration girl" from killing herself which she was going to do on the death moment of the condemned man, her lover. The offering has some fine scenes on board the ship and there are some fine backgrounds near the house in the woods where the murder takes place. But the story is sentimental and weak and the basic situation somewhat trite as though it were thrown together to give a setting for the ship scenes.

"WHEN WOMEN GO ON THE WARPATH" (Vitagraph), September 6.—James Oliver Curwood here gives us a two-reel comedy that easily will hold its own with the best. Sidney Drew has the lead, and his portrayal of the candidate of the "dries" for Mayor who, on election day, when to all appearances the election is sewed up in his favor and all the trousers in town either bought up or secreted, falls into the literal water trough and then off the figurative water wagon, will make millions laugh. It is corking comedy, and in spite of its theme there is not a dry moment in it. There is a long cast and an excellent one. L. Rogers Lytton and James Young are the producers.

Independent

"TWICKENHAM FERRY" (Reliance), September 15.—An artistic little story, built around the famous old song. Edgena DeLespine appears in the famous contralto. Her love for the country boy seemed a little unconvincing, but his infatuation for her could be readily understood. He follows her to the city, where she shocks him by smoking cigarettes and sends him back to his country sweetheart. Artistic and appealing.

"A PURITAN EPISODE" (Eclair), September 24.—There is one feature of this otherwise most excellent picture which cannot be passed without comment. This is the common perversion of the historical fact perpetrated by the company in representing a white human being perishing at the stake in New England for the alleged crime of witchcraft, instead of on the gallows. The play is finely produced. There is an excellent cast, which includes Miss Stuart, Mr. Francis, Mr. Scherer, Mr. Frazer, Miss Bright and Mr. Wilson. One of the best pieces of work is by Miss Stuart, who, in her portrayal of the woman crazed by grief, is thrillingly realistic. All the participants are deserving of praise.

"TINY TIM'S ELOPEMENT" (Gaumont), September 18.—Spectators will remember other Gaumont pictures with Tiny Tim as the central character. A different player takes the role in this and it is not surprising that he is not so apt as was "the Gaumont kid" for whom the role was created. Yet there is good fun in the picture and the two kiddies who have the leads do well enough. We think the people will like it.

"RETRIBUTION" (Solax), September 5.—A melodrama conventionally made up of stock properties such as the escaped convict and the dynamite bomb with clock to blow up the detective. Such offerings are put together to serve a well-defined following; are commercial offerings, but are not worthy of serious criticisms.

"DOOLEY AND HIS DOG" (Solax), September 10.—A farce in which a ragged tramp steals the clothes of a bather and then, as a gentleman, flirts with the man's daughter who recognizes the clothes. It makes entertainment, for, although the development gives very little that is really new or truly comical, yet it has a first-class joke at the end. Then there is an especially engaging dog and that helps some. No fault can be found with the players.

"A PAINTER'S RUSE" (Imp), September 27.—A poor painter makes the world think he has drowned himself. He is under the table while his wife is selling work of his that had no market before. It is done in comic vein and makes an acceptable split reel offering.

"TWEEDLE DUM INSURES HIS LIFE" (Imp), September 27.—On the same reel is this farce of astonishing nonsense that one can't help laughing over. The two on the same reel make a good program lightener.

"THE SPRINGTIME OF LOVE" (Ramo), August 27.—A farm romance that has been told clearly and acted naturally, smoothly and with restraint. These things will make it acceptable, although the story is not convincing and, in its plot, follows a well-defined type, which will make it seem a bit trite to such as have seen many photoplays. Let us hasten to add that the atmosphere is convincing, perfectly; the scenes and backgrounds are very good. The photographs of country life are often full of beauty.

"THE BLACK OPAL" (Ramo), September 3.—One will find in this picture some very well chosen faces (clear near-by views that can be studied), and these give color to the story and add a good deal to our interest in it. It has a group of realistic scenes in a saloon that are also commendable. The story is a bit disappointing, for the opal (it is on a ring) excites superstitious fear and in consequence has a few not very dramatic adventures—yet we expect something to happen to make us sit up and it never comes. It is a well-made picture and a fair offering.

"MISPLACED LOVE" (Crystal), September 21.—Like an old-fashioned melodrama, with a few thrills left out, runs this film story. The girl goes to the city with the crook, only to discover his true character when too late. She gets a job as stenographer; her employer falls in love with her; the crook reappears. In the end justice triumphs and the mortgage on the old farm is paid off. Nothing very new about this.

"THE NEW BABY" (Keystone), September 4.—There is quite a little laughter brought out by this, but the humor is of a very coarse grained variety. It concerns the arrival of a new baby in the home of a Jewish family, the other children being greatly put out over the occurrence.

"BINKS AND THE BATHING GIRLS" (Imp), September 20.—Charles DeForest appears in his character of Binks. He is a dishwasher at the hotel, but masquerades as a count in order to wed an heiress. He is exposed by the lady dishwasher. A fair little comedy.

"ANTICS IN INK" (Imp), September 20.—On same reel with above. Interesting tips on women's fashions, showing the evils of tight lacing and the like. The war of the bird hats was very amusing.

"THE REFORMATION" (Kay-Bee), September 19.—A melodramatic subject, in which the girl crook persists in stealing after her lover reforms. He becomes a detective and one of his trails leads to her. She is caught in the act of fleecing a banker. The photographs are none too clear in places. A fairly interesting crook film.

"THE HEART OF A FOOL" (Majestic), September 7.—The fore part of this film is beautifully staged and the story opens with great promise. William Garwood, the court fool, is given a day in which he is to be treated as a real man by the king and his followers. He falls in love with the beautiful young princess and remains by her side when she is stricken by a plague and all others leave her. The weakness of the story is in the final scenes, which lacked feeling and conviction. The artistic staging is its strongest point.

"FOR HIS LOVED ONE" (Majestic), September 13.—There is a good deal of brisk action in this number, which features an automobile race, with the hero racing for big stakes so his wife may be operated upon. Lamar Johnson played the chauffeur husband. But as a story this does not get hold very strongly and the end seemed rather weak.

"THE DISGUISE" (Reliance), September 7.—There is undoubtedly an interesting story in this film, but there is a vagueness from the very outset which is never quite cleared up. The relationship of the characters is not made clear, and after the crime of jewel stealing has been committed, it requires much thought to understand what has happened. The characterizations and acting were pleasing, but the plot development was at fault.

"THE RANCHMAN'S DOUBLE" (Frontier), September 20.—A "twin" brother story, in which one man poses as both the good and bad son. There are no cases of double exposure, however, as in many pictures of this kind. The story is an ordinary Western offering, without any very great novelty of plot.

"THE JUVENILE KIDNAPPERS" (Frontier), September 18.—A very pleasing comedy is this, in which the small boy and girl bring together the grieving widow and widower, thus uniting their families. The theft of the baby brings affairs to a crisis and in the matter of acting and the natural development of scenes the story is successful. A good comedy number.

"ON FORBIDDEN PATHS" (Frontier), September 13.—The plot in this is rather complicated and covers a long period of time. The girl leaves her father in a fainting condition and during her search for a doctor falls into the hands of a gambler, who professes real love for her. This situation divides the interest of the observer and weakens the plot. Some of the scenic effects are picturesque.

"THE STEP SON" (Nestor), September 17.—This reel gives us a picture taken some three years ago, and shows the considerable improvement over old methods now existing. The story is old-fashioned, and, while not without interest, contains many overwrought situations, full of unconscious humor. The son returns home, after making his fortune, dressed as a tramp. His girl alone remains true to him, but his stepmother is glad to be taken into his home, with the abused grandmother, when she learns that he has made money.

"TRAVELERS OF THE ROAD" (American), September 20.—A rather unfinished story, or rather a series of episodes on the open road. The gypsy girl becomes jealous of her wandering lover and sets the bandit gang after her fair rival. There is some shooting, but the result was not very clear.

"JIM TAKES A CHANCE" (American), September 20.—An amusing little story, on same reel with above, in which the girl coming to the ranch makes up as an old maid. Jim is the only fellow who sees her good points and he marries her, much to the chagrin of the others.

"THE BATTLE OF BULL CON" (Nestor), September 19.—This offering rises to the heights of excellent burlesque. It is particularly timely, coming just as the public has had so many war pictures placed before it on the screen. Eddie Lyons is commander of the entire army, which consists largely of officers. There are enough privates, however, to give some realistic fighting scenes, and intermixed with these are some splendid comic effects. Most of the familiar phases of current war pictures are neatly burlesqued and the audience is kept in a continual state of laughter. A desirable release.

"GENESIS 4:9" (Rex), September 14.—The text given refers to Cain and Abel; but we were not sure of it even after seeing the picture until we looked it up. A clearer title would have been better. The story deals with two brothers, both of whom love the same girl. She loves the absent one, but after misinterpreting a torn letter, she consents to marry the other. The mind will not acquit this younger brother or his mother of taking advantage of the absent one and the picture's weakness is that it tries and fails to excite our sympathy for them in its later developments. The story, nevertheless, holds our attention, for it is well acted and has some strong scenes; but it is weak in both art and ethics. As years pass, the younger brother commits theft to keep his wife and baby alive, and the older brother, a Northwest mounted policeman, following a trail, discovers this and notifies his superior officer; yet at the last moment thinks better of it and helps the criminal brother to escape. The leading role is taken by Phillips Smalley, who is also the producer. The script is by Lois Weber.

"THE PEARL OF THE GOLDEN WEST" (Imp), September 17.—A burlesque farce that will go strongly with the gallery and in houses that are not particularly select. It will amuse a good many anywhere. In its rough way it is laughable enough and makes fun of the wild West barroom love story. We have the "Pearl of the West" (she weighs about twenty-five stone); the fierce sheriff, who looks like a pirate; two squaw men, the city man, and the others. The incidents are fresh enough and often very laughable.

"A NEWS ITEM" (Crystal), Sept. 16.—A half-reel comedy in which one lover inserts a fake item in a society paper announcing Pearl's engagement to his rival. Only fairly interesting.

"THE BACHELOR'S FINISH" (Crystal), Sept. 16.—On same reel with foregoing. Gruff arranges what he thinks is a fake wedding for Bluff and the housekeeper, but it develops that the minister was a real one. Not the best form of comedy.

"GRATITUDE" (Solax), Sept. 12.—There is a good story here and it is well worked out. Darwin Karr has the role of the man who gambles and loses his firm's money and, when he tries to buy a pistol from his friend the gun man, is instead loaned money. Joseph Levering is the keeper of the gun store and in love with the same girl. Also he is favored by her parents. Violet Horner is the girl. The three contribute to the making of an appealing drama in which the chief note is the renunciation by the well-to-do and favored man in favor of the man the girl loves.

Independent Specials

"ROB ROY" (Eclair), September 17.—A three-reel adaptation of Sir Walter Scott's novel. The plot is a rather cumbersome one, and despite commendable acting is very slow in becoming intelligible. For this reason there is practically no suspense until the last reel. The ambush scene was well handled and contained a surprise for the observer. Owing to the familiar New Jersey settings and the employment of studio scenic effects the piece lacks atmosphere; this seems to be an essential feature in heavy productions where the plot is slow in getting under way.

"THE WHEEL OF DESTRUCTION" (Eclectic) Feature Subject.—A two-part offering that has the best and most convincing automobile race climax that we have ever seen. A good many scenes of the great race (one of the famous races of Europe furnished these) are given and we can safely say that these photographs are perfect. They alone would be worth seeing. For more extended review see page 727 of the issue of August 16, 1913.

"WON BY WAITING" (Great Northern), September 27.—An amusing and cleverly written farce in semi-satirical vein. There are two parts and in atmosphere it resembles a good deal of Great Northern comedy work which, we think, is generally liked; people seem to look forward to something good after its trade mark on the screen. Its chief asset is the sprightly way it is played; there is no sign of stage weariness in the artists' work. The situation is not without interest; but it has a male impersonation by a clever actress and this fails to convince strongly enough to be wholly amusing.

"IVANHOE" (Imp), September 22.—This much heralded three-reel offering will not disappoint observers in one respect. It possesses the quality of atmosphere to a remarkable degree. It visualizes for the observer very effectively the knights of olden days, ancient castles and battlements, Robin Hood and his merry band, and through the entire production there is scarcely a thing to be wished from a scenic standpoint. This reflects great credit upon Herbert Brenon, the producer, and upon the very efficient band of English supers who assisted him. King Baggot appears as Ivanhoe, Evelyn Hope as Lady Rowena, and Leah Baird as Rebecca. The acting is adequate throughout. The story gets under way slowly, as does the novel itself, but the last two reels bring it to a satisfactory conclusion. A strong feature offering.

"THE BONDSMAN" (Domino), September 18.—A two-reel picture of early Puritan days. The first scenes are laid in England and the hero and girl sail for America. The photography during the fire scenes was very cloudy, partly due to the smoke. Upon arriving in this country the Puritans are attacked by Indians. While this production is no better than previous Puritan film stories, it is quite instructive and entertaining.

"THE MESSAGE TO HEADQUARTERS" (Thanhouser), September 12.—The last two reels of this three-reel number bring the interest up very strongly. The first reel was weak in point of atmosphere and plot development; the fighting with the brigands seemed aimless and without definite meaning. The later adventures of James Cruze as the count, and his detective friend, in America, leave little to be desired in the way of excitement. The tortures inflicted by the Mafia were both painful and sensational. but the scene where the detective, hanging by his heels, swings to the telephone and summons help was very well devised. In the way of frank sensationalism the last two reels are very successful, though overacting is indulged in almost to the point of burlesque.

"THE CLOWN'S DAUGHTER" (Reliance), September 13.—An unusually pleasing story of circus life, by Marie Layet. The work of Thomas R. Mills, as Toby, was very good, and Norma Phillips made a charming bareback performer. In the course of the story the clown's daughter grows up, under outside care. Runa Hodges impersonates the child and later Miss Phillips assumes the role, thus playing a double role of mother and daughter. Toward the close the clown is fatally injured and there is a dramatic moment when the girl repulses her lover because he refused to tell her the facts. An enjoyable number.

"LION HUNTERS" (Gaumont) Feature subject.—A two-part picture, vigorously written and staged artistically that is worthy of the highest commendation as an offering to the public. It deals with adventures in Africa and was plainly taken on Sahara sands. The story is kept convincing by the freshness of its incidents, the wildness of its setting and the snap with which the thrills follow each other. These things keep the mind from questioning anything seen in it. With its deadly snake and its wild-looking lions, it makes an offering full of thrills and shudders. The photography is of the usual high order of Gaumont offerings. A very desirable release to show.

"THE STOLEN WOMAN" (Reliance), September 20.—A two-reel story in which Irving Cummings plays the part of a modern Lochinvar. He carries away a going-to-be-bride on the night of her wedding and marries her himself. The girl's apparent unwillingness seemed a little overdrawn, considering her dislike for her wealthy fiance. An escaped convict does much to keep the plot in motion. The release is not exceptionally entertaining, but carries a moderate amount of interest.

"THE LAND OF DEAD THINGS" (Broncho), September 17.—A splendid two-reel number, depicting an episode on the early Western plains. Indian pictures of this type will never tire the public; the picture is finely acted and legitimate in every respect. There are no confusing lapses of years, but instead we see developed a stirring, straightforward story, showing the misfortunes of a young settler and his wife and child. The desert scenes were full of interest, and while the plot was not entirely new, it gets hold of the observer and there is no abatement of the tension. A good release.

"THE BANKER'S DAUGHTER" (Eclair), September 10.—The observer follows this two-reel offering with considerable interest but at the same time is sensible of numerous absurdities in the plot. The story contains much villainy of the open-handed type. Steele upsets a boat in the hope of drowning his rival, but the girl comes to the rescue. Later he starts a run on the bank, conducted by the girl's father. The hero disguises as a country boy and brings borrowed money to save the institution. A fair offering.

"IN THE COILS OF THE PYTHON" (Bison), September 16.—This is seemingly the last word in animal realism. Three Royal Bengal tigers disport themselves in a good imitation of a jungle; one of them is caught in a net and its efforts to escape are genuinely exciting. Later the man who deserted his wife is held in the folds of a gigantic python, from which she rescues him. In photography, setting and plot this two-reel offering is unusually strong. The scenes are gripping and none of them especially repellant, while many of them are instructive. A good release.

"DURING THE PLAGUE" (Great Northern).—Here is a fine picture in five parts—a sure-enough feature. There are many strong situations. The conception of the husband by the writer of the story and the portrayal of the part by the actor are deserving of high praise. The latter will win the sympathy of all right at the beginning, and hold it to the end. The story is of an army doctor so absorbed in his search for a plague serum that he fails to pay sufficient attention to his wife. She becomes friendly with a captain. The latter is stricken with the plague while visiting at the home of the surgeon—in his absence of course; on the return of the husband and his discovery of the state of affairs the wife appeals for the use of his serum. The laboratory is a marvel of realism. The portrayal of the making of the antitoxin is skillfully, deftly done; very professional. Although the picture was made in the north of Europe, the atmosphere of India is well carried out. The whole picture is well staged and finely photographed. The finish, where the husband tells the wife to choose between the two of them and she, realizing the revealed nobility of the husband, turns to him, is strong in its heart appeal.

"THE SERPENT'S FANG" (Great Northern).—This two-reel picture is stronger is sensationalism than in heart interest. It is a story of revenge and culminates in a double tragedy. A married woman, a snake dancer in a circus, spurns the advances of a performer. The latter substitutes for the harmless snake used by the woman one of a deadly variety, causing her death. Years later the husband locates the murderer in another land. In a spectacular manner the death of the first results from the bite of a snake the husband has loosed on the top of a diving platform, and then the husband goes to his death, striking on the body of the first to fall. Mention should be made of the extreme decollete of the snake dancer. It may be all right for continental houses. It will be regarded here as exposure.

"WHO KILLED GEORGE LAMBERT-" (Gaumont), August 31.—These three reels are given over to a mystery—which is the third multiple reel film of this type seen within two days. The story is skillfully constructed, and it is interestingly worked out. The mystery here comes from the wearing of a false beard. At the end of the film the doubt is cleared up by the use of a dissolving picture showing how Lambert was killed through an overdose of chloroform.

"THE THRUST OF HATE" (Eclectic), Sept. 1.—A review of this fine three-part hand-colored picture will be found on page 1049 in the issue of September 6.

MOVIES TO TEACH PUBLIC SCHOOL PUPILS.

Coroner Hoffman, of Chicago, proposes to teach "Safety First," in the public schools by means of a series of moving pictures. With this end in view, he has conferred with the Board of Education, who evinced the greatest interest in his plan and accepted it at once, as eminently practicable. One of the first features advanced was the proposition of the Chicago Railway Company to furnish moving picture films of all sorts of street scenes to be shown for an hour a week in every school in Chicago, they proposing to furnish the films, the projecting machine, the operator and the lecturer. The coroner, in speaking of this topic, declared that the films furnished by the street car people would not be made up simply of street car accidents, but of the general movement along the line of the streets indicating dangers and how to avoid them.

TOM MIX, ACTOR, AUTHOR.

Tom Mix, the all-around champion cowboy, a very active and important personage with the Selig Stock Company, stationed at Prescott, Ariz., now has under way a new western play, that promises to eclipse all predecessors in the matter of sensational dare-devil feats with "critters and shootin' irons." The skilled and fearless Mix is famed for everything but sentiment. He declares he is not for "mush."

CHRIS LANE, SCENARIOIST.

Chris Lane, head of the Scenario Department at the Selig plant, has just completed a picturization of "The Royal Box," a play from the pen of the late Charles Coghlan, in which that distinguished actor appeared several years prior to his death. Mr. Lane has devised over a hundred scenes for this work and the leading part will be taken by Gertrude Coghlan, the daughter of the dramatist.

At the Sign of the Flaming Arcs.

By George Blaisdell.

MET Irving Cummings the other day. Mr. Cummings has just got the best of an incipient attack of typhoid fever. For three days his temperature remained at 105, but owing to the splendid nursing of his mother he came through safely. Mr. Cummings dropped quite a number of pounds and is going to Ferndale, N. Y., to recuperate for a week or more. The illness was the culmination of domestic bereavement which had in a short time robbed him of his father and then his bride of seven weeks. A legion of friends will wish for the popular leading man the rapid recovery of his lost weight. He says he is now feeling fit again, and will be his old self after a week in the hills. It is always a pleasure to meet Mr. Cummings. He has a buoyancy of manner, an enthusiasm and a personal magnetism which are rare; and the possession of good looks and an athletic figure do not spoil him.

As the preceding paragraph is finished word comes from Mr. Hoagland that Mr. Cummings will return to the studio of Pathe Freres on October 1. The Pathe Company is to be congratulated on its acquisition. Mr. Cummings has in other days played in the Pathe company. He will go back to them with added prestige and wider experience—and in spite of his comparative youth one of the leaders of the screen. During his connection with the Reliance Company he has been featured in its best plays.

* * *

Frank T. Montgomery, the well-known moving picture theater magnate of Jacksonville and other Southern cities, was a welcome visitor at the World office during the week. Mr. Montgomery came by way of Chicago. He is in excellent health.

* * *

One of the newer members of the Famous Players stock company is a man with an interesting history. House Peters has been soldier of fortune, traveler, hunter, explorer and actor. Next to having been born an Englishman, Mr. Peters' chief claim to distinction is that although he has penetrated to the interior of Africa he has not only not killed single-handed a king of beasts but has never in the Dark Continent set his eyes on a lion. He admits, though, that he has heard the beast roar. Mr. Peters served in Africa during the Boer War. Following this contest, which dealt such a blow to English pride, he went on an exploring expedition into the interior. On his return to Johannesburg he played Bud Hardy in "The Squaw Man." Then he went to Brazil and later all through South America. By way of the Mediterranean he returned to New York, where he has played in "Everywoman," "Bought and Paid For," "Susan's Gentleman," and "The Moneymoon." Mr. Peters has played Shakespearean roles in Australia. When not otherwise engaged he has worked as a draughtsman and a diamond digger. All of which should make an excellent training for a film actor—and also enable him to be of real service to his director.

* * *

Paul W. Panzer, the well-known Pathe leading man, contemplates a visiting tour to theaters in Western Pennsylvania Western New York, Ohio and neighboring territory. The trip is taken in response to many requests made by exhibitors at the time of the Pathe excursion up the Hudson during convention week. Mr. Panzer is preparing an entertainment that should be as interesting as it is novel.

* * *

Have you seen Sidney Drew in Vitagraph's two-reel comedy "Why Women Go On the Warpath"? Don't let it get away from you. As a laughmaker it is a fit companion for "A Regiment of Two." There will be many who will believe it even better. And that's saying much.

* * *

Miss Mary Pickford, so widely known as "Little Mary," was operated on for appendicitis at the Polyclinic Hospital in New York City on September 4. For a day or two following the operation there were fears for Miss Pickford's life, but she rallied and is now reported to be doing finely. It is possible that Miss Pickford may not be able to appear in another picture this summer at the studio of the Famous Players, but there is every reason to believe that before the opening of the theatrical season her recovery will be complete. We can't afford to lose Little Mary. None knows her but to love her—whether it be as her charming self or on the screen or on the stage.

* * *

Nicholas Power was in attendance at the International Fire Engineers' convention in New York City last week. In the department devoted to fire prevention there was on exhibition a Power's cameragraph No. 6A, the only projector in the show. The machine was motor driven and running continuously. With Mr. Power was "Jack" Scarrett, the general manager of the Power Company. Mr. Scarrett was formerly superintendent of the Municipal Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity.

* * *

Frank Powell is now making Pathe pictures.

* * *

Fred Mace is now making Apollo films at the Thanhouser studio in New Rochelle. He made one picture during his trip across the continent.

* * *

George H. Hennessey, the photoplaywright, is in Bellevue Hospital suffering from a complication of diseases. Mr. Hennessey is said to be pretty sick. Word comes that he will be glad to see his friends—and all will wish him a speedy recovery.

* * *

Mrs. Herbert Blache has taken a company of players to Lake Hopatcong, where she is making a picture to be entitled "Robes of Paris," an adaptation from the classics.

* * *

A friend one evening recently saw on the screen in a New York house the running of a licensed picture in which was freely shown the making and shipping of a table article, special pains being taken to feature the name of the commodity. He turned to the proprietor, a sturdy Teuton, and inquired:

"Do you get paid for running this advertising film?"

"Advertising fillum?" was the indignant response. "Dot's nod advertising fillum. Dot's gommercial."

"The Fight for Millions."

Four-Part Blache American Feature.

By George Blaisdell.

HERE we have a real old-fashioned melodrama. It is good melodrama, too. Barney Gilmore in the role of Delaney, the detective, gives us at times a reminiscence of old days when from out the corner of his eye comes the significant glance which indicates that he really is on the trail of the villain—or villains; just wait and watch closely. He has excellent support. Darwin Karr has the role of Darwin Russell, the sweetheart of the heiress whose father is kidnapped by the bad Sorenti in order that in the dual role of the respectable young man he may win the girl and her money; Mr. Karr does excellent work. Marian Swayne plays the heiress; she plays the part charmingly. Joseph Levering, the new Solax leading man, has the heavy role, the unpopular one of Sorenti. It is hardly a character in which he would care to be judged as to his capacity for the work that falls to leading men. He acquits himself to advantage, however. This picture, by the way, is the first of the Blache American Features; it was produced by Mr. Blache himself. He makes an auspicious beginning. The interiors are assembled with care. The outdoor scenes contain in some instances distant views of the upper New York City waterfront. This is a background that always interests, whether the viewer is ten thousand miles from the metropolis and has no prospects of ever being nearer to it or whether he is a resident of the metropolis, at home or abroad.

The interest is well sustained throughout the four reels. At the opening, Sorenti the gang leader, has with his men kidnapped a banker and taken him to a place of security. The following day, Sorenti, as a friend of the family, calls on the daughter of the banker to offer condolences. He meets Russell, and decides that he also must be removed. Later, following a visit to the home of Sorenti, Russell is assailed by the men of Sorenti, and after a lively pursuit is finally captured and thrown into the room with the banker. Sorenti decides to release Russell so that the police may take him, as his disappearance has already been thought to account for the robbery of the banker. Russell is arrested as soon as he is set down in the street. The heiress employs a detective after a visit to Russell in jail. A rather singular incident occurs right here. Russell is released, apparently by the jail authorities, in order that he may the better assist the detective, already convinced of his innocence. There follow plots and counter-plots, all interestingly and more or less excitingly worked out. The result, of course, is the triumph of the detective—the restoration of the banker to his daughter, the rehabilitation of Russell, and the breaking up and capture of the gang. The finish of the picture is prettily conceived and will furnish amusement.

Motion Picture Exhibitors' League

BIG ILLINOIS CONVENTION, M. P. E. L. OF A.

THE third annual state convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, Illinois State Branch No. 3, will convene in Peoria, Ill., on September 23 and 24. Plans are now being laid for the reception and entertainment of the visitors while they are in the city. State Organizer Clem Kerr, of Dayton, Ohio, has arrived in the city to complete the preliminary arrangements for the convention.

Plans of Entertainment

C. E. Carrier, manager of the Empress Theater of this city, and Dee Robinson, who owns a string of moving picture theaters, are planning the entertainment and reception of the visitors. The Association of Commerce will be the host of the "movie" men on the night of September 23, and will take them about the city, via automobile on a sightseeing trip. The Elks club will also entertain them one night. E. N. Woodruff will welcome them to Peoria and National President M. A. Neff, of Cincinnati, will respond for the exhibitors. Senator John Dailey, who is greatly interested in the cinematographic art will deliver an address along the lines of the benefit derived by the public from moving pictures.

The program of the convention is herewith given:

Tuesday, Sept. 23, Morning Session

10 a. m.—Open session, everybody invited. 11 a. m.—Address of welcome by the Hon. E. N. Woodruff, mayor. 11:30 a. m.—Response by National President, M. A. Neff.

Evening Session

1 p. m.—Motion pictures taken of the exhibitors and families. 1:30 p. m.—Address by the Hon. John Dailey, State Senator. 2 p. m.—Executive session. 4 p. m.—Adjourn for automobile sightseeing trip about the city. 8 p. m.—Entertainment at convention hall, Jefferson Hotel, music, vaudeville, cabaret, Advance Releases of motion pictures.

Wednesday, Sept. 24

10 a. m.—Executive session. Election of officers and other business. 7 p. m.—Luncheon and entertainment at the famous Indian Grill room, Jefferson Hotel.

The committees for the two days convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League will be as follows:

Convention committe: Chairman, C. G. Steinhardt; vice-chairman. Wm. Schaeffer; second vice-president, Wm. McLinden; secretary, M. H. Livingston; treasurer, Dee Robinson.

Press committee: Chairman, C. E. Carrier; secretary, Chas. Smith, Harry V. Miller.

Exhibit committe: Chairman, C. C. Montgomery; secretary, John Flood.

Entertainment committee: Chairman, C. E. Carrier; vice-chairman, J. H. Bontjes; secretary, C. G. Steinhardt.

Ways and Means committee: E. L. Harris, C. G. Steinhardt, M. H. Livingston, C. E. Carrier, Dee Robinson, J. H. Bontjes, J. Flood, Chas. Tortat, E. Metcalf, C. C. Montgomery, Wm. Schaeffer, C. Smith, Harry V. Miller, Wm. McLinden.

Convention Committee

3rd Annual State Convention Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, Peoria, Ills. Sept. 23-24.

Reading From Left to Right.

Top Row: Chas. Smith, Pres.; Dee Robinson, Treas.; Chas. Tortat, Ways and Means; C. E. Carrier, Chairman Entertainment; Wm. Schafer, Vice-Chairman, Convention Committee.

Lower Row: H. Pape, Clem Kerr, Convention Manager.; C. G. Steinhardt, Chairman Convention, and M. H. Livingston, Sec'y. Convention.

OHIO CENSORS

Governor Cox Completes the Board and its Members are Getting Ready for Business

The members of the Board of Censors, whose duties are to pass upon all motion pictures shown in the State of Ohio, have been appointed by Governor Cox, as authorized by the act of legislature passed by the last meeting of the lawmakers of that State. They are J. A. Maddox, theater manager of Columbus, O.; Harry A. Vestal, theater manager of Vestal, O., and Miss Maude Murray Miller, a newspaper woman of Columbus, O. These censors will draw a salary of $1,500 per year for their services.

The Board of Censors are now busily engaged in getting matters in shape for the actual work of censoring motion pictures, which work will begin November 7. After that date no motion picture of any description may be shown in the State of Ohio without first having received the approval of the Board of Censors. All motion pictures so approved will carry a leader announcing that they have been "Approved by the Ohio State Board of Censors." Any picture not bearing this mark of approval is liable to immediate seizure.

To defray expenses and cover the cost of administration, the board is authorized to charge a fee of one dollar for each reel of films censored which does not exceed 1,000 feet in length. For all reels over 1,000 feet long, $2 is charged.

Persons or corporations exhibiting films not approved by the State Board are subject to a fine of $25 to $300 or imprisonment for not less than thirty days or more than one year, or both, for each offense.

The law makes provision for appeal to the courts from the State Board's orders by dissatisfied exhibitors.

It is announced that the headquarters of the Board will be at Columbus, but the method of carrying out the provisions of the law has not yet been settled by the members of the Board, though it is believed that an effort will be made to suit the convenience of the exchanges in as far as can consistently be done.

FLORIDA EXHIBITORS ORGANIZE

Branch of Motion Picture Exhibitors' League Formed at Tampa

The first convention of the Florida State Branch No. 33, of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, was held on August 31 and September 1 and 2, at Tampa. The first two days were taken up with entertaining the exhibitors, and discussing the questions which were to be taken up on the last day, when the business was transacted. Exhibitors from all parts of the State attended the convention, and many who were unable to attend, sent in their applications for membership. Many resolutions of importance were passed on the last day.

The officers who were elected for the ensuing year were: E. O. Griffith, of Tampa, president; Carl Kettler, of West Palm Beach, vice-president; A. H. LaBelle, of Tampa, secretary and treasurer. A Board of Directors, consisting of the three above named officers and Lewis H. Kalbfield, of Palatka; S. J. Harvey, of Milton; Thornton Parker, of St. Petersburg and S. P. Davis, Arcadia, was elected. President Griffith was also elected National Vice-President.

The convention was held at the Majestic Theater, Tampa, kindly donated for this purpose by the President of the League.

Sanford, Fla., was chosen for the meeting place for the next convention to be held in April. At the banquet, given in one of the famous Spanish restaurants of Tampa, a loving cup was presented to President Griffith by the members of the League, to show their appreciation of the work he has done in getting Florida State Branch No. 33 organized. All those who attended were pleased with the outcome and left very enthusiastic. There is no doubt but that at the next convention, the Florida Branch will have at least one hundred members.

OHIO LEAGUE HAPPENINGS.

Mr. W. H. Seymour, who owned the See-More Theater at Lockland, Ohio, who attended the New York convention, died August 25, and was buried in his home town, Lockland, Ohio, on August 27. Cincinnati Local assembled and passed resolutions of regret and sympathy. Mr. Seymour was one of the old members of the Ohio State Branch No. 1, of the M. P. E. L. of A., and was a true, faithful worker for the cause of the League.

The big outing given at Chester Park by the Cincinnati Local No. 2 of the M. P. E. L. of A., was a grand success. The park was crowded and everybody enjoyed the outing. The Cincinnati Local has been successful in reaching a permanent agreement and all arrangements are completed and being carried out. Three reels for 5 cents are being run, and not to exceed 5 reels at any price. Every exhibitor in Cincinnati with the exception of three belong to the League. Cincinnati Local has 81 members. All the exchanges and exhibitors co-operate together for the uplift and protection of the business. Cleveland, Sandusky, Columbus, Dayton and Cincinnati have all made arrangements and are co-operating and are running only 3 reels for 5 cents and not to exceed five reels at any price.

Toledo Local No. 3 will hold a special meeting at 9 a. m. the morning of Tuesday, Sept. 16. President Neff will attend, as matters of importance directly affecting the Toledo Local will be taken up. Sandusky Local No. 7 will meet at Fremont, Ohio, on September 16. Mr. Neff will leave Toledo at 12:30, going to Fremont, where he will attend the Sandusky Local meeting, returning home by the way of Columbus.

A COPYRIGHT ARREST.

The first important move to protect the copyright privileges of photo drama and moving pictures was made in Chicago a few days ago when James E. Northmore, of Chicago, was arrested by the United States Marshal on a warrent issued by United States Commissioner Mark A. Foote, charged with unlawfully copying copyright photographs of George Kleine's "Quo Vadis?" and selling them in the open market. Northmore was not ready for trial and the case was set over for one week for a hearing. In the meantime he was held in custody pending the giving of bail. These photographs have been used by various motion picture theaters to exploit a film called "Quo Vadis?" which bears no resemblance to the original. It is Mr. Kleine's intention to prosecute to the full extent of the law, all infringements of his copyrighted film and photographs.

"The Making of a Scout"

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush.

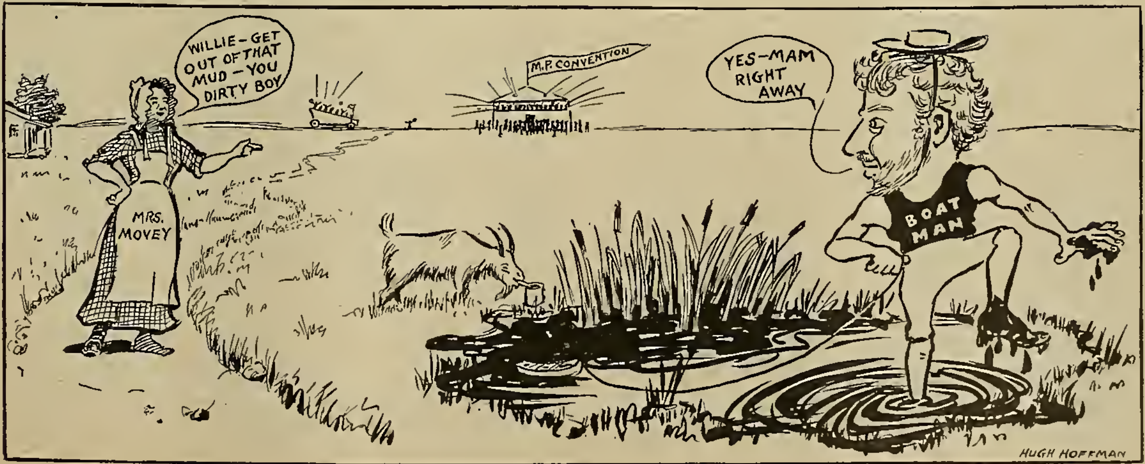
The seven reel feature entitled "The Making of a Scout," shows the great teaching power of the motion picture. It shows more. It furnishes proof that at least one great civic organization with a noble mission in our modern life has practically recognized the value of the motion picture as the best known means of spreading a knowledge of facts and of ideas. The National Council of the Boy Scouts of America deserves no small credit for being one of the pioneers of the educational field. I have no doubt whatever that their example will be followed by other civic organizations and indeed by all bodies and men who have a message for the public.

The superb handling of the task by Mr. Edward Warren, formerly director of the Solax Company, assures success of other similar tasks. In this production Mr. Warren has displayed a skill and an intelligence very far above the average. He has indeed been the right man in the right place. He has of course had the assistance of the officials of the organization in getting all the work of the Boy Scouts on the screen in a correct manner, but outside of that the credit for the wonderful success of this venture is due to him alone.

Seven reels or even six or five reels showing nothing but the different exercises of the Boy Scouts would have been impossible for the general public and tiresome even to those specially interested. It was of course necessary to make the dramatic story the main thing and to bring in the work of the Boy Scouts as natural incidents. Mr. Warren knew exactly what to do. Although the production is nothing more or less than a means of propaganda for the scout movement, he never obtrudes this fact in the slightest degree. On the contrary there is not a man, woman, or child in the audience who is not first of all interested in the plot. You begin to feel like cheering for the Boy Scouts very early in the second reel, but not because they are boy scouts, but because they always come in at the right moment to do the right thing. The hero of the story is a boy born and raised in the vicious surroundings, that in the congested centers of our population go too often hand in hand with poverty. From the first our sympathy goes out to this boy, who, by the way, is one of the very best boy actors I have ever seen in my career as a critic. He is a sturdy, fine-looking boy with a good, earnest face. It is plain from the first that he will rise above his distressing environment and that he has the making of a real man in him. Mr. Warren makes the Boy Scout Movement and its inculcation of the principles of self-reliance and helpfulness the medium through which the good stuff in the boy is brought out and developed into the full flower of fine young manhood.

It is not surprising then that the prominent men in the movement are most enthusiastic in the praises of the pictures and have become the stanchest kinds of friends of the motion picture. The pictures, however, are interesting to everybody. The dramatic situations are always present and the suspense never fails to arrive. If I wanted to lecture on the value of the picture as an educator I would want to have such a production as Mr. Warren's with me to give a practical demonstration and reinforce my arguments.

The motion picture owes a debt to the young folks in every community who have too often been fed with so-called Western drivel and to whom cheap heroes of a false type have been held up for admiration. "The Making of a Scout" makes some atonement for the sins of the past.



Manufacturers Advance Notes

"FOR SALE BY AUCTION." (Gt. Northern)

This is an amusing comedy in which at the opening a number of boon companions are discussing the low state of their finances. They are seated in a cafe and John, the guiding spirit of the party, decides that they may be able to "raise the wind" at an auction sale which is in progress. When the auction roon is visited, job lots are being disposed of and John puts himself on the list. There is an unusual gathering of expectant maiden ladies present at the sale. When the last of the antiques has been disposed of, "a modern piece of furniture" is announced and Lot No. 94 finds John Spoofer on the auction block before a crowd of astonished bidders. A spirited contest follows the auctioneer's description of this "piece of modern furniture," and the object is knocked down to Miss Passee, a robust and rather elderly female.

Scene from "For Sale by Auction" (Gt. Northern).

John has the shock of his life, but determines to brave it out and is taken home to Pa and Ma, the former being a peppery army officer. John is obliged to observe military discipline in the house and at last, when formalities have been fulfilled, John is allowed a "leave of absence" and he hies to the auctioneer's to draw his part of the proceeds of the sale. A merry scene follows at the old cafe in which the plot was hatched. How John got out of his fix, his flirtations with serving maids and his many amusing adventures are shown in excellent photographic form by the Great Northern comedy forces. Of course John is the hero in the end, because his personality, in the estimation of the spinster who has bought him at auction is not what she had expected. The comedy is splendidly acted and the photography is up to the Great Northern standard. This offering will be released September 13.

A THREE-PART KAY-BEE PRODUCTION.

"The Heart of Kathaleen," a three-part production of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, is booked for release in the near future. It is a wonderful story of Old Ireland, replete with stirring effects, sweet love scenes and real atmosphere. A storm at sea is one of the sensational, scenic and photographic marvels of the film, and the impressive effect produced is said to be awe-inspiring in its grandeur and majesty. This three reel feature was cut down from seven reels, so we can look for a film packed with action.

HELEN GARDNER'S NEW PICTURES

The Helen Gardner Picture Players will shortly release "A Princess of Bagdad," an Oriental romance founded on Persian traditions, treated in a manner similar to the stories of "The Arabian Nights." The picture is 8,000 feet in length, and most elaborately produced, full advantage having been taken of Oriental possibilities. The next picture which is now in preparation, will be "The Daughter of Pan," founded on ancient mythology. As its name implies it is of Arcadian simplicity, a story of the fields and woods, and will run 3,500 feet in length. A series of large productions is now under consideration to facilitate which the present studio will be enlarged to twice its present size, the dimensions contemplated being 120 feet long and 50 feet wide. A steam plant will also be installed, so that pictures can be taken throughout the winter months uninterruptedly. When completed the Helen Gardner studio will be one of the most complete in existence.

Scene from "A Princess of Bagdad"

MIGNON HAS ADVENTURES.

James Cruze and Mignon Anderson, leads in Thanhouser's "Plot Against the Governor," were filmed in action at the Capitol, Albany, in studio scenes at New Rochelle, and at the State Prison, Sing Sing. For the latter scenes, Director Heffron obtained permits that planted moving picture cameras on the walls of famous Sing Sing for the first time. Never, it is stated, have such "close-up" views of the great jail been taken. In the "Daughter Worth While," another of Director Heffron's pictures, the little "Thanhouser Blonde," is shown in a quite perilous stunt. This is nothing less than racing an auto against a Jersey Central train, and the film shows more than flashes of the race. It was a great big touring car in which she out-speeded the train. In this picture, she also races a yacht against a ferry-boat, and wins.

AMERICAN ENGAGES POPULAR LEADING MAN.

Carlyle Blackwell, formerly with Kalem Co., is to appear in "Flying A" subjects as leading man. Mr. Blackwell is already very popular and needs no introduction. His new environment will emphasize his inherent ability as an actor and his numerous friends look forward to his first appearance in "Flying A" subjects with great interest.

"THE STOLEN WOMAN" (Reliance).

"The Stolen Woman," announced for release on September 20, by the Reliance Company, is not a white slave story and has nothing whatsoever to do with the recent agitation along that line. On the contrary, it is a dramatization of Eleanor Ingram's story by that name which appeared in Lippincott's Magazine and contains a strong plot founded upon the theft of a beautiful girl by the man she loves but refuses to marry because of her engagement to an elderly man of wealth to whom she has promised her hand.

"Scene from "The Stolen Woman" (Reliance).

An escaped convict figures prominently in the story, which is full of action. The unusual incidents following each other in rapid succession from the first to the final scene of the picture-drama, which is in two reels and sixty scenes.

The girl marries her bold lover, but his manner of winning her raises a grave doubt in his mind as to whether she really loves him or not. It is at this point of the drama that the convict enters the lives of the young couple for the third time and is the indirect cause of bringing them to each other's arms.

MRS. CARTER'S CAMPAIGN (American).

The question of suffragism has given rise to a number of rather perplexing situations. In the instance depicted in this picture the franchise to vote appeared to be fraught with no particular danger. And as long as the privilege seemed to satisfy the wild clamoring of the female contingent the price of peace was considered cheap. That popular opinion had miscalculated was soon made evident. The oratorical fireworks of rival parties was immense, but the women would have lost were it not for a little harmless stunt they pulled and which changed the political map of Cartersville.

Scene from "Mrs. Carter's Campaign" (American).

The action in this picture is immense; it appears that the entire population of Santa Barbara participated. The photographic quality is excellent and as a while the picture will meet with unqualified approval. It is anticipated to follow this production with a sequel "The Mayoralty Troubles of Mrs. Carter," release date to be announced later.

"SIXTY YEARS A QUEEN" (Barker).

The Royal Film Agency, of Birmingham, announce on another page the forthcoming stupendous exclusive film bearing the above title. As can be conceived by the name, this picture deals with the life and reign of Her Gracious Majesty the late Queen Victoria. The film has been produced by the Barker Motion Photography Co. and The Royal Film Agency have purchased the world's exclusive rights, at a cost which, we are informed far exceeds that paid for the exclusive rights of any other picture. During the film there is represented some of the most famous battles fought during the Queen's reign, including General Gordon's last stand, and later the relief of Ladysmith.

The film is full of interest and variety from beginning to end, and we see the progress of the period, including the dispatch of the first telegram, the introduction of the penny postage, and the means of locomotion from the days of the stage coach to the motor car. In all some 2,000 artists appeared in the production, to say nothing of the large army of horses, camels, etc. This film should prove of extraordinary interest, not only in England, but in all parts of the world.

MORMON PICTURE ENLARGED.

The general manager of the Golden State Motion Picture Company has returned to town after a two-month sojourn in and about Salt Lake City, during which time he succeeded in securing 3,000 additional feet of picture, for insertion into the noted success of "One Hundred Years of Mormonism," which will be launched upon the market in seven reels.

One of the interesting features added to the picture is the pageant celebrating the 66th anniversary of the Mormon pioneers' entrance to Salt Lake City, in which 8,000 Mormon children participated. State rights will not be sold for this attraction, but about twenty companiees will tour it in various parts of the country during the coming season.

"THE FAITHFUL SERVITOR" (Gaumont).

The house of Gaumont, ever moving with the swift tread of time, has evidently decided to invade the American field in a more earnest manner than has hitherto been the case, and instead of relying entirely upon European productions we now find them announcing American releases. The first of these will be released on September 15th, entitled, "The Faithful Servitor," acted and photographed entirely in California scenes of rare beauty. The narrative concerns the undying devotion of a native servant, Machudo, who hovers like a good spirit around the person of the lovely Esmeralda Gabora, shielding her from harm and rescuing the young Spanish senorita from the unwelcome embraces of a scoundrel who kidnaps her. "The Faithful Servitor" is full of interest and pathos and local color, and if this is to be regarded as a sample of "Gaumont American," we can only say they will be very welcome indeed.

W. L. ROBARDS WITH FRONTIER.

Word comes from the West this week that W. L. Robards is again in harness, this time as producer and actor of his own stories with the Frontier Company, at Santa Paula, California. Mr. Robards has long been a producer, and before his advent into pictures he was a dramatic producer and actor. He broke into the film business with the original Nestor Company, of Bayonne, N. J., as producer, and after a few years there went with the Melies Company at Santa Monica, Cal.

Mr. Robards has already turned out several pictures for the Frontier Company, prominent among which are "On Forbidden Paths," "The Moonshiners," "Harmony and Discord," and "The Voice in the Night."

STOLEN FILM.

William H. Schrader, manager of the Vaudette Theater, Sterling, Ill., writes that on August 18 there was stolen from his place of business a reel of local scenes entitled "Sterling in Motion," and in its place was left an old film entitled "The Return of Ta-Wa-Wa." The chances are that the thief thought he was getting a reel that he could dispose of easily, but on account of its being purely local he will probably offer it for sale somewhere at a very low price and there should be no trouble in locating it. Mr. Schrader requests exhibitors to co-operate with him in getting his film back, and for which he will pay a reward.

CENTRAL BOOKING AGENCY FOR FEATURES

There has been established in the Candler Building, 220 West 42nd Street, New York, a feature exchange to be known as the Exhibitors Feature Booking agency. Its sponsor is Earl Bryant Barnes.

"MISGOTTEN GAINS" (Kleine-Cines).

"Misgotten Gains," a Kleine-Cines two-part subject for release September 30, makes a strong appeal to lovers of adventure. The central situation of the story swings about two cracksmen who parade in fashionable society until midnight and then recoup their depleted finances by the light of the rising sun. On one of their raids, one of the thieves finds a letter addressed to the owner of the house he is robbing, telling of a handsome girl whose father is anxious to marry her off to nobility, adding that he will make a splendid settlement on the right young man.

Scene from "Misgotten Gains" (Kleine-Cines).

All that follows are the adventures of the thief in obtaining an introduction to the father of the girl. How he wins the father's consent, only to meet an unsurmountable obstacle in a young naval officer who wishes to say something himself concerning the disposition of the young woman's hand, makes a thoroughly delightful story. The photography is up to Cines standards, the acting convincing, the settings exquisite, and the tale easily told. Exhibitors and their patrons will find "Misgotten Gains" an exceptionally attractive offering.

KINEMACOLOR FILMING STAGE PEOPLE.

Kinemacolor is rapidly capturing the footlight favorites for its new series of "Popular Players Off the Stage," the reason being that the natural color motion pictures portray the actor exactly as his friends know him, while the actress' costume, complexion, color of hair and eyes, are reproduced upon the screen "true to nature," or Art, as the case may be Anna Held is the latest addition to an "all star" collection, which already includes Lillian Russell, Blanche Ring, Raymond Hitchcock and Flora Zabelle, Bessie McCoy (Mrs. Richard Harding Davis), Weber and Fields, Eddie Foy, and the "Seven Little Foys." A representative of the Kinemacolor Company, met Miss Held at the pier of the steamer La France, and promptly secured a contract to film her in the numerous new costumes she brought from Paris—including the diamond studded stockings which created such a sensation during her London appearance.

SALE OF "DR. NICHOLSON."

"Dr. Nicholson and the Blue Diamond," the first release of the Film Releases of America, being exploited and sold by the Exclusive Supply Corporation, has been sold in the following territories: Golden Gate Film Exchange, California, Arizona and Nevada; Exhibitors F. F. Co., Ohio and Michigan; Weiland Film Co., Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia; Consolidated Feature Film Co., Canada; Famous Players Film Co., New England; Northwestern Feature Film Co., Oregon, Washington and Idaho; Electric Theater Supply Co., Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey. Exclusive Features Co., Greater New York City and Northern New Jersey; General Feature Film Co., Northern Illinois.

"THE SERPENT'S FANG" (Great Northern).

In this two-reel subject the Great Northern Company has added another achievement to its already large list of feature subject. It is a story that deals with theatrical and circus life and the theme is new as these subjects go. There is the usual element of the circus, with all of its glamour and attractiveness, and in addition there are a number of music hall scenes which are really attractive.

Scene from "The Serpent's Fang" (Gt. Northern).

The plot is interesting, in that it deals with a subject that has not, as yet, been touched upon by writers for feautre scenarios. Lola is a snake charmer with a traveling circus and she is the wife of Pierrot, who is a member of the same company of players. It so happens that Manzoni, an acrobat in the company, becomes enamored of Lola and hence the trouble; for trouble there is aplenty before the close of the picture. Being repulsed by Lola, Manzoni decides upon a scheme of revenge and substitutes a venomous snake in place of the tame one that is being used by Lola in her performance. The result may readily be imagined. Lola is bitten by the strange snake and dies in the arms of her husband. Up to this point there is no suspicion that Manzoni has been guilty of changing the snakes. It so happens that an old skipper, who had sold Manzoni the venomous serpent reads of the death of Lola and communicates with the police. Manzoni's arrest follows and after his escape he comes to America, where he obtains an engagement.

In the meantime Pierrot has decided to go abroad and seeing the announcement of Manzoni's appearance, decides upon another scheme of revenge. The snake is placed upon a pedestal, unknown to the attendants of the circus and Manzoni falls to his death. Pierrot then jumps from the dome and the story is complete. The photodrama is given a splendid setting and the acting is up to Great Northern standard. It is a worthy offering.

ALLEN DWAN'S PLAY FIRST VEHICLE FOR WARREN KERRIGAN.

"The Restless Spirit," a modern allegorical play, suggested by Grey's Elegy and written and directed by Allan Dwan, will be the first play the star, Warren Kerrigan, will appear in under the Universal Rex brand. Mr. Kerrigan will undertake a number of different characters in the one story. We are to see him both as a farmer, a musician and again as a king. Playing opposite will be Pauline Bush, who acted with him so long and with George Periolt and Jesse Van Trump. The camera work is in the hands of Walter Prichard, one of the company's oldest men.

"SNOBBERY," A SATIRE ON HIGH SOCIETY.

Director Al E. Christie has deserted the Universal comedies temporarily to produce several dramas. His first picture tells the story of a chorus girl who visits some snobbish relatives. She is sought by a society man of good standing, protected by him when accused of robbery and finally marries him. In the cast are Raomma Langley, Eddie Lyons, Rose Furniss, Stella Adams, Russell Bassett, Donald MacDonald, Lee Moran and Mrs. Randall.

"THE BLOOD RED TAPE OF CHARITY" (Powers).

Charity, through excessive organization, often defeats its own purposes. Edwin August has written a brilliant two-part drama along this theme and acted and produced it in a manner that will fasten the public's attention, not alone on the vividity dramatic incidents that make up the picture, but upon the great necessity for a regeneration in many charitable organizations.

William Weldon, a telegraph lineman, is the father of a large family and finds it a hard struggle to make ends meet on his small wages. By a fall from a telegraph pole one afternoon he sustains injuries which force a lay-off for several weeks. His family is left almost destitute and after a time seek aid from various charity organizations.

In each case, the organization promises to make a full investigation and do what they can, but by the time all of the red tape and rules are complied with, the family would starve.

Scene from "The Blood Red Tape of Charity" (Powers).

In the meantime, Marx, a gentleman thief who has a secret retreat in the same building in which the Weldon family live, meets the invalid daughter, Alice Weldon. She tells him of the family's condition and Marx endeavors to aid her, although at the time he is out of ready cash himself. Taking desperate measures, he holds up a doctor and forces him to attend to Weldon. Then, in company with a female leader of the gang, he attends the big charity ball. There he makes a haul—plucking jewelry and trinkets from every one with whom he comes in contact. He pawns the stolen articles and uses the money to help the Weldons. After the family has recovered through Marx's aid, the charity organizations finally send a few dollars and skimpy supply of food.

Marx decides to reform—in fact, his reformation has been intended for some time and his last "job" was only the outcome of his desire to do a worthy charity. He goes to the police, declares himself, and surrenders. Marx is sentenced, and while sitting in his cell a vision of Alice appears before him, repaying him for his sacrifice and charity.

A MARCUS LOEW CIRCUIT FEATURE BOOKING.

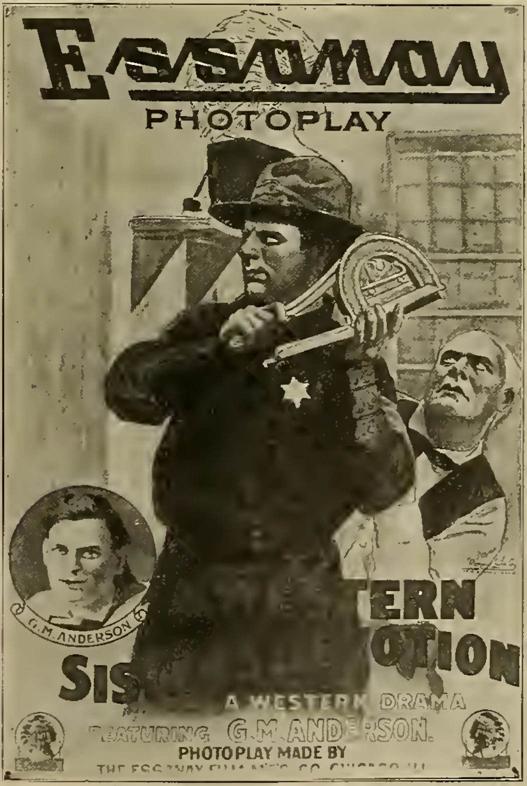
A booking over the entire Loew circuit for the features "The Captivating Countess" and "Abraham, the Patriarch of Israel," has just been closed by Chas. Renser, manager of The Feature Film Company, of New York City. The first named is taken in natural colors and both are in three reels.

"THE CLOD (Lubin).

This is one of the Romaine Fielding productions with the star role played by himself. The story is beautifully planned and true to a certain type of manhood found in the hills of Mexico. The picture is taken on Mexican soil and employs a hundred or more insurrectos, Mexican Federals and Guerillas to assist the Lubin players. The photoplay is fearfully and wonderfully made and cannot fail to leave a strong impression.

It is the story of a simple minded farm hand who is impressed into warfare against his will. He fights listlessly until the fight brings him to his own home. His home is burned and his wife and mother are killed by the very troops he is fighting with. The sight of his loss arouses the dormant passion and strength in him. He plunges into the fray, attacking anybody, not knowing which side he is fighting. At last he is shot and stagering to the place where his mother lies, rolls over on his face dead.

Scene from "The Clod" (Lubin).



Essanay's New Style of Poster.

CORRESPONDENCE

CINCINNATI.

"QUO VADIS?" proved too great an attraction for B. F. Keith's house the past week. The seating capacity of the theater was way too small to accommodate the enormous crowds and thousands of people were turned away each day. Three special matinees, beginning at 11 o'clock in the morning, were given on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, but even these extra performances did not serve to satisfy Cincinnati theater-goers, and many were turned away from the performance.

Arrangements have been completed to exhibit "Quo Vadis?" at Music Hall, the week starting September 14. The enormous crowds that have attended the exhibition of the pictures at Keith's the past week have greatly attested the popularity of the play, and it was found necessary to arrange for another week's production to handle the multitudes that desire to see the pictures.

A number of the moving picture show men are protesting against the giving of free shows in the parks. The report is that from 3,000 to 4,000 men, women and children enjoy these shows, and Secretary Hodgkinson, of the park board, is a strong advocate for the free show. He called at the City Hall recently and after a consultation with Building Commissioner Rapp, it was decided to continue giving the free shows the balance of the summer. The owners claim that the ordinance requiring fireproof booths was not being complied with, but the building commissioner did not consider that there was any danger of a fire in the parks.

It has been decided to use the chapel of the penitentiary at Columbus for the showing of moving pictures to be censored. It already is equipped with a machine that convicts have been taught to operate. The Governor also said that the films depicting Thaw's escape would be barred from Ohio.

A fire causing $300 damage to the Royal Theater on Vine Street is under police and fire marshal investigation. The flames were discovered by a passerby at midnight last Wednesday. The fire was in the loft over the operating booth. It was found after the fire was out that the electric wires had been severed near the loft. Last week wires in the basement for the lighting system of the house were cut and the damage covered by insulation tape. John J. Huss, one of the proprietors, said that he did not know anyone who would want to burn him out. The loss is covered by insurance.

The Grand Opera House closed its doors to moving pictures recently and the regular season opened.

At the Lyric, Howe's travel pictures are holding forth again this week. The season will close shortly and the regular season will open September 14.

People's Theater, the home of Empire Burlesque up to this season, has been turned into a moving picture theater, and will continue as such during the winter season.

Heuck's Opera House, formerly the home of cheap melodrama, is also showing moving pictures and vaudeville and will continue to do so during the winter.

Judge Nipper in the Common Pleas Court refused the application of Charles W. Hine and other stockholders of the Imperial Amusement Company, operating the Imperial Moving Picture Theater, in West McMicken Avenue, for a receiver to take charge of the place, but stated he will name an accountant to go over the company's books and a cashier to sell tickets for the theater. Hine and associates allege that J. S. Glassmeyer, president and manager of the company, has been running the theater without consulting them and rendering no account to them. At the same time, Judge Nippert ordered Glassmeyer to cease the building of a balcony to the theater until he had an opportunity of considering the case after the accountant makes a report. Glassmeyer argues his side of the case without an attorney, the plaintiffs being represented by counsel. Right on the heels of the court proceedings came the revocation of the theater's license by the city officials. Following the court's decision in the matter, the Mayor's secretary, William Stiegler, upon direction of Acting Mayor Simeon M. Johnson, revoked the license. The police authorities were given notice to close the theater at that time. The action was taken on the recommendations of Building Commissioner Rapp, who, in a report, stated that orders to fireproof and make the theater safer were disregarded, although some of the orders were issued a year ago.

Mothers living in the exclusive suburb of Avondale are planning to experiment in the matter of moving pictures for their children, who are to be permitted to choose the reels which a moving picture show near the Avondale school will run on Saturday afternoons, beginning September 20. Fairy tale and travel pictures are to be shown and these will alternate with stories of fairyland, tales of all nations and songs suited to children.

Mayor Hunt, himself a candidate for re-election at the coming fall municipal election, will depend largely upon the moving picture for the success of his campaign. The voter will not be required to accept the declaration of orators that his taxes are being well spent; he will be shown good government in actual operation upon a moving picture screen.

A romance that had its inception in a moving picture theater ended in the marriage last week of Carl W. Smedley, Jr., 29, an electrician in the theater, and Miss Burch Imgels, 22, a musician at the same theater.

From Columbus, last week, came the news of the appointment of Mrs. Maud Murry Miller, a Columbus newspaper writer, as one of a board of three to comprise the State Moving Picture Censorship. Her salary will be $1,500 a year.

"FOXIE."

ILLINOIS.

THE Lyceum Theater, at Peoria, which has been re-opened after receiving a new dress, will feature Kinemacolor pictures, changing them three times a week and changing the black and white pictures daily.

Four hundred and fifty inmates of the State School for Girls at Geneva, saw the "Battle of Gettysburg" at the Grand Theater in Geneva.

The Drexel, a moving picture house in Joliet, reserves seats.

The Masonic lodge at Piper City, is reported to be contemplating operating a moving picture show in the Opera House.

Johnson Brothers have reopened the Olympic Theater on Seventh street in Rockford, which was closed during the summer months.

A new moving picture show has been opened in the Odd Fellows' Building at Mt. Pulaski.

The George W. Bond Slide Company, of Chicago, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $5,000, to do a general merchandise business and to sell specialty stereopticon slides, photographs, supplies, etc. The incorporators are: George W. Bond, Albert Cotsworth and Enos W. Shaw.

Motion Pictures will be the attraction six days in the week at the Gaiety Theater, which has opened the season at Ottawa. Occasionally a dramatic attraction will be booked. Vaudeville will be featured on Sunday nights.

The Star Theater, at St. David, expected to open for its fall and winter run Sept. 5. The house has been remodeled and redecorated.

Miss Helen Ireland has been engaged as Saturday night singer by Manager C. L. Eastburn, of the Star Theater, at Watseka.

William McNamara, of Virden, has commenced the erection of a new building for his Rex moving picture theater. The old structure will be used as a skating rink.

The moving picture show, which has been operated in Pulford's Hall, at Savanna, has gone out of business.

Free moving pictures were used as an inducement to get people to a good roads meeting at Deer Grove.

The union musician problem has bobbed up in Jacksonville. The officers of the local union have published notices that Scott's Airdome and Scott's Gaiety employ union musicians, and are fair to union labor.

Fred Lanstrum, formerly connected with the Chicago Record-Herald, has become manager of the Barrymore Theater at Moline. Pictures will figure largely in the season's attractions.

The winter policy of Manager Gage has gone into effect at the Royal Theater, at Sandwich—three reels of pictures the first three nights of the week and two vaudeville acts and three reels of pictures the last three nights.

A Carbondale report says that Frank Cox, owner and proprietor of the Lyric Picture Theater, left that city owing some unpaid bills, and that the sheriff levied on the outfit. Cox also built an airdome, but a lumber dealer took a mechanic's lien upon this.

The Orpheum, at Rockford, which recently announced pictures instead of vaudeville for Sunday, has decided upon the Kinemacolor features. These will also be run in connection with the regular vaudeville programs.

The Empire Hippodrome, at Quincy, turned away 2,000 persons at its opening. The house will use Licensed pictures.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

IN THE MIDDLE WEST.

AN ordinance prepared by City Attorney Rine and City Commissioner Withnell, and offered to the city council of Omaha, Neb., provides that boys under 18 years of age will not be allowed to operate moving picture machines.

Don L. Love will open a new moving picture house at 1511-1515 O street, in Lincoln, Neb.

E. L. Thomas and Harry Jones, will be the managers of the Colonial Theater, at Waukesha, Wis., which has been remodeled into a motion picture house.

"There are too many laws governing theaters," says City Electrician Maurice Sarbiasky, of Cleveland, Ohio, in a report to the building inspector upon the inspection of theaters for the first six months of 1913. These regulations are found in the general statutes, the state building code, the city building code and electrical code and local ordinances. His report showed that nearly all changes suggested in operating rooms had been made. Criticism was made of placing posters so that they interfered with exits and with ventilation.

The St. Joseph Fotoplay Company, of St. Joseph, Mo., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000. B. L. Liberman holds ninety-seven shares and Joseph Slakin, Joseph Agroofsky and Joseph Goldman, one share each. Slakin is from Des Moines, Ia.; the rest are from St. Joseph.

R. B. Maxson is erecting a new moving picture house at Amery, Wis.

Moving pictures of himself and of the improvements which have been wrought under his administration, will be used by Mayor Thomas E. Knotts, of Gary, Ind., in his next campaign.

E. V. Miller and Roy Smith will open a picture show in the Walker Building that they are remodeling at Chesaning, Mich.

The remodeled New Royal Theater has been re-opened at Findlay, Ohio. The entrance and the interior of the house have been improved and a new private office constructed for Proprietor J. P. Wright.

It is reported that H. H. Reeder and H. A. Moehlenpah are building a new motion picture house at Clinton, Wis.

The Phoenix Theater, at La Porte, Ind., arranged for the production of the films made at the fair in that city.

The Beecher Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000, to conduct a moving picture and vaudeville house on Division avenue South, in Grand Rapids, Mich. The incorporators are: Henry W. and Norman W. Beecher, William R. Yeager and Grover R. Miller.

Roy Cummings, of the Cummings Amusement Company, has leased the Whitely block at Ninth and Oregon streets, in Oshkosh, Wis., half of which he will use for a moving picture theater.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

IN THE SOUTHWEST.

THE Elk Photoplay Company, which recently was incorporated, with headquarters at San Antonio, Tex., will publish "The Texas Tattler," an animated weekly, depicting events in Texas. In addition a reel of comedy will be produced. The company has a capital stock of $20,000.

Albert Jackson has been making arrangements to open a new moving picture show at Pawhuska, Okla.

The Atlantic-Pacific Film Company, of San Diego, Cal., is planning to take a series of pictures along the route to the San Diego exposition in 1915. Members of the company were recently at Phoenix, Ariz., making arrangements.

The report of A. W. Peninger, traveling inspector of the Texas State Insurance Commission, showed that moving picture theaters in Beaumont were lacking in fire protection.

The New Hippodrome at Fort Worth, Tex., recently added Vitaphone talking pictures to its Mutual program.

Victor Miller, of the Pathe Freres Company, recently was at Albuquerque, N. M., with a view to making pictures of historic scenes in and around that city.

After the "Seeing Oklahoma City" pictures had finished their run in Oklahoma City, they were turned over to the Panama-Pacific Exposition Commission, which arranged an itinerary of 114 cities and towns in the State for their production. The proceeds will be used to erect the Oklahoma State Building at the San Francisco exposition in 1915.

The Princess Theater, at Wichita, Kan., ended its picture season and went into vaudeville September 1.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

IOWA.

ROY SCHUYLER, formerly of Muscatine, a moving picture operator, was seriously injured by an explosion of a gas tank at St. Claire, Mo., according to information received in Muscatine. It was reported that his sight may be affected.

C. H. Harrah is erecting a new building at Corwith, to be used for a moving picture show.

W. A. Matlock, proprietor of the Idle Hour Moving Picture Theater, at New Hampton, Ia., has leased the Opera House in that city, and will run it in connection with his photoplay house.

Fred Zenor and Hans Knutson are interested in a new moving picture show at Gilbert.

Ralph Holmes, manager of the Grand Opera House, at Burlington, is installing new moving picture equipment.

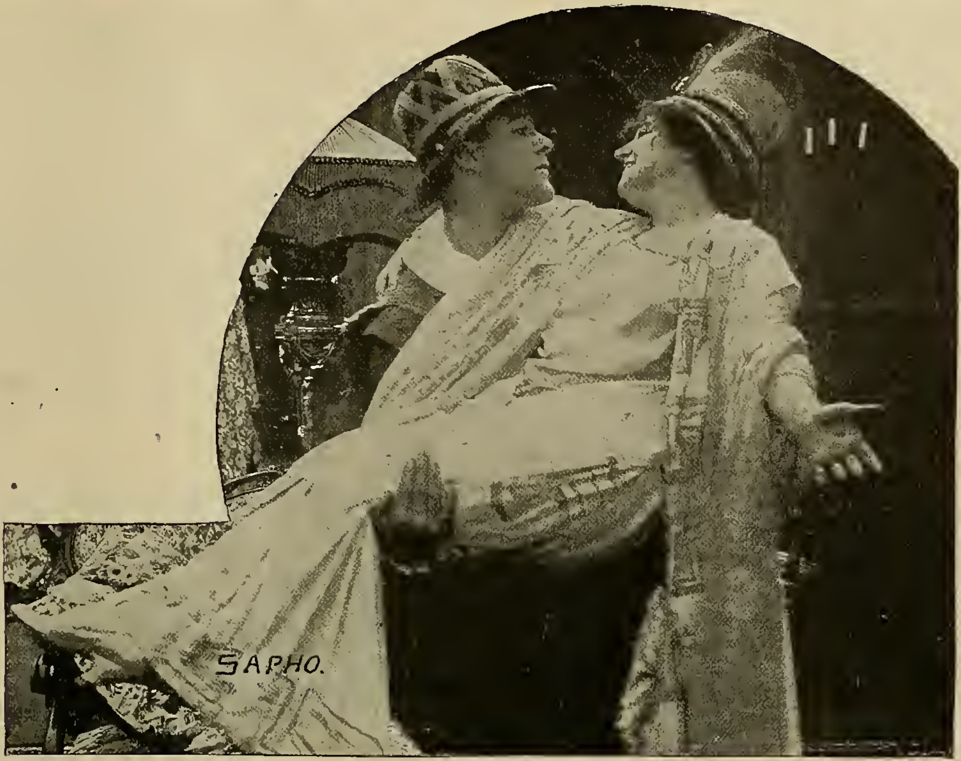
MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

IN THE NORTHWEST.

THEATER licenses in St. Paul, Minn., are low, according to Mayor Keller, who has been collecting statistics from other American cities of similar size. Photoplay houses in St. Paul pay $50 a year.

The Majestic Theater, at La Crosse, Wis., secured the films made of that city, and exhibited them to good business.

(Continued on Page 1300)



Don't Buy "Sapho"

State Rights if You Expect a Mere Sensational Film

We are issuing "SAPHO" (with Florence Roberts) as a straight and a great

MORAL LESSON—Alphonse Daudet, the author, dedicated the book to his sons. We dedicate the film to

THE SONS OF AMERICA—Impress on your mind that our picture version is not like stage versions. There is

NOTHING SUGGESTIVE in action or detail; there is no double meaning; as a production

IT IS ABSOLUTELY CLEAN, and the whole effect of its wonderful expose of youthful follies can

ONLY BE HELPFUL—Come see this unbeatable feature at our office. Then grab a "State" for it—two, if you like. Take advantage of the unparalleled advertising given the subject in both its play and book form.

A Big Theatre Production in Six Reels with Florence Roberts

Shelly Hull and the New Majestic Dramatic Players. All Sizes of Paper. The Title Alone Will Pack 'Em In

Sapho Feature Film Co.,

150 East 14th Street
New York City

Calendar of Independent Releases

Universal Film Mfg. Co. Current Releases

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 14th, 1913.
CRYSTAL—The Hand of Providence (Drama)............
ECLAIR—A Pawnee Romance (Drama)..................
ECLAIR—Hydrogen (Scientific).........................
REX—The Fight Against Evil (Drama).................

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 15th, 1913.
IMP—The Fatal Verdict (Drama)........................
NESTOR—Beauty and the Ugly One (Drama)............
GEM—The Manicure (Comedy)..........................
GEM—Sam's Despondency (Comedy)....................

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16th, 1913.
101 BISON—In the Coils of the Python (2 parts—Drama)..
CRYSTAL—A News Item (Comedy).......................
CRYSTAL—A Bachelor's Finish (Comedy)...............

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17th, 1913.
NESTOR—The Stepson (Drama).........................
POWERS—The Pearl of the Golden West (Comedy)......
ECLAIR—Rob-Roy (Three Parts, Drama)................
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly No. 80 (News)..........

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18th, 1913.
IMP—Escaped from the Asylum (2 parts—Drama)........
REX—Never Again (Drama)............................
FRONTIER—The Juvenile Kidnappers (Comedy).........

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19th, 1913.
NESTOR—The Battle of Bull Con (Comedy).............
POWERS—The Doctor's Story (Drama)..................
VICTOR—Percy H. Baldwin, Trifler (Drama).............

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20th, 1913.
101 BISON—Through the Window (2 parts—Drama)......
IMP—Binks and the Bathing Girls (Comedy).............
IMP—Antics in Ink, by Hy. Mayer........................
FRONTIER—The Ranchman's Double (Drama)...........

ADVANCE RELEASES.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1913.
CRYSTAL—Misplaced Love (Drama) ....
ECLAIR—Stung (Comedy) ....
ECLAIR—Curious Fish (Zoology) ....
REX—The Wall of Money (2 parts—Drama)..........

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd, 1913.
IMP—Ivanhoe (Four parts—Drama) ....
NESTOR—For the Peace of Bear Valley (Drama)......
GEM—None but the Brave Deserve the —? (Comedy)..
GEM—Sanitary Dairy Plant, Washington, D. C.........

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23rd, 1913.
101 BISON—The Struggle (2 parts—Drama) ....
CRYSTAL—Pearl and the Poet (Comedy) ....
CRYSTAL—Oh! What a Swim (Comedy)..............

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24th, 1913.
NESTOR—Heart of a Vacquero (Drama)..............
POWERS—Twiddledum Insures His Life (Comedy)..
POWERS—A Painter's Ruse (Comedy) ....
ECLAIR—A Puritan Episode (2 parts—Drama) ....
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly No. 81 (News)......

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25th, 1913.
IMP—Miser's Son (Drama) ....
REX—Genesis: 4-9 (2 parts—Drama) ....
FRONTIER—The Village Pest (Comedy) ....

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26th, 1913.
NESTOR—His Crazy Job (Comedy) ....
POWERS—Blood Red Tape of Charity (2 parts—Dr.)
VICTOR—For the Sins of Another (Drama) ....

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27th, 1913.
IMP—Binks Plays Cupid (Comedy) ....
IMP—Jolly Jottings by Hy. Mayer (Comedy) ....
FRONTIER—The Moonshiner (Drama) ....

Mutual Film Corporation Current Releases

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 14th, 1913.
MAJESTIC—The Winning Loser (Comedy-Drama) ....
THANHOUSER—(No Release This Date) ....

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 15th, 1913.
AMERICAN—Calamity Anne, Heroine (Drama)..........
KEYSTONE—(Title Not Reported)....................
RELIANCE—Twickenham Ferry (Drama)..................

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16th, 1913.
MAJESTIC—Playmates (Drama) ....
THANHOUSER—Redemption (Drama) ....

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17th, 1913.
BRONCHO—The Land of Dead Things (2 parts—Drama)
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly No. 38 (News)................
RELIANCE—The Disguise (Drama).......................

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18th, 1913.
AMERICAN—A Fall Into Luck (Drama)................
KEYSTONE—(Title Not Reported).......................

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19th, 1913.
KAY-BEE—The Reformation (Drama)....................
THANHOUSER—Flood Tide (Drama) ....

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20th, 1913.
AMERICAN—Jim Takes a Chance (Comedy)............
AMERICAN—Travelers of the Road (Drama)............
MAJESTIC—His Last Deal (Comedy-Drama) ....
RELIANCE—The Stolen Woman (2 parts—Drama).......

ADVANCE RELEASES.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1913.
MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported) ....
THANHOUSER (Title Not Reported) ....

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd, 1913.
AMERICAN—The Ghost of the Hacienda (2 parts—Dr.)
KEYSTONE—(Title Not Reported) ....
RELIANCE—The Hardest Way (Drama) ....

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23rd, 1913.
MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported) ....
THANHOUSER—(Title Not Reported) ....

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24th, 1913.
BRONCHO—Silent Heroes (2 parts—Drama) ....
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly No. 39 (News) ....
RELIANCE—The Missing Ring (Drama) ....

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25th, 1913.
AMERICAN—Mrs. Carter's Campaign (Comedy) 1000
KEYSTONE—(Title Not Reported) ....

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26th, 1913.
KEYBEE—The Forlorn Hope (Drama) ....
THANHOUSER—(Title Not Reported) ....

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27th, 1913.
AMERICAN—Master of Himself (Drama) ....
MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported) ....
RELIANCE—The Original Will (Drama) ....

Exclusive Supply Corporation Current Releases

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 15th, 1913.
GAUMONT—The Faithful Servitor (Feature-2 part-Dra.)

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16th, 1913.
GAUMONT—The Lion Hunters (Feature-2 parts-Dra.)

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17th, 1913.
RAMO—The Worker (Feature—3 parts—Drama)......
SOLAX—Invisible Ink (Comedy)........................
GAUMONT—Gaumont's Weekly No. 80 (News)...........

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18th, 1913.
ECLECTIC—When Paris Loves (Feature-2 part-Drama)
GAUMONT—Tiny Tim's Elopement (Comedy)...........

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19th, 1913.
F. R. A.—The Voice of the Wild (Feature-2 part-Drama)
LUX—The Blacksmith's Son (Drama) ....
SOLAX—Western Love (Drama).........................

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20th, 1913.
GREAT NORTHERN—Convict 337 (Comedy) ....
LEWIS PENNANT—My Boy (Feature-3 part-Drama)..

ADVANCE RELEASES.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd, 1913.
SOLAX—Rogues of Paris (Feature—3 parts—Drama)..

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23rd, 1913.
GAUMONT—Tiny Tim Kidnaps a Baby (Comedy)....

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24th, 1913.
DRAGON—Her Last Ride (Feature—3 parts—Drama)..
GAUMONT—Gaumont's Weekly No. 81 (News) .....
SOLAX—(Title Not Reported) ....

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25th, 1913.
ITALA—Unmasked (Feature—2 parts—Drama) ....
GAUMONT—An Awful Relapse (Comedy) ....

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26th, 1913.
LUX—(Title Not Reported) ....
SOLAX—(Title Not Reported) ....

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27th, 1913.
GREAT NORTHERN—Won By Waiting (Comedy)....

Something you have been waiting for!

WATCH OUT!! WATCH OUT!!

for

DOMINO FILMS

IN 2 AND 3 MASSIVE REELS

Gigantic Naval Spectacles Picturesque Puritan Productions

Mark the Date of the First Release

(2 REELS) "THE BONDSMAN" (2 REELS)

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18th

A Red-Blooded Production of Wonderful Power and Dignity

To Exhibitor and Public : These two and three reel Feature Films of the Domino Motion Picture Corporation are peerless in Story, in Acting and Photography; The Producers of these Pictures have excelled their reputation for extraordinary and mammoth film spectacles in giving Domino Productions to the Exhibitor. The Mutual exhibitor showing Kay-Bee, Broncho and Keystone pictures will have additional cause to rejoice when the Domino Brand is added to the Program.

P. S.—Owing to copyright laws, the name EMPIRE, under which brand the above pictures were to be released, has been changed to DOMINO!!

Domino Motion Picture Corporation

D

LONG ACRE BUILDING
BROADWAY, at 42nd Street
NEW YORK CITY

D

MUTUAL PROGRAM EXCLUSIVELY

Calendar of Licensed Releases.

CURRENT RELEASES.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 15th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—His Hoodoo (Comedy)
BIOGRAPH—Dan Greegan's Ghost (Comedy)
EDISON—The Island of Perversity (Comedy)	1000
KALEM—Retribution (Drama)	1000
LUBIN—To Love and Cherish (Drama)	1000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly No. 50 (News)
SELIG—The Fifth String (Special—2 parts—Drama)	2000
VITAGRAPH—Pumps (Comedy)
VITAGRAPH—Sandy Gets Shorty a Job (Comedy)

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16th, 1913.

EDISON—Jerusalem and the Holy Land (Scenic)	1000
ESSANAY—Women (Drama)	1000
LUBIN—Fashion's Toy (Drama)	1000
PATHEPLAY—Mrs. Morton's Birthday (Drama)
CINES—High Treason (Special—2 parts—Drama)
SELIG—The Toils of Deception (Drama)	1000
VITAGRAPH—Their Mutual Friend (Drama)	1000

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17th, 1913.

EDISON—Cornwall, the English Riviera (Scenic)	400
EDISON—The Comedian's Downfall (Comedy)	600
ESSANAY—Sweet Revenge (Comedy)
ESSANAY—The Duck-Raising Industry (Zoology)
KALEM—Trooper Billy (Special—2 parts—Drama)	2000
PATHEPLAY—The Merill Murder Mystery (Drama)
SELIG—Tobias Wants Out (Comedy)	1000
VITAGRAPH—The Hindoo Charm (Drama)	1000

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—The Stolen Treaty (Drama)
ESSANAY—The Broken Parole (Drama)	1000
LUBIN—The Clod (Special—2 parts—Drama)	2000
MELIES—Home Life In Japan (Manners & Customs)
MELIES—A Japanese Funeral (Manners & Customes)
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly No. 51 (News)
PATHEPLAY—Toad Traits (Zoology)
PATHEPLAY—Hot Springs and Geysers of New Zealand (Travel)
SELIG—The Redemption of Railroad Jack (Drama)	1000
VITAGRAPH—Sunny; or the Cattle Thief (Drama)	1000

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19th, 1913.

EDISON—Saved by the Enemy (Special—2 parts—Drama)	2000
ESSANAY—The Right of Way (Special—2 parts—Drama)	2000
KALEM—The Burglar and the Baby (Comedy)
KALEM—One Best Bet (Comedy)
LUBIN—The Love of Beauty (Drama)	1000
PATHEPLAY—Dr. Turn Turns the Tables (Comedy)
PATHEPLAY—Harnessed Falls of the Northwest (Travel)
SELIG—The Rejected Lover's Luck (Drama)	1000
VITAGRAPH—John Tobin's Sweetheart (Comedy)	1000

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—For the Son of the House (Drama)
EDISON—The Great Physician (Drama)	1000
ESSANAY—The Redeemed Claim (Drama)	1000
KALEM—The Breath of Scandal (Drama)	1000
LUBIN—Her Present (Comedy)	400
LUBIN—His Reward (Comedy)	600
PATHEPLAY—Her Brave Rescuer (Drama)
VITAGRAPH—Our Wives (Special—2 parts—Drama)	2000

ADVANCE RELEASES.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—The Law and His Son (Drama
EDISON—The Honor of the Force (Drama)	1000
KALEM—The Counterfeiter's Confederate (Drama)	1000
LUBIN—Poker Paid (Comedy)	400
LUBIN—This Isn't John (Comedy)	600
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly No. 52 (News)
SELIG—The Young Mrs. Eames (Special—2 parts—Dr.)	1500
SELIG—Sissybelle (Comedy)	1000
VITAGRAPH—Daddy's Soldier Boy (Drama)	1000

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23rd, 1913.

EDISON—The Stroke of the Phoebus (Drama)	1000
ESSANAY—For Old Time's Sake (Drama)	1000
LUBIN—A Mexican Tragedy (Drama)	1000
PATHEPLAY—The Blind Gypsy (Drama)
CINES—For His Brother's Crime (Special—2 parts—Dr.)
SELIG—Bumps and Willie (Comedy)	1000
VITAGRAPH—Extremities (Comedy)
VITAGRAPH—Scenes in Singapore (Travel)

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24th, 1913.

EDISON—The Embarrassment of Riches (Comedy)	1000
ESSANAY—Love Incognito (Comedy)	1000
KALEM—A Midnight Message (Special—2 parts—Dr.)	1000
PATHEPLAY—The Secret Treasure (Drama)
SELIG—The Spell of the Primeval (Drama)	1000
VITAGRAPH—The Other Woman (Drama)	1000

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—A Saturday Holiday (Comedy)
BIOGRAPH—The End of the World (Comedy)
ESSANAY—Days of the Pony Express (Drama)	1000
LUBIN—Self-Convicted (Special—2 parts—Drama)	2000
MELIES—A Camhodian Idyll (Drama)	1000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly No. 53 (News)
PATHEPLAY—Blazing a New Trail in Glacier National Park, Montana (Scenic)
PATHEPLAY—The Sago Industry in Borneo (Industrial)
SELIG—The Capture of "Bad Brown" (Comedy)	1000
VITAGRAPH—The Race (Drama)	1000

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26th, 1913.

EDISON—Hard Cash (Special—2 parts—Drama)	2000
ESSANAY—In Convict Garb (Special—2 parts—Drama)	2000
KALEM—The Hobo and the Myth (Comedy)
KALEM—The Largest Duck Farm in the World (Zoo.)
LUBIN—Winning His Wife (Comedy)	1000
PATHEPLAY—Birds of Prey (Bird Life)
PATHEPLAY—Sicily the Picturesque (Travel)
SELIG—The Policeman and the Baby (Drama)
SELIG—The Taj Mahal, Agra, India, (Travel)
VITAGRAPH—Bunny for the Cause (Comedy)	1000

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—The Influence of the Unknown (Drama)
EDISON—A Proposal from the Sculptor (Being the third of the Series "Who Will Marry Mary?")	1000
ESSANAY—Why Broncho Billy Left Bear County (Dr.)	1000
KALEM—A Demand for Justice (Drama)	1000
LUBIN—The Great Discovery (Drama)	1000
PATHEPLAY—The Fish With a Storage Battery in its Brain
PATHEPLAY—The Pearl of the Bosphorus, Constantinople (Travel)
PATHEPLAY—Promenade in Rome (Travel)
VITAGRAPH—Under the Daisies (Spec.—2 parts—Dr.)	2000

Clearance Sale of Licensed Posters

To make room for new stock, will sacrifice brand new posters of all licensed releases over two months old, five cents per one sheet, fifteen cents per three sheet, and thirty cents per six sheet. TERMS: Cash with order. Include postage at the rate of one cent per sheet, if ordered by mail.

EXHIBITORS' ADVERTISING & SPECIALTY CO., No. 30 Union Square, New Yor

Chas. Urban, the International Motion Picture Authority endorses

Simplex

London W., 13th August, 1913.

Mr. Richard G. Hollaman,
Precision Machine Company,
317 East 34th Street, New York City, U. S. A.

Dear Mr. Hollaman: When you first introduced the subject of the Simplex machine to me two years ago, I must candidly admit that I was skeptical. Your persistence in your direct aim to convince me of the superiority of the Simplex during this period has had its effect—I am convinced.

I have carefully followed the fortunes since the introduction of this machine by Kineto Limited into the European market during the past year, and I am most gratified with the unanimous satisfaction expressed by the scores of picture theatre managers and operators who are using this apparatus.

When I tell you, that, while you have perhaps three or four competing makes of machines in the United States, there are at least forty prominent types of machines to compete against in the European market, it is a far more difficult proposition, but I am convinced that the Simplex is destined to create hundreds and thousands of highly satisfied users throughout Europe.

Extensive experiments, conducted by our mechanical and electrical engineers with the Simplex, by adapting thereto the recent improvements of color correction, great reduction of amperage with equal brilliancy of projection and simplicity of operating, demonstrated to me that with the already existing splendid points of your latest type machine, these improvements could be more readily adapted for generally improved Kinemacolor projection than with our own type of mechanism.

Therefore we have decided to utilize your machine in its adapted form for all Kinemacolor projecting purposes in future.

I hope you will be able to cope with the demand we shall make on your resources for the prompt supply of the Simplex and Kinemacolor Simplex projectors for Europe.

Yours faithfully,
(Signed) C. Urban,
Managing Director,
The Natural Color Kinematograph Co., Ltd., and Kineto Limited.

Why hesitate, Mr. Exhibitor, when such men as Chas. Urban, Geo. Kleine, and over 90 per cent of the photo-play manufacturers use Simplex, the peerless projector.

Write today for Catalogue A

MADE AND GUARANTEED BY

PRECISION MACHINE CO.
317 East 34th Street, New York City, N. Y.

(Continued from Page 1294)

F. E. Nemec expects to have his new moving picture and vaudeville house in St. Cloud, Minn., completed about November 1.

The city council of Yankton, S. D., has fixed the penalty for violation of the Sunday ordinance by moving picture shows at $50. Complaint was made by citizens of the Sabbath shows.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

LOUISVILLE.

THE great Kleine-Cines motion picture drama, "Quo Vadis?" drew large houses last week at B. F. Keith's Theater, and Louisville dramatic critics devoted serious attention to it. Two performances a day were given, matinee and evening.

R. L. Shrader, manager of the Central Film Service Company, of Louisville, has recently found it necessary to increase his office force to take care of the increased business that the exchange is handling. Mr. Shrader tells of a rather narrow escape which President Spellmire, of the Central, had recently, while driving in his car between Cleveland and Buffalo. While running at about 40 miles an hour, the chauffeur made a short turn and the machine skidded off a 50-foot embankment. Fortunately nobody was injured, although the escape of those in the machine was almost miraculous. Mr. Spellmire said that it all happened too quickly even for a moving picture camera to catch, and that he didn't have time to get scared before it was over.

Louisville men are behind a company which will build, in Henderson, Ky., one of the handsomest motion picture houses in that State. The concern was recently incorporated with a capital stock of $12,000, by Judge W. A. Kinney, of the Princess Amusement Company, Dr. William B. Wheeler, an optician, and A. L. Ward, and the contract for the erection of the building has already been let. The house will have a large and roomy balcony, for white people only, instead of for colored people, which has been the general practice in Kentucky. An orchestra will furnish music, and other up-to-date features will combine to make it one of the best in the State. A. L. Ward will manage the new theater.

Manager Spillman, of the Harrodsburg Opera House, at Harrodsburg, Ky., was in Louisville a few days ago, principally for the purpose of booking some good vaudeville acts and feature films for his house. He was much interested in a recent Universal release, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which has been going well in Louisville.

P. B. Elliott, manager of the Union Film Company, of Indianapolis, was a recent visitor in Louisville. He reports that two of his latest features, "Zigomar the Third," and "Balaoo," have taken remarkably well with exhibitors.

Manager Grubbs, whose picture house at Lawrenceburg, Ky., occupies the whole field in that thriving bluegrass town, is moving from the old opera house to a new theater, which will be known as the Majestic. During last week, while a colored fair was in progress in Lawrenceburg, the manager of the photoplay house took the rather unusual but profitable step of opening his place to the darkies only, who were in the city from all corners of the county for the celebration.

Rowland Clarke, of Lebanon, Ky., who operates a house in that city, and another at Springfield, Ky., was in Louisville recently, and made arrangements with the Central Film Service Company for Universal service for both houses. He said that business has been splendid with his two houses all through the summer, notwithstanding the weather.

James Hague, of Eminence, Ky., is opening an airdome at Shelbyville, Ky., to show moving pictures. It is a little late in the season for such an enterprise, but Mr. Hague is planning to get the people in the habit of attending the outdoor show, with the view to getting a good start next summer.

A. J. Wellman recently won his suit for the retention of the Scenic Motion Picture Theater, at Ironton, O., for another year under his lease, and he will remain in possession. Had the lease been declared void, under the contention of the owner of the house, Richard Martin, of Ashland, Ky., and Henry Hunter, of Ironton, were to have assumed the management of the house immediately.

Bradley & Maggard's moving picture machine factory in Morehead, Ky., is about completed, and will soon be in operation. The firm has contracted for its entire output for several years with the Standard Oil Company, the B. & O. Railroad Company, and several other large corporations, which will use motion pictures for advertising and educational work.

It is probable that the owner of the Gem Theater Building, which was recently destroyed in a fire at Frankfort, Ky., will immediately erect a modern fireproof building on the site, which will be occupied by a first-class picture house. No definite plans have been made, as there is a possibility that several lots will be occupied by a large building, but it is certain that space will be provided for a new photoplay house.

The Alamo Theater, at Paris, Ky., will shortly install its own electric light plant in connection with which it will use a Power's Cameragraph projecting machine.

Manager Mitchell, of the Dixie Theater Company, operating the Crystal, at Franklin, Ky., is doing everything in his power to make his theater compare favorably with those in larger cities. He has a daily change of program, a projecting machine without the objectionable flicker, and will soon put in a new screen, in order to get better pictures.

A defective film at the Columbia Theater, Paris, Ky., caused a small blaze recently. About half of the reel had been shown when the film broke and caught fire, and about twenty feet were destroyed before the blaze could be extinguished. The house was filled with smoke, but there was no excitement among the audience, and the program was quickly resumed, largely on account of the coolness of Operator Vance Huffman.

The opening of the New Hippodrome, at Huntington, W. Va., has been postponed for a few days on account of the delay in the arrival of the new seats. The house has been greatly beautified and improved during the shut-down, and Manager Bullington will present a very attractive theater to his patrons shortly.

Corydon, Ky., is to have a moving picture show soon, the first house in the city being opened by Luther Marshall. The town has for some time wanted a photoplay house, but until electric lights were available, nobody made the move. The recent completion of a plant there made a modern house possible.

A newly organized motion picture theater company in Cincinnati, O., in which Harry Baok is said to be interested, has arranged for the purchase of the property at the northeast corner of Fifteenth street and Central avenue, from the Longworth estate, a ten-year lease having been taken, at $1,800 a year, with the privilege of purchase at $37,500. The buyers are said to be non-residents.

G. D. CRAIN, JR.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

BY special arrangement with President Wilson, a picture was taken on the White House grounds, showing him talking, posing and hand-shaking with a number of the Boy Scouts. The film will show the nation-wide activities of the boys, and it is said will be 8,000 feet long.

A new moving picture theater for the northeast section of the city, on the south side of C street, between Fifth and Sixth, on a lot 40 by 96 feet, will be built immediately. The style of architecture will be Italian Renaissance, with a front of tapestry brick, trimmed in Indiana limestone. Capacity, five hundred.

The Galo's Amusement Company has started a brick and steel concrete building with all modern improvements on Georgia avenue and Kenyon streets N. W., 50 feet by 140. The foyer will be finished in Italian mosaic, the design of the exterior being of French Renaissance. It will be used for moving pictures and high class vaudeville.

The hopes for installing motion picture machines in the public schools to supplement the study courses, have assumed a substantial foundation, and their advent is not far distant, when the schools open during this month. As the money is appropriated, they will be purchased.

C. W. Sarvin succeeded S. J. Mayer, September 1, as manager of the Washington branch of the General Film Company's Exchange, the latter going to Brooklyn in interests of said company. H. O. Osborn and S. M. Flax are still on hand doing the honors in their lines. During his sojourn among us Mr. Mayer made many friends, who, while regretting his departure, wish him bon voyage in his new destination.

Tom Moore, of the Garden, has leased the National Theater, for one week, with daily matinee, featuring "Victory," in five parts, and is drawing well. Mr. Moore is a plunger, and evidently believes in giving the public "first" of all attractions.

Fred and Harry Miller, and Nat. Glasser, of the Leader, propose to spring something on their patrons shortly. Extensive improvements are contemplated, besides other innovations in the personnel of the house.

G. Boernstein, of the Colonial Film Company, who is official photographer for the National Association of the Deaf, talked moving pictures to John D. Rockefeller, while attending the convention upon the estate of the oil magnate. He found him well posted, and displayed a thorough knowledge of practical photography. The outcome of it all will be the installation of a plant in the grounds of his palatial home at Cleveland.

Harry Crandall is making havoc of the old building, corner Ninth and E streets, N. W., where he will erect his new theater, notice of which has been printed in the World.

Tom Eastwood expects to open his new theater on H. between 7th and 8th streets, N.E., about September 10. "The Apollo" will be very much in evidence with "Tom" at the helm, if we can judge from past experiences.

HENRY A. JOHNSTON.

BUFFALO.

THE Family Moving Picture Theater, Washington street and Broadway, Buffalo, opened for the season on September 1, under the management of George W. Ryder. Buffalo was thronged with several thousand persons on account of the Perry Centennial Celebration, Sept. 2 to 6, and as a result, the house did a heavy trade. The opening feature was "The Battle of Gettysburg," from the Mutual Film Corporation. Mr. Ryder's policy will be to show only four, five and six-reel productions, not small features. He came here from the Olympia vaudeville theater, Cleveland. He formerly opened the National Theater, Boston, and at one time managed Keith's Jersey City Theater. He has had a wide experience in the moving picture business. He was the first to receive a moving picture operator's license in Massachusetts, and introduced the Corbett-Courtney fight pictures through Canada. He was formerly electrician for the old Howard Theater, Boston. Before he became a theatrical manager, he was a member of the I. A. T. S. E., and the Moving Picture Operators' Union. The Family shows are from 1:30 P. M. to 11 P. M. The highest price of admission is ten cents. Women and children are admitted for five cents to the orchestra seats at the matinees.

The foundations have been completed and the superstructure started on the new Peterson and Wood theater building in Main street, Jamestown, N. Y. This is to be a three story brick and stone structure, 75 feet frontage by 140 feet in depth, and contains the largest auditorium in the city.

Butler Brothers, of Chicago, are erecting a large motion picture theater on Dufferin Street, Bridgeburg, Ont. The building is of frame construction.

The Garden theater, Buffalo, which features burlesque during the week, with moving pictures on Sunday, has been improved at a cost of $6,000.

The Rustic theater at Olcott Beach, N. Y., which ran vaudeville and moving pictures, closed for the season September 1st. McMahon & Dee, of Buffalo, managed the shows.

Moving pictures served an educational purpose at the School Hygiene Congress in Buffalo recently when Dr. Walter W. Roach, a supervising medical inspector in the Philadelphia public school system, illustrated his paper on "Vitalizing School Children" by the open window method with a film showing a class room full of pupils at physical exercises and study work.

Three thousand newsboys were the guests of the Buffalo News at a special performance of Paul J. Rainey's African Hunt pictures in the Teck theater, Buffalo. John R. Oishei is manager of this house. The next week's attraction at the theater was Eva Tanguay and her vaudeville company.

Fire Chief O'Connell, of Buffalo, is in favor of having the following fire notice posted in the moving picture and other theaters of this city: "Look around and choose the nearest exit. In case of fire walk out (don't run) of that exit. Don't try to beat your neighbor to the street."

"Those notices will be a big factor in averting panics and the terrible loss of life that has prevailed in fires of that kind," said Chief McConnell. "If the notices are placed where they will be seen, if only through curiosity, the people will turn to look and see where an exit is and then, if something does happen, they will be better able to take care of themselves. People in general lose their heads in such times and will only think of the door they came in, which, most likely, everybody else is trying to reach."

BILLY BISON.

INDIANAPOLIS.

CONSTABLES of justice of the peace courts, hungry for fees, have been filing affidavits against individuals operating under other names for not registering the names of their business with the county clerk. Affidavits have been filed against the owners of about forty motion picture houses, most of whom are entering pleas of guilty and accepting fines of $1 and costs, amounting to $13. The law is rarely enforced and few people know of it.

The motion picture promises to play an important part in municipal campaigns this fall. Mayor Thomas E. Knotts, of Gary, who is a candidate to succeed himself, is having made a number of films of himself, and these will be shown throughout his campaign. His example promises to be followed in several cities.

Judges of the police and juvenile courts of the city recently were guests of the management of the Vaudette theater to see the film, "Saved by the Juvenile Court." Judge Ben B. Lindsay, of Denver, Col., is featured in the film. The Peerless Film & Supply Company has the rights to the film in this territory.

The Municipal & Commercial Film Manufacturing Company, of this city, recently prepared films of scenes surrounding the mysterious disappearance of little Catherine Winters, who was kidnapped from her home in Newcastle several weeks ago. The films are to be shown in all of the B. F. Keith theaters throughout the United States, in an effort to obtain some trace of the child.

Charles Leib has let the contract for a motion picture theater to be erected in Anderson. It will be a one story fireproof structure, 45 by 144 feet and will cost $18,000. The lot upon which it is to be erected cost $12,000. When completed the theater will be operated by Roseberry and Faulkner, who have arranged for a long-time lease.

With an authorized capitalization of $10,000, the Peerless Film & Supply Company has been organized and incorporated here and will deal in motion picture films and supplies. Those interested in the company are Edward D. Crawley, Danville; Floyd M. Shipp and Lean J. Bamberger, both of this city. Mr. Bamberger is general manager.

A motion picture theater will be conducted here by the Arcadia Amusement Company, which has just been organized by E. E. Nickoll, J. W. Krickbefer and H. T. Klinkefues. The company has been incorporated with a capitalization of $10,000.

SELLING BY STATE RIGHTS ONLY

"THE BETROTHED"

(COPYRIGHT 1913)

(In Six Reels) Ready for delivery Sept. 13th

SPECIAL NOTICE

This is the truly remarkable version of the great work of ALEXANDER MANZONI and is judged by all who have seen it a masterpiece. There is but One Successful Film Rendition of

"THE BETROTHED"

IT IS THE AMBROSIO VERSION

PUBLICITY—2 1-sheets, 1 3-sheet, 2 4-sheet, 1 8-sheet, heralds, cuts and two kinds of photos for lobby display

"Grandmother's Lamp"

(A Feature in Three Reels)

A thrilling drama with numerous strong love and war incidents marvellously well depicted, brimful of those big sensations which will inspire a thrill with the most jaded picture show patron. It is original and daring and treated with that disregard of cost characterizing the films we make a specialty of handling.

SOME GOOD TERRITORY STILL OPEN. GET BUSY

PUBLICITY—1, 3 and 8 sheet posters, heralds, photos and cuts

Società Anonima Ambrosio TORINO

Ambrosio American Co.

15 East 26th Street, New York

Società Anonima Ambrosio TORINO

The Fletcher Trust & Savings Company has let contracts for a motion picture theater to be erected at 435 Blake Street. It will be a one-story brick structure and will cost $3,800. There will be a seating capacity of about three hundred.

Charles Kelsey, C. H. Sweeton and C. T. Curry have recently organized the North End Amusement Company, in Evansville, to conduct a motion picture theater. The company, which is incorporated, has a capital stock of $10,000.

CLARENCE L. CUMMINS.

NEW ENGLAND AND CANADA.

At a meeting held last week at headquarters, Lagrange Street, Boston, the Massachusetts State Branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League was dissolved, and, in its place, there was organized what is to be known as the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts, with Mr. Ernest H. Horstman as the president; J. F. Patten, Grand Opera House, Attleboro, as the treasurer; Harry Wasserman, Eagle Theater, Roxbury, as the vice-president, and Alden Washburn, Unique Theater, Boston, as the secretary. The new organization starts its career with twenty-five members enrolled, and, for the present, at least, will not affiliate itself with any other similar State bodies, although it may do so later. At present, it is an independent organization, purely. The old league made what was very generally considered a mistake, by refusing to admit any but owners of theaters, and the present body very sensibly changed this policy, so as to admit managers. As far as can be judged, the new organization shows more virility, more genuine enthusiasm, and life, than did the old State branch, at any stage of its career.

Mr. H. A. Chenoweth, manager of the Shawmut theater, Roxbury, Mass., opened his real 1913-1914 season on September 1. The policy is vaudeville and pictures, with two shows daily. A full orchestra is a feature at the Shawmut. Prices range from ten cents to a quarter.

Manager Skates, of the Boston offices of the General Film Company, is in New York this week, to arrange about installing two new systems of booking pictures. "Split Booking" and "Exclusive Service" are the two new ideas Mr. Skates will put into operation. The General Film Company is doing a very large business in this territory, strong competition notwithstanding. Mr. Skates has changed a number of his bookkeepers, boys, etc., of late.

Mr. W. H. Patton, solicitor for the Mutual Film Corporation's Boston office, has returned from a trip through Vermont and New Hampshire, and closed contracts with a number of houses in that territory.

The Star theater, Newburyport, Mass., opened for the season on September 1, with a large program of Mutual films.

Mr. Arthur Lucus, district manager of the Mutual Film Corporation, paid Boston a visit last week, spending much time at the Mutual's headquarters on Boylston Street. Mr. Lucus was on a general tour of inspection, and appeared to find things "as they should be" in the Hub.

Mr. F. H. Johnson, auditor for the Mutual folks, was also in Boston last week, but found little to do, as Mr. S. R. Seaverns, the local accountant, had all the figures "neat and straight."

Manager W. H. Bradley, of the Mutual Film Corporation's Boston offices, was in Waterville, Me., last week, looking things over in his branch office, and fixing up some details for the local manager.

Among the new houses taken on by the Mutual folks in this territory are: New Central theater, Central Falls, R. I.; Opera House, Milford, Mass.; Newton, Mass., Opera House; Colonial theater, Andover, Mass.; Majestic theater, Winchendon, Mass., and the Orpheum theater, Gardner, Mass. Evidently Mutual pictures are well thought of hereabouts.

Members of the Pilgrim Publicity Association, Boston, and their friends, had a theater party at Loew's Orpheum theater, Boston, last week, to see the moving pictures of the recent Pilgrim Field Day.

The Boston Musicians' Protective Association has sent around a new list of rules and prices, in effect September 1. This is Local No. 9, of the A. F. of M. The "dope" is as follows, but why prices should be raised now, just after a poor summer season, is not quite clear, especially as the musicians find it most difficult to get full, union wages, from the majority of theaters, according to common report:

> Time limit per day, 5½ hours, accumulative. All contractors must be members of the American Federation of Musicians. Members are not permitted to contract with any other. Any member violating above immediately suspends himself from the A. F. of M.
>
> CLASS C.
>
> Continuous houses: all musicians 50c. per hour or fraction thereof. All houses running two performances per day, week of six days, $18. No performance running over three hours. Overtime, 50 cents per hour or fraction thereof.
>
> Houses running six nights, or six nights and Saturday matinee, $15 per week. No performance running over three hours. Overtime, 50 cents per hour.
>
> Extra matinee, $2.00 Sunday show, or holiday matinee, $3.00.
>
> Miscellaneous houses playing less than six performances, $3.00 per performance, not over three hours. Extra time, 50 cents per hour.
>
> All Sunday performances, $3.00. Time not to exceed three hours. Excess time, 75 cents per hour, or fraction thereof.

These new prices, of course, affect moving picture theaters, although, so 'tis said, not many houses pay full union wages.

A recent incorporation is the Bijou Theater Company, of Fall River, Mass., of which Chester W. and Mabel L. Greene are the promoters. This is a $5,000 concern.

The Hodgdon Booking Agency, Inc., of Boston, has filed its certificate of incorporation this week. The agency is a $5,000 company, with Carl Hutchins and Samuel W. Pollack named as the officers.

According to a Boston story, the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad is using the moving picture camera to detect baseball fans who neglect their duties for a game. Employees who give the old excuse that they wish to attend a funeral are trailed by a camera man. If they take a hack the picture is not taken, but if they go to a grandstand seat or bleacher, they are snapped in the crowd, and the film means discharge. A new use for motion pictures nearly every day.

The Broadway Amusement Company, of Lowell, Mass., has just been incorporated for $40,000, with Maurice H. Zucker, Alfred A. Lemeray and John P. Farley named as the promoters.

The Taylor Opera House, Danbury, Conn., has announced its policy to be motion pictures and vaudeville. The season opened on Labor Day. The Opera House has as opposition the Empress theater, managed by Mr. Chris. O. Brown.

Mr. William Fox's new theater at Waterbury, Conn., opened for its first public performance on August 28. This house is one of the most expensive on the whole Fox circuit, and seats 2,000 persons. Mr. Harry Fitzgerald has been selected as the local manager. The policy is vaudeville and pictures.

Mr. J. W. Gorman, who has been playing stock shows on the New England park circuit this summer, is organizing a new circuit, where miniature musical comedies are to be played throughout the winter months. The houses selected for this sort of entertainment are, for the most part, large theaters, offering vaudeville and pictures, twice daily. Included in the circuit are the Shawmut theater, Roxbury, and theaters in Attleboro, Quincy, South Framingham, Winthrop, and Peabody, Mass., also Waterville, Rockland and Bangor, Maine. The Gorman shows will be an "added feature."

The Empire Contracting Company, which has its main offices in New York, but which is a New England concern with Connecticut capital back of it, opened its new Empire theater, Bristol, Conn., on August 31. This house is a modern and up-to-date theater, seating 700, and built espressly for photoplay exhibitions, as no vaudeville is to be given. Mr. James Brezinski will manage the Empire theater, at least, until the new house now building at Thomaston, Conn., is in operation.

A new theater for Hyde Park, Mass., appears to be a certainty. The proposed house, which will be devoted to photoplays, is to be built on the site of the old Congregational Church.

Rumor has it that Roxbury, Mass., is in line for a new theater, to be situated on Humboldt Avenue. This also is to be a moving picture theater.

Mr. Walter T. Murphy, manager of the Lyceum theater, New London, Conn., now has women ushers in his house, which he calls an "attractive feature."

Mr. P. Gorman, manager of the Russell theater, Ottawa, Can., is playing to good business, and is using talking pictures.

Keith's theater, Portland, Me., opened its regular season of vaudeville and pictures on Labor Day. "Quo Vadis?" has been holding forth at this house.

The Boston offices of the Mutual Film Corporation on Boylston Street have been considerably changed of late. The "Mutual Exhibiting Room" is soon to be ready, with fifty opera chairs, for the benefit of all exhibitors who care to see the "run-off." A new supply department has been added, where parts, etc., may be secured. The shipping room has been changed, and now nothing except iron and fireproof matter is in this department. Even the tables are of iron.

The Auditorium theater, Lynn, Mass., is now playing stock company shows, under the management of Mr. A. Jones.

The P. F. Shea Company has transferred Walter Linehan from their theater at Manchester, N. H., to their Gilmore theater in Springfield, Mass., where he is in charge.

Messrs. Albee and Lovenberg opened their Bijou theater, Woonsocket, R. I., on August 18, and business has been excellent to date. The Bijou is best known as the "Theater Cozy." The policy is Edison talking pictures and vaudeville, three shows daily. The admission prices are five and ten cents. This house has been most carefully renovated and improved, and now presents a most pleasing appearance. Mr. Walter E. Parmenter, who managed the Bijou last season, is on the job again this year.

Mr. John J. Galvin is to succeed Adelmo Vanni as manager of the Bijou theater, New Haven, Conn. Mr. Galvin has been a manager for Wilmer and Vincent's chain of theaters for the past eight years. Mr. Galvin started on his new duties August 25, and his many friends wish him luck. Mr. Vanni is slated to manage S. Z. Poli's theater at Wilkesbarre, Pa.

Manager Louis M. Boas opened the Savoy theater, Fall River, Mass., for its regular season on August 23. The interior of this house has been carefully repainted and refurnished, and a number of new improvements are noticed in the Savoy.

Mr. Sheeheay is slated to manage the new Palace theater, Brattleboro, Vt., for Lawler Bros., the owners. Lawler Bros. have a good house in the Lawler theater, Greenfield, Mass.

Mr. J. G. Appleton opened his Temple theater, Hamilton, Canada, for the season, after a complete redecoration. A big program of vaudeville and pictures is the Temple's offering.

The Bijou theater, Pawtucket, R. I., formerly known as Keith's theater, has reopened, and reports good business with pictures and songs. Talking pictures are given as a special feature.

Mr. Ray S. Averil, manager of Poli's theater at Waterbury, Conn., has been laid up, but is now himself again. Vaudeville and pictures are doing well for Mr. Averil.

Mr. Felix Wendelschafer, manager of the Providence, R. I., theater, is presenting "Quo Vadis?" and it is a case of capacity houses as a general rule.

Mr. Joseph Griffin, the well-known theatrical man of Toronto, Canada, will probably erect a first-class theater at London, Canada, to be devoted to vaudeville and pictures.

The Grand Opera House, Brantford, Canada, reopened for its new season on August 30, under the management of Mr. Fred Johnson. Vaudeville and photoplays are to be the offerings.

Mr. George F. Law, manager of the Gem theater, Brantford, Canada, is doing nicely with a straight picture show, as is Manager "Ernie" Moule's Apollo theater.

Mr. S. Z. Poli will celebrate his "silver" jubilee in the theatrical business on October 20, at a banquet given in his honor at New Haven, Conn. It is said that Paul Morris, the sculptor, will present him with a "silver" tablet as a memorial. Mr. Poli has a chain of New England theaters.

HENRY.

Picture Theaters Projected.

San Diego, Cal.—A vaudeville theater building to cost between $600,000 and $700,000, seat 2,000, and decoratively to be a reproduction of the Renaissance Theater in Paris, will immediately be built by Arthur S. Hyman, a well-known theatrical man of Los Angeles. Hyman is president of the Hyman circuit of theaters. He has recently sold out a string of seven vaudeville and motion picture houses in Los Angeles, and is now engaged in establishing a wide circle of theaters of greater proportions, to include San Diego, Los Angeles, Salt Lake, Phoenix and other cities. His circuit of theaters will be affiliated with an eastern syndicate.

Philadelphia, Pa.—William Eckbold Sons, 707 East Girard avenue, are having plans prepared for a moving picture theater to be erected on East Girard avenue. Building to be brick, one story, 35 by 100 feet.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Federal Sign System Company have taken out a permit for the erection of an electric sign on the vaudeville and moving picture theater at 42 West Chelten avenue, for M. H. Taylor. The cost will be $600.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A published report current that J. Fred Zimmerman and M. W. Taylor had purchased the Nixon Theater at 52nd and Markets streets was denied by officers of the Greater Philadelphia Realty Company.

Philadelphia, Pa.—R. P. Brodley has taken out a permit to build a one-story brick addition to the moving picture theater at the northwest corner of Secor and Morris streets, for Joseph D. Gregory, to cost $2,550.

New York, N. Y.—The H. P. Wright Company, 30 East 42nd street, have been awarded the contract for the erection of a two-story moving picture theater, to seat 800 persons, on Seventh avenue, near 41st street, building to be 60 by 90 feet, and cost about $35,000. The Raisler Heating Company, 129 Amsterdam avenue, New York City, have been awarded the heating contract.

Philadelphit, Pa.—A permit has been issued to the Joseph Levin Company for the erection of a one-story brick moving picture theater, 34 by 100 feet, with a seating capacity of 500, at 1106-1108 North Fortieth street, for Jennie Biben. The cost will be about $8,500.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Borzner & Wood are preparing plans for a moving picture theater for Herman Liberman to be erected at the southwest corner of 27th street and Girard avenue. Building to be built of tapestry brick. Connem Brothers are the lessees.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Borough Operating Company, 1153 Myrtle avenue, are planning to build a two-story theater, 143 by 79 feet, to cost $200,000.

Chicago, Ill.—M. M. Rothschild is to build a one-story theater, 25 by 100 feet and have seating capacity for 300 persons.

Chicago, Ill.—Charles A. Anderson will build a one-story theater to have a capacity of 300.

If You See "10 Reels in 3"

Gaumont's Great Californian Production

(Condensed into Two Reels)

"The Faithful Servitor"

GAUMONT

Prepared in America by Americans for Americans

Full of True Local Effect

Exciting and Alive with Keen Sensation

GAUMONT

Last Feature Release

Who Killed George Lambert?

Brimming over with profound mystery

A Great Film

We Have Still a Few States Open

IT MAY BE YOURS

It Means a Loss to You Unless

YOU WIRE AT ONCE!

GAUMONT Regular

September 16th
The Lion Hunters

September 17th
Gaumont Weekly

September 18th
Tiny Tim's Elopement

GAUMONT CO.

1503 World's Tower Building
110 W. 40th St., New York City
Studio and Laboratories, Flushing, Long Island

You Know "It's Gaumont's"

LICENSED FILM STORIES

VITAGRAPH.

DADDY'S SOLDIER BOY (Sept. 22).—Bobby, the little five-year-old son of Captain Armstrong, is the idol of the regiment. Armstrong, an inveterate gambler, one night plays for higher stakes than he can afford and pays for his losses with a worthless check. The next day he is called into the office of Colonel Fitzmorris, who leaves him in the room for a moment. Seeing a large sum of money exposed in the cash box, he takes what will be sufficient to cover his losses, and doctors the Colonel's accounts so that the theft will not be discovered. The Colonel returns, however, before the ink has dried on the book and discovers the crime. Armstrong is tried by court-martial, stripped of his uniform and placed in prison. Bobby's mother does not tell him of his father's disgrace, the boy thinking that his daddy is away on business.

Playing in the street a day or two later Bobby sees the Colonel's little daughter running after a ball which has rolled into the gutter. He notices an automobile coming and saves the little girl's life, but is himself caught under the wheels. Bobby is taken, mortally injured, to the hospital.

Armstrong is called to the Colonel and told that he may visit Bobby, who is dying. He declines, however, saying that his child shall never see him in prison clothes. The Colonel, himself a father, understands the man's feelings and lends him his uniform. Armstrong goes to the hospital and brightens the little fellow's last moments by his presence. Bobby dies as the last post is sounded, rising in his bed to salute the colors as they are hauled down from the staff.

EXTREMITIES (Sept. 23).—Noticeable among the feet proceeding up the gangplank of the steamer are those of Gladys Robinson, a pretty young girl; Edwin Bartells, a nice young man, and the flat feet of Priscilla Primps, an easily scandalized old maid. Watching the movements of these feet about the deck tells an interesting story.

The feet of Gladys come along the deck, she is evidently seeking her steamer chair. After she has found it the flat feet of Priscilla are seen wandering in the neighborhood. She also finds her chair, next to that of Gladys, and seats herself in it.

Very shortly the feet of Edwin wander along. It is easily seen by their movement that he has discovered Gladys.

The porter's feet then get a move on them—he is off to look for Edwin's chair, which he brings and places on the deck between Priscilla and Gladys. The feet and hands of Priscilla execute several staccato movements, she is greatly shocked by the scandalous conduct of these two young people.

The courtship of the young folks progresses rapidly, Edwin at last placing an engagement ring on the finger of Gladys. Priscilla's feet grow wildly excited as those of Gladys rise from the ground and it is seen by their position that she is sitting happily on Edwin's knee.

The feet of the three people get hopelessly tangled, bringing them all to the deck with a thump, at last revealing the players to the interested observer, who has so far seen nothing but extremities.

SCENES IN SINGAPORE (Sept. 23).—Singapore possesses the most wonderful and quaintest sights ever beheld. Some of the strangest are presented in this brief travelogue.

THE OTHER WOMAN (Sept. 24).—Introduced to Marie Forrest, the actress, by a mutual friend, John becomes infatuated with her. Ignorant of his family ties, she accepts him as a friend. His wife and child cannot help feeling his estrangement. At the close of the season, Marie, on the advice of her physician, seeks a quiet spot and stops by chance at the same hotel where John's wife and child are staying. The two women become great friends and spend all their time together. John, conscience-stricken, and missing his family very much, takes a run to the beach. He gets there just as Alice, who is bathing with her little girl, is taken with a cramp and nearly drowned. Marie, who is on the beach, sees the child's danger and saves her. In the excitement of the moment, Marie and John do not look at each other. Both work over Alice.

As signs of life appear, they glance up and incidentally recognize each other. Marie sees all. A happy home is preserved, and Marie, to whom John has become to mean a great deal, makes an effort to forget him in a return to her career.

THE RACE (Sept. 25).—Edwin Harmon, a contractor engaged in building an aqueduct in California, is greatly worried by lack of money to pay his men, who threaten to strike. His contract must be filled by a given time, otherwise he will be ruined.

He goes to Charles Wayburn, a banker, and obtains a promise of a loan to tide him over his difficulties. The same evening he goes to the home of Virginie Barker, with whom he is in love, and meets Wayburn there. Wayburn, finding that Harmon is his rival, determines to refuse the loan and so bring him to ruin. He tells Virginie that her lover is helpless unless he, Wayburn, advances him money. Virginie at once goes to Harmon and tells him of Wayburn's threat to withhold the loan.

As Harmon is about to set out for the works to tell the men of his inability to get the money, he receives a note from an old friend, asking him to drive his racing car in the automobile race on the morrow. Harmon was formerly one of the racing drivers on the Pacific Coast and is sure that he can win the race. He goes to the works and succeeds in persuading the men to wait for the result, knowing that it will win him enough to pay them.

Wayburn bribes Thomson, Harmon's mechanic, to "throw up" the race. Thomson, as the car passes the grandstand, pretends to faint and the car is obliged to stop. Virginie, who realizes that without a mechanic Harmon cannot win, gets into the car and takes the man's place to the end of the run, which is a terrific one. Harmon wins the race and drives right out to the acqueduct where he tells the men that he now has the money and informs them of his coming marriage to Virginie.

BUNNY FOR THE CAUSE (Sept. 26).—Whenever Mr. Bunny finds himself confronted by a difficult problem, he goes to his wife with it and gets her to help him out.

When Mrs. Bunny shows him an invitation she has received to join a woman suffrage club, he is very indignant and announces promptly that women have not brains enough to vote and tells his wife that on no account will he permit her to have anything to do with the movement.

Bunny comes home to find a suffrage meeting in his house and raises quite a rumpus about it, but he has to go away to a meeting of the "fat men's" club, where he listens with approval to an anti-suffrage speaker. After the meeting he is invited to speak on local charities at the next meeting and returns home to prepare his speech. Accustomed as he is to asking his wife's advice, he is very disgruntled when she refuses to help him, telling him that as women have not brains enough to vote they cannot therefore help him to prepare a speech.

By the end of the week he is despair and has made no progress whatsoever. His wife offers to help him on condition that he will help her receive at the suffrage club that night. Bunny consents and his wife gets things in shape for him.

At the meeting of the suffrage club Bunny is delighted with the pretty women he meets and becomes enthusiastic, agreeing to march with the delegation from Manhattan at the parade in Washington. In the parade he proudly carries a suffrage banner, greatly to the amusement of members of the "fat men's" club, who cannot quite understand his sudden conversion to the "cause."

UNDER THE DAISIES (Special—2 parts—Sept. 27).—After severely criticizing the first play by Robert Burton, the critic of the Evening Times, John Mears, goes away into the country to get back his failing health. He has just heard from a lawyer that his uncle has left him a large legacy on condition that he does not marry before he is thirty-five years of age.

Mears spends much of his time riding horseback, and one day sees a pretty girl, the daughter of a neighboring farmer, picking daisies in the fields. He introduces himself to her and commences a flirtation, after a time winning the trusting girls love.

Before he leaves for the city he gets the girl, Viola Martin, to promise to follow him to the city and meet him there, promising that he will marry her. The marriage is never celebrated, Mears puts off the wedding again and again until at last, after five years have passed, Viola realizes that he no longer loves her. Her heart broken by his neglect, she leaves him and starts back for her country home.

Viola never reaches her home, but drops of exhaustion in the very field of daisies where she had first met Mears. Realizing that she can go no further she writes a farewell note to Mears, recounting the history of their meeting in the form of a beautiful poem. The farewell is never finished, for, overcome by her grief, she sinks lifeless among the pretty daisies that she had loved so well.

A sheet of paper on which she has written is blown away by the wind and gets into the hands of Robert Burton, who is staying in that part of the country seeking inspiration for a new play. Burton discovers the body of the girl in the field and finds the rest of her manuscript, never suspecting, however, that the villain who had wronged her was John Mears.

Upon the verses written by the dying Viola, Burton bases his new play, which turns out to be a tremendous success. When it is seen by Mears, he recognizes the story to be that of the much wronged Viola. Overcome by remorse he returns to his home and makes away with his worthless life, leaving another to write the eulogy of Burton's triumph.

EDISON

THE HONOR OF THE FORCE (Sept. 22).—The third precinct police force had always been the pride of Captain Doolin's heart, and he trusted everyone of the men. Unfortunately, the captain's trust was not entirely warranted. Dan Slater was the weak link of the force. A man with two masters, he gave the balance of his services to the master who paid most. Unhappily for the third precinct, that master was Big Tucker. Heavily interested as Tucker was in the saloon industry, the fact that he was unable to buy protection for the occasional irregularities of the business had always been a sore point with him. To gain a few sorely-needed recruits from the ranks of Captain Doolin's force, he influenced the heads of the various liquor interests in the city to sign a paper granting him a considerable sum of money for the purpose of buying the services of any other policemen who might be of Dan Slater's frame of mind.

Like many other well-laid plans, Big Tucker's scheme had an unexpected result, for the paper fell into Captain Doolin's hands. To get it back, Big Tucker arranged that Captain Doolin should be lured away from home by a pre-arranged fight in a saloon. During his absence, one of the gang entered the house, abstracted the paper from the captain's desk, and carried it out to Slater, who waited behind the back fence. The "put up job" did not hold the captain so long as had been expected, and he returned in time to grapple with the burglar in the back yard. The burglar knocked him senseless, but not before the captain had caught a glimpse of a policeman's uniform behind the fence.

When the Central Office detective told Doolin to say that he had found a brass button by the fence, Slater made a swift, involuntary movement to see if it could have fallen from his coat. After that it was not very hard to track him downtown, and to arrest the criminal boss and the erring policeman just as the incriminating paper was being handed over.

THE STROKE OF THE PHOEBUS EIGHT (Sept. 23).—Eric Barclay had been the stroke of the Phoebus Eight for so long that there seemed little likelihood of his ever giving place to a newcomer. And so, he pulled the stroke oar steadily through the season of training before the big race, while Dick Moreton fumed on the bank, and impatiently cursed himself for being so poor an oarsman.

It was not only on the river that Dick was made to feel his inferiority to Barclay. The athletic prowess and brilliant conversation of the older man were not without their effect on Violet Lanby, and when Barclay was about, poor Dick felt very much in the way.

Barclay, filled with a due appreciation of his own merits, affected a sublime disregard for such trivial matters as the coach's orders, and formed the habit of appearing for practice anywhere from five to fifteen minutes after the appointed time.

On one such occasion he discovered to his indignation that the shell had set off with Dick Moreton in his place. To his further dismay, he learned that the coach had grown tired of his dilatory tactics, had found much to praise in Dick's rowing, and had decided to give Barclay's place in the boat to Dick permanently.

Barclay's true character was clearly shown in the light of his later actions. In the first place, he persuaded Barbara, Violet's sister, to endeavor to make Dick break training. When this scheme failed, Barclay went to Bill Whittle, a waterman, who had an ancient grudge against Dick. Whittle readily consented to Barclay's plan.

On the day of the race, Whittle and two confederates overpowered Dick and shut him up in a deserted boathouse. When the time came for the crew to start, Moreton could not be found, and Barclay was given his old place as a matter of necessity.

Dick strained at his bonds until his breath came in gasps and his heart nearly stopped. At length, he slipped out of them. Whittle, who had nodded on his watch, was no match for the unconquerable resolution that urged Dick on. One fierce blow, and Dick was running full-speed to the boathouse. He got there just in time to oust Barclay from his place and—the Phoebus Eight won the race! Moreover, Dick won Violet.

THE EMBARRASSMENT OF RICHES (Sept. 24),—Pat Clancy was perfectly contented with his life until a singular occurrence took place at the quarry in which he worked. Just after a blast had been set off, a strange, white-bearded little man arose out of the smoke and dust. He told Pat that he had been imprisoned in the rock for a million years, and offered to grant any wish he might make, as a reward for having released him. Pat, stunned with joy, wished that he might be a millionaire. The strange figure waved its arms and vanished.

At the beginning of the glorious period of prosperity, Pat rolled down to a mahogany-lined office in a princely limousine to the utter amazement of his friends and neighbors. At the office, he found that a rich man's labors, although different, are

A RACE FOR LIFE WITH RAVENOUS WOLVES

"The Blacksnake"

3,350 feet of snappy, sensational incident, including a race for life with a fierce wolf pack over snow-clad Russian plains.

D'OLTON'S LAST STAND

SAVED FROM THE SEA

"Red Powder"

Wonderful explosion scenes and a narrative of absorbing heart interest.

"Acting perfect, photography clear as crystal, settings well chosen, story good."

—Moving Picture World
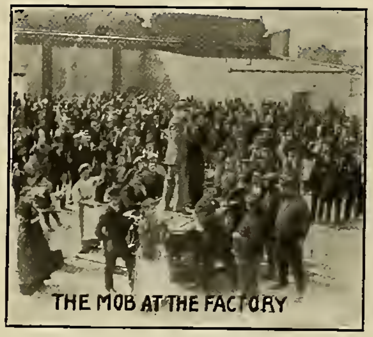
Sept. 6.



THE MOB AT THE FACTORY

A DESPERATE GAME

"A Bargain with Satan"

Wild student life of Prague depicted in a gripping story of mysticism, love and despair.

BARTERING THE PRICE OF A SOUL FOR A WOMAN'S SMILE

Coming!

"Peter Makaroff, the Goldmaker"

"The Fall of France"
Or "1870"

"London by Night"

Thrilling horse races, picturesque cabaret scenes, fire in sailors' lodging house, etc. A smashing "punch" in each of the 3,350 feet!

Coming!

"Ave Maria"

"The Engine of Death"

"By Whose Hand?"

FEATURE BUYERS! There's a good chance for a "clean up" with any one of the "big four" above!
A complete line of lithographed pictorial advertising with each.

APEX FILM CO.

145 West 45th Street, New York City
35 Little Newport Street, London, W.

no less arduous than those of a day laborer. Importunate stenographers, anxious clerks, and a constantly-ringing telephone served to throw Pat into a state bordering on nervous prostration. At last, he seized a fire extinguisher as the only solution, and drove the entire force out of the office.

Nor was his experience at dinner with his wife and her new fashionable friends any more restful. For Pat was unversed in the devious ways of salad and oyster forks, and, moreover, his shoes were far too tight. To relieve the latter source of anguish, he took off the uncomfortable shoes. The inevitable discovery of his action did not make matters more comfortable either for Pa or his wife.

An attempt on the part of his new friends to initiate Pat in the mysteries of the ancient game of golf proved the final straw. Pat's shoes still hurt him, and "hegorra, he could not hit the little white pill wid th' funny lookin' stick at all." Utterly tired and disillusioned, he went down to the seashore with the intention of ending his troubles forever. Just as he was about to throw himself in the water, the Earth Gnome appeared and restrained him.

Pat prayed that he and his family might he restored to their former blissful state of poverty. The gnome consented, and we leave Pat happy and contented in his old surroundings devouring an appetizing mess of corned beef and cabbage.

HARD CASH (Special—2 parts—Sept. 26).—Captain David Dodd, of the good ship "Agra," set sail for home, carrying with him fourteen thousand pounds in hard cash. After nearly losing the money in a fierce battle with pirates and again during a violent storm, the captain gave a sigh of relief when he at length reached home and deposited his fortune in Hardie's bank, a conservative institution with an iron-clad reputation.

Unhappily the captain's sense of security did not last long. Richard Hardie, the president of the bank, had been caught in the maelstrom of speculation. When Dodd deposited the fourteen thousand pounds, the bank was on the verge of bankruptcy. Learning of the danger to his hard-earned money, Dodd returned to the bank on the same afternoon and demanded its return. Hardie refused on the ground that it was after business hours, and Dodd fell to the ground in a fit of apoplexy. His mind was unhinged by the blow and he was removed to an insane asylum.

Alfred Hardie, Richard's son, was deeply in love with Captain Dodd's daughter, Julia, entirely against the wishes of Richard, who wished him to marry an heiress. Alfred overheard the scene hetween Dodd and Hardie and, outraged at his father's duplicity, demanded that the money should be returned.

With the money safely in his hands, and Dodd a maniac, Hardie was too hard pressed to let anything stand in the way of his urgent needs. Spurred on hy an unconquerable ambition he entered into an agreement with a dishonest doctor, and had Alfred inveigled from home and incarcerated in the same asylum with old Captain Dodd.

But there was another source of danger with which Hardie had not reckoned. Skinner, the old confidential clerk in his office, had slyly taken the receipt from Dodd's hand as he lay in his apoplectic fit. Hardie, who had confidently believed the receipt was lost, was stunned when Skinner suavely informed him that it was in his possession. and coolly demanded blackmail. Meanwhile Alfred Hardie and Captain Dodd had been suffering all the torments of the outrageous insane asylum system of the day. At last, they managed to escape together during a fire, and fled to the seacoast. The sight of salt water restored the sailor's memory and he thought of his fourteen thousand pounds. Skinner's opportune death and repentance put the receipt for the money in Alfred's hands. Together he and Dodd went to Hardie's office, where they found a man overcome with remorse and shame who was only too willing to make every restitution in his power.

A PROPOSAL FROM THE SCULPTOR—Being the third story of "Who Will Marry Mary" (Sept. 27).—The "artistic temperament" is so generally recognized as a necessary quality of all authors, poets, painters, actors, dentists, auctioneers, bartenders and other dilettanti, that we are quite accustomed to attribute all trifling vagaries of such people to its influence. Hence when Hugo Adair, almost in the twinkling of an eye, changed his allegiance from one woman to another, the "artistic temperament" was doubtless entirely to blame. Adair had just finished his greatest masterpiece in sculpture when he met Mary Cuyler. During the long weeks of careful workmanship in completing the statue, he had become very fond of Leta Nesbitt, the little model who had posed so faithfully and well, with the result that he finally proposed to her and was accepted. The next day he met Mary.

From the moment he met her, Adair proceeded to forget all about the promise he had made to Leta. After Mary had unveiled the statue at his express desire, the sculptor overwhelmed her with flowers and parties at dinner and the theater. As we have probably mentioned before, Mary was a very sensible girl, but it is certain that she was very greatly attracted by the handsome young artist with his brilliane humar and undeniable talents. The little model, saddened by her future husband's neglect, discovered a note to Adair from Mary, in which she thanked him for some roses he had sent her, and accepted his invitation for dinner that night. With all her sadness changed to fear and jealousy, she followed Adair to the restaurant. His attitude towards Mary left little doubt in her tormented heart. That evening, Adair proposed to Mary. Not quite knowing what to say, she told him to come to her again in half an hour. As she pondered over the true state of her feelings, the little model burst into her presence and tearfully denounced her for alienating her lover's affections. A little later when the anxious Adair came to learn his fate, Mary met his eager words with cold, searching eyes that made him hang his head. Without a word she left him and brought the little model into the room. Without a word, she watched the remorseful Adair walk out into the night beside the forgiving Leta. Without a word, she turned away. That is, without a spoken word. Tears are not words.

KALEM.

THE COUNTERFEITER'S CONFEDERATE (Sept. 22).—Marion and May, two-year-old twins, are the pride of the Chesapeake Foundling Asylum. But there comes a time when it is decided to separate them, since no one is inclined to adopt them both.

May is the first to go and falls into the hands of an unscrupulous woman—a professional beggar. Marion becomes the daughter of a wealthy English couple, who shortly afterward return to England.

Twenty years pass. May is a notorious counterfeiter. A raid by Federal officers results in the capture of her confederates, but she makes her escape.

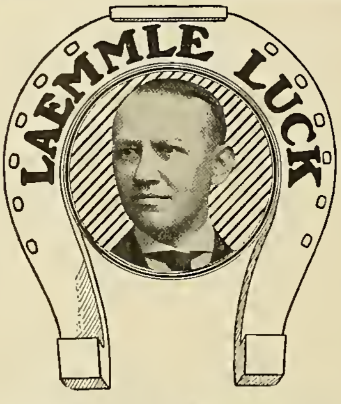
Marion's adopted parents die, leaving a document which informs her of her twin sister. She determines to find her and leaves for America. A falling hrick injures her shortly after her arrival and she is taken to a hospital where her physician falls in love with her. His mother invites Marion to her home.

Marion is accosted by one of the counterfeiters, who believes she is May, while walking with the doctor. The doctor repulses the man. The latter decides upon revenge and decoys Marion to a house where with a companion to aid him he binds her. The men leave and May arrives in their absence. She is followed by the doctor a few moments later, he having traced Marion to the house. Just as the sisters are about to embrace, the counterfeiters return. Seeing the doctor one of the men shoots at him, but May interposes her body and receives the bullet in her breast. She dies just as the police break into the room. Thus, after twenty years, the sisters meet, only to part forever.

A MIDNIGHT MESSAGE (Special—2 parts—Sept. 24).—When Thomas Douglas, an elderly widower, marries Sybil he does not take into account that the difference in their ages would prevent the interests of the two from being in common.

Douglas' son, Harold, does not see his stepmother until after the marriage, and then the fact they are of the same age soon makes them fast friends. Douglas, at first pleased because of the friendship of the two, gradually allows himself to suspect them of being in love with each other—a suspicion fanned by a cynical friend who magnifies harmless incidents. The father decides to verify his suspicions and announces that he must leave the city. Upon his father's departure, Harold makes his home at the club.

That night as Sybil is removing her jewels she notices the butler watching her with avaricious eyes. Leaving the room for a moment she returns to find the butler turned thief. He knocks her down and ties her, but she manages to crawl to the 'phone on her table and tells Harold of her predicament. He arrives in time to fell the thief, and catches Sybil in his arms as she faints. Douglas enters the room at this moment and believes his suspicions well-founded. The butler tells him he has been assaulted by Harold when he discovered making love to Sybil. Douglas orders his son to



Does This Mean You?

I understand there are some exhibitors who actually have not taken the trouble to look at Universal films for months. What short-sightedness!!! If you belong to that class of men, you don't deserve success. In the film business things change with lightning rapidity. The Universal has gone 'way ahead of all others, and I CAN PROVE IT IF YOU'LL CALL AT ANY OF MY OFFICES. Do you care for proof or not?

CARL LAEMMLE, President

The Laemmle Film Service

204 West Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
252-A Hennepin Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.
1312 Farnum Street, Omaha, Neb.
Hubbell Building, Des Moines, Iowa

Agents for All Makes of Machines and Accessories

"The Biggest and Best Film Renter in the World"

SPECIAL TO-DAY
MONEY TO BURN
EDISON

Make Your Lobby Display Attractive

There is nothing more fascinating to the public than a bright brass frame to display your photos or posters. We make Lobby and Theatre Fixtures and Brass Rails of every description.

Don't fail to visit our complete Show Rooms at

101 - 103 FOURTH AVE., NEW YORK, N. Y.

Write for Catalog

Established 1882.

The Newman Mfg. Co

715-721 Sycamore St.
Cincinnati, Ohio

COMING

Rogues of Paris

Three Reels

Solax

Thrilling and Sensational

Big Assortment of Advertising Matter

SOLAX COMPANY, FORT LEE, NEW JERSEY

Will the Laugh Be On You

WHEN THE

EXCLUSIVE PROGRAM

IS TAKEN FOR YOUR TERRITORY?

What opinion of you as a business man will your exhibitors have when they learn that you did not contract for the

EXCLUSIVE PROGRAM

containing these brands of super-excellence

Gaumont Ramo Itala Great Northern Dragon Eclectic
Solax Ammex Film Releases of America Lewis Pennant
Blache American Features

Also the All Star Feature Corporation's Master-Plays, beginning with Augustus Thomas' "ARIZONA"

WEEKLY PROGRAM

5 Three-Reel Features 7 Regular Releases

EXCLUSIVE SUPPLY CORPORATION

220 West 42nd Street, New York City

What Does "Paper" Mean In the Renting of a Feature?

Could Other Than a FEATURE Make Honestly and Accurately Possible Such Scenes as are Represented on These Lithographs?

1 sheet:—Woman, dead, partly submerged by snow; baby, covered with mother's sacrificed clothing; man hastening toward them.

3 " Man in a battle with a bull.

6 " Dead man being borne on a rude bier by forest rangers, through the winter woodland; girl responsible for his death being roughly thrown aside by enraged son of the dead man.

THESE ARE EVENTS, ACTUAL, VITAL, REAL, IN

"THE VOICE OF THE WILD"

(2 REELS)

Film Releases of America

Exclusive Supply Corporation (Distributors)

220 West 42nd Street New York City

atone for his offense by doing away with himself. Harold leaves the room, pistol in hand. Afterwards Douglas discovers his error. Harold, who can see no reason for his father's accusation, throws the pistol to the floor where it explodes. Douglas, hearing the report, believes that his son has done away with himself. The shock is too great for his heart. Although he learns of his mistake when Harold enters the room, he passes away, smiling a request at his wife and son for forgiveness.

THE HOBO AND THE MYTH (Sept. 26).—Bill interrupts a dress rehearsal in a wooded section, being held by several society girls who are to give classical dances at an entertainment. The girls hit upon the idea of having Bill portray the role of the mythical Pan at the entertainment. Bill is entirely satisfied, especially so as the girls dress him in good clothes in order that he look the part of a gentleman.

The entertainment comes 'round, and Bill, introduced as "Professor Hobo," makes a hit with the guests. He gets into his Pan costume when he notices a bowl containing champagne punch. Before long Bill is under the weather, and just before the dance commences starts a fight. He is chased out of the house, down the street and into a freight yard just as the freight trains pulls out. Bill hops into a box car and escapes his pursuers. Waving good-bye, Bill reclines on the floor and pipes himself a tune on the pipe of Pan.

THE LARGEST DUCK FARM IN THE WORLD (Sept. 26).—Fifteen thousand ducks feeding at one time is one of the interesting scenes shown in the picture of a Long Island duck farm, the largest in the world.

The method of preparing and selecting these fowl for market is interesting and educational. It is safe to say that a more interesting picture of its kind has never been projected upon a screen.

A DEMAND FOR JUSTICE (Sept. 27).—The fact that the building of the dam at Fenwood would be unconstitutional and would rob the citizens of the town of their homes, mattered nothing to George Marvin, of the Marvin Water Corporation. And he orders his attorney, Jason Williams, to draw up a bill for the legislature authorizing the construction of the project.

But Williams, who loves Alice, Marvin's daughter, refuses to be a party to the scheme and informs his employer that he does not propose to aid him in breaking the laws of the State. Furious, Marvin discharges him, and when Alice declares her determination to help her sweetheart, she is ordered from the house.

The bill is rushed through the legislature by Marvin's tools, and signed by a corrupt governor. The passage of this bill causes a tremendous sensation and the people of Fenwood appeal to Williams to act as their attorney and save their homes. Rushing to the capital, Williams secures an injunction from the Supreme Court halting Marvin's men just as they are in the act of evicting the Fenwood citizens from their homes. When the injunction is made permanent, the people are wild with joy, and in their gratitude announce their determination to make Williams their next member of Congress. Balked at every turn, Marvin finally acknowledges his defeat and becomes reconciled to Williams and Alice, giving them his blessing.

LUBIN.

POKER PAID (Sept. 22).—Tom Smithson is greatly in debt. His creditors besiege him at all places and corners. One day he hears a bunch of his tormentors playing poker in the reception room. Tom is some player and he conceives a bright trick. He disguises himself, sneaks down the fire-escape, slides in the back door, and joins the party. He looks like an easy mark and the card players cheerfully let him into the game. In very short order Tom has cleaned the bunch out, and as they have no more money in their pockets to play with the game is ended. Tom then goes back to his room and primping up in his best, comes down, cheerfully greeting his friends and pays all of their bills, with his winnings.

THIS ISN'T JOHN (Sept. 22).—The boys are going camping and they send John Hickey a letter asking him to accompany them. He wants to go, but his wife objects. He has to fake a plan, which he does. He arranges a fake drowning. He gets a fisherman friend to wet his clothes in the river, and return them to his wife and daughters with the story that they were found on the bank. While the fisherman is sousing the garments in the water, and John is standing by watching the proceeding, his youngest daughter and her sweetheart, Harry, happen to pass on the pier above and see them. They hurry home to inform the folks and arrive just after the fisherman has delivered the clothes and told the falsehood. They explain the whole affair as they saw it, and upon inspection they find the tell-tale letter still in the pocket. They accept Harry's idea that if John wishes to be a dead one, it will be a good plan to let him be dead. John returns from the trip dead broke, poker cleaned him out. His wife and daughter refuse to recognize him, even his office employees, who have been put wise, ignore him. He tries to send a telegram, but the operator refuses to accept it collect. He goes home to make one last appeal and is taken back on the condition that he eat the letter that led him into the trouble. He does so, but Maud pleads, and he gets a concession in the shape of permission to eat it between two slices of bread.

A MEXICAN TRAGEDY (Sept. 23).—Manuel Terrizar, inn-keeper in a small Mexican town, professes to be in sympathy with the revolution; his son, Miguel, joins the insurrectos. Teresa, Terrizar's daughter, and Gen. Laredo, leader of the revolutionists, are sweethearts. The federal government sends an agent, Sancho, to Terrizar, offering a large reward if he will accomplish the secret assassination of Laredo. Terrizar's greed for gold triumphs and he agrees to try the scheme. Terrizar invites Gen. Laredo to the inn that night for Teresa's betrothal feast. Laredo accepts. Later, Teresa, while serving refreshments, overhears some details of the plot, and terrified, tries to leave the inn to warn Laredo. She is seized by Terrizar and locked in a side room, from which it is impossible to escape or send word to her lover. Laredo, accompanied only by Miguel as a guard, arrives for the feast. Teresa is released and told by her father that his life will be in danger if she warns Laredo. The girl sits through the feast unable to speak for fear that in saving her lover she will sacrifice her father. Miguel is plied with wine to get him out of the way. Then the boy is carried upstairs and dumped into the room at the right of the landing. Miguel, aroused, later staggers into the hallway as if to go down stairs, then changes his mind and entering the room at the left of the landing, falls across the bed in a stupor. The feast over, Terrizar persuades Laredo to spend the rest of the night at the inn and conducts him to and sees him enter the room at the left of the landing. Teresa, at the last moment, tries to warn Laredo, but she is bound and gagged. In the left room Laredo finds Miguel, tries in vain to arouse him, then decides to find another bed. He goes into the hallway, finds the opposite door open and retires in the empty room at the right of the landing. The plot to kill Laredo falls on Terrizar. He draws his knife, ascends the stairs and blowing out the hall lamp, enters the room at the left of the landing. A moment later he returns to the drinking room, announcing that he has killed Laredo. In the morning Laredo, ignorant of events, descends the stairs to the room where the conspirators are sleeping at the tables. The conspirators are terrified, believing that Laredo's ghost is walking. When he speaks to them they realize there has been a slip. Wildly, Terrizar rushes upstairs and into the left room, where he finds that he has killed his son.

SELF-CONVICTED (Special—2 parts—Sept. 25).—The plot deals with the life of an honest man living down a mistake of his youth, when, to aid his dying mother, he participated in robbery. After skipping bail, he eventually becomes a detective and is put on his own trail. With his wife and children on one hand, and on the other a record for never failing to get his man, his police training finally conquers and he arrests himself. Expiation and happiness follow, when his superior destroys the Bertillon records of the case.

Jim McKefren, called "Mac," loses his position as a machinist through a cutting down of the forces. Two other men, also discharged, approach him with a plan to rob the safe in the mill office. Driven to desperation by a letter saying that immediate funds are required to save his mother's life, "Mac" consents. He is arrested. One of his pals furnishes bail, which he jumps, securing work as a strikebreaker in a Western city. There he meets Esther Church and through her Mac brings the strike to an end. He finds work on the local detective force, having changed his name. Ten years elapse. Mac, his appearance completely changed, is married to Esther and is on the New York detective force. With a reputation for never failing to land his quarry, he is put on the Denver Jim case, thus becoming his own pursuer. He studies his own finger prints and Bertillon measurements. His wife suspects and finally, through a ruse, discovers his guilt. To his superior's repeated question, "Have you found 'Denver' Jim?" he finally answers "Yes," and produces the evidence of his own guilt. His superior places all evidence in the case in the grate and requests Mac to light a match to it.

PHOTOGRAPHS FOR LOBBY DISPLAY

size 8x10 of all 2 and 3-reel FEATURES of the following: KALEM, EDISON, THANHOUSER, LUBIN, BRONCHO, KAY-BEE, RELIANCE, PILOT, MAJESTIC, AMERICAN.

Set of 12, $2.00. Set of 6, $1.00.

KRAUS MFG. CO., 14 E. 17th St., N. Y.

DISTRIBUTORS WANTED IN CANADA, FAR WEST and SOUTH for our PHOTO PLAYERS POST CARDS, Association and Independent, 300 different players.

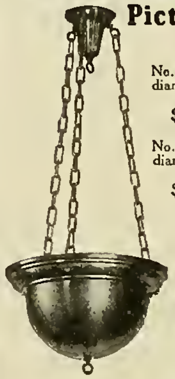
OUR CATALOGUE OF

Brush Electric Lighting Sets

contain more useful information about electric lighting in general than any other book ever issued. Write for it today.

THE CHAS. E. STRELINGER CO.,
Box MP-2, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A.

Indirect Lights for Moving Picture Theatres



No. 51

No. 51.—15" diam., 36" long $6.00

No. 52.—20" diam., 36" long $8.00

No. S3 Brackets $1.65 Complete with green art shade

Cannot be duplicated for double the money in any local chandelier store. We make a specialty of lighting. Write us.

NOTE. Send for circular showing very latest novelties for first class moving picture theatres.

GENERAL SPECIALTY CO.
409 Morgan Street St. Louis, Mo.

MUSIC
For Moving Pictures

Violin, Flute, Clarinet, Cornet and Drum parts have been added to the popular "Orpheum Collection" of piano music. Practical for piano alone or any number of above instruments with piano.

Prices for First Series (No. 1)

Piano 58 cts. Violin 40 cts. Flute 35 cts. Clarinet 35 cts. Cornet 35 cts. Drums 30 cts. Other parts are in preparation. Send for free sample page.

The second series (No. 2.), is same instrumentation and price as No. 1. No. 3 is ready for piano alone; other parts in preparation. (This is dramatic and descriptive stuff; not dance music.) Now being used in every part of the English speaking world.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1501 SEDGWICK ST. CHICAGO, ILL.

COMING

Solax

Rogues of Paris

Three Reels

Thrilling and Sensational Big Assortment of Advertising Matter

SOLAX COMPANY, FORT LEE, NEW JERSEY

Common Sense Tells You What You See You Can Believe

Would we in our ads. offer to send you large demonstration samples inviting you to subject same to any tests you could conceive of?

Would we ask you to take our samples and test them against any curtain or screen in your town?

Mirroroide, not like other metalized cloth, will not turn black, crack, peel or tarnish, regardless of climatic conditions. Mirroroide is the only metalized cloth screen that has the original matte or rough surface. It's the only screen that does not lose the picture close up, or at an angle view. The cloth is canvas metalized by automatic machinery (not painted with an ordinary brush or coated with an air brush). It's waterproof. It's sold under a five year guarantee.

Buy the Best

And obtain permanent results. Guaranteed results. Mirroroide is in use in over 4800 theaters the world over. Mirroroide is endorsed by over 2500 exhibitors. Why?

Only Too True. Buy the Best. Mirroroide is the Best

Mirroroide is now made in two grades, medium matte, heavy matte: three different shades, silver white, silver flesh, pale gold. Every grade quality. Every grade guaranteed.

Get our large free samples. Now made in absolutely one piece form. New stretching device that adds no expense. Buy the screen. We tell you how to hang. That insures permanent results.

J. H. GENTER CO., Inc.
Newburgh, N. Y.

MOVING PICTURE THEATRE Mailing Lists For Sale

17,522, United States and Canada, $40.00, or $3.50 per thousand for such States as you want.

Also

648 Film Echanges, U. S.,	$3.50
49 Manufacturers & Studios, U. S.,	1.00
34 Moving Picture Machine Mfrs. & Dealers,	1.00
231 Film Exchanges, Foreign Countries,	3.00
520 Moving Picture Theatres, Foreign Countries,	3.00

This is the largest and most complete and correct list of Moving Picture Theatres to be had any place in United States; also Film Exchanges. This list has just been corrected up with all 1913 City Directories and Telephone Books in United States; also the Exhibitors at the recent exhibition at New York, together with several Film Exchange Companies' Mailing Lists, all consolidated into this, duplicates thrown out, names thrown out that have come back within a recent mailing and new names added to.

We also furnish all other classes of Mailing Lists covering United States and Foreign Countries.

Ask for our "SILENT SALESMAN" No. 61, for September.

Send check with order.

Trade Circular Addressing Co.
166 West Adams Street, Chicago
Established 1880

The owner of the HATHAWAY Theatres should know. He says:—

Radium Gold Fibre Screen

"is giving excellent satisfaction in every way"

Middletown, N. Y., 9/8/13.

Mr. G. H. Callaghan,
Broadway and 42d Street,
New York City.

Dear Mr. Callaghan:

Replying to your letter of the 7th relative to the new Radium Gold Fibre Screen, which we are using in the Stratton Theater at Middletown, would beg to state that so far the Screen is giving excellent satisfaction, in every way.

Very truly yours,
O. S. Hathaway.

American Theatre Curtain & Supply Company
105 N. Main Street, Sole Manufacturers, ST. LOUIS, MO.

G. H. CALLAGHAN, 1465 Broadway, New York
GEORGE BRECK, 70 Turk St., San Francisco, Cal.
DISTRIBUTORS

Eventually

When you are through experimenting with white walls, aluminum paints and metalized screens such as so-called gold and imitation of our name, you will buy a

Mirror Screen

Because it gives the most artistic, the brightest and clearest picture and is the greatest money getter for your theatre in the world and lasts forever

$1,000.00 $1,000.00

Forfeit if the Mirror Screen is not the most perfect surface in the world for the projection of Motion Pictures

Mirror Screen Co.
Shelbyville, Ind.

F. J. Rembusch, Pres.

Write today for our new snow-white finish and catalogue.

Why Not Now?

WINNING HIS WIFE (Sept. 26).—Ashton Royce, against the advice of his friends, marries a pretty little country girl, who after her marriage quickly develops a liking for society, so much so, that she has little time for her husband and apparently not understanding each other they are gradually drifting apart. Royce, who is a millionaire and lacking occupation, is worried and unhappy without being able to properly define or rectify the situation. Both husband and wife love each other and give no opportunity for complaint, but something is out of gear and neither knows exactly what it is. Royce, to relieve his mind, goes camping. One day reading the Ramayana he comes across the couplet referring to Sita's demand that she shall share Rama's exile. This gives him an idea and he writes to Margie that her mother is ill. Margie comes and is taken by Royce to his camp. At first she is very angry at the deception, but in a few days she chances upon the book and gets his idea. When Royce returns with the fish he has caught for supper, Margie has settled down and draws his attention to a couplet that completes the story.

THE GREAT DISCOVERY (Sept. 27).—John Harold is absorbed in scientific research. During a period of idleness he falls in love with and marries Adeline Rupert. Soon after his marriage, his health restored, Harold returns to his laboratory, becoming engrossed in his work. He does not cease to love Adeline, but simply forgets her. She, not understanding, is hurt and offended. Even the birth of his child, occurring at a time when his experiments are at a critical stage, scarcely attracts his notice. Harry Rogers, a trusted but false friend, attempts to take advantage of Harold's inattention to make advances to Adeline, which she indignantly repulses. Harold's preoccupation prevents his observing the most obvious familiarities on the part of Rogers, and Adeline attributes his non-interference to indifference. Her outraged pride can no longer brook the situation and she leaves, taking her child, and presently secures poorly paid employment. Harold is the easy victim of fraud and is soon robbed of his fortune by Rogers, a matter which does not trouble him greatly, as he is allowed to take with him his scientific apparatus and papers when turned out. In a single poor room of a tenement house, Harold contrives to live and continue his researches. His poverty becomes abject and his health is being completely sacrificed. At last his toil is rewarded —an intricate but chance combination of ingredients shows a result unmistakable in its promise. At this moment the tenement house takes fire; he frantically gathers up his books and notes and the more precious of his specimens and starts to make his escape. On the narrow stair he stumbles over a child overcome by the smoke. In Harold's heart there is a desperate struggle, the life of this child is of so little consequence to the world in comparison with the flagons and papers with which his arms are filled. But the human instinct triumphs; he drops the precious fruit of his life's toil, picks up the child, staggers to safety and sinks down as a frantic woman snatches the child from his arms. It is his own child he has saved, and it is Adeline who nurses him back to health and strength. Though hurt, pride forced her to leave him; Adeline has never ceased to love her husband. Harold realizes that the great discovery is lost to him forever, but this does not disturb him greatly; he is happy in his new found love for wife and child. Several simple practical chemical discoveries are now recalled and serve to establish the reunited family in simple comfort.

ESSANAY.

FOR OLD TIME'S SAKE (Sept. 23).—Tess Lawson breaks her engagement to Will when she finds he is dishonest and afterwards marries Charles Pine. One night, a few years after her marriage, the girl alone in the house, surprises a burglar in the midst of his operations. As she calls the police the man unmasks and she recognizes Will. He begs her for old time's sake to let him go, but before he can get away a policeman arrives, and as the girl is explaining to him that it is all a mistake and that the gentleman is a visitor, her husband enters. He overhears the statement and recognizing his wife's former fiance, misunderstands the situation. Some latent spark of manhood arises in Will and rather than escape at the expense of the sacrifice Tess is making for him, he calls back the police officer and gives himself up as a burglar. When he shows his tools and bag of loot, even the husband is satisfied and begs forgiveness of his wife for the suspicion.

LOVE INCOGNITO (Sept. 24).—Jack has fallen in love with an unknown beauty, and when he and his friend Tom meet her on the street, he is overjoyed to find his friend is acquainted with her, but furious at Tom's failure to introduce him. Knowing that Edith's family are in need of a butler, Tom proposes to Jack that he apply for the job, just for a lark. Jack does, and just to see him "butle" is a picnic. He gets in wrong with everybody but Edith's father, who discovers that "Wilson," their former butler, is young Mr. Fuller, one of the richest bachelors in town. Edith and Jack to each other's arms.

No. 2
EASEL

IT PAYS
to make an attractive
LOBBY DISPLAY
Our Photo and Poster
Frames are it

Best Quality { Brass / Compoboard / Glass } Used

Hanging Frames, with Glass $4
Easel Frames : : : : 6

Write for our Prices
on other styles

Theatre Specialty Mfg. Co.
357 W. 42d St., New York
Main Office and Factory,
Cleveland, Ohio.

AMERICAN MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS

are acknowledged by the leading expert film producers to be the finest and most accurate Cameras in the world.

We also manufacture a complete line of Studio and Dark Room Equipment.

AGENTS FOR EASTMAN RAW FILM

Send for Catalogues

American Cinematograph Co.
617-631 W. Jackson Blvd. Chicago, Ill.

LET US DO YOUR

Developing and Printing

WE WILL DEVELOP YOUR NEGATIVE, MAKE YOU A POSITIVE PRINT AND SHIP WITHIN 24 HOURS FOR 5c PER FOOT COMPLETE.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED BY OUR FIFTEEN YEARS' EXPERIENCE

EASTMAN STOCK USED ON ALL OUR WORK

FILM TITLES and ANNOUNCEMENTS
3 Feet for 25 Cents
IN ANY LENGTH

GUNBY BROS., Inc.
199 Third Ave. New York City

NEW MACHINES

TIME or CASH

ALL MAKES

A Modern Machine Will Double the Profits

SEND FOR NEW CATALOG

Allowance Made on Your Old Outfit

We have some BARGAINS in REBUILT MACHINES.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO.
" Everything from Screen to Booth "
160A No. Fifth Ave. CHICAGO

DAYS OF THE PONY EXPRESS (Sept. 25).—Farley, the express and mail messenger for a small Western town, is engaged to the daughter of the postmaster. He gives her a little folding telescope through which she watches up the mountain road for his coming every day. The postmaster receives word that a large amount of money is coming through the mail on a certain day. Jealousy prompts the clerk, who gets hold of the information to communicate it to two notorious bandits. When the day arrives they hold up the mail messenger and get possession of his sack. Farley, on arriving in town, without his mail is arrested and taken away by the sheriff. His sweetheart watches him through the telescope as he disappears up the mountain road, and in turning her head a little she sees the bandits dividing the contents of the mail sack. They are hidden from the road by the brush and foliage of the woods. Mounting her horse she rides after the sheriff and his prisoner and brings them back to where the thieves are. The bandits are captured, the money and mail recovered, and Farley happily restored to his freedom and fiancee.

WHY BRONCHO BILLY LEFT BEAR COUNTY (Sept. 27).—Through a kindly act Broncho Billy earns the deep gratitude of Marion Rivers, who presents him with a bible. Not long afterwards, she comes upon him as he is about to hold up the stage, but at sight of the girl he is overwhelmed with shame and taking out the little bible promises her that he will live honorably. In the meantime, Marion's father holds up the stage at another point, and one of the stage-coach drivers, mounting a bareback pony, rides off for the sheriff. Broncho Billy sees Rivers get away with the money, and when he hears the sheriff and his men coming, for Marion's sake he goes to warn her father. To shield him, he takes the bags of money and rides away with the men after him. He leaves the money at the mile post with a note saying: "Sheriff: I'm through with Bear County, this stick-up was my last," and rides across the border.

IN CONVICT GARB (Special—2 parts—Sept 26). —The story of Swayne and "Chub" takes us to the very depths of things, and proves that sometimes it is the gentlemanly fellow of education and polish who is the real criminal, and the poor creature, who through environment and lack of training has of necessity lived the life of a crook, who often raises up under unwonted circumstances as the MAN.

Elliott Swayne, cashier in the bank of which John Deane is president and owner, is absolutely unworthy, but by cleverness and pleasant manner, manages to ingratiate himself into the good graces of the old man. He is invited to the Deane home, where he meets and eventually becomes engaged to Evelyn, the banker's daughter. The cashier, who has gambled with the firm's money, learns that it is up to him to raise $30,000 or have his dishonest operations uncovered. He arranges with the janitor "Chub," whom he knows to be a crook, to rob the bank. On the night of the robbery, "Chub" and a couple of his pals easily manage to get into the building and overpower the watchman, but as they are robbing the safe, several policemen rush in just in time to prevent them from getting away. One of the thieves "squeals" on Swayne, who confesses, and with "Chub" and the other men, is sent to the penitentiary.

Evelyn is horrified when she hears of her fiance's confession, but is consoled by the sympathy of Phillip Warren, an old friend of the family, who she afterwards marries.

Several years later, Warren is appointed warden of the State prison, where Swayne has the misfortune of daily witnessing the happiness of Phillip and Evelyn. "Chub," on account of good behavior, has been made a "trusty," and proves to be a valuable and faithful servant to the warden and his family. The little daughter of the household is especially fond of him, and he becomes greatly attached to her, as she is his constant companion while working around the garden and the house. Swayne has always been a rebellious and sullen prisoner. He finally breaks loose, and with the help of some of his fellow prisoners, who overcome the guards, he goes to the warden's office where he finds Evelyn with her little daughter, and "Chub" who is working about the room. He knocks the "trusty" senseless, and pushing the mother aside, grabs the child and flies. The mother gives the alarm, which sends the warden and his men out on the chase. When "Chub" regains consciousness and learns that Swayne has gotten

COMING

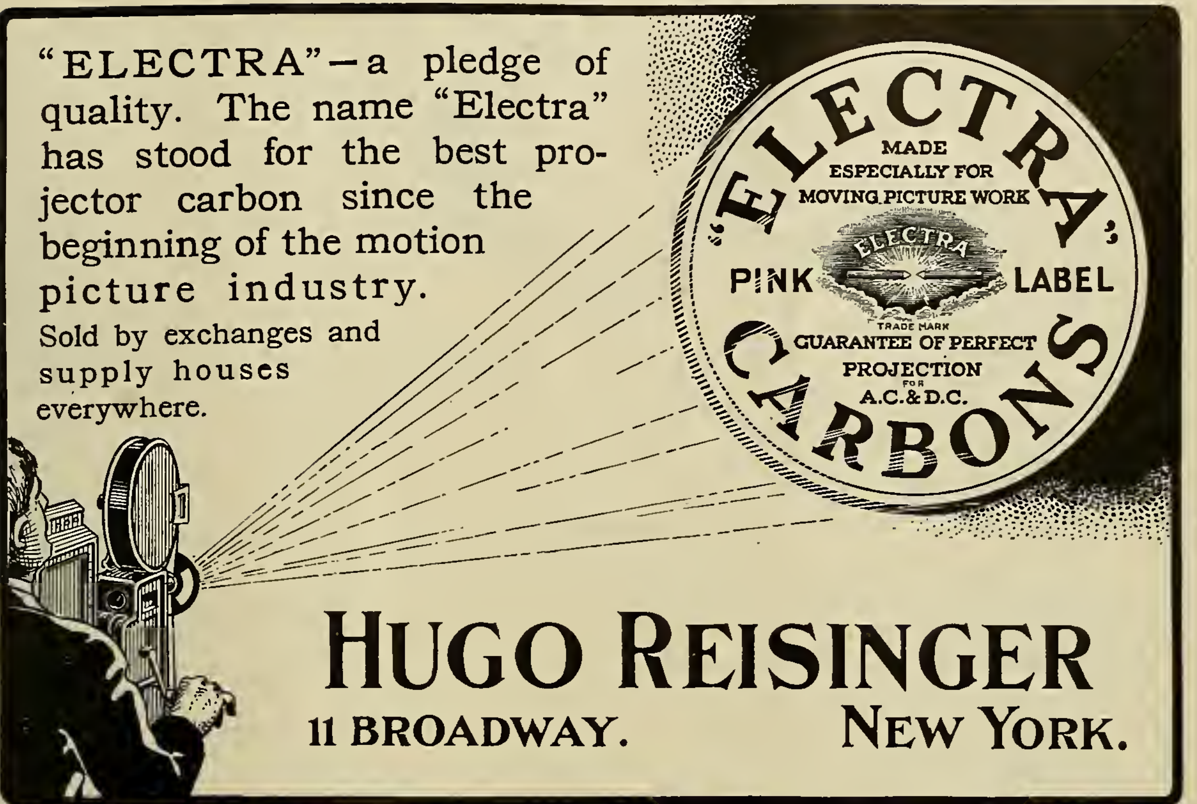
Rogues of Paris

Three Reels

Solax Solax

Thrilling and Sensational Big Assortment of Advertising Matter

SOLAX COMPANY, FORT LEE, NEW JERSEY



"ELECTRA" CARBONS
MADE ESPECIALLY FOR MOVING PICTURE WORK
ELECTRA
TRADE MARK
PINK LABEL
GUARANTEE OF PERFECT PROJECTION FOR A.C.&D.C.

"ELECTRA"—a pledge of quality. The name "Electra" has stood for the best projector carbon since the beginning of the motion picture industry.

Sold by exchanges and supply houses everywhere.

HUGO REISINGER

11 BROADWAY. NEW YORK.

A Letter to HALLBERG the ECONOMIZER MAN

LYRIC THEATRE PALACE THEATRE
ORPHEUM THEATRE

MASON & BREESE
E. H. MASON, GEN. MGR.

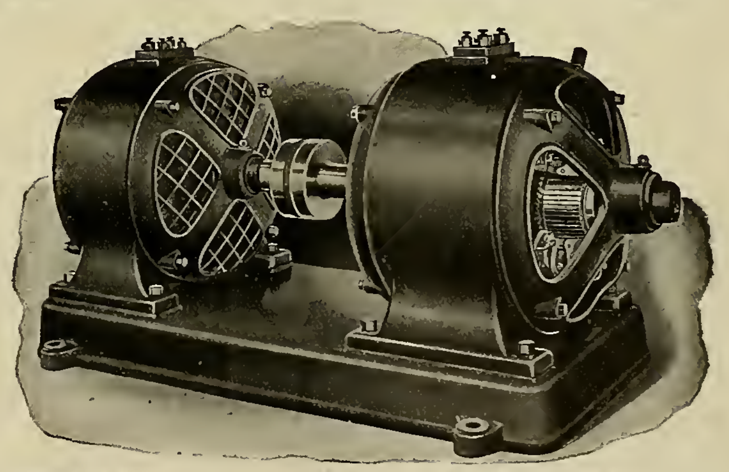
Bayonne, N. J., Sept. 2, 1913.

Mr. J. H. HALLBERG.

DEAR SIR: I am now using five of your Economizers, and must say that they are giving me perfect satisfaction. Two of them I have used for five years, two of them over three years and the fifth one I purchased recently, and it gives the same results O.K. in every respect. I will say anyone who needs an Economizer would do well to consult you before purchasing elsewhere.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) E. H. MASON,
Gen. Mgr.

Note: He just bought Hallberg No. 6.



Hallberg A.C. to D.C. Adjustable from 25 to 60 Amp., D.C.

Factory Selling Headquarters for POWERS, SIMPLEX, MOTIOGRAPH and EDISON MACHINES, "HALLBERG" STANDARD A. C. ECONOMIZERS, "HALLBERG" D. C. ECONOMIZERS, MERCURY ARC RECTIFIERS, MOVING PICTURE MACHINE and FLAME ARC CARBONS. I EQUIP THEATRES COMPLETELY

Free Circulars on all makes of M. P. Machines, but Hallberg's Big Catalogue, 100 Pages, Costs you 25c. by mail.

J. H. HALLBERG. 36 E. 23rd Street. New York

away, he leaves without waiting for orders, and jumping into a passing automobile, begs the driver to help him rescue the little girl. Swayne makes his way to the railroad, and seeing that he is being followed, jumps on a handcar and rides off down the track. "Chub" follows in the machine and as he comes up along the side, jumps on the moving hand car, throws Swayne off, and rides with the little one in his arms to where the father and the guards have followed. Swayne is captured, and the child joyfully returned to the anxious mother and father by her playfellow "Chub."

SELIG.

TOBIAS WANTS OUT (Sept. 17).—Tobias Yoakum concludes that he is absolutely disgusted with army service, and plans a discharge for physical disability with a pension attached. He first tries paralysis of the leg, but this nether negative is exposed by the Board of Survey; then he assays deafness, but the army surgeon gives such an insulting opinion that he hears it. He concludes that the one plea left for him is insanity, and he falls into this with great gusto. His tormentors in the service hand it to him right and left, so that he is lame and sore in both body and mind, while his wits are seemingly awry. Finally he acts the "crazy man" so well that he does get a discharge, and on receiving the paper and making sure that it is genuine, he drops the insanity dodge, and ridicules the alienists. The chairman of the board, who has a deep sense of humor, picks up the discharge and writes on the back of it: "Void, if executed on Sunday." He then points significantly to the calendar on the wall, which shows Tobias violated the Sabbath by his first false step and has once more brought about his own Waterloo, so that he is only indebted to himself for his trail of trouble.

THE REDEMPTION OF RAILROAD JACK (Sept. 18).—A rough looking stranger about Silverton, where the railway station is the chief structure of the place, is "Railroad Jack," a man of mystery. The agent is taken suddenly ill, and his daughter starts down the track on his railroad velocipede to light the switch lamps. At the first switch her light car jumps the tracks and hurls the girl and the cargo of lanterns to one side, which, seen by the stranger, starts him to a rescue on the run. He drags her out of harm's way just as the Limited thunders by. After administering first aid, he places the lanterns himself and then tenderly takes the girl back and arrives at the station just in time to take a message that is ticking over the wires.

Time passes; the girl really begins to love the man who rescued her, when she picks up a poster, sent broadcast by a detective agency, offering a reward for the conviction of Railroad Jack, Galveston Ben and Dakota Dan, giving descriptions of the three men wanted. She recognizes the first named and instantly repudiates him. His subsequent bravery in the battle with his old comrades in crime, in a three-cornered duel, thwarts a great train robbery. He is promptly pardoned by the governor for his questionable past. He is the full stature of a man and wins the girl, so that blessings brighten his passing days.

THE REJECTED LOVER'S LUCK (Sept. 19).—Brothers, Ben and John, are in love with the same girl, Sadie. Sadie is not the least fussed, rejects Ben's offer of marriage, but accepts the proposal of brother John. Ben, disgusted and disappointed, quarrels with the lucky man and then leaves for the West.

John and Sadie marry and experience three years of happiness, when death snatches him from her arms and leaves her penniless, with a baby at her breast. She is so poor that she is forced to take in washing. During this interim, Ben has had varying fortunes in the wilds. He saves an Indian from the hands of vigilants about to lynch him for horse-thievery. After stirring adventures they make a get-away; the Indian is shot, but under the skilled nursing of Ben, eventually recovers. The Aborigine is so grateful that he reveals to Ben the site of a rich placer mine and the latter washes out a fortune. He goes back to the old town, a sadder but a wealthy man, with forgiveness in his heart. He finds his sister-in-law bending over a wash-tub as her chubby infant wails an accompaniment from the floor. These things move honest Ben mightily, and he wonders if the days of might-have-been cannot come back. He speaks to her in the old voice, woos her with the old words. She listens to his suit as he persuades her that he should take his brother's place and provide a father for the helpless. So all's well that ends well.

BUMPS AND WILLIE (Sept. 23).—Bumps and Willie, knights of the road, have recovered sufficiently to travel again since their meeting with beautiful Betty and her active guardian—an emotional bull dog. Count Bill still yearns for the hand of the girl, loudly, but Bumps, his side partner, silently nurses treachery in the form of a sudden and overpowering affection for the very same maiden.

Betty has a new fad, automobiling, and Bumps discovers her trying to avoid running down the general public while wrangling with her new car. He proceeds to instruct her. As he does so, Willie comes upon the scene, and empties the vials of his wrath. Betty, wavering between the two evils, declares in favor of the one who will win the grand auto race. This pair of tramps are two speed maniacs, neither of whom can operate a car. At the track, Willie's machine begins to run away backwards; while Bumps' soon leaves the track and begins to caper across country, digging ditches, knocking down fences, and imperiling the lives of spectators. Both get arrested, which leaves the dashing Betty free to follow her heart's desire.

SPELL OF THE PRIMEVAL (Sept. 24).—Richard Van Sant, surfeited with the artificialities of society, seeks refuge amid the silent dignity of mountain solitudes—bitter against all women, because one had dismissed him. Once in his mountain fastness, he begins to look about for the peace of mind that he seeks, and his field-glasses furnish him society without bringing him in contact with humans. While he studies the scenery assiduously, one particular spot, haunted by blithesome Bessie Springer, a mountain lass, attracts his fancy day by day. He sees the culmination, at a long distance, of a charming romance, in which Tommy, her sweetheart, who has figured in frequent meetings, comes and claims her as his own. He sees her friends come and go, wondering and admiring the gifts that have come to her as a bride. Then she passes beyond the rangeless vision—on down the mountain—lost to view in the settlement beyond. This truly rural vision of sentimental simplicity, strangely fascinates the man about town; he tears up the shocking pictures of the dancing-girls and "actresses" that ornament the walls of his shack, banishes his stock of red liquor and gives himself peacefully over to the spell of the primeval.

In the interim, the haughty Virginia Maynard, who married a title when Richard had wounded her pride, becomes fairly ill through heartsickness and asks her fiancé, the count, to take her to the mountains. He does so, and the control of his automobile going wrong, the coward leaps out and leaves Virginia to wrestle with the mechanism of a run-away car. Van Sant, riding up the mountain, looking through his glass, observes this state of affairs, and rushes to the rescue. The machine crashes into the shrubbery and hangs suspended over a chasm when he reaches out, clasps the girl and draws her away from impending death. The count comes limping down the mountain at this moment, and when he sees Virginia, with her arms about Richard's neck, he limps out of sight and leaves them forever happy.

THE CAPTURE OF BAD BROWN (Sept. 25).—Bad Brown, a cattle rustler, finding things slow in his locality, proceeds to fill up with red liquor, and then starts to shoot up the frontier settlement. About the time he has got everybody behind doors, the stage rolls into town, and Bad Brown scares Pat and Biddy, the new arrivals to death with his noisy fusillade, and the dangerous proximity of his wild shooting. Buck comes in like an innocent spectator at this time; but does not get injured, in fact, he soundly trounces the drunken rustler, thereby earning the everlasting gratitude of Pat and Biddy. All this does not sober Brown, and he is inclined to commit more serious crimes than to merely get drunk, so the sheriff comes along and swears in Buck, as one of his posse. Bad Brown, however, has a pretty daughter, Marie, and Buck is in love with her. He compels his daughter to hide him, but after a series of dashing adventures, Buck routs him out and starts the old offender off to jail. The girl's relationship at the time with the old man was unknown by the dashing Buck, but she admits, afterward, that he is her father. She feels, however, the need of a better protector so much that she accepts the fearless hand of Buck for life.

THE POLICEMAN AND THE BABY (Sept. 26).—Patrolman Jim Mulvihill, large of frame and mighty of heart, has a four months'-old baby that rules him with the weapon of a cry. He simply hates to leave her cradle, but the clock points to the time he should be reporting, and he finally makes his escape by crawling out of the door. He reports at the station and goes on his "beat," which is in the suburban districts. Here he is approached by a mounted policeman who gives him other orders, transferring him at once to the downtown district.

WESTINGHOUSE
OZONIZER

Pure Air

Put your audience in a humor to enjoy the play by keeping the air fresh and wholesome. Ozone revitalizes the air and removes all stuffiness. It is produced cheaply by

Westinghouse Electric Ozonizers

One ozonizer uses only 18 watts at maximum output and is sufficient for 1,600 square feet of floor space. No noise, no moving parts, no parts to renew. Contained in a neat enamel case. Send for folder 4242.

Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co.
East Pittsburgh, Pa.
Sales Offices in 45 American Cities

MAKE MOVING PICTURES
WITH
Our Ideal Motion Picture Camera
Excellently constructed, beautifully finished, simple to operate, fitted up with a B. & L. Zeiss Tessar Lens, I. C., F 3-5, one of the best and fastest lenses in the market; holds 200 feet stock.
Send for Illustrated Catalogue
PRICE COMPLETE $75.00
Motion Picture Camera Co., Inc.
Dept. A 5 West 14th Street, New York

COMPENSARC
That's the device that saves Moving Picture men two-thirds on their electric light bills, and yet gives better light. Did you see our ad last week? Well, don't look it up. Just write for our
Booklet 15018
FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
OF GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY
1402 Broadway
FORT WAYNE INDIANA 739

COMING
Rogues of Paris
Three Reels
Thrilling and Sensational Big Assortment of Advertising Matter
SOLAX COMPANY, FORT LEE, NEW JERSEY

AUTHORIZED DISTRIBUTORS FOR POWERS, MOTIOGRAPH, SIMPLEX, EDISON AND STANDARD MACHINES

Picture Theatre Equipment Co.

THE BIGGEST MOTION PICTURE SUPPLY HOUSE IN AMERICA

21 East 14th Street, New York City

CONDENSERS—BOOTHS—TICKET CHOPPERS—REELS—REEL CASES—BOOTH CABINETS.

WE EQUIP MOTION PICTURE THEATRES COMPLETE

Exhibitors, Listen!

THIS IS WHAT "VIC" HUGO SAYS:

MAJESTIC THEATRE,
Cedar Rapids, Iowa, July 1st, 1913.
AMERICAN CINEMATOGRAPH CO.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen—

I wish to compliment you on your Motion Picture Camera which I purchased from you, and I wish to thank you for the promptness in which you developed my first film. It was merely an experiment, as I had no directions and I just set the machine up and focused the lense and started to take pictures an hour after I received the machine, and I was quite surprised, when I received the developed film, to find that it was as good as those produced by the best film makers.

As I knew absolutely nothing about a camera, I consider your machine both Fool-proof and Bomb-proof, as anyone can make good pictures with your Motion Picture Camera.

Again thanking you for the excellent camera you sent me, for I am more than pleased with it.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) "VIC" HUGO,
Lessee and Manager.

Send for Catalogue A.

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS, TRIPODS, PRINTERS AND STUDIO EQUIPMENT.

Agents for Eastman Raw Motion Picture Film.

AMERICAN CINEMATOGRAPH CO.
617-631 W. Jackson Blvd. Chicago, Ills.

EXHIBITORS EVERYWHERE

Are packing their houses by showing Local Weeklies and Current Events by using our

Exhibitors' Motion Picture Camera

These are successfully used by the Government Explorers and hundreds of Exhibitors everywhere.

Write us today regarding our guaranteed Motion Picture Camera Outfit, complete for $150.00

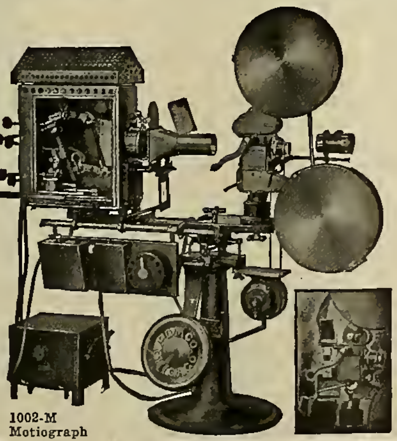
Whyte-Whitman Co.
36 E. 23rd St. New York City

THE APPROVED MOTIOGRAPH

The Most Substantial Moving Picture Machine Made



1002-M
Motiograph

SCIENTIFICALLY DESIGNED EVERLASTING

This Means To YOU:

1. MUCH BRIGHTER PICTURES.
2. A FLICKERLESS PICTURE AND AS STEADY AS A ROCK.
3. NO TRIPS TO THE REPAIR SHOP.
4. READY AT ALL TIMES TO PRODUCE THE GOODS.
5. AN EVERLASTING FEELING BY YOUR AUDIENCE TO SEE THE MOTIOGRAPH PROJECTION.
6. YOUR SEATS ARE ALWAYS FILLED.
7. A HANDSOME YEARLY PROFIT.
8. TO USE THE MOTIOGRAPH.

MADE ONLY BY

The Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company

Main Office and Factory
564 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

EASTERN OFFICE:
21 E. 14th Street, New York, N. Y.

WESTERN OFFICE:
833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

The scene shifts to a department store with two trained nurses in attendance at the department where babies are checked, free of charge. There appears to be an odd baby that someone has deserted, which sleeps on peacefully, thus causing much excitement in the department. Patrolman Mulvihill is summoned and ordered to wheel the baby through the streets to the station house. He, however, prefers to carry the infant. As he turns the corner he observes Brown, a flashily dressed old gentleman and Dipper, the notorious pickpocket, together with Nugent, commissioner of police, whom he does not know, as he is dressed in civilian attire. The latter pats the big policeman on the back as he passes into the car. The pickpocket immediately begins to work on the man of wealth and Mulvihill observes it. He asks Nugent to take the child while he goes after the pair. Brown, who has been robbed, also follows the "dip" into the street. Mulvihill turns the thief over to a policeman, gets the baby back that was confided to his care, and starts on his way towards the station. He is interrupted by a row in a tough saloon, and burdened by the baby, he puts it in a taxicab standing in front while he goes in to arrest the malcontents who are shooting up the place. Wabash Dave, the chief offender, rushes by Mulvihill, jumps in the taxicab and orders the driver, at the point of his pistol, "to get a move on." The officer comes back, finds the taxicab and baby gone, commandeers another touring car and starts on the chase. He eventually captures the criminal, handcuffs him, gets him back to the taxicab, recovers the baby, and then as a result of a rather strenuous afternoon, receives a letter from the police commissioner, who had held the baby for him incognito, for promotion to sergeant for brave and efficient service, and a large reward for bringing in Wabash Dave. Eventually he finds out that he has rescued his own baby. So he has much to be thankful for.

THE WHEELS OF FATE (Special—2 parts—Sept. 8).—The wife of a rising young author, Phillip Wynn, spends her time at card playing, while her husband is applauded in the circles in which he moves. With effervescent enthusiasm, he comes to her with news of his triumph; but she pays no attention to him. Dejected, he seeks the solitude of his study, where he begins a new work, entitled "The Inspiration Girl." Presently his wife comes in to ask for money; he starts to read a part of his manuscript to her. This bores her, and she leaves. At the club she is persuaded to elope by a persistent suitor named Lawler.

Discouraged by his wife's cynicism, Phillip reverts to the seclusion of a cottage in the woods, where he becomes acquainted with Nell Browne, whose ideals are so much like his that he nominates her "The Inspiration Girl."

When Phillip is away from his cottage one day, Lawler, who is rather intoxicated, follows a friend with whom he had had a quarrel to the cottage of Phillip. There the quarrel is renewed and Lawler, in a fit of passion, picks up a revolver and kills the friend. The shock of what he has done sobers him and he leaves the cottage to find the sheriff, intent upon placing the blame on Phillip. He locates the sheriff and at the cottage, Lawler declares that Phillip has committed the murder.

Lawler calls upon the wife of Phillip and tells how her husband had come to be arrested. As he had persuaded her sometime since to begin divorce proceedings, it is not long before she is granted a decree. Nell calls frequently at the prison and assures Phillip of her belief in his innocence, while his ex-wife is conspicuous by her absence. After Lawler has done much to have Phillip executed at an early date, he sets sail for Europe with the ex-wife. Just as the condemned man is about to be led to the electric chair, a wireless confession is received by the governor from Lawler, who becomes repentant as the ship on which he is sailing strikes a reef. The governor commutes the sentence.

PATHEPLAY.

PATHE'S WEEKLY, NO. 46 (Sept. 1).—Tsarskoe-Selo, Russia.—The Czar of all the Russias reviews the regiment of Ishmael on the occasion of their jubilee.

Paris, France.—The "Roosevelt" three-mile race, a popular annual athletic event here, is won this year by Gaston Lauvaux.

Villacoublay, France.—Fifty flying machines of various types and sizes sail to and fro over the aviation field here on the Franco-Spanish fete day.

Chicago, Ill.—The hydroplane Disturber III wins the thirty mile free-for-all championship and the Wrigley Cup with an average speed of 42 miles an hour.

Denver, Colo.—A novel bull fight in which no blood is spilled is held in this city and provides both thrills and laughs.

Mt. Tacoma, Wash.—Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, and his party engage in a snowballing contest while ascending Mt. Tacoma on the Secretary's tour of inspection.

Brighton Beach, N. Y.—Eight fair life savers compete in the third annual five mile ocean swimming race of the Women's Life Saving League.

Comic Section.—"What d'ye mean, you're a hypnotist," said Mutt. Drawn by Bud Fisher.

Editorial Section.—Missouri declares a two-day holiday to permit its citizens to repair the state roads and 250,000 men, including bankers, state officials and day laborers respond. Governor Major of Missouri, shovel in hand, leaves the executive mansion to do his share.

EASY TO REMEMBER
3 and 3 x 3
and 3 ÷ 1 =
394
TELEPHONE
BRYANT 394

Call up
Exhibitors
Feature
Booking
Agency
for information about any feature.

We can tell you about
All Features
We can Book
Most Features
and we can book them for you at rock bottom price without charging you for our services.

No Business in the World depends upon the fact that "Honesty is the Best Policy"
as much as our business.

You need us and
We need you

220 West 42d Street
New York

PATHE'S WEEKLY, NO 49, 1913 (Sept. 11).—West Point, N. Y.—Lord Haldane, Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, witnesses a drill by the cadets on his way to Montreal to attend the American Bar Association meeting.

Rome, Italy.—King Victor Emanuel pays a visit to the Government Military Agricultural School.

New York, N. Y.—Mayor Gaynor accepts an independent Mayoralty renomination tendered him by 5,000 citizens, who march to City Hall bearing shovels, emblematic of their faith in his subway policy.

San Francisco, Cal.—Eight hundred orphan children attend a real old-fashioned wild west show as guests of the Bulletin.

Dunkirk, France.—Aviator Levasseur and a passenger, journeying from London, lose their way in a dense fog and are compelled to come to earth here to get their bearings.

Montreal, Can.—Viscount Haldane, Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, attends the meeting of the American Bar Association, held in this city, where he meets many distinguished American and Canadian jurists.

Tilburg, Holland.—Queen Wilhelmina and the Prince Consort arrive in this city to inspect the exposition.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Commodore Perry's flagship "Niagara," is welcomed to this city on her return from a tour of the lake cities which she defended in the War of 1812.

New York, N. Y.—The Boston Nationals defeat the Giants by the score of 2 to 1, Connolly's triple scoring Tyler and Maranville in the fifth inning.

PATHE'S WEEKLY NO. 48—1913 (Sept. 8).—Brooklyn, N. Y.—A fire in the hold of the steamer Burgomeister Hackman, loaded with benzine, has been burning for two days and a serious explosion is feared at any moment.

Amiens, France.—The Grand Prix automobile race this year is one continuous thrill as the Picardie course, over which it is run, is notorious for dangerous turns and curves.

San Francisco, Cal.—Gov. Ernest Lister, of Washington, and the Washington Exposition Commission board a tug to obtain a view from the waterfront of the site selected for the Washington Building at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

West Point, N. Y.—The Cadet Corps assists a delegation of distinguished Polish-Americans to unveil a bronze life-size statue of General Thaddeus Kosciusko, Polish hero of the American Revolution.

New Haven, Conn.—Twenty-three persons are killed and as many seriously injured when the White Mountain Express of the New Haven Railroad crashes into the wooden Pullmans of the Bar Harbor Express, crowded with returning vacationists.

Comic Section.—Mutt has a solution for the Mexican problem. Drawn by Bud Fisher.

DR. TURNER TURNS THE TABLES (Sept. 19).—When Dr. Turner went away for his annual month's vacation, he left Dr. Williamson in charge of his practice. Now Dr. Williamson got a hurry call from his sweetheart, an actress, that she and her fellow thespians were stranded. He promptly went to the rescue of his girl and her friends and brought them back to Dr. Turner's home, where they made themselves comfortable. Dr. Turner was not comfortable at his vacation resort, so he came home before his time had expired and caught the merrymakers unawares. Dr. Williamson, to avoid discovery, made patients of them all. Dr. Turner soon found out that the occupants of his house were not ill at all and, believe us, he got square.

THE HARNESSED FALLS OF THE NORTHWEST (Sept. 19).—An interesting study, beautiful to behold, of the waterfalls of the northwest, which are used to develop electric power sufficient to supply the needs of the surrounding country.

BIOGRAPH.

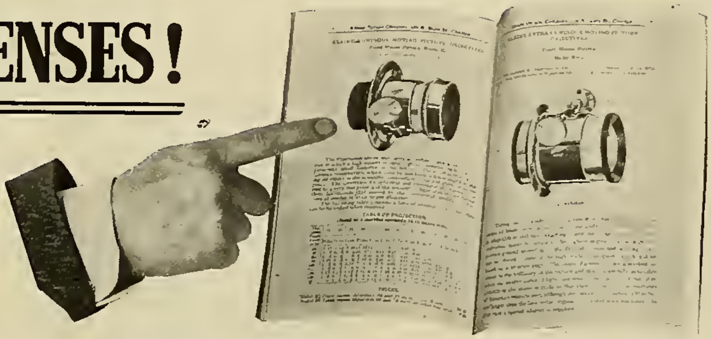
THE END OF THE WORLD (Sept. 25).—They were on their summer vacation at the time, and eats were decidedly scarce. Muggsy was for robbing a hen roost, but Larry spied the Holy Groaners. With open arms they received the new prophet into their midst. He declared the end of the world was at hand. It was Larry who collected the Groaner's worldly goods, which they now no longer need. He lingered for more graft. The real prophet appeared. Poor Larry!

A SATURDAY HOLIDAY (Sept. 25).—Harry Hurry-up forgot his watch. He thought it had been stolen and notified the police. His ten per went for a joy ride and his watch, found at home, went as security to his landlady. The security was cashed at the pawnbroker's. Things looked very bad for the poor, inoffensive landlady.

THE LAW AND HIS SON (Sept. 22).—In this film one is shown the contrast of two fathers. One father refuses to believe his son guiltless, while the other, fully realizing the weakness of his son, struggles to save him from further disgrace. In this attempt he exonerates the innocent youth, but at the same time exposes the guilt of his own son.

THE INFLUENCE OF THE UNKNOWN (Sept. 27).—In the guise of a hunted moonshiner, the revenue officer gained the moonshiners' confidence. It was the girl who discovered his perfidy. She had some difficulty in making the moonshiners believe.

SEE THESE LENSES!



A CHEAP service will produce clean-cut, stereoscopic pictures if projected through a good lens—an EXPENSIVE service demands good lens if you must obtain your money's worth.

LENSES FROM $6.00 to $325!

We offer you the widest possible range of choice. We SPECIALIZE in Projection Lenses—from the most inexpensive to the finest manufactured. Perhaps you require an additional lens—want a better one or an extra for emergencies?—if so, deal direct and obtain the benefit of wholesale prices.

WRITE FOR OUR WONDERFUL FREE CATALOGUE

just from the press, containing 166 pages, printed on a fancy enameled stock, profusely illustrated and containing information invaluable to the theatre-owner or the man who expects to be.

IF YOU REDECORATE OR BUILD

you will need this handy little book every minute. Not a dull, dry price-list, but a compendium of live suggestions for making your house more beautiful, more comfortable, more up-to-date—increasing its dividend power two-fold.

Also—the largest and most complete list of theatre equipment, with prices and description. Within its covers you will find lists of every possible item from tickets to curtain.

THERE ARE NO STRINGS TO THIS OFFER. IT'S FREE. JUST DROP A LINE AND SAY "SEND US CATALOGUE." ADDRESS DEPT. W.

KLEINE OPTICAL CO.

166 N. State Street GEO. KLEINE, President Chicago, Illinois

To Close Out—Seven Prints of

In the Toils of the Devil

BRAND NEW Copyrighted 1913 2500 Feet Long

One of the most beautiful and interesting photoplays. Made by the famous MILANO CO. We will give one copy at 9c per foot for three or four of the following states

North Dakota
South Dakota
Wyoming
Utah
Colorado
Minnesota
Nebraska
Kansas
Arkansas
Oklahoma
Louisiana
Maryland
Mississippi
Missouri
Alabama
Georgia
North Carolina
South Carolina
Kentucky
Tennessee
Virginia
Texas
Florida

This is a Genuine Feature Bargain Offer

DON'T DELAY. Elegant advertising matter, 6, 3, 1 sheets and photographs. Write or wire to

INTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS

5 West 14th St. Importers—Dealers of Films NEW YORK

She permitted the man's escape on account of his baby, but perhaps they understood better when the young revenue officer never returned.

MELIES.

HOME LIFE IN JAPAN (Sept. 18).—Interesting and intimate scenes in the homes of Japanese, showing the wash; ironing silk by a peculiar but characteristic method; a Japanese kitchen, the preparing of a meal and the eating of it in typical Japanese fashion; and the tea ceremony, renowned throughout the world as a custom which shows up a Japanese's good or bad breeding, for its rules are laid down by strict etiquette. Every Japanese girl of rank or breeding is well trained in this ceremony.

JAPANESE FUNERAL (Sept. 18).—The funeral of one of the richest men in Yokohama. The long cortege is made resplendent by the tall "funeral trees," a peculiar custom in Japan, and by the huge cages containing doves, the gifts of relatives and friends of the deceased. During the interment the birds are given their freedom, even as the spirit of the deceased is, at that moment, supposed to receive its freedom.

PICTURE THEATERS PROJECTED

St. Cloud, Minn.—F. E. Nemes is to build a two-story theater, 44 by 132 feet, to cost $18,000.

International Falls, Minn.—Frank V. Peterson, Ole and Ferguson streets is to build a theater to cost $21,000.

Detroit, Mich.—Preston & Walker, 1925 Dime Bank Building, are preparing plans for a theater, store and flat building to be erected in the near future. The theater will have a seating capacity of 400.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Rex Amusement Company are taking bids on plans and specifications for a vaudeville and moving picture theater to be erected by them at the southwest corner of Germantown and Susquehanna avenues. The building will be 80 by 100 feet; constructed of brick, stone, steel and ornamental terra cotta, fireproof and cost approximately $100,000.

Detroit, Mich.—William F. Klatt, 1106 Union Trust Building, is planning to build a three-story theater and store building, 110 by 220 feet, to cost $100,000. The theater will have seating capacity of 3,000.

Hammond, Ind.—M. Rothschild is to erect a one-story theater, 35 by 120 feet.

Springfield, O.—Chakeres & Co., 39 North Fountain street, are to remodel theater building at the cost of $5,000.

Springfield, O.—Lyric Theater Company, care Ralph Kretzer, 57 North Main street, have plans about completed for a one-story moving picture theater, 25 by 100 feet. The building will be 20 feet high and cost $10,000.

Columbus, O.—J. H. Miller has plans about completed for a three-story moving picture theater, 40 by 160 feet, to cost $12,000.

West Hazleton, Pa.—Harry Helsker will erect a two-story theater and store building, 40 by 150 feet.

Farrell, Pa.—D. J. Lewis, Sharon, Pa., is planning to build a one-story moving picture theater, 35 by 85 feet, to cost $6,000. The theater will seat 500 persons.

Philadelphia, Pa.—John T. Saunder has been awarded the contract for the erection of a one-story moving picture theater, 42 by 130 feet, to be built at 733 and 735 East Chelten avenue for Shore & Bubin. The cost will be about $12,000.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—Howard B. Emery, Bennett Building, is planning to build a one-story moving picture theater, 90 by 30, to cost $3,000. Also contemplates the erection of a second theater, one-story, 35 by 80 feet, to cost $3,500.

Auburn, N. Y.—George H. Morgan is to build a two-story moving picture theater, store and office building, 180 by 50 feet.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Jefferson Amusement Company, 811 Mayville avenue, have completed plans for a one-story moving picture theater, with rear exit, to cost $2,500.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Herman Weingarten, 179 Nassau street, has plans about completed for a one-story moving picture theater, 34 by 100 feet, to cost $7,000.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Nassau Theater Company, Julius Salkin, president, 301 Grand street, are to alter two moving picture theaters so as to increase the seating capacity from 300 to 2,000 each. The improvements will cost $10,000.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Charles Infanger & Son, 2634 Atlantic avenue, are preparing plans for a moving picture theater, one-story, 52 by 115 feet, seating capacity of 600, and cost $15,000.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Herbert J. G. Goudge and Charles O. Chandler are to build a moving picture theater and store building to cost in the neighborhood of $12,000.

Moberly, Mo.—O'Keefe Brothers, care Wholesale Grocery Company, are planning to build in the fall a one-story moving picture theater, 52 by 120 feet, to cost $15,000. Theater will have seating capacity of 850 and six boxes. The lessees are Trich & Selby, 316 Reed street.

Rochester, Minn.—Schuster Realty Company, 205 North College avenue have awarded the contract for the erection of a one-story theater, 22 by 120 feet, to G. Schwartz & Co., Wagoner block. The theater will have seating capacity of 600.

Philadelphia, Pa.—W. H. Hoffman & Co. are preparing plans for a theater building to be erected at Fifty-ninth and Market streets. Building will have a seating capacity of 3,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—William Cohen has taken title from Max Katzman to the premises 1905-7-9 Ridge avenue, for a nominal consideration, subject to a mortgage of $20,000. The properties occupy a lot 53 feet 3 inches by 99 feet, and were recently purchased by Margolin & Block as a site for a moving picture theater.

St. Paul, Minn.—James and Charles Ferdman, 25 West 5th street, have awarded the contract for the erection of a moving picture theater, 50 by 104 feet, and cost $18,000, to American Realty and Building Company, 27 West Lake street, Minneapolis, Minn.

Scranton, Pa.—Paul Calians has awarded the contract for the alteration and addition to his present moving picture theater building. Many modern improvements will be included in the renovation.

Berlin, Ont., Can.—Griffin Amusement Company are planning to build a handsome theater building, 78 by 125 feet, to cost about $60,000.

St. Catherines, Ont., Can.—Griffin Amusement Company will erect a theater in this city to cost about $70,000.

Fort Scott, Kan.—Harry Ernich is planning to build a one-story moving picture theater, 60 by 120 feet, to cost $6,000.

Moberly, Mo.—P. Halloran has had preliminary plans prepared for the remodeling of his theater here to cost $8,000.

Kansas City, Mo.—Frank L. Newman is having a local architect draw up plans for the purpose of remodeling a business building into a modern moving picture theater.

New York, N. Y.—Freedman Brothers, 210 Twelfth avenue, have received bids for alterations to their moving picture theater to cost $2,000.

Wilmette, Ill.—A. Shane will build a two-story theater, store and office building, 50 by 125 feet. This will include two stores and three offices.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Charles Weinberg, 233 South Sixth street, is taking bids for a moving picture theater to be erected in Germantown. The building is to be one-story brick.

Lexington, Ky.—Lexington Theater Company are to erect a three-story theater, 50 by 140 feet, to cost $45,000.

Minerva, O.—H. G. Walker is planning to build a one-story theater, 22 by 90 feet, to cost $3,500. It will have seating capacity for 300 persons.

Sandusky, O.—Charles L. Blotz will erect a two-story moving picture theater and store building, 36 by 133 feet, to cost $20,000. There will be one large store on the ground floor. Theater will seat 680 persons.

Toledo, O.—Thomas Gardner, 2259 Auburn street, is planning to build a one-story moving picture theater, 50 by 125 feet, with seating capacity of 400, and cost $10,000.

Mt. Union, Pa.—T. C. Peduzzi will build a one-story moving picture theater, 59 by 40 feet, to cost $3,000.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Floyd J. Meals, 1100 Woodland avenue, has prepared plans for a three-story moving picture theater and hall building, 32 by 86 feet, to cost $20,000.

Elizabeth, N. J.—F. F. Proctor, 1493 Broadway, will remodel his theater and office building to the extent of $30,000.

West Chester, Pa.—Joseph M. Burns, T. E. Jefferies, W. H. Jones, Floyd Baldwin, Smedley & Hook, of West Chester, Pa., William E. Elliott, Coatesville, Pa., Shaughnesy & Wiler, Mitchell Bros., F. Roe Searing and George Hogg, Philadelphia, Pa., are estimating on plans and specifications for a two-story brick moving picture theater to be erected at West Chester for William H. Leslie.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Joseph Levin Company is taking estimates for a moving picture theater, 35 by 100 feet, at 1106-08 North 40th street, for I. Behan. It will have a seating capacity of 500.

Camden, N. J.—B. F. Roney, 521 Federal street, is to build a three-story theater and store building, 92 by 129 feet, to cost $35,000.

Stoughton, Mass.—F. A. Noyes, 714 Old South Building, Boston, will build by day's work a one-story theater, 40 by 80 feet.

Walpole, Mass.— T. S. Maguire, East Walpole, will build a two-story moving picture theater, 34 by 80 feet, to cost $10,000.

Olean, N. Y.—J. H. Havens, Theater Building, will remodel and make additions to his theater to cost $25,000.

New York, N. Y.—Grand Picture Operating Company, 1128 First avenue, have completed plans for a two-story moving picture theater, 25 by 100 feet, to cost $8,000. The present buildings are to be demolished.

New York, N. Y.—G & S Amusement Company, Simon Straub, president, have received bids for a one-story moving picture theater and store building, 98 by 100 feet, estimated cost $12,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Margolin & Block have purchased for a syndicate the premises 917 to 929 North Second street and 918 to 930 North Hancock street, in the rear, occupying a lot 105 by 200 feet, on which the purchaser will build a moving picture theater, capable of seating 1,800 persons and five three-story stores and dwellings. The lot cost close to $40,000. Work on the improvements will be begun at once, so that the theater may be ready to open late in the fall.

Hardly anything is of more interest in a film than good

SEA TRAGEDY

The Contrabanders

3 Reels

is full of exciting incidents showing a large vessel blown up by dynamite and a crew left to the perils of the ocean.

Read synopsis in issue of July 5, page 90.

STATE RIGHTS
SOLD REASONABLY

One, three and six sheets, photos, slides and heralds.

New York Film Company
145 West 45th Street
New York City

MUSIC — THE VERY LATEST — MUSIC

ORGAN ORCHESTRIONS

PLAYS TWO WAYS

AUTOMATICALLY
AND
BY HAND

MEETS EVERY REQUIREMENT

An instrument of this kind will meet the requirements of any first-class picture theatre. You can play popular, classic, sacred or dance pieces, as the instrument is only limited to the kind of music desired.

BUILT FOR ANY GIVEN SPACE

THEY REPRODUCE THE PLAYING OF THE GREATEST ORGANISTS

ELIMINATE EXPERIMENTS

When you purchase a WELTE instrument you eliminate experiments. Your value is represented in every detail, as is attested by being in the homes of the wealthiest and most representative people in the world.

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

M. WELTE & SONS, Inc., 273 Fifth Avenue, N. Y. City
ESTABLISHED 1832

Lions, Tigers, Leopards, Elephants, Camels

A trainload of wild animals to make the most thrilling animal pictures ever made.

Would like to find partner to invest some money to form a company.

WRITE
R. S. F., c/o MOVING PICTURE WORLD
New York City

Name	Length	Class	Posters	Price per ft.
A Girl Without a Country	3000	drama	1-3-6 sheets	7c
Hypnotism or Dark Power	3200	"	1-6 "	4c
Whims of Fate	2100	"	1-3-4 "	5c
Stuart Keen	2700	(sensational)	8 style 1-3-6 sheets	6c
Caprice of Fortune	2000	drama	1-3 sheets	5o
The Gypsy Girl	2000	"	1-4 "	5c
Hungry Dogs	2000	"	1-4 "	4c
For Her Love	2100	"	1-3-4 "	4c
Mexico vs. Spain Bull Fight	2000	(sensational)	1-3-4 "	8c
The Flooded Mine	2000	drama	1-3 "	3c
James Patterson, Detective	2700	".	1-3 "	3c
Through Fire and Water to Happiness	3000	exclusive	1-3 sheets, banner and photos	7c
Lieut. Daring and Photographic Pigeons	1500	drama	1-3 banner	4c
Kings of the Forest	2000	animal drama	1-3-6 sheets	3c
The Wild Cat	3000	exclusive	1-4 "	4c
Custer's Last Fight	2100	Kay-Bee	1-3-6 "	5c
Adventure of Lady Glane	3000	exclusive	1-3-6 "	6c
Modern Enoch Arden	2000	exclusive	1-3 banner	3c
Right to Exist	3000	DeKage	1-3-6 photos	6c
The Black Viper	3000	Monopol	1-3-6 photos	6c

1000 reels with posters, good condition, complete at $5,00 per reel. Same condition without posters, $3.00 per reel. Special exclusive feature films bought on a commission of one cent per foot.

G. W. BRADENBURGH, 802 Vine Street
Bell Phone. Cable, Bradfilms, Phila.

Wild Animal Pictures

100 Lions, Tigers, Leopards, Bears, Kangaroos, Elephants, Camels, Ostriches, 200 Monkeys, Snakes, Birds and other animals, FOR RENTAL TO MAKE ANIMAL PICTURES. Write for particulars to

PAUL BOURGEOIS
485 TOMPKINS AVENUE :: :: BROOKLYN, N. Y.

"Agfa"

MOTION PICTURE FILM
Used by Makers of Quality Films
WRITE FOR PRICES
Sole American Agents
Raw Film Supply Company
15 East 26th Street New York, N. Y.

INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES

UNIVERSAL

IMP.

IVANHOE (Four Parts—Sept. 22).—In the days when the Christian knights were fighting for the Cross in the Holy Land, Prince John held the reins of government in England. John's greed was greater than his fraternal affection and he sought every means to support his claim on the crown against the time his brother, the rightful king, should return.

There lived at this time also at Rotherwood, not many miles from where Sheffield now stands, a Saxon nobleman named Cedric. He was of the fast dwindling ancient Saxon race, but had refused the yoke of the invading Normans, at least in spirit. Wilfred, his son, rather favored the Court of King Richard, and Coeur de Lion rewarded him with the manor "Ivanhoe." Dwelling with Cedric was a beautiful Saxon girl of the blood royal named Rowena and it was Ivanhoe's lot that he should fall in love with his adopted sister, though the father objected on the ground that he had knelt to his enemies.

Ivanhoe had subsequently joined Richard the Lion Heart in the Holy Land and the years passed on without news of him. Prince John bestowed Ivanhoe's barony on Reginald de Boeu, a licentious Norman. Rowena is sought by Athelstane in marriage with the approval of Cedric. She refuses.

Ivanhoe has returned from his adventures, and, disguised as a holy man, approaches his father and sweetheart in order to learn of their present feelings towards him. Still in disguise he meets Rowena and hands her a scroll in his own handwriting, and the girl is much pleased, for she has never forgotten her childhood companion.

From here the scene changes to a forest where are seen two weary travelers trying to gain shelter before sunset. These are the wealthy Jewish moneylender, Isaac of York, and his daughter, Rebecca. The former is disguised as a poor pedlar, the better to ply his trade of usury, without revealing evidence of his wealth. They are admitted to Cedric's mansion, though everyone shrinks from the old man, who is forced to eat his food by the fireside. Rebecca, a beauty, however, attracts the attention of de Bois Guilbert to the extent that he seats her beside him at the table and showers insulting attentions upon her. Ivanhoe, still in his disguise, comes forward to lend protection.

Suspecting that the Jew has money the knights retire to complete plans to capture. Ivanhoe overhears, and, rushing to the Jew and his daughter, conducts them out of the castle. Immediately after they have passed out, the knight finds himself attacked on all sides by the conspirators, and though he makes a brave struggle to cut off the pursuit, he is finally left stunned and weakened by loss of blood.

On recovering consciousness he observes his father and sweetheart, Rowena, being borne off captive, and too weak to succor them he drags himself into the forest and falls fainting again at the feet of Isaac. When he again regains consciousness it is to find that his new friends have vanished. Father and daughter, seeking water in the woods, have been captured as Ivanhoe's father and sweetheart had been.

We are next taken into the camp of Robin Hood. A stranger has come into their midst and revealed himself to the leader as Richard the Lion Heart, alone and sad, for while he is still the King of England he has yet to regain his throne. Robin and the Friar revive his moody spirits and it was the boisterous laughter of the Black Knight that attracted the faint Ivanhoe in the woods nearby. The meeting of these two characters is picturesque. Ivanhoe tells of his troubles and enlists the aid not alone of the King and Robin, but all his followers. There is a blast of the horn and from the hillsides a great army swarm down. The march is rapid, followed by a vicious attack upon the Torquilstone Castle, where the four are held prisoners.

De Bois Guilbert is forced to leave off his attentions to the women and the torture of the miserable Jew to lead in the defense. In the press of the bloody battle is seen the stalwart form of Ivanhoe, while almost equal in prowess are the feats of the Black Knight. The Normans are forced back into their castle. Believing the odds are against him the villian throws the Jewish maiden upon his horse and escapes; he takes her to the tribunal of the Order of Good Templars on a charge of sorcery out of revenge for his defeat.

There remained but one chance for her to escape with her life and that was to find some knight to establish her innocence by defeating in mortal combat her accuser.

News of this is brought to Ivanhoe by Gurth and he does not hesitate to champion her cause. The day of doom arrives; Rebecca is bound to the stake and the faggots are piled round her feet. The trumpet is blown once as a signal for the champion. There is no response. It is blown again, and, as the flames lick upward, there comes through the amazed crowd a knight. What follows is a merciless fight between de Bois and Ivanhoe. As the latter is declared the victor the Black Knight arrives on the scene, casts off his disguise and discloses himself as the King. Ivanhoe is reconciled to his father and is married, later, by the Duke of York. Rebecca, aching for the love of the gallant knight, joins her hand to that of Rowena and then departs with her father.

In the last scene of the film we have Isaac embracing his daughter. She, however, seems not to notice his caresses; her eyes are turned toward the sunset. Before her arises a vision of the knight in the arms of his bride and she reflects on the happiness that will be his in the love of Rowena and thus, in that bitter-sweet joy which only self-sacrifice can give, we leave her.

THE MISER'S SON (Sept. 25).—Henry, a man who loves gold above all else, has, by shrewd bargaining and miserly ways, accumulated enough money to pay a debt that one of the neighbors holds against him. This money he has secreted in the chimney of his parlor.

While assisting his son one day to put hay in the barn a stone jug falls on his head, depriving him of his memory. His son has been forbidden to speak to the girl he loves by the father who holds the note in question. The note falls due but the old man cannot recollect where he placed the money. Ethel, the girl, clandestinely calls on the boy and as they are seated in the parlor the tea kettle commences to boil over. Ethel, in trying to lift it from the stove, accidentally displaces a brick, revealing the hiding place of the money. The father's memory returns; he pays the note and consents to the union of the boy and girl.

UNIVERSAL.

ANIMATED WEEKLY NO. 79 (Sept. 10).—Lord Haldane at West Point.—Viscount Haldane, Great Britain's Lord High Chancellor, reviews the cadets at the famous military academy, West Point, New York. Sub-title: A Salute to Lord Haldane.

Elgin Auto Races.—Gil Anderson creates a new world's record as he wins the Elgin Road Race. The dare-devil driver sends his Stutz car over the 302-mile course at the rate of 71½ miles an hour.

Fire of the World.—Seven thousand fire fighters attend the unveiling of the Fireman's Memorial Monument—New York, N. Y.

Middle States Rowing Regatta.—New York oarsmen win the majority of the races against the crews from other cities in the twenty-fourth regatta of the Middle States Rowing Association.

Weekly Fashion Hints.—Latest modes in gowns and frocks. The Ladies' Home Journal Pattern Company.

Unique Ceremonies.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and Governor Hunt, of Arizona, are made members of the clan when they visit the Moqui Tribes at Wolpi, Ariz. Sub-title: Governor Hunt and the Snake Chief of the Moqui Tribe.

Terrible Railroad Wreck.—Twenty-two persons are killed and scores injured when the White Mountain Express crashes into the rear end of the Bar Harbor Limited, near Meriden, Conn.

World's Greatest Dam.—Governor George W. Clarke, of Iowa, and many other notables assist in the dedication of the world's greatest power dam at Keokuk, Iowa.

The Guards' Sports.—An amusing day's sports by the Coldstreams held at Burton's Court, Chelsea, England.

World's Largest Duck Farm.—A trip through the world's largest duck farm—Long Island, N. Y.

Meeting of the Governors.—Nineteen Governors from as many States attend the Governors' Conference at Colorado Springs, Colo. Sub-titles: Governor Elias M. Ammons, Colorado; Governor Edward F. Dunne, Illinois; Governor Oscar B. Colquitt, Texas.

President Poincare and His Troops.—The French President reviews his "Coloured" Troops at Versailles, France.

The Universal Traveler in England—Monument to the Pilgrims.—The American Ambassador, Walter H. Page, assists in the ceremonies attending the dedication of the Memorial Tower at Southampton, England.

ECLAIR.

THE BANKER'S DAUGHTER (2 parts—Sept. 10).—The plot of this two-reel story centers around the evil machinations of Upton Steele, cashier of the bank of which George Van Borough is the head. Van Borough finances an amusement company, which in Steele's opinion is a flimsy security for the money advanced. Steele, who is in love with Blanche, the daughter of Van Borough, is actuated to commit a malevolent deed when he son Barney than she does for him. One day, sometime later, Barney and Steele go out rowing perceives that the young girl cares more for Harri- on the lake adjoining Van Borough's estate, and the latter deliberately upsets the boat in an endeavor to drown Barney, who cannot swim. But luckily, before he goes down for the last time, he is rescued by Blanche.

Failing in this pernicious attempt on the life of Barney, Steele decides to ruin the banker and he precipitates a run on the bank by announcing that the banker has made a flimsy deal with an amusement company. In the meantime, however, Van Borough gathers together all his available securities and is on his way with them, accompanied by his daughter, when the chauffeur is shot by some of Steele's men, who had been instructed to hold up the Van Borough automobile and get the securities. Blanche takes the place of the chauffeur and she brings her father to the banker, who makes the loan.

Deciding to stay over night, Blanche tells Barney over the phone to meet them the next day at Curley's Bend with two empty suitcases. The message is received by Barney while at his club and enough of it is heard by Steele to give him an inkling of the new plans. As Barney is going to the Van Borough barn to get the suitcases, he is waylaid by Steele's men. But he is soon rescued by the Van Borough children, who call a passing farmer. Barney, dressed as a farmer and driving in an old farm wagon, eludes Steele's thugs and meets Mr. Van Borough and Blanche at the appointed place. After Barney had carried off the money in his farm wagon, the auto is held up by Steele's confederates, who run away with the suitcases laden with nothing but old books, etc. The thugs are apprehended, Steele placed in jail and Barney is installed as the new cashier.

A PAWNEE ROMANCE (Sept. 14).—For coming home in rather a merry mood one morning, along about milkman's time, his dad vowed that Bob would have to "go West, young man," and stay there until he learned to behave. So off he was bundled to the ranch of his dad's friend, Badger. Work? Bob just couldn't see it, so he changed personalities with his obliging valet and let the valet enjoy his punishment while he kicked around, having a fair-to-middling good time as valet. There was a girl—of course, Badger's daughter.

Things will happen, even on the best regulated ranches. While the make-believe valet was out riding one afternoon, he got off the horse to open a gate and Mr. Horse took French leave. Mildred Badger, meeting the footsore "valet" some miles from home, offered him a mount on her horse. He accepted thankfully. But their romantic proximity went to their heads, and meeting accidentally with a parson, Bob confessed his identity and the two were wed. Then came the awful task of breaking the news; made twice as awful by the discovery that Bob's dad had arrived at the ranch that afternoon. To make a long story short, they lassoed the two dads and threatened to keep them thus till doomsday unless they gave their blessing. And the dads did.

HYDROGEN (Sept. 14).—Here we see highly interesting and instructive laboratory experiments filmed, dealing with the lightest of known substances, hydrogen. This gas is an important component part of the elements. It forms 11.19 per cent. of water, and is a constituent of most organic compounds. It is also found in inorganic substances, principally acids. In its pure form, hydrogen is colorless, odorless, tasteless and inflammable, burning with a hot, almost non-luminous flame.

STUNG (Sept. 21).—Three pals, soldiers of fortune, gentlemen Raffles, have the blues. They go out for a swell feed and eat in glum silence. At the next table a prosperous-looking fat man drops his card at Bill's feet as he draws out a staggering wad of money. Bill, unable to withstand the temptation, hurries off to frisk the fat man's place alone. At the coat rack, another card is dropped at Jack's feet, and he also hurries off. On the sidewalk, a third card is dropped, and the last pal hurries off to make a rich haul and surprise his companions in hard luck.

At the fat man's address, they find an empty apartment and come face to face with each other. They proceed home, only to find their place ransacked, and a note saying that he had "planted" the cards so as to clean out the treasures collected by the well-known art connoisseurs, Raffles first, second and third. The pals rush to the station to hunt down the thief. The captain asks, "Name, please?" Consternation! That brings them up sharply, and they try to beat it while the going's good. But they are caught and jailed.

CURIOUS FISH (Sept. 21).—The dragnets or seines with which professional fishermen bring in their prey by the hundreds and thousands, contain innumerable varieties, quite a few of which bear surprising likeness to higher animals. There is the commonly-seen skate, which seems a caricature of human beings. The Rousette, or small dogfish, is eatable, but of coarse fibre and little flavor. The Squantine might be called on a cross between these two. The Gurnard, a strongly armored fish, wages endless war on its neighbors. A fish whose dorsal fin is dreaded even by fishermen is the Sea Dragon. Many other strange fish are shown in this most interesting scientific.

A PURITAN EPISODE (2 parts—Sept. 24).—Arthur Cartwright married, at the close of the Seventeenth Century in old England, Ruth Joyce, and to escape the old parents' wrath, fled to America, settling at Plymouth, Mass. Ruth's mother accompanied them. Though they lived happy, they were completely isolated from their Puritan neighbors who had small tolerance for their faith.

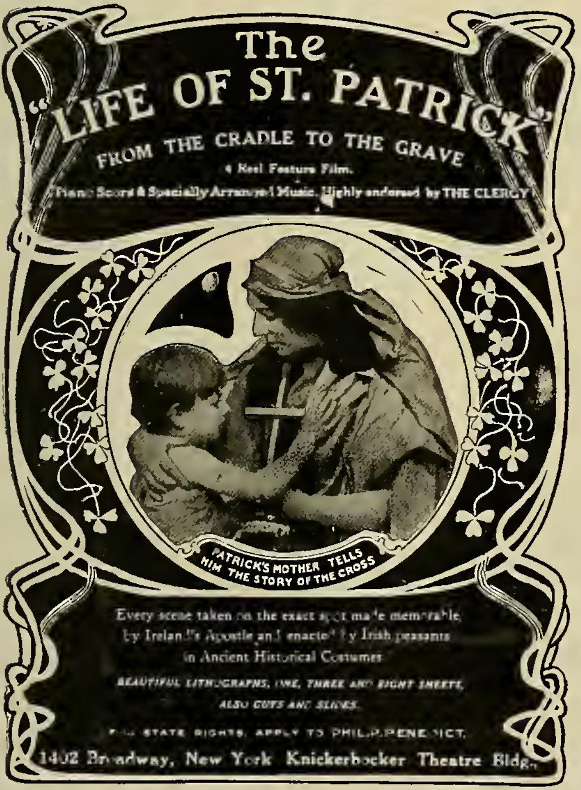
THE
UNAPHONE and OCTAPHONE

Our two latest instruments for moving picture theatres. They are entirely different from anything ever before attempted in this line. These beautiful instruments possess a wonderfully rich and mellow tone that will enthuse your audience. They are electrically operated and played from keyboard like a piano. Easy to install and moderate in cost.

Get next to a good thing, Mr. Exhibitor, before your competitor does. A beautiful musical entertainment will boost your business from the start.

Write for descriptive catalogue "F."

J. C. DEAGAN, 1770 Berteau Avenue, CHICAGO, U. S. A.



The "LIFE OF ST. PATRICK"

FROM THE CRADLE TO THE GRAVE

4 Reel Feature Film.

Piano Score & Specially Arranged Music. Highly endorsed by THE CLERGY

PATRICK'S MOTHER TELLS HIM THE STORY OF THE CROSS

Every scene taken on the exact spot made memorable by Ireland's Apostle and enacted by Irish peasants in Ancient Historical Costumes

BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPHS, ONE, THREE AND EIGHT SHEETS, ALSO CUTS AND SLIDES.

FOR STATE RIGHTS, APPLY TO PHILIP BENEDICT,

1402 Broadway, New York Knickerbocker Theatre Bldg.,

SPECIFY

GUNDLACH Projection Lenses

when ordering new machines

You may as well get the best lenses with the machine as to buy them later.

Supplied to order with Powers Cameragraph, Motiograph, Simplex, Standard

Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Co.

808 Clinton Ave., So., Rochester, N. Y.

ITS ALL IN THE LENS

THE ROYAL FILM AGENCY of BIRMINGHAM have purchased at the largest amount ever paid for one picture the WORLD'S EXCLUSIVE RIGHTS of "Barker's" Gigantic Production

"SIXTY YEARS A QUEEN"

THE LIFE AND REIGN OF HER GRACIOUS MAJESTY THE LATE QUEEN VICTORIA and invite tenders for exclusive rights for any Town or Country in the World.

LENGTH ABOUT 6,000 FEET

All Communications to

THE ROYAL FILM AGENCY, 270 CORPORATION STREET
BIRMINGHAM, ENGLAND

Tel. No. 69006 CENTRAL

Tel. Add. COWBOY, BIRMINGHAM

The time came when the Indians wrought death among them. Arthur and Ruth were slain in sight of Mistress Joyce and Alice, the baby. Mistress Joyce became demented from the shock. Because the Indians held an insane person sacred, she was saved from death. This led the Puritans to believe that Mistress Joyce was a witch and when she wandered back among them they seized her and planned to burn her at the stake. With the intent of treating Alice, now sixteen, in the same way they tore her from the Indians and imprisoned her.

Her condition touched the old constable, who called in Abner Mortan, a newly arrived comformist minister, to administer Christian consolation to her. She had refused to see the Puritan minister. Abner responded and was surprised to find that the girl was of his own faith. After a daring rescue, he takes her out of the danger zone.

Sir Richard Cartwright, still living in England, has long grieved over the disappearance of his son. His brother, Sir John, in accordance with his last wishes, departs for America in search of the missing heir of his family. Reaching Plymouth, he is conducted to the comformist minister, Abner Morton as the most likely to aid. On hearing her father's name, Alice still in trousers, rushes forward and verifies her identity, showing her father's seal ring.

The pastoral wedding, the Indian massacre, the ship scenes and dungeons and above all, the scene wherein Mistress Joyce is set ablaze at the stake make this a never-to-be-forgotten picture.

WHY AUNT JANE NEVER MARRIED (Sept. 28).—At the urgings of the children the old woman sits herself down to retell the story of why she never married.

It appears that the old aunt, when young, lived with her father on an island off the New England coast. Following a terrible storm which kept the people indoors for many days, a young stranger, fatigued and with memory dimmed, came to the house to seek shelter. With careful nursing he was restored to health and in that he was able to give no information regarding himself, he was taken into the family. It was believed that he had been wrecked some distance up the coast and was probaly the lone survivor.

As the spring came on the old father showed considerable feebleness and so the stranger, though the women did not believe him ready for the rigors of the outdoor life, assisted in netting. The season's catch proved the most successful the family had ever had and the credit was given the stranger.

By this time the daughter and stranger had fallen in love. After receiving his share of the catch the stranger gave the mother a proper sum for his winter's keep and then asked the girl to marry him. She accepted and together they sought the consent of the father. To their dismay he refused and cursed himself as a blind mule that he had allowed a nameless stranger to seriously consider his daughter so long. Melancholy days followed. Finally, however, the old father's consent was given.

They were to be married at the close of summer. When they were about to enter the little church, first a little boy and then a fashionable dressed woman pushed their way to the stranger's side. As he looked into the woman's face, reason returned—and there was mutual recognition. As he called her "wife," the girl swooned. It was simply a tragedy of life.

GEM.

NONE BUT THE BRAVE DESERVE THE—? (Sept. 22).—Reginald is a coward. Mary, the wealthy young widow, adores bravery. Reginald takes Kitty, Mary's baby, out for a boat ride. Kitty falls overboard and but for Bob, the lifeguard, would have been drowned. Reginald bribes Bob and, taking the baby, claims that he saved it.

He is claimed the hero and awarded a medal. Later he takes the mother for a boat ride and when the boat upsets, Bob again comes to the rescue. Reginald is discovered as a fraud and Bob is made the hero and taken to the garden party that evening. Here the assembled guests treat him rather coolly.

VICTOR.

FOR THE SINS OF ANOTHER (Sept. 26).—John Denton, a wealthy lawyer, has for his private secretary, Robert Blair, an honest fellow who loves the former's daughter, Violet. Philip, her brother, falls into evil ways, contracts a gambling debt for which he is unable to pay without aid from his father. This he is afraid to ask.

Muriel, Lawyer Denton's youngest child and a favorite with Robert, watches Robert open the safe one day and induces him to teach her the combination. Failing to manipulate the numbers right the child throws the paper which contains the numbers she had written down upon the floor. This paper falls into the hands of Philip, who, later, rifles the safe to pay his debt.

Robert being the only one knowing the safe besides the lawyer, is accused. Because Violet confesses her love for the young man her father does not prosecute but simply dismisses him from his service.

Later, the housekeeper finds Philip's discarded cuff. Muriel, in the room at the time, observes the figures and takes it to her older sister. Violet recognizes their meaning and confronts her brother with the evidence. He is made to write a letter to his father exonerating Robert and that he expects to start life anew some distant place. Robert is taken back and is given consent to marry Violet.

CRYSTAL.

PEARL AND THE POET (Sept. 23).—Though Pearl is giving her attentions to Chester, Claude Belmont a struggling poet living across the airshaft, derives inspiration for his verses from her pretty face. Pearl is considerably amused at the verses she finds in her flower pot. On one of Chester's visits Bill Simmons, the football hero, accompanies him. Pearl is fascinated by his strength and Chester grows jealous and departs after a quarrel. On the following day Chester meet Bill and urges him to visit Pearl and bridge over his spat. Bill arrives at the house only to find the poet down on his knees asking Pearl to marry him. The poet goes out of the window on his head and in the heat of making love to the girl himself, Bill forgets his mission. Chester decides to call himself and upon finding that his suit has been double crossed he collapses and goes to join the struggling poet.

O! WHAT A SWIM (Sept. 23).—Two girls, bathing in the river, have their clothes taken by two tramps. These tramps are being pursued by the country constable for chicken stealing and have taken the girl's clothing as a means of disguise. Believing that their disguise is so complete that detection is impossible, the fellows approach the constable and his companion and strike up a flirtation. Later, the girls, coming out of their swim, find the clothes that have been left them and though lamenting their lot, are forced to put them on. In this guise the constable finds them and suspecting them as the thieves, take up a chase. Finally overtaking them the mistake is discovered. Later the tramps regret their hike as they are unable to regain their own clothes and are forced to continue to wear the girls'.

HIS LAST GAMBLE (Sept. 28).—Wm. Letterell is a considerate father to his daughter, Pearl, failing to reflect his true character. In business he is a receiver of stolen goods. His associates are ordinary thieves. Dick Hogan, a chooth crook, has succeeded in establishing the father's identity though he makes no use of his knowledge. In later years Pearl is sent to boarding school. Hogan accidentally saves Pearl from the insult of a tough. Learning that she is the daughter of a wealthy merchant he decides to win her love. Pearl responds to his advances and writes to her father asking his consent to their marriage. Her father asks her to return home with the fellow who is now going under the name of Gerald Sinclair. Hogan consents, unaware of the true identity of the father. Letterell on meeting the fellow, is horror-stricken to find that his daughter has fallen in love with a crook. Hogan is offered a sum of money to leave the girl, but refuses. Hogan uses the threat that he will tell the girl of the real identity of the father unless he consents to the marriage. Rather than have his daughter know this or marry a crook Letterell induces Hogan to accompany him on the river in a boat where both are drowned when the boat is capsized.

FRONTIER.

THE VILLAGE PEST (Sept. 25).—Wallie Waddles, son of the village grocer, has been secretly studying the art of legerdemain. Nora Farley gives a party and because of Wallie's father's standing in the village, is forced to invite him. The boy sees his opportunity to show just how much he knows. One of his tricks is pulling a table cloth from the table without disturbing the dishes.

The night of the party Wallie insists on pestering every one and particularly the other boys. The climax is reached when he seeks to pull the table cloth off without disturbing the dishes. Nora gets them in her lap. Wallie is hustled away and soused in the horse trough. Left alone, he crawls, shivering, into the wagon and under the hay. His trip home is extremely sad.

Next morning, Wallie, with a severe cold, makes his way to the barn where he destroys his book on legerdemain and the village is left in peace once more.

THE MOONSHINER (Sept. 27).—Because he himself and his deputies are so well known, the sheriff of a western country sends Bess, the daughter of one of his deputies, into the hills disguised as an artist to seek evidence against those engaged in illicit distilling. Bess' idea is to snap-shot suspects she meets fitting with the description in the documents. For some time her efforts prove unavailing and she about concludes to return home. In dismounting to recover her camera, accidentally dropped, her foot slips from the stirrup and she falls to the ground. A stranger, watering his horse close by, politely gives her assistance. Bess is struck by his likeness and through a clever ruse photographs him. When he leaves she goes through the woods, and, at a safe distance, tracks him to a large cave. Despatching the negative she returns to the place on the following day to gain more evidence. "Black Pete," one of the gang,

Start the Season Right and Book Our Money Makers

The Street Waifs
In Four Parts

The Broken Sword
In Three Parts

The Massacre
Great War Drama
In Two Parts

The Captivating Countess
In Natural Colors
Three Parts

Abraham, The Patriarch of Israel
In Three Parts

50 OTHER FEATURES
with splendid advertising matter

For New York and Connecticut Only

Homer's Odyssey
In Three Parts
with 10 different kinds of paper and great lobby display.

The Greatest Features of the World's Market selected especially for our Offices. Book them through

FEATURE FILM COMPANY
108 E. 12th Street, New York
127 4th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

$10
$5
$10
$5
$5
$10
$5

Don't Throw Money Away

DON'T EXPERIMENT

TRADE YOUR OLD PICTURE MAchine for new, modern, up-to-date outfit by paying a little difference. We carry in stock all makes of machines, also have a few second-hand and rebuilt machines for sale cheap. Write us—

Stelzer Bros.

417 Broadway Lincoln, Ill.

THE SIMPSON SOLAR SCREEN

The only Metallic Screen without seams, patented. Buy the real thing. Beware of imitations

ALFRED L. SIMPSON, Inc.
No. 113 W. 132nd St., N. Y. City

Stop the Leakage

Use Corcoran Tanks.
No. 6 price list is a money saver.

A. J. CORCORAN, INC.
11½ John Street New York City

"FOTOPLAYER"

the instrument that supplies
MUSIC FOR THE PICTURES

The American Photo Player Sales Co.
130 Kearny St., San Francisco. Cal.

The House of a Thousand Features

Exclusive Subjects

M. & F. FEATURE FILM CORPORATION
167 West Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.

All Union Eclair features for Illinois and Wisconsin.

Booking now, "Doomed to Die"

WHEN YOUR PICTURE MACHINE NEEDS REPAIRING

WHY DON'T YOU SEND IT TO US?

We have the best equipped machine shop in the country and can repair any make of machine. Write us and get acquainted.

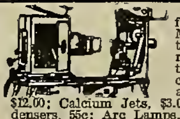
WE BUY SECOND-HAND MACHINES.

GEO. M. HOKE SUPPLY CO.
176. N State St. (bet. Lake and Randolph) Chicago, Ill.

TRY US

for printing, developing and titles. No order too large for our capacity, or none too small for our careful attention. Films renovated by our special Paris Process.

PARISIAN MFG. & FILM RENOVATING CO.
4940 Wentworth Avenue, Chicago, Ill.



We have a Catalogue of full line of Moving Picture Machine repair parts ready to put in your machine at reduced prices. We make them, and for that reason can sell them very low. We also sell Stereopticons for $12.00; Calcium Jets, $3.00; 100 Carbons, $2.00; Condensers, 55c; Arc Lamps, $2.25; Stereopticon Lenses, 50c; Slide Carriers, 25c; Moving Picture Objectives, $3.75; Jackets, $1.75; Ticket Holders, 75c; Rheostats, $4.00; 50 Candle Power Stereopticon Lamps, 75c.

L. HETZ, 302 E. 23rd Street, New York City

COPYRIGHT 1909 BY THE DECORATORS

Ornamental Theatres

PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

Theatres Designed Everywhere

Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
2549 Archer Avenue, :: CHICAGO, ILL.

We Try To Serve You Right.
Remember the Place.

BUSINESS IS GOOD

It's getting better every day. There's a reason: Square business methods, good goods and reasonable prices. NEW CATALOGUE—JUST OUT—GET ONE. SLIDES TO ORDER. (Stock Slide, as illustrated, 40 cents, postpaid.) Many others in our catalogue.

ERKER'S 608 OLIVE ST., ST. LOUIS

Film Managers Wanted

A company now being formed to operate offices throughout the United States and Canada desires experienced and capable film men to manage offices. Only the best and largest features will be handled, therefore, high-class men only are desired. Salary no object to the right men. State age and experience. Replies treated in confidence. Address replies to greets her as she works with her canvas, and Bill, in the background, moves forlornly around, apparently in love.

B. B. care of Moving Picture World, New York City

Recognizing the negative the sheriff has set off to join the girl. Bill saves her from the unwelcome embraces of his pal, "Pete" after a terrific fight which results in both men falling over a high cliff. They are found at the bottom by Bess and the officers. Pete is dead and Bill is unconscious. Though the girl had originally set out to capture Bill she now nurses him, firm in the belief that he will reform and love her. Her explanations to her father succeed in securing a pardon for Bill, and, though his eyes fill with gratitude when this is announced, he dies.

POWERS.

THE PAINTER'S RUSE (Sept. 24).—Though Spatoletti does his work well he is not a great painter. The important question before him is "how can he make his name known upon the market?"

With the aid of a journalist friend he formulates a plan; he will have inserted in the newspapers a notice of his death. The following day there are long articles relating to the death of an, unknown genius, Spatoletti.

The value of his works grow to thousands of dollars and all the amateurs desire a painting now that he is dead. The artist and his friend, well hidden, enjoy excellent dinners, better drinks and make the best of the life the papers said he had lost.

TWEEDLEDUM INSURES HIS LIFE (Sept. 24).—Tweedledum has an insurance policy on his life, and as he and his wife are living in great indigence, he decides to sacrifice himself to secure the money for his wife.

He says goodbye to his wife and starts out to fulfill his purpose. His first effort proves unsuccessful. Then he tries again. He tries water, lasso, railroad, explosives and several other means, but all fail him. Finally a bomb explosion throws Tweedledum into the air and falling, he smashes the poor agent. He gathers up a lost pocketbook and returns to his wife rich at last.

BISON.

THE STRUGGLE (2 parts—Sept. 23).—Mr. and Mrs. MacComb have two sons, Jack and Jim. Jim, the younger, is spoiled. He drops in with the boys to have "just one" while his father and brother go on to work. Late for work, Jim is discharged. Returning to the saloon he gambles all his money and is thrown out. Jack finds him, takes him home, makes excuses to their mother and puts him to bed.

Disgusted with everything, Jim is anxious to get away from the town. He attempts to steal his father's money, is caught by Jack and when the father appears, Jack assumes the guilt. He is ordered from the house, never to return.

In the city he obtains employment, while his brother Jim goes from bad to worse until the father at last locks him out. This awakens the manhood in him; he writes a note to the father confessing his guilt relative to taking the money and leaves for the city to redeem himself. There he meets Jack and through him secures employment. During their vacations the following summer they return home to save their father and mother, who, through reverses and sickness, have lost their money. A happy reunion takes places.

NESTOR.

FOR THE PEACE OF BEAR VALLEY (Sept. 22).—Joe and Del, affianced, arrive in Bear Valley village where they meet Mona, an Indian girl, and her brother, Ortega. Mona and Del become good friends, teaching each other their mutual accomplishments: fishing, swimming and hunting. Joe attempts to flirt with Mona but is knocked down and chased to the town by her brother, Ortega, where a fight occurs when Joe tries to explain.

An Indian uprising follows the insult and Del is taken to the Indian village for safety. Learning her whereabouts the sheriff gets her back to town in time to leave with the others as the Indians attack. The stage coach is trailed and in the massacre that follows, Del and the sheriff are the only ones to escape.

Returning to the town they find a cavalry detachment waiting. The commander and his cavalry, remain to restore peace. The Indians are forced to surrender their arms. Peace restored, Joe again attempts to flirt with Mona and when repulsed throws her into the lake. Del, swimming near by, rescues her. Joe is shot by Del, however, before she makes her dive and later, the two girls are picked up by Ortega in his canoe. Mona, loved by the sheriff, gives her consent and Del, who has grown to also love him, lives on with love unrequited.

HIS CRAZY JOB (Sept. 26).—Believing that there is graft in the management of the State Asylum, the managing editor of the "Clarion," is determined to get the information needed to convict. A reporter is arraigned to investigate, but his arrogant and impertinent methods result in his being forcibly ejected from the asylum.

When the reporter, a star, returns to the office with the information that inside facts are impossible to get, the editor is disgusted. Only too gladly he gives the cub reporter a chance to secure the facts. To gain admittance to the place the cub feigns insanity. Safely landed the cub spots the warden's niece and is attracted by her beauty, although he deplores the fact that she is, as he supposes, weak-minded. After taking the cub's watch and wallet, the warden allows him to roam the grounds. Here he encounters many noble and famous characters.

After a talk with the steward and a secret examination of the books he learns all that is necessary and attempts his escape over the wall. This leads to a chase. The cub is recaptured and placed in the iron cell flanked on either side by wild men.

The warden's niece, strolling through the place, is appealed to successfully. He again gets over the wall and, pursued by guards, runs all the way to the newspaper office where the editor protects him and turns the laugh on the pursuers. On the following day the warden's niece returns the wallet and watch and proves her sanity by admiring the cub immensely.

REX.

GENESIS: 4-9 (2 parts—Sept. 25).—Tom, Jerry and their mother live in the Canadian woods. Jerry, leaving his sweetheart, Mary, who has promised to wait for him, goes to seek his fortune as a mounted policeman. Later, he writes to his mother of his success and of his love for the girl. She puts the letter in a book which Mary had loaned her. Tom also loved the girl and tells her. Later, Mary recovers her books, finds the letter, part of which has been torn away, and reads what would indicate that Jerry had fallen in love with another girl.

Mary, piqued, accepts Tom, Jerry, returning just as they have been married, believes that his brother has betrayed him. In poverty Mary's baby is born. Without food, Tom decides to steal from the settlement store. This he does, but through a sack of flour which leaks leaves a track behind. Jerry in his capacity as a policeman, traces Tom to his home. Tom hides in the woods. Disregarding the pleadings of his mother and his young wife, Jerry searches the house—finds no one—and departs to inform the police. Shortly after he returns accompanied by the chief. In the delirium following the shock, Mary gives the signal which informs Tom that all is safe. He approaches. Observing him Jerry's conscience overcomes him and he shoots out the light. Tom, warned, escapes to the United States where he is followed by his mother and wife. Jerry is dismissed in disgrace from service. He receives a letter from Mary enclosing the torn letter of long ago exonerating his brother Tom.

PAYING THE PRICE (Sept. 28).—Because she preferred wealth and social position, Jane Forrester, society girl, marries a moneyed stock broker rather than risk her future to the man she really loves, a struggling young lawyer. The lawyer, crushed, shoulders his burden and applies himself more assiduously to his profession. As he gradually becomes a recognized power, the broker and his wife likewise undergo a change. The love which she hoped would develop through marital ties becomes but a mocking memory, and the broker gradually responds more freely to drink.

As the passing years intensify the embitterment of the mismated lives, the wife is prompted to seek her old time sweetheart for advice respecting divorce. He tells her there are no grounds. She becomes more despondent, finally determining upon self-destruction as the only escape.

Meanwhile, the husband is justifiably suspicious. He believes, however, illicit love is contemplated rather than the drastic action of the wife plans. He employs a detective to shadow the pair and the day comes when the announcement is made that the pair are together. The detective is dismissed and the infuriated broker arrives home to deal with the couple as his jealousy dictates.

His entrance into the house is detected by the pair. They are together only because of the old time sweetheart's desire to persuade the morbid wife to abandon her criminal purpose. The frantic wife, realizing her character would be assailed by the discovery, induces the lawyer to hide. The husband enters with drawn revolver, denounces the wife, and starts for the room. She turns the

Junior Professional Camera
and Film Making Outfit, simplest method, none better. World's greatest productions made with this camera. Expert advice and guarantee. Tripods, Tilts, Printers, Perforators, Raw Film, Lenses. Developing done, whole building to the business Write for catalogue.
Eberhard Schneider, 219 Second Ave., N. Y.

GET WISE—USE OUR SUPPLIES
McCRAY & McCRAY
Amusement Brokers
Dealers in
Everything for the Theatre
We sell it for less—Write for list.
306 Madison St., FAIRMONT, W.VA.

We sell all standard makes of moving picture machines, parts and all accessories.
Wanted—To buy second-hand machines of all kinds.
For Sale—200 reels film, $2.50 per reel, and up. Send for list. Film service? Yes!
WICHITA FILM & SUPPLY CO., Inc.
122 North Market St. Wichita, Kansas

For FEATURE FILMS
address
NORTHERN FEATURE FILM EXCHANGE
Suite 405, Schiller Building, Chicago
Phone Central 6229
SEND FOR OUR NEW LIST

MOVING PICTURE MACHINES
Stereopticons, Slides, Accessories
CHAS. M. STEBBINS
1028 Main St.
KANSAS CITY, MO
Large Line of Edison Goods. Established 1899.

McKENNA
BRASS
RAILINGS
EASELS
GRILLES
CUSPIDORS
KICK
PLATES
POSTER
FRAMES
Write for Catalog.
McKenna Bros. Brass Co.
PITTSBURGH

TO THE TRADE
Negatives Developed. 1c per ft.
PRINTS MADE ON
Eastman Stock.... 4½c per ft.
(In quantities over 5,000 feet)
Including Tinting and Toning
TITLES, 8c per ft.
Prompt deliveries. All work guaranteed.
Commercial Motion Pictures Co., Inc.
108 W. 101st Street. New York City
Telephone, 6724 Riverside

COMING
Rogues of Paris
Three Reels
Solax
Thrilling and Sensational Big Assortment of Advertising Matter
SOLAX COMPANY, FORT LEE, NEW JERSEY

MONEY-GETTING FEATURES
FOR LARGE CAPACITY THEATRES

Touring Rights Only No State Rights Sold

"FROM DUSK TO DAWN"

IN FOUR PARTS

M'f'd by
The Occidental
M. P. Co. of California

A Story of the Class Struggle

CLARENCE DARROW

Shown in Great Trial Scene
The Famous Plea to the Jury

A Wonderful Feature of Intense Human Interest

Opera House Managers:—

85 Per Cent. of Your Theatregoers — the Numberless Working Class—Will Want to See This Picture.

"100 YEARS OF MORMONISM"

IN SIX PARTS

M'f'd by The Golden State M. P. Co.
of California

AT A COST EXCEEDING $50,000.00

Already Holding Box Office Records of $1000.00 Per Day, $5000.00 Per Week at 50c Prices

A story unparalleled in the annals of early Pioneers

Its sensational features presented with historical accuracy

FULL LINE OF LITHOGRAPHS FROM STANDS TO WINDOW CARDS, HERALDS, ETC., FOR EVERYTHING WE BOOK

FEATURE PICTURES HANDLED, MARKETED, SOLD or TOURED in legitimate or Moving Picture Theatres, in all parts of the country

Twenty active agents upon our staff (representatives abroad). Terms upon application

H. M. RUSSELL, General Manager ERNEST SHIPMAN, Business Manager
Ninth Floor, World's Tower Building :: 110 West 40th Street, New York

electric switch and plunges the room into darkness just as the intoxicated husband slips and falls. The accidental discharge deals him instant death.

An innocent account is published in the morning papers, stating that the lawyer killed himself accidentally while searching for a supposed burglar; also that the interests of the widow would be handled by Robert Marsden, the attorney.

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION.

AMERICAN.

THE GHOST OF THE HACIENDA (2 parts—Sept. 22).—Enid Hale and her father, the new owners of the hacienda, arrive to take possession, and when a few days later, Billy Thompson arrives with a letter of introduction from a mutual friend, everything is nice and quiet.

One evening, Pedro tells the story of the tragic death of Enid's aunt, Senorita Ysolda, who was killed while a mere girl by El Capitan, a Mexican bandit. The story makes a great impression on Enid, especially when she is told that the natives believe that the spirit of the girl haunts the hacienda.

Some days later, after Enid and Billy are engaged, a large supply of gold arrives, with which Billy is to pay off the section at work on the new railroad. Billy very unwisely puts it away before Senor Tocquinado, who is visiting at the hacienda and who, it later develops, is a notorious highwayman.

The senor and his friends plot to steal the gold and attack the hacienda at night. Luckily, however, Billy and Enid see them before the attack is made, and are partly prepared for their reception. The fight is short but bitter and is only brought to a close by the lack of ammunition on the part of the hacienda defenders.

Enid bethinks herself of a scheme, a sort of forlorn hope, and hurries upstairs. She is seen in her room preparing to play ghost, relying upon the innate superstition of the lower class Mexican.

In the meanwhile, senor and his band, by means of a large battering-ram, break down the door. Just as they are well inside the door, Enid, her hair hanging over her shoulders, a candle in her hand, and robed in pure white, glides down the steps. The Mexicans catch sight of her, and with many yells they flee, leaving the hacienda and its protectors in peace.

MRS. CARTER'S CAMPAIGN (Sept. 25).—A Woman's Clean City Club of Cartersville sends the mayor a reminder of his promise to clean up the streets. Nell and Bessie Carter are chosen to carry the message. The mayor and the chief of police are deeply engrossed in a discussion of politics when the girls arrive. The mayor refuses to do anything to the streets and denounces the club as a lot of busybodies. The chief of police intercedes in behalf of the club, which gives rise to a quarrel; the chief resigns and vows to get even.

The club is so indignant at the treatment given their activities that they resolve to put a candidate in the field against the mayor at the coming election. Mrs. Carter, the mother of Nell and Bessie, is named for the place. She launches her campaign in glorious style and all looks promising when the mayor expresses a change of policy and enters into the campaign with such a zest as to cause his supporters to rally to his aid. The outlook for the election of Mrs. Carter is very bleak and dreary to all, including Mrs. Carter.

Not so the girls. They send their engagement rings to Tom and Dick, the two young men to whom they are engaged, and who are employed in the mayor's office, with a letter saying that they will not wear them again until mother is elected mayor. The boys gets busy, solicit votes, canvas, and spend money, but the opposition is too strong. and they are at their wits end, when the ex-chief of police, anxious to be revenged on the mayor, shows them how they can win. Acting under his instructions, they offer to bet two dollars to one that Mrs. Carter will be elected. They have no trouble in placing bets with almost every voter on the other side.

Election day comes, and every man that made a bet finds his vote challenged and himself disfranchised for violation of the law against betting on elections. Mrs. Carter wins in a walk.

MASTER OF HIMSELF (Sept. 27).—In the festooned ballroom of Madam Hildreth, the announcement of the engagement of her daughter, Frances, to the distinguished Dr. Blanchard was made to a host of intimate friends. The announcement rather piqued Mr. Davis, who had entertained hopes of winning the hand and fortune of Miss Hildreth.

At the Wilton Club the next evening the animosity of Mr. Davis crops out and he strikes Dr. Blanchard a stinging blow in the face. The young doctor promptly withdraws in the company of several of his friends, one of whom, a Mr. Atherton, recites the incident to his sister. True to the trait of her sex, this charming maiden immediately imparts the incident to Miss Hildreth. A short note demanding an explanation of his conduct and failure to resent the insult offered him brings the doctor to the home of his sweetheart.

The explanation of his sense of manhood is not accepted and the engagement is called off. The situation grows more tense and the doctor is urged to accept an invitation to a hunting party. Scarcely has he reached his destination when a hurried summons from the city induces him to return to perform an operation for skull fracture.

At the hospital all is in readiness for the doctor and he dons his apron, looks over his instruments, etc., before he gazes upon the patient. To his consternation he finds the patient to be Miss Hildreth. She was injured by a falling brick in passing a structure in the course of erection while in company with Mr. Davis.

While the operation is under way an explosion in the laboratories sets the structure in flames. The courageous doctor performs the operation and rescues the patient with the aid of the fire department. When Miss Hildreth has recovered and learns the facts she is glad to receive the doctor again, not on a professional, but on a social call. The attentions of Mr. Davis are promptly and effectively squelched and her engagement with the doctor renewed.

RELIANCE.

TWICKENHAM FERRY (Sept. 15).—Madame Albany, a beautiful and petted opera singer, contracts to sing the old ballad, "Twickenham Ferry," for a phonograph company for $1,000. The old song awakens memories of her youth and she decides to run away from the city and spend a few peaceful weeks in the country. She arrives at a little wayside station, and as she stands irresolute, not knowing which way to turn, a handsome country lad passes. She asks him if he can tell her where to board. He offers to take her across the river in his boat. She accepts his offer. In the drifting boat she sings a verse from "Twickenham Ferry," and the beauty of her voice, as well as her lovely face, causes the boy to fall in love with her. He deserts his pretty country sweetheart and spends most of his time rowing with the singer. She thinks him different from the other men she has known, and before long she returns his love. His little sweetheart learns who the singer is, and going to her, pleads with her to give her back the boy. Madame laughs, until she notices a little ring the girl wears. Then her heart softens and she promises to do what is right. She returns to the city, leaving only a card of good-bye to the boy. He is heartbroken. One day he hears "Twickenham Ferry" on a phonograph, and recognizes his beloved's voice. He learns that she is Madame Albany. He hurries to the city to find her in her dressing room. When he professes his love for her, she realizes that to love her will be his ruin. She pretends to love her manager, smokes a cigarette, and so disgusts the boy that he leaves her, to return to the girl who is waiting for him.

THE DISGUISE (Sept. 17).—The house next to the Darrows' is rented to a crippled gentleman, Jim Craven, his daughter, Doris Leath, and his attendant, Corless. Craven is entirely helpless, never leaving his wheel-chair. Nancy Darrow and her new neighbors become friends. Nancy falls in love with pretty Doris Leath. The girls become inseparable. Nancy has two brothers, one, Dick, a mere boy, the other, John, connected with the banking business. Nancy gives a party in honor of Doris. Several valuables are taken during the dance from the dressing rooms. The mystery regarding the theft is not solved. The Darrows are embarrassed and chagrined, but helpless. John Darrow comes home from the city, meets Doris, and the two fall deeply in love. John asks her hand in marriage. The two are soon betrothed. Sometime later, after John has returned to the city, Doris spends the evening with Nancy. The girls are on the porch with Dick. Doris asks to go in for a drink. Dick offers to get the drink, but Doris, who is like one of the family, insists upon waiting upon herself. She remains so long indoors that the brother and sister remark upon it. Finally she returns to the veranda. The next morning, Nancy finds her jewels missing. Nancy had been displaying the jewels to Doris, and so cannot help suspecting her. She takes occasion to refer pointedly to the jewels. Doris, bitterly hurt and humiliated, goes home and the friendship ends. John stops over night on his way to New York, having a large sum of money to transfer to another bank. Stopping in Doris' house on his way home, she explains the trouble between herself and Nancy. John is very angry that his sweetheart is suspected of theft. Craven and Corless see John enter and also notice that he carefully guards the satchel he carries. The satchel contains the money. That same night, Doris, unable to sleep, kneels by her open window and hears steps below in the shrubbery. Throwing a black wrap over her dressing gown, she steals out. A burglar is placing a ladder below the second story window next door, where John sleeps. John is still up; a light shines through the wide open window. The burglar moves off to wait until John retires. Doris, never hesitating a minute, thinking only of John's impending danger, mounts the ladder and enters his room. John, stunned, sees her enter. Half fainting she tells him all. Hiding her behind a screen, and getting his revolver, he puts out the light and waits. The burglar returns, finds the house in darkness, and concludes that John has retired, climbs the ladder and enters. His flash can be seen darting about, before he locates the satchel on the table. At the same moment the lights are turned on. John shoots the fellow, who staggers toward the window, turns and his mask falls off. The burglar is Craven, Doris' step-father, a very clever criminal. He is captured and by the note found upon him, Corless is also caught in the nick of time, and the various jewels are recovered. Doris is cleared of all blame.

THE STOLEN WOMAN (2 parts—Sept. 20).—Lewis Granton, a dignified widower of about forty, proposes for the hand of Frances Huyden, a beautifull girl of twenty-five, to her fatehr Major Huyden. Frances yields to the wishes of her parent in the matter, as their means are limited, and a younger sister, Evelyn is to be provided for. She accepts Granton, respecting him, but not loving him. A thief shadows Granton when he buys the magnificent diamond engagement ring for Frances, and tries to waylay him. Estien Randolph happens along and helps Granton. Granton has the thief arrested and sent to prison. A few weeks later Estien takes an early run in his speed boat. A convict has escaped during the night and Randolph catches sight of him hiding in a clump of river grass near the shore. His sentiment and pity prompt him to offer the hungry wretch some breakfast. While the convict eats he talks to him. He is the man that Granton sent to prison. Randolph takes the convict aboard and covers his stripes with an overcoat. While Randolph is busy with the motor the convict suddenly makes an attempt to stab him in the back with a knife, but Randolph is quick and powerful, and after a struggle gets the best of the situation, although he is wounded in his arm from the knife. Furious at the treachery of the convict, he offers him his choice of being brought back to Sing Sing or take off his overcoat and submit to a sound thrashing from Randolph for the assault. The convict chooses the latter punishment and gets it. Randolph then gives him the overcoat and a five-dollar bill and puts him ashore.

Randolph's arm needs attention, and therefore he heads for an inhabited point of land nearby in search of a doctor. Frances Huyden is standing on the shore at this point. She tears up a sheer scarf that she wears, and binds Randolph's arm. He falls in love with her. They part. She determines to put all thought of Randolph out of her mind and remain loyal to the promise she made Granton. That same evening Randolph is brought to their home by a brother of Frances'. Again the attraction for each other is marked. Next day Frances receives a beautiful silken scarf in place of the one torn for the bandage. She sadly, in the solitude of her own room, burns it at the open grate. While riding on her horse the following day, she encounters Randolph with a chaffeur in his motor car. At the same time the mud-stained, haggard convict arrives between a constable and an officer, handcuffed to them. The convict glares at Randolph, thinking that he has informed the authorities, and that his capture is due to him. Randolph offers the use of his automobile to the officers and walks beside Frances. He tells her of his love and urges her to give up Granton, as neither are in love with the other. Frances refuses. The day of Frances' wedding arrives. An hour before the ceremony a servant tells her that Mr. Granton wants to see her on the south porch alone. Frances goes down. An automobile with a chauffeur with his hand on the lever stands at the foot of the steps. Randolph, in motor costume, runs lightly up the steps, catches Frances in his arms, and takes her into the limousine, which starts off at a bound. Frances faints. When she comes to she finds herself in New York with Randolph. She begs him to take her back. He gently refuses, urging that he loves her. He secures a marriage license, sends a telegram to her father and mother announcing their marriage. Frances yields and marries him.

THANHOUSER.

REDEMPTION (Sept. 16).—The military academy had been the boy's home for many years. He was a likeable lad and popular with both teachers and pupils. The principal's niece was his particular favorite and the two youngsters were very happy together. As the boy grew toward manhood he acquired bad associates and, despite the kindly remonstrances of the school's principal, he became more and more unruly, and finally ran away. The little girl became a pretty young woman. She had many admirers, but looked with favor upon none of them, for she always remembered the attentive young soldier, and treasured the guns from his cap which he had given to her.

Contact with the world had not improved the former school boy. He lacked the incentive for earnest endeavor, lost position after position, and finally became a tramp. His wanderings brought him near his old home, and the tramps who were his companions decided to enter the academy after all had retired to rob it. The young man was ready to attempt almost any desperate deed, but when he heard that his old school was menaced, the old timely loyalty revived, and fighting off the men who would have detained him, he hurried to the school and gave the alarm. Then he turned to go away, as he thought, unrecognized, but the principal's niece recognized her old companion and greeted him joyfully. To his surprise he found that his friends at the school had no blame for him, only sympathy and compassion.

The realization that there were people who really cared for him and wished him success, and that the principal's pretty niece plainly showed her liking for him, acted as an incentive to the wan-

Helen Gardner

in

"A Princess of Bagdad"

An Original Arabian Nights' Story. Written and Directed by Charles L. Gaskill. Copyrighted, 1913, by Helen Gardner.

Attention is called to the handsome colored engravings of Helen Gardner appearing weekly on the back page of the New York Dramatic Mirror.

Made at Miss Helen Gardner's Studio at Tappan-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., U. S. A.

EDWARDS-ZETLER FEATURE FILM CO., DAYTON, OHIO, control State Rights for "The Wife of Cain" and "A Sister to Carmen"—Ohio—Indiana—Kentucky.

Sole Selling Agents—THE HELGARD COMPANY, No. 472 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We are now printing the word "Eastman" on the margin of all our Cine film. We want the exhibitor to know when he is and when he is not getting Eastman film. It will be to his advantage—and ours.

Of course it will take time for such identifiable films to reach the consumer—so don't expect results at once—but it's a step in the right direction—for your interests and ours.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.

BIO
CARBONS
Carbon
IN ALL THE WORLD
NONE OTHER SO GOOD

MORE
USED EVERY DAY

BIO CARBONS

CHARLES L. KIEWERT CO.

NEW YORK
165 GREENWICH STREET

MILWAUKEE
114 HURON STREET

SAN FRANCISCO
12 SUTTER STREET

AND ALL LIVE FILM EXCHANGES AND SUPPLY DEALERS

ARTHUR BRADY'S 14th ST. BRANCH WILL REMOVE SEPTEMBER 15th TO

120-122 E. 14th ST. Elevator Service Next door to our old building

Having outgrown our present quarters, we extend a hearty invitation to all exhibitors to come and look us over. Postcards, Posters, Banners, Signs, etc.

derer. He went back into the world, resolved to win, and success came to him, and with it he won the heart of the principal's niece.

FLOOD TIDE (Sept. 19).—On a lonely lighthouse lived a keeper and his wife. They were devoted to each other and when the wife was dying her sorest grief was she would be leaving her loved one alone. Just before she died, however, she had a dream and awakening told her husband with a smile that God would send some one to comfort him.

A few days later while the stricken man was praying at her grave his attention was attracted by a bundle which had been brought in by the sea. He found it to be a little girl, senseless, who had apparently been swept ashore from some wreck. She was wrapped in a life preserver, bearing the name of a yacht. A few days later he learned that the owner of the yacht, a banker involved in difficulties with the law, had been lost with his child and crew while trying to escape on the yacht. There was no one to claim the child and the pious keeper accepted her as the gift from God which he had been promised.

Years later, when the child had grown to be a handsome young woman, her aunt, a wealthy society woman, found and claimed her. The girl at first did not want to go, but the keeper persuaded her, believing that her relatives had the first claim. Then sorrowfully he took up his lonely life again. One afternoon, while thinking of her, he fell into a troubled sleep. He awoke to find her beside him. She showed him a letter which she meant to send to her aunt, telling her that fashionable life had no charms for her and that she had decided to devote herself to the old man who had been a father to her for many years. So "The Gift of God," as he always called her, came back to home, never more to leave him.

TAMING THEIR GRANDCHILDREN (Sept. 9).—Indulging in forbidden mud pies almost costs little Tim and sister Helen the circus, grandpa had promised them. When they got their faces and their clothes all "chocolate dirt," grandma said they must be punished; of course, that meant, no circus. Perfectly aware that the penalty is all out of proportion to the enormity of their crime, Tim and Helen run away to the show. Their adventures and how they are traced thither by their exasperated grandparents, is the burden of this intensely amusing little farce. Of course the young sinners win out. In the closing scene grandpa and grandma are down on all fours on the library carpet, bitted and bridled, each surmounted by a flushed and triumphant young rider, who holds the reins of the situation in a sturdy, indomitable fist.

THE MESSAGE TO HEADQUARTERS (Sept. 12).—A wealthy American, while traveling through a lonely part of Italy, was captured by bandits and held for ransom. He was rescued by an officer of the Carabineri. The bandit chief was captured and vowed vengeance, but the young officer dismissed his threats contemptuously. The officer found favor in the American girl's eyes, and when she returned to America she had promised to marry him. A few months later the officer was ordered to America on a secret mission, and wrote his fiancee that he would soon be with her.

At the pier he was met by a man who displayed the badge of the United States Secret Service and showed him a letter from the chief. The young man took a hasty leave of his sweetheart, promising to see her the following day and entered a waiting carriage with his companion. He thought their destination was the office of the secret service, but before he could suspect anything wrong he was overpowered and taken into a lonely house. There he found another captive, the real member of the secret service, whose credentials had been taken away and used to ensnare the Italian officer.

While the conspirators were subjecting the Carabineri officer to the ordeal of a mock trial, the detective, tied to one of the ceiling beams, hung head downward. He realized that unless help soon came that the young officer would be put to death. At the other end of the room was a wall telephone. Although he could not loosen his bonds he succeeded in reaching the telephone and sending a call for help to headquarters. Assistance arrived when the young officer had only a few minutes to live. The conspirators were captured and punished, and the Italian officer warmly thanked his preserver who, though a captive, had saved him from death.

HIS LAST BET (Sept. 7).—He was only a young clerk on a two weeks' vacation, but at the summer resort hotel he was regarded as a man of wealth. Then a real millionaire, one who owned a yacht, came along, and the stock of the clerk fell below par. The new arrival had plenty of money and delighted in showing it. He soon became celebrated by the way he wagered on anything and everything, and the sight of his bank roll filled the clerk with envy, for he himself was getting down to his last nickel.

While yachting with the millionaire one day the clerk discovered what he thought was a way to make some easy money. He boldly offered to bet his host $1,000 that, clad only in a bathing suit, he could travel from the seashore to Newark, New Jersey, in 24 hours, solemnly promising that he would neither beg, borrow, or steal clothing or money. The millionaire promptly disputed this and accepted the wager, putting up $1,000 in bills against the clerk's check.

The clerk thought he was betting on a sure thing. He had read in the paper about an unknown man who had killed three persons in Newark, and then had made his escape. His plan was to swim ashore, give himself up to a constable and make the trip to Newark as a prisoner.

He swam ashore, found the constable, and was taken to Newark, but he did not win the wager. The clerk never knew that there was a Newark, New York, but it is on the map, and it was there that he was taken. He was turned out, so many miles from Newark, New Jersey that there was no hope for him, and he did not dare to return to the yacht for his check was worthless, and he wanted to get as far as possible before the bank repected it. So he hastened away in his bathing suit, cursing his sporting blood, and vowing that never again would he bet, even on a "sure thing."

MAJESTIC.

THE WINNING LOSER (Sept. 14).—The three college boys were all in love with the same girl. One of the boys was the brother of her chum, another was merely his friend, while the third was the captain of the track team. The girl was very pretty and well aware of the effect her charms created. She flirted with each of the boys in turn and they became her abject slaves. The girl was very fond of athletics and her suitors knew that success on the track meant favor in her eyes. They were all members of the track team, and all strove mightily to win distinction at the coming college meet.

The eventful day arrived and the three college men were contestants in the one hundred yard dash. The captain of the team was by far the best runner, but injured his leg in the race and his competitors sped by him to the goal.

Prizes were offered to the athletes. The men who received first and second prizes grinned delightfully, for they intended to present them to the girl for whom they both cared. The captain of the team sheepishly accepted the "booby prize," a dachshund. The spectators roared with laughter as the ungainly dog waddled after his new owner and the athlete felt far from happy for he feared the effect of ridicule would spoil his chances with the girl he loved.

Nevertheless, he came to her house for the decision she would make. The two other suitors were there also. The girl looked at each of the eager men and her eyes returned to the man she knew she loved. "I always did like dachshunds," she exclaimed, "and he will just match my dress" and she picked the animal up and smiled into her lover's eyes.

PLAYMATES (Sept. 16).—Helen and Willie lived lived side by side in beautiful homes. The fathers were partners in a great business enterprise and were firm friends. The children played together constantly and were thoroughly happy in each other's society. The boy freely shared his pony with his little neighbor, while he was the star guest at the parties which Helen gave to her little friends. Willie had an uncle (his mother's brother) whom the father had employed in his office. He was a worthless fellow, but his sister idolized him and induced her husband to give him work. Finally his conduct became so unbearable that Helen's father refused to permit him to continue in the employ of the firm, and when his partner opposed him the firm was dissolved.

Willie's father soon found that the success of the business was due greatly to his partner's energy. Ill luck seemed to pursue him and finally, in spite of desperate efforts, he became a bankrupt. His home was sold, and, with his wife and little son, he moved to poorer quarters. Helen was not happy, for while her father had been very successful the misfortune which had befallen her little playmate weighed upon her. She was driving with her father in their automobile when she saw her little playmate bravely trying to sell newspapers. He was set upon by the two older boys and driven away. The little girl and her father came to the boy's rescue, and the business man for the first time learned of the sad straits to which his former partner's family had been reduced. He was not naturally a harsh man, and had many times regretted the separation, but the pleading of his little girl was the greatest argument of all. And that is why Willie's family is back in the old house, and the two men are once more partners and firm friends. But the most important thing from Helen and Willie's standpoint is that they are together again.

HIS LAST DEAL (Sept. 20).—Garland Hamlin and wife live in a fashionable neighborhood and to all appearances are an ideal couple. One thing mars happiness—Hamlin is away three weeks every month on important business. His wife becomes suspicious. He comes home one evening about six o'clock, telling his wife that he has to hurry away in an hour on another important business deal. His wife asks him to postpone the trip, but he refuses, saying that he is going on the most important deal of his life. Learning from a telegram the place to which he is going, his wife follows him to find out the reason for his frequent visits. Hamlin gets off the train at a small station about twenty miles from his home, and hurries away closely followed by his wife.

She loses him in a thicket and tries to find her way back when she seized by masked men, who take her into a camp. They bind and gag her, and shortly after they start away. Mrs. Hamlin frees herself from her bonds, and follows. The men are joined by another masked figure and they boldly hold up the stage as it passes along the road. The sheriff and his deputies are concealed in the stage. They open fire. The leader of the outlaws is mortally wounded and his confederates captured. Mrs. Hamlin rushes out on them just as they remove the mask from the dying outlaw. Sobbing she throws herself down by his side. The sheriff and his men reverently bare their heads.

"Where is that ten dollars you promised me for taking this motion picture on my farm? and an unromantic farmer steps upon the scene right within the camera's range. With a smothered oath the director tosses a gold piece to him, and as the farmer withdraws the perspiring actors prepare to do the scene all over again.

And Hamlin has to die all over again.

THE FRAMEUP (Sept. 9).—A young detective was a terror to the evil doers of a large city, and at last, driven to desperation, they planned to trap him and send him to prison. "The frameup" succeeded and the policeman was found guilty of accepting bribes and sentenced to the penitentiary. His mother was one of the few who stood by him in his disgrace. Each month she made the weary journey to the prison to bring a little brightness into his life, but finally she became ill and was thought to be dying. The convict learned of her condition, and, feeling that he might never see her again, he made his escape from the prison. He surely would have been captured if he had not been befriended by a country girl who lived near the prison and whose acquaintance his mother had made.

The former policeman arrived at his mother's home and his presence wrought a great change for the better in her condition. Guards arrived to take him back to the prison, but they went back alone for the convict's innocence had been disclosed and he was once more a free man. Reinstated in the police department he once more took up his old work.

The girl's father had been employed for years in the country bank. A new manager took charge and he dismissed the old cashier. There was ill feeling between the two men and hot words were exchanged. The next day the vault was found looted of all its money and a mask made from a handkerchief was found, which was identified as belonging to the discharged employee. He was arrested and part of the stolen money was found. The evidence seemed very conclusive to the police, but the girl felt sure that her father was innocent. In the depths of her despair she thought of the police sergeant and telegraphed to him. When the detectives arrived, the evidence which had seemed so conclusive was shown to be nothing more than an attempt to put the blame upon an innocent man, in short, another "frameup." The real culprits were captured and punished. Then the girl, her father safe, gave her heart to the man she had grown to love.

FOR HIS LOVED ONE (Sept. 13).—Gurley, one of the best drivers of racing automobiles in the country, possessed many fine qualities, but liked "a good time with the boys." His wife, an invalid, was confined to her home, and often pleaded with him to stay home with her. Gurley cared for her, but in his thoughtlessness neglected her. Mrs. Gurley's health rapidly grew worse, and the family physician told the alarmed husband that only an operation by a high priced surgeon could save her life. Gurley had not been saving the necessary money but he secured enough to pay for a room at the hospital, and the wife was taken there to be operated upon.

Gurley gave up his gay comrades and strove valiantly to save his money. His friends resented his attitude and he quarreled with Hanley, a man of high temper. A fight ensued and the racing man struck his opponent to the ground, where he lay unconscious. Seeing that Hanley was seriously hurt, Gurley's friends induced him to flee, but when he realized what it would mean to his wife if he became a fugitive he decided to risk arrest. For his employer had promised him a large sum of money if he won the Santa Monica road race, and he resolved to elude the police until he could win the prize and deliver it to his wife.

Fortune was with him. Hanley was unconscious and did not recover until the race had started. Hanley regained his senses soon afterwards and told the attending physician that Gurley was his assailant. The police were informed and an officer dispatched to arrest him. Meanwhile the chauffeur, harassed by impending arrest and the fear that his wife, who was to be operated upon that day, might have died, raced around the course at terrific speed to victory.

At the end of the day Gurley received the promised reward from his employer, and as he had expected, was immediately placed under arrest. He was taken to Hanley's bedside, but the latter in the meantime had experienced a change of heart and exonerated Hanley. Freed from the fear of punishment for his hasty act, Gurley hastened to his wife's bedside to learn that the operation had been a complete success and that her health would be better than it ever had been in the past.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum; postage stamps accepted

ATTENTION!

FOUND—Near Corona, Long Island, case with four reels of films and some cans of grease. Owner apply to CHARLES ORDEMANN, 2 Jefferson St., Corona, L. I.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

AT LIBERTY—Experienced operator and manager, any machine, no boozer. Wife piano player. Address care of N. Clark, Waverly, Kansas, R. No. 1.

ARCHITECTURAL DRAUGHTSMAN—Can do hasty perspectives. Rapid, accurate. Wants to become associated with a moving picture producer in scenic department. Capable superintending construction. S. N., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

OPERATOR—Desires position. Three years' experience, non-union, sober, reliable, references. Power's 6a or 6. Prefer 6-day house, South, Southeast, West or Northwestern States. Will go anywhere on right proposition. All letters answered. State operating room equipment, wages, etc., in first letter. Address RELIABLE, care Moving Picture World, New York City.

WANTED—Position as manager of theater or exchange. Eight years' experience, reference. First class, well posted in the business. Address BOX 423, Arapahoe, Neb.

EXPERT CAMERAMAN—Seeks position with established firm. Eight years' experience. Best of references exchanged. Address C. R., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED, PIANIST—For vaudeville and picture house. Man preferred. Must be able to cue pictures and play rag. If not sober, steady and A-1, do not answer. No Sunday work. Position permanent, in Connecticut city. Address G-E-M, care Moving Picture World, New York City.

WANTED—General manager for chain of ten of the best moving picture theaters in Canada. Only first class, experienced men need apply. When replying, state experience, where now employed, all references, and salary required. We are prepared to pay a liberal salary to the right man. CANADIAN FILM EXCHANGE, Calgary, Alberta, Can.

EFFECT MAN—To give all effects back of stage. Must be first class, sober and have references. State all in first letter. Steady engagement. MAJESTIC THEATER, Dayton, Ohio.

AT LIBERTY—Experienced pipe organist and pianist. Position in picture house preferred. State hours and salary. Address PAUL DIXON, General Delivery, Minneapolis, Minn.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY.

WANTED—Partner with $150, to take half interest in the moving picture show business. Would prefer to travel the United States and Canada. Must be a live wire and experienced in that line. For particulars, address PETER O. HARSTAD, Malba, Montana.

WILL LEASE—For term of years, 600-seat picture theater in Brooklyn, or will pay big percentage on investment to builder of new theater. Address G. H. SCHNEIDER, 372 Cornelia St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

FOR SALE OR RENT—Moving picture house, capacity 299, excellent location in the Bronx, beautiful front, everything new; also open airdome adjoining. Reasonable terms. Write or call, between 12 and 1. MR. KERY, 1123 Broadway, Room 310, New York City.

I WILL INVEST—Four to five thousand dollars in a well established film exchange, and will take active part. Answer, giving full particulars, to B. D., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

THEATERS FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—Price $1,600, Moving Pictures, Opera House and Airdome. No competition, county seat, population 1,500, drawing population, 4,000. Opera chairs, electric light. Clears monthly $200. BLOOMFIELD THEATER, Bloomfield, Mo.

THEATERS FOR SALE—In Indiana and Illinois. Can give you just what you want from $1,000 to $10,000 investment, in small or large towns. Write CONSTRUCTION DEPARTMENT, LYRIC FILM & SUPPLY COMPANY, Terre Haute, Indiana.

FOR SALE—Only first class theater in town of 12,000. Doing splendid business; attractive front; modern equipment; seating capacity, 400. Address 1409 Broad St., New Castle, Ind.

WILL RENT—Or purchase, theater in small, live town within 500 miles of N. Y. State. Full particulars in first letter. Must bear rigid investigation. Address L. R., care Osward, 756 Trinity Ave., Bronx, N. Y.

THEATER—Moving picture, an honest house with an established family patronage in a growing Chicago neighborhood, with no competition, always clearing $75 week. Fine lease. Open to rigid investigation. $5,000. P. S., 428 So. Harvey Ave., Oak Park, Ill.

FOR SALE—Five-year lease (low rental), and all fixtures of Orpheum Theater, formerly Lubin Theater, Richmond, Va. (population 150,000). Seats 800. Completely equipped for vaudeville and moving pictures. House in perfect order, and now running. Paying proposition. Must be sold by Sept. 27th. Possession Oct. 1st. For further information, address M. G. WALLACE, 315 American Bank Bldg., Richmond, Va.

FOR SALE—One of the best paying picture houses in Binghamton, N. Y. Seats 380, will seat about 450. Latest equipment, 3-year lease, rent $75 per month, clearing from $50 to $80 per week. Open Sundays at 10c. Best reason for selling. Price, $1,500 for quick, cash sale. Address CLINTON THEATER, Binghamton, N. Y.

AN HONEST OPPORTUNITY—Fourteen hundred seats, open-air theater, One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street and Lenox Avenue. Doing big business. No competition. Latest and best equipment. Five-year lease, low rent. Call personally. D. H. SCULLY & CO., 57 East One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

BRASS POSTER FRAMES—For one, three and six sheets. Also brass easels, brass railings. Write for complete catalog. THE NEWMAN MFG. CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

FOR SALE—One Shelbyville Mirror Screen, size 10 by 14 feet, cheap, if taken at once. GEM THEATER, Moberly, Mo.

60 CYCLE—110-volt Fort Wayne compensarcs, like new—each, $44. IRA B. ALDEN, 538 W. Lehigh Ave., Phila., Pa.

FOR SALE AT A SACRIFICE—240 Antipanic theater chairs, also an almost new asbestos booth and two machines. Write or call, between 12 and 1. MR. KERY, 1123 Broadway, Room 310, New York City.

AUCTION—To highest bidder, Motiograph machine complete, worth $200. Bought same to start nickelodeon, but business will not permit. Used but short time. Runs slick as a whistle. Mail your bid. CLYDE ORR, Fayette St., Pittsburgh, Pa. Bank reference.

FILMS FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—Five hundred 1,000-feet reels film, $2.50 to $5. Such as "Daniel Boone," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Train Robbers," "Kit Carson," "Two Orphans." "Custer's Last Fight," 2 reels, $30; "Passion Play," 3 reels, $75; "Bottom of Sea," 2 reels, $25; "Dead Man's Child," 3 reels, $30; "Enoch Arden," 2 reels, $25; "Ballerina," 3 reels, $30; "Life of Moses," 4 reels, $40; "Nihilist's Conspiracy," 2 reels, $25. Moving picture theater, capacity 700, ground floor, $3,500. Population town and surrounding territory, 20,000. H. DAVIS, Watertown, Wisconsin.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS—Perforators, Tripods and Tilts for sale. We buy Motion Picture Machines and films. SPECIAL EVENT FILM MFGRS. CO., INC., 248 W. 35th St., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—One Ernemann professional camera. Three 400-foot magazines, one 50 m. m., and one 90 m. m. lens, one tilting and panoram top tripod. This outfit new, never used. Will sell 20% off list. SHIELS, 168 Lafayette Street, Newark, N. J.

MOVING PICTURE CAMERA & OUTFIT FOR SALE.—Camera, tripod and developing outfit for sale. Camera does its own printing. Outfit cost $350. Address E. FRENCH, Apollo Theater, Atlantic City, N. J.

FILMS FOR SALE.

50 FEATURE FILMS—2, 3, 4 reels each, and 500 commercial reels with full line advertising. Posters for sale. Many subjects practically new. Write for list. McINTIRE & RICHTER, 23 East 14th St., New York.

WILL SELL—Two good negatives of fine and best drama, 2,000 feet each. New subjects, never exhibited. Address G. WILLIAM, 23 Jones St., Rochester, N. Y.

MISCELLANEOUS.

UNBREAKABLE SLIDES—The new, round letter announcement slide, guaranteed not to crack, and will last many years. For circular address NEVER BREAK SLIDE CO., Omaha, Nebr.

WANTED—A good 4-reel service for a town of about 2,500 population, within 30 miles of Harrisburg. Address PASTIME THEATER, Newport, Pa.

LET US SEND YOU—A competent, steady OPERATOR. Wire at once to JAMESON & CO., 7 Arch St., Hartford, Conn.

DE VOE CONDENSERS—Highly tempered, heat-resisting silver, clear and the best condenser made. Sent by parcel post prepaid, for eighty-five cents, cash with order. MUNCIE FILM & SUPPLY CO., Muncie, Ind.

GUIL PASTILS—The new substitute for limes with calcium light. If you read the Projection Department of the Moving Picture World, no other recommendation is necessary. $1.35 each, postpaid. C. E. LINDALL, sole importer, Bar Harbor, Maine, or BOX 177, Norfolk, Va.

THEATER FOR RENT.

TO RENT—A first-class moving picture house, fully equipped, capacity 500. Rent reasonable. Address GOLDBERG BROS., Clen Cove, N. Y.

Richardson's Handbook

For Managers and Operators of Moving Picture Theatres

The Best Book of the Kind $2.50 per Copy Postage Paid

Moving Picture World

17 Madison Avenue New York City

KAY-BEE.

THE WAIF (Sept. 12).—We see a lone "prairie schooner," partly overturned, in a sandstorm—and in it, a dying consumptive boy in the arms of his sister. After the storm is over, we see her putting the last few stones on his lonely grave—trudging off upon the prairie—changing into her brother's clothes as a disguise—and finally arriving at the lonely hut of a prospector, which she searches for food.

Presently, the prospector returns—penetrates her disguise in a glance through the window, but comes in with a pretence that he has not done so. He makes her entirely welcome under the assumption that she is a boy—and finally insists upon her remaining for the night—while he sleeps outside. A well known horse-thief and desperado happens to be escaping from a recent outrage in a mining town—comes riding down upon the cabin—climbs through the window—struggles with the girl—runs out of the door into another struggle with the young prospector. In the ensuing running fight, he shoots the prospector upon the brink of a cliff and is, in turn shot by the girl.

The prospector is nursed by the girl, who finally leaves him to join her father—another prospector, who has struck it rich. Later, the younger man hunts them up, when finally recovered from his wound—and there is a very pretty bit of love-making between them.

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

MUTUAL WEEKLY, NO. 36 (Sept. 1).—Leetonia, Ohio.—Many are injured as the Eastern Express from Chicago to New York is wrecked.

Paris, France.—Women's Swimming Contest.

The Fashion in New York.

London, England—Col. Cody, England's greatest airman, falls with his hydroplane, meeting a terrible death.

Washington, D. C.—Four ranchmen, making a 20,000-mile ride from this city to San Francisco, are to be photographed with each governor in front of the capitol of his respective state.

Hoboken, N. J.—Second Officer Otto Gebracht loses his life in the German liner "Imperator" fire.

London, England—Another Trafalgar battle.

New York City—30,000 painters and paper-hangers engage in a huge strike.

Grunewald, Germany—Duke and Duchess Jean Albrecht, of Mecklenburg are present at the athletic games.

Washington, D. C.—The District of Columbia National Guard leaving the Capitol for the Camp of Instruction. at Harper's Ferry, Md.

New York City—The horse had a big place at Empire City Fair, likewise track athletes.

Berlin, Germany—300 American physicians visit the hospitals here.

Cleveland, Ohio—The National Association for the deaf mutes holds a memorial service at President Garfield's tomb.

Manitou, Ohio—Indian Sun Dance held in the "Garden of the Gods."

Berlin, Germany—Largest ice factory in Europe is destroyed by fire.

One Man, One Word, And—Every word a "BRYANT" residence.

MUTUAL WEEKLY, NO 37 (Sept. 8).—New York City.—20,000 persons take part in the annual Labor Day Parade.

Vincennes, France.—Military dirigible explodes while in the air.

New York City—New automobile for funerals, which has seating capacity of 22 persons, including the minister, and carries also the casket and flowers.

Cowes, England.—King George and Queen Alexandria on board the Royal Yacht enjoying the Regatta.

Chicago, Ill.—Illinois Suffragettes celebrating their victory with mass meeting and parade.

Fashion in Paris.

St. Louis, Mo.—Diving exhibition by the Berlow sisters to raise funds for the construction of the largest swimming pool in the world.

Washington, D. C.—Baseball game between the Democrats and Republicans of the House of Representatives.

Vienna, Austria.—Flower Day. The day when all contribute towards charity.

Fort Lee, N. J.—Fire drives several Italian families into the streets.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Canoe race between Marine and Field Clubs. at Bath Beach. Leo. Frede, of the Manhattan Canoe Club, wins the race.

London, England.—International Congress of Medicine meets at Albert Hall, at which H. M. King George V, presided.

New York City.—New York's story told in tableaux by 5,000 playground youngsters.

Wallingford, Conn.—25 are killed and 50 injured when Bar Harbor Express crashes into another passenger train.

EXCLUSIVE FILM CORPORATION

LUX.

THE BLACKSMITH'S SON (Sept. 19).—Robert, the blacksmith's son, goes to seek his fortune, and before setting out he asks his father for more money, but the old man refuses it. Seeing Robert go away and leave his father all alone at the smithy, some bandits decide to raid the smithy. They attack the old man, and under their menaces the blacksmith reveals the hiding place of his treasure. Before leaving the smithy, one of the bandits finds that his horse has cast a shoe, and the old man is forced to shoe the horse. He does so, but takes care to place a marked shoe on the horse's hoof. He is enabled thereby to track the bandits up by following the trail of the marked horseshoe.

Meanwhile, Robert meets Mirca, a gypsy girl, who is weary and hungry. Robert offers her food and together they continue their journey. They arrive at the very same inn as the bandits, and when Robert's father tracks the bandits to the inn, he concludes that his son has been the leader of the band, and accuses him of the robbery. Robert is unable to clear himself, but his friend, Mirca, the gypsy girl, comes to his aid and helps him to arrest the real criminals and establish his own innocence.

FEATURES

GAUMONT.

THE FAITHFUL SERVITOR (Feature Subject—2 parts).—Machuda is an Indian, a servitor, who toils day and night in the garden of his master, Senor Gabora. Machuda in his poor, slow method of thinking, reckons he belongs body and soul to the Gabora family. Did not the Senor and his lovely daughter, Esmeralda, discover his bruised and naked body at the bottom of the cliff whence he had been thrown by his tribe as a punishment for warning some American emigrants of the tribe's intention to attack them? Did they not tend his wounds, feed his body, and exhibit the first signs of tenderness he had ever known?

Verdugo, a poor but highly talented violinist, has dared to aspire to the hand of the rich Senor's daughter, and he is one of many guests invited to a ball given at the Gabora mansion. One other with whom this story is concerned is the rascally Camello, another aspirant for Esmeralda's favor. After a delightful ball, Verdugo plays to the assembled company, and is enthralled when Esmeralda lays a bunch of flowers at his feet, and he heeds not Camello's openly displayed contempt. An hour later Camello has the lovely girl to himself, but she will not listen to his pleading; and, climbing up the trellis work, Machuuda deems it necessary to bury his sharp knife in Camello's broad back. The girl seeks out Verdugo and tells him of the insult proferred by Camello, and the hot-headed violinist wants to seek out the villain and tax him with his affront, but is dissuaded by Esmeralda. Meanwhile the Senor and Senora are not quite sure whether they approve of the humble musician as a suitor for their lovely daughter.

The second part shows us the evil machinations of the scoundrelly Camello. He enlists the services of the chief of a Mexican bandit tribe in an attempt to abduct Esmeralda, and all goes well with their wicked plot until the Indian, Machuda, gets upon their track, and spoils their game. Does it matter that he, the Indian servitor, is beaten and kicked and half killed? Not one little bit, so long as he has saved his darling young mistress. Poor Machuda reaches home more dead than alive, and Esmeralda once more tends his poor wounded body. He asks but one reward—the silver cross she wears on her breast; with that he will be happy and contented. Wonderingly Esmeralda presents Machuda with the cross, and leaves him.

But Camello is not a man to bear defeat with equanimity. Thwarted once, he again seeks the aid of the bandit chief, and this time they plan a more elaborate kidnapping plot. They forge a note to Esmeralda, purporting to have come from her beloved Verdugo and asking her to meet him on the bridge—'I am waiting" runs the last sentence—so Esmeralda, swearing her maid to secrecy, runs to meet the waiting lover, only to be once more captured by Camello. This time he is not inclined to do things by halves, and he carries the girl into the depths of a great woods and leaves her in a tent, with one of the bandits on guard. Esmeralda is in a terrible plight. But the Indian servitor has been keeping watch over his little mistress; he has seen the abduction; but what can one Indian do in open fight against ten or twelve armed bandits? Machuda follows stealthily, and when Esmeralda has lain down exhausted, Machuda creeps into the tent, and hastily bids her escape while he takes her place on the rough pallet bed. Camello enters the tent. He pulls back the coverlet, only to find that he has uncovered a tiger instead of a lamb.

In the meantime, of course, Senor Gabora is terrified at his daughter's absence. The maid has at last sobbed out the facts. A party, headed by the Senor, sets out to find Esmeralda, and while searching the wood they come across the Senor's daughter. Esmeralda rapidly explains matters, and she is sent back with one of the search party while the rest go forward to exterminate the gang of ruffians. They arrive too late. The bandits have departed for secret fastnesses, taking with them as prisoner the faithful Indian servant.

The epilogue is a sad one, and we know not whether poor Machuda is left to die on the mountain top, or whether he is at last rescued by the Senor's search party. Machuda, however, is sublimely happy, happy that he can clasp the cross to his breast as he sinks exhausted to the hard rock to which the wicked bandits have chained him and left him to die there alone.

THE LION HUNTERS (Feature Subject—2 parts). The Barrow family consists of father, mother and daughter, all courageous and full of the pluck which a life in African wilds demands. A message is delivered from one of their friends inviting their co-operation in organizing a lion hunt for Count Tressac. They fall in with the suggestion, and when the hunting party arrives at the Hawthorn Ranch, preparations are complete. Barrow takes with him one of two bottles of anti-venomous serum.

The daughter, Jane, is left at home, the ranch being placed in charge of a new hand, a Spaniard named Morello, who, smitten with Jane, seizes this opportunity to press his suit. Jane repulses his advances, and stung to the quick by her disdain, Morello vows vengeance and seeks to achieve it by catching a venomous snake, and dropping the reptile through a window on to the couch whereon Jane is sleeping.

Contact with the snake awakens Jane, and when she stirs she is bitten on the forearm. She destroys the snake and alarms the house with her cries. Her mother comes in answer to the call, and sends Morello for the sole remaining bottle of serum. He brings it into the room, and, laughingly exulting over his evil work, flings the bottle to the floor. Here is a serious predicament. The only means of saving Jane's life is by an injection of the serum, the other bottle of which is in Barrow's possession miles away. Rapidly mounting a horse, Mrs. Barrow follows the trail until she almost reaches the camp. Galloping through the night with the energy of despair, the roaring of lions in disquieting and the fact that her horse is nearly exhausted adds to her alarm. She hears the bleating of a lamb and believing it to be lost she goes to find it, and is precipitated into a pit dug by the hunters as a lion-trap. She finds it impossible to scale the walls and despite her native courage the outlook is bad.

It is to the instinct of her horse that Mrs. Barrow owes her salvation. The animal, realizing that something unusual has happened, finds his way to the camp, and arouses Barrow. Taking his gun he mounts the horse which carries him to the pit. Simultaneous he hears the roaring of lions and his wife's heart-rending calls for help. There is no time to rescue her—already the lions are approaching, and he resolves to fight the beasts as they approach. As they come into range he shoots them. They fall dead and Barrow raises his wife from the pit. Returning to camp for the serum they are able to reach the ranch in time to save their daughter's life.

UNION FEATURES.

THE MYSTERY OF THE YELLOW ROOM (Feature Subject—3 parts).—A reminiscence of her act ten years ago, recalling how she had secretly married Jean Roussel, flashes through the mind of Mathilda, daughter of Professor Stangerson, when her father asks her to become the wife of Robert Darzac, and how their wedding certificate could not be filed as her husband was imprisoned for passing counterfeit money. But she soon dismisses the horror upon the thought that Roussel must have been dead (she never having heard from or of him) and at last consents to the announcement of her betrothal to Darzac. Roussel, however, was still alive and soon learns of the engagement of Mathilda. By a subterfuge he manages to get a note to her telling her that he still loves her and begging her to flee with him to America. Mathilda was too frightened to answer, so Roussel in a jealous rage goes to the residence of Mathilda and hides in the yellow room occupied by her. Mathilda, who had been out walking with her father and fiance, returned and feeling tired goes direct to her room, where she comes face to face with Roussel, who cautions her not to utter a word of alarm. But Mathilda was very much afraid and screams. In order to stop her, Roussel chokes her into unconsciousness and leaves her for dead. That evening as she joins her father he notices that she is unusually pale and advises her to retire early. She does and no sooner had the household retired when a shot comes from the room of Mathilda. Upon investigation the father finds that his daughter is lying unconscious upon the floor with a deep gash in her head, but no trace of her assailant could be found for the doors and windows were all locked from the inside.

Professor Stangerson places the solving of the mystery in the hands of Rouletabille, a noted detective, and Inspector Larson. They are given adjoining rooms in the Stangerson castle, and in his work of unravelling the enigma, Rouletabille finds under the bed of Mathilda a hair and a bloody handkerchief. Then Mathilda receives another letter from Roussel, which makes her change her room. At midnight the detective hears sounds coming from the yellow room, and stations Larson and the professor at both ends of the gallery, but no one is found. Previously the detective had caught a glimpse of a bearded man and has come to the conclusion that he must be in the house. He is also surprised to learn that Larson's hair is the color of that which he had found in Mathilda's boudoir. Larson, who was none other than Roussel, sends Mathilda another note and fearing the surveillance of Rouletabille, he invites the detective to supper in his room. He drugs the wine which is drunk by the detective, and as the latter is examining Larson's hair he notices a bad wound in the inspector's hand and then falls unconscious. Rouletabille's assistant brings him around, and after forcing from Larson the marriage certificate deliberately gives him a chance to escape. Then the detective gives Mathilda the unrecorded marriage document, the destruction of which means her freedom to marry Darzac. The mystery of the yellow room was cleared by the detective's remarkable deduction which shows that the deep gash in the head of Mathilda had been caused by a vision of her assailant and she, in a subconscious state, had discharged the revolver in self-defense and in falling had landed against a table, and the ugly wound in Larson's hand had been done when she had her encounter with him in the yellow room.

TRUE FEATURES.

'TWEEN HEAVEN AND EARTH (Feature Subject—4 parts).—The owner of the great works seen in the film is afflicted with insomnia, and uses chloroform. His daughter, Eva, loves young Dennison, her father's engineer, much to the chagrin of Briggs, the works' manager. The latter uses every endeavor to belittle Ralph in the eyes of his sweetheart, and is present at the inspection of a huge chimney under course of repair. Eva and her father are also present, and Briggs insinuates that Ralph is afraid, when Eva dissuades him from journeying to the top of the shaft. On the way home, Eva's little brother forms one of the party, and Ralph, ever willing, is prevailed upon to procure a ball of cord for the youngster's kite; also the usual modicum of drugs for Eva's father.

Briggs, during the absence of the younger man, forces his attentions on Eva while she is boating with her brother, and is repulsed. He evolves a scheme of revenge, and, at night, goes to the shaft, which he ascends from the inside and removes the top series of steps from its walls. On the following morning Ralph is given a letter warning him against Briggs, and in which Eva entreats him not to trust him. The works' manager is standing near and again taunts Ralph with his fear, with the result that the latter decides to ascend the chimney forthwith. Eva and her father arrive to witness the two men nearing the top of the huge shaft, and the girl's fears are soon realized to the full, for a violent quarrel is seen to be going on between the two. A few seconds later and the pulley block and rope come hurtling through space, Briggs having detached them from the cross bar, thus cutting off communication with the ground below. A terrific struggle follows, and the two men are seen at each other's throats on a perilous footing afforded by the brickwork.

The brave workmen are making efforts to scale the interior, but are prevented by Brigg's rascally scheme. Ralph suddenly thinks of the cord for the youngster's kite, and is dropping this down when Briggs overpowers him. At last the villain dozes, tired out from his exertions, and Ralph, taking the drug from his pocket, plentifully dopes him, then throws down a note requesting the boy to fly the kite as soon as daylight permits. At dawn the kite is skilfully raised and we see it near the top of the shaft, where Ralph and the now securely bound Briggs are. The latter does not move, but Donnison is too intent upon the kite to notice him. At last the frail messenger of deliverance is within reach, and Ralph takes the revolver from Briggs' side, firing several shots as a signal. A rope is drawn up, and Ralph is enabled to reach the men who have scaled far up the interior of the chimney. He is assisted to earth and is seen to have turned absolutely gray from his trial. Briggs is found to be dead, having succumbed to the overdose of chloroform. Ralph is charged with manslaughter, but is finally acquitted of the charge, and the last scene shows the lovers free at last from care and delivered from a villain's treachery.

BACK TO THE WEST (Feature Subject—3 parts).—Jack Harding has cast his lot with the Gauchos, cowboys of South America. News comes to him from far over the water which calls him back to his ancestral castle, for plain Jack Harding is in reality, Sir Martin Ready, the scion of a noble English house. He is used to the free and easy ways of the West and his hearty manners and outspoken ways offend the society in which he has come to move. His sincere and breezy, but perfectly harmless, admiration for his titled sister-in-law, leads to a misunderstanding which almost culminates in a tragedy. On all sides he finds that the civilization of the old world is like a thin veneer, with cruelty and indifference under the surface. The only redeeming feature of his stay in England is his acquaintance with a simple daughter of a fisherman, who reciprocates his affection. He proposes to her and is accepted, and then to the astonishment and relief of his brother, and his other titled relatives, he leaves the old country and returns with his new found companion to the plains of Argentine, where his young wife is welcomed by his old time friends.

VICTORY FILM CO.

VICTORY (5 parts—Feature Subject).—The Secretary of the Navy orders the U. S. S. Utah to proceed to the Republic of Antillas to protect American interests during the impending revolution. On their arrival at Caiman, the principal seaport, Commander Benson orders Lieutenant Ward to proceed inland to Valdiva, the capitol, and report to the American Embassy so as to keep him advised of the general situation. On his arrival Lieutenant Ward meets Minister Gordon and his daughter Helen, with whom he at once falls in love, but finds a rival in the person of General De la Monte, the Minister of War of Antillas. He also meets a young inventor who has just finished building a hydroplane.

While attending a Government ball Helen overhears Gen. De la Monte conspiring to assassinate President Martinez, and then blow up the American battleship in an attempt to take over the reins of the government in his hands.

Helen tells Lieutenant Ward of the conspiracy. Before he has the opportunity of thwarting these plans Lieutenant Ward is wrongfully arrested for the murder of President Martinez. Minister Gordon finally obtains the freedom of Lieutenant Ward, but not in time to prevent the departure of the conspirators. They are prevented from sending a warning by wireless and Lieutenant Ward decides their only hope lies in his making the flight of fifty miles in the hydroplane. The moving picture camera placed in the hydroplane itself then shows an exciting race by air and land. Lieutenant Ward, at a height of 1,500 feet makes a daring glide for the battleship and reaches there barely in time to prevent its destruction by a harbor mine that throws a tower of water two hundred feet in the air. Commander Benson immediately opens fire on the fort and during this thrilling combat, Lieutenant Ward asks permission to drop a bomb from the hydroplane. He does so with deadly results. No sooner is this battle over than the Utah is attacked by the foreign fleet and a spectacular naval battle takes place which shows the Utah defeating the fleet with the aid of bombs from the hydroplane. The final scenes of this naval battle show the foreign ships helpless masses of twisted steel with the actual sinking at sea of one of these ships.

A wireless reaches Com. Benson from the American Embassy reporting that a revolt has taken place in the city. Com. Benson orders Lieutenant Ward to the rescue with a company of marines. They engage the revolutionists who outnumber them three to one. After a desperate engagement the marines charge the foreign batteries and rout the enemy. Lieutenant Ward marches into Valdiva with the victorious marines and rescues Minister Gordon and Helen. The last scene shows Lieutenant Ward to be as successful in love as in war, as he wins Helen, after which she is presented to the officers and crew of the Utah, who cheer her to an echo.

PICTURE THEATERS PROJECTED.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Samuel Schultz has been awarded the contract for the alterations and additions to 1903-5-7 West Columbia avenue, which buildings will be turned into a moving picture theater for Margolin & Block.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Joseph Farbstein is estimating on plans for a one-story brick and terra cotta moving picture theater to be erected on the south side of Wayne avenue west of Logan street.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Stearns & Castor are preparing plans and specifications for a one-story moving picture theater to seat about 500 persons. Building to be of brick, ornamental terra cotta and bluestone.

Pitman, N. J.—Excavating has been commenced for the new Boddy Picture Theater and store building to be erected at the southeast corner of West Jersey and Pitman avenues.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—M. Jantzen, 242 Kings Highway, is taking sub-bids for a two-story moving picture theater 25 by 90 feet, to cost $3.000.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Joseph H. McGowan, 292 Flatbush avenue, has plans nearly completed for a one and two-story moving picture theater, office and store building to cost $15,000.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Morris Peller, 366 Ocean Parkway, has completed plans for a one-story moving picture theater, 84 by 100 by 50 feet, to cost $15,000.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Gattfried Strasser, 885 Humboldt Parkway, will build a one-story theater building, 80 by 110 feet, to cost $40,000.

Malden, Mass.—A. J. Carpenter, 39 Dunreath street, Boston, Mass., will erect a one-story theater, 50 by 100 feet, in the above town in the near future.

Gardner, Mass.—Alterations will be made to the Gardner Theater to cost $5,000.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Nicola Land Company, Farmers' Bank Building, have had preliminary plans prepared for a two-story theater, 150 by 135 feet, to cost $150,000.

Baltimore, Md.—Horn Amusement Company, Paul Horoing, Jr., secretary, 1940 West Pratt street, are planning to make additions to their moving picture theater to cost $10,000.

Baltimore, Md.—William Tait, 312 West Baltimore street, is planning to build an addition and make alterations to his moving picture theater.

Cincinnati, O.—A stock company has been formed for the purpose of erecting a one and two-story moving picture theater, 100 by 156 feet, and to cost $75,000. It will have seating capacity of 1,500.

Portsmouth, O.—R. O. Brady, 1320 Summit street, will build a one-story moving picture theater, 30 by 90 feet, to cost $6,000 and have seating capacity for 300 persons.

Evansville, Ind.—J. R. Brannon is planning a three-story moving picture theater, 38 by 150 feet, to cost $10,000.

Detroit, Mich.—B. C. Whitney, Detroit Opera House Building, will remodel a one-story garage into a modern moving picture theater to cost $12,000. It is to seat 600 persons.

Milwaukee, Wis.—F. W. Andree, 78 Cawker Building, will build a one-story moving picture theater, 20 by 120 feet.

St. Louis, Mo.—Kennerly & Stiegemeyer, Benoist Building, have started plans for a two-story modern theater building, 77 by 135 feet.

St. Louis, Mo.—German Theater Realty Company, Wainwright Building, will build a one-story moving picture theater, 38 by 45 feet.

Kansas City, Mo.—Bernard Corrigan, New England Building, will build a one-story moving picture theater, 76 by 120 feet, to cost $12,000. The lessees are Burkey Brothers, 608 Sharp Building.

Kansas City, Mo.—Joseph R. Donegan, 12th and Central streets, has completed plans for the remodeling and redecorating of his theater to cost $12,000.

Trenton, N. J.—John Rose is planning to erect a moving picture theater to cost $20,000.

Oregon, Mo.—The local I. O. O. F. Lodge is planning to build an auditorium and lodge hall to cost $20,000.

Wildwood, N. J.—Mastbaum Brothers and Fleisher, Mint Arcade Building, have awarded the contract to James G. Dook & Co., 1420 Chestnut street, both of Philadelphia, Pa., for the erection of a three-story moving picture theater, 90 by 125 feet, to cost $125,000.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Pittsburgh Theater Company have awarded the contract to Golden & Creek, Fifth avenue, for alterations to their theater to cost $15,000.

Lancaster, Pa.—Edward Mithoff has awarded the contract to G. E. Kneller, for the erection of a two-story theater building, 180 by 21 feet, to cost $25,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Albert M. Greenfield has sold to a syndicate headed by James J. Springer the theater which is being built on the east side of 60th street, below Walnut, and which is to be known as the Imperial Theater. The building is the largest one-floor moving picture theater in Philadelphia, occupying a lot 76 by 180 feet, with an entrance lobby 32 by 75 feet and a seating capacity of 2,000. It will be opened on August 30. The syndicate which has purchased the house for a nominal consideration, subject to mortgages of $72,500, also controls the Plaza Theater, on Broad street, near Porter street, and the Park Theater, which is being built at Ridge avenue near 33rd street and opposite the Terminus of the Park Transporation Company, Dauphin street entrance to Fairmount Park.

Berwyn, Pa.—The middle of September will witness the formal opening of the new Berwyn Theater. It is the only theater on the Main Line which will afford residents of that section an opportunity to see vaudeville and moving pictures without a trip to the city. The theater is rapidly nearing completion and is quite a handsome structure. It will be managed by Dick Zimmerman, brother of J. Fred Zimmerman, of the firm of Nixon & Zimmerman of Philadelphia. The new theater will be able to accommodate any of the big acts now playing the vaudeville circuits. Excellent arrangements have been made to book attractions and leaders of the vaudeville stage will be seen at the new theater. The structure is of brick, 53 feet wide and 133 feet deep. The stage is 50 feet high and 30 feet deep.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Knoxon Brown & Co. are estimating on plans and specifications for a two-story brick bluestone and terra cotta store and moving picture theater to be erected on Lancaster avenue near 39th street, for J. E. White.

Philadelphia, Pa.—John Duncan has taken out a permit for interior alterations to the Trocadero Theater, 1003-05 Arch street for the Wlupeany estate.

Philadelphia, Pa.—H. D. Prettyman has a contract to remodel the old South Broad Street Presbyterian Chapel, at 2410-12 South Broad street, into a moving picture theater for Dr. H. B. F. Cristion. The cost will be $5,000.

Detroit, Mich.—C. Howard Crane, 2325 Dime Bank Building, has prepared plans for the remodelling of a garage into a one-story moving picture theater, with seating capacity of 600, and to cost $12,000.

Hedrick, Iowa.—J. H. Ward, proprietor of the motion picture show, has leased F. L. Stelte's building on Main Street, and will move his show to that location as soon as the building can be altered.

Kearnay, Neb.—At a meeting of the Buffalo Fair Association, which was held at the offices of Mr. Roby, for the purpose of erecting large amphitheater, to be built on the fair grounds.

Los Angeles, Cal.—A moving picture theater is under construction at corner Vermont Avenue and 30th Street. The Los Angeles Development Company is owner of the property, which has been leased to an out-of-town investor by J. H. Parker, of the California Realty Corporation. Cost, $30,000.

INDEX

TO CONTENTS.

ADVERTISING FOR EXHIBITORS.....1275
AMERICAN THEATER SALT LAKE CITY..1272
AT THE SIGN OF THE FLAMING ARCS....1287
"BATTLE OF WATERLOO".....1265
BUFFALO 1300
CALENDAR OF INDEPENDENT RELEASES.1296
CALENDAR OF LICENSED RELEASES.....1298
CELEBRATE LOWRY'S BIRTHDAY.....1263
CHICAGO LETTER.....1269
CINCINNATI 1294
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Licensed).....1283
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Independent)..1285
CORRESPONDENCE 1294
DAVID HORSLEY BACK FROM EUROPE....1266
FACTS AND COMMENTS.....1259
"FIGHT FOR MILLIONS, THE" (Blache Features) 1287
FOREIGN TRADE NOTES.....1273
"HARD CASH" (Edison).....1263
"HIGH TREASON" (Cines).....1264
ILLINOIS 1294
INDIANAPOLIS 1300
INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES.....1318
INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES.....1332
"IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE" (Famous Players) 1266
IN THE SOUTHWEST.....1294
IN THE NORTHWEST.....1294
IN THE MIDDLE WEST.....1294
INQUIRIES 1278
IOWA 1294
LICENSED FILM STORIES.....1304
LICENSED RELEASE DATES.....1334
LOUISVILLE 1300
"MAKING OF A BOY SCOUT, THE".....1289
MANUFACTURERS ADVANCE NOTES.....1290
MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS LEAGUE..1288
MOVING PICTURE EDUCATOR.....1274
"MYSTERY OF THE YELLOW ROOM, THE" (Union Features).....1270
NEW ENGLAND AND CANADA.....1302
OBSERVATIONS BY MAN ABOUT TOWN....1271
"PERILS OF THE SEA" (Kalem).....1262
PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT, THE.....1277
PLAYER, THE.....1260
PLOTLESS PLAY, THE.....1261
PROJECTION DEPARTMENT.....1279
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Licensed).....1304
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Independent).....1318
"VICTORY" (Victory Film Co.).....1267
VITAGRAPH'S NEW LONDON OFFICES....1268
WASHINGTON, D. C.....1300
"WHEN PARIS LOVES" (Eclectic).....1264

TO ADVERTISERS.

CARBON IMPORTERS.

FRORUP, L. E.....1336
KIEWERT, L. C.....1323
REISINGER, HUGO.....1311

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO.....1310
BELL & HOWELL.....1336
CALEHUFF SUPPLY CO.....1336
CHICAGO M. P. SUPPLY CO.....1336
DETROIT ENGINE WORKS.....1340
FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC CO.....1312
GENERAL ELECTRIC CO.....1333
HALLBERG, J. H.....1311
HOKE, GEO. M.....1321
KLEINE OPTICAL CO.....1315
PICTURE THEATER EQUIPMENT CO.....1313
SCHNEIDER, E.....1322
SMITH, L. O., & CO.....1341
STERN MFG. CO.....1336
STRELINGER, CHARLES A.....1308
WESTINGHOUSE ELECT. MFG. CO.....1312

MISCELLANEOUS FEATURES.

AMBROSIO FILM CO.....1301
APEX FILM CO.....1305
BATTLE OF WATERLOO.....1338-39
ECLECTIC FILM CO.....1248-49
FAMOUS PLAYERS.....1246-47
FEATURE FILM CO.....1320
FILM RELEASES OF AMERICA.....1307
GENERAL FILM CO.....1250-51
GREAT NORTHERN SPECIAL FEATURE FILM CO.....1248
HELGARD CO.....1325
LIFE SAINT PATRICK.....1319
NEW YORK FILM CO.....1316
RUSSELL & SHIPMAN.....1323
TRUE FEATURES.....1331
VIVAPHONE CO.....1341

FILM BROKERS.

INTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS.....1315

FIREPROOF APPARATUS.

TRAINER, O. W.....1336

FILM EXCHANGES.

BRADENBURG, G. W.....1317
EXCLUSIVE FILM SUPPLY CORP.....1307
EXHIBITORS' FILM BOOKING AGENCY.....1314
HETZ, L.....1321
LAEMMLE FILM CO.....1306
M. & F. FILM SERVICE.....1321
NORTHERN FEATURE FILM EXCHANGE...1322
ROYAL FILM AGENCY.....1319
SCHILLER, F. F., CO.....1340
WICHITA FILM & SUPPLY CO.....1322

INDEPENDENT FILM MANUFACTURERS.

AMERICAN 1244
BRONCHO FILM CO.....1245
DOMINO M. P. CORP.....1297
GAUMONT CO.....1303
KAY-BEE 1245
KEYSTONE 1245
MAJESTIC 1342
THANHOUSER 1238
UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURERS..1240-41-42

LICENSED FILM MANUFACTURERS.

EDISON 1255
ESSANAY 1239
KALEM 1258
KINEMACOLOR CO.....1343
KLEINE, GEO.....1253
LUBIN 1256
MELIES 1343
PATHE FRERES.....1254
SELIG 1252
VITAGRAPH 1257

LENS MANUFACTURERS

GUNDLACH MANHATTAN.....1319

MISCELLANEOUS

B. B., Care of M. P. W.....1321
ADVANCE M. P. CO.....1336
BOURGEOIS, PAUL.....1317
BUSHMAN, FRANCIS.....1336
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS 1327
COMMERCIAL M. P. CO.....1322
CORCORAN, A. J.....1321
EASTMAN KODAK CO.....1325
GENERAL SPECIALTY CO.....1308
GUNBY BROS.....1310
KRAUSE MFG. CO.....1308
LINICK, F., THEATRICAL AGENCY.....1341
McCRAY & McCRAY.....1322
NATIONAL TICKET CO.....1332
NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO.....1341
ONE DROP OIL CO.....1340
PARISIAN MFG. & FILM RENOVATING CO.1321
RAW FILM SUPPLY CO.....1317
R. S. F., Care M. P. W.....1317-1341
SARGENT, E. W.....1340
STEBBINS, C. M.....1322
STELZER BROS.....1321
THEATER BROKERAGE EXCHANGE.....1340
TRADE CIRCULAR ADDRESSING CO.....1309
VICTOR ANIMATOGRAPH.....1341

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS

AMERICAN CINEMATOGRAPH CO.....1313
MOTION PICTURE CAMERA CO.....1312
WHYTE, WHITMAN.....1313

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

AMERICAN PHOTOPLAYER SALES CO....1321
DEAGAN, J. C.....1319
SINN, C. E.....1308
WURLITZER, RUDOLPH.....1341
WELTE, M., & SON.....1317

PROJECTION MACHINES

EDISON 1255
MOTIOGRAPH 1313
POWERS 1344
SIMPLEX 1299

OPERA CHAIR MANUFACTURERS

AMERICAN SEATING CO.....1340
ANDREWS, A. H.....1340
BENNETT SEATING CO.....1340
HARDESTY 1340
STAFFORD, E. H.....1340
STEEL FURNITURE CO.....1340
WISCONSIN SEATING CO.....1340

POSTERS & FRAMES

A. B. C.....1330
AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO.....1334
BRADY, A.....1325
EXHIBITORS' ADV. & SPECIALTY CO....1298
GENERAL FILM CO.....1335
McKENNA BROS. BRASS CO.....1322
NEWMAN 1306
OTIS LITHOGRAPH CO.....1337
THEATRE SPECIALTY MFG. CO.....1310

PROJECTION SCREENS

AMERICAN THEATRE CURTAIN CO.....1309
GENTER, J. H.....1309
MIRROR SCREEN CO.....1309
SIMPSON SOLAR SCREENS.....1321

SONG & ADVERTISING SLIDES

ERKER BROS.....1321
NIAGARA SLIDE CO.....1341
THOMAS, A. G.....1336

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS

DECORATORS' SUPPLY CO.....1321

ONE, THREE and SIX SHEET POSTERS Ready Now for

Kalem's Two Reel Subject "THE MIDNIGHT MESSAGE" Released Sept. 24th (Two Styles of One Sheets for this)

Lubin's Two Reel Subject "SELF CONVICTED" Released Sept. 25th

ALSO THE FOLLOWING POSTERS FOR THE RELEASES OF THE WEEK OF SEPT. 22nd to 27th, in 1 and 3-SHEETS

BIOGRAPH	LUBIN	KALEM
THE LAW AND HIS SON	This Isn't John	COUNTERFEITER'S CONFEDERATE
THE END OF THE WORLD	A Mexican Tragedy	THE HOBO AND THE MYTH
INFLUENCE OF THE UNKNOWN	WINNING HIS WIFE	A DEMAND FOR JUSTICE
	THE GREAT DISCOVERY

A. B. C. COMPANY -:- -:- Cleveland, Ohio

Dependable Feature Service

XX EXCLUSIVE FEATURES OF XXX QUALITY

OUR LATEST RELEASES:

"TWIXT HEAVEN AND EARTH"

5 REELS

Sensation plus plot. All the popular favorites of the Continental are in this.

"BACK TO THE WEST"

3 REELS

How the self-exiled scion of a noble house was called to the home of his ancestors and returns to the wilds of South America disgusted with the thin veneer of civilization.

Two Good Ones Every Week Send for Our Booklet

THE TRUE FEATURE CO.

110-112 West 40th St. WORLD'S TOWER BUILDING New York City

Telephone 578 Bryant Sole American and Canadian Agents for the Continental Art Film Society

Get On Our Mailing List

INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES

AMERICAN.

Sept. 6—Mysterious Eyes (Drama)............1000
Sept. 8—For the Crown (Drama)..............1000
Sept. 11—Through the Neighbor's Window (Comedy) 1000
Sept. 13—Red Sweeney's Defeat (Drama).....1000
Sept. 15—Calamity Anne, Heroine (Drama)...1000
Sept. 18—A Fall Into Luck (Drama)..........
Sept. 20—Jim Takes a Chance (Comedy)......
Sept. 20—Travelers of the Road (Drama)....
Sept. 22—The Ghost of the Hacienda (2 parts—Drama).........2000
Sept. 25—Mrs. Carter's Campaign (Comedy)....1000
,Sept. 27—Master of Himself (Drama).........1000

AMBROSIO.

June 28—The Exploits of the Randin Gang (2 Parts—Drama) ....
July 5—The Little Puppet Seller (2 Parts—Drama) ....
July 12—In the Hands of Conspirators (2 Parts Drama) ....
July 19—The Triumph of Strength (2 Parts—Drama) ....
July 26—The Missionary's Sister (2 Parts—Dr.)

BISON.

Aug. 26—The Mystery of Yellow Aster Mine (2 parts—Drama) ....
Aug. 30—The Gratitude of Wanda (2 parts—Drama)..........
Sept. 2—Pelleas and Melisande (3 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 6—The Love of Men (2 parts—Drama)..
Sept. 9—A Forest Romance (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 13—Wandering Folk (2 parts—Drama)..
Sept. 16—In the Coils of the Python (2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 20—Through the Window (2 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 23—The Struggle (2 parts—Drama)......
Sept. 27—(Title Not Reported)..............

BRONCHO.

Aug. 20—The Heritage of Eve (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 27—The Madcap (2 parts—Drama)......
Aug. 31—The Broken Thread (Drama).........
Sept. 3—The Gambler's Pal (Drama)..........
Sept. 7—May and December (Drama)..........
Sept. 10—The Judge's Son (Drama)...........
Sept. 17—The Land of Dead Things (2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 24—Silent Heroes (2 parts—Drama).....

CRYSTAL.

Sept. 7—Lost in the Night (Drama)...........
Sept. 9—Pleasing Her Husband (Comedy)....
Sept. 9—Some Luck (Comedy)...............
Sept. 14—The Hand of Providence (Drama)....
Sept. 16—A News Item (Comedy)............
Sept. 16—A Bachelor's Finish (Comedy)......
Sept. 21—Misplaced Love (Drama).............
Sept. 23—Pearl and the Poet (Comedy)........
Sept. 23—Oh! What a Swim (Comedy).........
Sept. 28—His Last Gamble (Drama)..........

DRAGON.

July 14—The Organist (Drama)..............
July 21—Memories of Long Ago (Drama)......
July 28—The Bride of the Sea (Drama)......

ECLAIR.

Aug. 24—Thirteen at Table (Comedy)..........
Aug. 24—Sea Worms (Scientific)...............
Aug. 27—The Better Father (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 31—The Runaway Uncle (Comedy)......
Sept. 3—Steel (2 parts—Drama)..............
Sept. 7—A Vegetarian's Dream (Comedy)....
Sept. 7—The Habits of Field Spiders (Scientific)
Sept. 10—The Banker's Daughter (2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 14—A Pawnee Romance (Drama)........
Sept. 14—Hydrogen (Scientific) ....
Sept. 17—Rob-Roy (3 parts—Drama)..........
Sept. 21—Stung (Comedy)....................
Sept. 21—Curious Fish (Zoology)..............
Sept.' 24—A Puritan Episode (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 28—Why Aunt Jane Never Married (Com.)

FRONTIER.

Aug. 16—The Retribution of Ysobel (Drama)...
Aug. 21—Sailing Under False Colors (Comedy)
Aug. 23—The Eyes of the God of Friendship (Drama) ....
Aug. 28—A Much Wanted Baby (Comedy)....
Aug. 30—Maya—Just An Indian (Drama)....
Sept. 4—Flirty Florence (Comedy)............

Sept. 6—The Surgeon of Abajo (Drama)......
Sept. 11—Dorothea and the Chief Razamataz (Comedy) ....
Sept. 13—On Forbidden Paths (Drama).......
Sept. 18—The Juvenile Kidnappers (Comedy)..
Sept. 20—The Ranchman's Double (Drama)...
Sept. 25—The Village Pest (Comedy)..........
Sept. 27—The Moonshiner (Drama)............

GAUMONT.

Aug. 19—An Explorer's Tragedy (Drama)....
Aug. 20—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 76 (News)..
Aug. 21—A Tres Meadous Proposition (Com.)
Aug. 26—Saved by His Child (Drama).........
Aug. 27—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 77 (News)...
Aug. 28—Two Jilted Lovers (Comedy).........
Sept. 2—The Fatal Bell (Drama)..............
Sept. 3—Gaumont's Weekly No. 79 (News)..
Sept. 4—"Some" Fireman (Comedy)..........
Sept. 9—An Actor's Adventure (Drama)......
Sept. 10—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 80 (News)..
Sept. 11—Love Me, Love My Animals (Comedy)

GEM.

Aug. 18—The Would-be Detective (Comedy)...
Aug. 18—The Elks at Rochester (Topical).....
Aug. 25—What Girls Will Do (Comedy)......
Sept. 1—A tale of a Fish (Comedy)..........
Sept. 8—The Gold Mesh Bag (Comedy)......
Sept. 15—The Manicure (Comedy).............
Sept. 15—Sam's Despondency (Comedy).......
Sept. 22—None but the Brave Deserve the (?) (Drama)..........
Sept. 22—Sanitary Dairy Plant, Washington, D. C..........

GREAT NORTHERN.

Aug. 30—Faded Beauties (Comedy)............
Sept. 6—A Girl Graduate (Comedy)..........
Sept. 12—For Sale by Auction (Comedy)......
Sept. 13—Under the Danish Beeches (Travel)..
Sept. 20—Convict 337 (Comedy)...............
Sept. 27—Won by Waiting (Comedy)..........
Oct. 4—A Good Catch (Comedy)..............

GREAT NORTHERN (Universal).

June 28—The Flying Circus (3 parts, Drama)..
July 26—The Governor's Daughter (2 parts—Drama)..........
Aug. 23—The Great Circus Catastrophe (3 parts—Drama) ....

IMP.

Sept. 8—Robespierre (3 parts—Drama)........
Sept. 11—The Shells (Drama)..................
Sept. 13—Binks Elevates the Stage (Comedy)..
Sept. 13—Hy Mayer Cartoons (Novelty).......
Sept. 15—Fatal Verdict (Drama).............
Sept. 18—Escaped from the Asylum (2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 20—Binks and the Bathing Girls (Com.)
Sept. 20—Antics in Ink by Hy Mayer (Novelty)
Sept. 22—Ivanhoe (4 parts—Drama)...........
Sept. 25—Miser's Son Drama).................
Sept. 27—Binks Plays Cupid (Comedy)........
Sept. 27—Jolly Jottings by Hy Mayer (Comedy)

KAY-BEE.

Aug. 15—The Flame in the Ashes (2 parts—Drama) ....
Aug. 22—An Orphan of War (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 29—The Green Shadow (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 5—The Ironmaster (2 parts—Drama)...
Sept. 12—The Waif (Drama)................
Sept. 19—The Reformation (Drama)..........
Sept. 26—The Forlorn Hope (Drama)..........

KEYSTONE.

Aug. 14—A Chip of the Old Block (Comedy).
Aug. 18—(No Release this date).
Aug. 21—The Firebugs (Comedy)..............
Aug. 25—Baby Day (Comedy)..................
Aug. 28—Mabel's New Hero (Comedy)........
Sept. 1—Fatty's Day Off (Comedy)..........
Sept. 1—Los Angeles Harbor, Cal. (Travel)..
Sept. 4—The New Baby (Comedy)............
Sept. 8—Mabel's Dramatic Career (Comedy)..

LUX.

Aug. 22—Over the Garden Wall (Comedy)....
Aug. 22—The Registered Letter (Comedy).....
Aug. 29—His Chance (Drama)............... 950
Sept. 5—A Timely Reminder (Drama)......... 910
Sept. 12—The Tax on Bachelors (Comedy)..... 455
Sept. 12—Arabella's Rival (Comedy)......... 540
Sept. 19—The Blacksmith's Son (Drama)...... 930

MAJESTIC.

Sept. 2—A Perilous Ride (Drama)...........
Sept. 2—The Great Santa Monica Road Race (Topical) ....
Sept. 6—The Turkish Bath (Comedy)........
Sept. 7—The Heart of a Fool (Drama)....
Sept. 9—The Frame-up (Drama).............
Sept. 13—For His Loved One (Drama)......
Sept. 14—The Winning Loser (Com.-Dr.)......
Sept. 16—Playmates (Drama)................
Sept. 20—His Last Deal (Comedy-Drama)......

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

Aug. 13—Mutual Weekly, No. 33 (News).....
Aug. 20—Mutual Weekly No. 34.............
Aug. 27—Mutual Weekly No. 35..............
Sept. 1—Mutual Weekly No. 36..............
Sept. 8—Mutual Weekly No. 37...............

MUTUAL EDUCATIONAL.

July 24—Does Gontran Snore? (Comedy).......
July 24—Through Turkey; the Black Sea (Travel) ....
July 31—Funnicus Wins the Race (Comedy)...
July 31—Microscopic Animalculae Found in Stagnant Water (Scientific).......

NESTOR.

Sept. 3—Gold and Water (Drama)...........
Sept. 5—Won by a Skirt (Comedy)...........
Sept. 8—Poisoned Waters (Drama)...........
Sept. 10—Algy Forfeits His Claim (Comedy)..
Sept. 10—Views of Stockholm (Scenic)........
Sept. 12—The Girl Ranchers (Comedy).......
Sept. 15—Beauty and the Ugly One (Drama)..
Sept. 17—The Stepson (Drama)...............
Sept. 19—The Battle of Bull Con (Comedy)..
Sept. 22—For the Peace of Bear Valley (Dr.)
Sept. 24—Heart of a Vacquero (Drama).......
Sept. 26—His Crazy Job (Comedy)............

POWERS.

Sept. 5—The Reincarnation of a Soul (Drama)
Sept. 10—Mother (Drama) ....
Sept. 12—In the Cycle of Life (Drama)......
Sept. 17—The Pearl of the Golden West (Com.)
Sept. 19—The Doctor's Story (Drama).........
Sept. 24—Twiddledum Insures His Life (Com.)
Sept. 24—A Painter's Ruse (Comedy).........
Sept. 26—Blood Red Tape of Charity (2 parts—Drama)..........

PILOT.

July 24—The Sure Tip (Comedy).............. 000
July 24—The Bug Professor (Comedy)........ 500
July 31—Loyal Hearts (Drama)..............1000
Aug. 7—The Green-Eyed Monster (Com.-Dr.)..1000
Aug. 14—(Title Not Reported.)
Aug. 21—(Title Not Reported).
Aug. 28—Getting the Evidence (Drama)......

RAMO.

Aug. 6—Checkered Lives (Drama)...........1000
Aug. 13—Love and Gold (Drama)..............1000
Aug. 20—Dangerous Sympathy (Drama).......1000
Aug. 27—The Springtime of Love (Drama).....1000
Sept. 1—The Worker (State Rights—3 parts—Drama)..........3000
Sept. 3—The Black Opal (Drama)...........1000

RELIANCE.

Aug. 30—The Social Secretary (Drama).......
Sept. 1—Feeney's Social Experiment (Comedy).
Sept. 3—(No Release This Date).
Sept. 6—The Glow Worm (3 parts—Drama)..
Sept. 8—Between Home and Country (Drama)
Sept. 10—(No Release this Date).............
Sept. 13—The Clown's Daughter (2 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 15—Twickenham Ferry (Drama)........
Sept. 17—The Disguise (Drama) ....
Sept. 20—The Stolen Woman (2 parts—Drama)

REX.

Sept. 4—The Evil Power (2 parts—Drama)....
Sept. 7—The Light Woman (Drama)..........
Sept. 11—The Diamond Makers (2 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 14—The Fight Against Evil (Drama)...
Sept. 18—Never Again (Drama)..............
Sept. 21—The Wall of Money (2 parts—Dr.)..
Sept. 25—Genesis: 4-9 (2 parts—Drama)......
Sept. 28—Paying the Price (Drama)..........

SOLAX.

Aug. 27—A Terrible Night (Comedy)..........
Aug. 29—A Child's Institution (Drama)......
Sept. 3—Men and Muslin (Comedy)..........
Sept. 5—Retribution (Drama) ....
Sept. 10—Dooley and His Dog (Comedy)......
Sept. 12—Gratitude (Drama) ....
Sept. 17—Invisible Ink (Comedy).............
Sept. 19—Western Love (Drama)..............

.THANHOUSER.

Aug. 29—A Spartan Father (Drama)..........
Aug. 31—Frazzled Finance (Comedy-Drama)....
Sept. 2—The Veteran Police Horse (2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 5—(No Release This Date).
Sept. 7—His Last Bet (Comedy)............
Sept. 9—Taming Their Grandchildren.........
Sept. 12—The Message to Headquarters (Drama)
Sept. 14—(No Release this Date)............
Sept. 16—Redemption (Drama)...............
Sept. 19—Flood Tide (Drama)...............

VICTOR.

Aug. 22—The Ghost (Drama)................1000
Aug. 29—His Vacation (Comedy-Drama)......
Sept. 5—The Lost Copperhead (Comedy)......
Sept. 12—A Bride from the Sea (2 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 19—Percy H. Baldwin, Trifler (Drama)..
Sept. 26—For the Sins of Another (Drama)....

ROLL TICKETS

PRICES
Five Thousand - - $1.25
Ten Thousand - - $2.50
Twenty Thousand - - $4.50
Twenty-five Thousand - $5.50
Fifty Thousand - - $6.50
One Hundred Thousand - $8.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000, $2.50. Stock Tickets, 6c per 1,000. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
SHAMOKIN, PA.

This Trade Mark The Guarantee of Excellence on Goods Electrical.

A G-E Rectifier Will Increase Your Profits

IN previous advertisements we have explained how the G-E Rectifier makes pictures more brilliant, how it gives these better pictures at less cost for current, and how it can be used to advertise your theatre.

Better pictures will give increased attendance of old patrons. Advertising your theatre will attract new trade, and reduced operating expenses will increase your margin of profit.

Write our nearest office for complete information and prices.

General Electric Company

LARGEST ELECTRICAL MANUFACTURER IN THE WORLD

General Office: Schenectady, N. Y.

ADDRESS NEAREST OFFICE

Atlanta, Ga.
Baltimore, Md.
Birmingham, Ala.
Boise, Idaho
Boston, Mass.
Buffalo, N. Y.
Butte, Mont.
Charleston, W. Va.
Charlotte, N. C.
Chattanooga, Tenn.
Chicago, Ill.
Cincinnati, Ohio
Cleveland, Ohio
Columbus, Ohio
Davenport, Iowa
Dayton, Ohio
Denver, Colo.
Detroit, Mich.
(Office of Agent)
Elmira, N. Y.
Erie, Pa.
Indianapolis, Ind.
Jacksonville, Fla.
Joplin, Mo.
Kansas City, Mo.
Keokuk, Iowa
Knoxville, Tenn.
Los Angeles, Cal.
Louisville, Ky.
Mattoon, Ill.
Memphis, Tenn.
Milwaukee, Wis.
Minneapolis, Minn.
Nashville, Tenn.
New Haven, Conn.
New Orleans, La.
New York, N. Y.
Omaha, Neb.
Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburg, Pa.
Portland, Ore.
Providence, R. I.
Richmond, Va.
Rochester, N. Y.
Salt Lake City, Utah
San Francisco, Cal.
St. Louis, Mo.
Schenectady, N. Y.
Seattle, Wash.
Spokane, Wash.
Springfield, Mass.
Syracuse, N. Y.
Toledo, Ohio
Washington, D. C.
Youngstown, Ohio

For Texas and Oklahoma business refer to Southwest General Electric Co., (formerly Hobson Electric Co.)—Dallas, El Paso, Houston and Oklahoma City.

For Canadian business refer to Canadian General Electric Company, Lt'd, Toronto, Ont. 4044

The Trade Mark of the Largest Electrical Manufacturer in The World.

LICENSED RELEASE DATES

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Edison, Kalem, Lubin, Patheplay, Selig, Vitagraph (Special).
Tuesday—Edison, Essanay, Patheplay, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.
Wednesday—Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Patheplay, Vitagraph (Special).
Thursday — Biograph, Essanay, Lubin, Melies, Patheplay, Selig, Vitagraph.
Friday—Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Patheplay, Lubin, Vitagraph (Special).
Saturday—Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Patheplay, Vitagraph (Special).

BIOGRAPH.

Sept. 1—Among Club Fellows (Comedy)......
Sept. 1—Edwin's Badge of Honor (Comedy)..
Sept. 4—A Woman in the Ultimate (Drama)..
Sept. 6—The Strong Man's Burden (Drama)..
Sept. 8—A Modest Hero (Drama)............ .
Sept. 11—Baby Indisposed (Comedy)..........
Sept. 11—The Lady in Black (Comedy)........ .
Sept. 13—An Unjust Suspicion (Drama).......
Sept. 15—His Hoodoo (Comedy)...............
Sept. 15—Dan Greegan's Ghost (Comedy)......
Sept. 18—The Stolen Treaty (Drama)..........
Sept. 20—For the Son of the House (Drama)..
Sept. 22—The Law and His Son (Drama)......
Sept. 25—A Saturday Holiday (Comedy).......
Sept. 25—The End of the World (Comedy)....
Sept. 27—The Influence of the Unknown (Dr.)

EDISON.

Aug. 27—Quaint Spots in Cairo, Egypt (Travel) 400
Aug. 27—Zeb's Musical Career (Comedy)...... 600
Aug. 29—Joyce of the North Woods (Special—2 parts—Drama)..................2000
Aug. 30—The Ghost of Granleigh (Drama)....1000
Sept. 1—The Younger Regeneration (Comedy)..1000
Sept. 2—The Grecian Vase (Phantasy)........1000
Sept. 3—A Series of Tallulah Falls (Scenic).. 225
Sept. 3—The Girl, the Clown and the Donkey (Comedy)........................... 775
Sept. 6—The Awakening of the Man (Special—2 parts—Drama) 1000
Sept. 6—Slander's Tongue (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 8—Keepers of the Flock (Drama)......1000
Sept. 9—A Light on Troubled Waters (Drama).1000
Sept. 10—The Desperate Condition of Mr. Boggs (Comedy)..............................1000
Sept. 12—Caste (Special—2 parts—Drama)....2000
Sept. 13—The Green Eye of the Yellow God (Drama)................................1000
Sept. 15—The Island of Perversity (Comedy)..1000
Sept. 16—Jerusalem and the Holy Land (Scenic).1000
Sept. 17—Cornwall, the English Riviera (Scenic) 400
Sept. 17—The Comedian's Downfall (Comedy).. 600
Sept. 19—Saved by the Enemy (Special—2 parts—Drama)...........................2000
Sept. 20—The Great Physician (Drama).......1000
Sept. 22—For the Honor of the Force (Drama)..1000
Sept. 23—The Stroke of the Phoebus Eight (Dr.)1000
Sept. 24—The Embarrassment of Riches (Com.).1000
Sept. 26—Hard Cash (Special—2 parts—Dr.) 2000
Sept. 27—A Proposal from the Sculptor (Being the third of the series "Who Will Marry Mary)...................... 1000

ESSANAY.

Aug. 23—Broncho Billy's Mistake (Drama)..1000
Aug. 26—The Love Theft (Drama)............1000
Aug. 27—His Athletic Wife (Comedy).........
Aug. 27—What Cupid Did (Comedy)..........
Aug. 28—The Episode at Cloudy Canyon (Dr.)..1000
Aug. 29—Broken Threads United (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Aug. 30—A Western Sister's Devotion (Drama)1000
Sept. 2—Stone the Woman (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 3—Mr. Dippy Dipped (Comedy).........1000
Sept. 4—Hard Luck Bill (Comedy)...........1000
Sept. 5—While the Starlight Travels (Special—2 parts—Drama)...................2000
Sept. 6—Broncho Billy's Conscience (Drama)..1000
Sept. 9—Sunlight (Drama)...................1000
Sept. 10—The Treater's Treat (Comedy).......1000
Sept. 11—Bonnie of the Hills (Drama)........1000
Sept. 12—Grist to the Mill (Special—2 parts—Drama).................................2000
Sept. 13—Broncho Billy Reforms (Drama)......1000
Sept. 16—Women (Drama)......................1000
Sept. 17—Sweet Revenge (Comedy)...........
Sept. 17—The Duck Raising Industry (Zoology)
Sept. 18—The Broken Parole (Drama).........1000
Sept. 18—The Right of Way (Special—2 parts—Drama)............................2000
Sept. 20—The Redeemed Claim (Drama).......1000
Sept. 23—For Old Time's Sake (Drama).......1000
Sept. 24—Love Incognito (Comedy)...........1000
Sept. 25—Days of the Pony Express (Drama)..1000
Sept. 26—In Convict Garb (Special—2 parts—Drama).................................2000
Sept. 27—Why Broncho Billy Left Bear County (Drama)..........................1000

KALEM.

Sept. 1—The Christian (Drama)..............1000
Sept. 3—The Sacrifice at the Spillway (Special—2 parts—Drama)................2000
Sept. 5—Boggs' Predicament (Comedy).......
Sept. 5—Children of the Tenements (Topical).
Sept. 8—The Hand of Destiny (Drama)......1000
Sept. 8—The Bribe (Drama).................1000
Sept. 10—The Fatal Legacy (Special—2 parts—Drama)..............................2000
Sept. 12—Wanted—A Plumber (Comedy).......
Sept. 12—Too Many Cops (Comedy)...........
Sept. 13—The Monogrammed Cigarette (Drama)1000
Sept. 15—Retribution (Drama)...............1000
Sept. 17—Trooper Billy (Special—2 parts—Dr.).2000
Sept. 19—The Burglar and the Baby (Comedy).
Sept. 19—One Best Bet (Comedy)............
Sept. 20—The Breath of Scandal (Drama).....1000
Sept. 22—The Counterfeiter's Confederate (Dr.).1000
Sept. 24—A Midnight Message (Special—2 parts—Drama)............................2000
Sept. 26—The Hobo and the Myth (Comedy)....
Sept. 26—The Largest Duck Farm in the World (Zoology)..........................
Sept. 27—A Demand for Justice (Drama).....1000

GEORGE KLEINE.

Aug. 8—By Unseen Hands (Special—2 parts—Drama—Cines) ....
Aug. 12—The Mong-Fu-Tong (Eclipse—Special—2 Parts—Comedy-Drama)..........
Aug. 19—The Clown's Revenge (Eclipse—Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Aug. 26—The Human Bridge (Cines Special—2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 2—The Sign of the Black Lily (Cines—2 parts—Drama—Special) ....
Sept. 9—The Mysterious Man (Cines—2 parts—Drama—Special)..................
Sept. 16—High Treason (Cines—Special 2 parts—Drama)............................
Sept. 23—For His Brother's Crime (Cines—Special—2 parts—Drama).........
Sept. 30—Misgotten Gains (Cines—Special—2 parts—Drama)..........................

LUBIN.

Sept. 1—A Mountain Mother (Drama)..........1000
Sept. 2—The Engaging Kid (Comedy)..........
Sept. 2—Trimming a Boob (Comedy)..........
Sept. 4—The Road to the Dawn (Special—2 parts—Drama)..........................2000
Sept. 5—In the Southland (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 6—In the Toils (Drama)...............1000
Sept. 8—Seeds of Wealth (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 9—Playing With Fire (Drama).........1000
Sept. 11—The Hills of Strife (Special—2 parts—Drama)............................2000
Sept. 12—Panama Hat Industry (Industrial)... 400
Sept. 12—An Exclusive Pattern (Comedy)...... 600
Sept. 13—The Medal of Honor (Drama)........1000
Sept. 15—To Love and Cherish (Drama)........1000
Sept. 16—Fashion's Toy (Drama).............1000
Sept. 18—The Clod (Special—2 parts—Drama).2000
Sept. 19—The Love of Beauty (Drama).......1000
Sept. 20—Her Present (Comedy)............... 400
Sept. 20—His Reward (Comedy)............... 600
Sept. 22—Poker Paid (Comedy)................ 400
Sept. 22—This Isn't John (Comedy)........... 600
Sept. 23—A Mexican Tragedy (Drama)........1000
Sept. 25—Self Convicted (Special—2 parts—Drama)..............................2000
Sept. 26—Winning His Wife (Comedy).........1000
Sept. 27—The Great Discovery (Drama).......1000

MELIES.

July 17—A Chinese Funeral (Typical)..........
July 24—Javanese Dancers (Manners and Customs)..............................1000
July 31—It Happened in Java (Comedy-Drama) 1000
Aug. 7—Snapshots of Java (Scenic).........1000
Aug. 14—The Robber of Angkor (Drama).....1000
Aug. 21—In the Land of Fire (Drama)........1000
Aug. 28—Lost in Cambodia (Comedy)..........1000
Sept. 4—A Day at Singapore (Scenic)..........1000
Sept. 18—Home Life in Japan (Manners and Customs)...........................
Sept. 18—A Japanese Funeral (Manners and Customs)...........................
Sept. 25—A Cambodian Idyll (Drama).........1000

PATHEPLAY.

Aug. 22—The Lizard (Zoology)..................
Aug. 22—A Visit to the Ruins of Pompeii (Travel) ....
Aug. 23—The Mexican Gambler (Drama)......
Aug. 25—Pathe's Weekly, No. 44 (News)......
Aug. 26—The Hostage (Drama)...............
Aug. 27—$1,000 Reward (Comedy)............
Aug. 28—The Cook's Revenge (Comedy).......
Aug. 28—Pathe's Weekly, No. 45 (News)......
Aug. 29—A Day With a Hindoo Family (Manners and Customs)................
Aug. 29—The Road to Morey, France (Travel)..
Aug. 29—In the Valley of the Bourne, France (Scenic)............................
Aug. 30—The Blind Girl of Castle Guille (Dr.)
Sept. 1—Pathe's Weekly, No. 46 (News)......
Sept. 2—Whiffles Decides to be Boss (Comedy)
Sept. 2—In the Caucasian Mountains (Travel)
Sept. 3—The Climax (Drama)................
Sept. 4—Pathe's Weekly, No. 47 (News).....
Sept. 4—Fickle Fortune's Favor (Comedy)....
Sept. 4—With the Natives of New Zealand (Manners and Customs)............
Sept. 5—The Otter (Zoology)................
Sept. 5—On the Abruzzi (Travel).............
Sept. 6—The Price of Jealousy (Drama)......
Sept. 8—Pathe's Weekly, No. 48 (News)......
Sept. 9—Sleufoot's Seventh Suicide (Comedy)..
Sept. 10—Across the Chasm (Drama).........
Sept. 11—Pathe's Weekly, No. 49 (News)......
Sept. 11—The Accidental Shot (Drama)........
Sept. 12—Young Hearts and Old (Drama).....
Sept. 13—A Jungle Flirtation (Comedy).......
Sept. 13—Tahiti, the Picturesque (Travel).....
Sept. 15—Pathe's Weekly, No. 50 (News).....
Sept. 16—Mrs. Morton's Birthday (Drama).....
Sept. 17—The Merill Murder Mystery (Drama)
Sept. 16—Toad Traits (Zoology)...............
Sept. 18—Hot Springs and Geysers of New Zealand (Travel).................
Sept. 18—Pathe's Weekly, No. 51 (News).....
Sept. 19—(Title Not Reported)................
Sept. 20—Her Brave Rescuer (Drama).........

SELIG.

Aug. 26—The Adventures of a Watch (Drama)
Aug. 26—They Were on their Honeymoon (Com.)
Aug. 27—How Betty Made Good (Drama)......1000
Aug. 28—The Man in the Street (Drama)......1000
Aug. 29—The Price of the Free (Drama)......1000
Sept. 1—The Jeweled Slippers (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Sept. 2—The Lonely Heart (Drama)..........1000
Sept. 3—The Way of Life (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 4—Howlin' Jones (Comedy).............
Sept. 5—Man of the Woods (Drama)..........1000
Sept. 8—The Wheels of Fate (Special—2 parts—Drama).............................2000
Sept. 9—The Rancher's Failing (Drama).....1000
Sept. 10—Around Battle Tree (Drama)........1000
Sept. 11—Two Too Many (Comedy)...........1000
Sept. 12—Her Way (Drama)..................1000
Sept. 15—The Fifth String (Special—2 parts—Drama)..............................2000
Sept. 16—The Toils of Deception (Drama).....1000
Sept. 17—Tobias Wins Out (Comedy).........1000
Sept. 18—The Redemption of Railroad Jack (Drama)..............................1000
Sept. 19—The Rejected Lover's Luck (Dram)..1000
Sept. 22—The Young Mrs. Eames (Special—2 parts—Drama)......................
Sept. 22—Sissybelle (Comedy)................
Sept. 23—Bumps and Willie (Comedy).........1000
Sept. 24—The Spell of the Primeval (Drama)..1000
Sept. 25—The Capture of Bad Brown (Comedy).1000
Sept. 26—The Policeman and the Baby (Dr.)..
Sept. 26—The Taj Mahal, Agra, India (Travel)

VITAGRAPH.

Aug. 28—He Fell In Love With His Mother-in-Law (Comedy-Drama)............
Aug. 28—Quaint Singapore (Travel)..........
Aug. 29—The Clown and the Prima Donna (Dr.)1000
Aug. 30—The Call (Special—2 parts—Drama)..2000
Sept. 1—The Passing of Joe Mary (Drama)..1000
Sept. 2—His Lordship—Billy Smoke (Comedy).1000
Sept. 3—The Kiss of Retribution (Drama)....1000
Sept. 4—The Lonely Princess (Drama).......
Sept. 5—The Baby Elephant (Educational)....
Sept. 5—Pickwick (Comedy)...................
Sept. 6—When Women Go on the Warpath (Special—2 parts—Comedy).......2000
Sept. 8—Cupid Versus Women's Rights (Comedy-Drama)..........................
Sept. 9—Old Moddington's Daughters (Comedy-Drama)..............................1000
Sept. 10—Fortune's Turn (Drama)............1000
Sept. 11—The Tiger (Drama)..................1000
Sept. 12—Sauce for the Goose (Comedy).......1000
Sept. 13—The Lost Millionaire (Special—2 parts—Drama)..............................2000
Sept. 15—Pumps (Comedy)....................
Sept. 15—Sandy Gets Shorty a Job (Comedy)..
Sept. 16—Their Mutual Friend (Drama).......1000
Sept. 17—The Hindoo Charm (Drama).........1000
Sept. 18—Sunny; or the Cattle Thief (Drama)..1000
Sept. 19—John Tobin's Sweetheart (Comedy)..1000
Sept. 20—Our Wives (Special—2 parts—Com.).2000
Sept. 22—Daddy's Soldier Boy (Drama).......1000
Sept. 23—Extremities (Comedy)..............
Sept. 23—Scenes in Singapore (Travel)........
Sept. 24—The Other Woman (Drama)..........1000
Sept. 25—The Race (Drama)..................1000
Sept. 26—Bunny for the Cause (Comedy)......1000
Sept. 27—Under the Daisies (Special—2 parts—Drama)............................2000

ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES of Every Description We make a specialty of slides for BABY CONTESTS Write for special prices.
AMERICAN SLIDE AND POSTER CO., First National Bank Building, Chicago

MR. EXHIBITOR, LOOK, READ!!

Beautiful photographs of the leading actors and actresses playing in licensed films. Finished in soft gray. Size 22x28.

LILLIAN WALKER
VITAGRAPH

Price, 40c each
Postage Prepaid

Crane Wilbur
Maurice Costello
Francis X. Bushman
Gilbert M. Anderson
Marc MacDermott
Arthur Johnson
Mary Fuller
Ormi Hawley
Kathlyn Williams
Gwendoline Pates
Octavia Handworth
Lillian Walker

MARY FULLER

ALL
MASTERPIECES
OF PHOTOGRAPHY

OCTAVIA HANDWORTH
PATHE FRERES

A smaller size, 11 x 14 in same style and finish as above of Harry Myers, Lottie Briscoe, John Bunny, Guy Coombs, Ruth Roland, Beverly Bayne, Edith Storey, Earle Williams, Lillian Wiggins, Helen and Dolores Costello, Paul Panzer.

Price, 20c each
Postage Prepaid

GILBERT M ANDERSON

GENERAL FILM COMPANY, Poster Department

(Formerly Photoplay Advertising & Specialty Co.)

71 W. 23rd Street and 440 Fourth Avenue, New York; 121 Fourth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.; 1022 Superior Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio; 7th and Walnut Streets, Cincinnati, Ohio; Equity Bldg., Detroit, Mich.; 218 Commercial Street, Boston, Mass.; 122 Pearl Street, Buffalo, N. Y.; 737 Broadway, Albany, N. Y.

GOOD JUDGMENT IN ADVERTISING

Consists of ability in placing copy with the publication guaranteeing Quality as well as Quantity of circulation. No other Moving Picture publication reaches so many Exhibitors and prospective purchasers as .

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

EXHIBITORS' HEADQUARTERS

CALEHUFF SUPPLY COMPANY

(Incorporated)

50 North Eighth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Jobbers in Edison, Powers and Motiograph Machines and Parts

Machines Repaired by Expert Mechanics. Genuine Parts Only Used

SPECIALTIES

Mirror Screens
Chairs
Tickets
Pianos
Bio & Electra Carbons
Special Gundlach Lenses
Condensers
Edison Transformers
Ft. Wayne Compensarcs
Asbestos State Booths
Asbestos Wire
Switches
Plugs
Spotlights
Gas Making Outfits
Limes
Film-Cement
Branch General Disinfectant Co.
Scenery, Stage Effects
Theaters Bought, Sold, Rented

CHAS. A. CALEHUFF, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

MOVING PICTURE EXHIBITORS

We have the following bargains to offer:

One No. 6-A Complete, slightly shop worn machine, never used	$200.00
One No. 6 Power's, slightly shop worn, new	180.00
One No. 6 Power's used, guaranteed to be in perfect running order, complete	145.00
3 Second Hand Power's No. 5 Mechanisms, Perfect Condition	$40.00 each
2 No. 5 COMPLETE machines, good running order, guaranteed	75.00 "
One Edison type B, inside shutter, good as new	110.00
2 No. 4 Power's mechanisms, rebuilt, guaranteed to do as good work as the No. 5	28.00 "
One No. 5 Equipment, used, LESS MECHANISM, complete	22.00
One No. 220 volt Adj. Rheostat Power's 2nd hand, in good condition	14.00

All of the above are guaranteed to be as represented or money will be refunded.

THE STERN MANUFACTURING COMPANY

109 N. 10th St. PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Largest Moving Picture Supply House in the United States.

Headquarters for

ASBESTOS

CURTAINS and PICTURE BOOTHS

Send for Booklet C. W. Trainer Mfg. Co.
39 Pearl St., Boston, Mass.

WHY SHOW A
Jumpy—Flickery—BUSINESS KILLING Picture?
WHEN YOU CAN
HAVE YOUR MACHINE FIXED AS GOOD AS NEW, WORK GUARANTEED

We sell all makes of machines, new and second-hand. Also machine parts, supplies, tickets, carbons, etc.

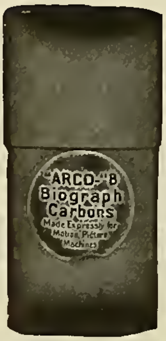
CHICAGO MOVING PICTURE SUPPLY CO.,
538 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, Illinois.

Advance Motion Picture Co.

Commercial, Industrial and Educational Film Mfgrs.
Chicago.

General Offices.
547-549 Peoples Gas Bldg.

Factory and Studio.
950 Edgecomb Place



SIEMENS & CO. manufacture but One Grade of Picture Carbons.

These are Imported and sold under our mark as

"Biograph Brand"

All 12" Carbons are double-pointed.

Packed only in Cartons, as shown.

L. E. FRORUP & CO.
232 GREENWICH ST. NEW YORK

THE INDUCTOR-COMPENSATOR

An Alternating Current Transformer for Motion Picture Arc Lamps

Every claim made for superior merit, high efficiency and current saving qualities has been proven by over five years' constant service.

Nearly 3,000 INDUCTOR COMPENSATORS now in use.

PRICE:

110 Volts, 60 Cycles	$50.00
220 Volts, 60 Cycles	50.00

Prices for special transformers to control other voltages and cycles quoted on application. Order from your exchange or from

BELL & HOWELL COMPANY, Designers and Manufacturers
217 West Illinois Street :: .: :: :: Chicago, Illinois

A Curtain Coating "SATEEN"

SATEEN is a crystallizing water color. Is easy to apply and makes a soft clear picture, free from glare or flicker. SATEEN makes a day-light screen, and does not contain silver or aluminum. Two (2) pounds will cover a curtain 12 x 15. Price, $1.50 per lb.

A. G. THOMAS, 1705 Fairacres Ave., Pittsburgh,

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN

Watch for Coming Releases of

ESSANAY Ithaca Co.

Theo. W. Wharton, Managing Director

STATE RIGHT BUYERS, ATTENTION!

"THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO"

IS HERE!!

The biggest lithographing house of the world has booked the biggest printing order ever placed, for the biggest picture ever made.

1,000,000 Sheets for America
1,000,000 Sheets for Continental Europe
1,500,000 Sheets for the British possessions

Enough paper to equip every circus and traveling theatrical show "on the road" around the wide, wide world!

WHOLESALE ORDERS MEAN WHOLESALE PRICES — in printing as well as other commodities!

If you are a real SHOWMAN and have secured this wonderful film, prove your SHOWMANSHIP by getting in "on the ground floor" on this wholesale proposition we have been authorized to make:

5,000 sheets, assorted, $225.00
10,000 sheets, assorted, 400.00
20,000 sheets, assorted, 700.00

Smaller quantities at regular prices.

The Most Sensational Moving Picture Proposition Ever Offered!

Bill like a circus and "do a circus business"!

Beautifully designed and colored twenty sheets; sixteen sheets; nine sheets; eight sheets; six sheets; three sheets; one sheets; streamers, etc.

OTIS LITHOGRAPH COMPANY

CLEVELAND AND NEW YORK

THE EIGHTH WONDER

The Battle of

Thousands of Men and Horses in Fierce Conflict! Great Characters of History Visualized with Marvelous Fidelity! Artillery Duels, Glorious Charges, Hand-to-Hand Fighting for Possession of Batteries.

STATE
FILE TERRI

WATERLOO FILM CO.

P. P. CRAFT MGR.

HUGH HOFFMAN

OF THE WORLD—

Waterloo

The Most Picturesque, Heroic Pages of History Torn from the Archives of Time for the Edification and Entertainment of the History Makers of To-day! A Masterpiece Endorsed by Educators, Military Leaders and the Press!

RIGHT BUYERS!
YOUR BIDS FOR TORY-WIRE QUICK

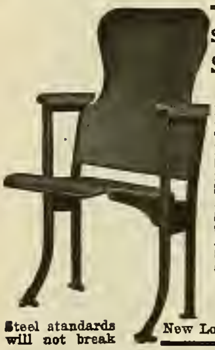
145 WEST 45th STREET
NEW YORK CITY

OPERA CHAIRS

Latest and Best in Seats

SEND FOR OUR PRICES BEFORE BUYING

BENNETT SEATING CO
127 EAST PEARL ST.
CINCINNATI, OHIO.



Steel standards will not break

STEEL OR IRON STANDARDS

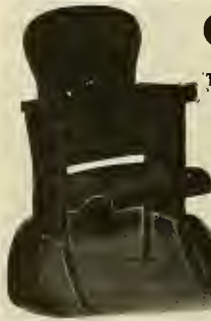
Eastern Sales Manager: Fletcher W. Dickerman, 61 North Seventh St., Telephone 126 Branch Brook, Newark, N. J. Southern California Representative: California Seating Co., 1110 Van Nuys Building, Los Angeles, Cal. North Western Representative: H. A. Johnson Seating Co., 911 Western Ave., Seattle, Washington.

The Wisconsin Seating Company
New London, Wisconsin, U.S.A.

WE BUY, SELL and RENT

Moving Picture Machines, Film, and Opera Chairs

THEATRE BROKERAGE EXCHANGE
440 S. Dearborn St. Chicago, Ills.



CHEAP

STEEL FRAME THEATRE CHAIRS ABSOLU ELY NON-BREAKABLE

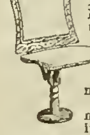
Suitable for small Theaters and Moving Picture Shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs

Also seating for Out-of-door use. Address Dept. W.

STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Rapids, Mich. New York: 150 5th Ave. Pittsburgh: 318 Bissel Blk. Philadelphia: 1943 Market St. Nashville, Tenn.: 315 No. 4th Ave.

OH! MR. EXHIBITOR!!



Think of the motherless, the fatherless, and the childless homes as the result of theater panics. Protect the lives of your patrons by installing our "ANTI-PANIC" THEATRE CHAIR. 26 Dead at Cannonsburg, 176 at Boyertown, 575 at Iroquois Theater, Chicago. Make these horrors impossible. Our chair is a friend to the Public.

It advertises your theater and makes your business grow.

It is a space-saver, life-saver, money-saver. Gives 25% more seating.

It will make your theater all aisles. It is the only sanitary chair. It is the world's greatest theater chair, perfected to the highest degree. Write today for circular A.

THE HARDESTY MFG. CO., Canal Dover, Ohio U. S. A.

It pays to discriminate when you buy

THEATRE SEATING

WRITE TODAY for Cat. V2 (Moving Picture Chairs) and Cat. V3 (Upholstered Chairs)

Send Floor Sketch for Free Seating Plan.

Widest range of styles and prices. Large stocks.

American Seating Company
218 S. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO. 15 E. 32nd St., NEW YORK

OPERA CHAIRS

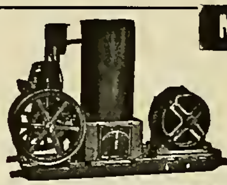
FOR EVERY PURPOSE
1,000 STYLES

ESTABLISHED 1865
WRITE FOR CAT. NO. 31

115-117 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.
New York Office, 1165 Broadway.

The A. H. Andrews Co.

Branches in all Leading Cities
Seattle Office, 508-10-12 First Ave., So.
San Francisco Office, 728 Mission St.



(163)

MOVING PICTURE ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANT

Used and Highly Endorsed by the United States Army.

BIGGEST SENSATION IN THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Can be operated by a boy 10 years old. One customer writes: "Plant running like a top and delivering the 'juice' right along every day for our moving picture house. Costs us about one-tenth as much as public service. Also pumps water to all our buildings, 2,000 gallons per day."

Write today for Bulletin 101. It is a mighty interesting booklet.

DETROIT ENGINE WORKS, Dept. 102, DETROIT, MICH., U. S. A.

The Old Reliable

BULL DOG CEMENT
AND ONE DROP OIL

At Your Exchange

ONE DROP OIL CO., 15 S. Leavitt St., Chicago, Ill.

Sargent's Photoplay Service

To aid those who wish to guard against the formation of bad writing habits, or who wish to estimate their progress, I offer the following service:

Script Criticism For a fee of two dollars for each reel, I will read your manuscript and write a personal letter, pointing out the faults of plotting, technical development, manuscript preparation, etc. Sometimes I can help you to make the script salable, but I do not guarantee a sale. I do not revise manuscript; I do not typewrite it, nor do I offer it for sale. I simply write you a letter that tells you what the trouble is.

Plot Estimates If your stories do not sell and you want to know why, send me five synopses and one full script. I will criticise the script and tell you whether it is your plot or your development that is wrong. The fee for this service is $5 for the five synopses and additional plot. Synopses must not run more than 300 words each. Send a synopsis of your undeveloped plot and fee of one dollar and you will be advised as to whether it will pay you to develop the same.

Please Note My fees do not include envelopes or return postage. Send prepaid and self addressed return envelope and remit in New York exchange; not local checks. I reserve the right to return unread (with fee) any story or plot that does not warrant treatment. All scripts must be typewritten.

EPES WINTHROP SARGENT
Box 70, Madison Square Station, NEW YORK CITY

WE CAN HURRY

YOUR ORDER OUT.

STAFFORD Chairs excel all others.

Heavy Five Ply seats and backs.

The last-forever kind, that you are using long after you have forgotten the price.

STEEL CHAIRS TOO

We carry several kinds of good chairs in stock, all guaranteed.

ASK FOR CATALOG 805

E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO.
CHICAGO, ILL.

WE CONTROL BOOKINGS

In Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Iowa

"ON THE STEPS OF THE THRONE" in four parts
"SALOME" - - - in three parts
"NEMESIS" - - - in three parts
"ON THE TRAIL OF THE SPIDER GANG" - - - in three parts

Coming "THE BLACK SNAKE," in four parts

We will handle all APEX releases in the future, along with a number of other big productions.

SCHILLER FEATURE FILM CO.
140 N. Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Agents for Lapins Dramagraph.

FILM LECTURES

By W. STEPHEN BUSH

How to Put On the Passion Play (Pathe Freres' World Renowned Production)................$1.00

How to Put On "The Crusaders, or Jerusalem Delivered" (World's Best Film Co.).......... 1.00

Key and Complete Lecture for "Dante's Inferno" (Milano Film Co.; Five Reels)................ 1.00

"Life of Moses" (Vitagraph Five-Reel).......... .10

$5.00 per Hundred to Exchanges for This One.

Copyrighted and For Sale Only by

CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO.

BOX 226 MADISON SQUARE P. O. N. Y. CITY

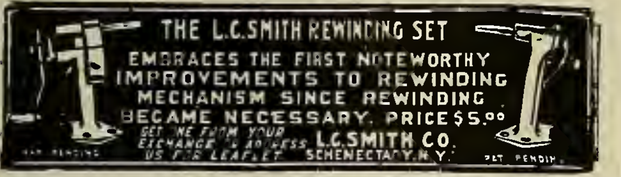
Booking High-Class Singers and Entertainers

I specialize in securing the right talent suitable for motion picture theaters.

FRED LINICK'S THEATRICAL AGENCY

Hobbs Bldg., 68 W. Washington Street - - - Chicago, Ill.
Suite 45-46 Tel. Randolph 6010



THE L.C. SMITH REWINDING SET

EMBRACES THE FIRST NOTEWORTHY IMPROVEMENTS TO REWINDING MECHANISM SINCE REWINDING BECAME NECESSARY. PRICE $5.00

GET ONE FROM YOUR EXCHANGE OR ADDRESS US FOR LEAFLET

L.C. SMITH CO.
SCHENECTADY, N. Y.

World's Largest Mfrs. WURLITZER Established 1856

Wurlitzer PianOrchestra and Mandolin Sextet in Royal Theatre, Lima, O.

Write for 32-page booklet, showing

Wurlitzer Automatic Musical Instruments

in the leading picture theatres of the country.

The Wurlitzer Instruments furnish better music than musicians and reduce expenses. 50 different styles; time payments; big catalog free. If you can't call, write to our nearest branch.

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Company

CINCINNATI NEW YORK CHICAGO PHILADELPHIA
117-121 E. 4th 25-27 W. 32d 329-331 S. Wabash 1835 Chestnut
ST. LOUIS CLEVELAND BUFFALO LOUISVILLE COLUMBUS, O.
613 Pine St. 800 Huron Rd. 701 Main 426 W Greene 57 E. Main

THE VIVAPHONE

SINGING AND TALKING PICTURES

SCENE FROM "JIMMY VALENTINE"

A SUCCESS EVERYWHERE. For State Rights Apply

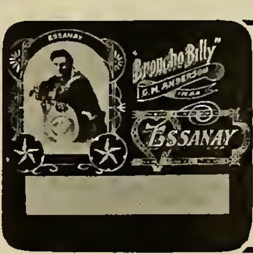
VIVAPHONE & FILMS SALES CO.
INCORPORATED
110-112 West 40th Street, New York City
A. BLINKHORN, Sole Agent U. S. A. and Canada

Lumiere Cinematograph Film

Thousands of feet of fresh raw stock, negative and positive, on hand for immediate shipment.

Western distributors of Lumiere Jougla Co.'s Film and Chemicals.

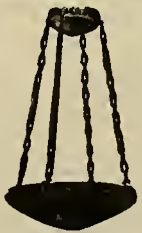
VICTOR ANIMATOGRAPH CO., INC.
946 First National Bank Bldg. CHICAGO



SLIDES

This slide of Broncho Billy, for Advertisement and 15c. Send for list, General, Mutual and Universal players. We want to show you about our release slides for these three programs. They're just what you need. Sample for 20c. If you use one, you'll want them for every feature. You might just as well have the best slide made as any other. You'll get them of

The Niagara Slide Company
Lockport, New York



EYE COMFORT LIGHTING System

So necessary to the success of every Motion Picture Theatre that we engineer 60 Theatres a month.

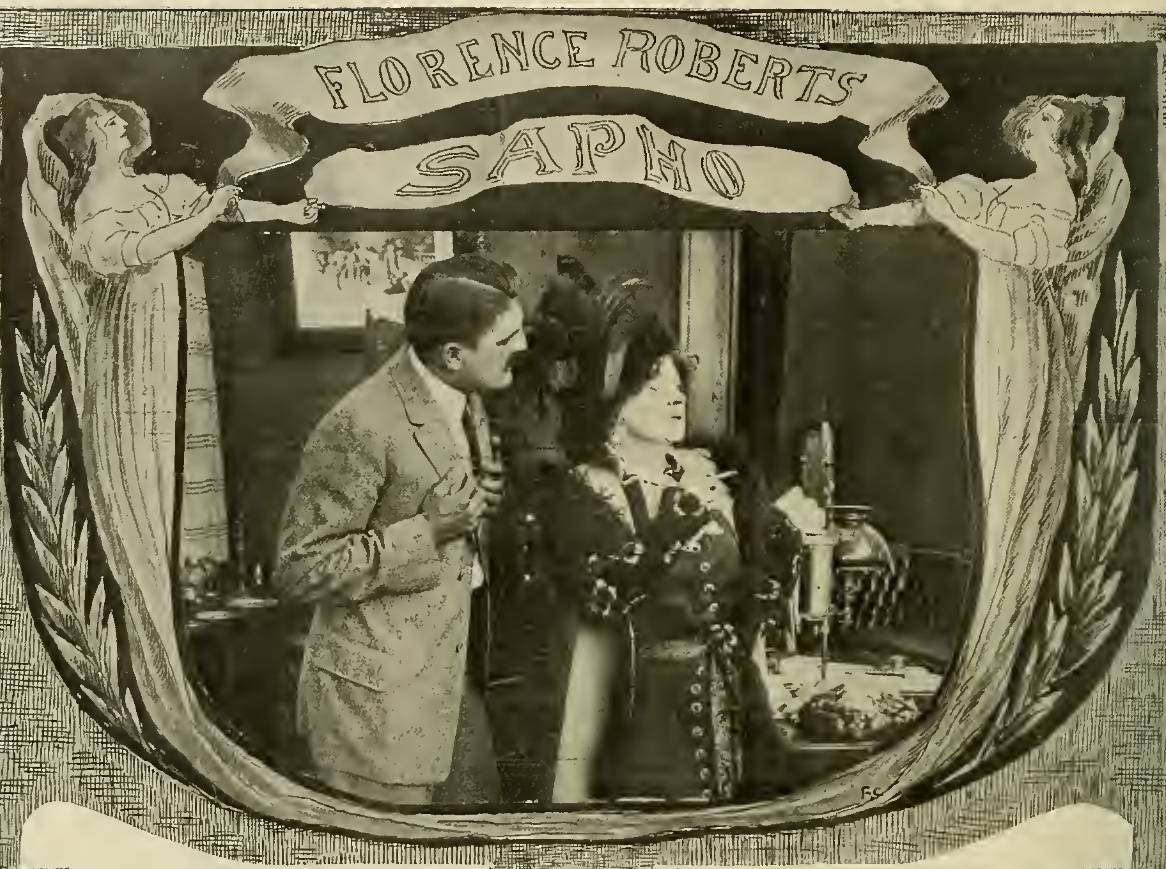
This is a free service to Motion Picture Theatre Managers.

Distance Screen to Rear of Auditorium..................................
Ceiling Height..
Width of House..
Name ....

NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO.

Chicago
229 W. Jackson Blvd.

New York
505 Fifth Ave.



Don't Book "SAPHO"
If You Expect a Mere Sensational Film

We are issuing "SAPHO" (with Florence Roberts) as a straight and a great

MORAL LESSON—Alphonse Daudet, the author, dedicated the book to his sons. We dedicate the film to

THE SONS OF AMERICA—Impress on your patrons that our picture version is not like stage versions. There is

NOTHING SUGGESTIVE in action or detail; there is no double meaning; as a production

IT IS ABSOLUTELY CLEAN and the whole effect of its wonderful expose of youthful follies can

ONLY BE HELPFUL

And Now Don't Forget the Titles of the New Three:

First, "THE WINNING LOSER" (Sunday, Sept. 14th), that YOU mustn't lose.

Second, "PLAYMATES" (Tuesday, Sept. 16th), that you should play for hard.

Third, "HIS LAST DEAL" (Friday, Sept. 20th), which won't be your last by a long shot!

All three are full of New Majestic favorites. There are no photoplay favorites like New Majestic favorites! Audiences always give a hand to the New Majestic favorites when they appear on the screen.

"NEW MAJESTIC"

"It Boomed 'Mutual' Business Right in Midsummer"

Business Offices: NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.

All-Year-Round Studios, Brooklyn Heights, Los Angeles, Cal.

MÉLIÈS FILMS

It will come among the first programs of the General Film Company's new EXCLUSIVE SERVICE

THE JAPANESE SWORD MAKER

IN TWO PARTS

That picture of the bitter, artistic rivalry of Japanese artisans of the Middle Ages —so true to the customs of that time.

PRODUCED IN JAPAN — EMPLOYING ONLY JAPANESE

SEPTEMBER 18th

HOME LIFE IN JAPAN

Interesting and intimate scenes in the homes of a fast growing people.

JAPANESE FUNERAL of one of Yokohama's richest men.

PRODUCED IN JAPAN.

NOT ONLY

NEWEST

BUT

BEST!!

FIND OUT WHY—
TO-DAY!!

KINEMACOLOR COMPANY

For particulars address the office closest to you

NEW YORK
1600 Broadway

CHICAGO
538 So. Dearborn St.

CINCINNATI
132 E. Fourth Ave.

PROVIDENCE
509 Westminster St.

KINEMACOLOR PICTURES

STEADY — RELIABLE

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH NO. 6A

The Flickerless Moving Picture Machine

A moving picture machine must project steady pictures or audiences will be dissatisfied — your business will suffer.

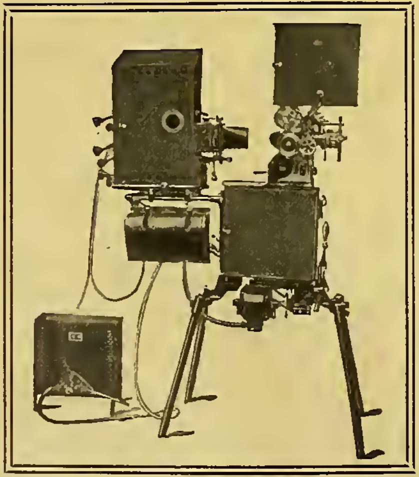
It must be reliable — a machine that will not go back on you when you need it most.

Toledo, Ohio.

"We find it to be the most perfect motion picture machine on the market; clear, flickerless pictures, perfect projection, etc. We had all the makes of machines demonstrated to us and yours proved the best."

Yours truly,
HART THEATRE,
J. C. Ranck, Mgr.

POWER'S NO. 6 A projects pictures without flicker. Its superiority has always been conceded by the trade. That is why its sales represent over 65% of the entire moving picture machine output of America.



Catalogue G gives full details

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

88-90 GOLD STREET, NEW YORK

THE LEADING MAKERS OF MOTION PICTURE MACHINES

Vol. 17. No. 13 September 27, 1913 Price 10 Cents

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "In the Days of Trajan" (American).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

MAUD FEALY IN MOTHS

THE THANHOUSER THREE-A-WEEK

Bid you watch for these fine OCTOBER two-reelers:

"THE PLOT AGAINST THE GOVERNOR"	"THE JUNIOR PARTNER"
Depicting present-day political conditions.	Depicting present-day business conditions.
Out TUESDAY, Oct. 7th.	Out TUESDAY, Oct. 21st.

THE THANHOUSER THREE-A-WEEK

release during the week commencing Sunday Sept. 21st:

SUNDAY, Sept. 21st.

"WHEN THE WORM TURNED"

Flo La Badie. Carey, Hastings and N. S. Wood were on hand to look happy.

TUESDAY, Sept. 23rd.

"AN UNFAIR EXCHANGE"

with all its unfairness gave the Thanhouser Twins and Eugene Moore a chance to entertain you.

FRIDAY, Sept. 26th.

"THE OFFICIAL GOAT PROTECTOR"

cannot protect you against laughter, for Riley Chamberlin and "Babe" Wallace are there.

THANHOUSER has made the best four reel heart-interest drama of the year in the Mutual Special

"MOTHS," with MAUDE FEALY

The Mutual Film Corporation announces as a special release the great OUIDA play of the above title. Miss Fealy, starred in this film, is known from coast to coast as a legitimate theatrical star, and has positively never heen seen to better advantage than in this motion picture of "MOTHS." With her is a special Thanhouser cast, including such favorites as
WILLIAM RUSSELL, GERDA HOLMES, HARRY BENHAM, MRS. LAWRENCE MARSTON, LILA CHESTER.

"Moths" has heen described as the most extraordinary description of a woman that has ever been penned. Remember:

"She has chastity, and she had also courage."

"She was the martyr of a false civilization, of a society as corrupt as that of the Borgias, and far more dishonest."

"She is innocent always and yet—When the moths have gnawed the ermine no power in heaven or earth can make it again altogether what it was."

You must not miss this marvel-play and its wonderful star. There are wonderful lithos, too, and they should attract people to a play that will hold them.

THANHOUSER FILM CORPORATION NEW ROCHELLE, NEW YORK

THANHOUSER STARS! THANHOUSER FEATURES! THANHOUSER QUALITY!

FIVE-A-WEEK

Essanay

—ESSANAY L'acme de QUALITE—

Coming Sept. 26th Coming Sept. 26th

"IN CONVICT GARB"

(IN TWO PARTS)

Sensationalism reigns supreme in this magnetic melodrama. Startling and exciting situations galore. An attraction that bids to outclass any other of this particular nature. This is positively one of the biggest box-office drawing cards in photoplays. Demand this feature. Ruth Stonehouse, Richard C. Travers, E. H. Calvert and Bryant Washburn portray the leading roles in a true-to-life manner. OUR POSTERS OF THIS FEATURE ARE DISTINCTIVE. ORDER THEM TODAY FROM YOUR EXCHANGE OR DIRECT FROM US. HERALDS NOW READY.

Released Tuesday, Sept. 23rd.

"FOR OLD TIME'S SAKE"

A truly sympathetic story of love that failed to run smooth. Francis X. Bushman, Juanita Dalmorez and Wm. Bailey featured.

Released Wednesday, Sept. 24th.

"LOVE INCOGNITO"

Splendid comedy situations in this excellent feature. Minor Watson, Dolores Cassinelli, Wallace Beery and "Smiling Billy" Mason featured.

Released Thursday, Sept. 25th.

"DAYS OF THE PONY EXPRESS"

A story of the West in the early days that has many an exciting and thrilling situation.

Released Saturday, Sept. 27th.

"WHY BRONCHO BILLY LEFT BEAR COUNTY"

An unusually strong Western drama featuring the World's most popular photoplayer, G. M. Anderson

Coming Friday, Oct. 3rd Coming Friday, Oct. 3rd

"TONY THE FIDDLER"

(IN TWO PARTS)

A melodramatic tale of the Canadian border in which Tony, the Fiddler, outwits the desperado "BIG BILL." Interesting and exciting situations throughout the entire two thousand feet. A feature that will put your theater on the map. Don't delay, book today.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN FEATURED HERALDS AND POSTERS NOW READY

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF OUR NEW POSTERS? AREN'T THEY GREAT? THEY WILL boom your business. Posters are lithographed in full four colors, 35c each. You can order these from your exchange or direct from Essanay Film Mfg. Co., 521 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago. Your lobby display will look attractive if you use photographs of ESSANAY players, 8 x 10, $3.00 per dozen. You can secure these from the PLAYERS' PHOTO CO., 177 N. STATE ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

Essanay Film Manufacturing Co.

521 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Factory and Studio, 1333 Argyle Street, Chicago, Ill.
Branch Offices in London, Paris, Berlin, Barcelona

28 UNIVERSAL

Including Never Less Than

The Universal program now contains TWENTY-EIGHT reels of superfine quality films every week. This includes SIX BIG FEATURES EVERY WEEK, one of the six being a 3-reeler and the other five being 2-reelers, each feature being accompanied by the finest lithographs that brains, equipment and money can produce. The program also includes ONE COMEDY REEL EVERY DAY, so that the Universal is not only the staunchest and safest but also the BEST BALANCED PROGRAM IN THE WORLD TODAY!

KING BAGGOT

3,700 feet
Sept. 22d

The picture that smashed

Magnificent 6-sheets, 3-sheets, and two kinds of 1-sheets.

"Bleeding Hearts"

Or "Jewish Freedom Under King Casimir of Poland" is pronounced by competent critics "one of the most powerful screen dramas ever produced." It is going to make a tremendous sensation. Watch for this big three-reel feature and see that you get it!

Coming!

"IVANHOE"
4 Reel Imp ....September 22
"THE STRUGGLE"
2 Reel Bison ....September 23
"A PURITAN EPISODE"
2 Reel Eclair ....September 24
"GENESIS 4-9"
2 Reel Rex ....September 25
"BLOOD RED TAPE OF CHARITY"
2 Reel Powers ....September 26
"CAPTAIN BILLIE'S MATE"
2 Reel Bison ....September 27
"JUSTICE OF THE WILD"
2 Reel Nestor ....September 29
"SHON THE PIPER"
2 Reel Bison ....September 30
"JACQUES THE WOLF"
2 Reel Eclair ....October 1
"BLEEDING HEARTS"
3 Reel Imp.........................October 2

Universal Film Manufacturing Company

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"
CARL LAEMMLE, President
Mecca Building, Broadway and 48th St., New York, N. Y.

REELS A WEEK

Six Big Features Every Week

If you are NOT a Universal exhibitor you are showing several films every week that bring the blush of shame to your face. You are exhibiting several pictures in every week's program that THE UNIVERSAL WOULD NOT RELEASE FOR LOVE OR MONEY! If you become a Universal exhibitor you will get a weekly program that requires no apologies; a program that will coin profits for you just as it is coining them for thousands of others. Go to the nearest Universal exchange and SEE WHAT YOU ARE MISSING!

IN "IVANHOE"

all selling records in Europe!

Book it early, no matter how much you have to pay for it!

3,700 feet
Sept. 22d

Coming!

"THE WINNER"
2 Reel Victor.....................October 10
"IN THE WILDS OF AFRICA"
2 Reel Bison.....................October 14
"THE DAREDEVIL MOUNTAINEER"
2 Reel Imp.....................October 16
"MAB O' THE HILLS"
2 Reel Victor.....................October 17
"CRIMINALS"
2 Reel Rex.....................October 19
"THE BIG SISTER"
2 Reel Imp.....................October 20
"THE SHE WOLF"
3 Reel Bison.....................October 21
"A MAN IN THE WORLD OF MEN"
2 Reel Powers.....................October 24
"THROUGH BARRIERS OF FLAME"
2 Reel Bison.....................October 28
"HIS HOUR OF TRIUMPH"
2 Reel Imp.....................November 3

Warren Kerrigan

will add to his already wonderful popularity when the people see his first Universal release entitled "The Restless Spirit." Mr. Kerrigan has thrown all his heart, soul and art into this new series of Universal features and the results are magnificent. Watch for big announcement.

Universal Film Manufacturing Company
"The Largest F'lm Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"
CARL LAEMMLE, President
Mecca Building, Broadway and 48th St., New York, N. Y.

Florence Lawrence

will pack your house to capacity again, beginning Friday, October 3d, when she will appear in her first two-reel Victor feature entitled "THE CLOSED DOOR." Remember, IT IS GOING TO COST YOU EXTRA MONEY to get these Florence Lawrence features because they cost your exchange a premium price. Don't fuss about price when you have a chance to book the highest-salaried and most popular actress in the business. Give your exchange some encouragement right now by notifying it that you want "The Closed Door" and all other Victor features and ARE WILLING TO PAY EXTRA FOR THEM!

64 distributing offices are now handling Universal service in the United States and Canada!

ARIZ., Phoenix—California Film Exchange, Lewis Bldg.
ARK., Ft. Smith—Universal Film Exchange.
CAL., San Francisco—California Film Exchange, 54 7th St.
Los Angeles—California Film Exchange, 110 E. 4th St.
COLO., Denver—Wm. H. Swanson Film Co., Railroad Bldg.
CONN., New Haven—Universal Film Exchange of N. Y., 850 Chapel St.
DIST. OF COL., Washington—Washington Film Exchange, 428 9th St. N. W.
FLA., Tampa—Consolidated Film & Supply Co.
GA., Atlanta—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., Rhodes Bldg.
ILL., Chicago—Anti-Trust Film Co., 128 W. Lake St.
Laemmle Film Service Co., 204 W. Lake St.
Standard Film Exchange, 172 W. Washington St.
IND., Indianapolis—Central Film Service Co., 113 W. Georgia St.
IA., Des Moines—Laemmle Film Service, 421 Walnut St.
KAN., Wichita—Universal Film Exchange, 155 N. Main St.
KY., Louisville—Standard Film Exchange.
LA., New Orleans—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., Maison Blanche Bldg.
MD., Baltimore—Baltimore Film Exchange, 412 E. Baltimore St.
MASS., Boston—New England Universal Film Exchange, 1100 Boylston St.
Springfield—Universal Film Exchange of N. Y., 317 Main St.
MICH., Detroit—Detroit Universal Film Co., 87 Woodward Ave.
Grand Rapids—Universal Film Exchange, 5 Hawkins Block.
MINN., Minneapolis—Laemmle Film Service, 252A Hennepin Ave.
MO., Kansas City—Universal Film & Supply Co., 12th and McGee Sts.
St. Louis—Universal Film & Supply Co., 804½ Pine St.
MONTANA, Butte—Wm. H. Swanson Film Co.
NEB., Omaha—Laemmle Film Service, 1312 Farnam St.
N. J., Newark—Royal Film Exchange, 286 Market St.
N. Y., Albany—Rex Film Exchange, 7 Maiden Lane.
Buffalo—Victor Film Service, 39 Church St.
N. Y. City—Universal Film Exchange, 111 E. 14th St.
N. Y. City—Universal Film Exchange (Mecca Branch), 1600 Broadway.

UNIVERSAL FILM

CARL LAEMMLE, President

King Baggot Back!

The "king of the movies" is back, refreshed after his European experience and ready to jump heart and soul into his "Imp" work in this country. In addition to "IVANHOE" (about to be released) Mr. Baggot also starred in some mighty big features while in Europe. You'll get them soon. One is "Across the Atlantic." a big 3 reeler in which Claude Grahame-White, the famous aviator, takes an important role. Another is a gripping drama called "ABSINTHE," a 3 reeler which even surpasses "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Another is a new stunt which Mr. Baggot calls a "travelogue comedy" entitled "Mr. and Mrs. Innocence Abroad." GET THEM ALL!

N. C., Charlotte—Interstate Films Co.
O., Cincinnati—Cincinnati-Buckeye Film Exchange, 236 W. 4th Ave.
  Cleveland—Victor Film Service, Prospect & Huron Sts.
  Toledo—Toledo Film Exchange Co., 439 Huron St.
OKLA., Oklahoma City—United Motion Picture Co., 112 Main St.
ORE., Portland—Film Supply Co. of Oregon, 385½ Alder St.
PA., Harrisburg—Interstate Films Co.
  Philadelphia—Eagle Projection Co., 1304 Vine St.
  Philadelphia—Interstate Films Co., 1304 Vine St.
  Philadelphia—Philadelphia Film Exchange, 121 No. 9th St.
  Pittsburgh—Independent Film Exchange, 415 Ferry St.
  Wilkes-Barre—Exhibitors Film Exchange, 61 So. Penn Ave.
S. DAK., Sioux Falls—Universal Film Exchange.
TENN., Memphis—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., Falls Bldg.
TEX., Amarillo—Universal Film and Supply Co.
  Dallas—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., 1310 Elm St.
  El Paso—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., 805 Miles Bldg.
  El Paso—Wm. H. Swanson Film Co., Little Caples Bldg.
  San Antonio—Consolidated Film & Supply Co.
UTAH, Salt Lake City—Wm. H. Swanson Film Co., McIntyre Bldg.
W. VA., Wheeling—Universal Film Exchange.
WIS., Milwaukee.
WASH., Seattle—Film Supply Co., 1301 Fifth Ave.
  Spokane—Film Supply Co., 211 Jones Bldg.
CANADA—Calgary, Alta.—Canadian Film Exchange, Monarch Theatre Bldg.
  Edmonton, Alta.—Canadian Film Exchange, Monarch Theatre Bldg.
  Montreal, Que.—Canadian Film Exchange, 295 St. Catherine St.
  Regina, Sask.—Canadian Film Exchange, 402 Kerr Bldg.
  Saskatoon, Sask.—Canadian Film Exchange, 20 Willoughby Block.
  Toronto, Ont.—Canadian Film Exchange, 11 Richmond St. W.
  Winnipeg, Man.—Canadian Film Exchange, Monarch Theatre Bldg.
  Vancouver, B. C.—Canadian Film Exchange, 516 Holden Bldg.

Go to the nearest one of these offices and see the finest program in the world!

MANUFACTURING CO.

Mecca Building, Broadway and 48th Street, New York, N. Y.

Announcement Extraordinary

WITH the ever-increasing demand for multiple reel productions, has gone hand in hand, a perfectly legitimate desire for short films, (one reel in length and less), that will stand the test of the most critical audience. Adapting ourselves to this trend of the film movement, we have carefully studied this question and now beg to announce to the trade at large that we will have available at an early date, the largest, finest, and most comprehensive assortment of short subjects the European market affords. Travel subjects from all over the world, often in the colors of nature; scientific subjects conveying interesting information in a popular manner; trick pictures that have proven so popular with most audiences; and last but not least, real comedies that make a strong appeal to your funny-bone. We will have available carefully selected funny film-stories featuring and other internationally famous fun providers. We extend a cordial invitation to interested parties to communicate with us concerning the above range of short subjects, of which we can make regular releases at fixed intervals. We wish to receive first-hand information from film buyers to shape our future policy. Suggestions from the trade will be highly appreciated.

MAX LINDER

ECLECTIC FILM CO.

110 West 40th St. New York City

"THE CREAM OF THE EUROPEAN MARKET SELECTED FOR AMERICA"

There's a "wallop" in this picture that you won't find in a thousand others. A tale of implacable hatred, the thirst for vengeance, and the relentless fury of a jealous brigand. Tense situations and thrilling sensations follow with amazing rapidity. The death struggle of the bandits on the precipice, ending with one being hurled off into the depths below, is a hair-raising climax.

One, three and six sheet posters ; heralds ; lobby photographs and cuts.

HAND-COLORED

VENDETTA

(COPYRIGHTED)

ECLECTIC FILMS
PARIS NEW YORK

In Two Parts

Ready October 2nd

ECLECTIC FILM CO.

110 West 40th St. New York City

"THE CREAM OF THE EUROPEAN MARKET SELECTED FOR AMERICA"

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

"CHELSEA 7750" CONNECTS A NOTED STAR WITH A NEW SUCCESS

DANIEL FROHMAN PRESENTS

HENRY E. DIXEY

THE FAMOUS LEGITIMATE STAR

SUPPORTED BY LAURA SAWYER AND HOUSE PETERS

In an Original Drama of the Underworld

"CHELSEA 7750"

A Metropolitan Mystery In Three Astonishing Reels

HENRY E. DIXEY is one of the foremost favorites of the American stage. In the role of an eminent, able and conscientious detective, Mr. Dixey is afforded ample opportunity to utilize the fine powers of characterization for which he is noted. The play sounds every depth of the underworld, its secrets, its methods and emotions, and penetrates the intricate labyrinths of the submerged half. Startling revelations, ingenious machinations and overwhelming climaxes crowd fast in thrilling succession; and through it all the mystery and fascination of the world that lives under cover.

Released September 20th

Produced by the

FAMOUS PLAYERS

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
TIMES BUILDING
NEW YORK

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

"CHELSEA 7750" SOLVES THE PROBLEM OF COMPETITION

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

EXHIBITORS

can obtain bookings in their respective territories for Mrs. Fiske in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," "In the Bishop's Carriage," presenting Mary Pickford, and

FORTHCOMING RELEASES:

Henry E. Dixey in "Chelsea 7750"

Lillie Langtry in "His Neighbor's Wife"

Laura Sawyer in "An Hour Before Dawn"

James O'Neill in "The Count of Monte Cristo"

and all future "Famous Features" from the exchanges that have contracted for our entire annual output, listed as follows:

Famous Players Film Co. of New England Harry Asher, Gen'l Mgr. 100 Boylston St. Boston, Mass.	MAINE NEW HAMPSHIRE VERMONT MASSACHUSETTS CONNECTICUT RHODE ISLAND
Famous Players Exchange, 23d St. cor. 6th Ave., N. Y. C. Phila. Office, 1331 Vine St.	NEW JERSEY AND EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA
The Casino Co., Dimes Bank Bldg., Detroit, Mich.	MICHIGAN
Famous Players Film Service Co. Chattanooga, Tenn.	NORTH CAROLINA SOUTH CAROLINA GEORGIA FLORIDA ALABAMA TENNESSEE MISSISSIPPI LOUISIANA
Progressive Motion Picture Co. Pacific Bldg. San Francisco, Calif.	CALIFORNIA NEW MEXICO NEVADA ARIZONA OREGON WASHINGTON
Kansas City Feature Film Co. A. D. Flintom, Gen'l Mgr., Gayety Theatre Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.	IOWA KANSAS NEBRASKA
Wm. L. Sherry Feature Film Co. Wm. L. Sherry, Pres. Times Bldg., New York City	ENTIRE STATE OF NEW YORK
Famous Players Film Service, Jas. Steele, Gen'l Mgr. 125 4th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.	WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA WEST VIRGINIA OHIO KENTUCKY
New Grand Central Theatre Co., Grand & Lucas Ave., St. Louis, Mo.	MISSOURI
Southern Feature Film Program Assn. 1920 Main Street, Dallas, Texas	ARKANSAS OKLAHOMA TEXAS
Famous Players Film Service Bert Barnett, Gen'l Mgr., Temple Court Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.	MINNESOTA NORTH DAKOTA SOUTH DAKOTA WISCONSIN
Notable Feature Film Co. Boston Building, Salt Lake City, U.	COLORADO WYOMING UTAH IDAHO MONTANA

Famous Players Feature Corp., 28 West Lexington St., Baltimore, Md.
DELAWARE MARYLAND DIST. OF COL. VIRGINIA

EXCHANGEMEN: The following states want the "Famous Feature Program." Why don't you obtain it for
ILLINOIS INDIANA DOMINION OF CANADA

FILM COMPANY

ADOLPH ZUKOR PRES.
DANIEL FROHMAN
MANAGING DIRECTOR

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

THE HOUSE OF SELIG

SELIG LEADS OTHERS FOLLOW

SELIG CREATES OTHERS IMITATE

"THE INVISIBLE GOVERNMENT"

A Modern Melodrama

The ring, the trust and various forms of graft operation perniciously active in political and municipal life, has a trace in the warp and woof of this photoplay, which takes a stronger interest through its sentimental side, involving a lovely and wealthy young lady with a smooth, but crooked, son of a crook. The sinister figure of "The Man in the Street" plays over and under it all, and with his usual detective deftness, sees that wrongs are righted and the evil persons brought to justice.

Released September 29th

September 30th "THE FALSE FRIEND"

An interesting playlet, in which the fount of trouble is a designing young man who wins a girl through the medium of a letter that he has forged. Time eventually rights the wrong.

October 1st "THE CATTLE THIEF'S ESCAPE"

A breezy western play in which a fine type of parson—a wholesome representative of muscular Christianity—wins the respect of the community and the finest girl in that section.

On the same reel with

"THE ELEPHANT AS A WORKMAN, RANGOON, INDIA"

October 2nd "OUR NEIGHBORS"

The seemingly commonplace occurrences of everyday life occasionally form good material for a taking play akin to this one of "Our Neighbors." See if it reminds you of a look over your back fence.

Oct. 3rd "JOHN BOUSALL OF THE U. S. SECRET SERVICE"

A clever detective story, dealing with diamond smugglers, located at a Dutch diamond-cutting port, trying to get rich at the expense of Uncle Sam.

SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY

BRANCH OFFICES THROUGHOUT THE WORLD
EXECUTIVE OFFICES: 20 E. RANDOLPH ST.
CHICAGO, ILL., U.S.A.

THE WORLDS FOREMOST PRODUCER

"WHY GIRLS LEAVE HOME"

A Two Reel Comedy Released Friday, October 3d

A new version of the side-splitting comedy that won world-wide fame several years ago. We have received letters from exhibitors in every part of the country demanding another "Why Girls Leave Home," and, with characteristic Edison enterprise, we have retained the best features of the first film, but added a wealth of new and original material.

A pious minister learns with horror of the coming performance of the heart-rending melodrama, "Why Girls Leave Home." He decides to see the play in order to preach against it more effectively. His entire household decides to visit it—separately—for other reasons. Complications! The harrowing details of the play itself and the many ridiculous incidents which occur in the audience, together with the duplicity in the minister's household, combine to make this the greatest two-reel comedy ever produced.

COMING EDISON SINGLE REEL RELEASES

*A Daughter of Romany

Produced in Kent, England.

The story of a girl whose father was a nobleman and whose mother was a gypsy.

Released Tuesday, September 30th.

*Mr. Toots' Tooth

A tale of a jumping toothache and a cowardly sufferer.

(On the same reel)

Damascus and the Ruins of Baalbek

Released Wednesday, October 1st.

The Contents of the Suitcase

A drama of the mountains, telling a story of the moonshiners and a counterfeiter.

Released Saturday, October 4th.

*A Short Life and a Merry One

A scarecrow, brought to life, has a merry time transforming others until he loses his magic wand.

(On the same reel)

Birds of the Southern Sea Coast

Released Monday, October 6th

A Wilful Colleen's Way

A pathetic story of the Irish coast, a tale of true love that did not run smooth.

Released Tuesday, October 7th.

NOTICE

Beginning with "Why Girls Leave Home," we will issue six sheets for all Edison multiple-reel subjects. See below for announcement of all posters.

* One sheet posters.  One and three sheets.  One, three and six sheets, by the Morgan Lithograph Co., Cleveland.

TRADE MARK
Thomas A Edison

THOS. A. EDISON, Inc.
239 Lakeside Avenue, Orange, N. J.

Another recruit this

THIS week's multiple re are eight in number—
October Second and

Another manufacturer has tonishing feature service—
eight instead of seven

Nothing like it was ever attempted in there were never such brains and ener house the biggest money maker in your them up with the single reels of amaz

GENERAL FILM COMPANY (Inc.)

"The Invisible Government"

Selig. Two Reels. Released Sept. 29.

This time "The Man in the Street" levels his attention on the boss of all political bosses. He lets the millionaire's daughter permit herself to be kidnapped by the master intriguer and conquers him after action is piled on action. A fascinating thread of events, brought to a climax by the genius of the detective.

"Misgotten Gains"

Kleine-Cines. Two Reels. Released Sept. 30.

A society man by day, a thug by night—this is Briggs, who poses as a nobleman to win the daughter of a rich old man. A naval lieutenant is her real lover. He returns from a cruise and, after remarkable adventures with the crook's gang, saves his sweetheart on her wedding night.

"The Battle at Fort Laramie"

Kalem. Two Reels. Released Oct. 1.

How the lives of a young army surgeon and the girl he loves are tangled in the warfare of two Indian tribes. After the massacre at the Army post it is a faithful savage who leads the white girl to safety and then outwits his tribesmen to bring about the young doctor's escape with her. Flashing action throughout.

"The Special Officer"

Lubin. Two Reels. Released Oct. 2.

A faithful old watchman saves his bank from ruin at the hands of a get-rich-quick swindler. The old man goes to the extreme of rifling the safe and concealing its funds in the face of a storming mob of depositors. His son returns with the authorities in time to nab the crook and win the girl, who was all but taken from him by the rascal.

week—Eight now

leases from General Film one every day, two on Third.

joined the ranks in this as- from now on composed of multiples.

the pictures. Nothing could be—for gies and resources at work to make your town. Book these features and back ing quality furnished by General Film.

200 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

"The Depth of Hate"

Patheplay. Two Reels. Released Oct. 2.

Marking the entrance of this manufacturer into the multiple feature field. The story deals with the bitter hatred of a lodge-keeper's wife, who believes that her daughter has been killed by remorse. Her lover deserts her for the beautiful woman who owns the estate on which the lodge is located. Powerful human realism.

"Why Girls Leave Home"

Edison. Two Reels. Released Oct. 3.

Hist! What is that? The snow is falling softly on the street—and on the heroine. She throws herself in the river. The hero saves her—otherwise the rest of the show would be ruined. But just when the child is being stolen, Reckless Pete gracefully throws off his whiskers and behold! Our Hero. It's a new presentation of an old success—and the poor minister who sees the melodrama is unhappier than ever.

"Tony, the Fiddler"

Essanay. Two Reels. Released Oct. 3.

The story of a musician who captured a hold-up man, famous on the Canadian border in the early eighties. To get the big reward and win the sheriff's daughter he beards the bandit in his den—only to find she loves another. Human interest, romance and drama, artistically blended.

"The Mystery of the Silver Skull"

Vitagraph. Two Reels. Released Oct. 4.

Suppose you reached New York on your yacht and on the way to a business appointment fell in love with a girl on the street. Suppose you saw this same girl, a little later, robbing the safe in your business friend's office. That's the smashing start of the complications that center about a quaint silver skull, the property of a murdered man. Action and intrigue here.

(Copyright, 1913, by George Kleine)
THE KLEINE-CINES

"THE FLOWER OF DESTINY"

In Two Parts For Release Tuesday, Oct. 7, 1913

An Epic Poem of Mediaeval Times—A Thoroughly Delightful Dramatization of a Classic Tragedy

Not often are you offered a subject so charmingly executed—photographed in Italy amid the sombre wrecks of mediaeval castles, where just the proper shade of "local color" could be found.

A story of amazing simplicity. A pretty boy page worships his beautiful mistress from afar and dares to place a rose upon her window sill. For this he is discovered by His Lordship and whipped to death. When the little body is taken home his sister vows a vengeance. In time she obtains a place in His Lordship's household as a page, attired in boy's clothes, wins the love of her cruel master, who knows her to be a woman, and, in her costume, wins the love of the mistress. Her revenge is terrible, for the master tries to poison his wife and the wife destroys her husband. Then, her vengeance accomplished, in the natural garb of a peasant girl she reveals her identity to the blood-stained wife.

Told in pictures of stereoscopic clearness, showing the time-haloed castles of the Middle Ages, with the quaint interior decorations of the period, with the superb pantomime of Italy's greatest artists and a story essentially poetical, we firmly believe "THE FLOWER OF DESTINY" a two-reel subject of extraordinary power. Every one will like this dainty version of a great Italian poem.

Featuring ANTHONY NOVELLI and LEAH GUINCHI, who played the respective leads in that mighty Cines, "Quo Vadis?"

(Released through General Film Co.)

GEORGE KLEINE
166 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.

(From the Chicago Tribune of Tuesday, September 9th)

"HELD FOR 'QUO VADIS?' INFRINGEMENT"

James E. Northmore, head of the Independent Bromide Company of 102 North Fifth Avenue, Chicago, yesterday was arrested by federal officers on a charge of infringing on the copyright of the film "QUO VADIS?" held by George Kleine. Commissioner Foote released Northmore on $500 bonds and set the hearing for Sept. 15th.

READERS of the Moving Picture World will remember that I published in the October 12, 1912, edition of that publication the following excerpt from the amended copyright law in force July 1, 1909:

> "SEC. 28. Any person who willfully and for profit shall infringe any copyright secured by this act, or who shall knowingly and willfully aid or abet such infringement shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment for not exceeding one year, or by fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1000, or both, in the discretion of the court."

This is a serious offense. The copyright law is easily understood. It fully protects the owner of the copyright and metes out swift and sure punishment to the willfully thieving.

Therefore, I again wish to issue notice that any further violations of copyrights held in my name on films, photographs or printed matter will be as vigorously and as promptly prosecuted as in the case of the above Mr. Northmore.

GEORGE KLEINE

166 North State Street
Chicago, Ill.

1476 Broadway
New York, N. Y.

THE NIF
OF

THE DEPT

IN TWO BIG THRILLING, BE RELEASED THURS.,

The Film Features PEARL SINDELAR, ELEANOR WO
GUERITE RISSER, M. O. PENN and Other Favorites

THIS IS THE FIRST AND IT'S A WOR —OTHERS FOLLOW EVERY T

BOOK 'EM

FIRST of a MAG-
ICENT SERIES
MULTIPLE REEL
PATHEPLAYS

H OF HATE

THROBBING REELS, WILL

OCT. 2d

ODRUFF, MAR-
of the Pathe Co.

LD BEATER HURSDAY.

ALL

LUBIN·FILMS

LOOK FOR OUR

TWO REEL PICTURES EVERY THURSDAY

"THE SPECIAL OFFICER" Two Reel Thursday, October 2nd

A get-rich-quick man is beautifully foiled by Daddy Bowne, Special Officer

---

"Breed of the North"

Two Reel

Released Thursday, October 9th

"The Breed of the North" is a very picturesque story of the Northwest lumber and trapper region. Two twin brothers, Jim and John, love the same girl; the former wins her, and the latter joins the Northwest Mounted, and it becomes his duty to track a man who is wanted, really for a crime he did not commit, and he discovers it to be his brother. The fugitive being caught, they exchange clothes, and John gives himself up. The real murderer is, however, caught, and Jim returns to his wife, while John returns to his police duty.

"TAKING of RATTLESNAKE BILL" Two Reel Thursday, October 16th

Powerful melodrama with a beautiful and pathetic finish.

FIVE RELEASES EACH WEEK

"A MEXICAN TRAGEDY" 1000 feet Tuesday, September 23rd

A Mexican melodrama, very powerful and true to the locale.

''SELF-CONVICTED" 2000 feet Thursday, September 25th

A great detective story, with reformation rewarded

"WINNING HIS WIFE" 1000 feet Friday, September 26th

A very pretty domestic story which ends in poetry.

"THE GREAT DISCOVERY" 1000 feet Saturday, September 27th

A scientific enthusiast loses his great discovery, but regains his wife and child.

"THE INVADER" 1000 feet Monday, September 29th

A good Western story of tricking in pioneer days.

LUBIN 5 Color Posters, One, Three, and Six Sheets
From Your Exchange or A. B. C. Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

LUBIN MANUFACTURING CO. PHILADELPHIA U.S.A

VITAGRAPH

"DADDY'S SOLDIER BOY" A War Incident Monday, Sept. 22d
He stands true to his flag and believes his father the noblest soldier of them all. He never knew his father's shortcomings and died happy in the ideals he worshipped.

"EXTREMITIES"
"SCENES IN SINGAPORE" } Comedy and Topical Tuesday, Sept. 23d
The first is a novel play entirely portrayed by the actions of the hands and feet of the players. The second brings the Far East very near home.

"THE OTHER WOMAN" Drama Wednesday, Sept. 24th
She happens to be the right sort. The man who fell in love with her has her to thank for saving him from dishonor and his family from disgrace.

"THE RACE" Exciting Drama Thursday, Sept. 25th
It is a thrilling one. Love prompts a young girl to jump into the automobile and win in a fierce finish, which brings with it happiness and prosperity.

"BUNNY FOR THE CAUSE" Comedy Friday, Sept. 26th
He is an anti-suffragette. He is introduced to some of them, joins the procession and shouts, "Votes for Women." He is a slave to their charms.

"UNDER THE DAISIES" Drama Special feature in two parts Saturday, Sept. 27th
False to his country sweetheart, he gives way to his own selfishness and she dies amid the scenes of her childhood. Brought to a realization of his baseness, he evades his conscience in death.

"UNDER THE DAISIES"
SPECIAL FEATURE
IN TWO PARTS.
RELEASED SATURDAY SEPT 27.

SIX-A-WEEK

"WHEN THE WEST WAS YOUNG"—Western
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th.
"WHICH?"—Comedy
TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30th.
"SALVATION SAL"—Drama
WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 1st.
"THE AUTOCRAT OF FLAPJACK JUNCTION"
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2nd.
"THE TREASURE OF DESERT ISLE"—Comedy-Drama
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 3rd.
"THE MYSTERY OF THE SILVER SKULL"—Two part—Drama
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4th.

THE VITAGRAPH COMPANY RELEASES A SPECIAL FEATURE IN TWO PARTS EVERY SATURDAY, AND A COMEDY EVERY FRIDAY. VITAGRAPH ONE, THREE AND SIX SHEET POSTERS—SPECIAL MUSIC FOR ALL SPECIAL RELEASES.

THE VITAGRAPH CO. of AMERICA, East 15th St. & Locust Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

The End of the Run

You want a feature that goes straight to the heart—here it is! The old Engineer fights in vain against Father Time. What happens when he finds that his old engine—like himself—has been thrown on the scrap-heap will wet many an eye.

Released Monday, October 6th

The Riddle of the Tin Soldier

A Two-Part Detective Feature by Hugh C. Weir, author of the "Madelyn Mack" Stories

Miss Alice Joyce plays the role of detective for the first time in her career in this great feature. The climax, a battle between the police, summoned by the girl detective, and the gangsters, is full of desperate action—it's a real fight—one of the most exciting ever shown.

Get the Two Superb One-Sheet Posters
Also the Three and Six-Sheet Posters

Released Wednesday, October 8th

Pete's Insurance Policy

This colored gentleman plays "dead" to collect his insurance money. Can you imagine the consternation of his colored friends when he "comes back" to life?

(On same reel)

The Sea Scouts of America

Showing the only organization of its kind in existence going through the daily routine aboard the good ship "Pioneer."

Released Friday, October 10th

The Influence of a Child

A desperate criminal adopts the little child of a pal for whose death he was responsible—and unknowingly lays the foundation for his own redemption. See the heart-touching climax, in which she turns him to an honest life.

Released Saturday, Oct. 11th

TRADE KALEM MARK

KALEM COMPANY

235-237 West 23d Street NEW YORK

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the
CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square.)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.................................President
E. J. Chalmers.....................Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie............Vice-President and General Manager
The office of the company is the address of the officers.

WESTERN OFFICE—169 West Washington Street (Post Building), Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Main 3145.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands ....$3.00 per year
Canada ....3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (postpaid)..........................4.00 per year

ADVERTISING RATES.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING — no display — three cents per word; minimum charge, 50c.

NOTE.—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The index for this issue will be found on page 1438.)

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter.

Saturday, September 27, 1913

Facts and Comments

AT the beginning of the theatrical season there appeared a play on the speaking stage which made a most frank and impudent appeal to morbid and depraved tastes. We cannot soil the columns of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD by a description of the play; suffice it to say that the scene "with the punch" portrayed with vulgar and hideous detail the worst aspect of "white slavery." The authors and owners of this reeking outrage hoped to draw crowded houses and the same time avoid condemnation by putting some "moral" observations in the last act. This guise proved too thin and the play is now in the hands of the police. The judge who issued a warrant for the producer of the play went on record as saying that the play "served no good purpose whatever and was evidently written for the sole purpose of making money."

It goes without saying that the primary purpose of all plays, whether acted before the public directly or before the public via the moving picture camera is to make money. This, however, is not the only purpose. In trying to make money the author must also try to make some return for the money. His play must offer something by way of amusement or instruction. He cannot make money legitimately without giving an equivalent in usefulness. If he tries to make money through appealing to the morbid and degenerate by depicting obscene and revolting spectacles he is making money in a way which the Penal Code will not tolerate.

*

Nor will the ever ready plea "that the public want this sort of thing and we must give the public what it wants without trying to educate it" avail him as an excuse. In the first place the plea is false in fact, and even if it were true in fact it is still wholly bad, both in logic and in ethics. The public do not want filth on the stage. There may be a portion of the public with taste for the prurient. It is true that this portion may be large enough to fill the theater to overflowing on more than one night, and thus arouse the curiosity of the general public. To prevent such an occurrence the law has stepped in and made offenses against common decency a misdemeanor.

*

Just about six years ago a very capable director of motion pictures made a so-called comedy which was generally denounced as vile. When he was told that he ought to be ashamed of himself he said: "Perhaps you are right, but this is the kind of stuff the public want." Since that time this same director has made scores upon scores of splendid pictures. He now believes that the public is always grateful for the best, either in comedy or drama. He is now convinced that it is wrong to play down to the lowest taste and likewise unprofitable and unsafe. Neither in the theatrical nor in the moving picture field can the producer escape his responsibility under the specious pretence that he "gives the public what it wants." This does not mean that he is to conform to certain conventional forms and ethics. The stage is a forum as well as a place of amusement. The greatest liberty ought to be allowed for the propounding of new theories of social life, etc. The same latitude ought to be accorded to the screen. Stage and screen are often most useful when they ridicule accepted beliefs and time-worn hypocritical conventions. There is, however, a very distinct limit. When the most repellent features of human life are paraded on the stage or screen merely as a spectacle with a very lame and transparent "moral lesson" in the last act it is time for the public scavengers to start Herculean methods of house cleaning.

* * *

WE are in hearty sympathy with a protest of one of our old readers, an exhibitor with a first class theater in Toledo. He complains of the tactics of certain producers who take every feature of special length and merit away from their regular moving picture exhibitors and start them on the big theatrical circuits. Our correspondent asks these producers with a preference for theaters devoted to the spoken drama from whom they expect "their support in the future." He is quite right in saying that the support of these producers will not come from the "so-called big theaters of the East and West, who have never played pictures." We think that the moving picture theater, which has been the backbone of the industry when the big theaters and the big theatrical magnates fought the picture tooth and nail, is entitled to nothing less than the best treatment at all times. The manufacturers no less than the exchanges will consult their own interests by bearing this constantly in mind. The big combination which comes into a town with five paying motion picture houses and gives an extravagant program of pictures and vaudeville especially in the dull season is doing no good to the industry. It plays the part of the pike in the trout stream and does unmitigated harm.

A Tribute to Gaynor

By W. Stephen Bush

THE distinguished jurist, statesman and philosopher who died so suddenly at a moment when the City of New York needed him most deserves a full page in the history of the American moving picture. William J. Gaynor was a friend of the motion picture because he was a friend of humanity. No biography of this strong and thoroughly honest American can be complete without dwelling on his feeling of avowed friendship for kinematography. Gaynor was a true democrat. I use the word democrat not in a partisan sense. I want to convey the idea that he believed in the people and in the principles of free government. In the motion picture he recognized a democratic form of amusement and a wonderful boon to the masses of the people. Of course he was quick to see the part which motion pictures are to play in the training of coming generations, but he also realized to the fullest extent the vast good which the pictures were doing in the present.

We have had many evidences of his friendship for the motion pictures, both while he was on the bench and after he had been elected to fill the Mayor's chair of this great city. All of us recall his decisions in regard to motion pictures and in definition of the rights of exhibitors of motion pictures. When George B. McClellan as Mayor of New York started in to wipe out the moving picture theaters and treated exhibitors in the harsh and cruel spirit of the old common law, which looked upon men in the amusement business as vagrants, Justice Gaynor came to the rescue of fair play. He gave the laws that modern and equitable interpretation which our times and the spirit of our civilization suggested and required. As far as he could he defined the rights of showmen and he made it plain that the exhibitors of motion pictures were entitled to some consideration after they had complied with all the laws and had paid the license fee required by the city. He established a precedent in interpretation which will always be at the disposal of lawyers arguing for the rights and privileges of the exhibitor. Indeed, one cannot read recent decisions affecting motion pictures here and elsewhere without realizing that Gaynor has blazed the way. For the more liberal and tolerant spirit toward the showmen we have to thank Gaynor. His interpretations have been followed not only in our own state but in many of our sister states. Gaynor set his face like adamant against the narrow bigots who wanted to turn the great metropolis of the new world into a Puritan village of the seventeenth century. The millions of men and women and children living in and around New York are largely indebted to Gaynor for the decent and orderly entertainments which are provided for them on Sundays.

We valued the admiration of Gaynor for the motion picture for many reasons. Detesting hypocrites and hired reformers and the whole "Holier-Than-Thou" Brigade, with all the healthy hatred of a plain and honest man he cultivated habits of clean living and was quick to resent any affront to public decency. His stand in the all-night licenses and his action in stopping a scandalous play on Broadway show that he had a sound moral sense in the best of working order. He knew and pitied the weaknesses of human nature, but he had no patience with commercialized vice or depravity.

We fear that the pack of yellow dogs which was always barking at his heels often irritated him and helped to weaken his heart. Conscious of the rectitude of his own motives it hurt him deeply to be accused unjustly. He could stand criticism, but he could not brook abuse. He showed the superb quality of his moral courage by resisting to the utmost clamor which so often annoyed and irritated him. A weaker man might have compromised with the enemy.

Gaynor rendered his greatest service to the motion pictures and to the people that love motion pictures by his actions while in the Mayor's chair. We all remember how at the very start of his career as Mayor he was flooded with all sorts of horrible complaints about the motion picture and about the places where motion pictures were shown. His treatment of these complaints was typical of the man. He had them carefully investigated. He himself did some investigating and in strict incognito visited scores of motion picture theaters. The investigation proved to the Mayor that the complaints were unjustified by the facts. He gave out a statement to the press declaring the results of his investigations and in characteristic fashion denouncing the libelers of the motion picture.

We owe to Gaynor the effective and practical ordinance which now regulates motion picture theaters in the City of New York. We owe him a special debt of gratitude for his stand on the censorship question. He possessed in a high degree the great and rare gift of being able to explain difficult legal propositions in clear and simple language, intelligible to the average citizen. Never did he make better use of this extraordinary ability than at the hearing in the city hall, when the advocates of censorship rallied in favor of their pet dogma. He confounded them in truly Socratic fashion. If the censorship proposition is today about the deadest thing in existence outside of the mummies of the Rameses dynasty we have to thank Gaynor for it.

At the recent convention of moving picture men in this city, Mayor Gaynor, though overwhelmed with business, appeared and spoke before the delegates. His speech will never be forgotten by those who either heard or read it. It was remarked that Gaynor spoke with unwonted enthusiasm and that his love for his subject was plainly manifested in his voice and in his manner.

On this as on many other occasions the example of the Mayor was of incalculable value to the motion picture. Not only did his example have a great influence on other public officials all over the country, but it forced the daily press into recognition of the motion picture. Some of the yellow journals could not understand the motives of the Mayor's friendship for the motion picture. Their moral equipment made it impossible for them to assume that a public official could honestly act for what he conceived to be the best interests of the community he was serving. We remember that in the days of the agitation for the closing of the motion picture theaters on Sundays one of the yellow journals published a cartoon showing the Mayor in the act of soliciting patrons for a moving picture theater. The cartoon bore the legend: "The New Barker." No wonder we love the Mayor for the enemies he has made.

Time will write the Mayor's epitaph. Time will do him full justice. His work as a jurist, his achievements as a statesman and his teachings as a philosopher will be appreciated by many competent pens in the future. The Moving Picture World as the representative spokesman for the moving picture men and the moving picture interests of the country feels it a duty to pay this short tribute to the loyal friend of the moving picture.

Film Schedules in the New Tariff

A Strange Proposal of Censorship by the Customs Officials.

By W. Stephen Bush.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17

THE pledge of "downward revision" to which the political party, now in power in the nation, stands committed, will be kept in two important points in the film schedule: "All film sensitized but not exposed or developed," in other words all raw stock is proposed for the free list. It is fairly certain that this proposal to put raw stock on the free list will be allowed to stand, when the bill finally emerges from the conference committee. The proposal originated in the Senate and at this writing there seems no doubt that the house conferees will concur. It is even more certain that there will be a reduction of the import duty on positive films.

In order to understand the situation it is well to bear in mind that the new bill contemplates radical changes in the present provisions of the law. In the house bill a substantial reduction of the import duty on negatives and positives is proposed. Here is the exact language of the planned provision:

"Photographic film negatives or positives imported in any way in connection with moving picture exhibits or for making or reproducing pictures for such exhibits, including herein all moving, motion, moto and photography or cinematography film pictures, prints, positives or duplicates of every kind and nature and of whatever substance made 20 percentum ad valorem."

Note the exact and comprehensive language of this clause; the subject is new to Uncle Sam as a tax gatherer and he runs no risk of being not explicit enough.

When this provision which would make a most sweeping change in the present rates came before the Senate, the latter body would have none of it and came back with a remarkable substitute, which is worth while quoting verbatim:

"Photographic film negatives, imported in any form for use in any way in connection with moving picture exhibits or for making or reproducing pictures for such exhibits, exposed but not developed, 4 cents per linear or running foot, if exposed and developed 5 cents per linear or running foot; photographic film positives, imported in any form for use in any way in connection with moving picture exhibits, including herein all moving, motion, motiography or cinematography film pictures, prints, positives or duplicates of every kind and nature and of whatever substance made 1¼ cents per linear or running foot: Provided, however, that all photographic films imported under this section shall be subject to such censorship as may be imposed by the secretary of the Treasury."

It will be seen that in both measures, the house bill as well as the Senate bill, a reduction of the import duty on positives is contemplated. The change proposed in the house bill would reduce the duty on 1000 feet of a positive print from $15 to probably less than $10. It is impossible to give exact figures for no one can fathom the rules and judgments of the Board of Appraisers, who are not always governed by consular invoices. Figuring on their appraisals of negatives, which never fall below a dollar a foot and often go much higher, it is reasonable to estimate the appraisers valuation of a positive print at about 4 cents a foot or say $40 the average reel.

The whole matter is now in the hands of the conference committee consisting of members of the House and of the Senate. They are trying to agree on all the provisions in dispute and naturally compromise is the order of the day. This conference committee has not so far touched the film schedules. If they had proceeded in strict accordance with the numerical order of the schedules they might have reached the film schedule last week, but they have often jumped from one schedule to another as the spirit moved them. One thing is certain. The President is determined to have the bill in his hands by the first of October. It is known that he has personally urged the conferees to lose no time. Night sessions have been suggested and may be held if necessary. The proceedings of the conference committee are, of course, secret and resemble more the deliberations of a party caucus. Whatever the reporters manage to learn from individual members of the committee after a session has been concluded is doled out to them very sparingly. The anxiety of the nation will, however, be relieved as soon as the conference committee, having finally agreed on all matters in dispute make their reports to their respective bodies. It will then be a mere formality to place the bill, as concurred in by both houses on its final passage, and send it to the President. The act will take effect on the day following its passage.

A Strange Scheme of Censorship.

Not a whit less important than the contemplated changes in the film schedule is the remarkable passage concluding the provision of the Senate amendment: "Provided, however, that all photographic films imported under this section shall be subject to such censorship as may be imposed by the Secretary of the Treasury."

This provision was introduced by Senator Hughes of New Jersey who says he acted on behalf of a number of civic societies in various parts of the country. It was at first supposed that the amendment merely referred to the ban on prize fight films. Even at the present time every importer of a foreign-made film has to make oath that the films he has imported are not a reproduction of a prize fight.

The amendment, however, seems to cover not only prize fights but all subjects whatever. Nobody can at this moment foretell its fate but it is very sure that the Treasury Department is not at all pleased over this most extraordinary amendment. Though the amendment merely speaks of a censorship which may be imposed, there is no doubt that in the event of its passage the Treasury would have to establish rules and regulations for the inspection and censorship of every foreign film imported into this country.

I called upon Mr. Charles S. Hamlin, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and drew his attention to the amendment.

"This is the first I know of such an amendment" said Mr. Hamlin. "Of course I cannot state what this department will do in the event of this provision being enacted into a law. We are here to carry out and administer the law as the law is made by the law-making power and we never permit ourselves to trespass upon the legislative branch of the government by making suggestions unless, of course, they are asked for."

Mr. Hamlin read the section very carefully and then pensively looked out of the window.

"Yes," he continued, "there is no doubt this would impose a great duty on us. We are here, however, to perform any duty which the legislature sees fit to assign to us."

There was the faintest trace of a smile on Mr. Hamlin's face as he continued:

"If Congress wants us to play Sunday school superintendent why we will do so. Let me see. Such a censorship would require supervision in every port of entry in the United States. There are, on a rough guess, more than a hundred such ports of entry and I suppose there would have to be an examination on the screen. These films could not be examined in any other way. What does the cost of equipping rooms with machines come to?" asked Mr. Hamlin hopefully.

Assured that moving picture machines cost but little Mr. Hamlin paused and once more looked out of the window.

"Well," he continued, "it is not for us to criticise Congress. If the amendment becomes a law we will do our full duty under the law. We will establish such rules and regulations as will ensure the enforcement of the legislative intent."

It was learned from the best sources possible that the Treasurer views the task of censorship with anything but pleasant feeling. Persons close to the heads of the department call attention to the loose wording of the amendment. It was pointed out that a test in the courts would quickly establish the legal impossibility of a censorship conducted by the custom authorities.

It appears that the clause in the Tariff Bill providing a censorship of foreign films by Treasury originated in the mind of the Rev. Forrest J. Prettyman, the Chaplain of the Senate. It occurred to the chaplain that the most objectionable moving picture films he had ever seen were of foreign origin. One day while the Senate had the schedule dealing with photographic films for moving pictures under consideration the chaplain mentioned the matter to Senator Kenyon, who agreed with the chaplain that it would be a good thing to censor foreign films on their importation into this country. The chaplain also talked with Senator Sheppard of Texas, who took the same view. Senator Sheppard then drew up the provision now in the bill and asked Senator Hughes, a member of the committee of the Senate having the bill in charge, to introduce the amendment. Senator Hughes offered the amendment and it was unanimously adopted by the Senate.

Censorship Retained.

(Special to the Moving Picture World).

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—The conferees on the Tariff Bill today reached an agreement fixing a rate of 2 cents per linear foot on all photographic film negatives imported in any form for use in any way in connection with moving picture exhibits or for making or reproducing pictures for such exhibits, exposed but not developed. If exposed and developed, 3 cents per linear foot. This is a reduction from the Senate rate.

Photographic film positives, imported in any form, for use in moving pictures are to pay a rate of duty of 1¼ cents per linear foot.

The censorship provision was allowed to remain in the bill.

The provision placing raw film stock on the free list was also agreed to.

In speaking of the amendment the Senate Chaplain, Prettyman said to the representative of the Moving Picture World: "The moving picture has educational value of the highest kind. It will play a great part in the education of our citizens in the future. Moving pictures are also the means of creating public opinion and influencing public taste. I think the pictures should be clean and of the highest type.

"War."

Sensational Realism in a Coming Vitagraph.

H. C. Judson.

THIS is not a review of the two part offering, "War," which the Vitagraph Company is making; for we haven't seen an inch of film of it. But the writer was over on Long Island and watched Director Frederick Thompson take a couple of scenes of it, so startling that he is going to give his impression of what he saw. It was not hard for the writer, standing there, to imagine the thing as real. The means of obtaining the effect were quite apparent to him; but—since he didn't see the picture—he could imagine that same picture as being free from suggestion of the means and, knowing what Vitagraph artistry can accomplish, could see it as perfect.

You will remember from newspaper accounts in those dark days when the Great Power was invading our land, that after it had gained a foothold on Long Island and made of it a fortified salient, it attempted to fatally cripple the somewhat demoralized home forces by destroying the great ammunition stores at West Point, Springfield and Princeton. It used to this end a corps of grimly determined bird-men who made several ineffectual attempts to drop dynamite upon the stores. That these attempts were unsuccessful was due mostly to the watchfulness of small bodies of infantry and light artillery scattered over the intervening country. In one case, though, a deadly "Power" bird-man did succeed in getting within a half mile of Springfield and would have destroyed nine tenths of the stored ammunition had he not been stopped by the courage of Colonel Earle Williams, of the American Aviation Corps, who, in a light biplane, met him in full career, nose to nose in mid air that brought both machines headlong to the ground where the debris was piled up, a little heap. This was the heroic act that Director Thompson was taking.

It was drawing on towards the end of the afternoon, a time of danger. All eyes were straining skyward, for none knew from what quarter the enemy might come. Suddenly in the south a speck appeared against the blue and a light buzzing sound was heard. At the trumpet's sound the automobile corps could be heard in the distance making fast time along the main South Turnpike and in the distance the mountain guns could be heard booming their challenge to the steadily approaching enemy. The foot soldiers, stationed along the river bank, could only wait for the coming of the inimical and fearfully dangerous visitant. Unable to move speedily, they had to remain hidden while steadily nearer and nearer the airship came. There was hope in their breasts, for it was clearly coming straight toward the copse of bushes under which they lay. Perhaps their rifles might do for it what the artillery and mountain guns were, so it seemed, failing to do. They believed themselves the last hope of saving the great stores on which so much depended, and nerved themselves praying for eyes to shoot straight.

The great bird was nearer now. The men could see that it was a bi-plane and that it carried two men. The colonel in command of the infantry by the river gave orders: "Aim up through the bushes, men; don't let him see you. Steady. Take aim." The tones of his voice were calm; but there was that in them that told every man who heard how much depended on the bullets. Every pair of rifle sights followed the great steel and canvas bird as it came nearer. It seemed now to be mounting upward. "Fire," shouted the colonel.

"Fire at will," shouted the colonel. The men, now standing up, began to "gun" individually for the bird. It was so close to them now that they could see the face of the man who sat in the front seat and governed its flying; but all their firing was of no avail. Suddenly a sharp report was heard from it, the sound audible even above the rattle of the riflery. At once, right in front of their faces, a geyser of water leaped up out of the river, with the heavy, startling detonation of the bomb. By natural impulse one and all leaped back a dozen steps.

"Shoot straight. Bring it down," commanded the colonel, but only a few obeyed him, for the thing over head sent down another thunderbolt which caught the river bank but a few steps from where they were standing. The explosion threw many of them down and they sought a more sheltered place.

All were conscious now—and what a relief it was—that there was another aeroplane in the sky. They were first aware that the enemy had changed his plans. His machine seemed to waver and then, instead of darting directly across the city, it began to mount. Looking for its cause, they caught a glimpse of the second machine swooping low down over the corn fields that surround the city. Now it too darted upward as though to take the invader in the rear. He saw its intention and, quickly wheeling, tried to cross directly above it with the object of dropping a bomb on it. But the smaller plane was too quick for its heaver antagonist. Like a king bird against the crow, it could fly twice as fast. And now the enemy too changed its tactics. No doubt, thinking to disregard the small plane altogether, it made a dart straight for the powder house; but it reckoned without its host. The smaller plane swooping around to the right curved suddenly and unexpectedly back, right in the face of the great antagonist, meeting it high up in midair, as it were beak to beak and claw to claw.

For an instant, both machines seemed to hang there where they were and then, straight as the fish hawk falls to the water when he sees a fish, his prey, so the two interlocked and inextricable machines came to earth. It was in the midst of the debris that the broken body of Major Earle Williams was found. He was still alive and has since recovered from his injuries; but it was by a miracle alone.

EDWIN THANHOUSER, WIFE AND SON AMID ETERNAL SNOW.

Edwin Thanhouser, Mrs. Thanhouser and their son Lloyd ascending the Jungfrau in Switzerland in the very center of the Eiger Glacier. What is the famous producer thinking about? Here are his own words on a postal card to a member of the staff of the Moving Picture World: "Below us are the green foot-hills; above and about us the towering drifts of snow and ice. Fine to contemplate on a hot August day. Amid such scenery I am acquiring too much moving picture inspiration for an idle man." How long can a man with dynamic energy added to inspiration keep idle?

"In Convict Garb"

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

ESSANAY will release, on September 26, a stirring two-reel melodrama by one of the eastern stock companies, under the direction of Harry McRae Webster. The story has largely to do with men of the underworld, who turn out to be eminent in morals when compared with a man prominent in business affairs and social circles.

"In Prison Garb" might have been a more euphonious title than that which has been employed. The word "convict" is harsh and forbidding, and has a tendency to influence one's mind unfavorably, before the pictured story has been presented. There are no lurid scenes showing killings, however, the main object, evidently, being to teach the lesson that a man in high position and standing may become a criminal of the basest kind.

Scene from "In Convict Garb" (Essanay).

Producer Webster has bestowed much painstaking on the production, as is evidenced by the scenes that carry the story. He has not overlooked those little touches of detail, in places, which make for realism—for example, a view of the rope in the warden's office, used to blow the whistle to signal the guards that a prisoner is escaping, and also a view of the whistle itself, with the steam issuing from the valves.

E. H. Calvert takes the leading character, the bank cashier, with much credit to himself. The finer qualities of the society man and the baser nature of the criminal are brought out in strong contrast. Miss Ruth Stonehouse, at times, in the role of Evelyn, engaged to the cashier, subjects herself to the trying ordeal of looking straight into the eye of the camera. Few can do this with pleasing effect to the spectator, and Miss Stonehouse is not one of the few. Her characterization, however, shows intelligent conception and careful portrayal. The scenario writer, whoever he may be, could have made Evelyn a more appealing character. One is not inclined to admire a girl who so easily forgets the old love and so readily accepts the new. "Chub," a janitor, by Richard C. Travers, and Philip Warren, Evelyn's new fiance, by Bryant Washburne, are praiseworthy delineations—that of "Chub" especially so.

Elliott Swayne, a trusted bank cashier and the accepted suitor of Evelyn Deane, the banker's daughter, loses $30,000 of the bank's funds by gambling in stocks. Pressed by his brokers for the amount, he attempts to rob the bank with the assistance of three ticket-of-leave men. The latter are caught in the act by officers of the law, and one of them denounces Swayne as an accomplice. All four are sentenced to terms in the same penitentiary.

Evelyn Deane soon forgets her old lover and marries Philip Warren, an old friend of her father. Philip, several years afterwards, is appointed Warden of the penitentiary where Swayne and his accomplices are held. One day, Swayne surprises the guard and escapes, taking with him the young daughter of Evelyn, in revenge. "Chub," who has become a trusty and who is a great favorite with the child, pursues the fugitive and, after a thrilling race, succeeds in rescuing her. Swayne is captured and returned to his dungeon.

"Why Broncho Billy Left Bear County"

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

It has been some time since I have seen Broncho Billy in one of his western escapades, and, for that reason, perhaps, the scenes had a pronounced specific flavor all their own and a primitive dash and abandon of the Dick Turpin type that tended to numb, for the nonce, one's perception of the dignity of modern-day law and order. There are the old-time reckless brusts of speed on horseback, with the sheriff's posse in close pursuit of the fugitive—Broncho, in this case, being a wholly innocent man, who has voluntarily assumed the role of scapegoat to save, from the clutches of the law, the father of the girl who has appealed to his heart and his rough western chivalry.

Scene from "Why Broncho Billy Left Bear County" (Essanay).

Such elemental subjects as "Why Broncho Billy Left Bear County," will always have an appeal to some youthful minds and to grown-ups who never quite lose the desire for thrilling adventure and daring exploits. G. M. Anderson, in this Broncho Billy series, has made himself a hero in the eyes of numerous thousands all over the world; and in the coming years, when the moving picture will have outgrown this type of subject, he will be spoken of by his present youthful admirers (who will then have firesides of their own), as the man who thrilled and fired their minds by his pictured tales of the Old West. Miss Marguerite Clayton, the new leading lady of the Western company, shares honors with Mr. Anderson in this Broncho Billy film. She is a pleasing actress, possessed of youthful charm and grace.

Marion Rivers has a good-for-nothing father. Broncho Billy wins her regard by rendering much needed assistance at a trying moment. She presents him with a bible, after learning something of his reckless life. Shortly afterwards, she prevents him from holding up a stage coach, which is robbed farther up the road by her own father. Broncho then saves her father from arrest by centering the pursuit by the posse on himself, and restores the money taken from the strong box. The release date is September 27.

A NEW LEADING LADY.

Miss Gertrude Coghlan was called to duty as a leading lady of the Selig Polyscope Company, last week, in a piquant and diminutive drama highly charged with excitement, entitled "The Duchess and the Burglar." Plays of such striking individualism, call for all the salient expression of the protean gift in histrionics.

"The Missing Woman"

Margarete Hubler of the Irving Place Theater Plays a Double Part for Film Releases of America Picture.

H. C. Judson.

THE Missing Woman," a two part offering to be sold under the wing of Film Releases of America Company is a skillfully staged picture and has an interesting story. The situation is unusual and will attract attention. If not wholly probable, it is sensational to the point of "getting across on its punch." In other words, there is something of hypnotism in the effect of such a situation on the mind. In the normal state, the mind, although it never considers more than one thing at a time, is always traveling from one thing to another. In hypnosis, the mind's attention is concentrated so entirely upon one thing that there is no "margin of consciousness"; it refuses to travel away from the one thing or see anything else. And just because the attention is so locked fast, the mind becomes suggestable, is unable to judge of things or criticise them so accepts even impossible things as fact. Of course, the hypnosis in a work of art is never complete; but nearly every one who has seen many pictures has noticed that his mind becomes very uncritical at times if caught off its guard by some startling situation skillfully presented. It is so in a measure in this case.

We do not think "The Missing Woman" will seem probable to every spectator; but we do think that the average human being in the audience will be deeply interested in it while it is on the screen and may, perhaps, ponder on it for a time afterward, though not for long—it is not a great picture, for it is a long way from being true to life or even possible as a whole. It is or rather has enough truth to make a story. The title seems not descriptive enough; for no one in the picture ever misses any woman. On the other hand, there are two characters in it who are sisters, passing their lives in totally different spheres of society and each unknown to the friends and associates of the other. These sisters look exactly alike and the trouble comes when the outcast one whose life is spent on the streets is seen and mistaken for the respectable one, the wife of a rich manufacturer.

The picture was made in Europe, in some Danish town it seems, and its stage craft is of very high order. There is much beauty in it of background, setting, pose, drapery, lighting, etc., all of which the camera has caught and rendered in clear detail and artistic tone. The two characters in whom the interest centers, the two sisters are played by the same actress, Margarete Hubler, who is now connected witht the Irving Place Theater in New York City, and she has portrayed them both with imagination and, at moments, with power. They are markedly differentiated and have a good deal of separate individuality. The pictures would be noteworthy for this, if for nothing else.

NORTH RECOVERING.

Wilfred North, of the Vitagraph Company, who was seriously injured in a premature discharge of a cannon while making a picture at Sea Girt, N. J., and for whose eyesight fears were entertained, is reported to be progressing favorably. The doctors say the sight of one eye will be preserved and they have strong hopes of saving the other.

SCREEN CLUB NOMINEES.

The official nominees for officers of the Screen Club for the coming year are as follows: President, King Baggot; first vice-president, Joseph W. Farnham; second vice-president, Siegmund Lubin; third vice-president, C. O. Baumann; corresponding secretary, Hopp Hadley; recording secretary, Tefft Johnson; treasurer, J. H. Gerhardt; board of governors, for two years, C. J. Hite, Jules Bernstein, Leo Delaney and James Kirkwood. The election will be held October 6.

According to a recent sketch of Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske, whose screen portrayal of Tess in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" was so successful, the actress was born in New Orleans, December 19, 1865, and was educated in convents in Cincinnati and St. Louis. Her first appearance on the stage was in 1870. She married to Harrison Grey Fiske in 1889. Four years later she returned to the stage.

The motion picture exhibitors of New York City will drape their theaters out of respect for the late Mayor Gaynor and close for an hour during the funeral.

New England Picture Personalities

The subject of the accompanying photograph and sketch, Moxley Blumenberg, is manager of the well-known Casco theater, Portland, Me., and also enjoys the distinction of being president of the Maine State Branch of the Exhibitors' League. The Casco theater was the first house in Maine to run continuously, from 1 to 10:30 P. M. More than this, the Casco was the first theater in Portland to use only photoplays and illustrated songs. The Casco was acquired by Mr. Blumenberg in October, 1910, and is located in Kotzschmar Hall, for a number of years the most exclusive hall in the state.

Moxley Blumenberg.

When the present scribe visited the Casco theater recently, evidence was not wanting to show that Portland people appreciate the high-grade films shown at this house. The large auditorium was nearly filled to its capacity (in mid-afternoon) and the audience was extremely high-grade, with several parties arriving in automobiles. Eight reels of licensed service go to make up the show. Mr. Blumenberg shows his active, energetic nature by having a complete moving picture outfit, with which he often takes films of local events of interest.. Another good point about the Casco is the fact that the operating room is entirely outside the theater. Projection is of a calibre surely calculated to please the most particular. Mr. Blumenberg has the same operators with which he opened the Casco on its first day, and he uses Standard machines.

As a mark of appreciation of Mr. Blumenberg's ability as an exhibitor, his brother exhibitors chose him as president of the newly organized Maine State Branch of the Exhibitors' League By so doing, the boys showed excellent judgment, for no man better fitted for the responsible position could be found. The Branch is getting along very well indeed, thanks to the earnest efforts of President Blumenberg and his associates. It is a pleasure to meet and talk with an exhibitor of Mr. Blumenberg's calibre. HENRY.

WORLD SPECIAL FILMS CORPORATION.

Two pioneers in the film industry, Messrs. Phil Gleichman, of Detroit, and Emanuel Mandelbaum, of Cleveland, have just incorporated the World Special Films Corporation with headquarters in the World's Tower Bldg. on W. 40th St., New York. Their advent into the feature film game marks a new departure in this end of the business. They have contracted with the largest film manufacturers here and in Europe to handle their best special films as fast as they are released, and are now opening exchanges throughout the United States and Canada to supply the fast growing demand for these films. Their first releases will be an "Eclair" three reel film, "Father John," "A Rag-picker of Paris" and a Pasquali six reel, "The Two Sergeants." One of the big features of the concern will be in the matter of advertising display. Advertising Display Department, headed by a well known theatrical man who aims to introduce the methods of well known theatrical managers in the handling of these shows.

BARNES-KEARTON EXPEDITION.

James K. Hackett has received news from the Barnes-Kearton African expedition. Mr. Kearton, it will be remembered, lectured last spring in the Lyceum Theater. The occasion was notable by reason of the introduction of the speaker by Theodore Roosevelt, who assured the audience that Mr. Kearton was not a nature faker and that the pictures about to be shown were genuine. The purpose of the present journey into the Dark Continent is the securing of skins for the American Museum of Natural History, live beasts for the Bronx Zoo, and the taking of motion pictures of big game. Mr. Barnes writes from Nairobi under date of August 11. The first part of the journey has been highly successful, especially from a picture standpoint. The party at the time of writing was about to start on a 3,000-mile jaunt into the Congo region.

"The Rivals" (Kinemacolor)

THE Kinemacolor Company has produced the famous comedy of Richard Brinsley Sheridan which in the minds of old-time theatergoers will for years yet be linked with the name of Joseph Jefferson. The thousands who remember the father will take pleasure in seeing on the screen this portrayal by the son of the famous character Bob Acres. William Winter Jefferson plays the part in acknowledged imitation of his father. It is his first appearance before the camera. Mr. Jefferson was present in the company's little theater when the picture was shown. He admitted that at first he found difficulty in rehearsing to confine himself to the small space allotted to screen players and also in accustoming himself to the curtailed dialogue. In the finished production he will at times strikingly remind the observer of the older Bob Acres, in face as well as manner. He is given excellent support. Gaston Bell, leading man for the Kinemacolor, plays Captain Absolute; Gilbert Coleman is Sir Lucius O'Trigger; George Staley is Sir Anthony Absolute; Lorraine Frost is Lydia Languish; Florence Stanley is Mrs. Malaprop and Rae Ford is Lucy.

Entirely apart from sentimental considerations, the production will charm. It stands on its own feet. By reason of the excellent photography there are brought out on the screen the gorgeousness of the costumes and the beauties of landscape and quaint English architecture with which the picture abounds. Most of the exteriors were taken on the estate of E. M. Smathers at Larchmont, N. Y., where house and gardens are laid out in old English style. A striking scene is that of the coaching party. There are many other good scenes and situations, but the best of all is the near duel between Acres and his rival. The coat worn by the timid duelist is the one worn by his father in Australia sixty-eight years ago. The enormous pistols also are the identical weapons that served so many years on the stage. There will be a laugh when Acres discovers who his antagonist is to be, informs the latter that a quarrel with him is unthinkable, and promptly takes from him his weapon, walking off with the pieces of artillery, one under each arm. The acting is good throughout. Theodore Marston adapted and staged the production.

Scene from "The Rivals" (Kinemacolor).

A KALEM TRIUMPH ABROAD.

P. P. Harvey Haryss, General Manager The United Picture Company, Ltd., St. Helens, England, writes to the Kalem Company as follows:

"I gave a special invitation on Wednesday, August 20th, to all the locals who took part in the South African War to witness a performance of Kalem's great South African war picture, "The Battle for Freedom." The exhibition proved a great success and several of the men turned out in the uniforms that they wore during their service in South Africa, which proved a great attraction. The result: record business; and I am requested on behalf of our directors to write you and tender their very best wishes for the welfare and success of the Kalem Company for their enterprise in producing such a masterpiece, as we consider the staging and the photography, and in addition other fine acting, everything that could be desired."

RITA SACCHETTO

In a forthcoming release of the Great Northern Film Co., Rita Sacchetto, the famous actress, danseuse and mimic will appear in the leading role. The feature is entitled "During the Plague," and is filled with highly absorbing incidents. Madame Sacchetto is well known in both Europe and America, having appeared at the Metropolitan Opera House in a series of artistic dances. The press of Europe is unanimous in its praise of this talented artiste, the Berliner Tageblatt saying "Madame Sacchetto has a beautiful and supple figure, a bright face capable of every expression and temperament with all the exuberance of youth."

On the occasion of her appearance in New York the Staats Zeitung had this to say: "Several hundred people were sent away from the box office of the Metropolitan Opera House at yesterday's matinee. The house was entirely sold out in the morning. 'The Intellectual Awakening of Woman,' a dance poem composed and arranged by Rita Sacchetto, on the basis of Grieg's 'Peer Gynt' cyclus, was the attraction."

Rita Sacchetta.

In the forthcoming Great Northern production of "During the Plague," Madame Sacchetto will be given splendid opportunity to appear both as an actress and a danseuse.

MR. MUNDSTUK SIGNS MORE CONTRACTS.

David Mundstuk, of Chicago, representing the M. & F. Feature Film Corporation of that city, has been in town during the week. Mr. Mundstuk has closed a contract for the territory of Illinois and Wisconsin for the entire output of the Ramo Company. He has also contracted for the Helen Gardner pictures for the same territory, beginning with "The Wife of Cain" and "A Sister to Carmen." Mr. Mundstuk is stopping at the Imperial.

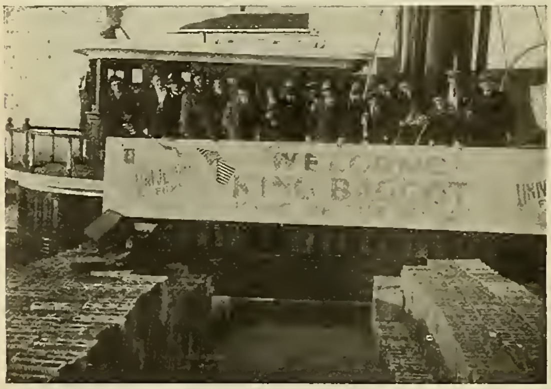
"From the Manger to the Cross," the Kalem production is booked at the Music Hall in Cincinnati for at least two weeks, beginning the week of Sept. 21st.

Exhibitors in Utah, Idaho, Colorado, Montana and Wyoming will now be able to book feature films of many of the best producers. The Notable Feature Film Company, Inc., with offices in Salt Lake City, has arranged for some of the best of the big pictures for this territory.

At the Sign of the Flaming Arcs.

By George Blaisdell.

THAT prince of good fellows King Baggot is back home. He arrived on Saturday from Europe. To meet him a tug was chartered by a few of his friends. It makes no difference how many were aboard. The word "few" goes. The little craft went below Quarantine to meet the president of the Screen Club, and it is safe to say that the greeting they extended will be a memory treasured by all who participated in it. But that's another story; the writer may be sorry that he wasn't in on it, but as a compensation he is able to say that he has just left Mr. Baggot after a three hours' heart-to-heart chat—that is, allowing in deduction such time as may have been spent in greetings extended to the returning moving picture actor by a multitude of friends who seemed to spring up from the sidewalk.



Tug Load of "Screeners" Going To Meet Baggot.

Mr. Baggot has been away from New York four months. In that time he has played the lead in several pictures, chief of which is "Ivanhoe." Another production in which he was starred was "Across the Atlantic," a three-reeler. A picture also made while away is "Absinthe," which the Imp leading man admits he likes himself, and which he thinks is better than "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." If the assembled picture should prove this surmise to be correct it will be worth seeing. There is one point in King Baggot which stands out. That is his reluctance to talk about his own work. He's strong on the other man's stuff, and will tell you how he likes it, but he has little to say about his own.

Mr. Baggot has no hesitation in saying that he likes New York as a place in which to live and to work. He is wrapped up in the Screen Club and in its prosperity. While in London he forwarded the movement for a screen club in that city, and was assured by men of prominence in the motion picture business that the duplication of the New York organization in the British metropolis was a "go." It would have been put over while Mr. Baggot was away had the Imp leading man not been suddenly called to Paris on business. Harold Shaw, chief producer of the London Film Company, has had the project in hand. There may be a delay in the consummation owing to the fact that Mr. Shaw is now lying in the home of his employer, Dr. Jupp, recuperating from an operation for appendicitis, word of which has just been cabled here. Mr. Shaw is reported to be doing finely, which will be a cause of gratification to his many friends on this side of the water.

Mr. Baggot has in contemplation some big things in the way of features for the Universal Company. It will take time to work them out, but he is the man with the patience and the ability to do just that sort of thing. As a trailer to his European trip Mr. Baggot left New York on Tuesday with Mrs. Baggot to visit his mother in St. Louis. He expects to return by the end of the week.

* * *

In one of the battle scenes in "Ivanhoe" it may be noticed that Mr. Baggot, playing the title role, suddenly becomes wobbly on his feet; he is as "groggy" as a prizefighter suffering from a near knockout blow. The writer inquired if the physical exercise in that particular scene had tired him out. "No," said Mr. Baggot, "not especially. But a husky super from the iron foundry had caught me a smash across the mouth with a nine-pound broadsword. I thought all my teeth must be gone and my face so badly mutilated as permanently to put me out of business. I had to keep going while the camera did, but it was some effort. I discovered later that the blow must have been with the exact flat of the weapon, which was a mighty lucky thing for me. It certainly was a jolt."

* * *

On the invitation of good friend Paul W. Panzer the writer last week visited the Pathe studio in Jersey City. It was a pleasure to meet Mr. Berst, who on this side of the water is Pathe Freres, and who kindly suggested that we find Louis J. Gasnier, general director, who would be glad to show us around; L. E. Franconi, managing editor of Pathe's Weekly, one-time newspaper man and who confesses that his present job is a real one and an interesting one, too; W. F. Hurst, auditor, who has been with the company for seven years; M. Ramirez Torres, sales manager; H. F. Finch, head bookkeeper; Mr. Thanier, manager of projecting; and George Fitzmaurice, head of the scenario department. It was a matter of regret to me that Mr. Hoagland, manager of publicity and private secretary to Mr. Berst, was not in town on that day. Thanks are due to Mr. Gasnier, who has been with Pathe Freres for fourteen years, and who was courtesy itself, for showing the writer all through the producing departments of this finely equipped building. On the top floor Frank Powell was staging a comedy under the great glass roof. If the scenes prove as amusing on the screen as they were in the making they will make good entertainment. Pathe Freres is adding to its Jersey City plant a large wing, which will nearly double its staging capacity. This will be finished soon. 'Twas a most pleasant visit. The writer left the studio with Mr. Panzer and later met up with Jack Standing. That also is another story.

* * *

Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, is in Los Angeles looking over his company's plant in that city.

* * *

Ice cream and restaurant men in Monticello, N. Y., are said to be protesting on account of the loss of patronage they have suffered by reason of the fine programs offered to townspeople by competing moving picture exhibitors. They have petitioned the president of the village to limit the number of reels that may be shown to six each night. This singular condition of affairs arose over L. F. Guimond, of Newark, N. J., building an expensive theater. The other house was owned by Geraghty & Son. When one showed six reels the other made it seven. When the number reached eleven, with steam heat thrown in, the Geraghtys advertised an all-night show. A dispatch in a New York newspaper says the house was packed until daylight. Do you wonder the townspeople are said to be divided into factions?

* * *

Henry King, formerly with a Lubin Western Company, has signed up with the Jack London Motion Picture Company.

* * *

With fine enthusiasm the Countess of Warwick announces her entrance in the motion picture field. "There is much that can be done to raise the picture palace to a splendid position as an educative influence, and I have great hope and high ideals," says the countess. As an earnest of her good intentions she announces that the first picture will be entitled "The Great Pearl Affair," at the same time admitting that it is a highly topical production and in "a highly sensational vein." This subject, of course, has reference to a recent jewel robbery. Of educative influence plainly; but in which direction—up or down?

* * *

The price for orchestra seats in Lew Field's Forty-fourth Street Theater has been reduced to $1.50. The matinee figure is $1. The reduction has been ascribed to overcrowding of the theater field by new structures. Is it not possible that the reaching out of the motion picture giant also had something to do with it?

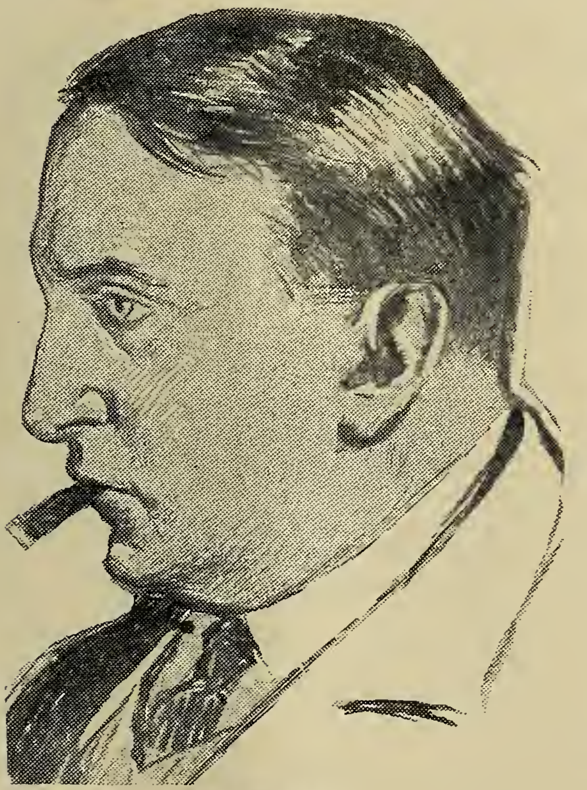
* * *

Miss Pearl White is another returned European traveler. She was abroad eight weeks, visiting in that time the studios, making a special study of acting methods. She is now at work again in the Crystal plant. Miss White is always original. She has the distinction of having been the first woman to visit the Screen Club. It was at noon time on one of the early days of the organization when a small gathering in the library was startled by the sight of her face mischievously peering through the portieres. To the united protests she demurred. "Just a moment," she said. "I only want to see what you boys have got here, and then I'll go. I live near here; this is just a neighborly call." With an exaggerated lightness of step she peeked into the various rooms and as soft-footedly departed.

CHICAGO LETTER

By JAS. S. McQUADE

DURING the week beginning Monday, September 8, The Colonel Wm. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) Historical Pictures Company was incorporated under the laws of Colorado. The officers are: F. J. Bonfils, president; Wm. F. Cody, vice-president; George K. Spoor, treasurer; H. H. Tammen, secretary and V. R. Day, assistant secretary. Messrs. Bonfils and Tammen are proprietors of the Denver Post and the Kansas City (Mo.) Post, and also owners of the Sells-Floto shows. George K. Spoor is known wherever moving pictures are shown, as the president of the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, and V. R. Day is his manager. Colonel Cody requires no introduction.



George K. Spoor.

In my Chicago Letter, issue of September 6, it was stated that Messrs. Bonfils and Tammen had purchased all the best animals and equipment of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show at Denver, August 26, with the object of filming the entire life of the famous scout and Indian fighter. Since then they concluded that it would be wiser to ally themselves with one of the well known film manufacturers of America, who had all the means ready at hand to enter upon the work immediately, and the result was the formation of the company already mentioned. Mr. Spoor, Mr. Day and Charles F. Stark, commercial manager of the Essanay Company, went on to Denver early during the week of September 8 and returned Sunday, September 14. The contract was closed Wednesday night, September 10, for the production of the Buffalo Bill films.

The last stand of the Cheyennes, the battles of Wounded Knee, the Little Big Horn, the Mission, and all other big engagements of the pioneer days of the West, in which William F. Cody took part, are to be featured in all parts of the World in moving picture films. Not only will Buffalo Bill be the stellar attraction in the great battles between the soldiers and Indians, but his whole life and service in the West will be shown from his boyhood days. He is to be pictured as the buffalo hunter, the Indian scout, the pacifier of the reds, the greatest factor in the settlement of the plains, the real pathfinder and trail blazer, one to whom the West owes a debt of everlasting gratitude. Nor will his home life be omitted from the pictured history, nor his picturesque circus career.

Buffalo Bill, Indians, cowboys, soldiers, and all the other characters are to fight over again the terrific battles of plain and canon on the exact spots where the original engagements took place. These are expected to be the most realistic pictures yet produced, with none of the true-to-life details lacking. The famous duel scene between Chief Yellow Hand and Colonel Cody will also be included. This duel took place the morning after the Custer massacre and Yellow Hand was slain. In extreme bitterness and rage over the butchery of Custer and his command, the day before, Colonel Cody scalped the dead Indian, a deed seldom practiced by the white man.

The first of the pictures of this big feature, for which no number of reels has been assigned, it being the purpose to combine the entire filmed history under one title and subject, are now being taken out in Cody, Wyoming. There the big Cody county fair is being held at the time of writing, and will last several days. Director Theodore Wharton, lately stationed at the Essanay studio, in Ithaca, N. Y., is on the spot, with Charles Kauffman, an Essanay expert camera man. Two other camera men from the Essanay forces will be engaged in the taking of the pictures. Wild West sports, the branding and bulldogging of steers and other interesting features of the Cody fair that will convey Western atmosphere will be pictured, with Colonel Cody as the principal figure.

Another prominent personage will appear in these opening pictures, no less than the Prince of Monaco, on whom the daily press has showered news paragraphs ever since his arrival in New York City. The visit of the Prince to Cody, has been given generous space by the Chicago press, and the scribes have given out that he is going there on a bearhunt, and that an old bear, which has never been frightened at the sight of a man for over ten years, has been reserved for the royal hand. There may be a bearhunt, and an elk hunt besides, during the Prince's stay in Wyoming; but he never would have included Cody on his itinerary had it not been for the quick-witted showmanship and business enterprise of H. H. Tammen. The latter, just as soon as the news was flashed that the Prince had landed in New York, wired his Highness an invitation to meet Colonel Cody, in the little town named after the latter, and view the stirring scenes of the Western county fair. It will not be Colonel Cody's fault if the heir to Monte Carlo will not be revealed in some interesting stunts in the opening reel.

It is the purpose to make these reels educational in character. The progress of the Indian will be shown from his most savage state, when bows and arrows were his only weapons, up to his present civilized state, with his schools and colleges, his modern homes and farms and his craft and skill in various forms of handiwork.

V. R. Day will leave Chicago for Pine Ridge, about September 25, to act as general superintendent and paymaster of the entire field force engaged in the production.

The accompanying pen sketch of George K. Spoor was made by Mr. Gregg, staff artist of the Denver Post.

Doings of Chicago Exhibitors.

A committee has been appointed to draft a resolution of condolence, to be sent to the family of Mayor Gaynor, of New York City, expressing the sincere regret felt for his death by Chicago members of the International Motion Picture Association.

It is the worthy due of the deceased mayor, jurist and thorough American that exhibitors throughout the entire country should pay a tribute to his memory. He established righteous precedents for the protection of the moving picture theater against grafters and would-be reformers. His speech at the recent national convention of exhibitors, in New York City, was an epitome of his views on moving picture entertainment and of his actions in its behalf.

The great enthusiasm that greeted him on his entrance to the convention hall and during his telling speech showed that he held a warm spot in the affection and devotion of the members of the national organization.

A meeting was held in the Globe Theater, this city, Thursday, September 11, for the further discussion of the adoption of the rule of three reels for five cents and five reels for ten cents. The association had already adopted the rule and announced that it would take effect on Monday, September 15. Exhibitors not members of the organization and others who are members called the meeting. They are of the "personal liberty" type of men; the generally accepted philosophic maxim, "the greatest good to the greatest number," has no place in their reasoning. Just as if anybody has "personal liberty" that is not hedged about by stringent and restrictive laws!

The kickers were headed by Ellis Glickman, owner of the Globe (a Yiddish stock theater), the Bijou (moving pictures), the Palace (vaudeville and pictures), and the Wabash (moving pictures). Paul Sittner, owner of the Sittner Theater, was Glickman's chief lieutenant. Members of the association were present almost en masse, and lively debates were kept up for a considerable time. A committee of ten was then appointed, five from each side, to meet at the executive headquarters of the association in Masonic Temple. Nothing was accomplished at this meeting and another was fixed for Friday, September 19.

Before the dissolution of the meeting in the Globe Theater, it was agreed by members of the association that the rule governing three reel and five reel programs should be postponed in effect until September 30.

The committee of five representing the association and another of five representing the union operators of Chicago met in Room 1422 Masonic Temple, Thursday, September 11. A definite understanding was not arrived at when the meeting closed, and it was decided to hold another meeting, Tuesday, September 16. It is expected that by mutual concessions a satisfactory arrangement will be made.

Moving Picture Wrinkle for Politicians.

It has been unwise for the Chicago Examiner to publish that recent cable from Paris, describing how designing French politicians are using moving pictures in their political campaigns; unwise, because it will give a tip to Chicago politicians that will strengthen their already "full house" hands.

Instead of haranguing the voters at election meetings, the French politician now invites them to a moving picture theater, where, to the strains of popular music, one or two picture comedies are shown. Then the candidate appears on the screen. He is seen addressing a meeting, shaking hands with the Prefect and entering his motor car. Another reel of film shows him helping an old woman to load her donkey with a bundle of wood, indignantly refusing a bribe, and paying a visit to an old man stretched on a bed of illness.

In the last and most effective picture of the series, the sympathetic candidate proves his heart is in the right place by discreetly slipping a bank note in the sick man's hand before bidding him au revoir.

Six Reels of Remarkable Arctic Pictures.

In the issue of June 7, it was given out in my Chicago letter that a party composed of James K. Cornwall, B. K. Miller, Emerson Hough, G. B. Fraser and C. A. Luperti, were about to set out on an Arctic trip from Athabasca Landing down the McKenzie River. Mr. Luperti is an expert camera man of the Essanay forces and he went along to take moving pictures of the trip.

Yesterday, September 16, I met B. K. Miller, who had just arrived in Chicago from Vancouver, B. C., at which point the party arrived September 1, the trip taking eleven weeks. Mr. Miller informed me that some remarkable sights and incidents were witnessed while traversing the Arctic region.

From McKenzie, the last Hudson Bay post on the McKenzie River, 50 miles from the Arctic Ocean, they proceeded up Rat River to the summit, thence down Little Bell to Big Bell, down that river to Porcupine River, following its course to the Yukon, up which they steamed to Dawson City and thence overland to Skaguay, taking a steamer from the latter to Vancouver.

On the Athabasca River 90 miles of the worst rapids ever traversed by man afforded wild and rugged scenery, Mr. Miller states. Mr. Luperti took 6,200 feet of pictures on the trip, Mr. Miller informs me, all of which show fine scenic views, with interesting studies of Indians and Eskimos.

Mr. Miller is a millionaire sportsman and big game hunter of Milwaukee, and looks none the worse for his trip, every mile of which he thoroughly enjoyed.

Emerson Hough, fiction writer, it is said, has secured material for several engrossing stories and moving picture scenarios.

Chicago Film Brevities.

George Kleine will sail from New York for Europe on the Imperator, Saturday, September 20. Mr. Kleine will remain on the Continent for several months, where he will superintend the production of several big feature film subjects that he has underway.

* * *

Mrs. C. A. Willat, of New York City, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Rock at their residence in Rogers Park, this city. Mrs. Willat is a sister of Mr. Rock. Mr. Willat is now in Europe on a business tour.

* * *

Frank L. Hough, Jr., manager of the Kleine Optical Co., is now visiting the parental home in Philadelphia. His father, Frank L. Hough, Sr., for many years the best known sporting editor in Philadelphia, and connected with various business enterprises in that city, is seriously ill, and it is feared that the end is near. Mr. Hough, Jr., was called to his bedside fearing the worst.

* * *

S. Nimerov, owner of the Garden Theater, 1221 W. Taylor Street, this city, was a caller at the World office, September 9. Mr. Nimerov stated that business was pretty fair. A mixed program, consisting of General Film, Mutual and Universal subjects, is used at the Garden. It seats 280 people. The admission is five cents.

* * *

A. N. Lewis, owner of the McKinley Park Theater, 2057 W. 35th Street, was a visitor at the World office last week. Business is fairly good at this house, which seats 300 people. Singers are used on the program, and Universal subjects are offered. The admission is five cents.

* * *

Oral F. Spahr, general manager of the Enterprise Optical Co., this city, paid a visit to the World staff last week. Mr. Spahr stated that Enterprise motor drives are being installed very rapidly in Chicago theaters.

ALBERT BLINKHORN TAKES ON NEW AGENCIES.

Albert Blinkhorn, who last winter opened in New York City an agency for English films, and who has just returned from a short trip to his old home in London, brings back a bagfull of new brands. What perhaps will most interest American film men is the fact that Mr. Blinkhorn will handle in this country the product of the Turner Film Company, featuring Miss Florence Turner, for so long the Vitagraph favorite and one of the first in the hearts of picture followers the world over. These productions, which are staged by Larrie Trimble, also an old-time Vitagraph director, are being released at the rate of two a month. The pictures so far made are in two reels, but the making of three-reelers will begin shortly. Miss Turner is in excellent health, Mr. Blinkhorn says, and is very comfortably situated with her mother in a quaint English home at Walton-on-Thames.

Mr. Blinkhorn also will be the agent in this country for the Hepworth films, of which there will be two features a month and regular single-reel releases as well. Two more agencies as to the details of which Mr. Blinkhorn was not prepared to talk are also coming soon. One matter connected with his visit abroad that was a source of gratification to Mr. Blinkhorn was the fact that owing to the success attending the management of the Vivaphone agency in this country Mr. Hepworth proposed a partnership with him under the name of Hepworth Manufacturing Company, of which Mr. Blinkhorn is to be president of the American division.

Mr. Blinkhorn met while away Harold Shaw, a well-known American player and director, now head producer of the London Film Company. Mr. Shaw has made a hit in his new home, socially as well as professionally, and his work is described as second to none. Larrie Trimble also has made firm friends. Mr. Blinkhorn says he noted abroad a strong liking for Americans as well as for things American, and in no branch of industry is this feeling so strong as in the film business.

ANOTHER FAMOUS PLAYERS EXCHANGE.

The Famous Players Feature Corporation has been organized with Henry L. Brack, President; Oliver J. Allenburgh, Secretary and Treasurer, and Grover C. Parsons, Vice-President and General Manager, with headquarters at 28 West Lexington Street, Baltimore, and have contracted for the entire annual output of the Famous Players Film Co. in Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia. This concern will control the "Famous Feature Program" now being issued by the Famous Players Film Co. in this territory. This important deal was consummated by Al. Lichtman, Sales Manager of the Famous Players Film Co.

Motion Picture Exhibitors' League

MINNESOTA CONVENTION.

Exhibitors' League of That State Defers Action on National League Split.

M. A. NEFF, president of the M. P. E. L. of America, spent two days in Minnesota and St. Paul, Wednesday and Thursday, September 3 and 4, attending the big State Fair and also a meeting of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League in St. Paul, presided over by Otto Rath, State president. The State executive committee had called this meeting for the purpose of discussing the action of the Minnesota State delegation at the recent national convention in New York City. President Neff was invited to attend by State President Otto Rath.

The action of the Minnesota delegates was discussed at length. President Neff stated the side of the controversy for the League and Charles Phillips, of Milwaukee, presented the side of the new organization of which he is president. After all had been heard it was decided to defer action for the present and it is likely that nothing further will be done until the next meeting of the Minnesota exhibitors in June, 1914.

After the meeting, State President Otto Rath and National President Neff had a long conference in the St. Paul Hotel, during which they outlined a policy for the securing of new members and for the furtherance of the interests of the league in Minnesota.

J. E. Willis, district manager of the Middle West for the Mutual Film Corporation, who happened to be in Minneapolis at the time, called on President Neff during his stay at St. Paul.

On the return trip home, President Neff stopped over at Milwaukee and was visited at his hotel by quite a number of exhibitors who sympathized with the course he has taken during the recent conflict. It has been arranged that a convention will soon be held in Milwaukee, at which President Neff will preside, for the reorganization of the State of Wisconsin and the election of officers to fill all vacancies.

Mr. Neff stopped over in Chicago, where he interviewed a number of supporters, and it is confidently expected that a large delegation of exhibitors will attend the coming State convention of the M. P. E. L. of America, at the Jefferson Hotel, Peoria, September 23 and 24.

President Neff left Chicago, Saturday evening, September 6, for Indianapolis, where he will confer with his supporters, and arrangements made for the coming convention of the Indiana State branch of the M. P. E. L. of America, which will be held at the Savarin Hotel, that city, September 30 and October 1.

MASSACHUSETTS EXHIBITORS MAKE MERRY.

September 9th saw the housewarming of the newly reorganized Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts at headquarters, on Lagrange Street, Boston. It was simply a case of get together and be friendly, and Massachusetts exhibitors proved to be very good mixers. From eight until midnight, a rapid volley of moving pictures and vaudeville held forth, interrupted only by frequent pilgrimages to the long table on which were to be found beverages of various kinds, to say nothing of salads, sandwichs and other "eats." Said pilgrimages became chronic towards the end. The vaudeville was donated by the local theaters, with Victor Norris, of Loew's Boston houses, Jacob Lourie, of the Beacon and Harry Wasserman, of the Eagle theater, supplying most of the talent, not forgetting the Olympic, Boston. The various film exchanges supplied the pictures, with General Film and Warner's Features showing the bulk of the photoplays. The R. D. Marson Moving Picture Company donated the projecting machine, with a union operator furnished by courtesy of the local. Frank Howard, beloved by all New England film men, addressed the one hundred odd exhibitors present, in his usual vein, much to everyone's delight.

Mr. Ernest Hortsman president of the League spoke in a very earnest and sincere way, giving three reasons why the present organization had formed, after dissolving the old branch of the Exhibitors' League of America, as follows: (a) The old state branch could not allow managers to join. This, the Massachusetts exhibitors do not like, as many managers have the best interests of the business at heart, and should be admitted. (b) Mr. Neff wants a State Board of Censorship, which we do not indorse. (c) It is hardly worth while to pay a per capita tax of $2 to the big league, which is of little local benefit. Mr. Hortsman also remarked that as the big organization was split, it is best to await final developments. Lack of sustained interest and failure to pay dues were characterized by the president as the reason for the failure of past leagues in Massachusetts. Mr. Exhibitor: Join in and pay up, we need your support!! Among the prominent film men present were noted: Frank Howard, Ernest Hortsman, J. A. Eslow (Universal), H. F. Campbell (Warner's), B. Bohannon (Power's), F. A. Clark, Motiograph; Business Agent, Franke (Operator's Union), H. Rixkin, (Eastern Feature Film Co.), J. Lourie (Beacon), Alden Washburn (Unique), Harry Wasserman (Eagle), J. J. Cahill (McCue and Cahill), "Walter" Johnson (Empire, Chelsea), and many others.

After the show, the "old guard" ambled to the Eagle's Roost—but why go on—suffice it to say that all "straw-lids" went. Joseph Mack, R. D. Marson and Mr. "Simplex" Cowan were also with us.

HENRY.

SECOND MEETING OF UTAH LEAGUE.

The second meeting of the Utah State Branch, M. P. E. L. was held in Salt Lake City August 29th, with very nearly every member present and several new members enrolled. Mr. A. J. Stalling, of Spanish Fork, tendered his resignation as secretary which was accepted and Mr. Geo. M. Blackburn, of Salt Lake City, was unanimously elected to succeed to the office. After a very interesting and successful business meeting, a nice luncheon and sociable chat was enjoyed at the Louvre Cafe. The next meeting will be held in Salt Lake City on call of the president.

THE CINEMA CLUB OF THE BRONX.

Picture Men of Bronx County Organize to Promote Better Business Conditions.

One of our best little picture exhibitors' organizations has been formed by the motion picture exhibitors of Bronx County, New York. The first meeting was held on September 9, at the Abbey theater, 861 Longwood Avenue. John J. Wittman was elected president, J. Birnbaum, treasurer, and E. H. Lippman, secretary. The purposes of the organization were to better the existing conditions and prevent unnecessary competition. It was decided that the organization should not affiliate with any other organization of a state or national character, but that it should attend strictly to promoting business for its members.

A committee on membership was appointed at the first meeting and at a meeting held at the Eldorado Theater, 1297 Wilkins Avenue, on Tuesday, Sept. 16, forty-one members were reported as follows:

E. H. Lippman, Ideal theater, 966 Westchester Avenue; Sidney Marks, Regent theater, 1045 Westchester Avenue; Gleich & Kronacher, Republic theater, 1004 Westchester Avenue; F. Goldfarb, Intervale theater, 966 Intervale Avenue; J. J. Wittman, Eldorado theater, 1297 Wilkins Avenue; John Mullaney, Victor theater, Dawson street and Intervale Avenue; Tubbach & Rosenthal, American theater, 913 East 169th Street; Lee Lazarus, Billiken No. 2, Tremont Street and Southern Boulevard; Ascher Amusement Company, 2950 3d Avenue; Gem Theater, 1159 Southern Boulevard; J. Birnbaum, Claremont Amusement Park, Webster and Clay Avenues; Louis Berg, Pastime theater, 715 Westchester Avenue; C. L. Weissman, Marrion theater, 464 Brook Avenue; Kantor & Steinman, Prospect Pleasure Palace, 1427 Prospect Avenue; Blumenstock & Mayer, Park theater, 819 East 180th Street; Charles Friedman, Belle Paree, 414 East 149 Street; Humbert Buldini, Gem theater, 414 Brook Avenue; Harry Feldman, The Dixie, 667 Prospect Avenue; Charles Fry, Superior theater, 172d Street and Southern Boulevard; Park Theater, Boston Road and Wilkins Avenue; Allen Bros., Boulevard theater, 1775 Southern Boulevard; Ben Marks, Gem theater, 668 East 149th Street; King Theater, 4048 3d Avenue; Harry Newman, Garden theater, 742 Tremont Avenue; S. Stranch, Comet theater, 1013 Boston Road; Mr. Rothchild, Rex theater, Prospect Avenue and 150th Street; Baurenfreund & Strauss, Lyric theater, 1351 Boston Road; Lesser & Greenberg, Jacobs theater, 438 Wendover Avenue; Cohn & Friedland, Imperial theater, 4222 3d Avenue; Louis S. Harris, The Movies, 706 Tremont Avenue; Suckow Brothers, Apollo theater, 747 East 180th Street; Olensick & Peyser, Tremont Casino, 710 Tremont Avenue; The Abbey, 861 Longwood Avenue; Mayer & Van Orsdale, Century theater, 1295 Prospect Avenue; N. Vinegard, Nickoland, 3220 3d Avenue; Victor and Steiner, Primrose theater, 371 Willis Avenue; Fred Whitehouse, Willis, 410 East 138th Street; D. Newman, Peerless, 314 East 138th Street; Joseph Finzer, Bronx Star, 3873 3d Avenue; J. L. Dugan, 903 Tremont Avenue; Diamond & McKibben, Billiken No. 1, 1052 Southern Boulevard.

Thirty members were present at the meeting on September 16, and a lively interest in the proceedings was manifested. President Wittmann called the meeting to order and proceeded to the consideration of business. At a previous meeting it was decided that ten cents should be the price of admission on Fridays, Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, to go into effect on October 4, but a number of the members had already tried that price and favorable reports were made on the proposition. As the picture theaters of the Bronx are the only houses in New York charging a five cent admission, it is quite likely that this action will result in a raise of the price in that district.

An interesting discussion arose on the subject of premiums, prizes and "country store" schemes. The general opinion expressed was that such schemes were unprofitable and not productive of good feeling among the patrons of the theaters adopting them. A resolution was adopted that all such schemes should be barred and October 4 was set as the date for housecleaning.

The resignation of Secretary Lippman necessitated the election of a successor and Louis S. Harris was chosen to fill the vacancy.

Messrs. Blumenstock, McKibben and Mullaney were named as members of a board of directors in conjunction with the officers of the club.

Slides were distributed to all members to enable them to announce the 10 cent admission on the screens of their respective theaters, after which the club adjourned.

INDIANA EXHIBITORS MEET.

A meeting of the Indiana Exhibitors' Association was held at Indianapolis on Wednesday, September 10. The delegates to the national convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League in New York made their report, giving their reasons for bolting that convention. After discussing the report the action of the delegates was indorsed unanimously and the following resolution was adopted:

"We, the Indiana Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association, in convention assembled, September 10, 1913, hereby resolve that we remain entirely neutral as to the matter of affiliation with a national association until such time as the present strife of two organizations is abolished, and our slogan shall be Indiana for Indiana, first, last and all the time. When we, in convention assembled, shall see fit to affiliate with a national organization it shall be done only by majority vote and for the betterment of the exhibitors."

The old officers were retained by a unanimous vote: President, J. M. Rhodes, Indianapolis; Vice-president, F. J. Rembusch, Shelbyville; Secretary and Treasurer, A. C. Zaring, Indianapolis.

State headquarters are at 420 Saks Building, Indianapolis. The next convention will be held at Evansville, on the first Tuesday in January, 1914.

NEW U. S. LITHO MANAGERS.

Announcements are being circulated by the U. S. Printing and Lithographing Company throughout the theatrical, motion picture and circus trade of the appointment of John C. Trauth as manager of these departments and E. J. Doolittle as assistant manager.

A Strong Union Feature

"In the Jaws of the Land Shark," a Good Story and a Beautiful Picture—In Three Parts.

FROM the Paris Eclair Company comes an unusually beautiful feature subject entitled "In the Jaws of the Land Shark," which will be released by Union Features on September 30. This picture is the story of a village feud in France and is presented in three parts. Briefly the story is that of a wealthy woman who buys an estate which is coveted by another. The disappointed party manages to stir up antagonism to the new owner among the villagers who harass her in many ways. Finally, as the woman is about to give up the fight, the schemes of the land shark are revealed and her troubles end.

Scene from "In the Jaws of the Land Shark."

There are many stirring incidents related in the picture that hold the interest of the observer, not to mention the excellent character portrayals of the principals. The cast includes Mlle. Josette Andriot as Mme. Remond, a physician; Mlle. Sylvaire, her godchild; Charles Krause as Paul Daubry, the farm manager; and M. Liabel, the notary. Mlle. Andriot is a very beautiful woman and possesses an intellectual bearing that suits her role of a physician. As the scheming land shark and notary, M. Liabel would be difficult to surpass. An excellent characterization is that of the peasant Francois, whose identity is not revealed, but in the portrayal of cupidity and hate it is seldom that a better bit of acting is seen on the screen.

Some remarkable scenes are shown in this production. In the exterior views the photography is exceptional and rare judgment in selection and toning have produced pictures that approach works of art. One of the thrilling scenes is the assault on the farm manager by the villagers, who carry him to a high cliff and throw him over. The climax is the denunciation of the notary by Francois, a remarkable depiction of varying human passions.

That buyers of this feature will be pleased there is little doubt; they must be critical indeed if not pleased with a production which possesses so many points of excellence and one that measures up to the standard of what a feature should be. Exhibitors will appreciate productions of this character and it is to be hoped that more of like character may be forthcoming.

TO ENLARGE HELEN GARDNER STUDIO.

Owing to the growing demand for the Helen Gardner pictures, it has been found necessary to enlarge the studio to twice its former size and to install an adequate heating plant. When the alterations have been completed it will have a length of 120 by a width of 50 feet, all under glass, and will be one of the most complete studios ever constructed. It is the intention to produce only feature pictures of from 6,000 to 8,000 feet in length of original and unusual subjects that will admit of great elaboration. Several productions of stupendous proportions are now being planned which, when offered to the public, will be a revelation to the picture world. The "Princess of Bagdad," which will be released on September 25th, is a picture of oriental magnificence, relates an extremely interesting story based on Persian traditions and is the most effective picture of the Far East yet produced.

"Let Us Have Peace"

IN the present state of affairs which affect the future well being of the motion picture exhibitors of the United States, the immortal words of that heroic figure in the history of this country, Ulysses S. Grant, are singularly applicable. A devastating war had been concluded, the integrity of a nation had been preserved, but the warring elements were still bitter and antagonistic, deferring the fullness of peace that had been dearly bought and to which the nation was entitled. It was then that the immortal words were spoken and we were reminded that a nation divided against itself must fall. To all exhibitors The Moving Picture World urges a thoughtful consideration of the well known and oft repeated axiom: "In Union there is Strength."

With these thoughts in mind The Moving Picture World desires to discuss with its readers who are interested in the subject, some of the problems which now confront the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America and to point out to them the reasons why the integrity of that organization should be restored and maintained.

When the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League was first organized The Moving Picture World did not accord the movement its approval until a careful study of its purposes had been made and the character of the men instrumental in forming it had been scrutinized. Much of this work of investigation was conducted by the late J. P. Chalmers, founder of The Moving Picture World, and the support which this journal has since given the League and its officers is based upon his decision made some two years ago. Since that time nothing has happened to cause The World to change its opinion either of the organization or its officers, consequently there is no reason why it should withdraw its support of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League or its regularly constituted officers.

But all men do not think alike and, as a result, there occurred at the annual convention held in New York last July, such differences of opinion as to cause a split in the organization. A number of delegates withdrew from the convention and attempted to form a rival organization. Those delegates represented in whole or in part the exhibitors' organizations of the states of Illinois, New York, Wisconsin, Indiana, Minnesota, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. In explanation it must be recorded here that the delegates who withdrew as representing Pennsylvania and New Jersey were but a minority of the representation from those states. Neither was the Indiana delegation unanimous.

Without enumerating the states whose delegates remained loyal to the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League it must be apparent to every exhibitor who has given the matter serious thought that the strength of the opposition is inconsiderable and cannot, by the very nature of its limitations, become a national factor in the trade.

If The Moving Picture World were actuated by mercenary motives only, it would still give its support to the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League as representing the greater number of exhibitors. But The World has gained its present position in the trade through its efforts to serve all exhibitors alike irrespective of creed, race or color, and its position is not affected by whatever differences may occur in trade organizations, therefore, its sole reason for supporting the organization known as the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League and the officers thereof is because it believes that the greatest good to the exhibitor, individually and collectively, will come out of that organization; also, because it does not believe the reasons advanced for the new organization are sufficient to justify its existence or that the field is large enough to maintain two separate organizations having identical purposes.

We cannot refer to the causes of the effort to form a new organization of exhibitors without giving those causes further consideration. At the time of the "bolt" it was difficult to learn just what the "bolters" based their action upon. In the heat of anger, aroused by defeat, many unfounded charges were made, principally against Mr. Neff, which the leaders of the movement would not care to put in writing today. The Moving Picture World is in receipt of two letters —one from Charles H. Phillips, who was named as president of the "International Motion Picture Association," and the other from Samuel H. Trigger, who led the bolting delegates at the New York convention—and it is fair to assume that the case of the "bolters" is stated fully by the writers. These gentlemen have requested that The Moving Picture World give space to their communications and it does so that exhibitors generally may get a proper measure of the alleged causes for the "bolt":

MILWAUKEE, AUGUST 28, 1913.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD,
17 Madison Ave., New York.

Gentlemen: Relative to the open letter in your issue of the 30th of this month, written by President Neff, of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, allow me as President of the International Motion Picture Association to comment on the same.

I would call the attention of every exhibitor to take particular note of the opening statement in Mr. Neff's letter wherein he gives notice that he wants it understood that he will not be drawn into any newspaper arguments or personal controversies. He then says that his policy in the future will be the same as it has been in the past: to organize bona fide picture exhibitors into a concrete league. Neither Mr. Neff nor Mr. Kerr, as I am informed, are motion picture exhibitors. Every member of the Wisconsin organization is a legitimate and bona fide picture exhibitor and ninety per cent. of the exhibitors are the owners of the real estate and the owners of everything connected with their theaters.

Mr. Neff says further in his letter at no time since the League was organized was one dollar placed at his disposal. When he attended the two conventions of the Wisconsin Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, the League twice gave him twenty-five dollars (and this was not for the purpose of paying for a charter nor for any supplies or per capita tax, but was without question handed to him, at his request, by Mr. Henry S. Klein, at that time treasurer of the League), in addition to which the League paid all his expenses including hotel bills, meals and railroad fare. Has Mr. Neff accounted for this fifty dollars?

I am told by legitimate exhibitors with investments, who are located at Chicago, New York and elsewhere, that when Mr. Neff visited their respective States he was given money and all his expenses were paid, and in at least one city the expenses of Ex-Congressman John J. Lenz were paid, which placed an additional burden upon the exhibitors, who have finally broken away from the one man rule and who have organized a powerful league representing seventy-four per cent. of the entire per capita tax of the old organization.

Mr. Neff further states that the books of the League of which he is President are open to any member of the League, but we know, too, that the auditing committee of the convention held at New York reported on the condition of the books, which report was most unsatisfactory. The committee gave out as its excuse that it had no vouchers in its possession on account of the absence of Mr. Christianson, who was formerly the secretary of the League. This appears to be a most flimsy and extraordinary excuse; and after Mr. Rosenthal, of New York, Secretary of the International Motion Picture Association, looked over the books he was unable to find anything in them to indicate for what purpose the money was drawn and used by Mr. Neff.

Mr. Neff's statement that he did not attend a caucus and did not ask a delegate to support him, and that he knew all that transpired in the lobbies and other places, surely indicates that he had someone who was lobbying for him and who was playing his own game. This is no credit to him. We know, however, that Mr. Neff was traveling about the country electioneering at the expense of the exhibitors from the adjournment of one convention until the convening of the next convention.

In closing his letter Mr. Neff calls the exhibitors' attention to the fact that he works day and night and all for the glory of the motion picture exhibitors and just to put them on a substantial financial basis. He forgets that he favors State censorship when the majority of exhibitors are satisfied that the National Board of Censorship is fully competent to pass upon the quality of films to be exhibited.

Is Mr. Neff sincere?

I and a number of other legitimate exhibitors have drawn our own conclusions.

I would call attention to the fact that Mr. Neff asks the Wisconsin exhibitors to watch for a Wisconsin convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America. The International Motion Picture Association is a strong organization in the State of Wisconsin and the exhibitors have almost to a man responded and endorsed its action. We do not fear Mr. Neff or his advance agents.

In the interests of fair play I would ask that you give this letter space in your next week's publication, for we believe it only right that we should be given an opportunity to answer the letter written by Mr. Neff to your worthy publication.

Respectfully yours,
CHARLES H. PHILLIPS,
President International Motion Picture Ass'n.

NEW YORK, AUGUST 27TH, 1913.

EDITOR MOVING PICTURE WORLD,
No. 17 Madison Avenue,
New York City.

Dear Sir: After the Convention in New York City, I notice in the trade journals a circular letter from Mr. Neff claiming that he is making a statement of facts, where he is simply making a general denial that he has misappropriated any of the funds. No man in the League has ever accused Mr. Neff or any other person of having misappropriated any of the per capita taxes for the simple reason that the whole amount of the taxes mentioned would not be sufficiently large enough to pay the salary of a good stenographer. This statement cannot have the effect he undoubtedly intended. The main bone of contention amongst the Exhibitors was not and never has been the amount of money spent by Mr. Neff or the officers of the Organization, it was simply that we were suffering a surfeit of "Neff" and that he had obstructed in many ways the advance of the Exhibitors, whether swayed by personal motives or not I cannot say, however, in his article at the Convention he made a statement to the effect that it was thoroughly his efforts alone that the Federal Government had brought suit against the Patents Co., and other statements equally as foolish in reference to the Two ($2) Dollar License Fee. Instead of endeavoring to cement the friendship of the manufacturers and exhibitors and do something of real value for the League, he has endeavored to create an ill-feeling against certain manufacturers.

Neither our business nor the respective National Organizations can be built on hot-air and paper. I would like you to ask Mr. Neff how many Exhibitors in the United States know the exact number of members in the League. How many know the exact amount of per capita tax paid into the League? How many know the contents of the Minutes of the Chicago Convention. I venture to say that not one per cent. of the Exhibitors of the United States have any idea of these things, and in his statement he simply says that the books are open for the exhibitors if they will go to Kansas City and examine them. He has blundered without forethought, but if sincere why not issue a financial statement and have same published in the trade journals. The Exhibitors' League of America has nothing to fear. Probably Neff, who has been exaggerating about what he has done would not care to have such a thing published.

He also makes a wail in his statement that a member of New York appealed from the Chair because the Resolution Committee desired to have the resolutions read before the election, which is and always has been the proper procedure in all Conventions. But Mr. Neff has made a very broad statement to the effect that he knew everything that was going on, therefore knowing that these resolutions were somewhat detrimental to his interests, that and that only was the cause of his application to gag rule and his refusing to allow the resolutions to be read.

Mr. Neff boasts about his having financed the National League. Why not give credit where credit is due, namely, as he told me, the State of Ohio had advanced money several times. With the work that he claims he is doing night and day, what has he done that has actually bettered the condition of the Exhibitors. His cry for "Censorship" has caused us thousands of dollars. He did suggest the feasibility of establishing some coöperative method of selling and displaying necessities to the Exhibitors' League, but nothing has ever come of this. Will Mr. Neff answer the following questions:—

1. Was a statement of accounts ever published or given to any State Organization? 2. Is he an Exhibitor? 3. How many States has he really organized (I don't mean States that were organized before the inception of the National League. New York State, for instance, had 600 members in 1909)? 4. How many States that are organized contain more than twenty members throughout the State?

In conclusion I would say that it is probably the best thing that ever happened that the International Exhibitors' Association has been created and that all Exhibitors will fall in line and join this Association, where we will have neither Dictatorship, Censorship, or Gag Rule.

Yours very truly.
SAM H. TRIGGER,
President.

It will be observed that the burden of the arguments advanced by both writers relates to Mr. Neff and not to the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League. While The Moving Picture World holds no brief for Mr. Neff, and has, at times, differed from him on matters concerning the motion picture business, some attention must be paid the charges, direct or inferred, that are made against him. We have gone to some trouble to investigate these charges. From replies made to our inquiries regarding the finances of the League we are assured by Mr. J. J. Rieder, treasurer of the League, that every dollar of League money has been accounted for and that the records are in his possession. He states that all vouchers, books, bills and cancelled checks were at the disposal of the auditing committee at the New York convention; that he personally invited one of the chief bolters to his room, in the Imperial Hotel, on the morning before the bolt occured, to look over the books and records, but that the person referred to refused the invitation, also that the same person refused to inspect the financial records at the convention hall when invited to do so.

It is on record that the regularly appointed auditing committee found the finances correct.

In reply to inquiries on this subject addressed to Mr. George H. Wiley, secretary of the League, says:

"Will state that National Treasurer, J. J. Rieder, of Jackson, Michigan, has in his possession all receipted bills, statements and vouchers covering every dollar that had been expended in the year ending July 1st, 1913. This included itemized monthly statements from the President's office of his expenditures. Mr. Rieder had with him in New York all the above statements, etc; they could have been seen by any one desiring to investigate and will emphatically state that before I accepted the books, papers, etc., of the National Secretary, the office to which I was elected, I gave a thorough investigation to the accounts of the Secretary and Treasurer and will positively state that the accounts of the National Secretary and Treasurer are absolutely correct with proper vouchers and receipted bills for all moneys expended."

Regarding the censorship question, Secretary Wiley states:

"In reference to the censor question, will state that the only time it was referred to previous to the bolting delegates leaving the convention was in the President's annual report suggesting that he would like to have a special session to discuss the censor question and when he explained the censor campaign which recently took place in the State of Ohio. No general discussion was before the convention in regard to the censor question before the dissension."

On the question of finances, which is the only vital point raised against Mr. Neff, the remark made by Mr. Trigger in his letter to wit: "No man in the League has ever accused Mr. Neff or any other person of having misappropriated any of the per-capita taxes." In this respect Mr. Trigger is better informed than Mr. Phillips.

The inference made by both writers that Mr. Neff is not a bona fide exhibitor is, of course, ridiculous. Every man who knows Mr. Neff knows that he was a successful exhibitor owning several houses before he became interested in the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League and that he was actively engaged in managing them. It is known that he sold his interests in those houses when the demands of the League prevented him attending to other business. It is known that he now complies with the requirements of the constitution of the League by owning an interest in a motion picture theater company.

The other charges are of as little consequence when considered in connection with the main question—the perpetuation of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League. The real quarrel is a personal one between Mr. Neff and the leaders of the opposition. To quote Mr. Trigger: "We are suffering a surfeit of Neff." As against this opposition stands the great majority of the members of the League who have expressed themselves as having confidence in Mr. Neff and his policy. In this connection we desire to quote an expression from Mr. F. J. Rembusch, of Indianapolis, Ind., as fairly representative of the general opinion of Mr. Neff:

"Mr. M. A. Neff has done more than anyone, anywhere, to instill the thought of organization and its possibilities in the minds of the Motion Picture Exhibitors in America.

"Mr. Neff is a great organizer. In this he has no equal and he is a big man in other things, but like all of us mortals, he has also his faults.

"Few exhibitors realize how much time, sacrifice and effort Mr. Neff has spent in his endeavor to bring about a great organization of exhibitors.

"Mr. Neff is a man of ideas and he does things. Many have differed with him, including myself, but I have known him well and believe he has been absolutely square, honest and sincere in his efforts for the good of the exhibitor. At the same time, he has at times lacked diplomacy in his zeal for something which he believed for the good of the exhibitor. He put forward his thought at the expense of the friendship of exhibitors who differd with him in that particular policy or thought."

With this we dismiss the case of Mr. Neff and urge the exhibitors to give their attention to the League.

We believe that it will appear plain to all thoughtful exhibitors that there are no real differences that cannot be threshed out on the floor of a convention. By "differences" we mean such as affect the policy of the organization and the method of conducting it. Personal likes and dislikes have no place in a deliberative body.

Sufficient time has passed since the attempt to form a new National organization was made to prove the project to be impractical, if not impossible. If the trade is to be benefitted by organization that organization must be harmonious and unified upon all its policies. The members of the trade must also act as a unit in supporting the organization. Any division of forces means a conflict of policies and confusion in results. To spend money and time and energy in furthering a project, the only result of which is confusion, would be worse than folly.

A careful consideration of conditions, of men and of measures, leads us to the only logical conclusion possible under the circumstances:

That the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America and its officers, duly and fairly elected, is the only organization deserving of the support of the trade; that The Moving Picture World, whose sole purpose is to commend that which it believes will serve the best interests of its patrons, can best serve the motion picture exhibitor by giving its undivided support to that organization.

The Moving Picture World will, therefore, continue as in the past to give its support to the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, and urges all members to bury whatever personal enmity they may hold against individuals, officers or members, and get together that the entire trade may be benefitted by a united effort for good.

CALIFORNIA LEAGUE SUSTAINS NEFF.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the California League at San Diego, September 13, and forwarded to President Neff:

Whereas at the third annual convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America there occurred what is commonly called a split, or bolt upon the part of certain dissatisfied exhibitors, and whereas we believe such action to be entirely unwarranted upon the part of the exhibitors participating therein and prompted by selfish personal motives rather than the good of the League, therefore be it resolved that California State Branch No. 12 of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America deplores the occurence and condemns the members responsible therefor, and be it further resolved that we hereby express our confidence in the honesty, integrity and ability of Mr. Neff and be it further resolved that all exhibitors in America be urged to become members of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America and that we pledge ourselves to exert every effort to secure new members.

W. A. CORY, Sec'y.,
Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Cal. of the M. P. E. L. of A.

"Twixt Heaven and Earth"

Sensational True Feature Release.

THIS thriller is based upon the outrageous scheme of a discarded and half-crazed lover to have a duel to the death in mid air with his successful rival. It is quite a compliment to the ingenuity of the playwright who devised the principal situation that he managed to weave an entirely logical and coherent story around incident and action of this Baron Munchausen variety. Perhaps he heard it from Ananias or Sapphira in one or another of their numerous reincarnations. At any rate, it is very well told and contains enough suspense to throttle an entire audience during the acute stages of its melodramatic fever.

Aside from excellent photography and fine acting, this feature has originality in the way the old triangle is played to recommend it. The lady in the case, the daughter .of a wealthy mill owner, is not pursued by the villain; she does not narrowly escape torture and death at the hands of the ruthless redskins; she is not dashed over the falls, nor tied to the railroad track, nor rescued from a conflagration that destroys the villain, nor imprisoned in a horrible cellar by the Black Hand. She does little more than warn her accepted lover against the villain and display both courage and patience in the final rescue, but her acting is most consistent and very effective.

Scene from "Twixt Heaven and Earth" (True Feature).

The villain is not of the depest dye—he is as dippy as the average scenario writer, if that is not putting it too strong. He has been active in the construction of a very tall chimney for the factory of father-in-law-that-might-have-been, and contrives to remove part of the interior ladder at a time he and the unsuspecting hero are to be hauled to the top by a block and tackle for a final inspection of the chimney. The first thing he does on arriving on top is to cut the puley block and rope loose so that both he and the hero are as much between heaven and earth as the young man who is about to marry a lovely girl on a small income and no prospects.

Some desperate and hair-raising struggles ensue, the kind that make one feel creepy in the lower extremities when the fighters fall near the edge of the lofty shaft, and the maniac finally gets the upper hand. He holds the hero in subjection, with a revolver, where he cannot call a passing aeroplane, and calmly announces his fiendish purpose. They are to remain there and starve to death unless one happens to survive, in which case the winner is to have the girl. It may be said, en passant, that the lady is not taken into this arrangement.

The hero happens to have a weapon of defense, a small bottle of chloroform, and contrives to use it when the maniac is overcome by a desire to sleep. He binds the villain and gets possession of the revolver, so that he can now starve in peace. Meanwhile the bright girl who has unwittingly caused all the trouble sets her wits to work in devising a scheme of rescue. A kite is flown so skilfully that the hero manages to catch it. He does not slide down on the string—that would be too much of a strain upon over-worked credulity— but he employs it to haul up rope and tackle and the strain is over. We breathe once more.

A NEW CAMERAPHONE THEATER.

The Cameraphone Theaters have opened the seventh Cameraphone. The new one is situated in Main street, Sharpsburg, Pittsburgh, Pa., and is a newly erected house, with greater seating capacity than any other Cameraphone. Weiland Feature Service has been temporarily installed. The new house opened Saturday, September 13.

"Daniel"

A Powerful Vitagraph Feature Written by Madison C. Peters.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

THIS is a very noble photodrama, one whose motive is deeply felt and is so highly dramatic as to be a great credit to the author. The scenes are magnificently presented, care and taste being exhibited in every detail of setting, and the acting is superb. The story is one of upward struggle, always deeply interesting to the audience when the difficulties to be overcome by the hero are clearly indicated, and I can safely say that almost any audience, mediocre or highly intelligent, will be held from start to finish by its presentation.

The deep-seated desire for immortality, which still exists in the human breast and is the subject of scientific discussion throughout the world and seems to have been quite as responsible for religion as has man's desire to uplift his fellowman, is very forcibly shown by Mr. Peters and the producers of "Daniel." In the play's period, about 600 B. C., the Babylonians were worshipping idols with the same undefined hope of future life which has prevailed to this day. The fact that these idols were of man's construction, as well as conception, probably excited some of the doubts that appear in varied forms of worship of modren times. The better classes, those of privilege and opportunity, were looking for enlightenment on the subject when Daniel was brought in with a lot of other prisoners taken at the conquest of Jerusalem.

Scene from "Daniel" (Vitagraph).

Young Daniel was not only a man of character but probably of noble descent and had on this account enjoyed the advantages of education and high associations. He could reason deeply and so judge of the effect from its cause that he became known as a prophet. His splendid personality as a youth is so well depicted in the Vitagraph productions that we do not wonder at the respect it commanded among the wavering minds of that dark age. One of the strongest points about the Vitagraph drama is the way this character is enforced by the actor's fine performance and the events which thrust him into prominence.

It has been one of my steady contentions that sympathetic interest must be strongly attached to one or another of the leading characters at the outset in order to hold the entire attention of the audience and carry out whatever undercurrents of thought the play may contain. The young Daniel of Courtenay Foote in the first reel is a masterly interpretation of the role. It powerfully enlists sympathy, is characterized by lofty dignity and so stimulates the imagination that interest in all that happens is assured. Splendid work is done by Charles Kent as the elder Daniel, the same character in old age, by Rogers Lytton as King Darius and by other members of the company, but it is Mr. Foote's interpretation that inaugurates the interest thereafter held straight through to the end. The play is bound to succeed in theaters all over the world and has, in addition, a decided educational value.

RALPH DELMORE JOINS THE SELIG FORCES.

Ralph Delmore, one of the best known figures on the American stage, a character actor of weight, who has played a thousand and one villain parts in melodrama in the past score years, has joined the Selig forces in Chicago and will begin work as a producer during the coming week.

Foreign Trade Notes

PARIS LETTER.

(Special Correspondence to the World.)

THE 15th of September is a joy day for exhibitors as it marks the close of the "dead" season. Showmen here find that it does not pay to keep open during the summer months. All Parisians who can, get away to the seashore or country and the visitors, of course, patronize the theaters on the main boulevards. Even one of the latter, however, closed down this year. During the fine weather, capacity business was the rule at the Ranelagh Café Cinema, an open air show in La Muette not far from the Bois de Boulogne.

* * *

The Johnson-Jeffries fight film is being featured as an exclusive at the American Biograph in the rue le Peletier. When first shown at the theater of the same name in the rue Taitbout, the film created the biggest sensation ever known in the film business of this city. Good fight films always go well here. A recent winner was the short reel "Carpentier-Bombardier Wells."

* * *

A. H. Kaffenburgh has just re-opened his American Theater, Boulevard Clichy, Montmartre. From last season's takings it was fairly obvious that the hall was worth enlarging. Mr. Kaffenburgh has not only enlarged but completely transformed the house and by adding a spacious gallery, seating accommodation has been increased by four hundred, the total capacity now being twelve hundred. The American Theater is now one of the finest picture theaters in the city. Mr. Kaffenburgh remains true to his country by always giving his patrons a good supply of American films; as a matter of fact, his program is the most varied of any shown here. They are crazy on Western subjects up in Montmartre.

* * *

Cameramen have been active down at Deauville the most fashionable place in France. One cinematographer was up in an aeroplane for fifteen minutes taking views of the aviation ground and beach. The reel should be interesting.

* * *

The press continues to give a large amount of free publicity to the cinematograph, scarcely a day passes without the publication of some article dealing with the pictures. The eulogizing of daring deeds of actors and photographers is being carried to great lengths. Accuracy is not a great consideration in such matters but it cannot be denied that French journals have helped very considerably to popularize the pictures amongst the better classes.

* * *

The cheapest and only all topical picture theater here is the "Pathé Journal" controlled by Messrs. Pathé Freres. Nothing but topical films are exhibited. In the entrance hall is posted up the latest sport, financial and general news. Admission is 25 centimes or five cents and the ticket readmits for 15 centimes (three cents).

* * *

Max Linder in the flesh is acting in a novelty sketch at the Alhambra Music Hall. The piece is called "The Tango's the Cause of It All" and Max is the author. On the opening night the spectators were completely fooled by the announcement that Max Linder had not yet arrived and the management were unable to get into communication with him as he had gone out that morning to test a new auto. The dupe was cleverly worked and created quite an uproar in the house, cries of "give us our money back, it's a fraud, he's in the hall, it's a lie," as well as whistling, came from all parts. The audience laughed heartily, however, when the moving pictures showed Max's troubles on the road. The Pathé photoplay comedian forsakes the auto for a horse and subsequently a balloon. In the last mentioned he is seen in the sky, over the Place de La Republique where the Alhambra is located. Max himself descending by the trailing rope to the stage brings the film part of the show to a close. Then follows a little farce with Max as the immaculate lover. There is a whirlwind finale with the energetic Max at his wildest. An amazing illusion at the finish sent the audience into a frenzy of delight, a remarkable contrast to the commencement of "The Tango's the Cause of It All."

* * *

Joseph Menchen who has won fame in the European moving picture world with the Miracle film is now busy making important productions at his large and beautiful place at Epinay sur Seine, just outside Paris. The huge studios stand in the grounds of what once served as an old Jesuit monastery and the buildings still remain admirably suited as they are for film photography. The interior of the monastery has been turned into dressing rooms, developing and printing chambers, offices, etc., while the stables are more frequently used for automobiles than steeds. Mr. Menchen tells me that the first part of his "Arsene Lupin" film has been successfully photographed. The firm is known as the Societé des Films Menchen and has as its artistic director, one of the best producers in France, Monsieur Michel Carré.

* * *

I have recently heard complaints that a certain American firm is losing its prestige somewhat by sending over here quantity instead of quality. "When they sent four films"—said my informant—"all were good, but now when eight or nine are shipped a week it not infrequently happens all are poor."

* * *

Charles Urban is flitting frequently across the Channel. He puts up at the Hotel Edouard VII so as to waste no time in getting to work at his magnificent theater across the road—rue Edouard VII, just off the main boulevards. The Theater Edouard VII will be the Paris home of Kinemacolor and incidentally something unique in French picture theaters. Located right in the heart of the city it should attract the smartest of cosmopolitan audiences. The opening will be about the fifteenth of September.

JOHN CHER.

BRITISH NOTES.

(Special Correspondence to the World.)

Under the auspices of a London daily newspaper, "The Daily Mirror" an Arctic expedition is now well on its way to polar regions to secure films of animal and vegetable life in that remote corner of the globe.

* * *

It is the opinion of many leading fashion experts, both in London and Paris, that shortly the moving picture will be the premier means of illustrating to the world forthcoming sartorial fashions. Taking time by the forelock the Kinemacolor Co. yesterday (Sept. 4th), took in the Kinemacolor process a number of the prettiest manequins arrayed in latest autumn fashions from the leading houses of the two capitals. Notable actresses, including Miss Lena Ashwell and Miss Clarice Mayne, posed in freak fashions, icicle gowns and smoking suits of gorgeous rainbow hues while a bevy of beautiful chorus girls from the Empire Theater paraded in the newest evening gowns. These, along with other portraits featuring feminine fashions, will be released here in a fortnight under the title "Kinemacolor Fashion Gazette," and will be released periodically afterwards. It is expected that this series will go exceptionally well in New York and Chicago, where the "latest creations" seem to exercise a greater fascination over women than here.

* * *

Several applications have been filed at the Patent Office during the past week for kinematographic apparatus and mechanism. Mr. J. E. Thornton has invented new systems of illumination and projection and also for the production of films, while the Unbreakable Film Co. seek protection for new machines used in the preparation of their unbreakable stock. A new principle of taking moving picture negatives has been brought out by Mr. F. W. Kent, of Clapham, London, involving the use of several shutters in the camera instead of one. It is claimed for this idea that the duration of the exposures per second is considerably reduced. Taking two revolving shutters working at different speeds—for the purpose of illustration let us place one at making 48 revolutions per second and the other 16—it will follow that the first shutter will cut down each exposure nearly two thirds. The result of this, according to calculations with both shutters working in conjunction, would be a sharper image with less animation for each exposure. The negative would then be developed and positives printed in the ordinary manner. Another useful invention is that of M. Proszynski, of Montague St., London, which could be applied to most makers of projectors. M. Proszynski's idea allows the construction of the lantern in closer proximity to the "gate" yet the former being mounted upon a pivot or hinges can be easily swung aside to allow the operator to attend, when necessary, to the "gate" or projecting mechanism.

* * *

That there is something "wholy" wrong with the orthography of many American film manufacturers is quite self-evident and the way some firms lacerate the English language persistently, is becoming almost beyond toleration. It is a decade since the moving picture ceased to be regarded merely as a scientific toy and it is years since it was regarded as a means of amusement for the uneducated masses and if these notions are to remain obsolete then the sooner the better a little careful attention is paid to such a small but important matter. Instances out of last week's releases alone show that the Vitagraph Co.'s fetish for "nu" instead of new is still prevalent. Also in the Imp Co.'s "Ivanhoe" produced recently in this company the phrase "Wholy Land" is used in one of the sub-titles instead of "Holy Land." I have before me a short article from a leading Northern daily newspaper strongly and sarcastically criticising such errors in films shown to children, but not bearing any malice against either of the above manufacturers, I refrain from reproducing any or part of the article. By the way, my attention has been drawn to two misappropriations in a film entitled "Mr. Horatio Sparkins" released here last week by a well known American house. The scenes are laid in London, yet we are distinctly shown, in one scene, a father handing out to his daughter paper currency—obviously greenbacks—to go shopping, despite the fact that paper money was not in use in England at the period.

* * *

The experience of Messrs. Barker's, the London producers indicate that it is sometimes dangerous to advertise for supers. Just recently they required a few men and women for a crowd scene, so accordingly advertised. Next morning a queue over a hundred yards in length besieged the Barker studios and the manager had the task of answering nearly 1500 applicants.

* * *

In extension of the suggested installation of moving picture saloons on certain of the cross-crountry expresses of the C. P. Ry., a British Railway is considering a scheme for the erection of a large moving picture theater at its London terminus for the free use of passengers. It is stated that films will be limited to 1000 feet in length and that only films bearing the "universal" stamp of the censor will be screened. The news from New York that underwriters would not grant concessions for American companies to give exhibitions aboard the transatlantic liners has precipitated in Liverpool a conference on the question which will be held shortly. In view of the fact that films of the Kaiser's visit to Hamburg were shown aboard the Imperator, it is believed that the White Star Line will make a start with the floating picture show. Mr. Sydney Cohen, one of the supporters of the American proposition is to attend the Liverpool conference.

* * *

The moving picture has had many romances but none more delightful than the following. A young wealthy Canadian on a visit to London was much struck with a lady playing on a film by a London house. He sought out the original, "proped" and was "copped." The young lady had only appeared in two pictures and in order that his wife (filmed version, of course), should not similarly strike anyone else, the young husband bought up the rights of the films at a very large figure.

* * *

Mr. W. Williamson, of the Williamson Co., returned the other day from his business trip in the Eastern States and thinks highly of the progress of the industry in America.

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

A NEW STAR.

Theodore Burgarth is one of the most interesting figures in the international film world of today. He is at present the chief director of the Continental Art Film Society of Berlin. For about a half a dozen years Mr. Burgarth was the leading man and director of the Irving Place Theater of New York City. During that time he made a close study of conditions in the amusement world and after some years reached the conclusion that moving pictures would be the greatest factor in the future. He had the courage of his convictions. Having familiarized himself with the American taste, he entered the service of the Continental Art Film Society of Berlin and at once rose into a position of prominence. Mr. Burgarth leans strongly to the legitimate feature work and it may be said that he has thoroughly mastered the artistic possibilities of the screen. His strong point is to work out simple plots, in a powerful and painstaking way, and with lots of attention to detail. Mr. Burgarth takes a profound interest in the technical aspects of his work and he has calculated to a nicety just what the camera can do. His masterpiece "The Doom of Darkness," is a four reel dramatic feature, in which he takes the leading part. Competent critics profess to see in this powerful dramatic feature a very fine sample of the coming feature play, as distinguished from adaptations taken from the speaking stage. It possesses the merit of originality and has been especially written for the screen. Mr. Burgarth is under contract with the Continental Art Film Society for a period of five years. The product of the Continental Art Film Society is marketed in America and Canada by the True Feature Co., which releases two features per week.

Theodore Burgarth.

UNIVERSAL REACHING OUT.

The latest movement of the Universal Film Company in the West, towards concentration and added efficiency is the securing of a long time lease upon a large block of ground at Hollywood, Cal. It measures one hundred and twelve thousand square feet without the private road contemplated and the alley ways. On this block of ground will be a series of stages, each one much larger than the average stage and fitted up with all the latest improvements. There will be added property rooms capable of holding large quantities of furniture and other necessary "props" which go towards effectiveness in the scenes. There will be additions to the mechanical and film departments, many more dressing rooms and new offices. The plans resemble those of a small town site.

ANOTHER POWERS COMPANY IN TROUBLE.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed in the United States Court at New York against the Monopol Film Company, producer of motion picture dramas, of 145 West Forty-fifth Street, by these creditors: Patrick A. Powers, $8,436; Stanner E. V. Taylor, $3,365, and Marion Leonard, $1,160, all for money loaned. It was alleged that the company was insolvent, made preferential payments of $1,000 and transferred merchandise and accounts of $1,000. Liabilities were said to be $20,000 and assets $5,000. The company was incorporated June 27, 1911, with capital stock of $5,000. Judge Holt appointed A. Gordon Murray receiver, bond $2,500. It was said that there had been dissensions among the officers.

The American Theater Curtain and Supply Company, through their Mr. G. H. Callaghan, report sales of Radium Gold Fiber Screens to Manager Cronin, Happy Hour Theater, Oneonta, N. Y., also to the Star and Alhambra Theaters, Waterbury, Conn.; also the installation of a Radium Gold Fiber Screen in the Star Theater, Binghamton, N. Y.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Come To the Top.

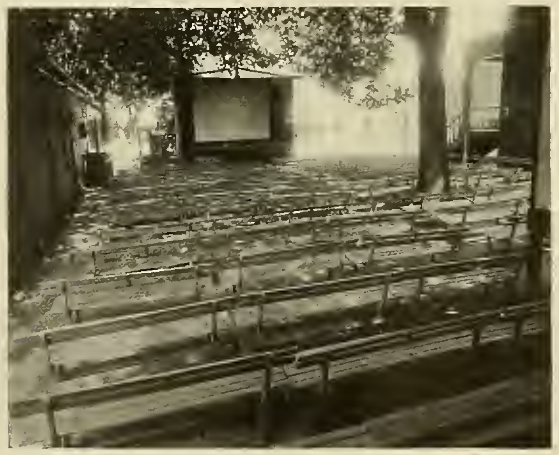
C. E. ELLISON, of the Royal Theater, High Point, N. C., sends a weekly program for comment. Mr. Ellison should run his title where the pawnbroker advertisement now holds the top of the page. The name of the house should be set in a clear, bold type at the top of the sheet, much the same as a newspaper heading is used. He runs the name in old English in a middle box that is not as prominent as the advertisement of a photographer on one side or the weekly paper on the other. The inside pages give the house a proper display, but the advertising on the back page, as well as the program there, lack display. The ads are run up and down the page as well as across and the result is a poor display. He is running a voting contest for a diamond ring and a gold bracelet and takes some of his own space to advertise this feature.

It would be better, since there is plenty of space inside, to feature the day more prominently, giving it a twenty-four point gothic in place of the old English. Give them the day as clearly as the title of the film. The titles, by the way, should be set in full face or some bold job type, instead of capitals now used.

Greater care should be used in describing the subjects. "A Japanese Courtship," for instance, is described as "A beautiful Oriental production," where it is a Fred Mace comedy with only one Japanese player. Song of the soup is "Garden Party in California," which is not calculated to give anyone an intense desire to see the film. The synopses in this paper place the full facts at the disposal of the manager and a little time spent in getting the facts will yield a large return. Mr. Ellison reads this paper, but he is not getting full value for his money unless he uses it as well.

An Airdome Wrinkle.

The Airdome season is almost over, but in a photograph that has been hiding out in someone else's desk most of the summer we find a brand new wrinkle. It is Starlight Park, Petersburg, Va., run by E. D. Macfee, Jr. This is not the usual boarded in enclosure, but is shut off from the main street only by a neat wire fence. The screen is on the street end, in a shadow box, with the ticket office alongside where the billboard shows in the cut. It started out with a turf but Mr. Macfee found it better to put down a white sand that packs well and this gives a better footing. With its natural roofing of old elm trees we think it one of the prettiest pictures yet turned in and regret that the photograph was mislaid. At any rate it is not too late for next season, so note the arrangement of the park and the fact that the passerby is attracted not only by the crowd but by the beam of light from the projection room; an advertising combination that beats posters by several points. Where a strong electric light in the street lights the enclosure it is generally easy to arrange to have a shield put up, and the open air effect is so vastly better than the high board enclosure that it seems odd that no one has thought of this scheme before.



Something New.

Every little while you have to hand a few flowers to the Cameraphone theaters Bulletin for doing something new. The latest is a list of books on photoplay subjects in the Carnegie Library with their "call numbers." Such a list does not advertise any of the current releases, and some program editors might think it a waste of space, but it is precisely through such means as this that a keen and intelligent interest in motion pictures is fostered, and the quarter page list will do the house—and other houses—more good in the long run than the straight house advertising in any one single bulletin. Some day we hope to see the Cameraphone publication syndicated beyond their own city, for they have real ideas. Another new department is a poem each week.

Too Close In.

George S. Beach, of the Royal Theater, Edmonton, Alberta, sends in a copy of the first house program which not only pays for itself, but for a five dollar prize drawn for each week to determine the winning numbered program. We do not know what the Canadian law is on lotteries, but it might pay them to read Hay and Nicholas' recent letter and then look it up, since they not only hold a drawing but require the winner to be in the house at the time of the drawing.

They issue a well printed program of a six-page folder in blue on blue paper, half the space being given to advertising cards. They get the advertising too close into the program, though in giving part of the actual program space to a local advertiser, some of the titles reading like this:

Our Willie
(Crystal)
Smokes Blank and Dash's "Good Smokes."
A laughing comedy.
His Life's Blood.
(Two-Reel Pathe)
Is rich and pure. He uses Blank and Dash's smokes.
A thrilling feature story of the life of a gang of counterfeiters. Telling in a dramatic manner of their life and capture.

We are glad that they left Imp's "His Mother's Love" without any tobacco comment. The scheme is clever in a way, but we do not think that they need the money badly enough to intrude the advertising on their side of the program. Otherwise the program is excellent, and this is all the more commendable in that it is their first.

Mr. Beach writes he never realized until he began to get up copy for this advertising matter just how invaluable The Moving Picture World is to the exhibitor, which is something that thousands of others have already found out, indeed a pretty general knowledge of the leading trade papers of various trades and professions discloses no other publication that gives such complete and practical assistance to its readers.

A False Alarm.

The Third Street Theater, Easton, Pa., sends a yellow card in which large letters state that

Public Safety
Demands
The manager of the Third Street Theater to place matresses in the aisles so the people won't hurt themselves falling off their seats from laughing at
"The Feudists."
A special two-part Vitagraph laugh-producing play.

At a little distance it looks like a public notice and is apt to trap many who will enjoy the sell, and perhaps some that will not. Such advertising is good if used only once in any form and the idea is capable of many variations, such as "Small Pox is catching, but not as catchy as, etc."

Why?

S. M. Farrar, of the Colonial Amusement Company, Eldorado, Ill., sends in a circular and a letter. The latter says:

> Here is a new one. How do you like it and what are the mistakes? Go over it carefully and point them out. I think I am improving. What do you think about it? How do you like that "IDEAL COOL OFF RETREAT" line?
>
> I used a little previous advertising to pay the way for this bill. I began painting the single word "WHY?" on the sidewalks four days in advance of the day I showed the film, and I went around every morning and changed the colors of the letters; the first day I painted them with White, the next day with Red, and the next with Blue, and, believe me, I had every one in town wondering "WHY?" The result was that when I put out the bills they were read, and business was good. That was the reason that I placed the word "WHY?" at the head of the bill. So that would be the first thing to catch the eye. Business is good. My new house is coming along nicely. Will open some time in November. This has been the best summer season I have ever had; business > has held up fine, and I think that the reason is that I am learning how to advertise. Be sure and let me know what you think of this bill.

This advertises the Eclair three-part feature of that title. We think that Mr. Farrar makes the mistake of trying to put too much on one piece of paper. He also uses too many frills. That "Ideal Cool Off Retreat, for example, is so badly tangled with some swastika border that it is almost lost. It's a good line, and not deserving an early death and burial. The "why" is used twice on the paper, once in sixty point and once in thirty-six point. The top "Why" should have been carried in 120 point extended or a wood letter. As is the case with the retreat line the second "why" is detracted from by two side boxes. Lots of time white space is more valuable than type matter, and it is a mistake to try and put everything on one small piece of paper. Half of the punch is spoiled because the space is crowded. One double line runs:

Child Labor, Railroad Monopolies, Race Track Gambling, Minimum Wages for Women, etc.

This would have shown to better advantage, and this is the keynote of the film, if the points had each been given a line like this:

Child Labor,
Railroad Monopolies,
Race Track Gambling,
Minimum Wages for Women,
And Other Important Questions.

Why????Why?????Why????Why?

In this arrangement each line stands out and the reader can pick out the line that most strongly appeals to him. Two point rule used as an underline further detracts from the effect. Two point underline is all right in some places, but only where there is plenty of space between lines; not where the lines set close together. It is the same way with the 18 point border. Heavy border is all right where you do not try to fence in too much, but where there is too much type, border merely adds to the general blackness and a light line would really be more conspicuous than one three times as large.

Pro and Con.

From Paris, Texas, comes a letter from J. H. Snively, of the Princess Theater, that raises a nice point of ethics. Mr. Snively writes:

> I am a steady reader of THE WORLD and digest your department weekly and find plenty of good suggestions that assist an exhibitor to conduct his business upon a dignified basis.
>
> At this time I am using about five thousand cards like the enclosed sample and I want to hear from you relative to the foot line. I will appreciate very much if you will state frankly what is the reason, if any, why it should not be used. My partner insists that it be struck out entirely, as he is of the opinion that it is a direct knock upon the other three houses here and that the said line has a tendency to drive patrons away instead of attracting them: Each word of the line is true and we have not misrepresented anything in stating the facts as they exist.
>
> There are five houses here and we have the best location, houses, equipment and have eight years experience against our competitors. I am enclosing two post cards of our theaters and as our population is 15,000 you can readily understand that we are way ahead of the ordinary run of theaters in the small towns. We use eighteen reels of thirty day licensed service. Please state through the columns of THE WORLD your frank and candid opinion.

So much for the letter. The paragraph in question reads:

> REMEMBER: The Princess and Lyric Theaters, of the shows beat ALL of the time and ALL of the shows beat the best part of the time.

There is nothing particularly offensive in the statement, but on the other hand we do not believe that any theater will profit by running down the offering of another house, directly or indirectly. It is human nature to feel sympathy for the weaker member, and when one house "knocks" another, it not only throws sympathy to the lesser house, but it suggests that the house running the paragraph fears the other.

Ignore the Other Man.

There is nothing ill natured or particularly offensive is this paragraph, which is a paraphrase of the well known Lincoln remark, but it is poor taste and bad business policy to mention the opposition. No better instance of this can be cited than the case of B. F. Keith and the Boston Music Hall some ten or fifteen years ago. Mr. Keith for years had the only real vaudeville house in Boston but suddenly found his monopoly invaded when a real estate operator turned the old home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra into a vaudeville theater. The band platform was converted into a stage and a false proscenium of asbestos cloth erected in direct defiance of the building laws that required a brick wall of a certain thickness between stage and auditorium. Mr. Keith, in defiance of the urgings of his then press agent, the late M. J. Keating, complained of the violation to the proper city officials. He told this writer that he felt that he had a perfect right to do this since he himself had spent thousands of dollars making his own palatial playhouse conform to the building regulations, and morally he was perfectly justified in his complaint. It turned out to be bad business, however, for the fact that Mr. Keith was the complainant became generally known and the sympathy went to the other management. More than that there was a general belief that since Mr. Keith was afraid of the newcomer it was probable that the performance offered would be equal to if not better than the Keith bill, and so the house took a running start instead of having to climb up on its competitor gradually. The music hall management declared that they could not have hoped for so good an advertisement, and events proved the correctness of their judgment.

The same thing holds good in greater or less degree of every house in every town. You cannot afford to notice your competitor. You cannot afford to admit that there is such a thing as competition. You must take the ground that your house cannot be in competition with any other because it is so infinitely superior. Do not say this. Leave it to be inferred. You will have all you can do to look after your own house without bothering about the other fellow, and more good prospects have been spoiled through worrying about the opposition than through any other cause.

There is no direct objection to the paragraph in question, but it is bad policy to use anything of this sort. There is an old theatrical saying that "every knock is a boost." It does not always hold good, but every mention of an opposition house is an advertisement for that house—and you are not in business to advertise another man's show, but your own. Incidentally we would like to use one of the two post card pictures sent, but we do not know which is which. They were not marked.

Mr. Bleich Still Lives.

We have not heard from G. A. Bleich, of the Empress, Owensboro, Ky., since he opened his house with a fine run of advertising, but he sends in two quarter page advertisements from the local papers to show that he is getting along. The copy for the two advertisements is precisely the same, but the display is so vastly different that one has more than double the strength of the other. It is merely a matter of the selection of the proper type faces, but one stands out and the other does not. One, for example manages to get

The Power of Conscience
Francis X. Bushman as the Star

with the title in 36 point and Mr. Bushman in 24 point. The other advertisement has the title in 48 point and Mr. Bushman's name in 12 point Roman. The former fairly springs out at you, the latter is a polite but ineffective letter. If Mr. Bleich will insist on equally good display from both papers he will get a great deal more for his money. One paper has a compositor, the other merely a typesetter. We hope that now that Mr. Bleich has come in again that the habit will be formed. He offers clean cut arguments and convincing descriptions.

Another Weekly Program.

The Crescent Theater, Bloomington, Ind., a part of the Switow Dream Circuit, puts out a twelve-page weekly program that sizes up very well. It is purely a program and not a house organ, but the house keeps all the space it needs itself and does not overdo the outside advertising. There is a half page for the program of each day, an announcement, a forecast of coming attractions and a half page of gossip. The front page is rather too white. A heavier type should be used for the name of the house and the title of the program. A front page cut of some Mutual player is used, a reader going on the second page. An underline below the name of the player should announce that there is a reading notice on the second page. This will often take the casual reader into the publication and get him in the habit of turning the pages. It would be better, perhaps, to have the house announcement on the second page with the biographical sketch further along. The type layout is not attractive. A larger type should be used for the titles of the releases even if the rest of the matter has to run unleaded. The date should also be a trifle more prominent. A lighter line to box in the page or, better still, no rule at all, with a three-point rule top and bottom of the program would play this up more prominently with no sacrifice of space. At present three-point is used around the entire page and only one-point for the cut-off. Without a rule border, the three-point cut-off would throw up the program without sacrificing the advertising. The descriptions of the subjects is clean cut and attractive and a little betterment of the type display will bring out an attractive publication, though we think that the space on the last page, given over to a newspaper joke, would be better used if given to the photoplay stars.

A Mary Scheme.

Jack Nash, of the Isis Theater, Trinidad, Colorado, recently had a "Mary" day to introduce the second Edison Mary series. Every Mary in town was invited to be the guest of the management and 167 Marys turned out. He has another scheme for giving a baby away to some person, but we are holding that back until he sends in his advertising as well as the minor details. The Isis News suspended publication when the printers raised the price on the management, but Mr. Nash hopes soon to become a publisher again. We think that he might have the work done out of town if the local man shows a disposition to be hoggish. We would like to see the News coming along again for it was one of the best edited of the house organs and really readable.

Regular Advertisers.

The Columbia Theater, Springfield, Ohio, which seems to be a part of the Gus Sun circuit, sends in a page advertisement from a local paper that was laid out by someone who knows. It tells a lot but it is not crowded in any part. About a quarter of the page is given over to a list of the stars to appear during the week with eight cuts, but the type is so laid that the film titles are not overshadowed. One line from the brief introduction is going to be copied. It runs:

> If you miss one day's program you will miss the opportunity of seeing some film of unusual interest.

Still Plugging.

George S. Beach sends in the second and third issues of the program issues by the Royal Theater, Edmonton. There is some reverence in Mr. Beach for in advertising Quo Vadis he refrains from suggesting that Nemo probably smoked a Dechene and McNeil's Good Smokes while Rome also burned, but cigars are scattered all over the rest of the program. Outside of that it is a good program and we rather fancy this line:

> If anything or anybody annoys you while in this theater, please inform the management. We do not like it any more than you do.

It gives a personality to a rather hackneyed line and sounds as though it was meant.

The PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT

Conducted by Epes Winthrop Sargent

Lubin Two Reels.

HEREWITH we present the third of a series of articles on multiple reel construction following similar articles by Mr. Lang, of the Kalem Company, and Mr. Plimpton, the Edison manager of negative production. This is contributed by Lawrence S. McCloskey, of the Lubin Company. While it applies with particular force to the needs of that company, the advice is equally applicable to multiple reels in general. As an example of good construction Mr. McCloskey cites George Terwilliger's "The District Attorney's Conscience," the Lubin release; not the one of similar title and by the same author previously released by Reliance. He sends also his own, "The Penalty of Crime," released by Lubin, June 30th, of this year, which sold prints considerably in excess of the average multiple reel story. He says:

> I'm sending you "The Penalty of Crime," which proved one of our best selling specials. My original title was "When Love Stepped In," but it was changed to suit the market. I wrote the story with the idea of utilizing a certain drawbridge, but when the bridge was found to be unavailable, we blew a tire off the automobile, causing it to plunge off a 60-foot precipice into a quarry pool.
>
> In this story I have attempted to carry suspense, heart interest and thrill, depending on the crooks' plot for suspense; for heart interest on Nell's awakening to love and her efforts to free herself from the crooks' influence, and on the spectacular scenes of the auto chase and plunge over the cliff for the thrill.

Writing Multiple Reel Stories.

By Lawrence S. McCloskey.

The following applies only to immediate requirements of the Lubin Company in regard to multiple reel photoplays. We do not wish to make any hard and fast rules governing the kind of stories demanded, because we are, first of all, in search of the unusual. Therefore, if any writer has worked or is working out a story along lines diverging from those here defined, providing he feels that his work has character enough to warrant our setting aside precedent, he is urged to submit the story.

We want forceful stories—not necessarily full of violent action, yet with plenty of wholesome bang to them. Delicate sentiment, subtle wit may be appreciated, but compelling motive and virile action are absolutely necessary to hold the interest of an average audience for half or three-quarters of an hour.

To warrant production in more than one reel, a story should not only contain a big, gripping situation, but the scenes leading up to it should be interesting enough to lead the minds of its spectators to a point where the punch—the real point of the story—will strike with most force; produce the thrill which is sought by the spectator.

The most gripping situation, the most spectacular stunt, will fail to thrill an audience that has been sitting through a long succession of dull, merely explanatory scenes. Something interesting must be doing all the time, and the incidents must lead logically, artfully, up to the climax.

We do not insist upon a punch in each reel. If two or three reels are required to reach a situation worth going that distance to reach, it would not be good to go afield for "punches" (which would really not be punches at all) to insert at measured distances.

The best example of construction I've seen is "The District Attorney's Conscience." All the characters were introduced in the first few scenes and each stepped right into a situation that created instant conjecture. Throughout the two reels there was not an uninteresting or unnecessary scene. The story became more complicated, but not confusing, and gripped to the end. Yet, in this picture, there was nothing spectacular—no "big effects" or crashing climax.

Stories of modern American life are most in demand, not merely for the reason that no special costumes, props or environment are necessary to their production, but because they are really most interesting to the public at large.

Humanity is more interested in life and problems of today than in the things that happened in the long ago.

While modern life may afford few new themes, modern ideas and beliefs should suggest novel ways of treating the old ones.

The writer who accepts as a fact that "there's nothing new under the sun" handicaps himself. In as much as it may serve to make him cautious, that old saying is good, but an author with the right kind of stuff in him should consider it a challenge. Even though he never succeeds in entirely disproving the statement, his earnest endeavor to do so is sure to result in some good work. Every little while someone grasps an old and thoroughly respected situation, turns it over on its other side and lets the old sun hit it from a new angle, with very pleasing effect. This can go on as long as civilization advances and people's views regarding life's problems keep changing.

It is best to use one set of characters and to avoid long lapse of time.

We prefer that scenes be numbered consecutively throughout. The author can signify by marginal note about where he intends the story to be divided.

We like a synopsis that tells the entire story, avoiding, of course, trivial details. It is not enough to put a character into a certain situation and say "after a series of remarkable adventures, John succeeds in vindicating himself." The adventures should be described in a general way. We place no limit upon the number of words in synopsis, but believe most two-reel stories can be confined to five hundred words.

Our city studio is surrounded by all accessories available in any large city.

Our estate at Betzwood, Pa. (the name of which, by the way, has been changed to Lubin, Pa.), embraces forest, river, creeks, wharves, hills, valleys, railroad, bridges, farm buildings, manor house, quarries, cliffs, and is well stocked with horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, etc. Most any kind of out-door photoplay can be staged on the place.

In its physical aspects the McCloskey script follows the usual form. Scenes and synopsis are single spaced with a double space between scenes, between scenes and leaders and between parts of scenes and inserts. There as an indentation of ten spaces on the left hand side of the script that the scene numbers may stand out prominently, and an underline is drawn from the scene number through to the end of the description of the scene. Inserts and leaders are flush with the body of the text, instead of being brought out into the margin. The synopsis, the scene plot, the cast of characters and the plot of action each start a separate sheet. Here is the script:

The Penalty of Crime.

Melodrama (two reels), by Lawrence S. McCloskey.

Synopsis: Two confidence men, Ed Watson and "Billy the Rat," operating in New York are "breaking in" to their methods Nell Forrest, a young woman who has had the misfortune of being brought up in an evil atmosphere. The crooks spot Maurice Fielding, son of a prominent jeweler, having stores in New York and Chicago, as a prospective victim. Nell proceeds to make his acquaintance with the idea of finding a way for her trainers to make a "haul." But Maurice proves to be a different kind of man than any she has known. He falls in love with her, really and honorably in love. His frank manliness opens to Nell a view of life which has heretofore been denied her. She too falls really and honorably in love. With this love comes a hatred for Watson, "Billy the Rat" and all that they stand for. Maurice proposes marriage to her, but she refuses him because she knows she has no right to wed an honest man, not at least without his knowing all about her past, and she is afraid to tell him of it—just yet. She wants to break away from her evil companions, make her own way honestly for a while until she is sure that she can be worthy of a good man's love. And then perhaps she can tell Maurice everything and he will understand and keep on loving her just the same. But Watson is not to be easily shaken off. He learns that Maurice is going to Chicago and that his trunk will contain some valuable jewelry. He and Billy hatch a plot to rob the trunk. They send for Nell, who under the circumstances is forced to come at their call. They tell her she is necessary to the success of the proposed robbery. Nell refuses to help them and threatens to warn Maurice until they point out that they can very easily "put Maurice wise" to Nell's past. Nell realizes the truth of this. She would do anything rather than have Maurice know just yet. Watson argues that Maurice is rich and that the loss of a little jewelry won't hurt him. He also promises to give Nell her freedom after just this one more job. Under the circumstances she is forced to be a party to the scheme. She is to buy a ticket for Valley Springs, a summer resort on the road to Chicago, and to travel on the same train with Maurice. A trunk is secured and lock arranged so that it can be opened from inside or out. "Billy the Rat" gets into the trunk and it is checked to Valley Springs, to which place Watson has gone the day before. Maurice is delighted that Nell will make part of the journey with him and the two go into the pullman car. The two trunks are put into the same baggage car. While the train is going a mile a minute Billy climbs out of Nell's trunk. The baggage man sees him in time to dodge behind a trunk. A fierce battle with revolvers ensues until Billy wounds the baggage man. It only takes a minute to transfer the jewelry from Maurice's trunk to Nell's and when the train reaches Valley Springs, Billy, who has changed clothes with the baggage man, stands at the door of the baggage coach and throws Nell's trunk off on to the platform, where Nell hands the station baggage master her check and requests him to lift her trunk on an automobile standing nearby. (Watson, who has come to Valley Springs the previous day, is in the hired auto). Her trunk is put on the auto, into which Nell also climbs, and is waving good bye to Maurice when the wounded baggage man recovers and springs on Billy. Billy had intended to go to the next station and having meanwhile donned his own clothes again, quietly leaves the train. The whole plan if carried out would have left no clue for the authorities. But the recovery of the baggage man at this inopportune time spoils everything. Billy jumps out of the car, catches Watson's auto as it is turning a corner and jumps into it. A thrilling race ensues between the crook's auto and one filled with pursuers. The road leads to a drawbridge over a river and as the autos near the bridge, the bridge tender receives word by phone to keep the bridge open and hold up the crook's car. The bridge swings open, Watson sees the opening too late to stop his car. The auto with Nell, Watson, Billy and the trunk plunge off the road into the river. Watson, wedged between the wheel and the seat, goes to the bottom with the car, but Billy sorely wounded and Nell are thrown out and land in the water. Maurice, who is in the pursuing auto which has stopped just in time to avoid plunging into the river, sees Nell struggling in the water. Although he now knows her for what she is, an impulse which he cannot resist compels him to dive to her rescue. A motorboat arrives on the scene and picks up Nell, Maurice and the dying Billy. Before he dies, "the rat" exonerates Nell, tells how she was forced into the attempted robbery, tells how she confessed her love for Maurice, etc., and fought against the scheme. Maurice is a man and he does the right thing.

CAST.

Nell Forrest	Lead
Ed Watson	Heavy
"Billy the Rat" (small man)	Heavy
Maurice Fielding	Lead
Maurice's father
Maid
Baggage Man

Bridge Tender ....
Station Attaches ....
Jewelry Clerks ....
Expressman ....
Telegraph Operator ....
Several Constables ....
Hospital Attendants ....
Train Crew ....
Waiters ....
Taxi Drivers ....
Pullman Porter ....
Pullman Conductors ....
Footman ....
Two Children ....
Two Men in Motorboat ....
Patrons of Restaurant, Etc. ....

SCENE PLOT.

Interiors:

Fashionable cafe—1
Jewelry store—elaborate setting—3
Private office of jewelry store—4-8-22-27
Room occupied by Watson and Billy (moderately well furnished—telephone)—5-10-17-21-25-28
Nell's room in Hotel Van Alsten (elaborate set—telephone) 7-9-11-18-20-24
Fashionable restaurant (or use same set as 1)—13-14-23
Baggage-room counter (N. Y.)—29
Pullman car—30-32-35-38-42-48
Baggage car—31-33-37-39-41-43-45-50-52
Telegraph office—57
Bridge tender's little office—63
Private room in hospital—73

Exteriors:

Jewelry store (Fielding & Son)—2
Hotel Van Alsten (imposing front)—6
Fashionable restaurant (night)—12
Country road—15
Spot in woods (road in background)—16
Garden or porch (vision scene)—19
Valley Springs, railroad station—26-46-51-53-54
Railroad track—suburb of city—34
Different scenes, railroad in open country—36-40-44
Railroad, with Valley Springs station in distance—49
Village street—55
Different scenes along road—58-59-60-61-62-65
Opening apparatus of drawbridge—64
View of opening bridge taken from river—67
View of road taken from bridge—66
At end of road—open bridge—68-70
In the water (large figures)—69-71
Slip or any kind of boat landing—72

"THE PENALTY OF CRIME."

(Two Reel Photoplay.)

By Lawrence S. McCloskey.

Leader—In New York—The Crooks spot Maurice Fielding, son of a rich jeweler for their victim.

1—Interior Fashionable Cafe—well filled with patrons.
Nell, Watson and "Billy the Rat" at table down left. Maurice and several male friends at table down right. Maurice spending money freely. Watson tells Nell, "There's a live one, go get him." Maurice insists on paying the bill, gives waiter big tip. He and friends exit. Watson settles bill and he and Nell and "The Rat" follow Maurice out of cafe.

Leader—The Game Begins.

2—Exterior—Jewelry Store of David Fielding & Son.
Taxi on and stops at curb. Nell alights and exits into jewelry store.

(To be continued.)

We Want the Ladies.

Because you are a woman it does not follow that you are not eligible for membership in the Inquest Club. All last season Mrs. Harry Hoyt was a member and enjoyed the meetings, and this year we hope to see more of the women writers present. Three have already signified their intention of being at the first meeting and we hope to see others there.

The first inquest will be held on Monday evening, September 29th. Be at the Savoy Theater as soon after half past seven as you can. At half past nine meet in the outer lobby and we will repair to our Morgue in Keene's Chop House. After that the jury will sit every Second and Fourth Monday. There are no fees, no dues and no formal applications for membership.

Inquiries.

NOTE—No questions can be replied to by mail. Look for your answers here. A list of addresses to which photoplays may be sent will be mailed on receipt of a STAMPED AND ADDRESSED ENVELOPE.

S. L.—You are giving a rather large order in asking for the rosters of two entire companies. Sorry, but we cannot spare the space.

J. B. D.—We know of no company at present in the market for trained dog stories. Most companies can get a fancy dancer, but you'll do better to write a story that will be generally useful instead of trusting to dogs and dancers.

L. H. T.—It is unlikely that you can gain admittance to any studio, and not probable that you would learn much from a brief visit. Generally the director or the man who does the cutting spoils the story. If a story made in 1400 feet must be crowded into 1000 feet, something has got to give and generally it's the plot.

J. C.—The desired address will be sent if you send a stamped and self-addressed envelope. We cannot supply addresses here. Your last question we cannot exactly reply to. Ever since Mark Twain said there were only six original jokes (or was it sixteen), that idea has been used in various ways. We are inclined to think that there are less than thirteen absolutely basic plots, but think of the millions of words you can form from the twenty six letters of the alphabet.

F. J. B.—Glad you like the Technique. See page 45 for the reply to your question. "Same as" means the same scene and not one like it. "Location as in No. 1" would mean the same scene and not one similar to it, as you suggest. The idea of the reference is to show the director that the two scenes are made in the same place.

RUBENA.—We have seen the advertisement to which you refer. It is probable that you will find that it is a school and that you will be asked to pay as much as you can afford for a course of instruction in acting that will not teach you to act. Take it from the Answers Man that it is a fraud. It is not necessary to advertise for players. It is more necessary to hire large, strong men to keep the crowds of applicants away. What if you didn't get a prize this year? There are other years. Keep on working. That's how success is to be won; not by giving up at the first sign of a setback. As to writing synopses, forget that you are writing a synopsis and just tell the story. If you really have a story to tell, it will tell itself.

FANNY.—The players you name do not seem to be working in pictures at the moment.

J. W.—As you suggest O. Henry is dead. When it is stated that a company has released a story by O. Henry it does not mean that he wrote the photoplay, but that someone has taken one of his stories as the theme for a play by arrangement with his publishers.

L. E. B.—Most writers single space their scripts. Some single space the action and cast and double space the synopsis. It is more or less a matter of personal preference with usage in favor of single spacing.

A. L. C.—Roy Clarke was the boy in "Love Before Ten." It is our impression that your first letter was replied to. You may have overlooked it.

F. A. J.—Both addresses are correct. One is the name of the building and the other its street address. A photograph is an insert and not a bust, so it is written into the scene and not made a special scene. The action before and after the introduction of the picture of other object constitutes a single scene and has but one scene number.

W. F. C.—There is no explanation offered by the company as to the ending of the film. The Answers Man did not see the release. Why not write their editor if you are particularly interested?

LOMA.—If you will state the names of the characters we will be glad to give identifications, but your questions are stated too vaguely.

RUBENA.—Have not that Biograph name. A newcomer.

BEGINNER.—A melodrama is marked by action more violent than polite drama. In writing in a vision you merely write "vision in" whatever you wish. In the case you cite, where a single figure only is desired, it would be better to make it a dissolve and say "dissolve in" whoever you want. It is a more simple camera proposition in this form. Visions should be used with care.

E. H. B.—Study Technique of the Photoplay and the pictures on the screen. Write constantly for practice with no expectation of making immediate sales and learn the difference between a real story and a mere succession of incident.

A. G. D. R.—Don't write a play located in four different countries, unless you can hold the action to inside scenes. A dream should be continuous, one scene fading into the next. The scene stops each time the camera is stopped and taken somewhere else or the action is resumed in the same setting or location, but after an interval of time. Sub-titles will break the continuity of a dream but must be writen in if they are essential. Thirty-three or forty-one scenes are not too many for one reel if they are not too long. It is the length of time the actin takes to play that is used as a standard of measurement, not the number of scenes or the number of words. The Majestic company now has its studio and script department in Los Angeles. It is a part of the Mutual Corporation and a responsible concern.

A. R. H.—Mr. Taylor was the northern spy in "Grandad." Miss Mildred Harris was the girl; Cyril Gottleib was the boy in "The Drummer of the Eighth."

C. A. C.—Vitagraph and Lubin still issue instruction sheets, we believe. Send a stamped and self-addressed envelope to those companies when you make your request.

Technique of the Photoplay

(Second Edition)

By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

☞ Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue - New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Hallberg Replies.

IN replying to Mr. W. E. Meyers, Los Angeles, Cal., in July 26th, issue, I asked department correspondents to state their views as to what, if any, evil effect there would be in inserting resistance in series with an economizer, or, in other words, in series with an operating room transformer, and promised to have Mr. Hallberg, who certainly is an authority on such matters, give us the correct answer, after all those who wished to, had expressed their views. Mr. Hallberg, in response to my request, now favors us with the following:

> Relative to problem on page 426 of the July 26th issue of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD concerning of the connection of a rheostat in series with either the primary or secondary of an economizer, I beg to give you the following information. The word "Economizer" is a trade word, intended to designate a certain type of transformer, the object of which is to dispense with the rheostat usually connected in series with a projector arc when operating on a. c. circuits. A transformer can be made to produce different effects, and there are three different types:
>
> First—The constant potential type.
> Second—The constant current type.
> Third—The semi-constant current type.
>
> The constant potential transformer is intended to merely change the voltage of an a. c. circuit. With such transformer the load may vary on the secondary when it is in operation anywhere from zero up to the full ampere or capacity of the transformer, depending upon the number of lamps or other devices in operation at one time on the secondary of such transformer. In view of this fact, the amperage input on the primary varies in direct proportion to the load on the secondary. As a consequence, it is impossible to put a fixed resistance in series with a constant potential transformer, unless it is intended that the transformer should carry just a given load, in which case a fixed rheostat can be connected in series compensating for any degree of voltage desired, but this is wasteful and unnecessary, except in case of an emergency.
>
> The constant current transformer is generally an automatic device in which the coils travel up and down on the core relative to each other, being close together when the maximum voltage is delivered on the secondary and being repelled when there is less load and consequently lower voltage required on the secondary. This type of transformer is not used for picture projection, but it is primarily intended for use in the operation of arc lamps in series on high voltage at a constant amperage for street lighting or for incandescent lamps, as far as that is concerned, also for street lighting.
>
> The third type of transformer, which is the semi-constant current type, is the one which interests the M. P. man, because that is the type along which the Hallberg Economizer, and most other current-saving and arc-controlling devices are constructed.
>
> To answer your question directly, I want to say that, as far as the result at the arc is concerned, it is entirely satisfactory to take a 110 v. economizer, which, for illustration's sake, we will say delivers normally 50 amperes at the arc, and connect said economizer primary in series with a resistance of about 5¼ ohms with a carrying capacity of 25 amperes. With such a resistance in series, the economizer may be connected directly across a 220 v. constant potential alternating current supply, but there will be a loss of more than 2½ k. w. in the resistance, but it can be used continuously without danger to the economizer if this loss is not prohibitive. If a special rheostat of this capacity is not available, you will find by calculation that an ordinary 25 ampere rheostat, such as used with ordinary projector arc lamps, has a resistance when hot of about 2½ ohms, therefore, two of these rheostats could in an emergency be connected in series on the line side of the economizer, producing the same results at the arc which would be obtained if the economizer was operating as it normally should on 110 volt a. c. system. The reason why it is possible to connect a fixed resistance in series with a 110 volt a. c. economizer on 220 volt line is that the load on the lamp side of the economizer is practically constant and furthermore, there is a certain inherent regulating quality in the economizer which compensates automatically for any slight variation from the normal load which might be caused by a longer or shorter arc. This automatic regulation is obtained by self-induction within the economizer windings. This self-induction increases when the arc is maintained short which would tend to increase the amperes, thereby checking the current flow somewhat on the primary, causing it to remain practically constant. The only difference which the operator would observe with a 110 volt economizer connected in series with the resistance on a 220 volt supply circuit would be that the secondary voltage on the lamp side of the economizer would be about 73 volts when the arc is not burning, instead of 55 volts, as it would be if connected directly to a 110 volt a. c. circuit, this by reason of the fact that the resistance inserted in series causes no appreciable drop in voltage until considerable current is made to flow. When the arc is burning, however, this voltage drops to 33 and is the same for either the regular 110 volt a. c operation, or if connected in series with the rheostat above described on a 220 volt circuit. A rheostat must never be inserted in series between the secondary of an economizer and the arc, because this will decrease the available voltage at the arc, and as a result, the carbons will not burn clean, but there will be a slag or graphite formation on the carbon points which will seriously interfere with the operation of the arc.

We have to cordially thank friend Hallberg for his very clear explanation of this matter, which will be of considerable value to operators in helping them to understand what they can, and cannot do, in the way of inserting resistance in series with their operating room transformers.

An Interesting Letter.

Mr. A. H. Hilton, manager Pastime Theater, Asotin, Wash., contributes the following very interesting letter:

> I am operating two little theaters, one in Asotin and one at Clarkston, Wash., and as I don't see very many letters from this neck of the woods, I will drop you a line. Am doing my own operating, and get along very nicely. Have installed machines six different times, and never had a bit of trouble except once, when I ordered a Motiograph machine and Fort Wayne Compensarc sent to Waitsburg, where I was starting a show, and the company, not having a compensarc in stock, sent me a Motiograph rheostat. In setting up I was only able to get 30 amp. fuse in the town, so I hooked up and struck an arc and "bing" went the fuse. Thinking they were not heavy enough and having some 15 ampere fuse wire in my pocket, I bridged it over and put in some more thirties, and the arc would hold about a minute and then she would go again. I then looked for a short and not finding any got a voltmeter, the only thing I could find, and it tested 105 volts. I then borrowed an Edison rheostat from my neighbor, Wm. Hammer, at Dayton, one that he said he knew was all O K, and put it on and the same trouble happened. I then hooked them up in series and cut the Edison half out and she worked all O K, and when I got my compensarc put on it worked all right with thirty ampere fuse, and I cannot see why either of those rheostats did not work separately. I have got all of my knowledge of operating by experience only, and have now been at it about five years. I never paid much attention to the M. P. World until just lately, and I find it one of the finest things I ever got hold of. I find that I have just begun to learn the business now, and am enclosing you a check for $2.50 for one of your Handbooks. I find that exhibitors in the little town have to be billposters, card writers, musicians, electricians, poets, story writers, operators, and very good bouncers, as just last night on closing up the theater I found a man lying on the seats intoxicated and asleep, and asking him to vacate he showed fight and it took all my energy to remove him to the street. I didn't exactly like it either, as my girl was waiting for me to take her home. Well, with all our troubles we get along very nicely and I want to thank the M. P. World for a great part of it.

I cannot say what was wrong with your rheostat proposition, because you have not said what particular kind of a Motiograph rheostat you received, or how you connected it. Possibly you had one of their resistances which is composed of two parts, connected in multiple, which would give you far more than 30 amperes. I would recommend you to study fuses, pages 56 to 64 inclusive of the Handbook. You will then have a better understanding of their operation. There are a great many operators and managers who are exactly of your opinion, Brother Hilton, except that they have not yet discovered the fact that they have just begun to learn the business, although they have engaged in it for several years.

Best Wishes.

Local 206, I. A. T. S. E., Topeka, Kansas, sends in the roster of its officers and says:

> Local 206 is a very live union of thirty-two members. We were represented at the Seattle Convention by our business agent, E. H. Neff. All members read the World every week and all send their best wishes for both it and the editor of the Projection Department.

Evidently Local 206 is one of the progressive bodies which does not believe that education of the operator in his craft is going to put them out of business. My best regards to its members, and may both they and the union live long and prosper.

Golden Rule Wagon Shows.

Mr. L. F. Wallace, of Wallace's Golden Rule Wagon Shows, writes from Red Oak, Iowa:

> I am sending you some photographs of our road show. For the past three years I have watched and have taken a great interest in your department (not "mine," but "ours"; neighbor Wallace, Ed.) Have both editions of your handbook. Our route covers Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, Kansas and the Dakotas, showing one night in a place.

> Our average jump is about eight miles, and we show only the smaller places, from fifty to one thousand population. The program consists of four reels, about 1,500 feet to a reel, and trained animal acts. We run a reel of pictures and then an act, so that there is something doing all the time. Our projector consists of a Power's 6 head, with a 1913 model Motiograph lamp-house. The operating room is in a wagon built specially for it, and in case of rain everything is in the dry. Also house and front lights are controlled from that wagon.

> Our tent is 50x80 feet in size, of nine-ounce boat sail drill, in three pieces. We project the picture from one end, using a special Gundlach-Manhattan $25.00 lens on a 76-foot throw. This lens is sure worth the money, as it improved our picture considerably. For the past two years we have been using one of the Cushman Electric Plants, put out by the Cushman Engine Works, Lincoln, Nebraska.

> It consists of a four-cycle, 8-horse-power engine, and a 3½ k. w., 60-volt generator. It is a fine outfit. At Halden, Neb., the engine crank-shaft broke and the engine literally tore itself all to pieces, even breaking a chunk out of one of the cylinders. The Cushman Company, however, said that was the first accident of the kind they had ever had, and they gave us a new engine out and out. That is what I call a square deal. We carry a Lyon & Healy military band organ, and have used it a year, in all kinds of weather, and it is giving good service. We sound-effect and talk all our pictures, and, if I do say it myself, they go fine. Our repertoire consists of a little of most every make of film, but at present I am trying to buy one or two Keystone comedies, but do not seem to be meeting with much success.
>
> We want to send our Power's 6 head in this winter to be overhauled. It needs a new train of gears on the left side and a new intermittent movement. Have you any idea of the cost?

I am giving considerable space to this matter, because it is right in line with suggestions I have made a number of times during the past four years. I see no earthly reason why a show of this kind should not succeed, and make good money if it is conservatively and intelligently handled. But I do not believe there is any use in the trained animal part of it. I am of the opinion if neighbor Wallace bent his every energy to the production of the best possible projection, and carefully selected his program, discarding a film as soon as it becomes rainy, or in bad condition, he could cut out the trained animal end of it and get 25 to 50 cents admission for motion pictures only. I do not know, but it seems to me as though horses could well be dispensed with for an automobile truck or van, similar to those used for moving household goods in cities. I may be wrong in this, however, and horses may be cheapest in the long run. But, be that as it may, the pictures and descriptive matter of friend Wallace's shows seems to me to be of decided interest. I will refer the machine matter to the Nicholas Power Company, requesting that they write you direct.

Up To Brother Woods.

Mr. W. C. McFadden, Fort Worth, Tex., contributes the following:

> I would like to compliment our brother editor on his San Francisco article, August 23d issue. It is by far the best thing he has ever written, from an exploration point of view, and the real news it contains is worth the time and consideration of all. I would like to rise to a point of order and move that brother Woods come across with a little information on the strip of metal on the back of the gate. Also to remind him of the fact that the boys on the Coast are not entitled to all the best there is. Pass it along. We want to know too. Regarding that colored shutter idea; it is something I have been worrying over for several years, only I have been trying to produce natural color, but so far have secured only an occasional flash of red or blue. Would like to get into correspondence with brother Woods on this subject, and believe that we might mutually profit. And now I would like to ask something about the style or "get up" of the Department. In "Film Stories" pages, the stories are on one side of the page only—the other side carrying advertising. This is valuable to the exhibitor, as he can cut out the stories and paste them in a scrap book, in alphabetical order, for future reference. Why is not the projection department printed only on one side of the page, with advertising on the other? The value of the department to the operator would be increased four-fold, as he could then keep a complete record by pasting the articles in a scrapbook. Would like to hear from some of the other boys on this. Why not try it out?

I have got all I can attend to scrapping with the powers that be to get space enough to hold even a part of the correspondence. You fellows who want anything of that kind will have to take it up with the business manager of the paper, or with the editor-in-chief. It is not as easily arranged as you might imagine, though I presume it could be done. As to the San Francisco matter, why that is up to brother Woods, though I thought the explanation of the metal strip was plain enough to be easily understood.

Condenser Breakage.

Ozone Park, Long Island, has the following trouble:

> We have had one condenser for eight months, up to two weeks ago, but since that time have lost seven in the following manner: (we use the best of French condensers), four or five minutes after I pull the switch at the close of the show, during the period of cooling off, the condenser lens cracks. We are in an enclosed house, with a licensed operating room; Power 6 machine and lamp-house. During this period the lamp-house is not opened, as I use every precaution to avoid cold draughts.

Condenser breakage is sometimes a puzzling thing. First, see to it that the ventilation of your lamp-house is open free—that the top ventilation is not clogged with carbon ash. Next see that the ventilation holes in your condenser mount are in the same condition they were before; that is to say, they have not been opened or closed, and lastly get some thin sheet asbestos and place between the edge of the condenser and the metal, so that the lens will not touch the metal at any point. I think one of these things will stop your trouble, though I am inclined to believe the ventilation is at fault.

Montrose, Colorado.

My children live near this little mountain village and during my trip West two days, exceedingly happy ones, were spent here with my daughter, Nellie, and two sons, Carl and Lee.

Montrose has two moving picture theaters, both of which are well patronized. They put up a pretty good picture, too, from the small-town point of view. In fact, I have seen much worse right here in New York City. General Electric Mercury Arc Rectifiers transform the current from a. c. to d. c. in both of these houses. The rectifier being located where it can be seen from the street.

STORE
SHO
10
CRYSTAL
TO-NIGHT
TO-NIGHT
TO-NIGHT
A MAID AT WAR
FEATURE
CRYSTAL
SEE THE LION
5c 10c

Both houses charge ten cents, and it is some contrast to see these theaters getting that sum for three and four reels of sixty-day service, while the magnificent Denver theaters give twice as much for a nickel. I had pleasant chats with both of the Montrose managers, and found them to be agreeable gentlemen who, from the small-town point of view, are progressive and up to date. The illustration shows the Crystal Theater with the owner and manager, Mr. S. I. Shaffer, Mrs. Shaffer, who sells tickets, at his left, and Miss Lillie Thompson, the singer, at his right. The somewhat elaborate display of posters is only in evidence during the hours the theater is closed.

How About It Omaha?

This Department is in receipt of a letter from Omaha in which the statement is made that Omaha operators' salaries are very low; that the managers are bitterly opposing the formation of a union; that a 15-year-old kid is operating at one of the theaters, at $10 per week; that if one manager puts up a banner, the fellow next door puts up two and then the third guy ("guy" is good, Ed.) puts out a street-wagon advertising five big reels, etc. The correspondent winds up by asking if I think there is a chance to get a union there.

I don't know whether the writer has correctly set forth the facts, or not, but if he has, I do not see why the union cannot be formed. The writer says he is getting $15 a week, working from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. If this is the way things are I do not see why a man would not join the union, even if he did get fired. He could make more than that shoveling dirt in the street, and work less hours too; so if he got discharged, why "he should worry." It seems to be a queer proposition that men are working such hours for such salaries—assuming, of course, that the writer has stated facts. If things are as set forth then Omaha is sadly in need of some real theater managers. If they are not, then let us have the statement authoritatively denied.

A Little Good Hard Truth.

The following letter comes from an owner and manager of Washington, D. C. It contains a lot of truth, put very forcefully, and without any sugar coating.

> Come down off that "stump" and go at the series of questions and any possible information which will help improve projection with all your might! Never mind the efforts of a few cigar-store loafers to "dope out" examination questions, for if they pass they cannot hold a job in any good house. And never mind the objections of selfish crank turners who are worried more about the number of operators than about the projection of their pictures. There are 20,000 men and several women projecting pictures in the United States who are either incompetent through stupidity or carelessness or who have absorbed all the information they can get and want more. Give the working operators through the World all the new ideas you can dig up, and don't worry about the incompetents, but help those who do want to know.
>
> I am an owner and manager. My license (operator's) hangs over that of the regular man, and under that is the permit of the (paid) assistant operator. I have a good operator, yet my hands and eyes go over every part of both projecting machines before the show starts. The operator has your latest handbook, yet cries for more information (sign of a good man) and he is also a journeyman machinist. The Washington union will be years in the making, and, until such time as they learn that a union means just a little more than increase of wages, it is your duty to give even their members a chance to learn through the World what the union does not supply.

This writer has managed to express perhaps a little more rock-bottom truth in less space than any correspondent of the department has accomplished up to date. As to the Washington union I am not informed, and I do not wish to take any slaps at that body which may be undeserved. I think they are trying to do the best they can. I have never heard anything to the contrary. However, the Washington union, as well as all other unions, must learn, if they have not already learned, that a union really does mean just a little more than an increase in wages. It means increased efficiency and reliability in return for those increased wages. However, I think the correspondent has not quite grasped my full reason for hesitating about those questions. We have more than enough operators now of the fourth, fifth, and sixth class kind. What we want is more first class ones, and I do not care to help any more crank-turners into the field by enabling them to get a lot of replies by rote and thus get by on an examination, without knowing practically anything at all about the business. I may, however, be able to dope out some scheme by which the good may be had without the evil effect feared.

Glass Cover.

Lodi, California, whose scheme of placing the Power's Six oil cup at the top of the oil casing, I criticised, comes back as follows:

> You do not understand me. I removed the oil cup and placed it at the top and there will be no trouble about the oil running out through the bearings, because I made a cover for the intermittent casing out of glass, exactly the same as a metal cover, so that I can see just the amount of oil put in. Later, I will demonstrate how this is made. You see, I was born in the land of the Golden West, and, generally, when I start anything I finish it. You also say you do not understand what I mean, speaking of my scheme of transferring a picture to a slide glass, by allowing the varnish to dry hard before each additional picture. I mean let the varnish dry on the cover glass. I wish you all kinds of good luck, and hope to meet you if you ever come West again.

Well, Lodi, you have not quite finished this matter yet. In the first place it strikes me that oil would soon stain the interior surface of the glass so that you could not see anything through it. I may be wrong, but I do not believe it, though this might not hold good if you use a white oil, such as castor oil. As to allowing the varnish to dry, you have not made that any clearer than it was before, because you have not said anything about removing the old coat of varnish. Presumably that is what you do, but you should have said so.

A New Union.

From Grand Rapids, Michigan, comes the following:

> Just a few lines of space in your ever welcome department with regard to our local, just recently organized. Our number is 291, I. A. T. S. E. We had a banquet in honor of the arrival of our charter, at which the stage hands, of whom there are a goodly number, were present. We had a Dutch lunch, and then a short address by Brother C. O. Taylor, President of the Trade & Labor Council, and of the Michigan Federation of Labor. There was also an address by Brother Robert Haunke, of the stage hands. Cigars were distributed generously, and a very enjoyable time was had. One of our aims is to better projection in this city, and thus not only aid in improving our own condition, but in placing ourselves in better shape to render high-class service, and to give the public that for which they pay their money, viz: a good show.

That's the talk, brother, and it is the kind of action that will win out in the end, if it be conscientiously and energetically followed.

Can't Run 'em Both.

Mr. William A. Lorence, New York City, informs us that he is the proud daddy of a future lady operator, after which he uses up a consignment of language as follows:

> While looking over some books in the Public Library, Aquilla Branch, 110th Street, I noticed a shelf of books on "fine arts," and, looking closer, spied among them a "Motion Picture Handbook for Managers and Operators, by F. H. Richardson." We are having 600 seats put in the Regal Theater (2028 3rd Avenue) and hope to make a record by running Quo Vadis?, Satan, etc. Will now close by saying that any exhibitor can run independent releases along with associated. We are ourselves doing it under a written contract.

So they have my book labeled "fine arts," have they? Huh, since I read that I have let out a notch of my belt to give room to swell up. Hope that future young lady operator will live to operate some honest man's home most successfully. Glad to know you are branching out up there, and wish you all kinds of success.

Operators Are you perfectly satisfied with the results you get on the screen?

The new second edition of the

MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK FOR MANAGERS AND OPERATORS

By F. H. Richardson

will be the standard textbook on the subject for many years

Address all orders and remittances to

MOVING PICTURE WORLD,

Comments on the Films

Licensed

"THE TIGER" (Vitagraph), Sept. 11.—There is no doubt of the effectiveness of this picture of the revenge taken by a crazy old man on an animal trainer who, years before, had ruined the life of his daughter. Such pictures belong to the Maupassant school of art that makes its ideal of terror and horror, knowing that these leave a deeper impression on the audience than almost anything else. They are not so apt to be elevating as sorrow; but, for momentary effectiveness, there is nothing better. The plot is ably constructed and the players have put life into it. The script is by Marguerite Bertsch and it was produced by Frederick Thomson. Charles Kent plays the old man very well indeed, while the victim of his hate is played by Paul Bourgeois, who also does well.

"CAPTURED BY ABORIGINALS" (Melies), Sept. 11.—A bit from savage life taken in Queensland, Australia, and played for the most part by aborigines. It is interesting because the glimpse of the life it shows, though savage, is human and of vital concern even to us. Some of the highest qualities of the best literature are in it; but it is not strictly speaking dramatic. Its value is its truth of savage life so different from ours, yet so similar that we can wonder and sympathize at the same time. The photography is clear enough and the offering commendable.

"PATHE'S WEEKLY NO. 49" (Sept. 11).—This topical seems to be growing steadily better, both as to photography and as to the matter it offers. There are a number of very interesting items this week.

"AN ACCIDENTAL SHOT" (Patheplay), Sept. 11.—The accidental shot wounds and apparently kills a revenue officer in the cabin of an old woman and her daughter. It comes from his own revolver in his own hand and in the midst of a struggle with the old woman. He has just discovered that she is selling whisky to Indians. Just before this tragedy is found out a reformed gambler, whom the daughter had saved from a hanging, comes in and takes the blame. In the end he is released and all things made to come out to the gallery's taste. The story is told clearly and the picture photographed very well. George Gebhardt plays the gambler.

"BONNIE OF THE HILLS" (Essanay), Sept. 11.—There are a good many fine things in this drama of the West in which two jealous men gun for each other and the girl has the third part working to help the man of her choice. These three characters are made real; they are not plot-ridden and each has natural failings and convincing virtues. They are human and this gives the picture a deeper interest than usual. The plot is not new, but it furnishes suspense. The photography is excellent. A good release. Marguerite Clayton has the girl's role with Lee Willard and Frederick Church as the men.

"PLAYING WITH FIRE" (Lubin), Sept. 9.—A melodrama in which the girl from the East, who has married the rancher, is unhappy, being poor. She persuades her husband, an honest man (since he is a hero), to becomes president of a company he knows is not "on the square"—it will get him money for her. Soon he is brought to book by cowboys whom the slick stranger who started the company has defrauded. The woman finds the sharper making for the train and forces him to disgorge. It is naturally acted and is more artistically done than most pictures dealing with this theme; but the morals of it and its kind leave a good deal to be desired. The author and producer is Wilbert Melville. Velma Whitman plays the leading woman's role with Raymond Gallagher opposite, and both of them deserve a better scenario.

"SUNLIGHT" (Essanay), Sept. 9.—A well named picture, full of poetry and sunlight, with interesting and suggestive contrasts between slum scenes and farm scenes. We meet both hero and heroine in childhood when the lad runs away from the farm; because his mind is full of stories of boy fortune makers in the city's big business. He is befriended by the girl, a slum child who is later caught stealing coal and sent away to the country by a judge. The outcome shows us how these two people are brought together again. The role of the grown lad is taken by Francis X. Bushman, and, to us, he seems at his best in this lad of about eighteen coming back to the country he had forsaken. Beverly Bayne, as the girl grown up, is also good, and we want to commend the child who plays the same girl when about twelve. We don't think the old people at the farm (Frank Dayton and Helen Dunbar) made as much of the emotional side of their situation as they should have; but they act their roles naturally. The photography is clear and full of atmosphere. A good release.

"THE DESPERATE CONDITION OF MR. BOGGS" (Edison), Sept. 10.—Mr. Boggs has lazytis and needs to go to the sanitorium of Dr. Bumbell, where the amusing treatment he gets furnishes a laughter-making farce. The picture needs no especial description, for we have had others like it; but there is freshness in its minor incidents and the players have kept it lively. Herbert Prior, who is author, producer and leading man, is ably assisted by a large cast. It is a commendably staged offering and will please.

"THE TREATER'S THREAT" (Essanay), Sept. 10.—A pleasure park farce with pictures of holiday people having a good time shooting the shutes and doing the other stunts that such places afford. The treater takes two children of his neighbor for an outing at the park and is told by them that their parents have given consent. They haven't been told, and when they find the little party they forget to thank the kindly hearted treater. The audience seemed to like it and we heard laughter when the funny parts came up. The photography is fair; not perfect.

"ACROSS THE CHASM" (Patheplay), Sept. 10.—A good Indian story with plenty of snappy action and one or two sensations that are put over effectively. The backgrounds, taken in the Adirondack Mountains and in one or two cases near Ausable Chasm, are lovely and have been perfectly photographed. The story is credible, clear and fresh enough to seem like a true incident. The players are intelligent and seem natural in their work. It will please almost all who see it; we found it entertaining and think it a first class offering.

"AROUND THE BATTLE TREE" (Selig), Sept. 10.—In this very pretty picture, its author, Hattie Gray Baker, shows a vein of true poetry. It tells a very simply story in a straightforward way and gets by on the kindred sentiment it wakes in the spectator rather than on art. In other words, there is a touch of sincerity in it that convinces the feelings. Then the producer has taken trouble with it and made it dignified. His revery scenes are pictured up in one corner as they should be, but in many pictures too often are not. The players act intelligently. There are many lovely scenes. A letter in it is astonishingly poor. A good offering.

"FORTUNE'S TURN" (Vitagraph), Sept. 10.—A picture of sentiment that just escapes sentimentality, but gets by and will, we think, please. The story, by James Oliver Curwood, shows a young man (Ned Finley) who is "a good sort of fellow," but in hard luck. He has to get food for his old father and is tempted to burglarize a house; is seen by the police and shot in his attempt to escape. He escapes for a time and, there being a burning house, he darts in to die, but finds a child caught on one of the upper floors. This tenement house fire is well suggested and the rescue gets over as a sensation. The picture as a whole is wisely kept down within reasonable spheres of emotion and can safely be commended as a good offering. It was produced by Wilfred North and clearly photographed.

"AN UNJUST SUSPICION" (Biograph), Sept. 13.—This film deals with the adventures of a convict just released from prison. The scene in which he saves the woman from drowning was realistic and memorable and the photography is excellent throughout. The plot, however, has several weaknesses. For one thing it contains too many coincidences, and the character of the convict does not hold the observer's sympathy. Although he was unjustly suspected of making advances toward the detective's wife, he was guilty of housebreaking, and it does not seem reasonable that the detective should give him a recommendation. The picture nevertheless has considerable interest.

"THE MONOGRAMMED CIGARETTE" (Kalem), Sept. 13.—The work of G. A. Williams as the detective and that of William Brunton as the gentleman burglar is particularly commendable in this crook story. There is a love story of slight interest woven into the production, but the main interest centers in the latter part of the film, where the detective, disguised as a fireman, sets fire to the house and traps the thief into revealing the hiding place of the gems. The capture on the roof tops was also well done. The erased monogram on the cigarette stubs was a weak feature, but as a whole the film tells a very interesting yarn.

"DRILLS ON BOARD U. S. CALIFORNIA" (Kalem), Sept. 13.—Just a short tag on the above to fill out the reel.

"A JUNGLE FLIRTATION" (Patheplay), Sept. 13.—These drawings by J. R. Bray, the well known cartoonist, contain a great deal of genuine humor and demonstrate the infinite patience of the artist in achieving lifelike motion on the part of his animal creations. The monkey, the elephant, the squirrel, the crow and the hippopotamus all combine to make this a notable feature among movable drawings.

"TAHITI, THE PICTURESQUE" (Patheplay), Sept. 13.—A number of interesting views depicting the beauties of this gem of the South Sea Islands.

"THE GREEN EYE OF THE YELLOW GOD" (Edison), Sept. 13.—It would be difficult to improve upon this mystic story of India, illustrating a dramatic poem by J. Milton Hayes which is quoted from freely. Even the settings, both interior and exterior, while taken in this country, are so carefully devised as to carry a strong atmosphere of the Hindoo land. Charles Ogle was excellent as Mad Carew and Laura Sawyer appeared to advantage in the part of Alice, whose request for the idol's eye brought death to her lover and lowliness to herself. A strong, well-pictured offering.

"THE MEDAL OF HONOR" (Lubin), Sept. 13.—A story of simple elements and with no very great originality about it, but which nevertheless holds the interest of the observer. The girl is loved by two firemen. She chooses Seth, but when the house takes fire it is Dick who risks his life to bring her to safety. Seth allows the girl to believe him the hero, but the truth finally comes out and she gives her heart to Dick. The fire scene was well handled.

"BRONCHO BILLY REFORMS" (Essanay), Sept. 13.—A typical Western release, in which G. M. Anderson appears as an outlaw who experiences a change of heart. He refuses to join the gang in robbing the store kept by the schoolma'rm, and appears on the scene in time to make them give up the stolen money. The school feature, in which the girl taught spelling to the mountaineers, was good comedy and might have been worked up even more strongly.

"SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE" (Vitagraph), Sept. 12.—L. Rogers Lytton and Louise Beaudet have the leads in an amusing comedy in which the latter as a wife teaches her husband so severe a lesson that he agrees to abandon his convivial habits. Miss Beaudet is the author of the script.

"HER WAY" (Selig), Sept. 12.—This is not a pleasant story; neither is it an interesting one. It is of the Sunday school sort; that is, it might be told to and believed by children. It will hardly convince adults.

"PANAMA HAT INDUSTRY" (Lubin), Sept. 12.—An interesting exposition of the making of Panama hats by natives.

"AN EXCLUSIVE PATTERN" (Lubin), Sept. 12.—A comedy which will mildly amuse. A vest is sold by a haberdasher, who informs the buyer that it is an exclusive pattern. When the vest is stolen from a clothesline by a tramp and a search is begun it is developed that there are duplicates of the garment in the neighborhood. It was hardly necessary for the director to feature in his exterior view and his interior as well a particular brand of collars.

"WANTED—A PLUMBER" (Kalem), Sept. 12.—John Brennan as a journeyman plumber makes a lot of trouble for a householder and a lot of fun for those who see the picture. By transposing the water and gas meters strange things happen. It is good comedy.

"TOO MANY COPS" (Kalem), Sept. 12.—On the same reel as the foregoing is this bit showing how three tramps arrayed in policemen's hats and coats hold up drivers for money and also how they have the money taken from them by the police. It will amuse.

"YOUNG HEARTS AND OLD" (Patheplay), Sept. 12.—A very pretty domestic drama. It is well staged and finely acted. The story is of an old man who refuses to sanction the marriage of his nephew, even without looking at the bride. The housekeeper brings the young woman into the home for two weeks as her guest. The old man falls in love. When he learns the situation the nephew is forgiven.

"PUMPS" (Vitagraph), Sept. 15.—A light farce comedy that the audience found pleasing and amusing; there was good laughter. It is charmingly acted by Florence Turner and Courtenay Foote, each of whom get dancing shoes too small and at a dance suffer alike. There is a pleasing scene in the conservatory among the plants and, in the end, sympathy for each other's painful corns leads to a romance. The author of the slight but clever sketch is E. Jenkins and it was produced by Larry Trimble. A desirable offering.

"SANDY GETS SHORTY A JOB" (Vitagraph), Sept. 15.—A slight picture of two clown tramps who have to work a little, because their flask is empty. Shorty as a tramp character "gets over" pretty well, but there is little real farce in Sandy, who is not at all like a tramp. W. Hanson Durham is the author and Robert T. Thornby produced it. George Stanley plays "Shorty" and Robert Thornbey, "Sandy."

"THE ISLAND OF PERVERSITY" (Edison), Sept. 15.—A farce that falls a good way below the best Edison offerings of its kind and somewhat below the average. Its failure lies in the arbitrary quality of much that happens in it—you can't keep fun in an iron cage and you can't force an audience to laugh. The players have not acted wholly in vain; they made a few laughs and the audience distinctly liked that scene in which the girl (Bessie Learn) comes for her letter (left by Edward Clark) and finds her father (William Bechtel) standing over the place where it is hidden. William Wadsworth and Elizabeth Miller also have good roles. Written by Alice Methley, it has been produced by Ashley Miller.

"TO LOVE AND CHERISH" (Lubin), Sept. 15.—One scene in this picture makes us see the hero's black hair turn white before our eyes; but, though this is meant to be tragic, it will be likely to excite laughter, for it doesn't convince. The story is, in fact, weak. It doesn't make us sympathize with any one of its characters, takes a rather unpleasant theme, has not been acted strongly and is far from convincing. The author is Will Ritchley and the producer Bert Bracken. The photography is clear, and some of its scenes are very good pictorially.

"PATHE'S WEEKLY NO. 50" (Sept. 15).—The most valuable thing the Pathe Weekly gives to us is the portraits of the famous people of the hour—not because they are famous for the time, but because, being famous, we know something about them and are interested. It is worth while to see motion pictures of such men as William Bayard Hale, for instance—we have read about him and want to see something of what kind of a man he is. The best item, by all odds, this week, is the excellent portrait of the late Mayor of New York. The picture was taken just as Mr. Gavnor was leaving on the ship for his last sea trip. It is a very commendable likeness.

"HIS HOODOO" (Biograph), Sept. 15.—There was a good deal of laughter over this picture of an affected floor-walker, played by William Murray. The action is not at all new, but it is action. Too many pictures are sleepy; this is not slow, but not very fast either—it doesn't go to sleep.

"DAN GREEGAN'S GHOST" (Biograph), Sept. 15.—The climax of this picture didn't seem to "get over." We didn't believe in it and very few in the audience gave any sign of liking it or of finding it funny. It is a farce with an Irish boss and Italian laborers among its characters. One of the Italians makes an infernal machine for the boss, but the old man finds it and it goes into a pail of water.

"RETRIBUTION" (Kalem), Sept. 15.—The retribution overtakes a flirt, played by Anna Nilsson, a graceful player and well chosen for this role; but the picture fails to make a strong appeal—that ending, besides being far from convincing, is not of the kind that has been popular with American audiences in the past. There is something too unpleasant in the act of the husband, who has deceived the woman, dressing up so that she will think (or rather know) that he is a man whom she had jilted long ago and who had gone to jail for trying to kill his rival, and not know that he is the man she just married also. Such a picture, artistically produced as it is and beautifully photographed for the most part, leaves us no one to sympathize with—it is barren. Raymond Bloomer and Guy Coombs play the leading male roles.

"THE TOILS OF DECEPTION" (Selig), Sept. 16.—May Buckley has the role of a woman who deceives her husband and a woman friend and is uncovered. Charles Clary plays the husband and Rose Evans the friend. The picture is well put on and well acted.

"MRS. MORTON'S BIRTHDAY" (Patheplay), Sept. 16.—Paul W. Panzer has the lead in this domestic tragedy. The story is a good one; it is so conceived and executed that the ending is in doubt until the last. The staging and acting match the story.

"THEIR MUTUAL FRIEND" (Vitagraph), Sept. 16.—In this story by Elizabeth Peterson a collie, Shep by name, is featured. The dog brings together an owner of tenements who under an assumed name has come to live in his own building, and a woman who has written to him a letter complaining of the condition of the property. Earle Williams and Naomi Childers have the leads. Both make the most of the story, which is a pretty one, and will interest. Frederick Thomson directs the picture.

"FASHION'S TOY" (Lubin), Sept. 16.—A conventional story and one that at no time establishes particular interest. Ormi Hawley has the role of a country girl, who is taken to the city home of a woman who has been attracted by her. In the city the hostess discovers that an admirer of hers is manifesting fondness for the newcomer, and the latter is sent back home. There she is followed by the man of dishonorable intentions. She refuses him and accepts the old sweetheart of her own station.

"WOMEN" (Essanay), Sept. 16.—The picture makes poor entertainment. There are weeping women and angry men, but the situations as developed and portrayed fail to stir the heart or to cause thrill.

Licensed Specials.

"THE FATAL LEGACY" (Kalem), Sept. 10.—A two-part special offering and, indeed, a big picture in many ways. It deals with a curse—drink—that has fastened itself on a family and pictures for us the devastation it works on three generations. Without sentimentality, it develops its theme in a sternly tragic way, the only way possible. The picture shows us the destruction and the ruins; but doesn't preach a syllable; and it shows these things in an uprightly artistic way—that is, without making any lesser appeal by dragging in the sordid or that which is sensational merely for the sake of sensation. So its effect on the thoughtful spectator is an impression of life at once dignified and tragic to the point of solemnity. If it didn't convince, it could never do this. The picture we think a highly commendable one. Of the staging of the picture, hardly too much can be said. It is set in genteel life, we should judge in Maryland or Virginia, and the rooms, furniture, verandas, lawns, etc., are suggestive and go very well with the story. The players are excellent, but James Vincent, as Henry Halleck, plays a fine, tragic figure that is quite convincing and, as he has drawn the man, full of quiet power. The story is fair; it might have been stronger; for there is too much similarity in the fate of the first two brides and then there are gaps that need filling in—to explain the fall of Jack, of the second generation, for instance. That photography is absolutely perfect in most scenes and is truly good at the worst, as in the fox hunt scenes, which, by the way, are full of quality.

"THE HILLS OF STRIFE" (Lubin), Sept. 11.—On three points this picture of a mountain feud rises pretty high, and besides these it has other good qualities. Its best is the high-class tragic situation. We mean that it has a situation that can make a human being suffer and in or from its suffering grow wise. Tragedy has its sole value in the human wisdom that it is able to show and it is, therefore, the highest form of art. The picture's second big element is the character, ably taken by Eleanor Blanchard, of the mother of the clan—terribly vindictive at the first, then tragically suffering and growing thereby tragically wise and forbearing. The venomous hate and relentless animosity of the head of the other clan, played by Arthur Mathews, is of a lower order; but it, too, is tragic in the high sense. The situation is pretty well developed, though it has its weak points where it followed the conventional path rather than looking for a better and it is not always adequately acted. Taken as a whole, it appeals to us strongly. It was written by E. C. Hall and produced by John Ince. The staging and camera work are excellent.

"CASTE" (Edison), Sept. 12.—Fine comedy drama. It was applauded at the City Theater by a morning house. There are many laughable incidents and there are situations of deep pathos. When Mabel Trunnelle, as Polly Eccles, led Bigelow Cooper, playing Captain Hawtree, a foppish English officer, a dance of attendance there was much laughter. Gertrude McCoy as Polly Eccles, who marries an aristocrat (Richard Tucker), plays her part with fine feeling and real artistry. Mr. Tucker plays well. William West as the drunken Eccles does good character work, as also does Barry O'Moore as Sam Gerridge. Mrs. Williams is convincing in the unpopular part of the mother of the aristocrat. There is real comedy, when Mr. and Mrs. Gerridge behold the entrance of the supposed dead D'Alroy. The climax is splendidly handled and gives the picture an unusual punch. C. Jay Williams directs the production.

"THE FIFTH STRING" (Selig), Sept. 15.—A musician's love story in two reels. The author is John Phillip Sousa. It is not a great picture, nor is it one that is sure to take strongly with the general public. The young violinist is, in the story, applauded by all; but the one girl is left cold by his playing and he is in despair. The devil appears in a cloud of smoke and offers him an instrument with five strings, on one of which, if any player plays, he dies, but with which, on the four other strings, he can make powerful music. This is, of course, childish in the light of day and conventionally comes down from the Middle Ages. The picture has been well staged and is naturally acted. The photography is clear and good. On the whole, the offering is fair.

"THE LOST MILLIONAIRE" (Vitagraph), Sept. 13.—James Oliver Curwood scores again in this two-reel picture. For the splendid script he will be forgiven for resorting to the lost memory expedient. Mr. Lincoln and Miss Stewart have the leads. Both are being given important work these days; and they are responding to the demands made upon them. Charles Kent as the grandfather of Miss Stewart gives a finished performance. Tefft Johnson has the heavy role, and carries it well. The interest is maintained throughout. There are flashes of comedy and at times deep pathos, especially near the end of the second reel, when the girl from the backwoods, rich from the sale of coal lands, is, with her grandfather, brought by her millionaire sweetheart to his home in the city. Mention of Mrs. Maurice must not be omitted. The greeting she extended to her restored son and to his bride-to-be was artistic. Ralph Ince directed the picture.

"GRIST TO THE MILL" (Essanay), Sept. 12.—A two-reel number, with E. M. Calvert in the role of a homewrecker. He is made up to resemble a spider who gradually draws the wife of his friend into the net. The whole offering is melodramatic in the extreme and suffers from overacting. The story is at all times clear and well pictured, but because of this forced manner of presentation lacks the feeling it should have had. The most ingenious feature of the offering is the part depicting the manner in which the villain was foiled by means of an open telephone, prepared in advance by the wife and a detective. The title did not seem to fit the picture very well in this instance.

Independent

"REDEMPTION" (Thanhouser), Sept. 16.—A rather light, but pleasing, plot built about drill work and a sham battle at a boys' military school. The former student of the school, now a wandering outcast, returns to find the girl he loved. Their recognition after the lapse of so many years was hardly convincing.

"THE FORLORN HOPE" (Kay-Bee), Sept. 26.—This one reel Western picture tells a story that is convincing but sad. The young man, who had written his parents that he had struck it rich, attempts to hold up a stage. Another bandit accomplishes this work before him, but in the ensuing chase the young man is shot and killed by his own father, who then places the stolen money beside the first bandit. The scenery in this film is wonderfully rugged and attractive.

"NONE BUT THE BRAVE DESERVE THE?" (Gem), Sept. 22.—Matt Moore appears as a life guard in this summer resort picture. Ethel's admirer pretends to be a hero and claims credit for saving her sister's life, when really the credit belonged to the guard. Later developments bring out the true situation and of course Matt wins the girl. Quite a pleasing comedy offering.

"BINKS PLAYS CUPID" (Imp), Sept. 27.—Binks, the janitor, while peeping through the skylight at the artist's models, gets under the spell of a hypnotist and falls into the room. He then poses as Cupid throughout the rest of the picture, which is not very strong as a humorous offering.

"CHARLIE'S LITTLE JOKE" (Crystal), Sept. 30.—Chester disguises himself as Helen's guardian, which works very well until the real guardian appears. A half reel of ordinary interest.

"BALDY BELMONT AS A ROMAN GLADIATOR" (Crystal), Sept. 30.—Belmont adds to his extensive repertoire by posing as a Roman gladiator. He says "Apollo has nothing on me." Some good nonsense in this, on same reel with above.

"WHY AUNT JANE NEVER MARRIED" (Eclair), Sept. 28.—A pleasing one reel number, in which Barbara Tennant appears as the aunt. Her story, related to her nieces, gets the sympathies of the observer. In this case her lover was cast up by the sea and suffered complete loss of memory. Just as they are about to be married, it develops that he already has a wife and child. An old situation, but of strong appeal.

"THE MISER'S SON" (Imp), Sept. 25.—Wm. Shay and Ethel Grandon appear in this story. The plot is not very strong and reaches a rather unsatisfactory conclusion. It concerns mainly a miserly man who suffers a fall and loses his memory as a result.

"HIS LAST GAMBLE" (Crystal), Sept. 28.—Chester in this appears as the father of Pearl. He runs a fence and the girl's lover unmasks him in a dramatic way. Later the lover threatens to expose the father if he is not allowed to marry the girl. The father throws both himself and the lover into the river. The plot borders on melodrama and is none too convincingly presented, though it has considerable interest.

"THE BACHELOR GIRLS' CLUB" (Gem), Sept. 29.—A farce played by a half dozen men in search of wives and as many girls who act at times as though they are men haters and at times as though they are not. There is a good deal of rough business in it and one bathing scene which may not be acceptable in all houses. The photography is of the clearest.

"MABEL'S DRAMATIC CAREER" (Keystone), Sept. 8.—Good humor and extreme vulgarity are closely intermingled in this. Much of the latter can be cut out. It is difficult to see why a company with such splendid opportunities for appealing to all houses should appeal only to the less particular ones.

"BEYOND THE LAW" (Nestor), Oct. 1.—A conventional Western offering in which the fugitive befriends a wounded man in the sheriff's posse and nurses him back to health. Later the man returns to arrest him and is shot by one of the sheriff's men, the fugitive escaping. These situations have been worked over many times before.

"HIS BRAND" (Rex), Oct. 2.—This conception is too unpleasant in certain respects to make the best entertainment. The jealous husband, whose suspicions were not without justification, uses a branding iron on his wife's bosom. Their son is born with a birthmark of the same description on his body. The story is gripping and well acted, but contains too much brutality for the average observer.

"THE PEACE OF BEAR VALLEY" (Nestor), Sept. 22.—Not a particularly well rounded story, but it contains enough new situations and attractive settings to make it of more than ordinary appeal for a Western one reel offering. The heroine wears a rather brief bathing costume through most of the story and succeeded in looking satisfied with rather than properly alarmed by some of her experiences. Some new structures in the way of log cabins help out the scenes very much.

"THE DOCTOR'S STORY" (Powers), Sept. 19. A story of rather unpleasant type, but beautifully photographed and splendidly acted. The doctor tells the story of the faithless lover who gave up one sister on the eve of their wedding in order to elope with the other. The first girl loses her mind and continually haunts the sea coast, dressed in her wedding garments, waiting for her lover. The close of this film is very pathetic.

"PAYING THE PRICE" (Rex), Sept. 28.—The close of this picture is put in a new way. A newspaper headline announces that "Joseph Hageman Accidentally Killed Himself." Hageman was a very mean husband, and the assumption is that he was killed by the man who loved his wife, but the observer is left somewhat in the dark as to the exact manner of the killing. At the same time, the final scene, where the husband finds the lover with his wife, is quite dramatic.

"BEAUTY AND THE UGLY ONE" (Nestor), Sept. 15.—A hunchback story of fairly interesting plot but one that does not quite get under the skin and into the heart. Perhaps in the hands of more skillful actors or director it would have the proper pathos, but as it is it misses fire in this particular. The picture is interesting but mechanical.

"THE HEART OF A VAQUERO" (Nestor), Sept. 24.—A Western offering, in which a Mexican cowboy, rejected by the girl he loves, saves his rival in a holdup. He hastens to the mine with the payroll funds and then back to aid the lover again. Conventional Western drama.

"HIS CRAZY JOB" (Nestor), Sept. 26.—Eddie Lyons, as the cub reporter, pretends to be crazy, in order to gain admission to the asylum, so he can get a story about its mismanagement. His enthusiastic rendition of this role does much to carry the humor of the film. The views of the "nuts" out on the lawns were rather funny, but those of the dangerous maniacs were rather strong stuff for a comedy and might have been cut out. The film, however, is generally pleasing and will get considerable laughter in certain parts.

"THE FATAL VERDICT" (Imp), Sept. 15.—A melodrama in which there is much that is both new and well thought out, although it is more effective in some of its scenes than as a whole; for the story is loose in construction and has unconvincing parts. There is one great scene in which a blind woman stands by when the man she loves is struggling with a man who has done her great injury. By accident the evil man is killed by a bullet from the revolver held in his own hand and then the hero is accused of murder by the villainess, a witness. The blind girl cannot testify, not having seen. This is a tragic situation and we wish more had been made of it. As a whole, the offering will interest and can safely be commended. It was produced by Frank L. Smith. William Shea plays the romantic lead opposite to Ethel Grandon.

"THE SHELLS" (Imp), Sept. 11.—A romance with a good deal of poetry in its story. William Shea and Ethel Grandon have the leading roles as young people who meet at the shore and fall in love. The man is drawn as a trust magnate whose manipulations have ruined the girl's father. This was very clearly a mistake in a simple story of love; for nothing is made of it and it weakens our sympathy for him. The plot merely finds causes that keep the lovers apart until the rich magnate finds the girl who is earning her living as an artist and marries her. The shells they picked up on the shore are used as souvenirs of love and help carry the picture's sentiment. There are some very pretty scenes in the picture; it is naturally acted, clear and pleasing. Frank L. Smith is the producer.

"IN PERIL OF THE SEA" (Imp), Sept. 29.—A film story by Jack Byrne, featuring Matt Moore and Jane Gail in the leading parts. The girl is organist in a church. Matt is a sailor who loves her, but he has a rival in the minister. The principal scenes are pictured at sea and are melodramatic in tone. Fire and mutiny occur on the vessel and at the close Matt saves the girl's father from death. The photography is good.

"PLAYMATES" (Majestic), Sept. 16.—This story, while not particularly strong, leaves a good feeling behind it. The business partners fall out. One of them becomes wealthy and the other poor. Some time later the children meet and succeed in bringing their fathers together again. This scene is effectively done and makes the story one of appeal.

"HIS LAST DEAL" (Majestic), Sept. 20.—This is a film story with a sudden twist at the end, showing that the young husband is not a bandit at all, but that the whole affair is merely a moving picture. The humor of this does not make a very strong appeal to the audience, as the foregoing part had been straight drama and the change came rather abruptly.

"MASTER OF HIMSELF" (American), Sept. 27.—This picture tells a good story, with Warren Kerrigan in the leading role playing the part of a young doctor. In a quarrel at the club he allows another man to strike him, without returning the blow. His sweetheart resents this. Later he performs an operation upon her in a burning hospital. The scenes are well pictured and the climax strong.

"MRS. CARTER'S CAMPAIGN" (American), Sept. 25.—A story chock full of the spirit of modern politics since the invasion of the feminine element. How Mrs. Carter organizes the Clean City Club and finally succeeds in being elected mayor makes a cleancut story, full of amusing incidents. Good photography also helps this release.

"A WINNING LOSER" (Majestic), Sept. 14.—Quite an attractive college story, with a light plot. The track team captain loves the girl, but has plenty of competition. During the field day sports he turns his ankle and loses the loving cup. He gets a dachshund canine as a consolation prize, and this he turns over to the girl, much to her delight. A pleasing release.

"MOTHER'S BOY" (Keystone), Sept. 25.—The Fat Boy smokes a cigarette in bed and sets the house on fire. Later several love affairs develop; a neighborhood row ensues; two bears chase the combatants up a telephone pole. The Fat Boy hangs out on the wires with a remarkable indifference to life and limb. Later the police force appears and the officers climb the pole. A good rough and tumble number, free from offense.

"THE BOWLING MATCH" (Keystone), Sept. 29.—An amusing bowling match between Messrs. Sauer and Kraut. The balls and pins are manipulated by an electric magnet and perform some queer antics. There is, of course, the usual roughhouse finish, with Ford and Mabel in the important parts. Good fun, without offense.

"THE ORIGINAL WILL" (Reliance), Sept. 27.—Will stories are not apt to be very new, and this one is no exception. But it holds the interest very well, showing the manner in which a young grandson tries to get hold of his grandfather's money. He fails in this and the family lawyer hands him the sum of $1, according to the terms of the first will. The photography is good.

"THE MISSING RING" (Reliance), Sept. 24.—This story, written by Mildred Mason, is fairly interesting. Irving Cummings and Rosemary Thebe appear. Some very good acting was done by the young maid who found the missing ring and attempted to pawn it. The close was interesting, but not very convincing.

"FLOOD TIDE" (Thanhouser), Sept. 19.—A story which gets hold of the heartstrings. The keeper of the lighthouse rescues a child from drowning after the yacht was destroyed by fire. The girl grows up at the lighthouse and is later claimed by her aunt. She goes to the city, but steals out of the ballroom and rows to the lighthouse in a boat to see her old friend. A simple plot, but nicely pictured and acted with true feeling.

"PATSY'S LUCK" (Nestor), Sept. 22.—Patsy is a henpecked husband who inadvertently gets on a spree. He runs across a band of outlaws and represents himself to be the notorious "Slim Jim." In the end he brings the entire band to justice and wins a big reward. The scene in which the sheriff explains his absence to the wife is quite amusing, and as a whole the picture is entertaining.

"FOR THE SINS OF ANOTHER" (Victor), Sept. 26.—Bob Daly produces this good drama, in which appear Frank Smith, Mr. McAvoy, Lynn Pratt, Fritzi Brunette and little Mimi Yvonne. The story is of a son who steals money from the house safe and permits his father's secretary to be blamed. The uncovering of the guilty person and the rehabilitation of the innocent make an interesting story.

Independent Specials

"JACQUES, THE WOLF" (Eclair), Oct. 1.—A two-reel story of the Canadian woods, featuring Oscar Lund as the trapper. He falls in love with two girls and develops a dual nature in many respects. The injury to his eye was drawn out too painfully, but the subsequent scenes hold the interest and many of them are quite pleasing. Alec Francis appears as the police officer. The dramatic episodes are of too mixed a character to be very compelling.

"SHON, THE PIPER" (Bison), Sept. 30.—A remarkably fresh and interesting two-reel subject, featuring Robert Leonard and Marguerita Fischer. The story illustrates a Scotch ballad and gives the observer as cheerful a series of bright, sunny situations as could be wished. Leonard, who is rapidly developing new powers as a screen artist, appears as the Duke of Gengall, who masquerades as a bagpiper in order to see something of life and find the girl of his choice. The resulting adventures are very pleasing. A particularly good release.

"SILENT HEROES" (Broncho) Sept. 24.—While not entirely original in plot, this two-reel number rouses one's blood and proves very entertaining. Tom stays at home with his dying mother when the war breaks out and is considered a coward. After her death, which was too long and painful in coming, he goes out to fight in earnest. He heads the Home Guards in time of battle and brings victory at the cost of his own life, but his name has been cleared of the charge of cowardice. Our preference would have been for a happier ending. A good lesson in patriotism.

"JUSTICE OF THE WILD" (Nestor), Sept. 29.—A two-reel offering, telling a rather new Western story. Mona marries the cattle rustler and becomes a mother to his son by a previous marriage. Later her husband joins in the robbery of the chief, who is murdered in the attack. Mona learns that her husband is implicated and she shoots him as he is drinking from the stream. The picture closes with her holding the boy in her arms. A grim tale of frontier life, which holds the attention quite strongly.

"THE WALL OF MONEY" (Rex), Sept. 21.—Marshal Neilan has written a two-part story with a punch. Allen Dwan produces it. We have had many labor vs. capital pictures; not all of them are so constructed as to avoid giving serious offense to those who sympathize with one or the other sides. This is a man's story, although there are two women in it; one of these, Pauline Bush, does fine work—serious, convincing. Miss Von Trump does well in the bit that falls to her. Mr. McQuarrie, late of Kinemacolor, has the role of the monopolist. He gives a strong presentation; if in the earlier scenes there is a trace of melodrama in the later it is not in evidence. The entire cast works in harmony, making a picture worth seeing.

"THE GHOST OF THE HACIENDA" (American), Sept. 22.—An entertaining two-reel number, the scenes located in a Spanish residence, presumed to be haunted by the spirit of a murdered woman. The bandit, El Capitan, now apparently respectable, relates the story and assures Enid that she resembles her dead aunt. Later El Capitan's old spirit induces him to attempt robbing the Hacienda. Enid impersonates the ghost and El Capitan dies from fright. The photography is good and the story appealingly presented.

"THE MOONSHINER" (Frontier), Sept. 27.—An exciting fight and tumble from a high cliff are the principal characteristics of this drama of the West, in which a girl is sent into the hills with a kodak to get a picture of an outlaw. This is a novel turn on the detective idea and is developed to good advantage in an engrossing story. Some interesting scenes of Western mountain country occur.

"THE VILLAGE PEST" (Frontier), Sept. 25.—In this rattling comedy, Willie, the grocer's boy, annoys a great many people with practical jokes and tricks learned from a book on legerdermain and in the end meets his just deserts in a watering trough. Some interesting village sidelights are included. The offering is fair.

"WHEN THE WORM TURNED" (Thanhouser), Sept. 21.—An amusing offering, in which the tired, slaving wife teaches her miserly husband a much needed lesson. She pretends to be out of her mind and insists upon having new clothes for herself and daughter and driving to town to see an occasional show. There is a great deal of human nature in this story and the parts are well taken. The restrained, intelligent acting of the wife is particularly commendable.

UNIVERSAL FILMS' YOUNGEST STAR EVER.

Allan Dwan has just completed a half-reel comedy entitled, "Our Little Fairy," with little Miss Helene "Snookums" Rosson, seven and one-half months old. It is the first time that an entire film has been devoted to exploiting the charms of one so young. There is that in the film, novelty, which is going to make it a genuine treat.

The picture was made at the Pacific Coast Hollywood Universal studios and shows the lovable baby in the various phases of baby life. The camera catches her first as she wakes after a fine nap. Next she takes her bath, then breakfasts and then creeps into the garden, where she finds many flowers to her liking. She laughs and crows; she cries and scolds, and true to her sex she gets into mischief with a dish of jam to her liking. She did not worry over her costume She posed "au naturel," and when she posed for the scene "September Morn," the climax was fittingly complete.

Miss Helene Rosson.

E. E. RICE TO FILM FORMER SUCCESSES.

It is the present purpose of Edward E. Rice to stage revivals of his former musical productions at some Broadway theater and after their runs to have them enacted before the camera. Those attractions are "Evangeline," "Adonis," "Hiawatha," "Excelsior, Jr.," and "The Seven Ages." Henry E. Dixey, the former star of these pieces, will appear both in stage and film versions. The motion picture end of the enterprise will be known as The Peoples Moving Picture and Amusement Company, with offices in the Times Building, New York.

PROPER ILLUMINATION OF PICTURE THEATERS.

An Important Essential to Success.

By Leonard V. James, Associate in Electrical Engineering, University of Illinois.

NO feature in the design or operation of moving picture theaters has a greater effect upon their success than has the manner of their illumination. It is true that some people attend the theaters because of the educational value of the productions, but the vast majority are attracted by the clean, restful and cheap amusement afforded. Such people will not put up with discomfort in any form at one place if there is another to attend, or if some other form of amusement is available. For this reason such matters as the decoration, the ventilation and the illumination of these theaters are receiving serious consideration by managers, architects and engineers.

When a patron enters a theater, the first thing he notices is the general decoration of the room. If this is either dingy or glaring he is not likely to be pleased; what he wants to see is a rich decoration, containing enough color to have life but without inharmonious contrasts. Moreover, he is pleased if he can see all of the decoration at a glance, if his view is not interrupted by sharp points of light, if both the high lights and the shadows are softened. All this, of course, if he enters during an intermission. If permitted to take his seat while a picture is being shown, he will not be so curious about the room, but he will want to be able to find his way without groping and to gain some impression of the people immediately surrounding him.

Glancing up at the picture, he will be pleased if he finds it very distinct but without the glare so often caused by the intense whiteness of the screen and the deep, black shadows surrounding it. He probably will think that there is less of the flicker effect in this picture, not realizing that his eyes are relieved from the strain occasioned by these sharp contrasts. Should there be any disturbance in the audience he will be glad to note that it is quieted promptly, probably giving full credit to the management when really the soft but sufficient illumination is largely responsible. When the picture is ended, he will be pleased if the lights come on as an intensifying of the previous glow, comfortable to the eyes, bringing out all the details of the decorations, etc., rather than as a sudden blinding glare.

To-day the average patron would appreciate the pleasures outlined above, but he would not expect them. The time is not far distant, however, when he will expect them in every theater laying any claim to being up-to-date in the matter of conveniences. Such things are no longer luxuries; thanks to the eye-comfort system of indirect lighting, they have become essential features in all modern theaters. The effect is obtained by the installation of indirect lighting fixtures consisting of opaque bowls hanging from the ceiling and containing tungsten lamps. These lamps, by the aid of scientifically designed silver mirrored reflectors, cast a diffused light over the ceiling. In this way the entire ceiling becomes a light source of low intensity, distributing a beautiful soft flood of light over the room, bringing out all of the decorative features, supplying plenty of illumination and yet blinding no one, even in the abrupt change from semi-darkness to full light, for there are no glaring lights to blind. You see, it is high intensity or glare which blinds—not an abundance of light well diffused. Churches recognize this principle when they have the organ lights turned off while the sermon is in progress to assist the preacher in keeping the audience attentive; automobilists meet it when they try to see past the headlights of an approaching car.

Not only will all glare and sharp points of light be eliminated where the eye-comfort system is used, but there will be no dark shadows, although there will be enough difference in the intensity of illumination on the ceiling and walls to avoid flatness. At the seat level, in a properly designed installation, there will be an absolutely uniform diffused light. This can be as intense as desired; the common mistake is to want it too intense, however, for the observer may think it is not light enough without trying to see if he can read his paper. He little realizes that, in the restful illumination, his eyes are relieved from the strain to which they are usually being subjected, that the iris relaxes and that the retina, instead of getting its impression from sharp rays of light like the image of the sun cast by a lens, gets it in a soft flood. Because he does not understand he will be surprised to find that he can read so easily and that his eyes do not tire.

The semi-darkness is produced by turning on only part of the lamps. The accompanying cut shows a possible plan for a theater 25 feet wide and 75 feet long, thus having a floor area of 1875 square feet, and using thirty 60-watt tungsten lamps installed as shown. This would give a very good illumination when all the lamps were on. While the pictures are being shown all but four of these lamps will be turned off, so that most of the time only 240 watts will be consumed in providing a soft, diffused light. If desired, more than four lamps can be left on; most managers, where these installations have been made, are surprised by the clearness of the pictures when the full illumination is used. It is noteworthy that some light in the room takes away the "cold" effect of the intense black and white and adds a wealth of detail and a depth of tone to the picture. Turning off some of the lamps, however, produces an agreeable effect and saves electricity.

A large number of theaters in this country and Canada have installed the system of illumination as explained above and are finding it very satisfactory.

In securing the highly desirable effects outlined in this article two things are necessary. The more essential of these is that there be no visible lights discernible in the room. This requires opaque bowls at the proper distance from the ceiling and indirect or reflected illumination. The other is economy of operation and maintenance, obtained to the greatest possible extent by using tungsten lamps and one-piece, pure silver-plated, glass reflectors. These reflectors are commercially possible only where the silver is very thin and is well protected by an elastic enamel. Such fixtures and reflectors may be a little more expensive than less desirable types, but the additional outlay is justified, there being no decrease in brightness of the light after they have been installed several years. The expense is also counter-balanced by the smaller number of units required with this system of lighting as compared with any other, and the corresponding saving in wiring.

The National X-Ray Reflector Co., 231 Jackson Blvd., Chicago, makes a specialty of these kinds of fixtures and maintains a force of illuminating engineers whose skill is at the service of the public. They are ready and willing to calculate any job, however complex, without cost or obligation to the theater managers or architects.

In the cut the symbol * means bright lights during intermission; the other symbol shown in the cut means dim light during show.

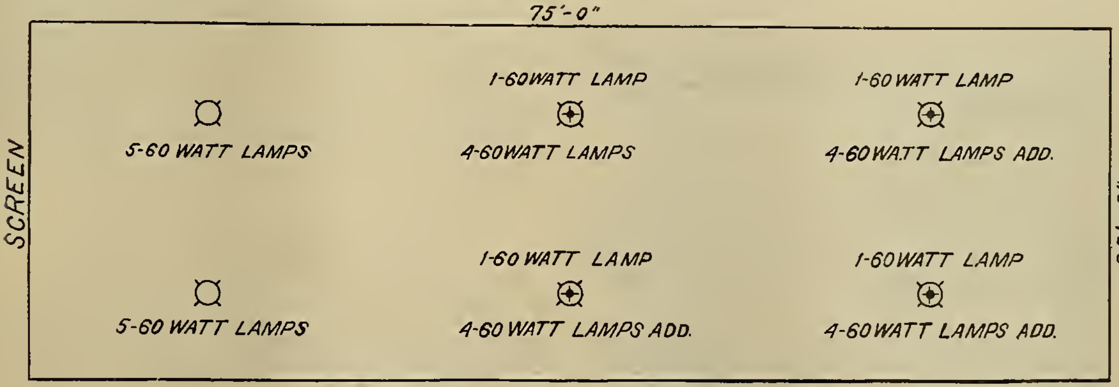

Diagram of an "X-Ray" Lighting Scheme.

Manufacturers Advance Notes

"SHON, THE PIPER" (Bison).

This three reel photoplay, produced by Otis Turner, can best be described as a poetic melodrama, which is local coloring, rife with stirring action and generous in climateric incidents. Not even a Scotchman could say that the exterior scenes were not laid in the Highlands, and there is depth and perfection of detail in the interior scenes. Running through the whole, as subtitles, is a delightful verse by James Dayton.

The action is laid in the latter part of the eighteenth century while the story revolves about a young Scotch Duke who, determined not to marry one seeking his money searches for adventure in the Highlands, disguised as a Piper. He meets, during his wanderings, Madge the daughter of Donald MacIvor. They fall in love at sight.

Scene from "Shon, the Piper" (Bison).

Unaware of Shon's real identity, the old father refuses to sanction the match. He prefers to give his daughter to the wealthy Laird of the Isla. When the girl carries this news to her lover he tells her to "Be of good cheer my bonny lass, I'll pipe them a tune of another class." The wedding day is fixed and the Laird leads his melancholy fiance forth.

Shon visits the feast in the garb of a harpist; he assumes the guest for awhile and then, throwing off his disguise, escapes with Madge from a window. But previous to this, Shon has called his clan together and when speeding away to his mansion, they cover his retreat. What follows is a remarkably thrilling and fresh piece of business; a battle between two kilted Scotch clans. And then the title of the youth is discovered and all ends well.

William Foster, the cameraman has given of his best and the results show a series of the most enchanting pictures ever seen on the screen.

BLACKWELL REMAINS WITH KALEM.

A press agent had a pipe dream last week and, while under the influence, nominated Carlyle Blackwell, the Kalem leading man as a new acquisition of the American company of players. Kalem now comes forward with an authoritative denial that Mr. Blackwell has even an idea of leaving its Western stock company with which he has been identified for nearly four years.

TO NEW YORK IN LOS ANGELES.

George O. Nicholls left New York this week for the Los Angeles plant of the New York Motion Picture Company where he will assume the duties of director.

"THE FLOWER OF DESTINY" (Kleine-Cines).

The Kleine-Cines release for Tuesday, October 7, "The Flower of Destiny," finds its original plot in a famous Italian poem. The action centers during the Middle Century and the entire two-reels are conspicuous for their beautiful settings of ancient castles and quaint interiors. Nowhere in the world are there such large stores of curios left from those historic times as in Italy today, and the Cines Co. made splendid use of their facilities. The story itself is extremely dainty. A page who dares to love his mistress from afar, places a rose upon her window-sill. When the cruel baron learns of this, he whips the page to death. The boy's sister swears vengeance and obtains employment in the baron's household as a page. From this stronghold she wreaks her revenge in an odd manner for the baron, knowing her to be a woman falls madly in love with her while the baroness, believing her a boy page, also grows to love her. Eventually, both destroy each other.

Scene from "The Flower of Destiny" (Cines).

The respective leads are played by Anthony Novelli, the famous Cines star who played "Vinitius" in "Quo Vadis?" and Leah Guinchi who played "Lygia" in "Quo Vadis?" the two leads in that master picture.

NEW $65,000 THEATER AT LOS ANGELES.

A palatial theater, seating 900 people, was opened at Los Angeles recently. It is under the control of the Tally Amusement Company, with E. I. Tally as president and F. J. Kawkins as vice-president. It will be known as the "Alhambra" and will use the Universal program as does Mr. Tally's other theater, the popular "College" on Hill Street. On the exterior o fthe "Alhambra" there are 1250 electric lights. The furniture and fittings are magnificent and comfortable.

"A FIGHT AGAINST EVIL" (Universal).

The white slave traffic is a problem that is being agitated and discussed by the press, the pulpit, the law-making bodies and the stage, but it has remained for the Universal Film Manufacturing Company to present it in a moral-teaching light to patrons of the photoplay. It does this through the medium of Otis Turner's stirring film drama "A Fight Against Evil," which has just been completed at the Hollywood studios.

STATES RIGHTS OPEN ON "SAPHO."

"Sapho," the six reel Majestic production with Florence Roberts in the title role, is now obtainable by state rights buyers. The Sapho Feature Film Company, of 150 East 14th Street, New York City, is offering it. Paper, in all the handy sizes up to twenty-four sheets, goes along. Each "size" of paper has a variety of scenes from the play. This enables the exhibitor who prefers to use one particular size of lithograph to show different posters nevertheless.

The statement of the Sapho Feature Film Company on the "nature" of the Roberts version is as follows: "'Sapho,' denounced at the time of its writing— in an age of prudery— as sensational, is now everywhere recognized as a great moral lesson. It is bold in its treatment of the facts-of-life, but the boldness is for the best. Alphonse Daudet, the author, dedicated 'Sapho' to his sons, so that they might remember and be guided by its lesson. Let 'Sapho' be to filmdom what 'Damaged Goods' is to the stage. Be first in the battle of film enlightenment by booking Miss Roberts' masterpiece for early showing in your theater. Shelly Hull and a formidable cast support the star."

Scene from "Sapho" (Thanhouser).

"THE WRECK" (Vitagraph).

This gripping soul drama, full of tense situations which awaken all our keenest interest, sympathies and anticipations, is staged upon a large scale, and its action is extremely varied. It sees its characters driven from their homes, out by the side of rushing rivers and toward the height of western mountains. It sees their homes despoiled. It watches a midnight attack on a lonely bridge. And it witnesses a thrilling railroad wreck; mingled with all of the excitement there runs a sweet undercurrent, depicting the reasoning side of life. For through the storm there is clearly revealed a calm, indomitable law which rules and directs the lives of the men and women involved in the drama. "The Wreck" is unusually, extremely convincing and genuine, as its wise, natural development keeps our anticipations on the alert, agreeing as it does with our intuitive knowledge of life's varied struggles.

The announcement of this Vitagraph release should awaken a keen interest in the moving picture enthusiast.

EXCLUSIVE TO HAVE WESTERN FEATURES.

A three reel western feature, one every two weeks, will probably be the next addition to the program of the Exclusive Supply Corporation. Negotiations are now under way between Joseph R. Miles, general manager of the Exclusive and the owner of a widely known brand of established reputation. Such a brand would much strengthen the already strong program, including as it now does the cream of the European and American makes.

"TARGETS OF FATE."

This two reel drama was written for the Reliance Company by Adele Luehrman, who has won recognition in the magazine field in addition to having had many successful photoplays produced. The first reel of this picture is particularly interesting, many of the scenes being taken on board the ocean liner Franz Josef. During the action of these scenes several life boats were lowered into the water and the steerage passengers worked in the picture, adding realism. The story of this film is of simple heart interest. Hugh Mortiner and his young wife are separated on their honeymoon by a wreck at sea. She is saved, but believes him dead. He wanders on a distant shore—his mind gone. She later marries a doctor—and it is to her husband that Hugh is sent to have his shattered mind restored. The doctor recognizes Hugh from a picture his wife has always kept—but realizes his duty and performs the operation. Then he takes Hugh to his home and leaves him outside of his wife's room, telling him that he may enter if he wishes. Through the curtain Hugh sees the doctor enter the room and take his wife into his arms. Hugh recognizes his lost bride and is about to rush to her when leaning over she takes up a baby from its crib and the doctor gathers both of them to his heart. Then Hugh drops the curtain and silently steals away, knowing that his presence would but wreck the happiness of all three. Released October 4th.

Scenes from "Targets of Fate" (Reliance).

FREDERICK WARDE IN "RICHARD III."

The Broadway Film Company announces that it will offer the subject "Richard III" in which Frederick Warde, the old time tragedian, appeared, to state right buyers. This subject is in four reels—4,000 feet—and is said to be fairly descriptive of the stirring events in the life of one of England's early kings, as told in history and by Shakespeare. The offices of the Broadway Film Company are at 145 West 45th Street, New York.

STERLING CAMERA

Scene from "Richard III."

"THE RIDDLE OF THE TIN SOLDIER" (Kalem).

For the past year, Hugh C. Weir has been thrilling the readers of various magazines with his adventures of "Madelyn Mack, Detective," a series of rather extraordinary detective stories. The possibilities of these stories for the motion picture screen led Mr. Weir to write a special "Madelyn Mack" adventure, and the result is the Kalem production in two parts, "The Riddle of the Tin Soldier," which will be released on Wednesday, October 8th.

Scene from "The Riddle of the Tin Soldier" (Kalem).

"The Riddle of the Tin Soldier," is a sure-enough thriller. The acting is all that could be desired and the photography excellent. The picture contains two scenes that are especially good. One shows a view of the poorest section in the slums of New York, and helps the reader to appreciate the spirit which caused the daughter of the millionaire to kidnap her own brother. The other scene is that in which the battle between the police and the kidnappers is shown. Here is a real fight! The observer watches the battle with muscles tensed and nerves atingle. Windows are pushed through by bodies in combat, and balustrades broken by the pressure of many men struggling along its length.

"IN THE POWER OF A HYPNOTIST" (Warner's).

This is a Gauntier production in three parts—a psychological drama with a tremendous climax—packed with startling scenes from beginning to end. Miss Gene Gauntier enacts the role of the hypnotist's daughter; Jack J. Clark makes a natural detective, and Sidney Olcott plays the part of Gondorza, the hypnotist. The final scene, where Gondorza's influence over the mind of his daughter is broken by his sudden death, is a sensational bit of business that will draw people out of their seats.

"A MEXICAN TRAGEDY" (Lubin).

An incident of the continued revolts in Mexico. This picture is very dramatic ending in an accidental tragedy that is pitiful, but the just reward of avarice and treachery. The scenes are true to old Mexico and most of the subordinate characters are Mexicans. Those who daily read of the unrest in that unfortunate country will enjoy this picture which is one of the best of its type that the Lubin southern studio has ever made.

HENRY E. DIXEY IN "CHELSEA 7750."

Henry E. Dixey's first appearance in motion pictures will be occasioned by his characterization of Detective Kirby in "Chelsea 7750," an original detective play startling in conception, novel in construction and unique in development, written and directed by J. Searle Dawley, to be released by the Famous Players' Film Co., Sept. 20th. In the role of an able and eminent detective, Mr. Dixey is provided with a strong and novel part, and the battle of wits which occurs between him and the gang of counterfeiters, whose trail he follows, is as intensely interesting as a genuine detective mystery. A dictograph plays an important part in the story, and the mechanical spy is instrumental in fixing the certainty of the counterfeiters' guilt. There is a strong human note when Prof. Grimble, the master mind of the criminals, whose son Detective Kirby has succeeded in jailing for twenty years, gets the detective's daughter in his power, and threatens to repay her for the long sentence meted out to his son. It is here that the telephone is called into play. Surreptitiously and skillfully, the detective's daughter (admirably portrayed by Laura Sawyer), manages to lift the receiver off the telephone in the counterfeiters' den and while she argues her innocence, shouts her father's number into the telephone. Then, by means of a signal code of pencil taps, she communicates to her father that she is in danger, but before she can inform him of the address, the receiver is discovered removed from the hook, and she is abruptly shut off by the Professor. A series of heart-breaking efforts on the part of the detective to discover her whereabouts ensues, culminated by a complete and thrilling victory over the criminals.

Henry E. Dixey is ably supported by Laura Sawyer, and House Peters, whose interpretation of the Professor is a fine bit of artistic characterization.

"WAR CORRESPONDENT" RIGHTS.

Sales of state rights on "The War Correspondents," the four-reel Itala subject, have been brisk. Exchangemen who have taken this subject are: The Weiland Feature Film Co., of Pittsburgh; Attractive Feature Film Co., of Philadelphia; Golden Gate Film Exchange, of San Francisco; Northwestern Feature Film Co., of Portland; Exhibitors Feature Film Corporation, of Toledo; The Famous Players Film Co., of Boston; General Feature Film Co., of Chicago, and Big 4 Feature Film Co., of Dallas, Texas.

A NEW PRODUCER.

Marshall Farnum, the youngest brother in the famous Farnum family, who was concerned with Duston Farnum, in the production of "The Spoilers" in California, is now listed among the producers at the Selig Polyscope Company, in Chicago. He has had a long stage experience and should grace the new position with credit.

BUSINESS HEAD OF THE AMBROSIO CO.

The picture shown herewith is a splendid likeness of one of the really powerful figures in the film world, yet one but little known in America. Signor A. Gandolfi is, with Signor Ambrosio, the founder of the world-famous Ambrosio Company. Mr. Gandolfi is the man who dominates the financial end of the big Torino plant. While Ambrosio is the company's real founder and its natural head, he leaves the entire financial affairs in Gandolfi's sole charge. Mr. Gandolfi is a great man mentally and physically. His personality is felt wherever film is sold and no one in Europe has a better understanding of the complications now facing European film makers than he.

Sig. A. Gandolfi.

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

A PREMIERE European actress playing a dual role is the characteristic extraordinary of "The Missing Woman," the three-feature production, which is the third release of the Film Releases of America. One minute she's the wealthy, happy married sister—the next she is the abandoned, wanton creature of the underworld and as unlike as night and day from her sister whose lines have fallen in pleasanter places.

* * *

Anthony Novelli, greatest of Italian artists, who played the lead of "Vinitius" in the famous "Quo Vadis?" and Leah Guinchi, who played the female lead of "Lygia" in "Quo Vadis?" will be seen together again in "The Flower of Destiny," a Kleine-Cines two-reel for release Tuesday, October 7th. In one of the daintiest stories ever released by Cines, these two stars play opposite.

* * *

Night is being turned into day at the big Selig plant with elaborate scenic preparations for one of the greatest modern detective stories, "The Circular Staircase," by Mary Roberts Reinhart. No expense has been spared to give the great romance of mystery befitting and elegant environment to comport with the vibrant atmosphere of the great thrilling pictorial romance—in which the sense of the supernatural is ever imminent.

* * *

James J. Corbett, familiarly known to everyone as "Gentleman Jim," is scheduled to make his initial appearance in moving pictures in a Warner's Feature entitled "The Man From the Golden West." It is a thrilling story of love and adventure, in four parts, and is bound to go big wherever shown.

* * *

The latest daredevil doing of riotous Rodman Law is a jump from the top of a high cliff into the making of a watery grave. Not content with the sensational possibilities of such a tame proceeding, Law made the jump with a fair damsel sitting astride of the horse in back of him. The feat was accomplished at Ausable Chasm, New York, from the top of "Table Rock" and was part of the plot of a photoplay entitled "The Lover's Leap," scheduled for release by the Reliance on October 11th.

* * *

"In the Days of Trajan" is the title of forthcoming two-reel subject soon to be released by the American Film Mfg. Co. Jack Warren Kerrigan appears as the Prince of Dacia and Vivian Rich takes the role of Princess Octavia. The time honored villain, Jack Richardson, revels in the costume of Julius Publius, the Prefect of Rome, while the other leads are all prominently cast with a large number of supernumeraries.

* * *

Mr. James Morrison, the well-known Vitagraph player, better known as "Jimmy" Morrison, has returned to his first and only love, The Vitagraph Company of America, and will now be seen regularly in Vitagraph pictures. This will be good news to his many admirers.

* * *

A. Warner, Vice-President and General Manager of Warner's Features, Inc., left Tuesday, September 16th, for a long trip by way of Canada to the Pacific coast on matters of business relating to the opening of exchanges in the larger Canadian cities, and the installation of the Warner program.

* * *

Africa is the locale for the new animal picture being produced by Director Henry McRae. Tigers, that were so prominent in the first picture, "In the Coils of the Python," will be displaced by lions, monkeys, a big chimpanzee, camels and an elephant will also play important parts in a forthcoming Universal production. One scene among others, that will bear particular notice is where Clifford, thrown from his horse frightened by a gorilla, takes refuge from an attacking lion in the water hole. There is the novel sight of a chimpanzee leading a baby into the jungle and then hiding it in a burnt out log when a lion approaches.

* * *

Jack O'Brien has joined the Lubin California forces and is again the "busy director." A. H. Fralick is also working at the Lubin studios.

* * *

Palmer Bowman, a clever young actor, who has given very efficient service with The Selig Stock Company during the past eight months, displaying remarkable versatility as an actor, has business qualifications that attracted the attention of Oscar Eagle, and he has made him his assistant for carrying out the labyrinthian details involved in his office—as master of productions.

* * *

Among those in New York for the purpose of acquiring territory from the Exclusive Supply Corporation during the week were Charles Zetler, of the Edwards-Zetler Feature Film Co., of Dayton, Ohio; E. T. Peter, of Dallas, Texas, who purposes taking the program for Southern territory and who will probably open offices in Atlanta and New Orleans. A. A. Weiland, of the Weiland Film Company, of Pittsburgh, reports that his success with the Exclusive Program in his territory encourages him to take Ohio, the adjacent State.

* * *

A large crew of Mexican laborers was engaged to enact a riot scene directed against Ed. Coxen, engineer, on a railroad construction scene in "The Ghost of the Hacienda," produced by the American Film Mfg. Co., and misunderstanding their instructions, thought a real riot was on, which accounts for the realism of the scene.

* * *

"In the Watches of the Night" is the title of the first dramatic feature production in which Miss Marion Leonard will appear on Warner's Feature Program. The basic element of the plot is the effort of a woman to preserve the honor of her husband after the husband, in his weakness, has dragged it into disrepute.

* * *

William Dunn, who was formerly identified with the Vitagraph Life Portrayals a year ago, has come back to his old stamping ground and is once more numbered among the Vitagraph players.

* * *

During the taking of "The Rogues of Paris," a forthcoming Solax feature, Madame Blache encountered Mr. Hudson Maxim (author of "The Science of Poetry and the Philosophy of Language"), poet, scientist, inventor and philosopher, on his estate at Lake Hopatcong. When half through with a scene, the venerable inventor appeared at the portico of his mansion and viewed the proceedings with considerable amusement. He became a very interested onlooker and asked many questions.

* * *

Mr. Al. Lichtman, Sales Manager of the Famous Players' Film Co., started September 10 on a trip to Canada, from where he will go to Peoria, to attend the convention of the Illinois Exhibitors, and on his return to New York will stop at Chicago.

* * *

During the production of the Reliance feature "Targets of Fate," Director Edgar Lewis used a large ocean steamship for several exciting scenes, which among other things, called for the launching of the life boats. The steamer was about to sail for foreign parts and the steerage was packed with passengers who took a lively interest in the picture-making. A number of the passengers were enthusiastic workers under Mr. Lewis' direction. This drama will be released in two reels on Saturday, October 4th.

* * *

The sales of state rights on "Dr. Nicholson and the Blue Diamond," the Film Releases of America subject, added to the sales made several weeks ago, and these without the aid of lithographs or other advertising matter, are the following dispositions of territory: Pekin Feature Film Co., of Philadelphia; the Exhibitors' Feature Film Co., of Toledo, Ohio, and the Southern Feature Program Association, of Dallas and San Antonio.

* * *

Dorothy Davenport is back again in the "Universal" fold after being with Selig and Kalem. She will play opposite to Wallace Reid, who starts producing on his own account next week. He will write most of his own photoplays, too. He has a delightful little leading woman, for Dorothy is a great favorite with a discerning public and her work is always conscientious and carefully thought out.

Calendar of Independent Releases

Universal Film Mfg. Co. Current Releases

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1913.

CRYSTAL—Misplaced Love (Drama)
ECLAIR—Stung (Comedy)
ECLAIR—Curious Fish (Zoology)
REX—The Wall of Money (2 parts—Drama)

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd, 1913.

IMP—Ivanhoe (Four parts—Drama)
NESTOR—For the Peace of Bear Valley (Drama)
GEM—None but the Brave Deserve the —? (Comedy)
GEM—Sanitary Dairy Plant, Washington, D. C.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23rd, 1913.

101 BISON—The Struggle (2 parts—Drama)
CRYSTAL—Pearl and the Poet (Comedy)
CRYSTAL—Oh! What a Swim (Comedy)

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24th, 1913.

NESTOR—Heart of a Vacquero (Drama)
POWERS—Twiddledum Insures His Life (Comedy)
POWERS—A Painter's Ruse (Comedy)
ECLAIR—A Puritan Episode (2 parts—Drama)
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly No. 81 (News)

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25th, 1913.

IMP—Miser's Son (Drama)
REX—Genesis: 4-9 (2 parts—Drama)
FRONTIER—The Village Pest (Comedy)

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26th, 1913.

NESTOR—His Crazy Job (Comedy)
POWERS—Blood Red Tape of Charity (2 parts—Dr.)
VICTOR—For the Sins of Another (Drama)

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27th, 1913.

BISON—Captain Billy's Mate (2 parts—Drama)
IMP—Binks Plays Cupid (Comedy)
IMP—Jolly Jottings by Hy. Mayer (Comedy)
FRONTIER—The Moonshiner (Drama)

Advance Releases

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 28th, 1913.

CRYSTAL—His Last Gamble (Drama)
ECLAIR—Why Aunt Jane Never Married (Comedy)
REX—Paying the Price (Drama)

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1913.

NESTOR—Justice of the Wild (2 parts—Drama)
IMP—In Peril of the Sea (Drama)
GEM—The Bachelor Girls Club (Comedy)

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30th, 1913.

101 BISON—Shon the Piper (2 parts—Drama)
CRYSTAL—Charlie's Little Joke (Comedy)
CRYSTAL—Baldy Belmont As a Roman Gladiator (Comedy)

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 1st, 1913.

NESTOR—Beyond the Law (Drama)
POWERS—A House Boat Elopement (Comedy)
ECLAIR—Jacques the Wolf (2 parts—Drama)
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly, No. 82 (News)

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2nd, 1913.

IMP—Bleeding Hearts; or Jewish Freedom Under King Casimir of Poland (3 parts—Drama)
REX—His Brand (Drama)
FRONTIER—The Shop Girls Big Day (Comedy)

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 3rd, 1913.

NESTOR—His Brother's Wives (Comedy)
POWERS—The Trap (Drama)
VICTOR—The Closed Door (2 parts—Drama)

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4th, 1913.

IMP—His Priceless Treasure (Comedy)
IMP—Whimsicalities by Hy. Mayer (Novelty)
FRONTIER—A Girl of the Dance Halls (Drama)
101 BISON—Good-for-Nothing Jack (2 parts—Drama)

Mutual Film Corporation Current Releases

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1913.

MAJESTIC—The Shoemaker and the Doll (Drama)
THANHOUSER—When the Worm Turned (Com.—Dr.)

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd, 1913.

AMERICAN—The Ghost of the Hacienda (2 parts—Dr.)
KEYSTONE—(Title Not Reported)
RELIANCE—The Hardest Way (Drama)

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23rd, 1913.

MAJESTIC—An Aesthetic Match (Comedy)
MAJESTIC—The Baseball Umpire (Comedy)
THANHOUSER—An Unfair Exchange (Drama)

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24th, 1913.

BRONCHO—Silent Heroes (2 parts—Drama)
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly No. 39 (News)
RELIANCE—The Missing Ring (Drama)

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Mrs. Carter's Campaign (Comedy)
KEYSTONE—(Title Not Reported)

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26th, 1913.

KAY-BEE—The Forlorn Hope (Drama)
THANHOUSER—The Official Goat Protector (Comedy—Drama)

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Master of Himself (Drama)
MAJESTIC—A Slight Misunderstanding (Comedy)
RELIANCE—The Original Will (Drama)

Advance Releases

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 28th, 1913.

MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported)
THANHOUSER—(Title Not Reported)

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1913.

AMERICAN—The Flirt and the Bandit (Drama) 1000
KEYSTONE—(Title Not Reported)
RELIANCE—(Title Not Reported)

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30th, 1913.

MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported)
THANHOUSER—(Title Not Reported)

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 1st, 1913.

BRONCHO—The Greenhorn (2 parts—Drama)
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 40 (News)
RELIANCE—(Title Not Reported)

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2nd, 1913.

AMERICAN—The Badge of Honor (Drama) 1000
DOMINO—Exoneration (2 parts—Drama)
KEYSTONE—(Title Not Reported)

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 3rd, 1913.

KAY-BEE—Loaded Dice (Drama)
THANHOUSER—(Title Not Reported)

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Crooks and Credulous (Drama) 1000
MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported)
RELIANCE—(Title Not Reported)

Exclusive Supply Corporation Current Releases

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd, 1913.

SOLAX—Rogues of Paris (Feature—3 parts—Drama)

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23rd, 1913.

GAUMONT—The Sheriff's Devotion (Drama)

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24th, 1913.

DRAGON—Her Last Ride (Feature—3 parts—Drama)
GAUMONT—Gaumont's Weekly No. 81 (News)
SOLAX—The Quality of Mercy (Drama)

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25th, 1913.

ITALA—Unmasked (Feature—2 parts—Drama)
GAUMONT—An Awful Relapse (Comedy)

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26th, 1913.

LUX—(Title Not Reported)
SOLAX—The Soul of Man (Drama)

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27th, 1913.

GREAT NORTHERN—Won By Waiting (Comedy)

DOMINO FILMS

Multiple reel productions combining education with sensation and spectacularism

Dramas of the Sea and of Puritan Days

"EXONERATION"

TWO REELS, OCTOBER 2

A wonderful drama of Puritan days, in which the scenes are laid in England, on the Atlantic Ocean, and in America, combining situations which include splendid acting, a mutiny at sea, battles with the Indians and an absorbing heart story.

Domino Motion Picture Corporation

LONG ACRE BUILDING
BROADWAY, at 42nd Street
NEW YORK CITY

MUTUAL PROGRAM EXCLUSIVELY

Calendar of Licensed Releases.

CURRENT RELEASES.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—The Law and His Son (Drama
EDISON—The Honor of the Force (Drama)	1000
KALEM—The Counterfeiter's Confederate (Drama)	1000
LUBIN—Poker Paid (Comedy)	400
LUBIN—This Isn't John (Comedy)	600
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly No. 52 (News)
SELIG—The Young Mrs. Eames (Special—2 parts—Dr.)	1500
SELIG—Sissybelle (Comedy)	1000
VITAGRAPH—Daddy's Soldier Boy (Drama)	1000

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23rd, 1913.

EDISON—The Stroke of the Phoebus (Drama)	1000
ESSANAY—For Old Time's Sake (Drama)	1000
LUBIN—A Mexican Tragedy (Drama)	1000
PATHEPLAY—The Blind Gypsy (Drama)
CINES—For His Brother's Crime (Special—2 parts—Dr.)
SELIG—Bumps and Willie (Comedy)	1000
VITAGRAPH—Extremities (Comedy)
VITAGRAPH—Scenes in Singapore (Travel)

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24th, 1913.

EDISON—The Embarrassment of Riches (Comedy)	1000
ESSANAY—Love Incognito (Comedy)	1000
KALEM—A Midnight Message (Special—2 parts—Dr.)	1000
PATHEPLAY—The Secret Treasure (Drama)
SELIG—The Spell of the Primeval (Drama)	1000
VITAGRAPH—The Other Woman (Drama)	1000

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—A Saturday Holiday (Comedy)
BIOGRAPH—The End of the World (Comedy)
ESSANAY—Days of the Pony Express (Drama)	1000
LUBIN—Self-Convicted (Special—2 parts—Drama)	2000
MELIES—A Cambodian Idyll (Drama)	1000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly No. 53 (News)
PATHEPLAY—Blazing a New Trail in Glacier National Park, Montana (Scenic)
PATHEPLAY—The Sago Industry in Borneo (Industrial)
SELIG—The Capture of "Bad Brown" (Comedy)	1000
VITAGRAPH—The Race (Drama)	1000

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26th, 1913.

EDISON—Hard Cash (Special—2 parts—Drama)	2000
ESSANAY—In Convict Garb (Special—2 parts—Drama)	2000
KALEM—The Hobo and the Myth (Comedy)
KALEM—The Largest Duck Farm in the World (Zoo.)
LUBIN—Winning His Wife (Comedy)	1000
PATHEPLAY—Birds of Prey (Bird Life)
PATHEPLAY—Sicily the Picturesque (Travel)
SELIG—The Policeman and the Baby (Drama)
SELIG—The Taj Mahal, Agra, India, (Travel)
VITAGRAPH—Bunny for the Cause (Comedy)	1000

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—The Influence of the Unknown (Drama)
EDISON—A Proposal from the Sculptor (Being the third of the Series "Who Will Marry Mary?")	1000
ESSANAY—Why Broncho Billy Left Bear County (Dr.)	1000
KALEM—A Demand for Justice (Drama)	1000
LUBIN—The Great Discovery (Drama)	1000
PATHEPLAY—The Fish With a Storage Battery in its Brain
PATHEPLAY—The Pearl of the Bosphorous, Constantinople (Travel)
PATHEPLAY—Promenade in Rome (Travel)
VITAGRAPH—Under the Daisies (Spec.—2 parts—Dr.)	2000

ADVANCE RELEASES.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—Dyed But Not Dead (Comedy)
BIOGRAPH—With the Aid of Phrenology (Comedy)
EDISON—The Stolen Models (Comedy)	1000
KALEM—The Atheist (Drama)
LUBIN—The Invader (Drama)	1000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly, No. 54 (News)
SELIG—The Invisible Government (Drama)
VITAGRAPH—When the West was Young (Drama)	1000

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30th, 1913.

EDISON—A Daughter of Romany (Drama)	1000
ESSANAY—A Ray of God's Sunshine (Drama)	1000
LUBIN—The Actress and Her Jewels (Drama)	400
LUBIN—The Constable's Daughter (Comedy)	600
PATHEPLAY—Lillie's Nightmare (Comedy)
PATHEPLAY—The Deschutes Canyon, Washington (Scenic)
CINES—Misgotten Gains (Special—2 parts—Drama)
SELIG—The False Friend (Drama)	1000
VITAGRAPH—Which? (Comedy)	1000

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 1st, 1913.

EDISON—Mr. Toots' Tooth (Comedy)
EDISON—Damascus and the Ruins of Baalbek (Travel)
ESSANAY—A Successful Failure (Comedy)	1000
KALEM—The Battle at Fort Laramie (Special—2 parts—Drama)	2000
PATHEPLAY—Oxygen (Scientific)
PATHEPLAY—Along the Padas River (Scenic)
SELIG—The Cattle Thief's Escape (Drama)
SELIG—The Elephant as a Workman, Rangoon, India (Educational)
VITAGRAPH—Salvation Sal (Drama)	1000

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2nd, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—A Tender Hearted Crook (Drama)
ESSANAY—The Belle of Siskiyou (Drama)	1000
LUBIN—The Special Officer (Special—2 parts—Drama)	2000
MELIES—(Title Not Reported)
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly, No. 55 (News)
PATHEPLAY—The Depth of Hate (Special—2 parts—Drama)
SELIG—Our Neighbors (Drama)
VITAGRAPH—The Autocrat of Flapjack Junction (Drama)	1000

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 3rd, 1913.

EDISON—Why Girls Leave Home (Special—2 parts—Comedy)	2000
ESSANAY—Tony the Fiddler (Special—2 parts—Dr.)	2000
KALEM—And the Watch Came Back (Comedy)
KALEM—Historic Boston (Travel)
LUBIN—The Scarf Pin (Drama)	1000
PATHEPLAY—A Clever Story (Drama)
PATHEPLAY—Riding the Flume (Travel)
SELIG—John Bousall of the U. S. Secret Service (Dr.)	1000
VITAGRAPH—The Treasure of Desert Isle (Com.-Dr.)	1000

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—The Chieftain's Sons (Drama)
EDISON—The Contents of the Suitcase (Drama)	1000
ESSANAY—The Struggle (Drama)	1000
KALEM—The Railroad Inspector's Peril (Drama)	1000
LUBIN—For Her Brother's Sake (Drama)	1000
PATHEPLAY—(Title Not Reported)
VITAGRAPH—The Mystery of the Silver Skull (Special—2 parts—Drama)	2000

Clearance Sale of Licensed Posters

To make room for new stock, will sacrifice brand new posters of all licensed releases over two months old, five cents per one sheet, fifteen cents per three sheet, and thirty cents per six sheet. TERMS: Cash with order. Include postage at the rate of one cent per sheet, if ordered by mail.

EXHIBITORS' ADVERTISING & SPECIALTY CO., No. 30 Union Square, New York

Simplex

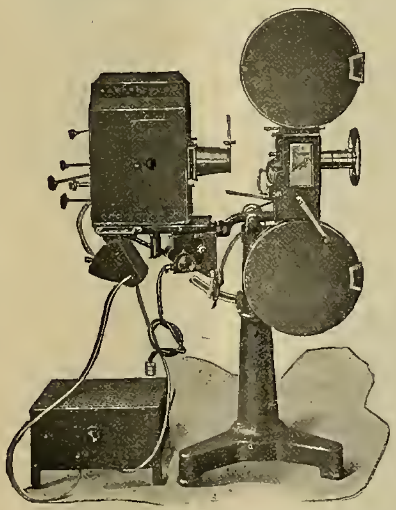
It is a conceded fact that the successful exhibitors realize that a Simplex projector is as essential to their success as their heart is to life.

There is a reason why prominent exhibitors discard almost new machines of other makes, install Simplex projectors and cease worrying about the machine in the booth.

Simplex machines have not only competed successfully with the American-made projectors, but also with over forty types of European machines.

The endorsement of the leading photoplay theatres of the world and over 90 per cent. of the film manufacturers and importers proves that the Simplex projector has shown them a quality of projection heretofore unknown in the Moving Picture world.

Such wonderful features as "Quo Vadis," "East Lynne," the "South Pole Expedition," "Sapho," "In the Bishop's Carriage," "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," "Battle of Gettysburg," etc., would apparently have no more value or punch than a commercial reel, if they were not properly projected.



Why spend hundreds of dollars for film service and then lose it on account of poor projection?

The perfect Simplex projection of the finest theatres in the world and over 90 per cent. of the film manufacturers and importers is within your means, Mr. Exhibitor. Don't wait to think it over.

Write today for Catalogue A

MADE AND GUARANTEED BY

PRECISION MACHINE CO.

317 East 34th Street New York

SELLING BY STATE RIGHTS ONLY

"THE BETROTHED"

(COPYRIGHT 1913)

In Six Reels Total length 5742 feet Ready for delivery NOW

This is the truly remarkable version of the great work of ALEXANDER MANZONI and is judged by all who have seen it a masterpiece. There is but One Successful version of

"THE BETROTHED"

IT IS AMBROSIO'S

Publicity—2 kinds of 1 sheet posters, 1 kind of 3 sheet posters, 2 kinds of 4 sheet posters, 1 kind of 8 sheet posters, heralds, cuts and 2 kinds of photos for lobby display

"Grandmother's Lamp"

In Three Reels (Copyright 1913) Length 2950 feet

A thrilling drama with numerous strong love and war incidents marvellously well depicted, brimful of those big sensations which will inspire a thrill with the most jaded picture show patron.

SOME GOOD TERRITORY STILL OPEN. GET BUSY

PUBLICITY—1, 3 and 8 sheet posters, heralds, photos and cuts

OUR REGULAR RELEASES

"AISSA'S DREAM"

(Two Reels)

A wonderful drama of love and self-sacrifice in which a lion tamer, his wife and child take the leading roles, and in which some extremely exciting lion scenes are depicted.

Ready for delivery Sept. 27th Plenty of posters, heralds and photos

Don't lose this chance, WIRE for particulars

Ambrosio TORINO

Ambrosio American Co.

15 East 26th Street, New York

Ambrosio TORINO

IF YOU SEE "10 REELS IN 3"

GAUMONT'S NEW CITY OFFICES

1503 World's Tower Building 110 West 40th St., New York City

NOTICE

Our new offices, taken specially for the convenience of customers, have proved a great success.

The projection has particularly found favor, for here, high in the air and overlooking New York can be seen

GAUMONT CO'S
BEST AND LATEST RELEASES

Can We Make an Appointment with You?

OUR ALL
American Feature Release

"THE FAITHFUL SERVITOR"
(In Two Reels)

Make sure you get this at once, only a few states left.

PHOTOS
Well Colored and Attractive Posters
1, 3 and 6 Sheets

HERALDS

An exceptional release full of pathos and stirring events, entitled

"THE SHERIFF'S DEVOTION"

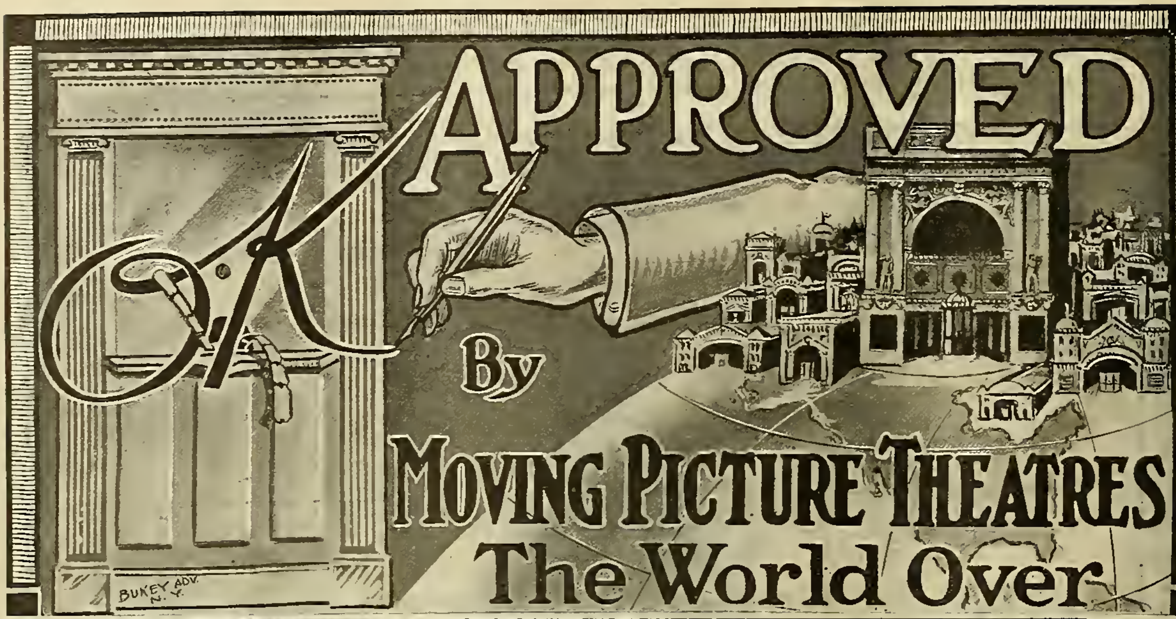
Ordinary Release Sept. 23rd

Full of laughter and awkward predicaments is the release entitled

"AN AWFUL RELAPSE"

Ordinary Release Sept. 25th

YOU KNOW IT'S GAUMONT'S



Our AUTOMATIC TICKET SELLING AND CASH REGISTER

Machines are rapidly becoming a part of the standard equipment of every Theatre and Moving Picture House in the United States and Canada.

If YOU Only KNEW

The Great Merit of this Machine in systematizing your Business & if you could see it in practical operation you would place your order AT ONCE.

It is the SILENT WATCHMAN guarding your financial interest both Day and Night EXPEDITIOUSLY, ACCURATELY & SAFELY

BECAUSE

You can sell INSTANTLY 1,2,3,4 or 5 tickets, by simply pressing a button and foot pedal — THIS SPELLS RAPID SERVICE.

All tickets are sold through our automatic machine—your cashier will handle no tickets, only the cash — THIS SPELLS SAFETY.

Every ticket sold through the machine IS AUTOMATICALLY REGISTERED The register is locked, and YOU HOLD THE KEY, and the register acts as your bookeeper—THIS SPELLS ACCURACY AND EFFICIENCY.

The sooner you buy it the sooner you will appreciate how valuable and helpful it is in conducting Your Business

Every small Grocer, Druggist and Retail Merchant has realized the necessity of a Cash Register

WHY NOT YOU?

SEND FOR ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE AND TERMS

The Automatic Ticket Selling & Cash Register Co
(Send to nearest office)
Please send to the undersigned your Illustrated and Descriptive Catalog—Prices and Terms on your Ticket Selling Machines —
Name ....
Theatre .... St. & No. ....
City and State ....

The Automatic Ticket Selling & Cash Register Co.

THIRD NAT'L BANK BLD'G.
ST. LOUIS MO.

LONGACRE BLD'G. TIMES SQ.
NEW YORK CITY.

CALIFORNIA BLD'G
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

"ARIZONA"

WARNING A Feature Film Exchange in this city is offering an old Urban motion picture, in three short reels, formerly entitled "ARIZONA BILL" with altered posters and titles changed to "ARIZONA."

The copyrighted drama "ARIZONA," familiar to every theatre-goer in this country for many years, has been released by us in SIX REELS, produced under the personal direction of its renowned author,

AUGUSTUS THOMAS

Attempts to deceive the public and filch the profits of this splendid production will doubtless be made by unscrupulous exchanges, aided by short-sighted exhibitors who fail to realize that theatre-goers looking for "ARIZONA" know what they are looking for and cannot be deceived by altered titles and misrepresentations.

All such attempts will be prosecuted and the perpetrators held accountable in damages.

The Original "ARIZONA" is in Six Reels and may be secured from the following authorized distributors:—

Canada	Feature Film Co., of Canada, 205 St. Catherine St., Montreal, Can.
Me., N. H., Vt., R. I., Conn., Mass.,	Famous Players Film Co., of New England, 228 Tremont Ave., Boston, Mass.
New York City and State	Theater Film & Supply Co., 12 Union Square, New York City, N. Y.
No. N. Jersey	David Young, Jr., 137 Roseville Ave., Newark, N. J.
W. Pa., W. Va., Ohio and Ky.	Famous Players Film Service Inc., 125 Fourth Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.
E. Pa., So. N. J., Md., Del. and D. C.	Electric Theater Supply Co., Room No. 303 Abbott Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.
Cal., Ariz. and Nev.	Golden Gate Film Exchange, 234 Eddy St., San Francisco, Cal.
Ore., Wash., Idaho and Mont.	Northwestern Feature Film Co., Portland, Ore.
Missouri	Dalton & Wolf, Grand & Olive Sts., St. Louis.
Germany	Al. H. Woods, Eltinge Theater, New York.

Other territory now being sold. Write for Buyers' addresses.

ALL STAR FEATURE CORPORATION

HARRY R. RAVER President	ARCHIBALD SELWYN Vice-President	GEO. J. COOKE Secretary	PHILIP KLEIN Treasurer

AUGUSTUS THOMAS, Director General of Productions

10th Floor Candler Building, 220 W. 42nd Street, NEW YORK

This Trade Mark The Guarantee of Excellence on Goods Electrical.

THE OLYMPIC MALE QUARTET
BARRETT
RELIANCE
ASHES
SANTORO AFTER

Good Light Draws the Crowd

A brilliantly lighted exterior is a "business getter" for your theater. There is an undeniable attraction about plenty of light—it gives your place a cheery, inviting appearance which gets and maintains custom.

Good light also shows up the signs and is one of your most telling advertisements.

The Type W Flame Arc Lamp

is one of the most powerful lighting units known. It is especially adapted to illuminating the exteriors of theaters. This efficient lamp is economical to install and maintain—one set of carbons burns for 100-120 hours without attention, and only one of these carbons needs renewing at each trim.

The lamp is thoroughly reliable and substantially constructed.

Write to our local office nearest you for further information.

General Electric Company

Atlanta, Ga.
Baltimore, Md.
Birmingham, Ala.
Boise, Idaho.
Boston, Mass.
Buffalo, N. Y.
Butte, Mont.
Charleston, W. Va.
Charlotte, N. C.
Chattanooga, Tenn.
Chicago, Ill.

Cincinnati, Ohio.
Cleveland, Ohio.
Columbus, Ohio.
Davenport, Iowa.
Dayton, Ohio.
Denver, Colo.
Detroit, Mich.
(Office of Agent)
Elmira, N. Y.
Erie, Pa.
Hartford, Conn.

Largest Electrical Manufacturer in the World
General Office: Schenectady, N. Y.
ADDRESS NEAREST OFFICE

Indianapolis, Ind.
Jacksonville, Fla.
Joplin, Mo.
Kansas City, Mo.
Keokuk, Iowa.
Knoxville, Tenn.

Los Angeles, Cal.
Louisville, Ky.
Mattoon, Ill.
Memphis, Tenn.
Milwaukee Wis.
Minneapolis, Minn.

Nashville, Tenn.
New Haven, Conn.
New Orleans, La.
New York, N. Y.
Omaha, Neb.
Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburg, Pa.
Portland, Ore.
Providence, R. I.
Richmond, Va.
Rochester, N. Y.

Salt Lake City, Utah.
San Francisco, Cal.
St. Louis, Mo.
Schenectady, N. Y.
Seattle, Wash.
Spokane, Wash.
Springfield, Mass.
Syracuse, N. Y.
Toledo, Ohio.
Washington, D. C.
Youngstown, Ohio.

For Texas and Oklahoma business refer to Southwest General Electric Company, Dallas, Houston, El Paso and Oklahoma City.
For Canadian business refer to Canadian General Electric Company, Lt'd, Toronto, Ont.

4394

The Trade Mark of the Largest Electrical Manufacturer in The World.

COMING!!

THE TALK OF THE WORLD

ATLANTIS

A MOTION PICTURE MASTERPIECE
IN 9 REELS

Founded upon Gerhart Hauptmann's wonderful novel

WATCH FOR FURTHER ANNOUNCEMENTS

COST OF PRODUCTION:

$60,000

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO.

110 West 40th Street, New York

Broncho Headliners

"The Greenhorn"

2 Reels, October 1

Selig, a Russian, comes from the land of oppression and enlists in the United States Army. His awkwardness makes him the butt of ridicule, and his silent resentment the object of the soldiers' pranks. Misunderstanding the nature of his comrades, Selig becomes obsessed with a bitter hatred, which is intensified when he is ordered to the guardhouse for a week for fighting with miners who were teasing an Indian girl. The Indians go on the warpath, and Selig and a companion are attacked while separated from the main body. The other soldier is killed, and Selig is saved from death by the Indian girl whom he befriended. He resolves to revenge himself for the insults he has suffered and decides to fight with the Indians. The soldiers discover his dead horse and think he is a captive, and resolve to rescue him at all hazards. They keep up their pursuit, through a terrific sandstorm which proves fatal to a number of the boys in blue, and as the soldiers draw close to the redskins, Selig plans to lead them into an ambush and returns, saying he has escaped. The warm welcome he receives surprises him, and when he learns that his comrades were prepared to lay their lives down for him a great wave of understanding sweeps over him and he realizes that the hazing he suffered was only meant in play. That night the Indians surround the soldiers, while Selig is having a mental battle, and he hears the hoot of an owl—the signal of the Indians to him. He warns the Captain and leads the soldiers to a safe position, and in the battle that ensues the Indians are defeated, but Selig is killed, and receives the homage of a hero from the sorrowful soldiers.

Broncho Motion Picture Co.

Long Acre Bldg., 42d St. and Bdwy.
NEW YORK CITY
MUTUAL PROGRAM EXCLUSIVELY

Kay-Bee Features

"Loaded Dice"

1 Reel, October 3

Tom Hood and Bud Colt become lost on the desert with only a few ounces of meal and a quart of water left. They shake dice to see who gets the water and is allowed to go on to the settlement. Bud sees that he is losing and quickly shifts the dice, using loaded dice. After Bud has left the camp Tom finds one of the loaded dice, realizes the trick played, and resolves to get even. After suffering untold agony from thirst he reaches a miner's cabin. He then follows Bud's trail and when he sees Bud at a distance trying to make his way along the edge of the desert Tom circles ahead and changes the sign on the guide-post, misleading Bud, who goes straight into Death Valley. At the settlement Tom receives a letter from his sweetheart stating that her brother, who left home when a boy and who had adopted the name of Bud Colt, was coming home to see his dying mother, and asking Tom to come with him. Tom's heart is touched, and after a battle with himself he plunges into the blistering desert, rescues Bud and takes him home.

N. Y. Motion Picture Corp.

Long Acre Bldg., 42d St. and Bdwy.
NEW YORK CITY
MUTUAL PROGRAM EXCLUSIVELY

Keystone Comedies

Four Winners In A Row

"When Dreams Come True"

Released September 22

The peddler is addicted to the flowing bowl. He enters a saloon to quench a very big thirst and sets his bundle on the floor. The snake charmer, with a fine assortment of reptiles is also an honored member of the bar. Result: The packages get mixed, and during the night the peddler is awakened by wriggling serpents who manifest a decided affection for him.

"The Faithful Taxicab"

Released September 18

An absurd melodrama, teeming with sensation, and bristling with comedy situations. The rivals, in taxicab and automobile, have a thrilling battle for the girl they love, and play some wild-west stunts with the modern vehicles, snatching the girl from each other at full speed, and hurling bombs from which they escape as if by a miracle. This film will be long remembered.

"What Father Saw" and "Willie Minds The Dog"

A Split Reel, Released September 15

In the first, father is a student of the heavens and has a big telescope. His daughter has a hated suitor. One night while star gazing he sees through the telescope his daughter and the man, and then the trouble starts.

In the second, Willie is left home to play with the dog while his parents are away. The servant is too attentive to her sweetheart and Willie goes out and gets lost. The frantic efforts to find the child develop laughable scenes.

"The Gypsy Queen"

Released September 11

Another melodramatic—comedy—sensational subject, with Mabel as the Gypsy queen with a rival for the affection of the man she loves.

KEYSTONE FILM CO.

Long Acre Bldg., 42d St. and Bdwy.
NEW YORK CITY
MUTUAL PROGRAM EXCLUSIVELY

THE GREATEST AND MOST ELABORATE OF ALL AMERICAN MADE PRODUCTIONS

The Eminent Tragedian MR. FREDERICK WARDE in

KING RICHARD III

4 REELS BEAUTIFUL PHOTOGRAPHY 4000 FEET

A Vivid and Faithful Portrayal of the Crook-Backed Soldier King
"A Horse! A Horse! My Kingdom For a Horse!"

Crowning of Richard III.

Battle of Bosworth Field.

King Richard at the Head of his army.

100 Big Scenes
1000 People
200 Horses
Scenes of War and Carnage
Clash of Armies
Grim Old Tower of London
Ancient Guildhalls and Temple Bar
The Dastardly Murder of the Crown Princes
The Battle of Bosworth Field
The Duel on Horseback
The Murder of King Henry
Combat and Death of Richard
The Last of the Plantagenets
Other Terrifying and Realistic Scenes Faithfully Portrayed

Richard accepts crown at the appeal of citizens.

Death of King Richard.

The arrival of the Crown Prince in London.

Magnificent Spectacle of Terrifying Vividness Pictured with Startling and Extraordinary Dramatic Effect

WIRE NOW State Right Operators WIRE NOW

Beautiful Line of Pictorial Printing at Morgan Litho. Co., Cleveland, Ohio. Photos, Heralds, Slides, Cuts, Etc.

WIRE Will Be Sold At Bargain Prices WIRE

Sterling Camera and Film Co., 145 W. 45th Street, New York City

LICENSED FILM STORIES

LUBIN.

THE INVADER (Sept. 29).—Daniel Mosby, a squatter, is the father of a beautiful daughter and is ordered to vacate the land on which he built his homestead, by John Bradford, a miserly real estate dealer. Bradford sends his son, Tom, to execute his orders, but when he arrives at Mosby's home, he meets Ellen, the daughter, and falls in love with her. Ellen, however, is engaged to Jack Mellon and resents Tom's advances. One day when Tom forces his attentions on her, Jack knocks him down and, in a spirit of revenge, Tom decides to carry out his father's order immediately. In the meantime, Mrs. M sby and Ellen call on Bradfird in the hope of securing an extension of time to look for another home. The old man, however, is obdurate and demands $1,000 for the land. Jack, who has been greatly worried over the Mosby's troubles, has saved $500 and decides to apply it toward the purchase of the land paying the balance on the installment plan. He arrives at the office after Ellen and Mrs. Mosby leave. Bradford is only to glad to find a buyer and closes the deal at once. In the meantime, Tom, with two rough characters, is on his way to burn down the house. Throwing out the furniture, they set fire to the building and are attempting to get away unseen when they are stopped by Mosby and the sheriff. Jack, too, arrives on the scene and confronts Tom. He admits to having set fire to the property, and Jack produces his receipt which had been signed sometime before the fire was started. Fearing a term in jail for arson, Tom pleads to be allowed to see his father. In company with the sheriff, Jack and the Mosby's, he is taken to his father's office where the Mosby family and Jack are given a paid up title deed to the land and a sum of money to rebuild the home so wantonly destroyed.

THE CONSTABLE'S DAUGHTER (Sept. 30).—Ray Jordon, having just purchased a new automobile, invites his friend, Jack Clifford, to go with him while he tries the new machine out. While they are speeding over a country road, they attract the attention of Constable Hackard, who instructs his daughter to get his six shooter and his club, so he can catch the speeders. He loses no time in jumping in front of the machine with drawn revolver. Naturally Ray and Jack, with a six shooter staring them in the face, come to a stop. An argument is started as to the speed the car was traveling, when the constable's daughter Maud puts in an appearance. It is a case of love at first sight on Jack's part; he immediately withdraws from the argument and starts in talking to Maud. Ray and the constable can come to no agreement, and Ray is ordered to drive to the Justice of the Peace; the constable takes a seat along side of Ray while Jack takes a seat in the rear of the machine and waves a goodbye to Maud. On their arrival at the Justice of the Peace, Ray is still putting up an argument but Jack cheerfully pays the fine, thinking the price is well worth meeting the pretty daughter. Jack becomes a persistent suitor and is constantly being chased away from Constable Hackard's house. He frames up a scheme with his friend Ray to go out on the road and speed, so the constable will arrest him. When he gets the constable in the car, he is to drive him at break neck speed, in a round-about way to the Justice of the Peace. While Ray is driving the constable around Jack has made a short cut to the Justice and by the time Ray and the constable arrive, Jack and Maud have been married. After the constable sees the humor of the affair he blesses them both but makes Ray pay a fine.

THE ACTRESS AND HER JEWELS (Sept. 30).—Dottie Dare, an actress who has not had the press attention that she thinks she should have, hires a personal press agent. He, very desirous of getting employer all the notice that is possible, arranges to have her diamonds stolen. While he is planning with a fake crook to steal the diamonds, a real thief overhears the plan and beats it to the hotel first. Dottie, never having the acquaintance of a burglar and not being informed that this particular crook was to look like, meets him when he enters the hotel room and blows him to champagne, gives him an autographed photograph, and on the whole they spend a very pleasant little time. He decides that it is about time to go with all the jewels and he departs. Shortly after the real crook has gone, the press agent and his burglar arrive, and much to their surprise Dottie informs them that the burglar has been there and has taken her jewels. The two of them are nearly knocked off their feet and think that the best thing that they can do is to make their escape. They do so down the fire escape and when they arrive at the bottom the fellow that the press agent has hired with the promise of a handsome reward, seeing the reward had disappeared, gives the agent a thrashing for his trouble.

THE SPECIAL OFFICER (Special—2 parts—Oct. 2).—Daddy Bowne has been janitor and special officer of the Boonville Bank ever since it started thirty years ago. Robert Gage, the president, and Daddy have been friends since boyhood. Daddy and his wife and his son, Tom, who has worked his way up from office boy to paying teller, live over the bank. There is no social distinction between the families, so Tom and Grace, the president's daughter, have become sweethearts. Duncan Ross, a well dressed young fellow, appears on the scene for the purpose of selling stock in a get-rich-quick scheme under the name of "The Wireless Power Co." He succeeds in securing the good opinion of Mr. Gage, who rents him an office in the building and introduces him to his daughter and patrons of his bank. Ross creates a furor and the citizens fall over one another to buy Wireless stock. Grace is infatuated; Tom is neglected.

Tom suspects Ross' scheme is a fraud and is supported by his father. To give color to the honesty of his purpose Ross deposited daily his receipt from the sale of stocks with The Boonville Bank. The stock is all sold and Ross fearing to prolong his stay announces that he will banquet the citizens before his departure. Tom finds Grace coming from Ross' office one evening and followed by Ross. A fight takes place; Daddy separates the young men, drags Tom into his own room and tries to quiet him. Tom declares he will leave and begins packing his bag.

On her way home Grace misses her mesh bag and returns to Ross' office. Ross believing she has returned to see him attempts to take her in his arms. Her screams bring Tom to her rescue and Ross is knocked insensible to the floor. Daddy finds Tom bending over Ross, fearful that he has killed him. After a moment of suspense Ross indicates returning consciousness, and Daddy tells his boy to take his bag and go. Cautioning his father to prevent Ross from drawing his money from the bank for two days if possible, Tom takes his bag and leaves. Ross revives and Daddy urges him from the room. Daddy collapses on the stairs, where his wife finds him. The next morning Daddy is ill and his mind wandering. Tom has left a note for Mr. Gage telling of his intended departure. Pencilling the combination to the safe on the back of the note, Mr. Gage gives it to his son, Bob, who has just returned from college and tells him he will have to take Tom's place. Bob, after copying the combination, crumples the note and flings it into the waste basket. Here Mother Bowne sees her boy's writing and takes it to her husband. That night in looking it over he discovers the combination pencilled on the back. A way to prevent the money from being paid to Ross on the following morning suggests itself. While Ross' banquet is going on he rifles the safe and conceals the money in the cashier's desk.

The next morning Ross calls for his money. He sees the empty safe and gives the alarm. Tom, in the meantime, has returned with the Post Office Inspectors. He comes into the mob battling at the bank door. Daddy also, from the upper window, sees the mob. The sheriff and inspectors break through the mob as Daddy discloses the hiding place of the money. Ross is arrested and taken away as Daddy is being congratulated on saving the bank from a real robbery.

THE SCARF PIN (Oct. 3).—When George Terwilliger marries May Forrest he invites his chum, Tom Nugent, to act as his best man at the wedding, not knowing that Tom is madly in love with May himself, nor that at one time May had practically accepted Tom's love, but had finally thrown him over in favor of himself. Tom's great failing is drink. At the wedding reception he indulges too freely and creates a scene accusing May of having jilted him in favor of George's money. Realizing that his chum is not in his right mind, George forgives him and the two continue their friendship, although George is disturbed at learning that May did actually encourage Tom. As a souvenir of the wedding, George gives Tom a handsome scarf pin. Later Tom learns that May and George are returning to town unexpectedly from a trip that was supposed to have lasted sometime. He learns that May will be home that morning while George will not be home until that night. Being under the influence of liquor, Tom's brain recalls his old passion. He finds May alone in the house. May resents his advances but having gotten into the house, he refuses to leave. May hides from him. In searching for her, he goes upstairs. A fiendish idea takes hold of him. Removing the scarf pin from his tie, he lays it upon George's dressing table and goes back to the club. A few hours later George stops at the club to shake hands with the boys before going home. Tom, awakening from a drunken sleep, realizes what an awful thing he had done and tries to get to the house before George; but he fails. He knows that unless he recovers the pin, George is bound to discover it when he prepares to go to bed. Tom decides upon desperate measures. Entering the house through the kitchen window, he steals up stairs only to find the access to the bed room blocked by May and George who are in the adjoining room talking. But the pin must be recovered. George must not find it. Tom returns down stairs, and deliberately sends a jardiniere crashing to the floor. George comes down stairs with a revolver to find the burglar. A chase through the house ensues. But Tom succeeds in recovering the pin, and making his escape, without being seen by George.

FOR HER BROTHER'S SAKE (Oct. 4).—Grace Merrill and her brother Edwin, orphans are doing light housekeeping in a cheap apartment, when a letter reaches them from a wealthy uncle on a Southern California ranch offering them a home with him. Grace welcomes the opportunity, but Edwin objects to leaving the city and persuades her to go without him. Upon her arrival at her uncle's ranch Grace meets his foreman, Jack Winston and they are mutually attracted. Jack has been engaged in a love affair with a Spanish dancer employed in a concert hall frequented by the Mexicans, but when he meets Grace he promptly breaks with her. Inez creates a scene in the concert hall by trying to stab Jack, and when he leaves she follows him and discovers his relations with Grace. After a time Grace and Jack are married and establish a home, and Inez broods over the loss of her lover. In the East, Grace's brother finds it difficult to make a living; he is broke and the prosperity of the Western country attracts him and he decides to follow his sister.

Arriving in the Western town he visits the town drinking place to make inquiries and through no fault of his becomes involved in a quarrel with a drunken cowboy, who picks a fight. In attempting to disarm the cowboy the revolver is discharged and Edwin finds himself in the position of his slayer. He flees from the place with the crowd after him, but dodges his pursuers and takes refuge in the barn on the premises where his sister lives with her husband. There she finds him and consents to hide him until night and obtain money for his escape. Inez sees Grace and a stranger together in the barn, hears the appointment for that night made and decides to make use of the information. She lies in wait for Jack and makes one last desperate effort to win him back. When he tells her that his wife is the only woman he can love she tells her story and again urges him to take her. Jack is suspicious and determines to watch. At night he retires and pretends to sleep but listens and watches. He hears his wife leave the house, follows her and sees her embracing a strange man who escapes before he can reach them. In his excitement he accuses his wife in a manner that so angers her that she refuses to explain and they quarrel and separate. A week later a letter comes from Edwin and Jack opens it by mistake. It throws a flood of light on past events and shows him his mistake. He goes at once to acknowledge the wrong he has done Grace and she, convinced of his love and loving him in return, consents to a reconciliation. Meanwhile, Inez also has found a way to mend a broken heart.

ESSANAY.

A RAY OF GOD'S SUNSHINE (Sept. 30).—The father, an habitual drunkard, is sent by the physician to fill a prescription needed for his little daughter who is dangerously ill. While on his way, he meets a friend who induces him to go into a saloon. He drinks himself into forgetfulness of his suffering child, and with the money the doctor had given him for the medicine, he buys a bird from a peddler. Memory is awakened through the prescription memorandum which he still carries in his hand. Filled with remorse he returns home. In the meantime, the physician has saved the child's life by going for the medicine himself. In the morning the cheerful song of the bird seems to bring life and strength to the little girl, while in the father a new man is born, and he swears to his now happy wife that he will never drink again.

A SUCCESSFUL FAILURE (Oct. 1).—Ray and Roy Cheep are both in love with the charming manicurist, but each is unaware of his brother's "affairs." The lady, however, encourages both of them. The two boys are hard up, but live in hopes of their rich uncle loosening up with a substantial allowance. Finally the uncle tells them that he will give $1,000 to the one who marries first. They each go off for a license and a minister, but when they arrive at Miss Charmer's house they find her about to go out with uncle. The next day then each receive a check for $1,000, which helps to console them for the loss of the charming lady.

THE BELLE OF SISKIYOU (Oct. 2).—Unable to bear her father's cruelty, May leaves home. Black Moody finds her crying, and wandering around aimlessly. Taking her away, he installs her as barmaid in his saloon. Moody before this has held up the stage coach, and although the sheriff is rather suspicious of him, he has no positive evidence, until the bandit's wife, furious at his bringing the girl into their home, gives him away. The man is arrested and May is taken back to her home by the young sheriff, to whom the girl's beauty and sweetness has made a strong appeal. A pretty romance between May and the sheriff later develops.

THE STRUGGLE (Oct. 4).—Dr. Sharp and his wife, Gretchen, live happily together in a little Western town until the advent of the doctor's brother, Fred, who comes from the East to spend his vacation near his brother. He meets the doctor's wife and immediately falls in love, but visits her only when he knows his brother is away. The doctor learning of Fred's visits, shoots him. He repents, however, when he sees his brother's serious condition and does all he can to restore him. Affairs are happily adjusted when Fred on regaining consciousness begs forgiveness of his brother, and Gretchen assures her husband that she loves him only.

For State Rights Buyers

A Unique Novelty :: Absolutely Exclusive

Official Motion Pictures

New York Fashion Show

Held at Grand Central Palace

ALL the correct new fashions displayed in three interesting reels and forty colored slides. A really new feature that will crowd theatres everywhere with interested women

Released September 29th

STATE Rights buyers can make a "clean up" with this high-class novelty. Our special plan of co-operation ensures far more than usual profits. NOW is the time. Write, wire or call for particulars

---

WILBUR W. NUGENT
156 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY
Telephone Gramercy 4949

HERMAN OBROCK, Jr.
Technical Director

TONY THE FIDDLER (Special—2 parts—Oct. 3).—"Big Bill" has for some time, by bank robberies and holdups, been terrorizing all the towns along the border, and every sheriff and deputy in the country has been making strenuous efforts to capture him. No one seems to know the man by sight, who in reality is Bill Carson, one of the Valleyfield's well known citizens. He is in daily intercourse with Mercer, the unsuspecting sheriff, and one day is shown a letter by that official stating that a large shipment of silver is coming, by stage from Silver City Mining Company to Valleyfield, and asking for the sheriff's protection against "Big Bill." Carson, on seeing the note, immediately makes his preparations. He holds up the coach and gets possession of the shipment of silver. Among the passengers on the stage is a young Italian musician, who, when the bandit sees him with a violin, is ordered to remain behind and entertain him. After playing at the point of a gun for some time, he is allowed to go on his way, and finally arrives at Valleyfield, footsore and hungry, where he is befriended by Sue, the daughter of the sheriff.

In the meantime, when the sheriff hears of the outrageous holdup, he sends his deputies out after the bandit and when they come back dispirited after a fruitless search, he offers a thousand dollars reward for the capture. Carson is already on hand when the deputies return, but in a moment of recklessness gives himself away. The sheriff has his man at last, but not for long, as, in spite of the four or five men surrounding him, Bill cleverly manages to get away.

Tony has fallen in love with Sue, and in order to be near her applies to the sheriff for a job as deputy. Sue, however, does not return his affection, but the optimistic young musician attributes her failure to respond to his attentions to the fact that he is poor, and remembering "Big Bill's" fondness for music, he conceives an idea for capturing the bandit, thereby winning the thousand dollars, and incidently, Sue. He finds his way to the cave, where "Big Bill" is known to be in hiding, and with his enchanting music, lulls his victim to sleep. After getting possession of his revolver he awakens the man, ties his arms and brings him back to town. He receives the reward, which along with his heart he proudly offers to Sue, and keen is his disappointment when he learns the girl is already engaged. Taking his beloved violin Tony wanders off by himself and the soul of the musician soon finds relief and solace in his music.

GEORGE KLEINE.

HIGH TREASON (Cines—Special—2 parts—Sept. 16).—The story centers about a government wireless operator who finds his salary too small to meet the demands of his wife. A banker, speculating on the decline of stocks in the event of war, bribes the operator to change the government message, announcing the success of the peace negotiations, to read that a declaration of war is inevitable, so that his Board of Trade operation would prove successful. The wireless operator accepts the bribe and perverts a message. All that follows shows a nation in the throes of a great war. The entire operation of getting out a war "extra" from the time the false message is received in the editorial rooms until the street urchins and old women get the "extra" on the street, is shown. The excitement of the stoic compositors in the press rooms setting the "scare head," and even the haste of the "devil" is racing to and fro from editorial offices to press room is very realistic and interesting. Much of the film was made on the day that Italy declared war against Turkey, and the Cines people swept the streets of Rome with their cameras gathering some splendid views of the "war-mad" thousands as they thronged the big thoroughfares, shouting and waving papers, and carrying stump orators around on their shoulders. To further carry out the thread of the story, the Cinese Company made use of some splendid pictures taken during the Balkan War, of the big thirteen-inch disappearing guns; many inspiring cavalry charges and infantry engagements.

As a punishment, the only son of the wireless operator, whose traitorious action created the war, is killed by the burst of a bomb in one of the first battles. This was the only battle scene the Cines Company found it necessary to stage. Incidentally, one of the features of the story includes a three-minute scene from the Opera "Aida," showing about a thousand people watching the performance, with the stage with its multifurious costumes in the distance.

All this material has been worked into an especially pretty story. The casual picture goer will wonder how the picture company managed to get such realistic scenes and such crowds of people.

EDISON.

THE STOLEN MODELS (Sept. 29).—Walter Clyde was having trouble with his models. He was trying very hard to paint a picture that would represent his ideal of femininity. Imagine the feelings of a man who wanted to paint a picture representing his ideal of womanly charm and grace when he discovered that his model chewed gum. Almost at the point of giving up in despair, Walter looked across the courtyard and immediately discovered a beautiful young girl.

Walter seized his brushes and blocked in a rough outline on his canvas.

Strangely enough the Ideal of Femininity was also having trouble with models. She as it happened was looking for an ideal of masculinity. She wanted to paint the picture of a sturdy young man with a pipe in his mouth. Imagine the feelings of a woman who wanted to paint a picture representing her ideal of masculine strength and beauty, when she discovered her model smoked only cigarettes!

One day when Walter had finished his picture from a number of stolen glimpses of his unsuspecting model, he sat down at the window and gave himself up to meditation, puffing slowly at his pipe. The girl whose name was Betty saw him and shrieked with delight. At once she began to paint him. When Walter laid aside the pipe and started in on a cigar, Betty managed to get rid of the latter objectionable weed by a dexterous manipulation of a long broom. Walter was surprised at the sudden disappearance of his choice Havana but since he did not have another, was obliged to go back to the pipe.

Betty and Walter went to the exhibition on the same day and discovered each others pictures—hanging side by side. The rest was easy.

A DAUGHTER OF ROMANY (Sept. 30).—When Lord Laversham was a young man, he saved the life of a gypsy girl in an accident. The chance meeting made a deep impression on the young lord, and not long afterward Mona and Laversham were secretly married.

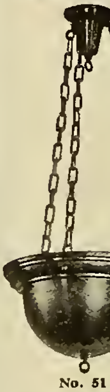
A year later, Mona appeared at Knole Hall with a baby in her arms. Laversham accepted the little girl as his heir, and took her away from her mother. Mona went back to her gypsy caravan, and little Helen was given the training and education that befitted the heiress of the Knole estate.

When Helen had grown to be a girl of eighteen, she went riding with her father, one day, and happened upon a gypsy encampment. A mutual recognition followed between Laversham and the old fortune teller who had once been the beautiful Mona. Two days later, Laversham was fatally injured in a riding accident. On his death bed, he made Helen promise to marry the man of her choice, Captain Ronald Courtney, without delay. While she was still mourning for her father, Helen's mother appeared at Knole Hall and discovered herself to her daughter. Urged by filial respect and also by the strain of wild gypsy blood which was in her, Helen followed Mona to the gypsy camp. For the refined, highly cultured girl, the sordidness of the life appeared in all its repulsiveness as soon as the first glamor had worn away. A handsome young scoundrel named Ben, resplendent in earrings and gay scarves, made her life miserable with his continual overtures. When Captain Courtney finally discovered her whereabouts, he found a girl who had bitterly repented of her sudden freakish whim, and who was only too glad to return to the life she had always known. So Helen and Courtney were married, while Mona, scorning alike their offers of money and a home, tramped along the dusty brown roads which are the heritage of the Romany race.

SELIG.

THE FIFTH STRING (Special—2 parts—Sept. 15).—Angelo Diotti, a violinist, although encouraged by the eulogy of the musical profession, fails to impress Mildred Wallace, with whom he is in love, by his efforts on the violin. At a reception, given at the Wallace home, he is the cynosure of the eyes of the ladies, but Mildred characterizes the young violinist's protestations of musical effort as asininity, rather than artistry. He leaves the house in a very much dejected and despondent mood and sails for a desolate island, where he begins practising. The more he tries the more he thinks he preceives that his ability is waning, and in a fit of melancholy he dashes his violin to the floor and crushes it with his feet. At this juncture a phantom figure appears in the doorway of his leafy shack. He hands Diotti a card bearing the inscription, "Satan, Prince of Darkness." Following closely behind his Satanic Majesty is a decrepit sort of being who holds in his palsied hands a violin. The old man plays with such exquisite harmony that Diotti is entranced, but no sonner has the bent old figure touched the fifth string of the violin when he falls dead. Satan then tells Diotti that the first string means pity, the second, hope; the third, love; the fourth, joy; but the fifth means —death.

Diotti, his ability restored by the magic violin, soon leaves his secluded abode and is soon in the manager's office. The execrations of the latter gentlemen are stopped by the exquisite strains of music eminating from the musician's violin. At the club a friend of the Wallace family takes advantage of Diotti's absence from the room, in which he has left the magic violin, and plays upon it. His musical effusion is not of long duration, for he soon touches the fifth string and he falls dead. Diotti, although stunned by the death of the young amateur violinist, harkens to the call of the manager and he accepts an offer to play at a grand concert. The concert is a huge success and the prestige of the violinist is restored. Mildred succumbs to the beautiful music and shows her love for him. He is invited to many functions, but the lure of the palatial home of the Wallaces and of his inamorata, Mildred, proves too strong for him, and he decides to play for them. Mildred's father, who is also a skilled musician, calls his daughter's attention to the fifth string. Although Diotti has always managed to avoid playing on the fatal string, he decides to satisfy the curiosity of Mil-



Indirect Lights for Moving Picture Theatres

No. 51.—15" diam., 36" long $6.00

No. 52.—20" diam., 36" long $8.00

No. 53 Brackets $1.65 Complete with green art shade

Cannot be duplicated for double the money in any local chandelier store. We make a specialty of lighting. Write us.

NOTE. Send for circular showing very latest novelties for first class moving picture theatres.

No. 51

GENERAL SPECIALTY CO.
409 Morgan Street St. Louis, Mo.

The House of a Thousand Features

Exclusive Subjects

M. & F. FEATURE FILM CORPORATION
167 West Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.

All Union Eclair features for Illinois and Wisconsin.

Bookingnow, "Doomed to Die"

ON THE BORDER LINE

IT PAYS to make an attractive LOBBY DISPLAY

Our Photo and Poster Frames are it

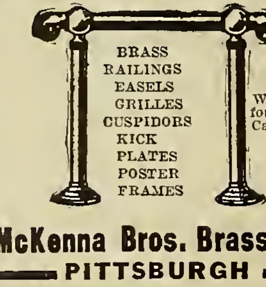
Best Quality { Brass Compoboard Glass } Used

Hanging Frames, with Glass $4
Easel Frames : : : : 6

Write for our Prices on other styles

Theatre Specialty Mfg. Co.
357 W. 42d St., New York
Main Office and Factory, Cleveland, Ohio.

No. 2 EASEL

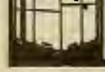


McKENNA

BRASS
RAILINGS
EASELS
GRILLES
CUSPIDORS
KICK
PLATES
POSTER
FRAMES

Write for Catalog.

McKenna Bros. Brass Co.
PITTSBURGH



J-M ASBESTOS BOOTHS AND CURTAINS

Made in styles to meet all requirements. They meet the approval of fire underwriters of every city. Write for Booklet.
H. W. JOHNS-MANVILLE CO.
New York and Every Large City.

THE PHOTO CINES

True film action by a new method insures steady exposure—the Photo Cines is equipped with Zeiss Tessar Lens F. B.S.

Inspect Before Purchasing

THE PHOTO CINES CO.

24 East 13th Street NEW YORK

You can always attract a Bigger Crowd with Better Pictures

Film values are now so relatively equal that the real basis of better pictures is in clearer, cleaner-cut projection.

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses

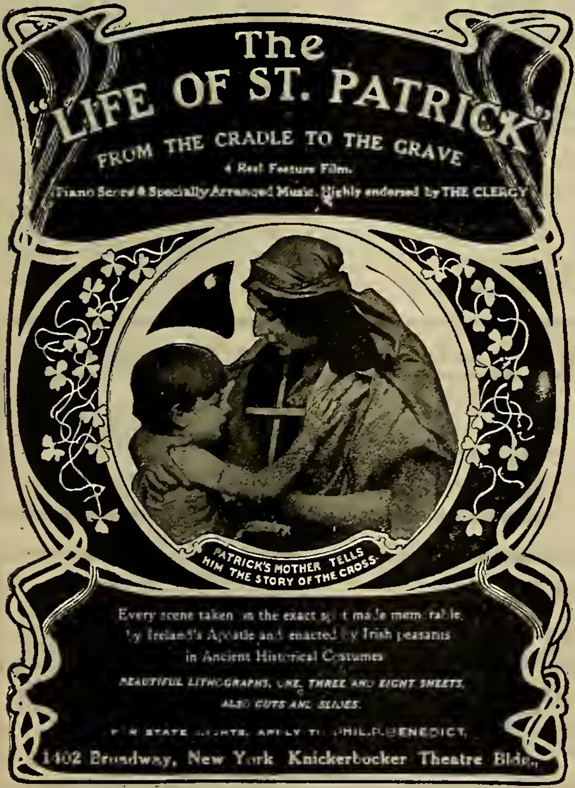
are the final word in lens perfection. They insure the brilliantly sharp definition that reveals every gesture and facial expression of the artist.

Bausch & Lomb objectives and condensers form an important part of the equipment of all Edison and Nicholas Power Machines. Their use on your machine will effect a real betterment in your pictures.

Procurable through any film exchange. Write us for our interesting free booklet for owners and operators.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.

566 ST. PAUL STREET ROCHESTER, N. Y.
NEW YORK WASHINGTON CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO



The "LIFE OF ST. PATRICK"

FROM THE CRADLE TO THE GRAVE

4 Reel Feature Film.

Piano Score & Specially Arranged Music. Highly endorsed by THE CLERGY

PATRICK'S MOTHER TELLS HIM THE STORY OF THE CROSS.

Every scene taken on the exact spot made memorable by Ireland's Apostle and enacted by Irish peasants in Ancient Historical Costumes

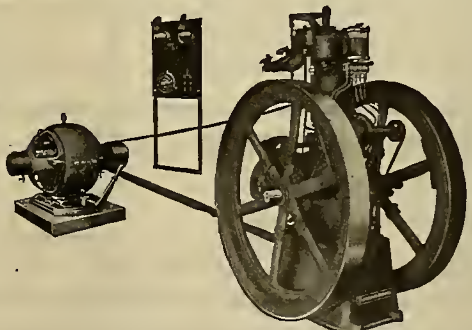
BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPHS, ONE, THREE AND EIGHT SHEETS, ALSO CUTS AND SLIDES.

FOR STATE RIGHTS, APPLY TO PHIL. P. BENEDICT,
1402 Broadway, New York Knickerbocker Theatre Bldg.,

Generate Your Own Current

You can secure steady, reliable current at a surprisingly low cost by using a

Fairbanks-Morse Electric Outfit



The 60-volt Fairbanks-Morse plant supplies current at less cost than usually charged by central stations and only a little more than half the electric energy is required as from a 110-volt circuit.

Engine operates on kerosene, gasoline or low grade oils. Dynamo may be belt driven or direct connected. 60-volt lamps and fans supplied. Outfits for any size theatre. Write for Catalog No. 2059A39.

Fairbanks, Morse & Co., 900 S. Wabash Ave. Chicago, Ill.
Portable Outfits, Motor Generator Sets, Fans, etc.

dred by running the gamut of the strings. No sooner has he touched the fifth when he pays the penalty of his folly with his life and he drops dead at her feet.

VITAGRAPH.

SALVATION SAL (Oct. 1).—Sal, by showing too much attention to one of a party of young and rich idlers who come into a slum dance hall, offends Red McGee, her steady, and thus starts a general brawl. Red, after shutting out the lights, goes after his man and gets him down. The police enter and Red is sent to jail.

Up to this time Sal had been nothing more than a girl of the street, but Red's imprisonment changes her attitude toward life and she becomes interested in settlement work, joining herself to the Salvation Army. In this guise, the young fellow who had caused Red's arrest, meets her one day. This time his admiration is genuine, and he wants her to marry and live a life of luxury with him. Sal, loyal to Red, refuses, for she has just received a letter from him telling her that he is dying, and begging her to get him a release so that he may die at home. She is unsuccessful throughout. Her wealthy admirer at last, taking pity on her and admiring her loyalty to Red, secures her the pardon, without her knowing it.

One day, some time later, Sal goes into a saloon in the slums, where she is accosted by a drunken "hanger on." Red, just back from the prison, is searching for his old cronies in their old haunt. He enters the saloon, sees Sal and rushes to her rescue, falling, after the first assault to the ground—senseless. Sal, kneeling on the barroom floor, takes his head in her lap as he breathes his last.

THE AUTOCRAT OF FLAPJACK JUNCTION (Oct. 2).—The cook supreme, Flapjack Ike, of Sagebrush County, has his ire not a little aroused when a widow comes and takes all his boarders away. With suicide in his heart he goes to the railroad, and with his head on the rail awaits his destruction. The stranded girls of the Pink Mice chorus find their way to a lonely shack in the woods. Being tired they immediately prepare for bed. All ready to turn in, they discover a fire in the straw on the floor. They rush out, frantically trying to get some male aid to extinguish the flames. They come to the railroad tracks, and there they find Ike. They lead him to their burning cabin. Ike does his best to extinguish the flames but the heat and smoke overcome him and he is forced to give up. He takes the girls home with him to dress them in more serviceable, if not entirely feminine costume. As he passes the widow he makes a very visible impression with his cortege. The widow's boarders follow him, and when they see the garb which the unfortunate girls are forced to don, take pity on them and going to the general store, buy for them such clothing as the girls so sadly need. This action cements firmly the friendship between the girls and the boys and from then on it grows until finally all of them, including the widow and Ike, are happily married and at a reunion, which they hold a year later, it is shown that the coming generation has received many additions.

THE TREASURE OF DESERT ISLE (Oct. 3).—In search of geological specimens, Professor McGill reaches Desert Isle and becomes so engrossed with the many rare scientific possibilities of the place that he almost becomes a native. During his stay, he lives with an old beachcomber, whose daughter, Jean, he finds a valuable assistant in locating many rich discoveries. The girl is without education and the professor teaches her to read and imparts much knowledge during his five years' residence upon the isle. One day he sadly announces to Jean and her parents that he is about to leave them. This is a hard blow to Jean as she has been excluded from the rest of the world all her life, and she feels that she will be deprived of hearing and learning more of the things which she longs for.

The professor writes a letter to Robert Wayne, one of his former associates, hoping to lure the young man to visit Desert Isle, pointing out to him that there is a great treasure there which will enrich the finder, supplementing it with a map showing exactly where the treasure is located. Professor Wayne decides to take advantage of this information, and if possible, locate the treasure. He is accompanied by Dr. Blake, who is equally enthusiastic. They both are aware that Professor McGill has always been eccentric, and his sudden disappearance and unknown whereabouts must mean that he is anxious to enrich them with his discovery.

The two men arriving at Desert Isle, meet Jean, whom Robert Wayne thinks is the most lovely woman he ever beheld. After many days they fail to locate their quest, but in the meantime, Robert becomes better acquainted with Jean. She fascinates him with her knowledge of things which he believed were only within the range of the college student. His acquaintance with her ripens into love, until finally he proposes to her and she consents to become his wife. While sitting on the beach, they suddenly see a sail far out upon the sea, which fills them with wonder. They are not kept long in suspense. A small boat is lowered from the side of the vessel, approaches the shore and a man jumps from the boat. It is Professor McGill. Cordial greetings are exchanged and Robert Wayne informs him of his failure to locate the treasure. The professor asks him is he does not think he has found a treasure in Jean. She gazes up into Robert's eyes and the look which he returns convinces us that he has found a treasure he prizes above all others.

THE MYSTERY OF THE SILVER SKULL (Special—2 parts—Oct. 4).—Having made arrangements for the sale of his timber holdings in the South to Henry Lawles, a despicable old rascal, who is a dealer in North America, Billy Steele comes up to close negotiations. On entering Lawler's office, he comes face to face with Josephine Gray, a beautiful young woman who seems to be in some sort of serious trouble. After leaving Lawler's office, Steele finds that he has forgotten his wallet. He goes back to the office; there, before an open safe, he sees the girl whom he had noticed a little while before. She pulls out a revolver and puts up a game fight, but Steele, watching his chance, takes the weapon away from her and in spite of her pleadings, makes her give up the papers and put them back in the safe. Before he leaves Steele finds a curious object on the floor of the office—a silver skull and cross-bones, which has evidently been used as a watch charm. When he gets out of the office building, Steele tracks Josephine and finds out her name and address.

A few days later, Steele is dumbfounded when he sees in the morning paper an announcement of Josephine's engagement to Lawler. He immediately goes to the house, where he finds Josephine in tears, begging her father to save her from the engagement. Finally, Steele persuaded Josephine to make a confident of him and she tells him that her father is in the power of Lawler, because of a written statement, which is in Lawler's possession, and which is signed by Lawler and another, proving her father to be guilty of murder.

There seems to be no way to get Josephine out of Lawler's power. Suddenly, while things seem worst, O'Keefe advances, showing plainly that something is the matter. Lawler, feeling that he has Cray in his power, goes to claim Josephine for his wife. She calls her father, who seems helpless in the old villain's clutches. At this moment, O'Keefe puts in an appearance, denounces Lawler and exposes his devilish plot and confesses that the sight of the silver skull had aroused what little manhood

LAEMMLE LUCK

ANSWER ME!

That Universal program is actually putting it all over every other program on the market, not only in its marvelous FEATURES but in single and split reels. If you are not using it, you don't know what is going on in the film business today. Why in the name of heaven don't you at least come to one of my offices and LOOK AT SOME OF THE NEWEST FILMS! Are you afraid you might like them better than the stuff you are renting now?

CARL LAEMMLE, President

The Laemmle Film Service

204 West Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
252-A Hennepin Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.
1312 Farnum Street, Omaha, Neb.
Hubbell Building, Des Moines, Iowa

Agents for All Makes of Machines and Accessories

"The Biggest and Best Film Renter in the World"

The Strelinger catalogue of

BRUSH ELECTRIC LIGHTING SETS

tells why direct current is very much better than alternating current for moving picture shows. Send for it.

THE CHAS. A. STRELINOER CO.,
Box MP-2, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A.

EXHIBITORS—BOOK the following Money Getters NOW

"ON THE TRAIL OF THE SPIDER GANG 4 Reels WAGES OF SIN ....3 "
DRIVEN FROM HOME ....3 "
BRAND OF A THIEF ....3 Reels
BLACK SNAKE ....4 "
And many others, wire or call for open dates.

TRY OUR DAILY OR WEEKLY FEATURE SERVICE, OR SEND FOR LIST

EAGLE FEATURE FILM SERVICE, 71 West 23d St., Masonic Bldg., New York City
Telephone 1046 Gramercy
Charles H. Streimer, Mgr.

COMING!

The Prisoner in the Harem

Big Animal Sensation

4 Reels Big Paper Assortment

BLACHE FEATURES, Inc. Fort Lee, New Jersey

A-K-C A-K-C

SUBJECTS STAGING
PHOTOGRAPHY

CASH PAID

MUST BE FIRST CLASS OR USELESS

FOR GOOD NEGATIVES

TO FREE LANCE PRODUCERS AND FILM MANUFACTURERS

WE are prepared to pay cash for approved negatives of any length from 500 feet and upwards, carrying exclusive rights for the world with or without U. S. A. and Canada. Negative or sample prints must be submitted for examination in New York. Owners of inferior stuff will be wasting time by communicating

AMERICAN KINETO CORPORATION

1018 Longacre Bldg., Broadway at 42d Street
NEW YORK CITY

A-K-C A-K-C

AMERICAN-ECLAIR

FEATURE FILMS

First, Last, and Always

"ECLAIR" FILMS

This is what crowds your Box Office.

Multiple Reels, that are features, not feet.
Comedies with a laugh in every scene.
Scientifics that amaze.
Photography that is crystal clear.
Artists known from east to west, north to south.

This is what "ECLAIR" stands for.

It's all in the standard—"ECLAIR." Order now—beat your competitor to it.

225 W. 42nd ST., NEW YORK CITY.

there was left in him, after he had accepted Lawler's ten thousand dollars bribe, which he received for signing the false statement. After this exposure, Billy Steele steps from behind a screen where he hid when Lawler was ushered in. He calls up the police and Lawler is turned over to them. Steele and Josephine are quietly wed and go for their wedding tour to Honduras on his own vessel, under the command of Captain O'Keefe.

WHEN THE WEST WAS YOUNG (Sept. 29).—Hearing a noise outside the door of his cabin, Tom Bowles, a frontiersman, opens the door cautiously and sees outside an Indian, faint with hunger. After the man has been fed he leaves the cabin and continues on his way, his heart filled with gratitude.

The Indian, Black Hawk, finds the tracks of other Indians, whom he judges to be on the warpath, and returns to warn the trapper to be on his guard. Bowles will not believe him, but insists on being shown the trail. He goes out with Black Hawk, but is caught in an ambush by the Indians and mortally wounded.

Black Hawk assists him back to the cabin, where he dies. Before he passes away he commends his little daughter to the Indian's care.

Having buried the trapper, Black Hawk sets out for the fort with the child. His trail is discovered by the hostile Indians, who follow him. When he finds that he is pursued, Black Hawk increases his speed, but is hampered by the slow progress of the little girl. For a short time he manages to throw his enemies off the trail but they catch up again within a short distance of the fort.

An arrow fired by one of the Indians pierces him in the back, but he still struggles on. With the fort in sight he sinks to the ground, first pointing it out to the child and urging her to run there, at the same time giving her the bag of dust entrusted to his care.

Soldiers rush out and take her into their arms, rushing with her to the assistance of the Indian, who is dying, and saving him from the scalping knife of his pursuers, who are easily frightened off. Black Hawk sinks lifeless upon the ground, faithful to his trust till death.

WHICH? (Sept. 30).—Passing before a photographer's display window, Cutey sees in it a picture of an unusually pretty girl. He thinks her ideal, and, entering the shop, he purchases the photograph.

Shortly after, at a fancy dress ball, he sees the original of the photograph, only to find that "she" is twins. After being introduced, he takes them home and makes quite an impression on their mother, who invites him to the house, where he soon becomes a familiar caller.

The girls just adore him and Cutey has considerable difficulty in keeping the peace between them, always having to bring two boxes of candy, two bunches of flowers and so on, as the case may be. He wishes to propose marriage to one of them but cannot make up his mind which he wants. So worried does he become that he almost wishes he were a Mormon.

Cutey one day accompanies the girls and their mother to the beach, where they all go swimming. The water is rather rough and the girls are toppled off their feet by the heavy waves. Both girls hang on to Cutey's neck and nearly drown the poor fellow in their efforts to save themselves.

The mother of the two girls sees Cutey's difficulty, and rushing into the water, she saves Cutey from his unfortunate position.

After he gets home Cutey thinks over the conduct of the two girls and their mother and discovers that he is in love with the latter. The florist receives quite a surprise when Cutey asks him for one bouquet of flowers instead of two, and when he also purchases only one box of candy.

The candy and flowers are taken to the girls' mother, who is equally surprised when she receives them. Cutey proposes marriage to her and she joyfully accepts him, greatly surprising her two daughters who enter the room to find their mother in the arms of their pet admirer.

KALEM.

THE ATHEIST (Sept. 29).—Preaching religion to young Burton Harris has about the same effect on him as waving a red cloth in front of a bull. Religion to him is a species of hypocricy and he knows no God. No church for him—he is going fishing.

Coming home, he meets his mother walking with a neighbor and the minister, just as they are leaving church. The minister, seeing the fishing tackle in his hand, administers a sharp reproof to Burton, who, in a sudden storm of anger decides to leave for the big city, where he can do as he pleases.

Several years speed by, and Burton, now a man about town, is leaving a gambling house where he has just made a "killing," when he drops his watch, the back cover of which flies open, disclosing his mother's face. The picture brings to his memory a letter he received that morning in which his mother requested him to come home before she dies. So Burton decides to return home.

But he comes too late, and all the money he has won over the gambling table cannot bring her back to life. Overcome with remorse, he decides to earn an honest living and secures a position at a stone quarry near by. Promotion comes rapidly, and with it as time passes, a wife and daughter.

While at the quarries one day, an explosion which buries several of his men comes simultaneously with a message from his wife telling him their daughter is dying. Torn 'twixt love and duty he knows not what to do. Falling upon his knees he cries to Heaven, "God! Save my child—give me strength!"—and rushes to help his men. When Burton finally arrives home, he finds that his prayer has been answered and that his daughter has returned from the edge of the Valley of the Shadow.

THE BATTLE AT FORT LARAMIE (Special—2 parts—Oct. 1).—Peace, after many years of warfare, is declared between Cheyenne and Ogallala.

Capt. Blackburn, surgeon of the Army Post, loves Ellen, the Commandant's daughter. While treating the sick daughter of Crazy Horse, the Cheyenne chief, he incurs the enmity of the Medicine Man.

Upon his return to the post, Blackburn is called to attend a settler. While on this mission, the daughter of Chief Crazy Horse dies. The Medicine Man seizes this opportunity to wipe out his score against Blackburn and urges the Cheyennes to wipe out the post. Hawk, a Cheyenne trader, who has been befriended by Ellen, hastens to warn the Post. But the soldiers, outnumbered and overwhelmed, are massacred after a terrific battle. Ellen, aided by Hawk, makes her escape.

The battle over, Helen and her rescuer return to the post. Ellen is overcome, but tearing a piece off her apron, and writing a message on it, with a bullet telling Blackburn that she has been taken to the Cheyenne camp by Hawk, who will protect her. The note is fastened to a charred post by Hawk's tomahawk.

Blackburn returns to the ruined post and finds Ellen's message. He despairs of rescuing his sweetheart until the sight of Hawk's tomahawk gives him a daring idea. Going to the Ogallala camp he slays a scout and lays the tomahawk near the body, where it is found shortly after. Believing the Cheyennes to have violated the peace pact, the Ogallalas vow vengeance and leave for battle.

Blackburn, attempting to approach the Cheyenne camp is captured by the Indians, who proceed to torture him at the stake. Just as the torture commences, the Ogallalas fall upon the camp and a furious battle ensues. While the combat rages, Ellen, Blackburn and Hawk make their escape.

WESTINGHOUSE OZONIZER

Pure Air

Put your audience in a humor to enjoy the play by keeping the air fresh and wholesome. Ozone revitalizes the air and removes all stuffiness. It is produced cheaply by

Westinghouse Electric Ozonizers

One ozonizer uses only 18 watts at maximum output and is sufficient for 1,600 square feet of floor space. No noise, no moving parts, no parts to renew. Contained in a neat enamelled case. Send for folder 4242.

Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co.
East Pittsburg, Pa.
Sales Offices in 45 American Cities

MAKE MOVING PICTURES
WITH
Our Ideal Moving Picture Camera
Excellently constructed, beautifully finished, simple to operate, fitted up with a B. & L. Zeiss Tessar Lens, I. C., F 3-5, one of the best and fastest lenses in the market; holds 200 feet stock.
Send for Illustrated Catalogue
PRICE COMPLETE $75.00
Motion Picture Camera Co., Inc.
Dept. A 5 West 14th Street, New York

ONLY 4 PRINTS LEFT AND NEGATIVE SOLD FOR EUROPEAN RIGHTS
If you want "CONSCIENCE" it's your last chance.
YOUR CHOICE OF THE FOLLOWING TERRITORY, $250.00 A PRINT.
New England
2 Carolinas
Georgia
Florida
Alabama
Mississippi
Kentucky
Tennessee
2 Dakotas
Minnesota
Iowa
Nebraska
Montana
Wyoming
Idaho
Utah
Nevada
Arizona
Mexico
Canada
DON'T WRITE—WIRE US, GROUP OF 4 OR 5 STATES DESIRED
Posters, 2 ones a 3 and a 6
Conscience Film Company 112 West 40th Street, New York

COMING
Rogues of Paris
Thrilling and Sensational Big Assortment of Advertising Matter
SOLAX COMPANY, FORT LEE, NEW JERSEY

Our Theatrical Motion Picture, and Circus Departments

Will hereafter be under the management of

JOHN C. TRAUTH, Manager E. J. DOOLITTLE, Ass't Manager

The United States Printing and Lithograph Co.

Russell-Morgan, Courier, Metropolitan, J. Ottmann and Erie Divisions

119 West 40th St. NEW YORK Phone Bryant 7300

MOVING PICTURE THEATRE Mailing Lists For Sale

17,522, United States and Canada, $40.00, or $3.50 per thousand for such States as you want.

Also

648 Film Echanges, U. S.,	$3.50
49 Manufacturers & Studios, U. S.,	1.00
34 Moving Picture Machine Mfrs. & Dealers,	1.00
231 Film Exchanges, Foreign Countries,	3.00
520 Moving Picture Theatres, Foreign Countries,	3.00

This is the largest and most complete and correct list of Moving Picture Theatres to be had any place in United States; also Film Exchanges. This list has just been corrected up with all 1913 City Directories and Telephone Books in United States; also the Exhibitors at the recent exhibition at New York, together with several Film Exchange Companies' Mailing Lists, all consolidated into this, duplicates thrown out, names thrown out that have come back within a recent mailing and new names added to.

We also furnish all other classes of Mailing Lists covering United States and Foreign Countries.

Ask for our "SILENT SALESMAN" No. 61, for September.

Send check with order.

Trade Circular Addressing Co.

166 West Adams Street, Chicago

Established 1880

Eventually

When you are through experimenting with white walls, aluminum paints and metalized screens such as so-called gold and imitation of our name, you will buy a

Mirror Screen

Because it gives the most artistic, the brightest and clearest picture and is the greatest money getter for your theatre in the world and lasts forever

$1,000.00 $1,000.00

Forfeit if the Mirror Screen is not the most perfect surface in the world for the projection of Motion Pictures

Mirror Screen Co.

Shelbyville, Ind.

F. J. Rembusch, Pres.

Write today for our new snow-white finish and catalogue.

Why Not Now?

ARTHUR BRADY'S 14th St. BRANCH

HAS REMOVED TO

120-122 E. 14th St. Elevator Service Next Door to Our Old Building

HAVING OUTGROWN OUR OLD QUARTERS, WE EXTEND A HEARTY INVITATION TO ALL EXHIBITORS TO COME AND LOOK OVER OUR SEVERAL DEPARTMENTS. POSTCARDS, PRINTING, POSTERS, BANNERS, SIGNS, SLIDES AND MOVING PICTURE ADVERTISING OF EVERY DESCRIPTION (FOR NEW YORK CITY AND SUBURBS ONLY)

BIOGRAPH.

DYED, BUT NOT DEAD (Sept. 29).—Mamma Binks left the kids in Bridget's care, but reckoned without Bridget's lover, who came to take her out. The dealer left the paint for the roof. Mamma Binks returned to find the kitchen streaming with red paint, the children gone. They had been murdered—proof conclusive, when direful sounds came forth from a neighboring shack. The kids were playing "picture show" with a tramp.

WITH THE AID OF PHRENOLOGY (Sept. 29).—Henry is always being bossed around by his wife. He consults a phrenologist, who tells him his hump of combativeness is sadly lacking. The housework unfinished, his wife administers a broomstick on the head. Behold! A new hump. "Wonderful," declares the professor, "you have now the hump of a fighter." He proved it.

MELIES.

A CAMBODIAN IDYLL (Sept. 25).—Sotha, a young Cambodian villager, is in love with a young girl, Mooena. She treats him coquettishly, but really loves him. Her parents betroth her to a rich merchant, Chan. She appeals to Sotha for help, avowing her love for him, and the young lovers go to Chan and beg him to allow their marriage. Chan, indignant, sends Sotha about his business, and takes the girl home to her mother. The wedding is to be hastened and Chan repairs to the neighboring town to buy presents and get the money which he has to pay to the girl's parents. But on his way back Chan is attacked and robbed. At a timely moment Sotha, who is bemoaning his fate to Buddha, rescues Chan and drives away the robbers. Chan is grateful, and at the wedding next day, to which he has bidden Sotha, he hands over the bride to the youth, and makes the young lovers happy.

PATHEPLAY.

PATHE'S WEEKLY NO. 50—1913 (Sept. 15).—New York, N. Y.—The International Convention of Fire Chiefs is held in this city. Various tests of fire apparatus are conducted for the delegates to the conference and they assist at the unveiling of the Firemen's Memorial.

San Juan, Mexico.—One hundred and fifty persons are killed and 300 injured by the accidental explosion of 2,300 pounds of dynamite loaded on a railroad car near this city.

Saint Cyr, France.—The native colored troops witness with amazement the maneuvers of an aeroplane and a dirigible balloon.

Philadelphia, Pa.—After a fire which almost completely destroyed her, the steamer "Penn" sinks at her wharf in the Delaware River.

Denver, Colo.—The youngsters of this city hold their second annual Juvenile Frontier Day in contests and costumes symbolizing everything for which the wild and woolly West is famous.

New York, N. Y.—After having been arrested three times en route and lodged in jail for a week without her identity being discovered, Miss Laura Bynn, the original "Girl Hobo," arrives here after riding freights from Seattle, Wash.

Washington, D. C.—William Bayard Hale, President Wilson's special representative in Mexico, returns to report to the President personally, on conditions in the turbulent country.

Oakland, Cal.—Irish-American team proves victorious in tug of war, feature of picnic of Building Trades Councils of San Francisco and Alameda counties.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—A tablet commemorating the death of three boys is unveiled on the spot where they were massacred by Arapahoe Indians in 1868.

THE BLIND GYPSY (Sept. 23).—The blind gypsey girl was the pet of her wandering tribe. She loved Minola, one of the camp's most stalwart young men, and he loved her until a strange gypsy girl crossed his path. Zira, the blind girl's sister, resenting this intrusion took the only means she knew of for revenge, but the bullet she meant for the interloper wounded her sister. Zira explained the accident to the king and Minola was banished. He returned, however, after a peculiar adventure made him rich, to the gypsy camp and repaired the wrong he did his old sweetheart by using his gold to enable her to regain her sight.

THE SECRET TREASURE (Sept. 24).—Pete Rayner had a fortune hidden somewhere and his Mexican neighbors were very anxious to find it. Pete shared the secret of the hiding place with his Indian servant, but the Redman would tell no one about it. The Mexican outlaws sent Delores, the daughter of their leader to see if they could not worm the information from the Redskin. Then followed adventures, thick and fast, and as a result the Mexican girl never fulfilled her mission, but, instead she worshipped the Indian's bravery and became a steadfast friend to Rayner's beautiful daughter.

BLAZING A NEW TRAIL IN GLACIER NATIONAL PARK (MONTANA) (Sept. 25).—Another beautiful scenic film is added to the list in the "See America First" series. In this tour the camera follows while the official guide marks out a brand new trail to the summit of Mount Henry, 10,000 feet above the sea level. Consequently, the scenes traversed are pictured for the first time. Glaciers, waterfalls, mountain peaks and an ice cave are among the attractions discovered for the first time and their beauty will enrapture every beholder.

THE SAGO INDUSTRY IN BORNEO (Sept. 25).—the sago-palm as a means of food, is extensively used in the Far East and this film is devoted to a study of the industry. The method of cutting the palms, transporting them, extracting the meal and the cleaning and screening of the sago is screened in a maner that is both entertaining and educational.

BIRDS OF PREY (Sept. 26).—Flesh-eating birds are many but few persons have ever been permitted a close inspection and study of their habits and characteristics. To a great majority, therefore, this picture will be of keen interest. The first specimen subjected to examination is the Kestrel. Its method of attack and defense is shown and the care of its young is illustrated. In like manner the hawk is treated, proving that paramount characteristic of the birds of prey is an exceedingly interesting cunning combined with a ferocity of attack that holds the smaller animals on which they feed spellbound until they have been devoured.

SICILY, THE PICTURESQUE (Sept. 26).—A delightful tour through the little island of the Mediterranean Sea, famed for its natural beauty. Starting at the village of Mazzara-del-Vallo the audience is transported to the little Mazzara river the banks of which are bordered with curious natural grottoes; from there to the Royal Chateau for a view of the thriving city of Palermo, and thence through beautiful surroundings to the new road leading to the summit of Mt. Pellegrino.

FISH WITH STORAGE BATTERY IN ITS BRAIN (Sept. 27).—This film illustrates the many points of interest in connection with the Electric Ray, a fish with a peculiar faculty, that of delivering a shock at will. The fish inhabits the Atlantic and Indian Oceans and Mediterranean Sea, at the bottom of which it lies buried in the sand, awaiting its prey. The apparatus by which this wonderful fish is enabled to deliver the electric shock is examined and explained and various experiments conducted showing the current carried by the Electric Ray.

THE PEARL OF THE BOSPHOROUS, CONSTANTINOPLE (Sept. 27).—A trip to the city which has been in the limelight through the recent Balkan War, although its beauties are well known to all travellers. Particularly entrancing are the views of the Golden Horn and the new Galata Bridge and the suburbs of the city of Pera.

PATHE'S WEEKLY, NO. 51, (Sept. 18).—Denver, Colo.—The society folks of this city attend an interesting polo match between the Prairie Dogs and the Glenwood Springs teams.

St. Louis, Mo.—The delegates of the Hoo-Hoo, the Lumbermen's National Association, open their 22nd annual convention in the usual manner, paying homage to a black cat at 9 minutes after 9 on the 9th day of the 9th month.

New York, N. Y.—A special matinee of the big 39th Street Theater success, "Believe Me, Xantippe," is arranged by Wm. A. Brady, Ltd., for Sheriff Harburger and the Deputy Sheriffs of New York County.

Hot Springs, Ark.—A conflagration sweeps away 55 blocks in the residence section of this city, leaving 2,500 homeless. Loss $6,000,000.00.

Washington, D. C.—The Portland, Oregon, Fire Department Band renders a selection for the entertainment of President Wilson, and is congratulated by him on the White house lawn.

Denver, Colo.—A golf tournament on its public links is the feature of the opening of the new City Park. Commissioner Thum inaugurates the tournament, and to prevent a "foozle," a large ball is used.

Texas City, Texas.—The second division of the army is mobilized at this city to conduct a mimic war.

In Memorian.—The City of New York mourns its Mayor, William Jay Gaynor. He was a one-time Presidential possibility and had been renominated for Mayor just before sailing for Europe, after attack on Tammany Hall.

Editorial Section.—The Denver "Post" presents the city with a Pulmotor, or Lungmotor, the newest invention for minimizing the death rate from asphyxiation and drowning, and an expert demonstrates its use.

PHOTOGRAPHS FOR LOBBY DISPLAY
size 8x10 of all 2 and 3-reel FEATURES of the following: KALEM, EDISON, THANHOUSER, LUBIN, BRONCHO, KAY-BEE, RELIANCE, PILOT, MAJESTIC, AMERICAN.
Set of 12, $2.00. Set of 6, $1.00.
KRAUS MFG. CO., 14 E. 17th St., N. Y.
DISTRIBUTORS WANTED IN CANADA, FAR WEST and SOUTH for our PHOTO PLAYERS POST CARDS, Association and Independent, 300 different players.

LET US DO YOUR
Developing and Printing
WE WILL DEVELOP YOUR NEGATIVE, MAKE YOU A POSITIVE PRINT AND SHIP WITHIN 24 HOURS FOR 5c PER FOOT COMPLETE.
SATISFACTION GUARANTEED
BY OUR FIFTEEN YEARS' EXPERIENCE
EASTMAN STOCK USED ON ALL OUR WORK
FILM TITLES and ANNOUNCEMENTS
3 Feet for 25 Cents
IN ANY LENGTH
GUNBY BROS., Inc.
199 Third Ave. New York City

NEW MACHINES
TIME or CASH
ALL MAKES
A Modern Machine Will Double the Profits
SEND FOR NEW CATALOG
Allowance Made on Your Old Outfit
We have some BARGAINS in REBUILT MACHINES.
AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO.
"Everything from Screen to Booth"
160A No. Fifth Ave. CHICAGO

WE sell all standard makes of moving picture machines, parts and all accessories.
Wanted—To buy second-hand machines of all kinds.
For Sale—200 reels film, $2.50 per reel, and up. Send for list. Film service? Yes!
WICHITA FILM & SUPPLY CO., Inc.
122 North Market St. Wichita, Kansas

WANTED QUICKLY!
USE OF FACTORY FIRE NEGATIVE
Length About 350 Feet
E. B. BARNES 220 WEST 42d STREET, NEW YORK CITY
Room 614. Tel. 394 Bryant

Good Light Means Big Crowds
The Sandow Moving Picture Electric Light Plant gives perfect light any time you want it, at 1-10 the cost of public service. Light enough to ship as baggage. Carry your own electric lights. Catalog 201 tells you how and how much. Want it?
Detroit Motor Car Supply Company, Detroit, Michigan

COMING!

A PHOTO-DRAMA OUT OF THE ORDINARY:

"A FLIGHT FROM JUSTICE"

In Three Thrilling Parts

Great Northern Special Feature Film Co.
42 EAST 14th STREET, NEW YORK CITY

The owner of the HATHAWAY Theatres should know. He says:—

Radium Gold Fibre Screen

"is giving excellent satisfaction in every way"

Middletown, N. Y., 9/8/13.

Mr. G. H. Callaghan,
Broadway and 42d Street,
New York City.

Dear Mr. Callaghan:

Replying to your letter of the 7th relative to the new Radium Gold Fibre Screen, which we are using in the Stratton Theater at Middletown, would beg to state that so far the Screen is giving excellent satisfaction, in every way.

Very truly yours,
O. S. Hathaway.

American Theatre Curtain & Supply Company
105 N. Main Street, Sole Manufacturers, ST. LOUIS, MO.

G. H. CALLAGHAN, 1465 Broadway, New York
GEORGE BRECK, 70 Turk St., San Francisco, Cal.
DISTRIBUTORS

EXHIBITORS EVERYWHERE

Are packing their houses by showing Local Weeklies and Current Events by using our

Exhibitors' Motion Picture Camera

These are successfully used by the Government Explorers and hundreds of Exhibitors everywhere.

Write us today regarding our guaranteed Motion Picture Camera Outfit, complete for $150.00

Whyte-Whitman Co.
36 E. 23rd St. New York City

Helen Gardner

in

"A Princess of Bagdad"

An Original Arabian Nights' Story. Written and Directed by Charles L. Gaskill.
Copyrighted, 1913, by Helen Gardner.

Will be ready for delivery September 25th, 1913.

Attention is called to the handsome colored engravings of Helen Gardner appearing weekly on the back page of the New York Dramatic Mirror.

Made at Miss Helen Gardner's Studio at Tappan-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., U. S. A.

Sole Selling Agents—THE HELGAR CORPORATION, No. 472 Fulton Street, BROOKLYN, N. Y.
New York Office, 145 West 45th Street, Suite 813

INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES

POWERS.

A HOUSE BOAT ELOPEMENT (Oct. 1).—Mr. O. U. Grouch sits with Mrs. Grouch on their house boat, he intent on his fishing. Buster Grouch, a small boy, manages to get a shoe on his father's line, which makes him very mad. It is at this inauspicious moment that William U. R. Fresh, urged by Lotta Grouch, proposes to Grouch for his daughter's hand. Grouch roars "NO" and tells William to get. He does and Buster gets what is coming to him. Lotta tells William to get her father out fishing and not to come back until he has obtained his consent. This is not difficult, for Grouch loves fishing. William holds him in a motorboat until he is so sick that he promises anything if William will take hm ashore. William does.

In the meantime I. B. Stout has arrived and has proposed to and been turned down by Lotta. When Grouch gets on terra-firma and sees Stout, the man he wants his girl to marry, he goes back on his promise to William and kicks him out again. Grouch tells Lotta she will marry Stout and locks her in her room. Buster, having been severely spanked by Stout for playing tricks upon him, awaits his chance and tells Lotta that Grouch and her mother have gone to get a license. Lotta slips a note to Buster under the door and Buster delivers it to William, who runs to the sheriff's and gets a license while the others are hunting for the minister. William gets back and kicks the door in, and as Grouch and his wife return, Buster cuts the houseboat adrift.

The house boat travels along and Mr. Grouch and Stout take someone else's boat and go after them. Stout gets into all sorts of trouble, for he knows nothing of the management of a motor boat. The minister is out boating. William runs him down and saves him from the water and makes him marry them. The owner of the motor boat swims out to his craft and properly punishes the occupants, as the young married couple make their way back for the parental blessing.

FRONTIER.

THE SHOP GIRL'S BIG DAY (Oct. 2).—Miss Dora Thea Rankin, the daughter of a poor widow, was employed in a dry goods store. On one Saturday night just as she was leaving the store for her home, the manager of the store called to her to carry some packages to be delivered to a wealthy lady. The packages contained a beautiful dress, a parasol and a hat. Dorathea takes them to her own home and conceives the idea of playing the lady for one day and then deliver the goods early Monday morning. She hides the clothes in the woodshed.

The following morning being Sunday she goes to the shed, dons the beautiful clothes and starts out to have a real live day. She meets with many mishaps, at last arriving home a sadder but wiser girl. Her poor mother had gone to the woodshed to get some firewood and had discovered Dorathea's clothes. Frantic with fear, she rushes out of the shed just as Dorathea comes up. She asks Dorathea what this means and Dorathea explains. When Dorathea reaches the lady's home she finds that the lady's brother, Frank, is one of the number of men she had flirted with the day before.

The brother does not give Dorathea away, but follows her to the street, where an explanation is given. Frank escorts her home, and feeling that the little girl is really a lady, asks consent to call on her. It is readily given and all ends happily.

A GIRL OF THE DANCE HALLS (Oct. 4).—While returning home from the village after getting supplies, Bill Mason, a miner, meets Faro Jack, the gambler of the Angel Trail Saloon, and his girl, Floretta, who works in a dance hall across the street from the Angel Trail Saloon. While passing them Bill accidentally drops a package of tobacco. Floretta, seeing this, slips from her horse and picks up the package and gives it back to him. Sometime later Bill comes into the village to meet the boys at the saloon and he finds Faro Jack in the act of striking Floretta. Bill interferes. Jack, however, does not strike her, but sends her home and goes inside to play a game of poker with some of the boys.

During the game Jack cheats in dealing and is accused of it by a cowboy. He kills the cowboy, rushes out of the saloon where Floretta is waiting for him. He casts her aside, mounts his horse, rides for the border, the boys following him. Bill, who has come out of the saloon, sees Floretta, and noticing blood on her forehead from the fall, asks her what has happened. He then upbraids her for being with Jack and tells her she ought to cut loose from him. She says she would do so, but she is penniless. Bill gives her money to go to Denver.

A year later Bill receives a letter from his friend, Tom Blake, a rancher, asking him to pay him a visit. He goes to the ranch and his embarrassment at finding Floretta is Tom's wife is very apparant, and Tom, naturally jealous, is suspicious. Floretta secretely places a note in Bill's hand begging him to keep her past secret and when Tom sees his wife kneeling to Bill, his jealousy increases, but he keeps silent. One day, while out riding, Floretta meets Jack, now a fugitive from justice. She gets away, but he tracks her to the ranch, and seeing her with her husband, he leaves a scrawled note in the mail-box, demanding money as the price of his

CRYSTAL.

CHARLIE'S LITTLE JOKE (Sept. 30).—Charlie's uncle receives a letter from a friend of his informing him that his friend, Mr. Grantley, has died and that he has entrusted to him the care of Mr. Grantley's beautiful daughter, Helen. Charlie's uncle informs Charlie that he is called away on a trip and asks Charlie to care for his new ward. Helen arrives and Charlie is smitten with her beauty. He decides on a scheme. He disguises himself as an old man and masquerades as Helen's new guardian. He is very lavish in his display of love-making and all in all is very attentive. At times he doffs his disguise and appears as his natural self and is also attentive to Helen. The next day he is still in his disguise of the old man when the uncle returns unexpectedly. He introduces himself as Helen's guardian, but is compelled to call in his housekeeper to prove it. Charlie enters at that moment and the old man kicks him out of the house. He takes off his disguise and meeting a friend on the street he changes clothes with him. He then enters the house and his uncle, glad to see him, entrusts Helen to his care, while poor Charlie is compelled to pay the housekeeper some money, to keep the secret of his masquerading for his uncle.

BALDY BELMONT AS A ROMAN GLADIATOR (Sept. 30).—Baldy Belmont is in love with Jessie. Her father can't see him at all and insists upon Jessie marrying Dick, an old friend of his. Jessie will have nothing to do with Dick, preferring Baldy. Father catches Baldy making love to Jessie and kicks him out of the house. He then brings Dick in, and insists upon Jessie making up to him. Belmont is wild and knows not what to do. He walks along the street disconsolate, when he passes a costumers. There he sees a suit of armor and other costumes of a Roman gladiator, of old, and remembering that Jessie contains a statue of this description, he hires the costume. He goes home, puts it on and walks to Jessie's house. He is followed by an immense crowd in the street and a policeman thinking him a maniac, runs after him. Baldy refuses to stop at the policeman's orders, and he shoots at him. Baldy is hit by one of the bullets. This only hastens his speed and he arrives at Jessie's house just as Dick is making an impassioned speech of love into Jessie's unwilling ears. Baldy removes the statue and takes its place. Jessie's father enters and talks to the young couple. Baldy hits first one and then the other over the head with his club and each thinks that the other is doing it. They fight and Dick is getting the best of it when Baldy interferes and throws Dick out of the house. Baldy has a reward for his bravery, gets papa's consent to his marriage to Jessie.

THE NORWOOD CASE (Oct. 5).—Richard Norwood leaves his wife to go to his business. On the way he passes an empty lot where two toughs are beating another man. He interferes and the thugs set upon him. He is struck over the head and rendered unconscious. They rob him and thinking him dead, strip him of his clothes and substitute some of their own so as to make identification well nigh impossible. Meanwhile Norwood's wife is anxiously awaiting his return and as the hours fly by and she still receives no word from her husband she becomes alarmed. An investigation is started, but no trace can be found of the missing man. Norwood, having been found, is taken to a hospital, where upon recovering his senses, he is absolutely lost in memory, his mind on all events of the past being an absolute blank. He is discharged from the hospital and not knowing his whereabouts goes West. He obtains a job as a stone cutter and toils at this work for a period of eight years. Meanwhile his wife, not having heard from him in any way, shape or form, makes up her mind that he is dead. She is paid attention by a very wealthy man and after much persuasion agrees to marry him. Norwood, who has now assumed the name of Tom Jones, falls in love with his landlody's daughter and after a brief, crude courtship, they are married. A child is born to bless their union and they are happy in each other's love. Norwood's first wife finally marries her wealthy suitor. Norwood on the job, one day, is holding a guy rope attached to a derrick, which is hoisting an enormous amount of rock at a dizzy height. The rope breaks and Norwood falls and hits his head on the stone. He is rendered unconscious. The fall restores his lost memory and he determines to find his first wife. He leaves his present wife and child and returns to his old haunts. There he enters his old home and finds his wife with her new husband. He sees that he has lost absolutely all right to his wife by his long absence, and being still in love with his second wife, he returns to her and their child, keeping them in ignorance of his previous marriage and loss of memory.

VICTOR.

THE CLOSED DOOR (2 parts—Oct. 3).—Florence Ashleigh, the daughter of an aristocratic Southern family, immensely proud, but greatly impoverished, is urged by her family to marry George Neill, a very wealthy stockbroker. From conversation overheard in her home she is given to understand that George wants to marry her to attain social position and not because he is in love with her, and her pride is naturally hurt. However, to aid her financially embarrassed family, she agrees to marry him, but stipulates with him that he must never violate her privacy, and insists that she must be allowed a key to her private apartments, and that he must promise never to ask for that key or cross the threshold of her door. He reluctantly agrees. After marriage he tries to show her, by every means in his power, that he loves her, but she will not lower the barrier between them. He makes a big monetary sacrifice to her, whereby her father is raised to affluence, and he almost ruins himself financially by doing so, but she merely attributes it to the varying luck of business ventures, and still holds him at arms' length.

George Neill is now financially embarrassed. Florence does not know of his affairs, as he keeps all things from her that may be likely to distress her, and he suffers alone. He has to start afresh to make his fortune. Things are coming his way again when he discovers that if he swings a certain deal that will make him wealthy again, it will ruin the man who is engaged to his wife's sister, so he lets the chance slip by and, seeing no prospect of winning his wife's love, decides to leave for good and take the management of a mine in which he has an interest. Florence learns of his self-sacrifice and love at last dawns in her heart. He prepares to leave and she then realizes that she loves him and wants him. She places the key to her apartment in his jewel case. He leaves. On arrival at the hotel at the western town, he finds the key! Hoping, ardently, yet still in doubt, he returns and wins his long wished for reward.

BISON.

SHON, THE PIPER (2 parts—Sept. 30).—The action is laid in the latter part of the eighteenth century, and the story revolves about a young Scotch duke, who, determined not to marry one seeking his money, searches for adventure in the highlands, disguised as a piper. He meets, during his wanderings, Madge, the daughter of Donald MacIvor. They fall in love at sight.

Unaware of Shon's real identity the old father refuses to sanction the match. He prefers to give his daughter to the wealthy Laird of the Isla. When the girl carries this news to her lover, he tells her to "Be of good cheer, my bonny lass, I'll pipe them a tune of another class." The wedding day is fixed and the Laird leads his melancholy fiancée forth.

Shon visits the feast in the garb of a harpist; he assumes the guest for a while and then, throwing off his disguise, escapes with Madge from a window. But previous to this Shon had called his clan together and when speeding away to his mansion, they cover his retreat. What follows is a remarkably thrilling battle between two kilted Scotch clans. And then the title of the youth is discovered and all ends well.

REX.

HIS BRAND (Oct. 2).—A stranger of easy manners and pleasant conversation arrives as guest on a large Western ranch. He is an old-time friend of the ranchman's wife. With a certain pride the rancher shows the stranger the extent of his lands, his flocks and his power and finally takes him to the ranch house, where the guest meets the rancher's wife. She is the highest type of womanly purity. She is lonely for a breath from the outside world and it is with exquisite delight that she attends to her old-time acquaintance and hears of her friends and her people.

The husband is at first bothered with this easy familiar conversation in which he has no part. As the stranger's stay continues, the blind, overwhelming rage of jealousy takes possession of the rancher. He brutally forces his wife's friend to leave the ranch. The wife is shocked by her husband's inconsistent show of rage. She runs after her departing friend with an apology. Misconstruing this action, and blind with rage, the husband takes after his wife. He ropes her, drags her to a corral, where cattle are being branded. Upon her breast he places the hot brand and when the iron is removed a large S is burned into the white skin.

In five months a baby boy is born to her. The rancher finds, after all, that he has some humanity in his character. He idolizes his child. It grows to be fifteen years old. The child is afraid of all animals. When a dog is brought near him, he cringes and shrinks with fear. Anything else the rancher can stand, but for his son to be a coward, this he will never suffer. He instructs the ranch hands to cure the boy of his cowardice at any cost

Will the Laugh Be On You

WHEN THE

EXCLUSIVE PROGRAM

IS TAKEN FOR YOUR TERRITORY?

What opinion of you as a business man will your exhibitors have when they learn that you did not contract for the

EXCLUSIVE PROGRAM

containing these brands of super-excellence

Gaumont Ramo Itala Great Northern Dragon Eclectic
Solax Ammex Film Releases of America Lewis Pennant
Blache American Features

Also the All Star Feature Corporation's Master-Plays, beginning with Augustus Thomas' "ARIZONA"

WEEKLY PROGRAM

5 Three-Reel Features 7 Regular Releases

EXCLUSIVE SUPPLY CORPORATION

220 West 42nd Street, New York City

¶ "We're not looking for 'suckers' to buy 'THE MISSING WOMAN,'" said Joe Miles to a buyer the other day. "It's for shrewd men of brains and judgment who want and get their money's worth."

¶ The fact that all the advance sales on this three reel, state-rights feature have been made to seasoned, critical exchangemen who can discriminate, means something. What does it mean?

¶ The day of selling "boob film" to "boob buyers" isn't on our calendar.

FILM RELEASES OF AMERICA

EXCLUSIVE SUPPLY CORPORATION

DISTRIBUTORS

220 WEST 42d STREET NEW YORK CITY

Again the time for branding has come. The ranch hands drag the boy to the branding corral. Into his hands they force a brand and are about to compel him to brand an animal, when, wild with fear, he swings the hot iron around his head, flaying his tormentors. The rancher then takes his son in hand and is about to see that his instructions are carried out, when the mother comes in answer to her child's cries. With one glance of that intense power which is only given to the frantic mother, the ranch hands forbear. Slowly she bares her bosom and shows them the scar left by the brand—then she bears the child's bosom. Upon it is written the father's crime. There is a pre-natal mark of the brand on the child's bosom.

The brute in the rancher is forever broken. The ranch hands go to their quarters and discuss lynching the rancher, but his domination over them is too great and all decide to quit. They go to the ranch house and make known their purpose. They come upon the rancher's family unaware. The mother is seated with the child upon her lap. The rancher's head is in the woman's lap. The brutal conflict in his nature has ceased and the scales have falled from his eyes. He wept. The ranch hands withdraw.

LIKE DARBY AND JOAN (Oct. 5).—The lives of an aged couple have been simple and kind, and as their years advanced toward the time of lengthening shadows the more eager they were to temper their effort of judgment with compassions. A stranger dropped into the quietude of the simple fisher village, and because his city ways had caloused the more tender sensibilities of his better nature, he forgot the rustic conception of the term "sweetheart."

Wanton flirting ended in physical struggle between the youth who really loved and the man whose infatuation was but a whim. It was then that the aged couple intervened and used the power of moral recitation to bring into existence the power of right. And as the angry combatants paused to listen, Darby told his story.

Way back in early years a similar condition between virtue and a more careless man had taken place. The brawny husband of the modest wife ignored the process of legal right in punishing the culprit who dared an attempt to add a blemish to the sanctity of wedlock. Aided by a couple of his companions, mere simple folk who knew not the careless indifference of city ways, the pleading offender was taken far out to sea and cast adrift.... and when this offender's wife searched the rocky stretch of neighboring shore, she found him—and even though his hair was matted and his features drawn in struggle, the wife wept and mourned his loss.

As the story finished the listening offender realized the purity of the white-haired couple that sought to save one who might invade like conditions of fisher felicity. His eyes softened with his realization that—

> "This life would be sweet and naught to atone,
> If only we were like Darby and Joan."

IMP.

HIS PRICELESS TREASURE (Oct. 4).—The Palace Hotel, at Loneliville, is in a bad way financially, and poor Fritz, the janitor, is worn out as doing duty as bell boy, janitor and clerk. Percy Fritz Noodle arrives in Loneliville and puts up at the Palace. 'Eere he even sees his room, he entrusts to the manager a small, mysterious box, which Percy impressively tells him is worth a million to him. Fritz gets this information, and a plot to rob the safe of this priceless treasure enters his head. Securing the cook as an accomplice, he later robs the safe and gets away.

The manager, horror-stricken, and Percy on the verge of hysterics, call up the scientific detective Isador Cohn, and through him the guilty pair are traced by scientific methods. Cohn, at a loss where to find them, is inspired by the sight of three toy balloons in the hands of a street vendor, to watch the pawn shop. He does so and intercepts the thugs as the pawnbroker opens the precious box. With a cry of joy Percy seizes the box, pulls therefrom a curly lock of hair, which he clasps with a fervent "her's."

The indignation of the crowd turn on the hopeless Percy and he is unceremoniously kicked out, still clasping his priceless treasure.

BLEEDING HEARTS, or JEWISH FREEDOM UNDER KING CASIMER OF POLAND (3 parts—Oct. 2).—Wandering Jews from other lands, weary and sick from torture and oppression, land in Poland during the 14th Century. These unfortunate people appeal to King Casimer for help and sympathy. They plead for deliverance from their past continued inquisitions. The count learns of the arrival of the Jews, and with his accomplices, they endeavor to persuade the king from allowing the Jews to remain in Poland, when the good priest Prandola intervenes, and manages to persuade King Casimer to allow the wanderers to remain and make their home in Poland.

The Jews pray and thank the king for befriending them. The count is enraged to think that his persuasion was of no avail. He secretly plots to incite an uprising against the Jews. In the meantime the king meets a young Jewess, named Esther, the daughter of a rabbi. The king tells the count of his love, and when the villain spies Esther he himself falls in love with her. A few days later, the count steals the young Jewess from her home, and places her in the care of an old drunken hag. He then reports to the king that the young Jewess has been drowned by her infuriated father, to which he adds that for a just punishment the Jews deserve execution.

King Casimer sends out an edict to kill all the Jews. The night before the terrible massacre, the count and his nobleman feast and get drunk. He orders the spies to bring Esther that evening to him and to tell her of his revenge against the foes. As the spies try to drag the poor girl out of the room, one of the men steal a bottle from the old hag. This causes a brawl, and in the fight that ensues, the old woman is struck on the head. The men carry the Jewess away. The old woman rises and confronts the priest. The old hag confesses to him the entire incident. He sees the king and reports to him the story, and tells him that the Jewess is in the power of the count. The king hurriedly rushes to the palace of the nobleman and in a disguise rescues the girl from the hands of the count. King Casimer orders the arrest of the count and immediately sends a courier to the scene of the execution, who arrives in time to save the Jews from the awful sacrifice. The king tenders a banquet in honor of his marriage to Esther. "Henceforth, there shall be peace between Poland and the Jews."

Hardly anything is of more interest in a film than good

SEA TRAGEDY

The Contrabanders

3 Reels

is full of exciting incidents showing a large vessel blown up by dynamite and a crew left to the perils of the ocean.

Read synopsis in issue of July 5, page 90.

STATE RIGHTS
SOLD REASONABLY

One, three and six sheets,
photos, slides and heralds.

New York
Film Company
145 West 45th Street
New York City

NESTOR.

JUSTICE OF THE WILD (2 parts—Sept. 29).—Joe, a widower, is a member of a band of rustlers. Before going on a raid he leaves his small son with neighbors. The raid is successful and Joe stops to spend money in town. During his absence the boy is taken sick. Joe decides to take him to a doctor, sixty miles away. At the stream he meets Mona, who has been sent to tan hides. She prevails upon Joe to take the boy to the Indian medicine man, as the long ride would mean death.

The boy cured, Joe marries Mona out of gratitude, and takes her to his cabin, giving up his old ways. Later, when their food is gone, Joe joins the rustlers again. Their attempted raid fails and Joe seeks solace in the saloon.

Chief and an Indian friend ride to the agency for the tribe's pension. Joe and his companions see the money, follow the Indians out of town and kill Chief. The money is divided, Joe keeping Chief's beaded pouch.

Mona is told of her father's murder by an unknown slayer. They are about to bury Chief when Mona sees that the burial robe is frayed. She goes to Joe, who has returned home, and asks money for a burial robe befitting a chief. Absentmindedly, Joe pulls out the pouch and Mona recognizes him as the slayer. She hunts him in the forest and beside the stream where they first met she enacts the justice of the wild. Then Mona returns to the cabin and fondles the orphaned boy.

BEYOND THE LAW (Oct. 1).—Joe has become a fugitive. While the sheriff's posse is hunting him, one of the men, Bill, is wounded and falls from his horse. Joe returns after the posse have gone, and after blindfolding Bill, Joe takes him to his shack, dresses his wounds and takes care of him until he is able to travel. Joe then takes Bill to the edge of the town and points out the way.

Bill goes immediately to the sheriff. Having blazed the trail, he tells the sheriff that he can take the suspect alone, but that the boys are to follow. Bill returns to Joe's shack, much to the surprise of the fugitive, but Joe, nevertheless, gets the drop on the newlymade deputy, and leaving him in the shack, starts outside for his horse. The sheriff's posse, riding up from the rear, fires upon him, the shot going through the window to where the deputy is seated. Joe makes his escape on his horse.

The sheriff and his men run into the shack to investigate, only to find Bill, the deputy, dead, and a letter addressed to Joe from his brother, explaining that it is the brother and not Joe who is wanted.

ECLAIR.

JACQUES THE WOLF (2 parts—Oct. 1).—Jacques, known through the great Northwest as "The Wolf," possesses a complex nature unfamiliar to modern civilization, but, according to authority, it is not an uncommon character in the land where the Indian has mixed with French and English.

"The Wolf" has little respect for law or the Royal Mounted Police. It pleases him to poach and sell contraband whiskey and he does so. He even goes so far as to aspire for the hand of one of the officer's daughters. He would take her away with him. She is willing to go, but the father, hard, according to the ways of the country, learns of their intentions, follows and shoots "The Wolf" as he deserts his sweetheart and slinks through the woods. Wounded, "The Wolf" staggers over the rocks and slips into the treacherous rapids.

"Big Bill," the "hootch seller," finds the man writhing in pain, his eye torn out. He takes "The Wolf" to his hut where his daughter assists in nursing him back to strength. It would seem, in the ensuing action, that there was a shifting of "The Wolf's" character after this incident. He is a man of low instincts and finds no trouble in transferring his affections to Bill's daughter. But he experiences an overmastering desire for revenge against the officer. He hunts the officer out in his own home. His first shot fails to reach its mark. Warned, the officer goes out to hunt "The Wolf" and what follows is one of the most en-

MUSIC — THE VERY LATEST — MUSIC

ORGAN ORCHESTRIONS

PLAYS TWO WAYS

AUTOMATICALLY
AND
BY HAND

MEETS EVERY REQUIREMENT

An instrument of this kind will meet the requirements of any first-class picture theatre. You can play popular, classic, sacred or dance pieces, as the instrument is only limited to the kind of music desired.

BUILT FOR ANY GIVEN SPACE.

THEY REPRODUCE THE PLAYING OF THE GREATEST ORGANISTS

ELIMINATE EXPERIMENTS

When you purchase a WELTE instrument you eliminate experiments. Your value is represented in every detail, as is attested by being in the homes of the wealthiest and most representative people in the world.

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

M. WELTE & SONS, Inc., 273 Fifth Avenue, N. Y. City
ESTABLISHED 1832

EXHIBITORS TAKE NOTICE!!!

Have a Motion Picture Made of Your City, Town or Next Special Event!

35 CENTS PER FOOT

PRICE INCLUDES ONE PRINT WITH TITLES

The biggest magnet to draw the crowds to your THEATER and the money to your pocket. Every foot guaranteed

COMMERCIAL MOTION PICTURES CO., Inc.

102 West 101st Street ::: ::: ::: New York City

grossing parts of the piece. The officer is led, through the cunning of "The Wolf," into a bear trap. However, "The Wolf," heeding the strange workings of his nature, tempers his desire for revenge and after the officer has spent the night in the trap he is freed. Alone "The Wolf" sits by the stream questioning his own actions. The point of a gun edges its way above the rocks; there is a sharp report. Two women clothe the body for burial. Two women bow their heads and pray over the rude bier for both had loved the strange man.

ROB ROY (3 parts—Sept. 17).—Rob Roy, who is one of the farmers on the estate of the Duke of Montrose, is called in by the duke to make an accounting. When the duke questions Rob's figures, that worthy resents it and takes one of the duke's flunkies, who tries to get him out of the room, and throws him out of the window. Rob then returns to the duke, but the duke has called in some soldiers and they overpower the Scot giant. While Rob lies in prison, the duke burns his home and then releases him so that he may see only the ashes.

Bent on revenge, Rob Roy goes to Sir Frederick Vernon, who is secretly conspiring against the English, and offers his assistance. The plotters are interrupted in one of their meetings by the entrance of Rashleigh Osbaldistone, the nephew of the wealthy London banker (Sir Osbaldistone). Rashleigh offers to give the conspirators a sure means of freeing Scotland, providing Sir Frederick will promise him the hand of his daughter, Diana, who has just demonstrated her dislike for young Osbaldistone. Sir Frederick is so set upon his purpose of bringing freedom to his land that he forces his daughter to take an oath to marry Rashleigh. Rob Roy witnesses the taking of this oath, although he is not in favor of forcing the girl into such a marriage.

In London, Francis Osbaldistone, a young man who prefers to write poetry and dream, rather than work in his father's bank, has given up his place in the bank and he leaves to visit at the Vernon castle. Rashleigh, his cousin, hears of his leaving and takes the place made vacant in the bank.

When Francis arrives at the Vernon castle he is deeply in love with Diana. A few days later the news comes by Jarvie, Sir Osbaldistone's Glasgow representative, that Rasleight has stolen some very valuable bonds from the bank, and Francis and Jarvie set out to hunt the thief. They meet Rashleigh in the mountains and Francis and his cousin fight a duel. They are interrupted by Rob Roy, who stops the fight and orders Rashleigh away. He thinks the thief is on an important mission to assist the Scots in their fight for freedom. After Rashleigh has departed, Francis explains the theft of the bonds in his father's bank and then Rob agrees to assist in the pursuit of the thief.

Rashleigh, to revenge himself on Francis and place Sir Frederick in his power, turns traitor and goes to the English headquarters, where he tells of Sir Frederick's plot. The English start for the Vernon castle and Sir Frederick and Diana escape through a secret passage.

Francis and Jarvis, not knowing of Rashleigh's treachery, apply to the English for assistance in tracing the thief of the bonds, and they are also placed under arrest. A Scot, who attempts to assist them, is arrested and threatened with hanging if he does not disclose the cave where Rob Roy lives. He refuses and is about to be hung when Rob appears in the distance and signals him to tell. The prisoner then agrees to lead the men and they start with a detachment of troops, taking Francis and Jarvie along as prisoners.

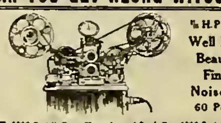
Rashleigh discovers Rob Roy, and pretending to be friendly with the Scot leader, he succeeds in securing his sword and then places him under arrest. The English place Rob in a boat and start across the river with him.

The detachment of troops who had been following their guide found themselves in an ambush, which had been prepared by Rob's wife, and they were most ingloriously defeated in a great battle there in the hills. Rob escaped by jumping into the river from the boat and arrived just as the Scots, headed by his wife, had routed the English.

Francis set out again in pursuit of Rashleigh and met Sir Frederick and Diana, who were fleeing from the pursuing English. The three went to Rob's cave to get Jarvie and here they were surprised by the English, headed by Rashleigh and captured. Rashleigh's triumph was short-lived, however, for Rob's men came in just in time to put an end to Rashleigh's insults to Diana. Rob fought a fair duel with Rashleigh after capturing him and killed him in fair fight, thus leaving Diana and Francis free to wed. The stolen bonds were found in Rashleigh's coat.

AN ARTIST
Of exceptional ability and experience in the designing and sketching of Moving Picture Advertising paper, desires to become associated with a large and progressive concern for the production of High Class Posters.
Is capable of originating new and powerful paper, radically different from anything now in use. Address,
ARTIST, care
Moving Picture World
New York City

Do You Want to Improve Your Business?
If you do, send us $7.50 for our new
"BRIGHTASDAY CURTAIN EMULSION PROCESS"
Which we absolutely guarantee to wonderfully improve your present projection over any possible curtain that you may now be using.
"BRIGHTASDAY CURTAIN EMULSION" makes brilliantly lighted theatres, improves your projection, eases the eye. Try it. It won't cost you a cent if you are not satisfied.
Manufactured exclusively by
THE LAEMMLE FILM SERVICE, Minneapolis.
Order through your film exchange if you like, but accept no substitute.

UNIVERSAL FILM POLISHER
POWER WINDER, REWINDER, EXAMINER, MENDER AND MEASURER ALL IN ONE.
HOW CAN YOU GET ALONG WITOUT?
Sold Complete or in Sections.


⅛ H.P Motor
Well Made, Beautiful Finish, Noiseless.
60 Pound.
POLISHING CAPACITY: 1000 Feet ½ Hour. Measuring and Rewinding: 1000 Feet 1 Minute.
ALL FILM MAKERS OF IMPORTANCE ARE USING MY MACHINERY
Laboratory Film Winders of any Description.
CAMERAS.
Perforators.
Printers.
Projectors.
Raw Film.

Write for CATALOGUES.
Eberhard Schneider
219 Second Ave.
New York

UNIVERSAL.

ANIMATED WEEKLY NO. 80 (Sept. 17).—Aviation Carnival.—Famous airmen perform many thrilling feats at the Hempstead Plains Aviation Field, New York.

Giants vs. Cubs.—The New York Giants and Chicago Cubs play an exciting game at the National League Park, Chicago, Ill.

High Diving.—The Royal Life Saving Society of Great Britain holds its annual meet at Highgate Bathing Pond.

National Golf Championship Tournament.—The amateur golf champions of the United States contest for the National Championship at Garden City, Long Island. Jerome Travers wins his fourth amateur golf championship.

Fashions.—Smart styles in fall gowns and suits. (The Ladies' Home Journal Pattern Company.)

Army Target Practice.—The United States Troops hold their field gun target practice near Laredo, Texas.

Navy Day Parade.—Veterans of the Spanish-American and Civil Wars attend the annual convention of the Navy Relief Society, Philadelphia, Pa.

Newport Horse Show.—America's wealthiest horsemen show their horses at the Newport Horse Show.

Royalty at Winchester.—The ancient capital welcomes King George and Queen Mary upon their recent visit to Winchester Cathedral.

Disastrous Mill Fire.—A disastrous blaze destroys large milling plant at Buffalo, N. Y.

Frontier Celebration.—Cowboys and Indians participate in the monstrous Shan Kive celebration at Colorado Springs, Col.

Unique Rowing Races.—Many queer crafts and unique methods of rowing are introduced at the Marlow Regatta, London, England.

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION.

AMERICAN.

THE FLIRT AND THE BANDIT (Sept. 29).—Ione, a Spanish girl, is deemed and recognized among her circle of friends as a heartless flirt. One afternoon, while seated at the edge of a pond in her father's garden, she is startled by the reflection of a face in the water. It is the face of "Bandit Bob." She cannot resist the temptation to try her powers in this new conquest, and proceeds to flirt with him. She next encounters "Bandit Bob" in the woods, where she has just experienced the satisfaction of crushing another heart thrown at her feet. He displays the primitive instinct by carrying her off to his home on the hill, and there making her his wife, while she is still bewildered at having found a personality which expected submission instead of submitting.

Later a love-making scene follows, and the story closes with the sheriff and "Bandit Bob" at peace and the little cabin blessed with a baby.

THE BADGE OF HONOR (Oct. 2).—The cowardly sheriff, shrinking from the task of trailing a desperate bandit, captures a poor innocent tramp, whom he represents before the infuriated villagers as the much-wanted outlaw, but a valiant girl turns the tables upon her detested suitor, thereby winning for her lover, a deputy sheriff, the badge of honor.

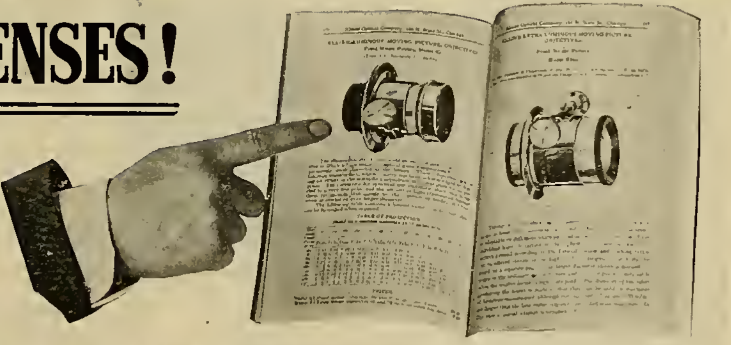
Margy's parents favor the sheriff, but she loves the deputy. Therefore whenever the sheriff catches them spooning he always orders the deputy off to some task. Such is the case when the villagers, exasperated at being constantly terrorized by Red Pete, admonish the sheriff that he will be replaced unless he captures the bandit. The sheriff, his prestige at stake, ventures forth upon the bandit's "sure death" warning. Of course, he sends his deputy, who after a diligent search, returns empty-handed. The sheriff again orders his deputy off, this time with instructions not to return alive without the bandit. Thanks to Margy's valuable aid, the deputy does capture Red Pete.

Meanwhile, however, the sheriff is cheered and congratulated for his bravery—but wait—Margy and the deputy are now nearing the village with the real bandit. It is apparent that the sheriff attempted to steal undeserved credit and he promptly loses his laurels. The prowess of the deputy is lauded vociferously to the great delight of Margy and the dismay of Sheriff Mercer.

CROOKS AND CREDULOUS (Oct. 4).—Influenced by older and less scrupulous men, John Blair is

COMING
Rogues of Paris
Thrilling and Sensational
Big Assortment of Advertising Matter
SOLAX COMPANY, FORT LEE, NEW JERSEY

SEE THESE LENSES!



A CHEAP service will produce clean-cut, stereoscopic pictures if projected through a good lens—an EXPENSIVE service demands good lens if you must obtain your money's worth.

LENSES FROM $6.00 to $325!

We offer you the widest possible range of choice. We SPECIALIZE in Projection Lenses—from the most inexpensive to the finest manufactured. Perhaps you require an additional lens—want a better one or an extra for emergencies?—if so, deal direct and obtain the benefit of wholesale prices.

WRITE FOR OUR WONDERFUL FREE CATALOGUE

just from the press, containing 166 pages, printed on a fancy enameled stock, profusely illustrated and containing information invaluable to the theatre-owner or the man who expects to be.

IF YOU REDECORATE OR BUILD

you will need this handy little book every minute. Not a dull, dry price-list, but a compendium of live suggestions for making your house more beautiful, more comfortable, more up-to-date—increasing its dividend power two-fold.

Also—the largest and most complete list of theatre equipment, with prices and description. Within its covers you will find lists of every possible item from tickets to curtain.

THERE ARE NO STRINGS TO THIS OFFER. IT'S FREE. JUST DROP A LINE AND SAY "SEND US CATALOGUE." ADDRESS DEPT. W.

KLEINE OPTICAL CO.

166 N. State Street GEO. KLEINE, President Chicago, Illinois

YOUR BIGGEST "FEATURE" DRAWING CARD

PURE FRESH AIR

— as supplied continuously by the —

OZONE PURE AIRIFIER

What This Machine Does for YOUR PATRONS

Supplies a healthful, oxygen-filled atmosphere for them to breathe—rendering the air sweet and wholesome in the most illy-ventilated theatre.

Does away with bad odors and "closeness" (so objectionable to many persons); destroys disease germs—thus minimizing possibility of contagion.

Write for descriptive literature, endorsements, prices and terms.

What this Machine Does for YOUR BUSINESS

Advertises you, to an extent worth one hundred times its cost, each season—insuring standing-room-only at all performances.

Draws and holds best class of patrons, by giving you publicity and prestige as an entertainer having care for the public's comfort and health.

OZONE PURE AIRIFIER CO., 909 Rand-McNally Bldg., CHICAGO

led into a get-rich-quick scheme, which, while within the law, brings heavy loss to many. Among the desperate stockholders, who besiege the company's office upon the first rumors of fraud, Blair is deeply impressed by the bearing of a fine-looking old man, whose quiet dignity cannot conceal his despair. But time dulls Blair's remorse and one year later, in an entirely untroubled frame of mind, he is motoring along the country roads, when an attack of speed mania lands him unconscious at the foot of an embankment. When he regains consciousness, he finds himself in the humble home of Rev. William Gray, sedulously attended by Mrs. Gray and Anne, her pretty granddaughter. The inevitable happens. Fascinated by Anne's charming simplicity, Blair falls head over heels in love and protracts his stay beyond the necessary limits of convalescence.

During an automobile ride with Anne an incident occurs which reawakens his sleeping conscience. He determines, before asking her to become his wife, to make reparation to those he has wronged. He goes to the city and makes arrangements to that effect with his banker. Returning to Anne, he proposes and is accepted.

The same day, Dr. Gray, who has been attending a conference, returns home. Overflowing with happiness, Anne introduces her fiance. To Blair's horror, he recognizes in Anne's grandfather the old man who had so impressed him a year ago. The recognition is mutual. The keenly developed spiritual insight of his calling teaches Dr. Gray that Blair's character is not without worth. With singular forbearance he refrains from telling Anne his discoverey. Blair sacrifices his private fortune to reimburse the stockholders and all ends happily.

MAJESTIC.

THE SHOEMAKER AND THE DOLL (Sept. 21).—A shoemaker with a tiny shop in a large city was able, after many sacrifices, to send to Italy for his sister and motherless child. One little girl, the daughter of one of his customers, presented him with a doll for little Marie and it was carefully put away with a wonderful pair of tiny shoes.

But from the day of the coming of the steamer from Italy the shoemaker was a changed man. His sister came alone with the sad news that little Marie had died upon the ocean. The new country did not agree with Rosa, and before long she, too, had passed away. The happy shoemaker became morose and ugly. The children came no longer to his shop and their parents passed by to other cobblers who were more courteous and less ill-tempered. Soon he was without work and therefore hungry and penniless.

In this condition he decided to end his life. Just as he was about to kill himself a package came addressed to his dead daughter from a child in the neighborhood who had moved away and did not know of his loss. The message came as from the dead and the shoemaker recognized it as a token of hope. He threw open his doors, summoned the poor children to have their shoes mended free of charge and gave his little Marie's shoes to a barefoot beggar.

AN AESTHETIC MATCH (Sept. 23).—Peggy, the Thompson's younger daughter, is a lively girl fond of athletics. She becomes engaged to Jack, a chap of similar temperament, and the father and mother rejoice. Gwendoline, the elder and aesthetic sister, condescends to congratulate also, but is sorry for Peggy, who prefers a man to art. The Thompsons despair of ever matching Gwendoline. But the unexpected happens. Artie, with his little butterfly net, is chasing butterflies, bugs and beetles, and studying flowers through his glasses near the Thompson summer cottage. Gwendoline sees him and is smitten at sight. With fluttering heart she runs to father and confesses. Not losing a moment, he hastens to where Artie is still after his specimens and against the young man's wishes escorts him with forceful but hospitable persuasions to the house and introduces him to the family, much to the shy Artie's embarrassment. At closer view Gwendoline is sure she has found her soul mate, and the old man doesn't propose to lose him, so he sends for Artie's baggage, insists upon his becoming a guest. Peggy is the last to be introduced. She cannot control a laugh at Artie's expense when she looks at his funny appearance. She makes up for her rudeness, however, with a grip of the hand that causes Artie to take a notice of her that rather pleases him. He accepts the invitation now.

In the succeeding few days, Gwendoline pursues Artie with Art—poetry, botany, classic music—and Artie is strangely inattentive. He escapes Gwendoline at every opportunity and joins Peggy and Jack. Peggy gets a lot of fun out of him.

The evening that Artie escapes Gwendoline's classic renditions at the piano and learns to rag with Peggy, his cup of happiness is full and he musters courage to propose. She laughs at him. He feels rather proud of himself for his effort, however, and bravely approaches the parents. Before he can complete his confused request for Peggy's hand they anticipate him, and thinking he, of course, means Gwendoline, they consent with gusto, and Gwendoline entering at the moment, they astonish Artie by almost thrusting Gwendoline into his arms. Left alone with her, he stammers that he didn't mean her and bolts. In the meantime the fond parents have told Peggy and Jack. She in turn astonishes Jack by thrusting his ring back to him, and running away where she can be alone and fathom a sudden depression of her heart.

Artie, with his belongings packed, steals from the house and is making from the garden when he comes upon Peggy, her face buried in her arms, quietly suffering what she discovered about her heart. He steals a parting kiss of her hair in his customary awkward way, and is detected. An explanation follows, and Peggy drags him back, Father and mother come upon them and father is furious, till chancing to look toward another part of the garden, he spies Gwendoline and Jack—united through mutual trouble—and recent constant society. Gwendoline accepts the ring Peggy returned and the unexpected has happened again.

PICTURES
CHANGED DAILY
TO DAY
THE FRENCH SPY
THE DREAM
TO MORROW
PATHES WEEKLY
THE MANIAC

Make Your Lobby Display Attractive

There is nothing more fascinating to the public than a bright brass frame to display your photos or posters.
We make Lobby and Theatre Fixtures and Brass Rails of every description.
Don't fail to visit our complete Show Rooms at
101 - 103 FOURTH AVE., NEW YORK, N. Y.

Write for Catalog
Established 1882

The Newman Mfg. Co.
715-721 Sycamore St.
Cincinnati, Ohio

$3.50 CRYSTAL WHITE
$4.00 SILVER FINISH
Curtain Coatings
PREPAID
ALFRED C. STANGE, 15 S Leavitt St., Chicago, Ill.

Changeable Illuminated
PROGRAM SIGN
WRITE FOR CATALOGUE
ZENITH MFG. CO.
Box 252 Cincinnati, Ohio

Headquarters for
ASBESTOS
CURTAINS and PICTURE BOOTHS
Send for Booklet C. W. Trainer Mfg. Co.
39 Pearl St., Boston, Mass.

For FEATURE FILMS
address
NORTHERN FEATURE FILM EXCHANGE
ulte 405, Schiller Building, Chicago
Phone Central 6229
SEND FOR OUR NEW LIST

We buy and sell Second Hand Films and Moving Picture Machines
WESTERN FILM BROKERS
538 S. Dearborn Street Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE 50 FEATURES
First Class Condition
Elegant Advertising Matter. 1000 COMMERCIALS
VERY CHEAP
INTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS
5 WEST 14th STREET, NEW YORK

MOVING PICTURE MEN
Please your audience! Throw "Handwritten Personal Chats" on your screen! "Personal" interest, you know, Wins Patronage. You can write or sketch anything on our "Niagrine" Slides, using common pen. Slides are absolutely heatproof. Don't scratch nor smear. 12 slides, 3¼ x 4 inches, only 25c, prepaid. Try them immediately. Unquestionable satisfaction or positively money back.
Chas. Haeusser, 1256 Broadway, Albany, N. Y.

A SLIGHT MISUNDERSTANDING (Sept. 27).—Fred is in love with Belle. He finds parting from her very difficult. In his affectionate embraces he spoils his shirt front. The next morning Fred has occasion to find fault with his laundress, Patricia, who tears the bosom of one of his shirts. He writes her a note saying that unless she is more careful with his shirt-fronts he will have to try elsewhere. At the same time he writes a note to Belle inviting her to the theater. In his haste he sends the first note to Belle and the second to Patricia.

The Irish laundress is flattered by his attentions in asking her to the theater, and so much puffed up that she gives her admirer, Patrick, a mason, the cold shoulder. Belle on the other hand is hurt and angered at her lover's allusions to his ruined shirt-front, and tears up the missive.

As luck would have it, Pat, Patricia and Fred, and Belle and her father, all go to the Grand the same evening. Fred nearly falls out of the box at finding his laundress in his sweetheart's place, and the laundress on finding out her mistake starts in to pummel her customer over the silk hat with her umbrella. Belle at the sight of her lover in a box with his laundress begs her father to take her from the theater. While Pat—Pat immediately sets out to square matters with his apparently more successful rival. When he finishes with Fred, the latter is in ribbons. The mistake is cleared up in the end and both couples are reunited.

RELIANCE.

THE HARDEST WAY (Sept. 22).—Jane, the wife of a convict, receives a letter from Bud, her husband, telling her that he will be home the next day and that he is going to keep straight for her and their daughter Runa's sake, and so that he will not be tempted, he asks her to do away with a bag of tools which he had hidden back of the fire board in their bedroom. The wife, overjoyed, hides the tools in a nearby wood pile. Bud arrives home and finds work in a lumber yard; but his boss losses some money and Bud is unjustly suspected of stealing it. The boss reports loss to the police station while Bud, discouraged, goes home, and, thinking it no use to be honest any longer, forces his wife and Runa to tell where they had placed the tools. He then starts out. The detectives are now on his trail, and see him with the bag of tools in his possession. Bud eludes them and gets back to his shack just in time to put the tools back in the old hiding place. The detectives trail him to the shack, burst in the door, and search the house. Runa, in the bedroom, has seen her father replace the tools. She knows they are bad and decides to throw them in the river where her papa will never get them again. She escapes unseen with the tools. The detectives have found the letter describing the hiding place of the tools, and think they have Bud dead to rights, but get left when they go to the fire place and find that the tools are gone. They read the letter again, thinking perhaps that they have made a mistake and that Bud does intend to lead a better life. They exit. Meantime Bud's employer discovers that his money was stolen by a discharged employee. He asks Bud's forgiveness and tells Bud to come back to work.

THE MISSING RING (Sept. 24).—Alice Williams has two suitors, a young doctor and a rich broker. She accepts the latter, Ralph Malcolm, because she loves him. John Douglas turns his attention to his charity patients at the big hospitals. Malcolm gives a dinner to announce his engagement to Alice. During the dinner some discussion arises regarding jewels, and Malcolm takes out half a dozen odd and curious rings which he displays to his guests. When these are returned to him he finds that one is missing. That night when Alice is undressing she tells her maid about the ring that disappeared so strangely. A little later, after Alice has retired, the maid finds the ring caught in the laces of her mistress' gown. A sudden temptation assails her and she makes up her mind to pawn the ring. Malcolm hires a detective to trace the missing jewel and the next day when she goes to pawn it the ring is recognized and she is held. When brought to bay she breaks down and tells them that her mistress, Alice Williams, sent her to pawn the ring. This story is repeated to Malcolm, who believes that the maid could not have secured the ring otherwise had Alice not given it to her. He sends a note to his fiancee, breaking their engagement. Douglas, who

ANNOUNCEMENT

We are now printing the word "Eastman" on the margin of all our Cine film. We want the exhibitor to know when he is and when he is not getting Eastman film. It will be to his advantage—and ours.

Of course it will take time for such identifiable films to reach the consumer—so don't expect results at once—but it's a step in the right direction—for your interests and ours.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.

OCTAPHONE
UNAPHONE
MARIMBAS
XYLOPHONES
CATHEDRAL CHIMES
MUSICAL ELECTRICAL BELLS

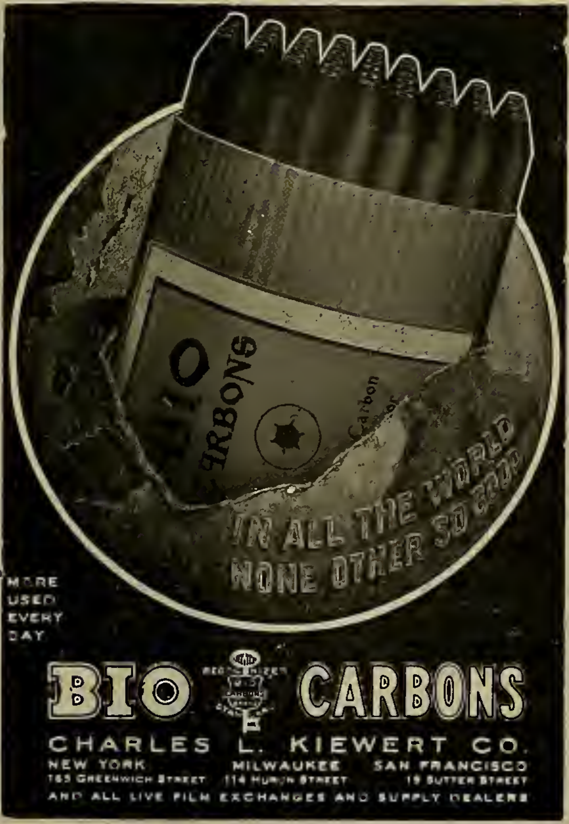
Are a few of the many musical novelty instruments we make for moving picture theatres.

Our instruments are electrically operated and played from piano keyboard.

They are easy to install and very moderate in cost.

Write today for descriptive Catalogue "F."

J. C. DEAGAN
1770 Berteau Ave.
Chicago, U. S. A.



MORE USED EVERY DAY

BIO CARBONS

CHARLES L. KIEWERT CO.

NEW YORK
165 GREENWICH STREET

MILWAUKEE
114 HURON STREET

SAN FRANCISCO
19 SUTTER STREET

AND ALL LIVE FILM EXCHANGES AND SUPPLY DEALERS

A Common Sense Argument

Mirroroide advertisements have been read the world over. We do not depend absolutely on advertisements to accomplish the results we have attained. We may quote to you from page 1060 of the Moving Picture World, issued September 6th, in which Mr. R. W. Buzzell, of the Plaza Theatre, Northampton, Mass., writes: "I have a good union operator and a Mirroroide screen, and will back my picture against any other exhibitor." This partly an abstract. Read it for yourself. This was contained in the Moving Picture World, Sept. 6th issue.

The common sense of the argument is this—that we will cheerfully back Mirroroide up against any screen or projection surface in the world today. Backed up with any amount of cash that any other of our competitors care to designate, as to the merits of a true projection surface and the resulting accomplishments. These tests are to include angle views, close-up views, and the practical perspective of the said projection. We have read a number of advertisements from our competitors. Can they do what they claim? We claim they cannot. Then again, Mirroroide is put on the market at a price within the reach of every exhibitor, because we are equipped to turn out, if necessary, two hundred screens weekly, which ensures no delays. We have the proper factory facilities, cash capital, and the proper machinery to do as we claim. If you doubt, our large, free samples are convincing.

If you desire recommendations from any portion of the entire universe, write us, and we will gladly inform you who has one of our Mirroroide screens in use. There are 4,700 Mirroroide screens in use today, which warrants the assertion that Mirroroide is the best by test, and has proven to be superior to any other screen now on the market, barring none. Get our large, free samples. Postage prepaid. Test any way you desire against any other curtain or screen in your town. This is a common-sense argument, and what your eyes see you can't help but believe.

J. H. GENTER CO., Inc., Newburgh, N. Y.

right along refuses to doubt Alice even for a moment, brings her the note. After reading the letter she is stunned. He asks her to be his wife, but she says that she will never marry until the cloud has been removed from her name. Some time later while Alice is visiting at the charity hospital in which Douglas is, a patient is brought in. She proves to be the maid, who, upon seeing Alice, breaks down and confesses the whole story. Malcolm receives the signed confession and immediately is stricken with remorse for his hastiness. He rushes over to Alice to find that she has become the betrothed wife of the young doctor.

THE ORIGINAL WILL (Sept. 27).—Upon promise of reformation, Simon Briggs gives his dissolute nephew, Stephen, more money. He gambles it away. Briggs' old servants, Jonas and Sarah Pearson, respectively valet and housekeeper, indulge in day dreams over a cottage which they plan to buy with their savings. They have almost enough. Briggs refuses Stephen more money, and he attempts to rob the old man's safe. Briggs interferes, but keeps the knowledge from Jonas, and the next day the old couple, learning from Stephen that he is being turned out penniless, give him from their savings. Briggs sees the transaction and phones for his lawyer, who brings a paper which Briggs signs and has witnessed.

A year later the old folks are looking at the cottage now so far beyond their means, and when they return they find Briggs stricken ill. Stephen reads of it and writes for money for carfare to come. Jonas is against sending it, but Sarah says send it and their store is still further depleted. Stephen comes and wins over his uncle to thinking him reformed. The dying man makes a will, dividing the estate between Stephen and the servants. Stephen, wanting it all and knowing that if his uncle dies intestate, he will get it all, as he is next of kin, destroyes the will before the dying man's eyes and in spite of his protests. Perplexed to see the old man's face assume a sardonic expression, which he then fails to account for. Lawyer Brown returns from a business trip and gets the paper from his safe. Jonas and Sarah are alone at their employer's grave as the last rites are performed. Returning, they find Stephen and his cronies carousing in the library. Words follow and they are discharged. Going downstairs again Jonas overrules Sarah's objection and enters to demand money. He is being thrown out when Lawyer Brown is brought in by Smith, another servant. He displays the paper which proves to be the original will and leaves everything to the two servants. Stephen dares not mention the later will for fear of incriminating himself and exits with a dollar, all that is willed to him. His cronies go, also leaving the old folks in possession.

THANHOUSER.

WHEN THE WORM TURNED (Sept. 21).—The farmer was rich, but the stingiest man in his part of the country. He made his wife and daughter labor in the fields. The daughter had a sweetheart, a most desirable young farmer, but the old man drove him away.

The mother had stood about all she could, and then rebelled. She read in a newspaper of a new and rare disease which had been discovered by some famous physician, and soon she had all the symptoms. The family doctor, who much disliked the farmer, helped her along, and soon the miser realized that the only way to insure his own safety was to humor his wife's every whim. In this way she secured money, fitted her daughter out with a trousseau, and boldly ordered the marriage of the young couple, her scared husband not daring to protest. When everything she wanted had been done, the woman announced that she "was cured." The farmer wondered, and was half inclined to believe that he had been tricked, but was afraid to say so; for everyone laughingly assured him that it would be terrible if the woman should suffer a relapse.

For Rent—FILM—For Sale

Do you want good service cheap? Write today.
NATIONAL MOVING PICTURE CO.,
Ellsworth Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Stop the Leakage
Use Corcoran Tanks.
No. 6 price list is a money saver.
A. J. CORCORAN, INC.
11½ John Street New York City

"FOTOPLAYER"
the instrument that supplies
MUSIC FOR THE PICTURES
The American Photo Player Sales Co.
130 Kearny St., San Francisco. Cal.

WHEN YOUR PICTURE MACHINE NEEDS REPAIRING
WHY DON'T YOU SEND IT TO US?
We have the best equipped machine shop in the country and can repair any make of machine. Write us and get acquainted.
WE BUY SECOND-HAND MACHINES.
GEO. M. HOKE SUPPLY CO.
176. N State St. (bet. Lake and Randolph) Chicago, Ill.

TRY US
for printing, developing and titles. No order too large for our capacity, or none too small for our careful attention. Films renovated by our special Paris Process.
PARISIAN MFG. & FILM RENOVATING CO.
4940 Wentworth Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

We have a Catalogue of full line of Moving Picture Machine repair parts ready to put in your machine at reduced prices. We make them, and for that reason can sell them very low. We also sell Stereopticons for $12.00; Calcium Jets, $3.00; 100 Carbons, $2.00; Condensers, 55c; Arc Lamps, $2.25; Stereopticon Lenses, 60c; Slide Carriers, 25c; Moving Picture Objectives, $3.75; Jackets, $1.75; Ticket Holders, 75c; Rheostats, $4.00; 50 Candle Power Stereopticon Lamps, 75c.
L. HETZ, 302 E 23rd Street, New York City

THE OFFICIAL GOAT PROTECTOR (Sept. 23).—A miserly old man was made the guardian of his niece, the will providing that he should control the estate until she married. Under the circumstances he made it his business to scare suitors away. The miser owned a very intelligent goat, which he had trained to give an alarm whenever a young man approached the house. When the signal was given, the wicked old uncle would take a shotgun, loaded with salt, and make it clear that he did not care for company.

A young merchant was the favored suitor, and he was so appealing that he even won the sympathy of the goat. His plans for an elopment were spoiled, however, and he was in despair until a versatile friend, an actor, came to his assistance.

This individual, with two confederates, appeared at the house in the guise of "U. S. Goat Protectors," and, as expected, found that the miser did not possess a Federal license for his pets. His protests were disregarded, and with the goat he was dragged shrieking away in an auto. Later he made his escape, not knowing that his captors had arranged it for him. They scared the life out of him, during a thrilling chase through the woods, but he reached his home in safety. There he was horrified to find that his niece had vanished. He arrived at the railroad station just in time to see her depart with the suitor and a minister, who was performing the ceremony en route to save time.

AN UNFAIR EXCHANGE (September 26).—A wealthy New Yorker disinherited his son, because he disliked the woman he married. The son went South to live, where his wife died, and he brought up his little daughter. Years passed, and finally the man in New York received word that his son had passed away, and that the little orphan had been shipped to him by steamer.

The day the boat docked the old man went to meet it, but was delayed by an auto accident, and when he arrived at the pier, found no trace of the child. The police were notified, but in a few minutes the grandfather called off the search, explaining that the child had turned up.

He did not suspect that he had been the victim of a deception, but the fact was that the child who appeared was not his granddaughter. As later developed, the little girl wandered around the streets until she was exhausted, and then met another child who closely resembled her. This girl, the daughter of a brutal laborer, was planning to run away from home, an noting the resemblance, had a wicked idea. She decoyed the other child to her home, induced her to rest, exchanged clothing with her while she slept, and then departed to meet the trusting old grandfather. The little girl from the South, when she awoke, found none to believe her story, and friendless and alone, seemed doomed to a life of squalor and wretchedness. A kindly old washerwoman, however, played detective, and aided by a strange coincidence, was enabled to straighten out the tangle, and bring the right child back to the home of her grandfather, where her latter years were peaceful and happy. She forgave the other little girl, and the aid she extended to her enabled her in time to rise to a better position in the world.

EXCLUSIVE FILM CORPORATION

GAUMONT.

GAUMONT WEEKLY NO. 80 (Sept. 10).—Colonel Cody's Funeral.—American aviator killed in military service in England is buried in great honor.

Poincare Goes Home.—French President is welcomed to the scene of his childhood.

Physical Culture in Spanish Schools.—Castilian children are given thorough gymnasium instruction.

Submerging the Subway.—Section of New York's underground railroad system is dropped into Harlem River.

AS WE PREDICTED
ILLUSTRATED SONG SLIDES WOULD COME BACK AND THEY HAVE. OUR SERVICE you eventually will use, if not sooner. Write for our 1914 list and be convinced we are the largest song slide renting exchange in the world.
CHICAGO SONG SLIDE EXCHANGE
6th Floor, Powers Building, Station M., 37 S. Wabash Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

COMING!
The Prisoner in the Harem
Big Animal Sensation
4 Reels Big Paper Assortment
BLACHE FEATURES, Inc. Fort Lee, New Jersey

"ARCO-B"
Biograph
Carbons
Made Expressly for Motion Picture

SIEMENS & CO. manufacture but One Grade of Picture Carbons.

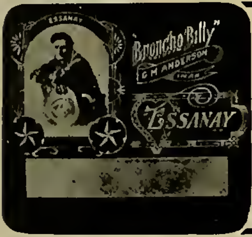
These are Imported and sold under our mark as

"Biograph Brand"

All 12" Carbons are double-pointed.

Packed only in Cartons, as shown.

L. E. FRORUP & CO.
232 GREENWICH ST. NEW YORK



SLIDES

This slide of Broncho Billy, for Advertisement and 15c. Send for list, General, Mutual and Universal players. We want to show you about our release slides for these three programs. They're just what you need. Sample for 20c. If you use one, you'll want them for every feature. You might just as well have the best slide made as any other. You'll get them of

The Niagara Slide Company
Lockport, New York

MAKE 'EM YOURSELF SLIDES

Make them yourself. Written with pen and ink or typewriter. Three minutes to make a slide. Used for advertising slides, to announce future or feature programmes, for chorus slides when chorus slide is missing. We send four colors of gelatin. The slides look well and anyone can make them. They are handy also for announcing vaudeville acts. In fact, they may be readily used for anything you may wish to say to your audience.

For the sum of $3.50 we will send, by parcel post, prepaid and insured, the following:

24 cover glass, 1 package binder strips, 1 dozen mats, 1 instruction sheet, 1 form sheet and 50 strips assorted colors gelatin—enough for from 300 to 400 slides. Order now. Address:

UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO.
1733 West 9th St. Brooklyn, N. Y.

Von Duprin SELF-RELEASING FIRE EXIT DEVICES

Simple in construction; unexcelled in workmanship; strong to withstand the severest handling; failure to operate is impossible. Thousands of these devices in use on schools, churches, theatres, auditoriums, factories, department stores, etc. Any hardware dealer can furnish them.

VONNEGUT HARDWARE CO.
General Distributors

Indianapolis, Ind.

Ask for catalogue No. 10D.

See Sweat's catalogue, pages 794 and 795.

SAFE EXIT IS A UNIVERSAL DEMAND

THE VIVAPHONE

SINGING AND TALKING PICTURES

SCENE FROM "JIMMY VALENTINE"

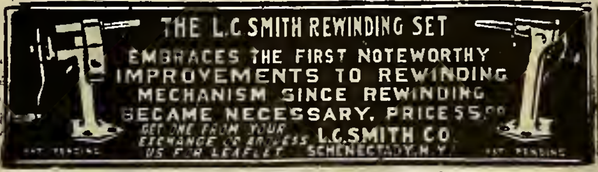
A SUCCESS EVERYWHERE. For State Rights Apply

VIVAPHONE & FILMS SALES CO.
INCORPORATED
110-112 West 40th Street, New York City
A. BLINKHORN, Sole Agent U. S. A. and Canada

Name	Length	Class	Posters	Price per ft.
A Girl Without a Country	3000	drama	1-3-6 sheets	.7c
Hypnotism or Dark Power	3200	"	1-6 "	.4c
Whims of Fate	2100	"	1-3-4 "	.5c
Stuart Keen	2700	(sensational)	8 style 1-3-6 sheets	.6c
Caprice of Fortune	2000	drama	1-3 sheets	.5c
The Gypsy Girl	2000	"	1-4 "	.5c
Hungry Dogs	2000	"	1-4 "	.4c
For Her Love	2100	"	1-3-4 "	.4c
Mexico vs. Spain Bull Fight	2000	(sensational)	1-3-4 "	.8c
The Flooded Mine	2000	drama	1-3 "	.3c
James Patterson, Detective	2700	"	1-3 "	.3c
Through Fire and Water to Happiness	3000	exclusive	1-3 sheets, banner and photos	.7c
Lieut. Daring and Photographic Pigeons	1500	drama	1-3 banner	.4c
Kings of the Forest	2000	animal drama	1-3-6 sheets	.3c
The Wild Cat	3000	exclusive	1-4 "	.4c
Custer's Last Fight	2100	Kay-Bee	1-3-6 "	.5c
Adventure of Lady Glane	3000	exclusive	1-3-6 "	.8c
Modern Enoch Arden	2000	exclusive	1-3 banner	.3c
Right to Exist	3000	DeKage	1-3-6 photos	.8c
The Black Viper	3000	Monopol	1-3-6 photos	.8c

1000 reels with posters, good condition, complete at $5.00 per reel. Same condition without posters, $3.00 per reel. Special exclusive feature films bought on a commission of one cent per foot.

G. W. BRADENBURGH, 802 Vine Street
Bell Phone Cable, Bradfilms, Phila.

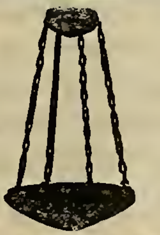


THE L. C. SMITH REWINDING SET

EMBRACES THE FIRST NOTEWORTHY IMPROVEMENTS TO REWINDING MECHANISM SINCE REWINDING BECAME NECESSARY. PRICE $5.00

GET ONE FROM YOUR EXCHANGE OR ADDRESS US FOR LEAFLET

L. C. SMITH CO.
SCHENECTADY, N. Y.



EYE COMFORT LIGHTING System

So necessary to the success of every Motion Picture Theatre that we engineer 60 Theatres a month.

This is a free service to Motion Picture Theatre Managers.

Distance Screen to Rear of Auditorium..............................
Ceiling Height..............................
Width of House..............................
Name..............................

NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO.

Chicago
229 W. Jackson Blvd.

New York
505 Fifth Ave.

Sports Festival at Frohau.—German city holds its annual gymnastic carnival.

Ball Team Goes to China.—University of Washington sends athletes to the Orient.

"Buffalo Bill" Goes Hunting.—He leads the Prince of Monaco into the good hunting grounds of the West.

Gay Deauville.—French society resort is the scene of an exciting horse race.

"Southern Mammies" Entertain "Ole Massahs."—Ex-Slaves' Association holds interesting meeting in Birmingham, Ala.

THE SHERIFF'S DEVOTION (Sept. 23).—Edyth Barton and her fiance, Will Lorimore, are at a picnic when Edward Gordon arouses Lorimore's jealousy by his quite innocent attentions to Edyth.

Five years later we see Will and Edyth Lorimore in their little home, a sweet girlie of about four summers playing around them. Will has developed a mania for strong liquor, and his employer peremptorily "fires" him. Instead of going to seek other work, Will goes to the saloon where he finds his friend Ed Gordon, the new sheriff. Lorimore's mind goes back to the picnic five years since, and in his maudlin condition he refuses to drink Ed's health. Instead of being offended, Ed is sympathetic and leads the half-drunken man to his home. Ed leaves, but is stopped suddenly by hearing a pistol shot. He rushes back to find Will threatening Edyth with a gun. With a casual "Put up the gun, Bill—you haven't the nerve to shoot," he takes the revolver from Lorimore and gives him a few words of advice.

Lorimore goes from bad to worse. He runs away from home and turns outlaw, taking the pseudonym of "Black Hank," leaving behind him a cruel note addressed to Edyth: "I am through with you. You can have your sheriff lover." The distracted Edyth goes to Ed's office and shows him the note, and the generous fellow thereafter makes Edyth a weekly remittance of cash, always sending it in her erring husband's name.

Suddenly "Black Hank" commits some daring robberies and Ed is detailed to hunt down the outlaw. He makes his preparations, not for a moment suspecting that Black Hank is in reality his former friend Lorimore. Edyth's girl falls desperately ill, and she rushes in haste to fetch the doctor. Wearied by the long run she sinks exhausted on the railroad track just when Ed's special is due, and Ed bravely saves her life. The shock necessitates a spell in the hospital, and on coming out she learns that her beloved child has passed away. Ed tracks down the outlaw and shoots him in self defense. Will Lorimore's dying request is that Ed will take care of Edyth, and when she leaves the hospital, widowed and childless, it is to Ed Gordon she turns for succor. His great heart has been pining for her love all these years, and it is not a difficult task he is called upon to perform.

AN AWFUL RELAPSE (Sept. 25).—Bill Brand has been "hitched up" for two years, and has been an exemplary husband. His wife finds him a faithful spouse. There comes a letter from Tom Byrne, telling Bill that he is getting too staid. Bill rushes headlong to destruction of all the trust his wife has placed in him. By means of a fake invitation to dine with the Secretary of State, he makes an excuse for the night out, and sallies forth—not to the Astor Hotel for that quiet little dinner with the Secretary, but to the gay burlesque house yclept the vaudeville, there to consort with his old cronies and some former "flames."

Mrs. Brand gets lonesome. She wants to hear Bill's voice. Someone calls up and enquires for Bill—in a feminine voice. Mrs Brand replies gruffly, and learns that the lady is one "Emmy," who is confirming an assignation outside the Vaudeville Theater. Mrs. Brand calls up her erring spouse, and in an imitation of Emmy's voice alters the rendezvous to a private room at the Cafe Maxim. , Bill Brand goes to the Cafe Maxim at the hour appointed, sees "Emmy" (as he thinks), heavily veiled, and falls at her feet in adoration. Picture Bill's face when the lady unveils, and he discovers his ridiculous position. Still, Bill is not bad at heart, and he wins over his wife, and we leave them enjoying the tete-a-tete supper together, Bill being really rather pleased than otherwise that his much better—and wiser—half has intervened to save him from making a fool of himself.

SOLAX.

QUALITY OF MERCY (Sept. 24).—Old Dalton and his thrifty wife have saved many years to pay off the mortgage on their little home. The sum saved at last, John, their son, a young fellow of about twenty, is given the money to take to Surle, the villain, who has bled them for many years. Having paid the money, John on leaving the place stops to speak with Surle's pretty secretary. John drops the receipt, and flustered by the girl, leaves. The same evening John is offered a fine position in Australia. The family being so occupied with John's hasty departure, the receipt is forgotten. The villainous Surle finds and destroys it. John, being safely out of the way, the rascal hectors the old couple, telling them the amount was never paid. As they have no receipt, they are obliged to hand over their little remaining money as interest. At last Surle decides to foreclose, and the old lady, already feeble with worry and poverty, dies. Surle has the place sold under the hammer. Meanwhile, John hearing of Surle's perfidy, comes home. But before he reaches home, the mother is laid away, the old home is gone, and his father is sent to the poor-house. One feeling predominates in John's heart—he will kill Surle! Crazed with grief, he goes to Surle's home and meets the secretary. She strives to soothe him and soften his desperate mood without avail. Surle being out, he decides to wait for him and tells the secretary that he intends to kill him. When the girl hears Surle come, she tries to warn him, but John ties her fast to a chair and gags her. At the last moment when John has his victim groveling before him, his better nature, or perhaps the pitiful entreaty in the girl's eyes, restrains him. He rushes from the house, only to return in time to save the life of the creature who has cheated and almost ruined him. The girl's deep love and her pride in his manhood repay the wronged boy for all he has suffered.

SOUL OF MAN (Sept. 26).—James Brett, the son of a minister, is studying for the ministry, and strange to say, having been so closely confined to their small cottage, he is ignorant of the ways of the world and knows very little about girls and love. His parents are finally persuaded to allow him to complete his studies in the city. After his arrival, when the wonderment of the city's activities has decreased to some extent, he secures a room in a boarding house. The boarders represent every walk of life from the best to the lowest. Cora, a girl of the underworld, also has a room there, and is generally known as being a "tough mug." James is introduced around by the landlady in the parlor, and the way Cora makes herself known to him proves to be a severe shock. After hearing some of their conversation and seeing her actions with her bunch, James seeks refuge in his room and there ponders over the wickedness of the world which he heretofore never realized. However, there is something about Cora that appeals to him, and he decides to bring her to the right path. A short time after James' arrival Cora and her gang plan to rob a store. James overhears the plot, informs the police and at the point of a revolver drags Cora from the scene. He gives her a severe lecture and leaves her in tears and shame taking "The cure for her soul." In a dream Cora discovers her love for James, who is about to leave for his home. Both acknowledge their affection, and Cora and James are united in marriage.

SOME SPLENDID TERRITORY STILL OPEN FOR THE BIG SENSATION, THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO!

PRODUCED BY B. & C.

A Feature Picture Proposition Without a Parallel! Greatest Subject, Greatest Film Product, Greatest Line of Pictorial Printing, Greatest "Snap" in Prices (3½ to 7 Cents a Sheet, depending upon quantity) and the greatest drawing power of anything before the Picture-Loving Public!! Therefore, the Greatest Money Getter Ever for Live Feature Buyers!!!

WIRE YOUR BID

WATERLOO FILM CO.
P. P. Craft, Mgr.

145 West 45th Street
New York City

AUTHORIZED DISTRIBUTORS FOR POWERS, MOTIOGRAPH, SIMPLEX, EDISON AND STANDARD MACHINES

Picture Theatre Equipment Co.

THE BIGGEST MOTION PICTURE SUPPLY HOUSE IN AMERICA

21 East 14th Street, New York City

CONDENSERS—BOOTHS—TICKET CHOPPERS—REELS—REEL CASES—BOOTH CABINETS.

WE EQUIP MOTION PICTURE THEATRES COMPLETE

COMING!

The Prisoner in the Harem

Big Animal Sensation

4 Reels

Big Paper Assortment

BLACHE FEATURES, Inc. Fort Lee, New Jersey

COMING

Rogues of Paris

Thrilling and Sensational

Big Assortment of Advertising Matter

SOLAX COMPANY, FORT LEE, NEW JERSEY

AMERICAN MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS

are acknowledged by the leading expert film producers to be the finest and most accurate Cameras in the world.

We also manufacture a complete line of Studio and Dark Room Equipment.

Distributers for Eastman Raw Film

Send for Catalogues

American Cinematograph Co.

617-631 W. Jackson Blvd. Chicago, Ill.

Ready for Booking

Famous Feature Film Co.

ROOM 714, PHONE BRYANT 6966

145 W. 45th Street, New York City

"A FIGHT FOR MILLIONS"

in 4 thrilling parts as shown at Fox's theaters

Greater New York, New York State, New Jersey, Long Island. Advertising display consists of—Sixes—2 styles three sheets, 3 styles 1 sheet.

EXHIBITORS

wishing to book or buy

"STREETS of NEW YORK"

FOUR REELS

In North and South Car., Ga., Fla., Ala., Tenn. and Miss.

WRITE or WIRE

Southern Feature Film Co.

TAMPA, FLORIDA

EXHIBITORS NOTICE. We have a proposition to offer you whereby you can fill your theatre at every performance. Drop us a line or call for catalog of THE BERNARD L. MILLER CO. Address for particulars

EAGLE FEATURE FILM CO., Inc.

Dept. A, Masonic Building

71 West 23d Street
New York City

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN

Watch for Coming Releases of

ESSANAY Ithaca Co.

Theo. W. Wharton, Managing Director

WANTED

FIRST CLASS REPAIR MAN for repair department in large city outside of New York. Must know Powers, Edison, Motiograph and Simplex machines. Good position for right party. State age, experience, references, salary wanted and full particulars in first letter.

Address B. C., Care Moving Picture World, New York.

GOOD MUSIC ♯ GOOD SHOW

LOOK THEATRE MANAGERS LOOK

Build up your trade and reputation. Get this for your orchestra or pianist.

THEATRE MOVING PICTURE MUSIC

The only thing of its kind published for full orchestra and piano, contains music to fit any scene or one including national airs and dances, etc. About 35 numbers in all, piano book 50 cents. Full orchestra parts 25 cents each, postpaid. Please send postal money order. DO IT NOW.

BASTIAN SUPPLY CO., 632 E. 41st St. Chicago, Ill.

FILM LECTURES

By W. STEPHEN BUSH

How to Put On the Passion Play (Pathe Freres' World Renowned Production)................$1.00

How to Put On "The Crusaders, or Jerusalem Delivered" (World's Best Film Co.).......... 1.00

Key and Complete Lecture for "Dante's Inferno" (Milano Film Co.; Five Reels)............... 1.00

"Life of Moses" (Vitagraph Five-Reel).......... .10

$5.00 per Hundred to Exchanges for This One.

Copyrighted and For Sale Only by

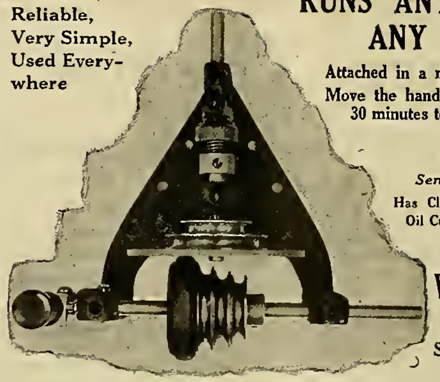
CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO.

BOX 226 MADISON SQUARE P. O. N. Y. CITY

THOROUGHLY responsible film interests desire the services of experienced film exchange men to manage exchanges. Great opportunity for highly competent and aggressive business getters of unquestioned organizing and executive ability. State full particulars in first letter. Discretion absolutely assured.

E. F. C., ℅ Moving Picture World

Practical,
Reliable,
Very Simple,
Used Everywhere



RUNS ANY MACHINE ANY SPEED

Attached in a moment to any motor. Move the handle and get from 5 to 30 minutes to reel.

$12.50

Sent on Week's Trial

Has Clutch for start and stop
Oil Cups, nickel finish.

Write for Circular.

W. G. PREDDEY
669 HAIGHT ST.
SAN FRANCISCO,
CALIFORNIA

"Agfa"

MOTION PICTURE FILM

Used by Makers of Quality Films

WRITE FOR PRICES

Sole American Agents

Raw Film Supply Company
15 East 26th Street New York, N. Y.

EXHIBITORS' HEADQUARTERS

CALEHUFF SUPPLY COMPANY

(Incorporated)

50 North Eighth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Jobbers in Edison, Powers and Motiograph Machines and Parts

Machines Repaired by Expert Mechanics. Genuine Parts Only Used

SPECIALTIES

Mirror Screens
Chairs
Tickets
Pianos
Bio & Electra Carbons
Special Gundlach Lenses
Condensers
Edison Transformers
Ft. Wayne Compensarcs
Asbestos State Booths
Asbestos Wire
Switches
Plugs
Spotlights
Gas Making Outfits
Limes
Film-Cement
Branch General Disinfectant Co.
Scenery, Stage Effects
Theaters Bought, Sold, Rented

CHAS. A. CALEHUFF, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

THE INDUCTOR-COMPENSATOR

An Alternating Current Transformer for Motion Picture Arc Lamps

Every claim made for superior merit, high efficiency and current saving qualities has been proven by over five years' constant service. Nearly 3,000 INDUCTOR COMPENSATORS now in use.

PRICE:

110 Volts, 60 Cycles....................$50.00
220 Volts, 60 Cycles.................... 50.00

Prices for special transformers to control other voltages and cycles quoted on application. Order from your exchange or from

BELL & HOWELL COMPANY, Designers and Manufacturers
217 West Illinois Street :: :: :: :: Chicago, Illinois

A Curtain Coating "SATEEN"

SATEEN is a crystallizing water color. Is easy to apply and makes a soft clear picture, free from glare or flicker. SATEEN makes a day-light screen, and does not contain silver or aluminum. Two (2) pounds will cover a curtain 12 x 15. Price, $1.50 per lb.

A. G. THOMAS, 1705 Fairacres Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum; postage stamps accepted

SITUATIONS WANTED.

MUSICAL DIRECTOR—Pianist and Pipe Organist of experience and ability, desires position at once with first-class picture theater in South. Salary $40 weekly. Orchestra or piano with drums. Extensive repertoire to "play the pictures." Sober, reliable, strictly business. Member A. F. M. References. Address GEO. L. HAMRICK, Bonita Theater, Carrollton, Ga.

CASHIER—Evening moving picture theater. Address M. H., care Moving Picture World, Chicago, Ill.

OPERATOR—First class, experienced on Powers, Standard and Simplex machines; city or elsewhere. Address B. J., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

LET US SEND YOU—A competent, steady OPERATOR. Wire at once to JAMESON & CO., 7 Arch St., Hartford, Conn.

PICTURE MAN—With 6 years' experience, wants position as manager in or out of town. I can operate. Address ELECTRA, care Moving Picture World, New York City.

PIANIST—A-1, six years' experience. "Cue" pictures, sight reader and transposer, salary, your limit. Write or wire, GEO. VAN RENNESAELER, Rapids Hotel, Rhinelander, Wis.

CAMERAMAN—And commercial photographer open for engagement. Will go out of town. P. J., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

MANAGER—Of moving picture theater wishing to make a change further South, would like to hear from owners of theaters wanting to engage a manager. Address J. B. W., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

HELP WANTED.

EFFECT MAN—To give all effects back of stage. Must be first class, sober and have references. State all in first letter. Steady engagement. MAJESTIC THEATER, Dayton, Ohio.

MANAGER—For picture house in large city. Former Lubin managers preferred. State age, experience, reference, and where now employed in first letter. All replies confidential. Address H. H., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

WANTED—By Sept. 25th, first class pianist, drummer and singer, for new first class picture house. Only first class people need apply. State salary. J. L. McCLINTON. Grand Theater, Bismarck, N. Dakota.

THEATERS FOR SALE.

THEATER—Moving picture, an honest house with an established family patronage in a growing Chicago neighborhood, with no competition, always clearing $75 week. Fine lease. Open to rigid investigation. $5,000. F S., 428 So. Harvey Ave., Oak Park, Ill.

FOR SALE—Five-year lease (low rental), and all fixtures of Orpheum Theater, formerly Lubin Theater, Richmond, Va. (population 150,000). Seats 800. Completely equipped for vaudeville and moving pictures. House a perfect order, and now running. Paying proposition. Must be sold by Sept. 27th. Possession Oct. 1st. For further information, address M. C. WALLACE, 315 American Bank Bldg., Richmond, Va.

THEATERS FOR SALE—In Indiana and Illinois. Can give you just what you want from $1,000 to $10,000 investment, in small or large towns. Write SUPPLY COMPANY. Terre Haute, Indiana. CONSTRUCTION DEPARTMENT, LYRIC FILM &

FOR SALE—A partially completed moving picture theater. The only one according to law. LOSH O. HARBAUGH, Assignee, Piqua, Ohio.

THEATERS FOR RENT.

MOVING PICTURE HOUSE—Tower City, Pa. Rent includes: Janitor service, heat, light, power. Drawing population, eight thousand. Pictures & shows. Lease must be closed by September 20th. Seating capacity, 600. Address correspondence to EDGAR D. RANK, Williamstown, Pa.

FOR RENT—Brick moving picture theater. Chairs, machine and accessories. Can be obtained cheaply. A good opening. For terms and details, address BERTON EINSTEIN, Coalinga, Cal.

FILMS FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—500 reels films, $2.50. 200 reels $5. Such as "Train Robbers," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Ten Nights in a Barroom." 3300-foot "Passion Play," $75; "Custer's Last Stand," $40; Fifty 2-reel features, $20. Seventy-five 3-reel features $30. Song sets, 50c. Light rectifiers, $15. Used moving picture machines, $25. Postal camera, worth $45, at $10. Double stereopticon, $30; New Power's No. 5, $135; New Edison Exhibition model, $135. New Motiograph, $135. H. DAVIS, Watertown, Wis.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS—Perforators, Tripods and Tilts for sale. We buy Motion Picture Machines and films. SPECIAL EVENT FILM MFGRS. CO., INC., 248 W. 35th St., N. Y. City.

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS—Prestwith, Pathe, Urban makes, also tripods. A. WARNER, Room 615, 1476 Broadway, New York City.

WILLIAMSON CAMERAS—Zeiss Lens and extra magazines, tripod with tilting table and panoramic head, $150. Will ship on deposit of $50. F. H. SMITH, 411 So. 6th St., Newark, N. J.

WRITE FOR INFORMATION—On French type "Precision" cameras, tripods, tilts. We ship for inspection. J. JANSON, 118 W. 44th St., New York City.

ONE ERNEMANN PROFESSIONAL CAMERA—Equipped with three 400-foot magazines, 50 M. M. and 90 M. M. Lenses. One tilting and Panoram top tripod. This outfit is brand new, never used. Cost $510. Sell for $410. SHIELS, 168 Lafayette St., Newark, N. J.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

BRASS POSTER FRAMES—For one, three and six sheets. Also brass easels, brass railings. Write for complete catalog. THE NEWMAN MFG. CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

ONE SANDOW ENGINE AND DYNAMO—5 H.P., 60-light dynamo, with wiring, retorts, fuses and lights. String of receptacles, and in fact a whole light outfit. A first class Power's 5 machine, run twelve weeks at summer resort, runs perfect, have no further use for it. Address JAS. A. MULDOON, Eastport, Maine.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE.

ELECTRIC PIANOS—With keyboards, $80 to $125. Orchestrions, pianos with pipes, $240. All guaranteed to be in first class condition. 44-note electric players, $50. Must be sold to close out business. Send for circular. J. F. HERMAN, 1420 Pa. Ave., Washington, D. C.

MISCELLANEOUS.

UNBREAKABLE SLIDES—The new, round letter announcement slide, guaranteed not to crack, and will last many years. For circular address NEVER BREAK SLIDE CO., Omaha, Nebr.

GUIL PASTILS—The new substitute for limes with calcium light. If you read the Projection Department of the Moving Picture World, no other recommendation is necessary. $1.35 each, postpaid. C. E. LINDALL, sole importer, Bar Harbor, Maine, or BOX 177, Norfolk, Va.

FILM CEMENT FORMULA—Non-curling and holds all makes perfectly. Ingredients of any druggist, 10 times as cheap, always on hand. Send one dollar for complete formula, guaranteed as represented or money back quick. LEON E. GOETZ, Patentee, Monroe, Wis.

DRUMMERS—Write for particulars regarding that great "Banner" original sound shot and horsehoof effect. BANNER COMPANY, 433 Temple Court Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY.

WANTED—Partner with $150, to take half interest in the moving picture show business. Would prefer to travel the United States and Canada. Must be a live wire and experienced in that line. For particulars, address PETER O. HARSTAD, Malta, Montana.

FOR SALE OR RENT—Moving picture house, capacity 299, excellent location in the Bronx, beautiful front, everything new; also open airdome adjoining. Reasonable terms. Write or call, between 12 and 1. MR. KERY, 1123 Broadway, Room 310, New York City.

Richardson's Handbook

For Managers and Operators of Moving Picture Theatres

The Best Book of the Kind $2.50 per Copy Postage Paid

Moving Picture World

17 Madison Avenue New York City

"SELECTED QUALITY"

WE'VE GOT THE GOODS!

CAREFUL SELECTION
and
QUALITY PRICES have brought QUALITY FEATURES

The great Warner Service Organization is now able to offer a program of feature films selected and purchased on a quality not a price basis by men who know good films when they see them.

The new Warner organization has the money necessary to put over this IDEAL program and the men who choose the films for the programs are instructed to buy only the best and pay whatever is necessary to get the best. We are paying more for our films than any other organization. Producers who offer us features are not held down in producing with the thought of a contract which absolutely limits their possible expenditures. We've got the goods and we're going to show you.

Already our twenty-two offices have been deluged with requests for contracts from "live wire" exhibitors who knew that the ability and judgment of the men in this organization was a guarantee of a successful service. Now that we are announcing our first great features the requests for exclusive bookings will come even faster. Better get in touch with the nearest office today and beat your competitor to it.

WE WERE THE FIRST

To announce an exclusive feature program service. Others are trying to follow but they can only follow us because—We have the QUALITY productions and the SERVICE organization. We are ready for business now.

THREE FEATURES A WEEK

With the greatest ad help service ever devised

OUR FIRST WARNER WINNERS

Look them over and then wire us

TOLSTOI'S MASTERPIECE

The Living Corpse

IN FOUR PARTS

A superbly acted feature adapted from the famous drama by Count Leo Tolstoi. A literary gem produced by great artists, beautifully photographed

A TREMENDOUS FEATURE

Jephthah's Daughter

IN THREE PARTS

A spectacular production of a tragedy of the scriptures featuring the famous English stars CONSTANCE CRAWLEY and ARTHUR MAUDE

A REAL MONEY GETTER

JAMES J. CORBETT in

The Man from the Golden West

IN FOUR PARTS

An exciting story of romance and adventure with the popular American athlete in the title role. There is action in every foot of this. A GREAT BOX OFFICE WINNER.

GENE GAUNTIER in

In the Power of a Hypnotist

IN THREE PARTS

THRILLS—EXCITEMENT—ACTION—A new idea superbly presented, featuring Miss GENE GAUNTIER

BEAUTY and POWER in

Back to Life

IN THREE PARTS

A dramatic story of society life filled with thrills and excitement. A charming heart interest story well told

ONE TO RAVE OVER

The Sleeping Beauty

IN THREE PARTS

A GEM OF COSTUME PRODUCTION. A gorgeous pictorial version of the famous fairy tale

Scores of other PATRONAGE PULLERS

Already finished and being produced by the greatest stars and producers in America

Our lobby display will be a revelation to you Our lithos and heralds will pack your house

Our BRANCH OFFICES: Atlanta, New York, Minneapolis, Kansas City, New Orleans, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Dallas, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Boston, Indianapolis, Seattle, Denver, Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, Spokane, Los Angeles. EUROPEAN HEADQUARTERS: London, England

WARNER'S FEATURES

INCORPORATED

INDEX

TO CONTENTS.

ADVERTISING FOR EXHIBITORS.............1384
AT THE SIGN OF THE FLAMING ARCS....1374
CALENDAR OF LICENSED RELEASES......1402
CALENDAR OF INDEPENDENT RELEASES..1400
CHICAGO LETTER 1375
CINEMA CLUB OF THE BRONX, THE......1377
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Licensed)......1391
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Independent)..1393
"DANIEL" (Vitagraph) 1381
FACTS AND COMMENTS.....................1367
FILM SCHEDULES IN THE NEW TARIFF...1369
FOREIGN TRADE NOTES......................1382
"IN CONVICT'S GARB" (Essanay)..........1371
INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES..............1422
INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES............1440
INQUIRIES 1387
LICENSED FILM STORIES....................1412
LICENSED RELEASE DATES 1442
"LET US HAVE PEACE" 1379
MANUFACTURERS ADVANCE NOTES........1396
"MISSING WOMAN, THE" 1372
MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE..1377
PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT, THE 1336
PROJECTION DEPARTMENT 1388
PROPER ILLUMINATION OF MOVING PICTURE THEATRES 1395
"RIVALS, THE" (Kinemacolor) 1373
STRONG UNION FEATURE, A..................1378
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Licensed)..........1412
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Independent)......1422
TRIBUTE TO GAYNOR, A......................1368
"TWIXT HEAVEN AND EARTH" (True Features) 1381
"WAR" 1370
"WHY BRONCHO BILLY LEFT BEAR COUNTY" (Essanay) 1371

TO ADVERTISERS.

CARBON IMPORTERS.

FRORUP, L. E.............................1431
KIDWERT, L. C.............................1429
REISINGER, HUGO 1439

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO......................1420
BELL & HOWELL..............................1434
CALEHUFF SUPPLY CO........................1434
DETROIT MOTOR CARS CO....................1420
FAIRBANKS, MORSE & CO....................1415
FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC CO..................1446
GENERAL ELECTRIC CO......................1408
HALLBERG, J. H.............................1439
HOKE, GEO. M................................1430
KLEINE OPTICAL CO.........................1427
PICTURE THEATRE EQUIPMENT CO........1433
SCHNEIDER, E. 1426
SMITH, L. C., & CO..........................1431
STERELINGER, CHAS. A......................1416
WESTINGHOUSE ELECT. MFG. CO..........1418

MISCELLANEOUS FEATURES.

ALL STAR FILM CORP........................1407
AMBROSIO FILM CO...........................1404
AMERICAN KINETO CORP....................1417
BATTLE OF WATERLOO.......................1432
BLACHE FEATURES, INC......................1433
CONSCIENCE FILM CO........................1418
EAGLE F. F. CO................................1416
ECLECTIC FILM CO..........................1352-1353
FAMOUS PLAYERS 1354-1355
FILM RELEASES OF AMERICA...............1423
GENERAL FILM CO...........................1358-1359
HELGAR CORP. 1421
ITALIAN AMERICAN FILM CO...............1444
LIFE SAINT PATRICK.........................1415
NEW YORK FILM CO..........................1424
STERLING CAMERA & FILM CO.............1411
VICTORY CO. 1448-49
VIVAPHONE CO. 1431
WARNER'S FEATURES 1436-37
WORLD SPECIAL FILM CORP...............1444-45

FILM BROKERS.

INTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS 1428
WESTERN FILM BROKERS....................1428

FIREPROOF APPARATUS.

TRAINER, C. W................................1428
H. W. POHNS-MANVILLE 1414

FILM EXCHANGES.

BASTIEN SUPPLY CO..........................1434
BRADENBURG, G. W..........................1431
EAGLE F. F. CO................................1433
EXCLUSIVE FILM SUPPLY CORP............1423
FAMOUS FEATURE FILM CO.................1433
HETZ, L. 1430
LAEMMLE FILM CO...........................1416
M. & F. FILM SERVICE.......................1430
NORTHERN FEATURE FILM EXCHANGE....1428
SOUTHERN F. F. CO..........................1430
WICHITA FILM & SUPPLY CO...............1420

INDEPENDENT FILM MANUFACTURERS.

AMERICAN 1441
BRONCHO FILM CO...........................1410
DOMINO M. P. CO............................1401
ECLAIR 1417
GAUMONT CO. 1405
GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO.............1409-21
KAY-BEE 1410
KEYSTONE 1410
MAJESTIC 1450
SOLAX 1433-26
THANHOUSER 1346
UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURERS, 1348-49-50-51

LICENSED FILM MANUFACTURERS.

EDISON 1357
ESSANAY 1347
KALEM 1366
KINEMACOLOR CO. 1451
KLEINE, GEO. 1360-61
LUBIN 1364
MELIES 1451
PATHE FRERES 1362-63
SELIG 1356
VITAGRAPH 1365

LENS MANUFACTURERS.

BAUSCH & LOMB...............................1415

MISCELLANEOUS.

ARTIST 1426
AUTOMATIC TICKET SELLING CO..........1406
BARNES E. B. 1420
B. C. C/O M. P. W............................1434
BUSHMAN, FRANCIS 1433
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS 1435
COMMERCIAL M. P. CO......................1425
CORCORAN, A. J. 1430
EASTMAN KODAK CO.........................1429
GENERAL SPECIALTY CO....................1414
GUNBY BROS. 1420
HAEUSSER, CHAS. 1428
KRAUS MFG. CO...............................1420
NATIONAL M. P. CO..........................1430
NATIONAL TICKET CO.......................1440
NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO.........1431
NUGENT, WILBUR 1413
OZONE PURE AIRIFIER CO..................1427
PARISIAN MFG. & FILM RENOVATING CO..1430
PHOTO CINES CO.............................1415
PREDDY, W. G.................................1434
RAW FILM SUPPLY CO........................1434
SARGENT, E. W...............................1447
STANGE, A. C..................................1428
STELZER BROS. 1446
THEATRE BROKERAGE EXCHANGE........1446
TRADE CIRCULAR ADDRESSING CO.......1419
M. S. LITHO. CO...............................1419
VONNEGUT HDW. CO.........................1431
ZENITH MFG. CO..............................1428

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS.

AMERICAN CINEMATOGRAPH CO..........1433
MOTION PICTURE CAMERA CO............1418
WHYTE, WHITMAN 1421

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

AMERICAN PHOTOPLAYER SALES CO......1430
DEAGAN, J. C..................................1429
SINN, C. E.......................................1449
WURLITZER, RUDOLPH 1444
WELTE, M., & SON............................1425

PROJECTION MACHINES.

EDISON 1357
MOTIOGRAPH 1447
POWERS 1452
SIMPLEX 1403

OPERA CHAIR MANUFACTURERS.

AMERICAN SEATING CO.....................1446
ANDREWS, A. H. 1446
BENNETT SEATING CO.......................1446
HARDESTY 1446
STEEL FURNITURE CO.......................1446
WISCONSIN SEATING CO....................1446

POSTERS & FRAMES.

A. B. C...1438
AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO...........1442
BRADY, A. 1419
EXHIBITORS' ADV. & SPECIALTY CO......1402
GENERAL FILM CO...........................1443
McKENNA BROS. BRASS CO................1414
NEWMAN 1428
THEATRE SPECIALTY MFG. CO............1414

PROJECTION SCREENS.

AMERICAN THEATRE CURTAIN CO.........1421
GENTER, J. H. 1429
MIRROR SCREEN CO. 1419

SONG & ADVERTISING SLIDES.

CHICAGO SONG SLIDE CO..................1430
NIAGARA SLIDE CO. 1431
THOMAS, A. G. 1434
UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO...............1431

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.

DECORATORS' SUPPLY CO. 1447

For the week of September 29th the following

ONE, THREE AND SIX SHEET POSTERS

are now ready

THE SPECIAL OFFICER (Lubin) and THE BATTLE AT FORT LARAMIE (Kalem)

The latter with Two Styles of One Sheets as well as threes and sixes.

Order our One and Three Sheet Posters made for every release of the Biograph and Lubin Companies. Special Halftone Posters for Kalem's releases for week of September 29th, for the single reel releases.

Let us have your order.

A. B. C. COMPANY Cleveland, Ohio

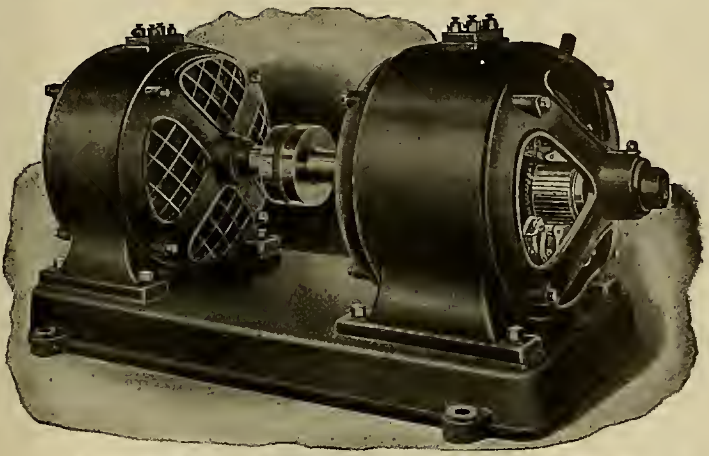
I Sold SIX Hallberg A. C. to D. C. Economizers Last Week

That means six of you exhibitors will give a better picture than your competitors

YOU will sooner or later become convinced that YOU must have one. If you only knew the value of the light it gives and the improvement of your picture, you would not wait a day to get one.



I have served you well in the past. My goods and methods are modern. I do not claim to beat the other fellow's prices. But when you place your orders with me you are safe and get what you want and the best at the lowest market price.

HALLBERG
ECONOMIZER

A.C. to D.C. Adjustable from 25 to 60 Amp., D.C. for 1 or 2 Lamps

Factory Selling Headquarters for POWERS, SIMPLEX, MOTIOGRAPH and EDISON MACHINES, "HALLBERG" STANDARD A. C. ECONOMIZERS, "HALLBERG" D. C. ECONOMIZERS, MERCURY ARC RECTIFIERS, MOVING PICTURE MACHINE and FLAME ARC CARBONS.

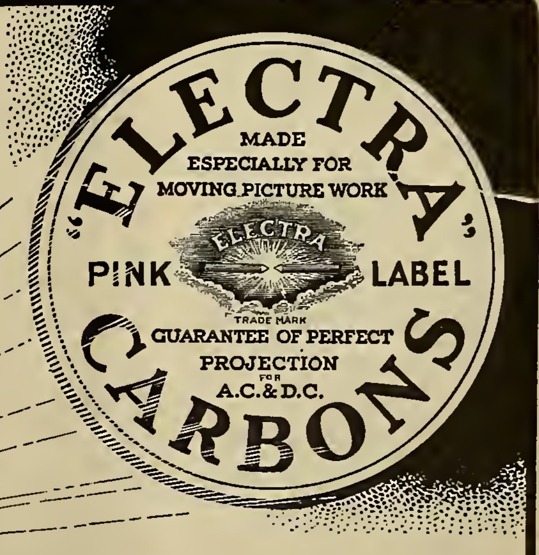
I Equip Theatres Completely

Free Circulars on all makes of M. P. Machines, but Hlalberg's Big Catalogue, 100 pages, costs you 25c. by mail.

J. H. HALLBERG, 36 E. 23rd Street, New York

"ELECTRA"—a pledge of quality. The name "Electra" has stood for the best projector carbon since the beginning of the motion picture industry.

Sold by exchanges and supply houses everywhere.



"ELECTRA"
MADE ESPECIALLY FOR MOVING PICTURE WORK
ELECTRA
PINK LABEL
TRADE MARK
GUARANTEE OF PERFECT PROJECTION FOR A.C. & D.C.
CARBONS

HUGO REISINGER

11 BROADWAY. NEW YORK.

INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES

AMERICAN.

Sept. 13—Red Sweeney's Defeat (Drama).....1000
Sept. 15—Calamity Anne, Heroine (Drama)...1000
Sept. 18—A Fall Into Luck (Drama)..........
Sept. 20—Jim Takes a Chance (Comedy).......
Sept. 20—Travelers of the Road (Drama)....
Sept. 22—The Ghost of the Hacienda (2 parts—Drama)..............................2000
Sept. 25—Mrs. Carter's Campaign (Comedy)....1000
,Sept. 27—Master of Himself (Drama).........1000
Sept. 29—The Flirt and the Bandit (Drama)...1000
Oct. 2—The Badge of Honor (Drama)........1000
Oct. 4—Crooks and Credulous (Drama).......1000

AMBROSIO.

June 28—The Exploits of the Bandin Gang (2 Parts—Drama) ....
July 5—The Little Puppet Seller (2 Parts—Drama) ....
July 12—In the Hands of Conspirators (2 Parts Drama) ....
July 19—The Triumph of Strength (2 Parts—Drama) ....
July 26—The Missionary's Sister (2 Parts—Dr.)

BISON.

Sept. 2—Pelleas and Melisande (3 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 6—The Love of Men (2 parts—Drama)..
Sept. 9—A Forest Romance (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 13—Wandering Folk (2 parts—Drama)..
Sept. 16—In the Coils of the Python (2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 20—Through the Window (2 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 23—The Struggle (2 parts—Drama)......
Sept. 27—Captain Billy's Mate (2 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 30—Shon, the Piper (2 parts—Drama)...
Oct. 4—Good-for-Nothing Jack (2 parts—Dr.)

BRONCHO.

Aug. 27—The Madcap (2 parts—Drama)......
Aug. 31—The Broken Thread (Drama)..........
Sept. 3—The Gambler's Pal (Drama)..........
Sept. 7—May and December (Drama).........
Sept. 10—The Judge's Son (Drama)...........
Sept. 17—The Land of Dead Things (2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 24—Silent Heroes (2 parts—Drama).....
Oct. 1—The Greenhorn (2 parts—Drama)....

CRYSTAL.

Sept. 14—The Hand of Providence (Drama)....
Sept. 16—A News Item (Comedy)...........
Sept. 16—A Bachelor's Finish (Comedy)......
Sept. 21—Misplaced Love (Drama).............
Sept. 23—Pearl and the Poet (Comedy)........
Sept. 23—Oh! What a Swim (Comedy).........
Sept. 28—His Last Gamble (Drama)...........
Sept. 30—Charlie's Little Joke (Comedy)......
Sept. 30—Baldy Belmont As a Roman Gladiator (Comedy) ....
Oct. 5—The Norwood Case (Drama)..........

DOMINO.

Oct. 2—Exoneration (2 parts—Drama)........

DRAGON.

July 14—The Organist (Drama)..............
July 21—Memories of Long Ago (Drama)......
July 28—The Bride of the Sea (Drama)......

ECLAIR.

Sept. 3—Steel (2 parts—Drama)..............
Sept. 7—A Vegetarian's Dream (Comedy)....
Sept. 7—The Habits of Field Spiders (Scientific)
Sept. 10—The Banker's Daughter (2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 14—A Pawnee Romance (Drama)........
Sept. 14—Hydrogen (Scientific) ....
Sept. 17—Rob-Roy (3 parts—Drama)..........
Sept. 21—Stung (Comedy)....................
Sept. 21—Curious Fish (Zoology)..............
Sept. 24—A Puritan Episode (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 28—Why Aunt Jane Never Married (Com.)
Oct. 1—Jacques, the Wolf (2 parts—Drama).
Oct. 5—Private Box 23 (Comedy)............
Oct. 5—Organisms Which Inhabit Stagnant Waters (Scientific) ....

FRONTIER.

Aug. 23—The Eyes of the God of Friendship (Drama) ....
Aug. 28—A Much Wanted Baby (Comedy)....
Aug. 30—Maya—Just An Indian (Drama)....
Sept. 4—Flirty Florence (Comedy)............
Sept. 6—The Surgeon of Abajo (Drama)......
Sept. 11—Dorothea and the Chief Razamataz (Comedy) ....
Sept. 13—On Forbidden Paths (Drama).......
Sept. 18—The Juvenile Kidnappers (Comedy)..
Sept. 20—The Ranchman's Double (Drama)...
Sept. 25—The Village Pest (Comedy)..........
Sept. 27—The Moonshiner (Drama)............
Oct. 2—The Shop Girl's Big Day (Comedy)...
Oct. 4—A Girl of the Dance Halls (Drama)...

GAUMONT.

Sept. 2—The Fatal Bell (Drama).............
Sept. 3—Gaumont's Weekly No. 79 (News)..
Sept. 4—"Some" Fireman (Comedy)..........
Sept. 9—An Actor's Adventure (Drama)......
Sept. 10—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 80 (News)..
Sept. 11—Love Me, Love My Animals (Comedy)
Sept. 16—The Lion Hunters (2 parts—Drama).
Sept. 17—Gaumont's Weekly No. 80 (News)...
Sept. 18—Tiny Tim's Elopement (Comedy)....
Sept. 23—The Sheriff's Devotion (Drama).....
Sept. 24—Gaumont's Weekly No. 81 (News)..
Sept. 25—An Awful Relapse (Comedy).......

GEM.

Aug. 25—What Girls Will Do (Comedy)......
Sept. 1—A tale of a Fish (Comedy)..........
Sept. 8—The Gold Mesh Bag (Comedy)......
Sept. 15—The Manicure (Comedy)............
Sept. 15—Sam's Despondency (Comedy).......
Sept. 22—None but the Brave Deserve the (?) (Drama)..............................
Sept. 22—Sanitary Dairy Plant, Washington, D. C..............................
Sept. 29—The Bachelor Girls' Club (Comedy)..

GREAT NORTHERN.

Aug. 30—Faded Beauties (Comedy)...........
Sept. 6—A Girl Graduate (Comedy)..........
Sept. 13—For Sale by Auction (Comedy)......
Sept. 13—Under the Danish Beeches (Travel)..
Sept. 20—Convict 337 (Comedy)...............
Sept. 27—Won by Waiting (Comedy)..........
Oct. 4—A Good Catch (Comedy)..............

GREAT NORTHERN (Universal).

June 28—The Flying Circus (3 parts, Drama)..
July 26—The Governor's Daughter (2 parts—Drama)...........................
Aug. 23—The Great Circus Catastrophe (3 parts—Drama) ....

IMP.

Sept. 18—Escaped from the Asylum (2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 20—Binks and the Bathing Girls (Com.)
Sept. 20—Antics in Ink by Hy Mayer (Novelty)
Sept. 22—Ivanhoe (4 parts—Drama)..........
Sept. 25—Miser's Son Drama).................
Sept. 27—Binks Plays Cupid (Comedy)........
Sept. 27—Jolly Jottings by Hy Mayer (Comedy)
Sept. 29—In Peril of the Sea (Drama)........
Oct. 2—Bleeding Hearts; or Jewish Freedom Under King Casimer of Poland (3 parts—Drama) ....
Oct. 4—His Priceless Treasure (Comedy).....
Oct. 4—Whimsicalities by Hy. Mayer (Nov.).

KAY-BEE.

Aug. 22—An Orphan of War (2 parts—Drama)
Aug. 29—The Green Shadow (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 5—The Ironmaster (2 parts—Drama)...
Sept. 12—The Waif (Drama)..................
Sept. 19—The Reformation (Drama)...........
Sept. 26—The Forlorn Hope (Drama)..........
Oct. 3—Loaded Dice (Drama) ....

KEYSTONE.

Sept. 1—Fatty's Day Off (Comedy)..........
Sept. 1—Los Angeles Harbor, Cal. (Travel)..
Sept. 4—The New Baby (Comedy)............
Sept. 8—Mabel's Dramatic Career (Comedy)..
Sept. 11—The Gypsy Queen (Comedy-Drama).
Sept. 15—What Father Saw (Comedy)........
Sept. 15—Willie Minds the Dog (Comedy)....
Sept. 18—The Faithful Taxicab (Comedy).....
Sept. 22—When Dreams Come True (Comedy).

LUX.

Aug. 22—Over the Garden Wall (Comedy)....
Aug. 22—The Registered Letter (Comedy).....
Aug. 29—His Chance (Drama).............. 950
Sept. 5—A Timely Reminder (Drama).......... 910
Sept. 12—The Tax on Bachelors (Comedy)..... 455
Sept. 12—Arabella's Rival (Comedy).......... 540
Sept. 19—The Blacksmith's Son (Drama)...... 930

MAJESTIC.

Sept. 7—The Heart of a Fool (Drama)....
Sept. 9—The Frame-up (Drama).............
Sept. 13—For His Loved One (Drama)......
Sept. 14—The Winning Loser (Com.-Dr.)......
Sept. 16—Playmates (Drama)...................
Sept. 20—His Last Deal (Comedy-Drama)......
Sept. 21—The Shoemaker and the Doll (Drama)
Sept. 23—An Aesthetic Match (Comedy).......
Sept. 23—The Baseball Umpire (Comedy)......
Sept. 27—A Slight Misunderstanding (Com.)..

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

Aug. 13—Mutual Weekly, No. 33 (News).....
Aug. 20—Mutual Weekly No. 34.............
Aug. 27—Mutual Weekly No. 35..............
Sept. 1—Mutual Weekly No. 36.............
Sept. 8—Mutual Weekly No. 37..............

MUTUAL EDUCATIONAL.

July 24—Does Gontran Snore? (Comedy).......
July 24—Through Turkey; the Black Sea (Travel) ....
July 31—Funnicus Wins the Race (Comedy)...
July 31—Microscopic Animalculae Found in Stagnant Water (Scientific).......

NESTOR.

Sept. 10—Algy Forfeits His Claim (Comedy)..
Sept. 10—Views of Stockholm (Scenic)........
Sept. 12—The Girl Ranchers (Comedy).......
Sept. 15—Beauty and the Ugly One (Drama)..
Sept. 17—The Stepson (Drama)...............
Sept. 19—The Battle of Bull Con (Comedy)..
Sept. 22—For the Peace of Bear Valley (Dr.)
Sept. 24—Heart of a Vacquero (Drama).......
Sept. 26—His Crazy Job (Comedy).............
Sept. 29—Justice of the Wild (2 parts—Drama)
Oct. 1—Beyond the Law (Drama)............
Oct. 3—His Brother's Wives (Comedy).......

POWERS.

Sept. 12—In the Cycle of Life (Drama)......
Sept. 17—The Pearl of the Golden West (Com.)
Sept. 19—The Doctor's Story (Drama).........
Sept. 24—Twiddledum Insures His Life (Com.)
Sept. 24—A Painter's Ruse (Comedy).........
Sept. 26—Blood Red Tape of Charity (2 parts—Drama)...........................
Oct. 1—A House Boat Elopement (Comedy)...
Oct. 3—The Trap (Drama) ....

PILOT.

July 24—The Sure Tip (Comedy).............. 500
July 24—The Bug Professor (Comedy)........ [illegible]
July 31—Loyal Hearts (Drama)...............1000
Aug. 7—The Green-Eyed Monster (Com.-Dr.)..1000
Aug. 14—(Title Not Reported.)
Aug. 21—(Title Not Reported).
Aug. 28—Getting the Evidence (Drama)......

RAMO.

Aug. 20—Dangerous Sympathy (Drama).......1000
Aug. 27—The Springtime of Love (Drama).....1000
Sept. 1—The Worker (State Rights—3 parts—Drama)...........................3000
Sept. 3—The Black Opal (Drama)............1000
Oct. 1—Cards (Feature—3 parts—Drama).....
Oct. 15—The Current (Feature—3 parts—Dr.).

RELIANCE.

Sept. 6—The Glow Worm (3 parts—Drama)..
Sept. 8—Between Home and Country (Drama)
Sept. 10—(No Release this Date)............
Sept. 13—The Clown's Daughter (2 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 15—Twickenham Ferry (Drama)........
Sept. 17—The Disguise (Drama) ....
Sept. 20—The Stolen Woman (2 parts—Drama)
Sept. 22—The Hardest Way (Drama).........
Sept. 24—The Missing Ring (Drama)..........
Sept. 27—The Original Will (Drama)..........

REX.

Sept. 11—The Diamond Makers (2 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 14—The Fight Against Evil (Drama)...
Sept. 16—Never Again (Drama)...............
Sept. 21—The Wall of Money (2 parts—Dr.)..
Sept. 25—Genesis: 4-9 (2 parts—Drama)......
Sept. 28—Paying the Price (Drama)..........
Oct 2—His Brand (Drama) ....
Oct. 5—Like Darby and Joan (Drama)........

SOLAX.

Sept. 3—Men and Muslin (Comedy)..........
Sept. 5—Retribution (Drama) ....
Sept. 10—Dooley and His Dog (Comedy)......
Sept. 12—Gratitude (Drama) ....
Sept. 17—Invisible Ink (Comedy)..............
Sept. 19—Western Love (Drama)..............
Sept. 24—The Quality of Mercy (Drama)......
Sept. 26—The Soul of Man (Drama)..........

THANHOUSER.

Sept. 5—(No Release This Date).
Sept. 7—His Last Bet (Comedy).............
Sept. 9—Taming Their Grandchildren.........
Sept. 12—The Message to Headquarters (Drama)
Sept. 14—(No Release this Date).............
Sept. 16—Redemption (Drama)...............
Sept. 19—Flood Tide (Drama)................
Sept. 21—When the Worm Turned (Com.-Dr.).
Sept. 26—The Official Goat Protector (Comedy-Drama) ....
Sept. 23—An Unfair Exchange (Drama).......

VICTOR.

Aug. 29—His Vacation (Comedy-Drama)......
Sept. 5—The Lost Copperhead (Comedy)......
Sept. 12—A Bride from the Sea (2 parts—Dr.)
Sept. 19—Percy H. Baldwin, Trifler (Drama)..
Sept. 26—For the Sins of Another (Drama)....
Oct. 3—The Closed Door (2 parts—Drama)...

ROLL TICKETS

PRICES
Five Thousand - - $1.25
Ten Thousand - - $2.50
Twenty Thousand - - $4.50
Twenty-five Thousand - $5.50
Fifty Thousand - - $6.50
One Hundred Thousand - $8.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000, $2.50. Stock Tickets, 6c per 1,000. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
SHAMOKIN, PA.

"SEE AMERICANS FIRST"

"CROOKS AND CREDULOUS"

"THE FLIRT AND THE BANDIT"

"THE BADGE OF HONOR"

The Flirt and the Bandit

A strong and fascinating Western drama. Release, Monday, Sept. 29th, 1913.

The Badge of Honor

A thrilling Western drama, featuring J. WARREN KERRIGAN
Release, Thursday, Oct. 2nd, 1913.

Crooks and Credulous

How a conscience-stricken young man makes restitution for ill-gotten gains.
Release, Saturday, Oct. 4th, 1913.

POSTERS:—One and Three Sheet Four Color Lithographs for All Releases

> "One thing above all is the photography, which in every reel released by the 'Flying A' Company is unsurpassed by any company."
>
> GUS HAGNER, Mgr.,
> Montgomery Amusement Co.,
> Philadelphia, Pa.

AMERICAN FILM MFG. CO., Chicago

LICENSED RELEASE DATES

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Edison, Kalem, Lubin, Patheplay, Selig, Vitagraph (Special).

Tuesday—Edison, Essanay, Patheplay, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

Wednesday—Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Patheplay, Vitagraph (Special).

Thursday — Biograph, Essanay, Lubin, Melies, Patheplay, Selig, Vitagraph.

Friday—Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Patheplay, Lubin, Vitagraph (Special).

Saturday—Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Patheplay, Vitagraph (Special).

BIOGRAPH.

Sept. 8—A Modest Hero (Drama)............
Sept. 11—Baby Indisposed (Comedy)..........
Sept. 11—The Lady in Black (Comedy)........
Sept. 13—An Unjust Suspicion (Drama).......
Sept. 15—His Hoodoo (Comedy)...............
Sept. 15—Dan Greegan's Ghost (Comedy)......
Sept. 18—The Stolen Treaty (Drama)..........
Sept. 20—For the Son of the House (Drama)..
Sept. 22—The Law and His Son (Drama)......
Sept. 25—A Saturday Holiday (Comedy).......
Sept. 25—The End of the World (Comedy)....
Sept. 27—The Influence of the Unknown (Dr.)
Sept. 29—Dyed, But Not Dead (Comedy).......
Sept. 29—With the Aid of Phrenology (Com.)
Oct. 2—A Tender-Hearted Crook (Drama)....
Oct. 4—The Chieftain's Sons (Drama)........

EDISON.

Sept. 1—The Younger Regeneration (Comedy)..1000
Sept. 2—The Grecian Vase (Phantasy)........1000
Sept. 3—A Series of Tallulah Falls (Scenic).. 225
Sept. 3—The Girl, the Clown and the Donkey (Comedy)............................ 775
Sept. 5—The Awakening of the Man (Special—2 parts—Drama) 1000
Sept. 6—Slander's Tongue (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 8—Keepers of the Flock (Drama)......1000
Sept. 9—A Light on Troubled Waters (Drama).1000
Sept. 10—The Desperate Condition of Mr. Boggs (Comedy)...........................1000
Sept. 12—Caste (Special—2 parts—Drama)....2000
Sept. 13—The Green Eye of the Yellow God (Drama)............................1000
Sept. 15—The Island of Perversity (Comedy)..1000
Sept. 16—Jerusalem and the Holy Land (Scenic).1000
Sept. 17—Cornwall, the English Riviera (Scenic) 400
Sept. 17—The Comedian's Downfall (Comedy).. 600
Sept. 19—Saved by the Enemy (Special—2 parts —Drama)...........................2000
Sept. 20—The Great Physician (Drama).......1000
Sept. 22—For the Honor of the Force (Drama)..1000
Sept. 23—The Stroke of the Phoebus Eight (Dr.)1000
Sept. 24—The Embarrassment of Riches (Com.).1000
Sept. 26—Hard Cash (Special—2 parts—Dr.) 2000
Sept. 27—A Proposal from the Sculptor (Being the third of the series "Who Will Marry Mary)...................... 1000
Sept. 29—The Stolen Models (Comedy)........1000
Sept. 30—A Daughter of Romany (Drama)....1000
Oct. 1—Mr. Toots' Tooth (Comedy)..........
Oct. 1—Damascus and the Ruins of Baalbek (Travel) ....
Oct. 3—Why Girls Leave Home (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Oct. 4—The Contents of the Suitcase (Drama)1000

ESSANAY.

Aug. 29—Broken Threads United (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Aug. 30—A Western Sister's Devotion (Drama)1000
Sept. 2—Stone the Woman (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 3—Mr. Dippy Dipped (Comedy).........1000
Sept. 4—Hard Luck Bill (Comedy)...........1000
Sept. 5—While the Starlight Travels (Special—2 parts—Drama)..................2000
Sept. 6—Broncho Billy's Conscience (Drama)..1000
Sept. 9—Sunlight (Drama)...................1000
Sept. 10—The Treater's Treat (Comedy).......1000
Sept. 11—Bonnie of the Hills (Drama).........1000
Sept. 12—Grist to the Mill (Special—2 parts—Drama)............................2000
Sept. 13—Broncho Billy Reforms (Drama)......1000
Sept. 16—Women (Drama)....................1000
Sept. 17—Sweet Revenge (Comedy)..........
Sept. 17—The Duck Raising Industry (Zoology)
Sept. 18—The Broken Parole (Drama).........1000
Sept. 19—The Right of Way (Special—2 parts —Drama)...........................2000
Sept. 20—The Redeemed Claim (Drama).......1000
Sept. 23—For Old Time's Sake (Drama).......1000
Sept. 24—Love Incognito (Comedy)...........1000
Sept. 25—Days of the Pony Express (Drama)..1000
Sept. 26—In Convict Garb (Special—2 parts—Drama)............................2000
Sept. 27—Why Broncho Billy Left Bear County (Drama)...........................1000
Sept. 30—A Ray of God's Sunshine (Drama)...1000
Oct. 1—A Successful Failure (Comedy)......1000
Oct. 2—The Belle of Siskiyou (Drama).......1000
Oct. 3—Tony, the Fiddler (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Oct. 4—The Struggle (Drama) 1000

KALEM.

Sept. 6—The Hand of Destiny (Drama)......1000
Sept. 8—The Bribe (Drama).................1000
Sept. 10—The Fatal Legacy (Special—2 parts—Drama)............................2000
Sept. 12—Wanted—A Plumber (Comedy).......
Sept. 12—Too Many Cops (Comedy)..........
Sept. 13—The Monogrammed Cigarette (Drama)1000
Sept. 15—Retribution (Drama)...............1000
Sept. 17—Trooper Billy (Special—2 parts—Dr.).2000
Sept. 19—The Burglar and the Baby (Comedy).
Sept. 19—One Best Bet (Comedy)............
Sept. 20—The Breath of Scandal (Drama).....1000
Sept. 22—The Counterfeiter's Confederate (Dr.).1000
Sept. 24—A Midnight Message (Special—2 parts —Drama)...........................2000
Sept. 26—The Hobo and the Myth (Comedy)....
Sept. 26—The Largest Duck Farm in the World (Zoology)........................
Sept. 27—A Demand for Justice (Drama).....1000
Sept. 29—The Atheist (Drama) 1000
Oct. 1—The Battle at Fort Laramie (Special —2 parts—Drama) 2000
Oct. 3—And the Watch Came Back (Comedy)
Oct. 3—Historic Boston (Travel) ....
Oct. 4—The Railroad Inspector's Peril (Dr.).1000

GEORGE KLEINE.

Aug. 12—The Mong-Fu-Tong (Eclipse—Special—2 Parts—Comedy-Drama)..........
Aug. 19—The Clown's Revenge (Eclipse—Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Aug. 26—The Human Bridge (Cines Special—2 parts—Drama) ....
Sept. 2—The Sign of the Black Lily (Cines—2 parts—Drama—Special) ....
Sept. 9—The Mysterious Man (Cines—2 parts—Drama—Special)..................
Sept. 16—High Treason (Cines—Special 2 parts —Drama)..........................
Sept. 23—For His Brother's Crime (Cines—Special—2 parts—Drama).........
Sept. 30—Misgotten Gains (Cines—Special—2 parts—Drama)....................
Oct. 7—The Flower of Destiny (Cines—Special —2 parts—Drama) ....

LUBIN.

Sept. 6—In the Toils (Drama)................1000
Sept. 8—Seeds of Wealth (Drama)............1000
Sept. 9—Playing With Fire (Drama)..........1000
Sept. 11—The Hills of Strife (Special—2 parts —Drama)..........................2000
Sept. 12—Panama Hat Industry (Industrial)... 400
Sept. 12—An Exclusive Pattern (Comedy)...... 600
Sept. 13—The Medal of Honor (Drama)........1000
Sept. 15—To Love and Cherish (Drama)........1000
Sept. 16—Fashion's Toy (Drama).............1000
Sept. 18—The Clod (Special—2 parts—Drama).2000
Sept. 19—The Love of Beauty (Drama).......1000
Sept. 20—Her Present (Comedy).............. 400
Sept. 20—His Reward (Comedy).............. 600
Sept. 22—Poker Paid (Comedy).............. 400
Sept. 22—This Isn't John (Comedy)........... 600
Sept. 23—A Mexican Tragedy (Drama)........1000
Sept. 25—Self Convicted (Special—2 parts—Drama)............................2000
Sept. 26—Winning His Wife (Comedy).........1000
Sept. 27—The Great Discovery (Drama).......1000
Sept. 29—The Invader (Drama) 1000
Sept. 30—The Actress and Her Jewels (Drama) 400
Sept. 30—The Constable's Daughter (Comedy). 600
Oct. 2—The Special Officer (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Oct. 3—The Scarf Pin (Drama)..............1000
Oct. 4—For Her Brother's Sake (Drama).....1000

MELIES.

July 17—A Chinese Funeral (Typical).........
July 24—Javanese Dancers (Manners and Customs)..............................1000
July 31—It Happened in Java (Comedy-Drama) 1000
Aug. 7—Snapshots of Java (Scenic).........1000
Aug. 14—The Robber of Angkor (Drama).....1000
Aug. 21—In the Land of Fire (Drama)........1000
Aug. 28—Lost in Cambodia (Comedy).........1000
Sept. 4—A Day at Singapore (Scenic).........1000
Sept. 18—Home Life in Japan (Manners and Customs)........................
Sept. 18—A Japanese Funeral (Manners and Customs)........................
Sept. 25—A Cambodian Idyll (Drama).........1000

PATHEPLAY.

Sept. 1—Pathe's Weekly, No. 46 (News)......
Sept. 2—Whiffles Decides to be Boss (Comedy)
Sept. 2—In the Caucasian Mountains (Travel)
Sept. 3—The Climax (Drama)................
Sept. 4—Pathe's Weekly, No. 47 (News).....
Sept. 4—Fickle Fortune's Favor (Comedy)....
Sept. 4—With the Natives of New Zealand (Manners and Customs)...........
Sept. 5—The Otter (Zoology)................
Sept. 5—On the Abruzzi (Travel)............
Sept. 6—The Price of Jealousy (Drama)......
Sept. 8—Pathe's Weekly, No. 48 (News)......
Sept. 9—Sleufoot's Seventh Suicide (Comedy)..
Sept. 10—Across the Chasm (Drama)..........
Sept. 11—Pathe's Weekly, No. 49 (News)......
Sept. 11—The Accidental Shot (Drama)........
Sept. 12—Young Hearts and Old (Drama).....
Sept. 13—A Jungle Flirtation (Comedy).......
Sept. 13—Tahiti, the Picturesque (Travel).....
Sept. 15—Pathe's Weekly, No. 50 (News).....
Sept. 16—Mrs. Morton's Birthday (Drama).....
Sept. 17—The Merill Murder Mystery (Drama)
Sept. 18—Toad Traits (Zoology)..............
Sept. 18—Hot Springs and Geysers of New Zealand (Travel)..................
Sept. 18—Pathe's Weekly, No. 51 (News).....
Sept. 19—(Title Not Reported)...............
Sept. 20—Her Brave Rescuer (Drama).........
Sept. 22—Pathe's Weekly No. 52 (News)......
Sept. 23—The Blind Gypsy (Drama)..........
Sept. 24—The Secret Treasure (Drama)........
Sept. 25—Blazing a New Trail in Glacier National Park, Montana (Scenic)...........
Sept. 25—The Sago Industry in Borneo (Ind.).
Sept. 25—Pathe's Weekly No. 53 (News)......
Sept. 26—Birds of Prey (Bird Life)..........
Sept. 26—Sicily, the Picturesque (Travel)....
Sept. 27—The Fish With a Storage Battery In Its Brain ....
Sept. 27—The Pearl of the Bosphorous, Constantinople (Travel) ....
Sept. 27—Promenade in Rome (Travel).......

SELIG.

Sept. 2—The Lonely Heart (Drama)..........1000
Sept. 3—The Way of Life (Drama)...........1000
Sept. 4—Howlin' Jones (Comedy)............
Sept. 5—Man of the Woods (Drama)..........1000
Sept. 8—The Wheels of Fate (Special—2 parts ——Drama).........................2000
Sept. 9—The Rancher's Failing (Drama).....1000
Sept. 10—Around Battle Tree (Drama).........1000
Sept. 11—Two Too Many (Comedy)............1000
Sept. 12—Her Way (Drama)..................1000
Sept. 15—The Fifth String (Special—2 parts—Drama)............................2000
Sept. 16—The Toils of Deception (Drama).....1000
Sept. 17—Tobias Wins Out (Comedy)..........1000
Sept. 18—The Redemption of Railroad Jack (Drama)............................1000
Sept. 19—The Rejected Lover's Luck (Dram)..1000
Sept. 22—The Young Mrs. Eames (Special—2 parts—Drama)....................
Sept. 22—Sissybelle (Comedy)...............
Sept. 23—Bumps and Willie (Comedy).........1000
Sept. 24—The Spell of the Primeval (Drama)..1000
Sept. 25—The Capture of Bad Brown (Comedy).1000
Sept. 26—The Policeman and the Baby (Dr.)..
Sept. 26—The Taj Mahal, Agra, India (Travel)
Sept. 29—The Invisible Government (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000
Sept. 30—The False Friend (Drama)..........1000
Oct. 1—The Cattle Thief's Escape (Drama)...
Oct. 1—The Elephant As a Workman, Rangoon, India (Educational) ....
Oct. 2—Our Neighbors (Drama) ....
Oct. 3—John Bousall of the U. S. Secret Service (Drama) 1000

VITAGRAPH.

Sept. 3—The Kiss of Retribution (Drama)....1000
Sept. 4—The Lonely Princess (Drama).......
Sept. 5—The Baby Elephant (Educational)....
Sept. 5—Pickwick (Comedy).................
Sept. 6—When Women Go on the Warpath (Special—2 parts—Comedy).......2000
Sept. 8—Cupid Versus Women's Rights (Comedy-Drama)......................
Sept. 9—Old Moddington's Daughters (Comedy-Drama)............................1000
Sept. 10—Fortune's Turn (Drama)............1000
Sept. 11—The Tiger (Drama).................1000
Sept. 12—Sauce for the Goose (Comedy).......1000
Sept. 13—The Lost Millionaire (Special—2 parts ——Drama)...........................2000
Sept. 15—Pumps (Comedy)...................
Sept. 15—Sandy Gets Shorty a Job (Comedy)..
Sept. 16—Their Mutual Friend (Drama).......1000
Sept. 17—The Hindoo Charm (Drama).........1000
Sept. 18—Sunny; or the Cattle Thief (Drama)..1000
Sept. 19—John Tobin's Sweetheart (Comedy)..1000
Sept. 20—Our Wives (Special—2 parts—Com.).2000
Sept. 22—Daddy's Soldier Boy (Drama)........1000
Sept. 23—Extremities (Comedy)..............
Sept. 23—Scenes in Singapore (Travel)........
Sept. 24—The Other Woman (Drama)..........1000
Sept. 25—The Race (Drama).................1000
Sept. 26—Bunny for the Cause (Comedy)......1000
Sept. 27—Under the Daisies (Special—2 parts —Drama)..........................2000
Sept. 29—When the West Was Young (Drama)1000
Sept. 30—Which? (Comedy) 1000
Oct. 1—Salvation Sal (Drama) 1000
Oct. 2—The Autocrat of Flapjack Junction (Drama)...........................1000
Oct. 3—The Treasure of Desert Isle (Com.-Dr.)1000
Oct. 4—The Mystery of the Silver Skull (Special—2 parts—Drama) 2000

ENTIRE NEW LINE OF ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES Beautifully illustrated, highly and artistically colored. Positively the handsomest slides ever produced. Prices, 35 cents each, three for $1.00. Send wording of slides wanted with draft or money order.

AMERICAN SLIDE AND POSTER COMPANY, 1st National Bank Building, CHICAGO

MR. EXHIBITOR, LOOK, READ!!

Beautiful photographs of the leading actors and actresses playing in licensed films. Finished in soft gray. Size 22x28.

LILLIAN WALKER
VITAGRAPH

Price, 40c each
Postage Prepaid

Crane Wilbur
Maurice Costello
Francis X. Bushman
Gilbert M. Anderson
Marc MacDermott
Arthur Johnson
Mary Fuller
Ormi Hawley
Kathlyn Williams
Gwendoline Pates
Octavia Handworth
Lillian Walker

MARY FULLER

ALL
MASTERPIECES
OF PHOTOGRAPHY

CRANE WILBUR
PATHE FRERES

A smaller size, 11 x 14 in same style and finish as above of Harry Myers, Lottie Briscoe, John Bunny, Guy Coombs, Ruth Roland, Beverly Bayne, Edith Storey, Earle Williams, Lillian Wiggins, Helen Costello, Charles Arling.

Price, 20c each
Postage Prepaid

MAURICE COSTELLO
VITAGRAPH

GENERAL FILM COMPANY, Poster Department

(Formerly Photoplay Advertising & Specialty Co.)

71 W. 23rd Street and 440 Fourth Avenue, New York; 121 Fourth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.; 1022 Superior Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio; 7th and Walnut Streets, Cincinnati, Ohio; Equity Bldg., Detroit, Mich.; 218 Commercial Street, Boston, Mass.; 122 Pearl Street, Buffalo, N. Y.; 737 Broadway, Albany, N. Y.

World Special Films Corporation

"Sapho"

IN FOUR REELS

The only version authorized by the author

Alphonse Daudet

A realistic dramatization of the novel made by the "Eclair" Company in France, on the ground described in the novel.

Sapho - Mme. Cecile Guyon
Jean - Mons. Charles Krauss

and a supporting cast of 50 people.

A play for mothers and daughters as well as fathers and sons.

Mr. Exhibitor -- We do business with you direct. Get in touch with us at once for bookings in the United States and Canada.

No State Right Buyers Need Apply

A full line of distinctive advertising that will get you the money.

Passed by the National Board of Censors.

WORLD SPECIAL FILMS CORPORATION
Suite 901 WORLD'S TOWER BUILDING 110-112 West 40th St., NEW YORK

E. MANDELBAUM, Pres. PHIL. GLEICHMAN, Vice-Pres. and Gen'l Mgr.

We own exclusive rights on all films we handle for the United States and Canada.

THE WOMAN IN BLACK

3 REELS

A gripping and sensational drama, every scene a thrill.

State Rights for sale at low prices.

Write or wire quick to

ITALIAN-AMERICAN FILM CO.
Room 401, Columbia Theatre Building
701 Seventh Avenue, New York City

ONE, THREE and SIX SHEETS

WURLITZER

World's Largest Mfrs. Established 1856

Wurlitzer PianOrchestra in Bijou Theater, San Francisco, Cal.

Write for 32-page booklet, showing
Wurlitzer Automatic Musical Instruments
in the leading picture theatres of the country.

The Wurlitzer Instruments furnish better music than musicians and reduce expenses. 50 different styles; time payments; big catalog free. If you can't call, write to our nearest branch.

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Company

CINCINNATI 127-131 E. 4th
NEW YORK 25-27 W. 32d
CHICAGO 329-331 S. Wabash
PHILADELPHIA 1835 Chestnut
ST. LOUIS 912 Pine St.
CLEVELAND 800 Huron Rd.
BUFFALO 701 Main
LOUISVILLE 420 W. Greene
COLUMBUS, O. 57 E. Main

The World Special Films Corporation

We are a brand new corporation with old experienced men at the head, that know how to anticipate your wants.

Now, Mr. Manager! If you want to get the right kind of attractions for your house, get in touch with us. We control only what we consider the best of the output of both the American and European manufacturers in special worth while films, both big and small, from 1 to 9 reel subjects,

WE SELL NO STATE RIGHTS

We deal direct with you, Mr. Exhibitor, and can give you what you want.

Our advertising is distinctive, and carries the mark "Money Getter." We now have ready. A wonderful six reel Pasquali film.

"The Two Sergeants"

A thrilling and superbly acted military drama. Dramatized from a famous French military story.

A drama of love and life. A cast of unexcelled excellence, headed by A. Capossi, one of Europe's foremost actors.

All our films passed by the National Board of Censors. We are now opening offices throughout the United States and Canada. Until the office in your territory is established address all communications to the New York office.

World Special Films Corporation

E. MANDELBAUM, Pres.
PHIL. GLEICHMAN, Vice-Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

Suite 901 WORLD TOWER BUILDING 110-112 West 40th St.
NEW YORK

We own exclusive rights on all films we handle for U. S. and Canada. See opposite page for ad. of "Sapho"

Don't Throw Money Away

DON'T EXPERIMENT

TRADE YOUR OLD PICTURE MAchine for new, modern, up-to-date outfit by paying a little difference. We carry in stock all makes of machines, also have a few second-hand and rebuilt machines for sale cheap. Write us—

Stelzer Bros.

417 Broadway Lincoln, Ill.

OPERA CHAIRS

Latest and Best in Seats

SEND FOR OUR PRICES BEFORE BUYING

BENNETT SEATING CO
127 EAST PEARL ST,
CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Steel standards will not break

STEEL OR IRON STANDARDS

Eastern Sales Manager: Fletcher W. Dickerman, 61 North Seventh St., Telephone 126 Branch Brook, Newark, N. J, Southern California Representative: California Seating Co., 1110 Van Nuys Building, Los Angeles, Cal. North Western Representative: H. A. Johnson Seating Co., 911 Western Ave., Seattle, Washington.

The Wisconsin Seating Company
New London, Wisconsin, U.S.A.

WE BUY, SELL and RENT

Moving Picture Machines, Film, and Opera Chairs

THEATRE BROKERAGE EXCHANGE
440 S. Dearborn St. Chicago, Ills.

CHEAP

STEEL FRAME THEATRE CHAIRS ABSOLUTELY NON-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small Theaters and Moving Picture Shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs

Also seating for Out-of door use. Address Dept. W

STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Rapids. Mich. New York: 150 5th Ave. Pittsburgh: 319 Lissel Blk. Philadelphia: 1943 Market St. Nashville, Tenn.: 316 No. 4th Ave.

It pays to discriminate when you buy

THEATRE SEATING

WRITE TODAY for Cat. V2 (Moving Picture Chairs) and Cat. V3 (Upholstered Chairs)
Send Floor Sketch for Free Seating Plan.

Widest range of styles and prices. Large stocks.

American Seating Company

218 S. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO. 15 E. 32nd St., NEW YORK

OPERA CHAIRS

FOR EVERY PURPOSE
1,000 STYLES

ESTABLISHED 1865
WRITE FOR CAT. NO. 31

115-117 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The A. H. Andrews Co.

Branches in all Leading Cities

New York Office, 1165 Broadway.
Seattle Office, 508-10-12 First Ave., So.
San Francisco Office, 7[illegible] Mission St.

OH! MR. EXHIBITOR!!

What! a life-saving chair? Write us.
What! a space-saving chair? Write us.
What! a sanitary chair? Write us.
What! a cheap but good chair? Write us.

We operate the largest exclusive theatre chair factory in the world, AND SELL DIRECT TO YOU. WRITE US

THE HARDESTY MFG. CO., Canal Dover, Ohio

From the Patrons View Point

What Causes People

to continually patronize one Picture Theatre in preference to another? Of course, location, appearances, films, etc. have a great deal to do with it, but quality of the picture is what builds up a steady patronage that makes the business profitable.

This depends largely on your light and if you are using any other device than a to step down your current you are not getting best results.

FORT WAYNE COMPENSARC

With our machine you can produce a clear, white, steady light that won't worry your "house" by continuous flickering and will surprise you with the difference it makes with the films.

It is the only device that can be changed instantly to any of the three intensities without breaking the circuit between adjustments.

But this is not all. We will guarantee that our Compensarc

Will Cut 65% from Your Light Bill

and we'll send you one on 30 days' free trial to prove it.

We have a little 22 page booklet that explains all the reasons why If you want a better light at ⅓ your present cost, send for it today. It's free.

FT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
of GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY
1402 Broadway
Fort Wayne, Ind.

C5

Sargent's Photoplay Service

To aid those who wish to guard against the formation of bad writing habits, or who wish to estimate their progress, I offer the following service:

Script Criticism For a fee of two dollars for each reel, I will read your manuscript and write a personal letter, pointing out the faults of plotting, technical development, manuscript preparation, etc. Sometimes I can help you to make the script salable, but I do not guarantee a sale. I do not revise manuscript; I do not typewrite it, nor do I offer it for sale. I simply write you a letter that tells you what the trouble is.

Plot Estimates If your stories do not sell and you want to know why, send me five synopses and one full script. I will criticise the script and tell you whether it is your plot or your development that is wrong. The fee for this service is $5 for the five synopses and additional plot. Synopses must not run more than 300 words each. Send a synopsis of your undeveloped plot and fee of one dollar and you will be advised as to whether it will pay you to develop the same.

Please Note My fees do not include envelopes or return postage. Send prepaid and self addressed return envelope and remit in New York exchange; not local checks. I reserve the right to return unread (with fee) any story or plot that does not warrant treatment. All scripts must be typewritten.

☞ EPES WINTHROP SARGENT
Box 70, Madison Square Station, NEW YORK CITY

COPYRIGHT 1909 DECORATORS

Ornamental Theatres

PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

Theatres Designed Everywhere

Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
2549 Archer Avenue, :: CHICAGO, ILL.

MUSIC For Moving Pictures

Violin, Flute, Clarinet, Cornet and Drum parts have been added to the popular "Orpheum Collection" of piano music. Practical for piano alone or any number of above instruments with piano.

Prices for First Series (No. 1)

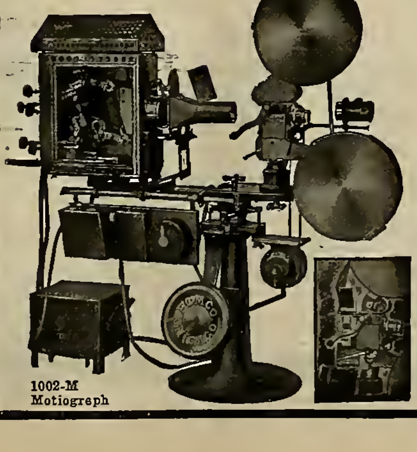
Piano 58 cts. Violin 40 cts. Flute 35 cts. Clarinet 35 cts. Cornet 35 cts. Drums 30 cts. Other parts are in preparation. Send for free sample page.

The second series (No. 2.), is same instrumentation and price as No. 1. No. 3 is ready for piano alone; other parts in preparation. (This is dramatic and descriptive stuff; not dance music.) Now being used in every part of the English speaking world.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1501 SEDGWICK ST. CHICAGO, ILL.

THE APPROVED MOTIOGRAPH

The Most Substantial Moving Picture Machine Made



1002-M Motiograph

SCIENTIFICALLY DESIGNED EVERLASTING

This Means To YOU:

1. MUCH BRIGHTER PICTURES.
2. A FLICKERLESS PICTURE AND AS STEADY AS A ROCK.
3. NO TRIPS TO THE REPAIR SHOP.
4. READY AT ALL TIMES TO PRODUCE THE GOODS.
5. AN EVERLASTING FEELING BY YOUR AUDIENCE TO SEE THE MOTIOGRAPH PROJECTION.
6. YOUR SEATS ARE ALWAYS FILLED.
7. A HANDSOME YEARLY PROFIT.
8. TO USE THE MOTIOGRAPH.

MADE ONLY BY

The Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company
Main Office and Factory
564 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

EASTERN OFFICE:
21 E. 14th Street, New York, N. Y.

WESTERN OFFICE:
833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

Another Week!

AT WASHINGTON'S
Premier Playhouse
The
National Theatre
Has been playing the past
2 weeks to crowded houses

(Extract from Sunday Star, Washington, D.C.)

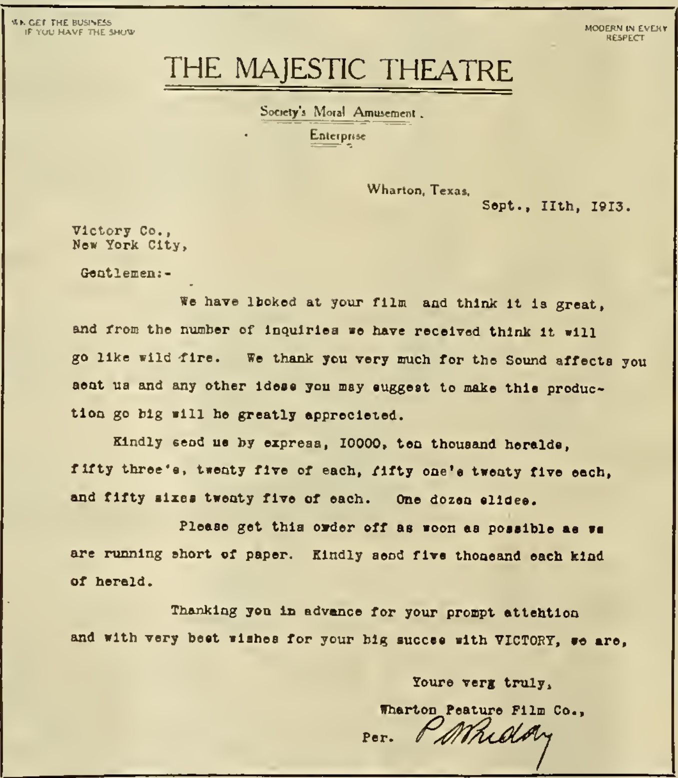
National

The presentation of "Victory," the photo drama of the navy, is announced to continue at the National Theatre for another week. This film production is said to have been most favorably received, and at the conclusion of the present engagement will be sent on tour of the principal cities of the east under the direction of Tom Moore. For "Victory" is claimed the honor of being the first photo drama to have the entire co-operation and aid of the United States Navy and War departments. This was obtained principally, it is declared, to demonstrate the wonderful facilities of Uncle Sam's land and sea forces in the time of strife. Views are presented of battleships belching forth powderless shells, war hydroplanes dropping death-dealing bombs while gliding hundreds of feet above land forts, the work of submarine destroyers, the rise and approach of battle aeroplanes and the exploding of full-charge harbor mines, throwing up columns of water more than three hundred feet in the air.

These are the first motion pictures ever shown at this theatre!

Seating capacity 2600.
Prices 25c and 50c.

ANOTHER ENTHUSIASTIC STATE RIGHT BUYER!



WE GET THE BUSINESS
IF YOU HAVE THE SHOW

MODERN IN EVERY RESPECT

THE MAJESTIC THEATRE

Society's Moral Amusement.
Enterprise

Wharton, Texas,
Sept., IIth, I9I3.

Victory Co.,
New York City,

Gentlemen:-

We have looked at your film and think it is great, and from the number of inquiries we have received think it will go like wild fire. We thank you very much for the Sound affects you sent us and any other ideas you may suggest to make this production go big will be greatly appreciated.

Kindly send us by express, 10000, ten thousand heralds, fifty three's, twenty five of each, fifty one's twenty five each, and fifty sixes twenty five of each. One dozen slides.

Please get this order off as soon as possible as we are running short of paper. Kindly send five thousand each kind of herald.

Thanking you in advance for your prompt attention and with very best wishes for your big success with VICTORY, we are,

Youre very truly,
Wharton Feature Film Co.,
Per.

2 Styles 1 Sheets
3 " 3 "
2 " 6 "
Combination 24 Sheet Stand
Window Cards.
Lithographs at 7c per sheet.

6 Sheet Heralds
30 Lobby Photos
Lobby Frames
Advance Slides
Newspaper Cuts
Special Letter Heads

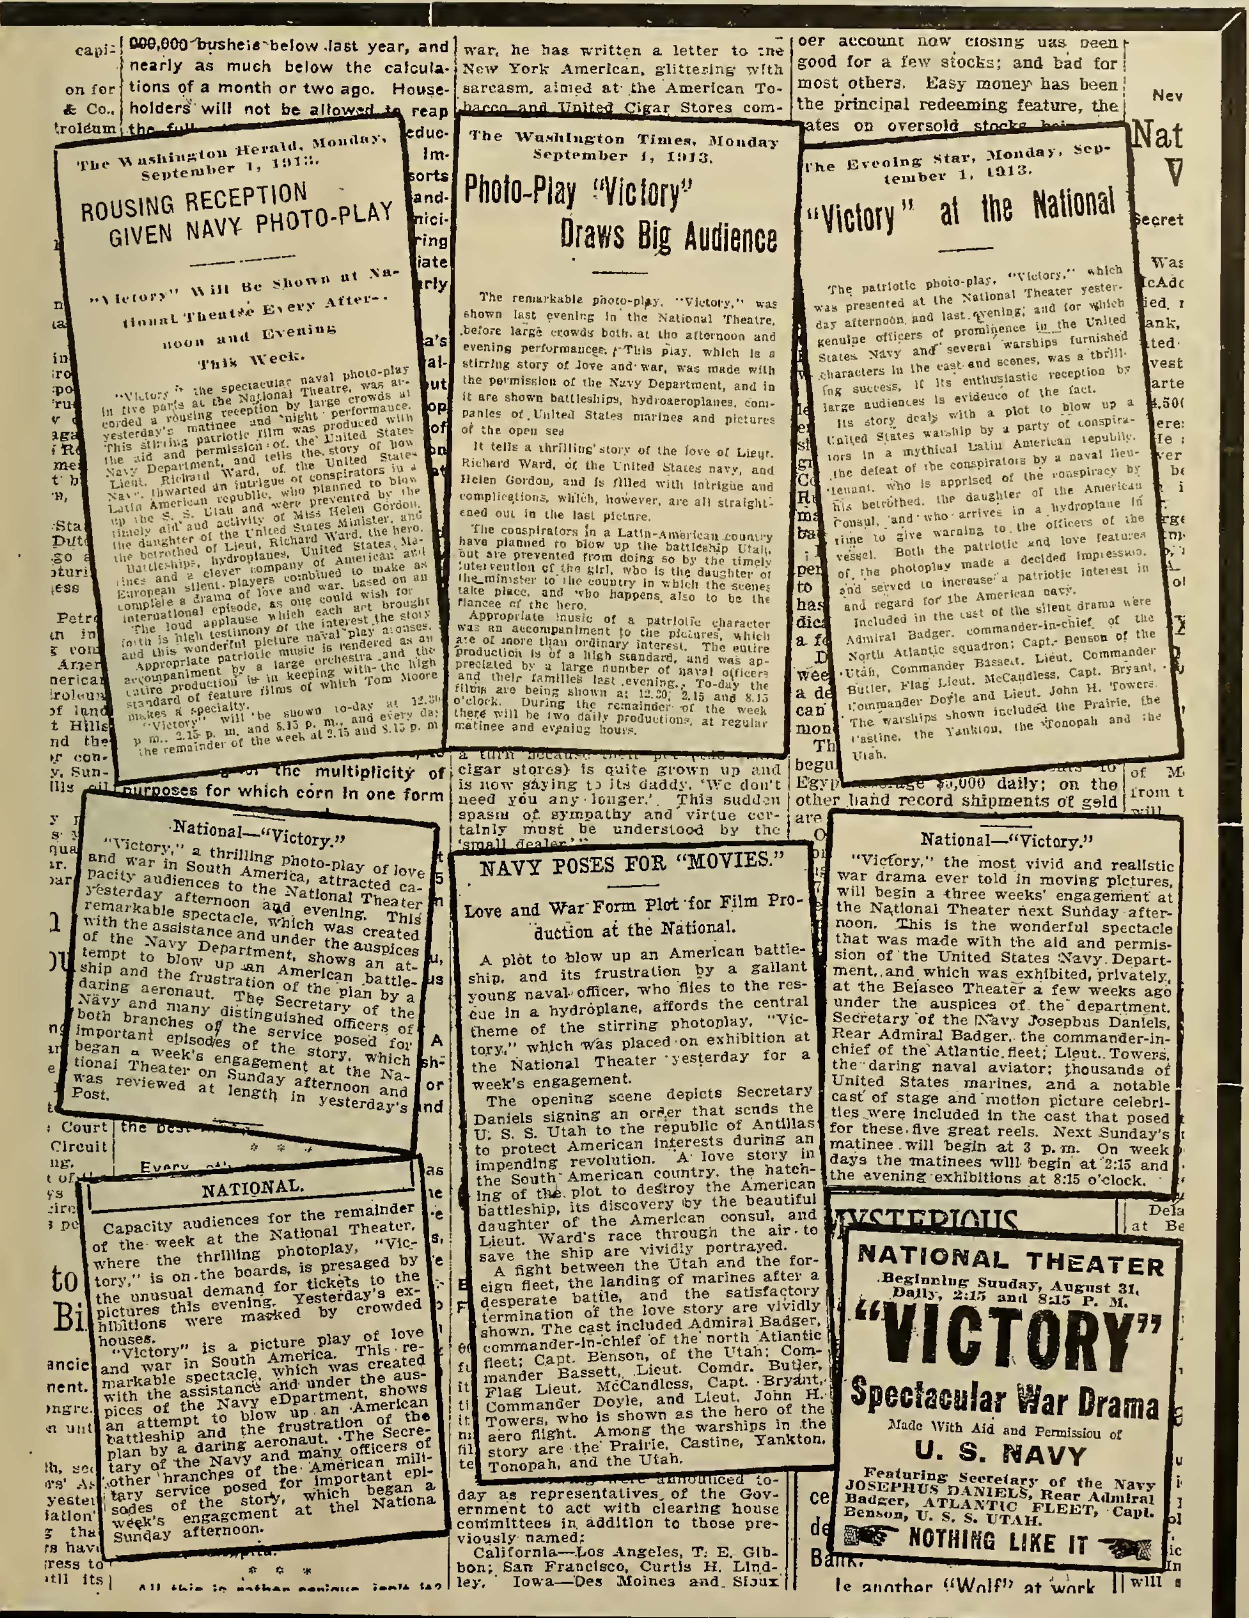
VICTORY

THE WORLD'S GREATEST SPECTACULAR WAR DRAMA

THE FEATURE WITH A HUNDRED THRILLS!

Made with the aid and permission of the UNITED STATES NAVY, with a notable cast including Secretary of the Navy JOSEPHUS DANIELS, and Rear-Admiral BADGER, Commander-in-Chief of the Atlantic Fleet. WIRE FOR RIGHTS AND BOOKINGS TO

VICTORY COMPANY, 222 West 42d St., New York City



The Washington Herald, Monday, September 1, 1913.

ROUSING RECEPTION GIVEN NAVY PHOTO-PLAY

"Victory" Will Be Shown at National Theatre Every Afternoon and Evening This Week.

"Victory," the spectacular naval photo-play in five parts at the National Theatre, was accorded a rousing reception by large crowds at yesterday's matinee and night performance. This stirring patriotic film was produced with the aid and permission of the United States Navy Department, and tells the story of how Lieut. Richard Ward, of the United States Navy, thwarted an intrigue of conspirators in a Latin American republic, who planned to blow up the S. S. Utah and were prevented by the timely aid and activity of Miss Helen Gordon, the daughter of the United States Minister, and the betrothed of Lieut. Richard Ward, the hero. Battleships, hydroplanes, United States Marines and a clever company of American and European silent players combined to make as complete a drama of love and war, based on an international episode, as one could wish for.

The loud applause which each act brought forth is high testimony of the interest the story and this wonderful picture naval play arouses.

Appropriate patriotic music is rendered as an accompaniment by a large orchestra and the entire production is in keeping with the high standard of feature films of which Tom Moore makes a specialty.

"Victory" will be shown to-day at 12.30 p. m., 2.15 p. m. and 8.15 p. m., and every day the remainder of the week at 2.15 and 8.15 p. m.

National—"Victory."

"Victory," a thrilling photo-play of love and war in South America, attracted capacity audiences to the National Theater yesterday afternoon and evening. This remarkable spectacle, which was created with the assistance and under the auspices of the Navy Department, shows an attempt to blow up an American battleship and the frustration of the plan by a daring aeronaut. The Secretary of the Navy and many distinguished officers of both branches of the service posed for important episodes of the story, which began a week's engagement at the National Theater on Sunday afternoon and was reviewed at length in yesterday's Post.

NATIONAL.

Capacity audiences for the remainder of the week at the National Theater, where the thrilling photoplay, "Victory," is on the boards, is presaged by the unusual demand for tickets to the pictures this evening. Yesterday's exhibitions were marked by crowded houses.

"Victory" is a picture play of love and war in South America. This remarkable spectacle, which was created with the assistance and under the auspices of the Navy eDpartment, shows an attempt to blow up an American battleship and the frustration of the plan by a daring aeronaut. The Secretary of the Navy and many officers of other branches of the American military service posed for important episodes of the story, which began a week's engagement at thel Nationa Sunday afternoon.

The Washington Times, Monday September 1, 1913.

Photo-Play "Victory" Draws Big Audience

The remarkable photo-play, "Victory," was shown last evening in the National Theatre, before large crowds both at the afternoon and evening performances. This play, which is a stirring story of love and war, was made with the permission of the Navy Department, and in it are shown battleships, hydroaeroplanes, companies of United States marines and pictures of the open sea

It tells a thrilling story of the love of Lieut. Richard Ward, of the United States navy, and Helen Gordon, and is filled with intrigue and complications, which, however, are all straightened out in the last picture.

The conspirators in a Latin-American country have planned to blow up the battleship Utah, but are prevented from doing so by the timely intervention of the girl, who is the daughter of the minister to the country in which the scenes take place, and who happens also to be the fiancee of the hero.

Appropriate music of a patriotic character was an accompaniment to the pictures, which are of more than ordinary interest. The entire production is of a high standard, and was appreciated by a large number of naval officers and their families last evening. To-day the films are being shown at 12.30, 2.15 and 8.15 o'clock. During the remainder of the week there will be two daily productions, at regular matinee and evening hours.

NAVY POSES FOR "MOVIES."

Love and War Form Plot for Film Production at the National.

A plot to blow up an American battleship, and its frustration by a gallant young naval officer, who flies to the rescue in a hydroplane, affords the central theme of the stirring photoplay, "Victory," which was placed on exhibition at the National Theater yesterday for a week's engagement.

The opening scene depicts Secretary Daniels signing an order that sends the U. S. S. Utah to the republic of Antillas to protect American interests during an impending revolution. A love story in the South American country, the hatching of the plot to destroy the American battleship, its discovery by the beautiful daughter of the American consul, and Lieut. Ward's race through the air to save the ship are vividly portrayed.

A fight between the Utah and the foreign fleet, the landing of marines after a desperate battle, and the satisfactory termination of the love story are vividly shown. The cast included Admiral Badger, commander-in-chief of the north Atlantic fleet; Capt. Benson, of the Utah; Commander Bassett, Lieut. Comdr. Butler, Flag Lieut. McCandless, Capt. Bryant, Commander Doyle, and Lieut. John H. Towers, who is shown as the hero of the aero flight. Among the warships in the story are the Prairie, Castine, Yankton, Tonopah, and the Utah.

The Evening Star, Monday, September 1, 1913.

"Victory" at the National

The patriotic photo-play, "Victory," which was presented at the National Theater yesterday afternoon and last evening, and for which genuine officers of prominence in the United States Navy and several warships furnished characters in the cast and scenes, was a thrilling success, if its enthusiastic reception by large audiences is evidence of the fact.

Its story deals with a plot to blow up a United States warship by a party of conspirators in a mythical Latin American republic, the defeat of the conspirators by a naval lieutenant, who is apprised of the conspiracy by his betrothed, the daughter of the American consul, and who arrives in a hydroplane in time to give warning to the officers of the vessel. Both the patriotic and love features of the photoplay made a decided impression and served to increase a patriotic interest in and regard for the American navy.

Included in the cast of the silent drama were Admiral Badger, commander-in-chief of the North Atlantic squadron; Capt. Benson of the Utah, Commander Bassett, Lieut. Commander Butler, Flag Lieut. McCandless, Capt. Bryant, Commander Doyle and Lieut. John H. Towers. The warships shown included the Prairie, the Castine, the Yankton, the Tonopah and the Utah.

National—"Victory."

"Victory," the most vivid and realistic war drama ever told in moving pictures, will begin a three weeks' engagement at the National Theater next Sunday afternoon. This is the wonderful spectacle that was made with the aid and permission of the United States Navy Department, and which was exhibited, privately, at the Belasco Theater a few weeks ago under the auspices of the department. Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, Rear Admiral Badger, the commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet; Lieut. Towers, the daring naval aviator; thousands of United States marines, and a notable cast of stage and motion picture celebrities were included in the cast that posed for these five great reels. Next Sunday's matinee will begin at 3 p. m. On week days the matinees will begin at 2:15 and the evening exhibitions at 8:15 o'clock.

NATIONAL THEATER

Beginning Sunday, August 31,
Daily, 2:15 and 8:15 P. M.

"VICTORY"

Spectacular War Drama

Made With Aid and Permission of

U. S. NAVY

Featuring Secretary of the Navy JOSEPHUS DANIELS, Rear Admiral Badger, ATLANTIC FLEET, Capt. Benson, U. S. S. UTAH.

☛ NOTHING LIKE IT ☚

On the West Coast "SAPHO" Opens in Los Angeles' Most Beautiful Playhouse—On the East Coast 61 Bidders Fight for One State and the Winner Pays $8500!

Here's a significant fact for you State-Rights fellows who are seeking REAL BIG ATTRACTIONS FOR REAL BIG HOUSES. "Sapho," with Florence Roberts, is going into the Majestic, Los Angeles' most beautiful theatre, as a regular show. All Los Angeles is now covered with "Sapho" posters, announcing that a film is the "bill" at the city's finest home of legitimate attractions. From that, you may be assured it is an UNUSUAL FILM, of unusual prestige and drawing power. Owner Morosco, of the Majestic, himself made the booking. That ought to sway you, too. Morosco is a shrewd judge of amusement things.

Be Shrewd, Too, and Have a Look at "SAPHO," Anyway!

We will welcome you or your New York representative at our projecting room. It's very handily located on Fourteenth Street, right by the Subway, Elevated and street-car lines. Come over, or send over quick. If you've a distance to come, WIRE US AND WE WILL "HOLD OFF" ON THE STATE YOU WANT until you've seen the picture. There were sixty-one bids for the rights for New York State, and what do you think the De Luxe Feature Film Company, who "got" them, paid? $8,500. If New York was worth that to the De Luxe people,—

Isn't Some State Worth Something to You?

WIRE, TELEPHONE OR WRITE

The Sapho Feature Film Co., 150 EAST 14th STREET
NEW YORK CITY

Photoframes, photos, heralds, cuts; wonderful posters in all sizes up to 24-sheets and two kinds to a size!

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

VOLUME XVII

July to September, 1913

J. P. CHALMERS
Founder

PUBLISHED BY

CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO.

17 Madison Avenue, New York

Index to Vol. XVII, July to September, 1913

A

Advertising for Exhibitors. By Epes Winthrop Sargent..40, 197, 312, 420, 736, 835, 951, 1059, 1167, 1275, 1384.
Alabama Exhibitors' League.......... 157
American Theater, Salt Lake City.......... 1272
Another Exhibitors' Problem.......... 820
Arkansas Exhibitors Get Together.......... 166
Arms and the Film.......... 404
"Ashes" (Reliance).......... 496
At the Sign of the Flaming Arcs. By George Blaisdell...434, 963, 1071, 1179, 1287, 1374.

B

Banquet, The.......... 404
Banshee, The, (Kay-Bee).......... 408
"Battle of Waterloo," (Waterloo Film Co.).......... 1265
Brabin, Charles J.......... 826
"Betrothed, The" (Pasquali).......... 964
"Betrothed, The" (Ambrosio).......... 1047
Big Convention in Wisconsin.......... 158
"Black Sheep, The" (Union Features).......... 828
"Black Snake, The" (Apex).......... 823
Bosworth, Inc.......... 848
Brace of Interesting Edisons, A.......... 1048
Buchanan, Claude, E.......... 830

C

California Exhibitors' League.......... 152
Case of Stage vs Picture, The.......... 296
Celebrate Lowry's Birthday.......... 1263
Children's M. P. League, The.......... 299
Cinema Club of the Bronx, The.......... 1377
Convention Committee N. Y. Exposition.......... 149
Convention, The.......... 181

D

"Daniel" (Vitagraph).......... 1381
David Horsley Back from Europe.......... 1266
"Day of Judgment, The" (Union Features).......... 311
"Diamond Makers, The" (Rex).......... 726
Directing the Educational Moving Picture.......... 721
Dobbs Will Make Pictures.......... 944
"Doctor Nicholas and the Blue Diamond" (Dansk Kinograph).......... 724
"Doomed to Die" (Union Features).......... 1056
"Doom of Darkness" (True Features).......... 944

E

Ernest Shipman's World Tour.......... 34
Eternal Recurrence.......... 24
"Everyman" (Kinemacolor).......... 823
Exchange Assets.......... 733, 1055
Exhibitors Strong in Indiana.......... 169
Exposition's Huge Success.......... 417

F

"Fight for Millions, The" (Blache Features).......... 1287
"Fight for Right, The" (Reliance).......... 724
Film In France, The.......... 179
Film Schedules in the New Tariff.......... 1369
Film War Scene on Lubin Estate.......... 825
First International Exposition, The.......... 324
Floor Plan, Grand Central Palace.......... 177
"For the Flag" (American).......... 723
Frese Camera, The.......... 419

G

Get Off at "Lubin".......... 1159
Gezabo, The.......... 821
"Ghost of Granleigh, The" (Edison).......... 943
"Ghost of the Hacienda" (American).......... 1154
Good Little Devil Shown, A.......... 407
"Grandmother's Lamp" (Ambrosio).......... 824
"Greed of Osman Bey, The" (Edison).......... 416
Growth of New Jersey League.......... 175
"Gum Shoe" Campaign in Missouri.......... 168

H

"Hard Cash" (Edison).......... 1263
Harmony in Universal Offices.......... 209
"Heart of a Jewess, The" (Universal).......... 300
"High Treason" (Cines).......... 1264
"Honor Thy Father" (Cines).......... 309
Humors of Film Taking.......... 432

I

Illinois Exhibitors' League.......... 145
International Association.......... 413
International Polo Games (Edison).......... 100
"In Convict Garb" (Essanay).......... 1371
"In the Bishop's Carriage" (Famous Players).......... 1266
"In the Coils of the Python" ("101" Bison).......... 828
"Invaders, The" (Kalem).......... 827
Iowa Picture Men Active.......... 154
Isadore Bernstein to Manage Western Universal.......... 29
Italy's Film Center.......... 25

K

Kansas Exhibitors' State League.......... 147
Kentucky Exhibitures' League.......... 162
Kinemacolor Licensed.......... 729
"King Rene's Daughter" (Thanhouser).......... 191
Kleine Optical Co., The.......... 38

L

Last Call for the Exposition.......... 32
Last Days of the Convention.......... 409
League Booming in Oklahoma.......... 171
"Let Us Have Peace".......... 1370
Louisiana League.......... 159

M

Maine Exhibitors Organize.......... 33
"Making of a Boy Scout, The".......... 1289
Maryland Exhibitors Make Big Start.......... 161
Master of His Show, The.......... 936
Minnesota Exhibitors' League.......... 156
"Missing Woman, The" (Film Releases of America).......... 1872
Mississippi Exhibitors' League.......... 170
Motion Picture Exhibitors' League..........32, 143, 847, 945, 1053, 1288, 1377
Moving Picture Educator, The..........37, 194, 746, 831, 949, 1052, 1158, 1274
Mrs. Fiske Triumphs as "Tess,".......... 1155
Music for the Picture, by Clarence E. Sinn..........303, 833, 948, 1180
"Mysterious Man, The" (Cines-Kleine).......... 940
"Mystery of the Yellow Room, The" (Union Features).......... 1270

N

Nebraska State Exhibitors' League.......... 164
New York State Convention.......... 307
No More White Flags.......... 182

O

Observations by Man About Town..........39, 310, 418, 834, 947, 1058, 1271
Official Entertainment Program.......... 209
Ohio, the Pioneer of the League.......... 150

P

"Paper Doll, The" (Crystal).......... 311
Pennsylvania Exhibitors Get in Line.......... 160
"Perils of the Sea" (Kalem).......... 1262
Period of Transition and the Feature Program.......... 208
Photoplay Principles.......... 1152
Photoplaywright, The, by Epes Winthrop Sargent, 42, 199, 314, 421, 736, 837, 1001, 1169, 1277, 1386
Player, The.......... 1260
Plotless Play, The.......... 1261
"Power of Conscience, The" (Essanay).......... 822
President Neff's Annual Report.......... 302
President Neff Takes Quick Action.......... 431
Press, Producer and Public.......... 297
Projection Department, by F. H. Richardson, 44, 201, 316, 424, 740, 839, 955, 1063, 1171, 1279, 1388
Proper Illumination of Moving Picture Theatres.......... 1395

R

Real Enemy, The.......... 1153
"Red Powder, The" (Apex).......... 1157
Remarkable Record, A.......... 193
Reorganizing New York State League.......... 727
"Rivals, The" (Kinemacolor).......... 1373

S

Saunterings of a Cheerful Liar.......... 436
"Seeds of the Fathers, The" (Monopol).......... 207
Sermon in Stones, A.......... 1044
Siegman, George.......... 1970
"Silent Heroes" (Broncho).......... 1156
Slide Advertising.......... 1178
"Snowy Egret, The" (Patheplay).......... 184
Some Progress in West Virginia.......... 165
South Dakota League Organized.......... 171
Star Theater, Ithaca, N. Y.......... 1166
Starting Things Down in Maine.......... 173
Strong Union Feature, A.......... 1378
Studio Saunterings.......... 937
Syracuse Convention Successful.......... 847

T

"Tapped Wires" (Essanay).......... 186
Texas Exhibitors Round-Up.......... 163
"Theodora" (Warner's Features).......... 183
Theatrical Feature Plays.......... 405
Third National Convention, The.......... 301
Tragedy of Rev. H. Goodwin, The.......... 1165
Tribute to Gaynor, A.......... 1368
"Twickenham Ferry" (Reliance).......... 1157
"Twixt Heaven and Earth" (True Features).......... 1381
Two Interesting Vitagraphs.......... 722
"Two Sergeants, The" (Pasquali).......... 1163
Two Vivid Vitagraphs.......... 1046

U

Universal Goes to Court.......... 27
"Unmasked" (Itala).......... 435

V

"Victory" (Victory Film Co.).......... 1267
Virginia Exhibitors Going Strong.......... 167
Vitagraph Co. Entertains.......... 412

W

"War".......... 1370
"War Correspondent, The" (Itala).......... 942
Washington State Exhibitors.......... 144
"What Happened to Mary?".......... 26
"Wheel of Destruction, The" (Eclectic).......... 727
"Wheels of Fate, The" (Selig).......... 1045
"When Paris Loves" (Eclectic).......... 1264
Where the Universal Holds Forth.......... 735
"Why Broncho Billy Left Bear County" (Essanay).......... 1371
"Wild Ride, A" (Selig).......... 28
Wondrous Training School.......... 720

Index to Stories of the Films

For the benefit of the readers of The Moving Picture World, we have compiled a complete list of films, with their dates, which have been released during the past three months. Absence of page numbers indicate that no synopses were furnished by the manufacturers.

Licensed Releases

A

Accidental Bandit, The—Aug. 20 (Essanay) 766
Accidental Shot, The—Sept. 11 (Patheplay)..1210
Acid Test, The—July 25 (Selig)..............
Across the Chasm—Sept. 10 (Patheplay)....1096
Actor's Strategy, An—July 21 (Lubin)........ 338
Actress and the Jewels, The—Sept. 30 (Lubin).1412
Adopted Brother, The—Aug. 30 (Biograph)... 986
Adventures of a Watch—Aug. 26 (Selig)...... 870
Airman's Bride, The—July 8 (Patheplay).... 78
Alibi, The—Aug. 9 (Kalem).................. 666
Alkali Ike's Gal—(2 parts) Aug. 15 (Essanay) 664
Amateur Burglar, The—Aug. 15 (Kalem).... 668
Among Club Fellows—Sept. 1 (Biograph)....1098
And the Watch Came Back—Oct. 3 (Kalem)..
Apache Kind, The—July 14 (Lubin)........ 228
Apache's Gratitude, An—Aug. 14 (Selig).... 658
Around the Battle Tree—Sept. 10 (Selig)....1094
As the Tooth Came Out—July 30 (Edison).... 456
Atheist, The—Sept. 29 (Kalem)..............1418
At Midnight—July 23 (Edison).............. 456
At the Lariat's End—July 5 (Essanay)...... 72
Autocrat of Flapjack Junction, The—Oct. 1 (Vitagraph) 1416
Auto Polo, the New Thriller—Aug. 20 (Patheplay) 766
Awakening of the Man, The—(2 parts) Sept. 5 (Edison) 980

B

Baby Elephant, The—Sept. 5 (Vitagraph)....
Baby Indisposed—Sept. 11 (Biograph)........1098
Baffled, Not Beaten—July 25 (Kalem)........ 348
Barcelon, the Largest Seaport in Spain—July 19 (Patheplay) ....
Battle at Fort Laramie, The—(2 parts) Oct. 1 (Kalem) 1418
Battlefields Around Chattanooga—Aug. 13 (Edison) 664
Beautiful Catalogue—July 18 (Patheplay)..... 232
Belle of Siskiyou—Oct. 2 (Essanay)............1412
Bells, The—July 29 (Edison)................ 456
Benefactor, The—July 22 (Lubin).......... 338
Better Days—Aug. 20 (Vitagraph)............ 758
Bingle's Nightmare—Aug. 12 (Vitagraph)..... 662
Birds of Prey—July 30 (Kalem)............ 446
Birds of Prey—Sept. 26 (Patheplay)..........1420
Black and White—Aug. 28 (Biograph)...... 874
Black Beauty—Aug. 19 (Lubin).............. 760
Blazing a New Trail in Glacier National Park, Montana—Sept. 25 (Patheplay)............1420
Blind Basket Weaver, The—Aug. 25 (Kalem) 874
Blind Girl of Castle Guille, The—Aug. 30 (Patheplay) 988
Blind Gypsy, The—Sept. 23 (Patheplay)......1420
Bobbie's Long Trousers—Aug. 20 (Edison).... 760
Boggs' Predicament—Sept. 5 (Kalem)........ 982
Bolt from the Sky, A—July 21 (Kalem)...... 346
Bonnie of the Hills—Sept. 11 (Essanay)......1088
Borrowing Trouble—July 29 (Selig).......... 452
Bread Upon the Waters—July 30 (Essanay).. 446
Breaking Into the Big League—(2 parts) Aug. 20 (Kalem) 762
Breath of Scandal, The—Sept. 20 (Kalem)....1208
Bribe—Sept. 8 (Kalem)........................1084
Broken Parole, The—Sept. 18 (Essanay)....1202
Broken Threads United—(2 parts) Aug. 29 (Essanay) 872
Broken Vase, The—Aug. 12 (Selig)........... 658
Broncho Billy and the Navajo Maid—Aug. 9 (Essanay) 558
Broncho Billy and the Schoolmam's Sweetheart —July 26 (Essanay)...................... 342
Broncho Billy and the Western Girls—July 12 (Essanay) 74
Broncho Billy Reforms—Sept. 13 (Essanay).1088
Broncho Billy's Conscience—Sept. 6 (Essanay) 986
Broncho Billy's Mistake—Aug. 23 (Essanay).. 766
Brown's New Monetary Standard—Aug. 15 (Selig) 660
Browns Study Astrology—July 24 (Essanay).. 342
Budd Doble Comes Back—July 11 (Selig).... 72
Building a Trust—July 10 (Lubin).......... 76
Building the Chattanooga Light and Power Dam—July 24 (Essanay)................. 342
Bumps and Willie—Sept. 23 (Selig)............1312
Bunny for the Cause—Sept. 26 (Vitagraph)...1304
Burglar and the Baby, The—Sept. 19 (Kalem).1208
Burning Rivet, The—(2 parts) Aug. 21 (Lubin) 760
By Fire and Water—Aug. 9 (Edison)........ 664

C

Call of Her Heart—July 29 (Lubin).......... 446
Call of the Blood, The—July 31 (Patheplay).... 454
Call of the Plains, The—July 29 (Essaney).... 446
Call, The (2 parts)—Aug. 30 (Vitagraph)...... 868
Cambodian Idyll—Sept. 25 (Melies)...........1420
Camera's Testimony, The—Aug. 7 (Lubin)..... 551
Captivating Widow, The—Aug. 29 (Kalem).... 874
Captured by Aboriginals—Sept. 11 (Melies)....1210
Capture of "Bad Brown," The—Sept. 25 (Selig).1312
Carpenter, The—July 10 (Vitagraph).......... 68
Caste (2 parts)—Sept. 12 (Edison)............1086
Cattle Thief's Escape, The—Oct. 1 (Selig).....
Celestial Republic, The—Aug. 4 (Vitagraph)... 554
Chieftain's Sons, The—Oct. 4 (Biograph)......
Child of the Sea, The (2 parts)—Aug. 18 (Selig) 870
Children of the Tenements—Sept. 5 (Kalem).. 982
Chinese Funeral, A—July 17 (Melies).......... 234
Chinese Puzzle, A—July 17 (Biograph)........ 344
Christian, The—Sept. 1 (Kalem).............. 980
Climax, The—Sept. 3 (Pathepley)............ 988
Clod, The (2 parts)—Sept. 18 (Lubin)..........1200
Clown and the Prima Donna, The—Aug. 29 (Vitagraph) 868
Clown's Revenge, The (2 parts)—Aug. 19 (Eclipse) 764
Coast Guard's Sister, The—Aug. 15 (Edison)... 664
Coast of Chance, The—Aug. 13 (Selig)........ 658
Coffee Industry in Jamaica—July 24 (Lubin).... 338
Colombo, Capital of the Island of Ceylon—Aug. 2 (Patheplay)........................ 454
Comedian's Downfall, The—Sept. 17 (Edison)...1206
Come Seben, Leben—Aug. 14 (Biograph)....... 670
Coming of Angelo—July 26 (Biograph)......... 344
Concrete Industry, The—July 18 (Kalem)...... 228
Coney Island—Aug. 8 (Kalem)................ 556
Constable's Daughter, The—Sept. 30 (Lubin)..1412
Contents of the Suitcase, The—Oct. 4 (Edison).
Cook's Revenge, The—Aug. 28 (Patheplay)..... 988
Cornwall, the English Riviera—Sept. 17 (Edison) 1206
Cosmopolitan Life in Cairo—Aug. 15 (Patheplay) 668
Cosmopolitan New York—July 11 (Kalem)..... 76
Count Barber—July 8 (Vitagraph)............ 68
Courage of Commonplace—Aug. 1 (Vitagraph).. 450
Counterfeiter's Confederate, The — Sept. 22 (Kalem) 1306
Crook and the Girl, The—Aug. 25 (Biograph).. 986
Cupid and the Cook—Aug. 4 (Biograph)....... 551
Cupid Versus Women's Rights—Sept. 8 (Vitagraph) 1088
Curious Sea Creatures—July 29 (Patheplay).... 452

D

Daddy's Soldier Boy—Sept. 22 (Vitagraph).....1304
Daily Doings in Manila—July 29 (Patheplay).. 454
Damascus and the Ruins of Baalbek—Oct. 1 (Edison) ....
Dance at Eagle Pass, The—July 23 (Essanay).. 342
Dan Greegan's Ghost—Sept. 15 (Biograph).....1208
Dash for Liberty, A (2 parts)—July 30 (Lubin) 448
Daughter of Romany—Sept. 30 (Edison).......1414
Daughter of the Sheriff, The—July 8 (Essanay) 72
Day at Singapore, A—Sept. 4 (Melies)........1092
Days of the Pony Express—Sept. 25 (Essanay).1310
Day with a Hindoo Family, A—Aug. 29 (Patheplay) 988
Deceiving Uncle Asa—Aug. 22 (Kalem)........ 874
Demand for Justice, A—Sept. 27 (Kalem)......1308
Denizens of the Deep—July 15 (Patheplay).... 232
Desperate Condition of Mr. Boggs, The—Sept. 10 (Edison) 1086
Devil and Tom Walker, The—Aug. 4 (Selig).. 658
Diamond Crown, The (Being the first of the Series of Kate Kirby's Cases)—July 12 (Edison) 70
Diamond Mystery (2 parts) — July 14 (Vitagraph) 338
Doctor Crathern's Experiment—July 28 (Vitagraph) 448
Doctor Turn Turns the Tables—Sept. 19 (Patheplay) 1314
Doll for the Baby, A—Aug. 26 (Vitagraph).... 984
Dolly Varden—Aug. 5 (Edison)................ 552
Dream Fairy, The—July 16 (Edison).......... 454
Dregs,—Aug. 16 (Lubin)...................... 660
Drummer's Umbrella, The—July 1 (Essanay)... 72
Duck-Raising Industry, The—Sept. 17 (Essenay)1202
During the Round-Up—July 19 (Biograph)..... 344
Dyed, But Not Dead—Sept. 29 (Biograph).....1418
Dynamite, the New Farm Hand—July 12 (Patheplay) 78

E

Easy Money—July 17 (Patheplay)............. 232
Edge of Things, The—Aug. 12 (Essanay)...... 664
Edwin's Badge of Honor—Sept. 1 (Biograph)..1098
Elephant as a Workman, Rangoon, India—Oct. 1 (Selig) ....
Embarrassment of Riches, The—Sept. 24 (Edison) 1304
End of the World, The—Sept. 25 (Biograph)...1314
Enemy's Baby, The—July 10 (Biograph)....... 228
Engaging Kid, The—Sept. 2 (Lubin).......... 982
Entertaining Uncle—July 11 (Kalem).......... 76
Episode at Cloudy Canyon, The—Aug. 28 (Essanay) 872
Erring Brother, The—Aug. 13 (Patheplay)..... 668
Error in Kidnapping, An—July 23 (Vitagraph). 340
Escape, The—Aug. 16 (Kalem)................ 668
Every Double Causes Trouble—Aug. 12 (Patheplay) 668
Every Thief Leaves a Clue—July 18 (Essanay) 232
Exclusive Pattern, An—Sept. 12 (Lubin).......1084
Exercises of the 23rd French Dragoons—July 11 (Pathepley) ....
Extremities—Sept. 23 (Vitagraph).............1304
Exile, The—July 25 (Lubin).................. 338

F

Faithful Servant, A—Aug. 5 (Vitagraph)...... 554
False Accusation, A—July 23 (Patheplay)..... 346
False Friend, The—Sept. 30 (Selig)...........
Fancy Fowls—July 16 (Selig)..................
Fashion's Toy—Sept. 16 (Lubin)..............1200
Fatal Legacy, The (2 parts)—Sept. 10 (Kalem).1084
Fatal Scar, The—July 31 (Lubin).............. 448
Fate Fashions a Letter—Aug. 21 (Selig)...... 762
Father and Son; or the Curse of the Golden Land (2 parts)—Aug. 9 (Vitagraph)...... 662
Father's Chicken Dinner—Aug. 18 (Biograph).. 764
Feudists, The (2 parts)—Aug. 23 (Vitagraph).. 758
Fickle Fortune's Favor—Sept. 4 (Patheplay).... 988
Fifth String, The (2 parts)—Sept. 15 (Selig)..1414
Fight at Grizzly Gully, The (2 parts)—July 16 (Kalem) 346
First Aid to the Injured by the Police Force of Berkeley, Cal.—Aug. 20 (Edison)......... 758
Fish With a Storage Battery in its Brain, The—Sept. 27 (Patheplay)...................1420
Flight of the Crow, The—2 parts—Aug. 11 (Selig) 760
Flirt, The—Aug. 13 (Vitagraph)............. 662
Flood Tide—Aug. 19 (Edison)................ 758
Flower of Destiny, The—(2 parts) Oct. 7 (Cines
Flurry in Diamonds, A—July 10 (Essanay)..... 72
Flying Switch, The—July 28 (Kalem)......... 446
Fool Luck—Aug. 22 (Kalem).................. 874
Forbidden Way, The (2 parts)—July 7 (Essanay) 342
For Her Brother's Sake—Oct. 4 (Lubin).......1412
For Her Sister's Sake—Aug. 11 (Kalem)...... 666
For His Brother's Crime (2 parts)—Sept. 23 (Cines) 1206
For Old Time's Sake—Sept. 23 (Essanay)......1310
For the Son of the House—Sept. 20 (Biograph) 1208
Fortune Hunters of Hicksville, The—Aug. 4 (Vitagraph) 554
Fortune's Turn—Sept. 10 (Vitagraph)..........1090
Friendless Indian, The—July 19 (Patheplay).... 232

G

Galloping Romeo, The—Aug. 7 (Selig)......... 658
Gambler's Honor, A—July 14 (Biograph)....... 344
Gangster, The (2 parts)—Aug. 28 (Lubin)..... 870
Genoa, Principal Port of Italy—Aug. 8 (Patheplay) 558
Gentleman of Fashion, A—Aug. 8 (Vitagraph).. 554
Getting Married—Aug. 5 (Lubin).............. 551
Ghost of Grauleigh, The—Aug. 30 (Edison).... 868
Girl and the Gangster, The (2 parts)—July 28 (Kalem) 556
Girl, the Clown and the Donkey, The—Sept. 3 (Edison) 980
Glove, The—July 7 (Vitagraph).............. 68
Good for Evil, The (2 parts)—Aug. 14 (Lubin) 660
Good Indian, The—Aug. 22 (Selig)........... 762
Good Night, Nurse—Aug. 13 (Essanay)........ 664
Governor, The—Aug. 4 (Lubin)............... 551
Grand Canyon of Arizona—July 30 (Edison).... 456
Grand Canyon of New York-Ausable Canyon—Aug. 6 (Patheplay) 558
Granite, Dells, Prescott, Ariz.—Aug. 4 (Selig)
Granny's Old Armchair—July 18 (Selig)....... 228
Great Discovery, The—Sept. 27 (Lubin)........1310
Great Metropolitan Newspaper, A—July 22 (Edison) 456
Great Physician, The—Sept. 20 (Edison).......1206
Great Raymond, The—July 18 (Essanay)....... 230
Grecian Vase, The—Sept. 2 (Edison).......... 980
Greed of Osman Bey, The—July 28 (Edison).. 456
Green Eye of the Yellow God, The—Sept. 13 (Edison) 1086
Grist to the Mills (2 parts)—Sept. 12 (Essanay)1088
Grocer's Revenge, The—Aug. 7 (Selig)........ 658

H

Hand of Destiny, The—Sept. 6 (Kalem)...... 982
Hannigan's Harem—July 10 (Patheplay)...... 78
Hard Cash—Sept. 26 (Edison).................1306
Hard Luck Bill—Sept. 4 (Essanay)............ 986
Harnessed Falls of the Northwest—Sept. 19 (Patheplay) 1314
Haunted House, The—July 30 (Patheplay)..... 454
Heart of a Gambler, The—July 17 (Essanay).. 230
He Fell In Love With His Mother-in-Law—Aug. 28 (Vitagraph) 868
Henrietta's Hair—July 29 (Selig).............. 452
Her Brave Rescuer—Sept. 20 (Patheplay)......1210
Her Husband's Wife—Aug. 8 (Lubin).......... 551
Hero Among Men, A (2 parts)—July 9 (Lubin) 74
Her Only Boy—July 12 (Lubin).............. 76
Her Present—Sept. 20 (Lubin)................1200
Her Way—Sept. 12 (Selig)....................1094
Her Wooden Leg—Aug. 25. (Lubin)............ 870
Hidden Bank Roll—July 18 (Lubin)............ 230
High Treason (2 parts)—Sept. 16 (Cines)....1414
Hills of Strife, The (2 parts)—Sept. 11 (Lubin)1084
Hindoo Charm, The—Sept. 17 (Vitagraph)....1202
His Athletic Wife—Aug. 27 (Essanay)......... 872
His Better Self—July 15 (Lubin).............. 228
His Chinese Friend—July 10 (Melies).......... 78
His Conscience—Aug. 29 (Lubin).............. 872
His Greatest Victory—Aug. 8 (Edison)........ 552
His Hoodoo—Sept. 15 (Biograph)..............1208
His Last Crooked Deal—Aug. 30 (Lubin)....... 872

His Lordship—Billy Smoke—Sept. 2 (Vitagraph) 984
His Mother-in-Law's Visit—July 9 (Edison).... 70
His Reward—Sept. 20 (Lubin)................1200
Historic Boston—Oct. 3 (Kalem)..............
Historic Savannah, Georgia—July 23 (Kalem). 348
His Wife's Friends—Aug. 1 (Essanay)........ 446
Hobo and the Hobble Skirt, The—Aug. 8 (Kalem) 556
Home Life in Japan—Sept. 18 (Melies)......1316
Homespun—Aug. 5 (Essanay) 556
Home, Sweet Home (2 parts)—July 23 (Lubin) 338
Honor of the Force, The—Sept. 22 (Edison)....1304
Honor Thy Father (2 parts)—July 25 (Cines).. 551
Hoodooed on His Wedding Day—Aug. 1 (Kalem) 446
Hobo and the Myth, The—Sept. 26 (Kalem)....1308
Hostage, The—Aug. 26 (Patheplay)........... 986
Hot Springs and Geysers of New Zealand—Sept. 18 (Patheplay) 1210
House Divided—Aug. 14 (Patheplay)......... 668
House of Mystery, The (2 parts)—Aug. 8 (Cines) 668
How Betty Made Good—Aug. 27 (Selig)....... 870
Howlin' Jones—Sept. 4 (Selig)...............1094
Hubby's Toothache—July 17 (Vitagraph)....... 226
Human Bridge (2 parts)—Aug. 26 (Cines).....

I

In and About Calcutta—Aug. 20 (Vitagraph).. 758
In and Around Scutari After Its Capture—July 22 (Patheplay) 348
In Convict Garb—(2 parts) Sept. 26 (Essanay).1310
Incriminating Letter, The—Aug. 7 (Essanay). 556
Indian's Loyalty, An—Aug. 16 (Biograph)..... 670
Influence of the Unknown, The—Sept. 27 (Biograph) 1314
In Moro Land—July 24 (Selig)...............
Intemperance—Aug. 4 (Kalem) 556
In the Abruzzi, Italy—Sept. 5 (Patheplay).... 988
In the Caucasian Mountains—Sept. 2 (Patheplay) 988
In the Garden—July 15 (Edison).............. 228
In the Land of Fire—Aug. 21 (Melies)........ 874
In the Old Dutch Times—July 11 (Edison)..... 70
In the Southland—Sept. 5 (Lubin)............ 982
In the Toils—Sept. 6 (Lubin)................ 984
In the Valley of Bourne, France—Aug. 20 (Patheplay) 988
Intimate Study of a Mole, An—Aug. 7 (Essanay) 558
Into the Light—Aug. 12 (Lubin).............. 660
Intruder, The (2 parts)—Aug. 2 (Vitagraph)... 450
Invaders, The (2 parts)—Aug. 27 (Kalem).... 872
Invader, The—Sept. 29 (Lubin)...............1412
Invisible Government, The—Sept. 29 (Selig)....
In Weird Crimea—July 22 (Patheplay)....... 346
Island of Perversity, The—Sept. 15 (Edison)...1208
Island of Tongo, The—July 24 (Patheplay).... 346
It Happen in Java—July 31 (Melies).......... 452
I Was Meant for You—Aug. 11 (Biograph).... 670

J

Japanese Funeral—Sept. 18 (Melies)...........1316
Javanese Dances—July 24 (Melies)........... 344
Jerusalem and the Holy Land—Sept. 16 (Edison)1206
Jeweled Slippers, The (2 parts)—Sept. 1 (Selig)1212
Jim's Reward—July 19 (Lubin)............... 230
Jiu Jitsu—July 18 (Patheplay)............... 232
John Bousall of the N. S. Secret Service—Oct. 3 (Selig)..........
John Tobin's Sweetheart—Sept. 19 (Vitagraph).1202
Jolt for the Janitor, A—July 8 (Selig)........ 72
Joyce of the North Woods (2 parts)—Aug. 29 (Edison) 868
Joys of Jealous Wife, The—Aug. 12 (Vitagraph) 662
Jungle Flirtation, A—Sept. 13 (Patheplay)....1098

K

Kate Kirby's Cases, No. 1 (The Diamond Crown)—July 12 (Edison) 70
Kate Kirby's Cases, No. 2 (On the Broad Stairway)—July 19 (Edison).......... 454
Keepers of the Flock—Sept. 8 (Edison).......1086
Keeping Husbands Home—Aug. 14 (Vitagraph). 602
King Robert of Sicily (2 parts)—Aug. 4 (Essanay) 556
Kiss of Retribution, The—Sept. 3 (Vitagraph).. 984
Knife of Fire, A—July 23 (Edison)........... 456

L

Lady and the Glove, The—Aug. 15 (Vitagraph) 662
Lady in Black, The—Sept. 11 (Biograph).....1098
Largest Duck Farm in the World—Sept. 26 (Kalem) 1308
Late Mr. Jones, The—Aug. 6 (Vitagraph)..... 554
Law and His Son, The—Sept. 22 (Biograph)...1314
Life We Live, The—July 3 (Essanay)......... 72
Light on Trouble Waters, A—Sept. 9 (Edison).1086
Line-up, The (2 parts)—Aug. 16 (Vitagraph).. 554
Little Trip Along the Hudson, A—July 12 (Patheplay) 78
Lizard, The—Aug. 22 (Patheplay)............ 766
Lonely Heart, The—Sept. 2 (Selig)...........
Lonely Princess, The—Sept. 4 (Vitagraph).... 984
Lost Diamond, The—July 14 (Kalem)......... 228
Lost in Cambodia—Aug. 28 (Melies).......... 986
Lost Millionaire, The (2 parts)—Sept. 13 (Vitagraph) 1092
Love Letter, The—Aug. 5 (Patheplay)........ 668
Love Incognito—Sept. 24 (Essanay)...........1310
Love of Beauty, The—Sept. 19 (Lubin)........1200
Love Theft, The—Aug. 26 (Essanay).......... 872

M

Made a Coward—July 10 (Selig).............. 72
Mad Sculptor, The—July 26 (Patheplay)...... 346
Magician Fisherman, The—Aug. 12 (Selig).... 658
Maid of Mandalay, A—Aug. 21 (Vitagraph)... 758
Making Good—July 25 (Essanay)............. 342
Making Hay with Modern Machinery—Aug. 20 (Essanay) 766
Man and His Other Self—July 31 (Selig)..... 452
Man in the Cabin, The—Aug. 16 (Essanay).... 664
Man in the Street, The—Aug. 28 (Selig)...... 870
Mansion of Misery, A—Aug. 5 (Selig)........ 658
Mary's Temptation—Aug. 18 (Lubin)......... 760
Master Painter, The—July 16 (Vitagraph).... 226
Meadow Lark, The—July 25 (Edison).......... 456
Medal of Honor, The—Sept. 13 (Lubin).......1084
Mermaid, The—July 14 (Kalem).............. 228
Merrill Murder Mystery, The—Sept. 17 (Patheplay) 1210
Message of the Rose, The—Aug. 2 (Lubin).... 448
Mexican Gambler, The—Aug. 23 (Patheplay).. 766
Mexican Tragedy, A—Sept. 23 (Lubin).........1308
Midnight Message, A—(2 parts) Sept. 24 (Kalem) 1306
Mike, the Timid Cop—Aug. 29 (Kalem)....... 874
Millinery Bomb, A—July 9 (Vitagraph)....... 68
Millionaire and the Goose, The—Aug. 15 (Kalem) 668
Mirror, The—July 24 (Biograph).............. 344
Miss "Arabian Nights"—Aug. 8 (Selig)........ 658
Mistake in Judgment, A—Aug. 26 (Edison)... 868
Mistake, The—July 12 (Biograph)............ 228
Mr. Ryhe Reforms—Aug. 8 (Essanay)........ 558
Mister Spriggs Buys a Dog—July 31 (Biograph) 452
Modest Hero, A—Sept. 8 (Biograph)..........1098
Mong-fu-tong, The (2 parts)—Aug. 12 (Eclipse) 668
Monogrammed Cigarette, The—Sept. 18 (Kalem)1084
Monte Carlo (Monaco)—Aug. 1 (Patheplay).... 454
Monument, The—Aug. 2 (Biograph).......... 452
Moonshiner's Mistake, The—July 26 (Kalem).. 348
Moro Fish Drive at Jolo, A—July 18 (Selig)...
Moro Pastime—Aug. 15 (Selig)...............
Moulding, The—July 12 (Vitagraph).......... 68
Mountain Mother, A—Sept. 1 (Lubin)........ 982
Mount St. Michel—Aug. 8 (Patheplay)....... 558
Mr. Dippy Dipped—Sept. 3 (Essanay)......... 986
Mrs. Morton's Birthday—Sept. 16 (Patheplay).1210
Mr. Toots' Tooth—Oct. 1 (Edison)............
Mutual Understanding, A—Aug. 25 (Edison).. 868
My Lady of Idleness—July 15 (Vitagraph).... 226
Mysterious Hand—July 7 (Lubin)............. 74
Mysterious Man, The (2 parts)—Sept. 9 (Cines)1204
Mystery of the Silver Skull, The—(2 parts) Oct. 4 (Vitagraph) 1416
Mystery of West Sedgwick, The (2 parts)—Aug. 22 (Edison) 760

N

Nan of the Woods—Sept. 5 (Selig)...........1094
Napoleon Whiffles, Esq.—Aug. 19 (Patheplay). 764
Ne'er to Return Road, The (2 parts)—July 19 (Selig) 450
New Gown, The—Aug. 1 (Lubin)............. 448
Noisy Suitors, The—July 7 (Vitagraph)...... 228

O

Objections Overruled—Aug. 28 (Biograph)..... 874
O'Hara as a Guardian Angel—July 14 (Vitagraph) 226
Old Doc Yak—July 8 (Selig)................. 70
Old Man's Story, An—July 24 (Vitagraph).... 340
Old Moddington's Daughters—Sept. 9 (Vitagraph) 1090
One Best Bet—Sept. 19 (Kalem)..............1208
One Thousand Dollars Reward—Aug. 27 (Patheplay) 988
On Her Wedding Day—July 11 (Lubin)........ 76
Only Chance, The—July 14 (Selig)........... 226
Only Way, The—July 21 (Vitagraph.......... 340
On the Broad Stairway (Second of the Kate Kirby Cases)—July 19 (Edison).......... 454
On the Dumbwaiter—Aug. 25 (Lubin)......... 870
On the Lake of Bayrisch (Bavaria)—Aug. 15 (Patheplay) 668
On the Road of Dauphine—July 11 (Patheplay)
Opportunity and a Million Acres—July 24 (Patheplay) 848
Other Woman, The—Sept. 24 (Vitagraph).....1304
Otter, The—Sept. 5 (Patheplay)............. 988
Our Neighbors—Oct. 2 (Selig)...............
Our Wives (2 parts)—Sept. 20 (Vitagraph)...1202
Outer Shell, The—July 9 (Essanay).......... 72
Outlaw's Gratitude, The—Aug. 11 (Lubin).... 660
Over the Crib—Aug. 15 (Lubin)............... 660
Over the Great Divide in Colorado—July 7 (Edison) 68

P

Pair of Fools, A—July 14 (Edison)........... 228
Panama Hat Industry—Sept. 12 (Lubin).....1084
Papa's Baby—Aug. 14 (Biograph)............ 670
Pa Says—July 21 (Biograph)................. 344
Passing of Joe Mary, The—Sept. 1 (Vitagraph) 984
Pathe's Weekly, No. 26, 1913—June 23 (Patheplay) 232
Pathe's Weekly, No. 27, 1913—June 20 (Patheplay) 232
Pathe's Weekly, No. 28, 1913—June 30 (Patheplay) 232
Pathe's Weekly, No. 29, 1913—July 3 (Patheplay) 344
Pathe's Weekly, No. 30, 1913—July 7 (Patheplay) 344
Pathe's Weekly, No. 31, 1913—July 10 (Patheplay) 346
Pathe's Weekly, No. 32, 1913—July 14 (Patheplay) 558
Pathe's Weekly, No. 33, 1913—July 17 (Patheplay) 558
Pathe's Weekly, No. 34, 1913—July 21 (Patheplay) 558
Pathe's Weekly, No. 35, 1913—July 24 (Patheplay) 558
Pathe's Weekly, No. 36, 1913—July 28 (Patheplay) 668
Pathe's Weekly, No. 37, 1913—July 31 (Patheplay) 668
Pathe's Weekly, No. 38, 1913—Aug. 4 (Patheplay) 764
Pathe's Weekly, No. 39, 1913—Aug. 7 (Patheplay) 764
Pathe's Weekly, No. 40, 1913—Aug. 11 (Patheplay) 986
Pathe's Weekly, No. 41, 1913—Aug. 14 (Patheplay) 986
Pathe's Weekly, No, 42, 1913—Aug. 18 (Patheplay) 986
Pathe's Weekly, No. 43, 1913—Aug. 21 (Patheplay) 986
Pathe's Weekly, No. 44, 1913—Aug. 25 (Patheplay) 1096
Pathe's Weekly, No. 45, 1913—Aug. 28 (Patheplay) 1096
Pathe's Weekly, No. 46, 1913—Sept. 1 (Patheplay) 1314
Pathe's Weekly, No. 47, 1913—Sept. 4 (Patheplay) 1210
Pathe's Weekly, No. 48, 1913—Sept. 8 (Patheplay) 1314
Pathe's Weekly, No. 49, 1913—Sept. 11 (Patheplay) ....
Pathe's Weekly, No. 50, 1913—Sept. 15 (Patheplay) 1420
Pathe's Weekly, No. 51, 1913—Sept. 18 (Patheplay) 1420
Pearl of the Bosphorus, Constantinople, The—Sept. 27 (Patheplay) 1420
Penalties of Reputation, The—Aug. 7 (Vitagraph) 554
Pickpocket, The—July 22 (Vitagraph)......... 340
Pickwick—Sept. 5 (Vitagraph) ....
Picturesque Jura (France)—Aug. 15 (Patheplay) 668
Pied Piper of Hamlin, The—Aug. 16 (Edison) 664
Playing the Pipers—Aug. 22 (Vitagraph)...... 758
Playing with Fire—Sept. 9 (Lubin)..........1084
Poisoned Darts, The—July 17 (Melies)........ 234
Poker Paid—Sept. 22 (Lubin)................1308
Policeman and the Baby, The—Sept. 26 (Selig)1312
Porcelain—July 11 (Patheplay) 78
Port of Marseilles, France—July 15 (Patheplay) 232
Power of Conscience, The (2 parts)—Aug. 22 (Essanay) 766
Price Demanded, The—July 26 (Lubin)....... 338
Price of Jealousy, The—Sept. 6 (Patheplay).. 988
Price of the Free, The—Aug. 29 (Selig)...... 870
Prince of Evil, A (2 parts)—July 26 (Vitagraph) 342
Profits of the Business, The—July 8 (Lubin).. 74
Promenade in Rome—Sept. 27 (Patheplay).....1420
Proposal from the Duke, A (Being the First story of "Who Will Marry Mary?")—July 26 (Edison) 456
Proposal from the Spanish Don, A (Being the Second Story of "Who Will Marry Mary?")—Aug. 23 (Edison) 760
Proposal from the Sculptor, A (Being the Third Story of "Who Will Marry Mary?")—Sept. 27 (Edison) 1306
Pumps—Sept. 15 (Vitagraph) 1200
Put to the Test—July 17 (Selig).............. 226

Q

Quaint Singapore—Aug. 28 (Vitagraph)....... 868
Quaint Spots in Cairo, Egypt—Aug. 27 (Edison) 868

R

Race, The—Sept. 25 (Vitagraph)...............1304
Rag Bag, The—Aug. 22 (Lubin)............... 760
Railroad Conspiracy, A—Aug. 30 (Kalem).... 874
Railroad Inspector's Peril, The—Oct. 4 (Kalem)
Rancher's Failing, The—Sept. 9 (Selig).......1092
Rastus Among the Zulus—July 28 (Lubin).... 446
Ray of God's Sunshine—Sept. 30 (Essanay)....1412
Redeemed Claim, The—Sept. 20 (Essanay)....1202
Redemption of Railroad Jack, The—Sept. 18 (Selig) 1312
Red Old Hills of Georgia, The—Aug. 1 (Edison) 552
Reformation of Dad, The—July 9 (Selig)...... 72
Reformed Outlaw, The—Aug. 26 (Lubin)...... 870
Reformers, The; or The Lost Art of Minding One's Business (2 parts)—Aug. 9 (Biograph) 551
Rejected Lover's Luck, The—Sept. 19 (Selig).1312
Rescuing Dave—Aug. 8 (Essanay)........... 558
Re-Tagged—July 1 (Essanay) 72
Retribution—Sept. 15 (Kalem) 1208
Rightful Heir, The—Aug. 12 (Edison)........ 664
Right Number, but the Wrong House, The—Aug. 13 (Edison) 664
Right of Way, The (2 parts)—Sept. 19 (Essanay) 1204
Rival Engineers (2 parts)—June 16 (Cines)...
River Life in Hong Kong, China—July 19 (Vitagraph) ....
Road to Morez, France, The—Aug. 29 (Patheplay) 988
Road to the Dawn, The (2 parts)—Sept. 4 (Lubin) 982
Robbers of Angkor, The—Aug. 14 (Melies).... 670
Robbers, The—Aug. 2 (Edison).............. 552
Romance of Rowena, The—Aug. 6 (Edison)... 552
Roses for Rosie—Aug. 5 (Lubin)............. 551
Rose of Sharon, The—July 22 (Essanay)...... 342
Rounding Up the Counterfeiters—July 12 (Kalem) 76

S

Sacrifice at the Spillway, The (2 parts)—Sept. 3 (Kalem) 980
Sandy and Shorty Work Together—July 17 (Vitagraph) 228
Sage Industry in Borneo, The—Sept. 25 (Patheplay) 1420
Salvation Sal—Oct. 1 (Vitagraph) 1416
Sandy Gets Shorty a Job—Sept. 15 (Vitagraph) .1200
Saturday Holiday, A—Sept. 25 (Biograph) 1314
Sauce for the Goose—Sept. 12 (Vitagraph) 1090
Saved by the Enemy (2 parts)—Sept. 19 (Edison) 1206
Scenes in Honolulu—July 25 (Vitagraph) 340
Scenes in Moroland—Aug. 20 (Selig) ....
Scenes in Singapore—Sept. 23 (Vitagraph) 1304
Scenes of Other Days—July 8 (Edison) 70
School Ma'am, The—July 9 (Patheplay) 78
Sea Dog's Love, A—July 7 (Biograph) 228
Scarf Pin—Oct. 3 (Lubin) 1412
Secret Formula, The (2 parts)—July 18 (Patheplay) 232
Secret Treasure, The—Sept. 24 (Patheplay) 1420
Seeds of Wealth—Sept. 8 (Lubin) 1084
Self-Convicted—(2 parts) Sept. 25 (Lubin) 1308
Senorita's Repentance, The—July 22 (Selig) ..
Series of Tallulah Falls, Georgia, A—Sept. 8 (Edison) 980
Sheriff of Cochise, The—Aug. 21 (Essanay) 766
Shipwrecked (2 parts)—Aug. 6 (Kalem) 666
Short-Stop's Double, The—July 21 (Selig) ....
Sicily the Picturesque—Sept. 26 (Patheplay) .. 1420
Sign of the Black Lily, The (2 parts)—Sept. 2 (Cines) 1204
Sign, The—July 11 (Essanay) 74
Sissybelle—Sept. 22 (Selig) ....
Sixth Commandment, The—July 30 (Vitagraph) 450
Skeleton in the Closet, The (2 parts)—Aug. 13 (Kalem) 666
Slander's Tongue—Sept. 6 (Edison) 980
Sleufoot's Seventh Suicide—Sept. 9 (Patheplay) .1096
Slim Driscoll, Samaritan—Aug. 18 (Vitagraph) 758
Smashing Time—Aug. 22 (Lubin) 760
Smuggler's Last Deal, The—Aug. 23 (Kalem). 784
Smuggler, The—July 19 (Kalem) 346
Snapshots of Java—Aug. 7 (Melies) 670
Snowy Egret and Its Extermination, The—July 16 (Patheplay) 232
Solitaires—July 9 (Vitagraph) 68
Something Rotten in Havana—July 15 (Essanay) 230
Special Officer—(2 parts) Oct. 2 (Lubin) 1412
Spell, The—July 26 (Vitagraph) 340
Spirit of the Orient, The—July 11 (Vitagraph) 68
Springtime of Life, The (3 parts)—Aug. 1 (Patheplay) 454
Starved Out—Aug. 18 (Edison) 758
Statue of Fright, A (2 parts)—July 11 (Eclipse) 446
Stolen Face, The—July 28 (Selig) 450
Stolen Identity, A—July 7 (Kalem) 76
Stolen Models—Sept. 29 (Edison) 1414
Stolen Moccasins, The—Aug. 6 (Selig) 658
Stolen Treaty, The—Sept. 18 (Biograph) 1208
Stone the Woman—Sept. 2 (Essanay) 986
Strange Traits of Serpents—Aug. 20 (Patheplay) 764
Stroke of the Phoebus Eight, The—Sept. 23 (Edison) 1304
Strongest Link, The—July 2 (Essanay) 72
Strong Man's Burden, The—Sept. 6 (Biograph) 986
Struggle, The—Oct. 4 (Essanay) 1412
Study of Bird Life, A—Aug. 1 (Patheplay) 454
Stung—Aug. 21 (Patheplay) 766
Substitute Engineer, The—Aug. 18 (Kalem) 762
Substitute Stenographer, The (Third of the Kate Kirhy Series)—Aug. 14 (Edison) 552
Successful Failure, A—Oct. 1 (Essanay) 1412
Such Is Life—Aug. 1 (Essanay) 446
Suffragette Minstrels, The—Aug. 18 (Biograph) 764
Sunlight—Sept. 9 (Essanay) 1086
Sunny; or the Cattle Thief—Sept. 18 (Vitagraph) 1202
Surprise for Four—Aug. 16 (Lubin) 662
Sweat Box, The—July 17 (Biograph) 344
Sweeney's Dream—July 16 (Selig) 226
Sweet Revenge—Sept. 17 (Essanay) 1202

T

Tables Turned, The—July 25 (Vitagraph) 340
Taj Mahal Agra, India, The—Sept. 26 (Selig) ..
Taming of Betty, The—July 19 (Vitagraph) ... 228
Taming of Texas Pete, The—July 30 (Selig) .. 452
Tapped Wires (2 parts)—July 21 (Essanay) 344
Tardy Recognition, A—July 21 (Edison) 454
Tahiti, The Picturesque—Sept. 13 (Patheplay) .1098
Tenderfoot Hero, The—Aug. 23 (Lubin) 760
Tenderfoot Sheriff, The—Aug. 2 (Essanay) 446
Tenderfoot's Luck, The—July 23 (Kalem) 348
Ten Thousand Dollar Toe, The—Aug. 20 (Selig) 762
Their Mutual Friend—Sept. 16 (Vitagraph) 1200
Their Promise—Aug. 6 (Essanay) 556
They Were On Their Honeymoon—Aug. 26 (Selig) 870
Thief in the Night, A—July 16 (Kalem) 228
This Isn't John—Sept. 22 (Lubin) 1308
Those Little Flowers—July 31 (Biograph) 452
Those Troublesome Tresses—Aug. 19 (Vitagraph) 758
Through Another Man's Eye—Aug. 1 (Selig) ... 452
Through the Cumberland Mountains, Tenn.—July 31 (Essanay) 446
Tiger, The—Sept. 11 (Vitagraph) 1090
Tit for Tat—July 31 (Essanay) 446
To Ahheville Court House—July 18 (Edison) .. 454
Toad Traits—Sept. 18 (Patheplay) 1210
Tobias Turns the Tables—Aug. 19 (Selig) 762
Tobias Wants Out—Sept. 17 (Selig) 1312
Toils of Deception—Sept. 16 (Selig) 1212
To Love and Cherish—Sept. 15 (Lubin) 1200
Tony, the Fiddler—(2 parts) Oct. 3 (Essanay) .1414
Too Many Cops—Sept. 12 (Kalem) 1084
Trail of Cards, The—July 7 (Selig) 70
Treachery of a Scar, The—July 9 (Kalem) 76
Treasure of Captain Kidd, The—Aug. 11 (Edison) 664
Treasure of Desert Isle—Oct. 3 (Vitagraph) ... 1416
Treater's Treat, The—Sept. 10 (Essanay) 1088
Tree and the Chaff, The—July 15 (Selig) 226
Trimming a Booh—Sept. 2 (Lubin) 982
Trip to the Grottos of Raume, A—July 25 (Patheplay) 346
Trooper Billy (2 parts)—Sept. 17 (Kalem) 1208
Troublesome Daughters—July 29 (Vitagraph) .. 448
Turning Point, The—Aug. 16 (Patheplay) 668
Two Artists and One Suit of Clothes—July 24 (Selig) ....
Two Men of the Desert—Aug. 23 (Biograph) .. 764
Two Ranchmen, The—July 19 (Essanay) 232
Two Too Many—Sept. 11 (Selig) 1094

U

Under the Daisies—(2 parts) Sept. 27 (Vitagraph) 1304
Under the Shadow of the Law—Aug. 7 (Biograph) 551
Unjust Suspicion, An—Sept. 13 (Biograph) 1098
Unseen Defense, The—July 23 (Selig) ....
Up Lookout Mountain on the Electric Incline—Aug. 13 (Essanay) 664

V

Valley of Bourne, France, The—Aug. 29 (Patheplay) ....
Vengeance of Galora, The—July 28 (Biograph) 452
Villain Unmasked, A (2 parts)—June 27 (Eclipse) 74
Vipers at Home—July 25 (Patheplay) 346
Virginia Feud, A—Aug. 2 (Kalem) 446
Visit to the Ruins of Pompeii, A—Aug. 22 (Patheplay) 766

W

Wanted, a Plumber—Sept. 12 (Kalem 1084
Water Rat, The (2 parts)—Aug. 25 (Selig) 1092
Way of Life, The—Sept. 3 (Selig) ....
Western Sister's Devotion, A—Aug. 30 Essanay) 872
What Cupid Did—Aug. 27 (Essanay) 872
What the Doctor Ordered—July 18 (Kalem) 228
What's the Matter With Father—July 4 (Essanay) 72
Wheels of fate, The (2 parts)—Sept.. 8 (Selig) .1314
When a Woman Wastes—Aug. 7 (Patheplay) .. 558
When Glasses are not Glasses—Aug. 25 (Vitagraph) 868
When Ignorance is Bliss—July 15 (Essanay) ... 230
When Love Forgives—Aug. 2 (Biograph) 452
When Love Loses Out—July 19 (Lubin) 74
When Mary Married—July 18 (Lubin) 230
When Society Calls—July 31 (Vitagraph) 450
When the Press Speaks—Aug. 11 (Vitagraph) .. 758
When Tony Pawned Louisa—Aug. 9 (Lubin.) .. 551
When the West Was Young—Sept. 29 (Vitagraph) ....
When Women go on the Warpath (2 parts)—Sept. 6 (Vitagraph) 984
Where Clouds and Mountains Meet—Aug. 2 (Patheplay) 454
Which?—Sept. 30 (Vitagraph) 1413
Which Way Did He Go?—Aug. 27 (Vitagraph). 868
Whiffles Decides to be Boss—Sept. 2 (Patheplay) 988
While the Count Goes Bathing—July 21 (Biograph) 344
While the Starlight Travels (2 parts)—Sept 5 (Essanay) 986
Whip Hand, The—Aug. 19 (Essanay) 766
Who Will Marry Mary? No. 1 (A Proposal from the Duke)—July 26 (Edison) 456
Who Will Marry Mary? No. 2 (A Proposal from the Spanish Don)—Aug. 23 (Edison) 760
Who Will Marry Mary, No. 3—(A Proposal from the Sculptor) Sept. 27 (Edison) 1306
Why Broncho Billy Left Bear County—Sept. 27 (Essanay) 1310
Why Girls Leave Home—(2 parts) Oct. 3 (Edison) ....
Widow's Kids, The—Aug. 4 (Biograph) 551
Widow's Wiles, The—July 28 (Lubin) 446
Wild Ride, A (2 parts)—July 12 (Selig) 226
Wiles of Cupid, The—July 17 (Lubin) 230
With the Aid of Phrenology—Sept. 29 (Biograph) 1420
Winning His Wife—Sept. 26 (Lubin) 1310
Winsome Winnie's Way—July 7 (Edison) 68
With the Natives of New Zealand—Aug. 6 (Patheplay) 558
Woman in the Ultimate, A—Sept. 4 (Biograph) 986
Woman's Way, A—Aug. 9 (Patheplay) 668
Wonders of the Briny Deep—Aug. 1 (Kalem) .. 446
Women—Sept. 16 (Essanay) 1202
Work Habit, The—Aug. 21 (Biograph) 764
World Above, The—Aug. 14 (Essanay) 664

Y.

Yellow Streak, The—July 18 (Vitagraph) 228
Younger Generation—Sept. 1 (Edison) 980
Young Hearts and Old—Sept. 12 (Patheplay) ... 1210
Young Mrs. Eames, The—(2 parts) Sept. 22 (Selig) ....

Z.

Zeh's Musical Career—Aug. 27 (Edison) 868
Zeh, Zack and the Zulus—July 24 (Lubin) 338

Independent Releases

A

Actor's Adventure, An—Sept. 9 (Gaumont) .. 1220
Actor, The—July 27 (Rex) 354
Adventures of Jacques, The—(2 parts) Aug. 11 (American) 676
Adventures of Mr. Phiffles, By Hy. Mayer—Aug. 9 (Imp) ....
Aesthetic Match, An—Sept. 23 (Majestic) 1428
Algy Forfeits His Claim—Sept. 10 (Nestor)
Almost A Rescue—Aug. 8 (Nestor) 560
Animal, The—Aug. 17 (Rex) 676
Animated Weekly, No. 68—June 25 (Universal) 84
Animated Weekly, No. 69—July 2 (Universal) 249
Animated Weekly, No. 70—July 9 (Universal) 354
Animated Weekly, No. 71—July 16 (Universal) 458
Animated Weekly, No. 72—July 23 (Universal) 562
Animated Weekly, No. 73—July 30 (Universal) 672
Animated Weekly, No. 74—Aug. 6 (Universal) 774
Animated Weekly, No. 75—Aug. 13 (Universal) 878
Animated Weekly, No. 76—Aug. 20 (Universal) 990
Animated Weekly, No. 77—Aug. 27 (Universal) .1106
Animated Weekly, No. 78—Sept. 3 (Universal) .1216
Animated Weekly, No. 79—Sept. 10 (Universal) .1318
Animated Weekly, No. 80—Sept. 17 (Universal) .1426
Antics in Ink, By Hy. Mayer—Sept. 30 (Imp)
Arabella's Rival—Sept. 12 (Lux) 1220
Army Maneuvers at Governor's Island—July 13 (Majestic) ....
Artillery Practice at Montauk Point—Aug. 17 (Majestic) ....
Ascending Mount Blanc—Aug. 7 (Gaumont) 886
Ashes—(2 parts) July 12 (Reliance) 242
As the Bell Rings—July 11 (Solax) 88
As Ye Sow—July 25 (Solax) 360
Atom Life in the Deep—July 1 (Gaumont) 244
At the Half-Breed's Mercy—July 19 (American) 240
Awakening, The—July 18 (Powers) 236
Awful Relapse, An—Sept. 25 (Gaumont) 1432

B

Baby Day—Aug. 25 (Keystone) ....
Bachelor's Finish, The—Sept. 16 (Crystal) .. 1214
Badge of Honor, The—Oct. 2 (American) 1426
Badge of Policeman O'Roon, The—June 25 (Eclair) 84
Bachelor Girls' Club, The—Sept. 29 (Bison) ...
Baldy Belmont as a Roman Gladiator—Sept. 30 (Crystal) 1422
Baldy Belmont and the Old Maid—Sept. 2 (Crystal) 990
Banker's Daughter, The—(2 parts) Sept. 10 (Eclair) 1318
Banshee, The—(2 parts) July 11 (Kay-Bee) ..
Banzai—(2 parts) Aug. 1 (Kay-Bee) 466
Baron Bink's Bride—July 26 (Imp) ....
Bashful Bachelor Bill—Aug. 24 (Majestic) 882
Battle of Bull Coo, The—Sept. 19 (Nestor) ..
Baseball Umpire, The—Sept. 23 (Majestic) ....
Beaten Path, The—(3 parts) Aug. 20 (Eclair) 774
Beauty and the Beast—(3 parts) July 10 (Rex)
Beauty and the Ugly One—Sept. 15 (Nestor) .1214
Behind the Gun—July 23 (Nestor) ....
Belmont Stung—July 27 (Crystal) 352
Below the Deadline—July 28 (Reliance) 568
Better Father, The—(2 parts) Aug. 27 (Eclair) 880
Between Home and Country—Sept. 8 (Reliance) .1218
Beyond the Law—Oct. 1 (Nestor) 1424
Billy's Magic Nickel—July 23 (Powers) 350
Billy, the Wise Guy—July 7 (Gem) ....
Binks Plays Cupid—Sept. 27 (Imp) ....
Birks Advertises for a Wife—Aug. 30 (Imp).
Binks and the Bathing Girls—Sept. 20 (Imp)
Binks Elevates the Stage—Sept. 13 (Imp) .. 1104
Binks Ends the War—July 19 (Imp) 238
Binks the Hawkshaw—Sept. 6 (Imp) ....
Black Opal, The—Sept. 3 (Ramo) ....
Blacksmith's Son, The—Sept. 19 (Lux) 1328
Bleeding Hearts; or Jewish Freedom Under King Casimer, of Poland—(3 parts) Oct. 2 (Imp) 1424
Blindness of Courage, The—(3 parts) Aug. 4 (Dragon) ....
Blood Red Tape of Charity, The—Sept. 26 (Powers) 1102
Bob's Baby—Aug. 4 (Gem) 562
Brand from the Burning, A—Aug. 2 (Frontier).
Brethren of the Sacred Fish—July 20 (Thanhouser) 464
Bride from the Sea, A—(2 parts) Sept. 12 (Victor) 1100
Bride of the Sea, The—July 28 (Dragon) ....
British-American Polo Match—July 2 (Powers).
Broken Spell, The—July 22 (Crystal) 352
Broken Threads, The—Aug. 31 (Broncho) ....
Bug Professor, The—July 24 (Pilot) 468

C

Cactus at Forty-five, A—July 5 (Frontier) ....
Calamity Anne, Heroine—Sept. 15 (American) .1218
Call, The—Aug. 31 (Rex) 876
Campaigning with Custer—(2 parts) Aug. 12 (Bison) 672
Catholic Mission in China—July 13 (Eclair) .. 854
Captain Billy's Mate—(2 parts) Sept. 27 (Gem)
Caught in the Act—Aug. 24 (Crystal) 770
Cave Dwellers' Romance, The—(2 parts) Aug. 2 (Bison) ....
Charlie's Little Joke—Sept. 30 (Crystal) 1422
Child's Influence, A—Aug. 5 (Crystal) 560

Child's Intuition, A—Aug. 29 (Solax)........ 886
Chip of the Old Block, A—Aug. 14 (Keystone).
Civilized and Savage—Aug. 3 (Rex)..........
Clara's Mysterious Toys—Aug. 10 (Eclair)....
Closed Door, The—(2 parts) Oct. 3 (Victor)...1422
Clown's Daughter, The—(2 parts) Sept. 13 (Reliance) ....
Coat that Came Back, The—July 30 (Solax).. 468
Code of the U. S. A., The—July 3 (Pilot).... 86
Cohen's Outing—Aug. 4 (Keystone)..........
College Chums—July 27 (Crystal)........... 352
Comrades—July 30 (Nestor) ....
Convict 337—Sept. 20 (Great Northern)........
Cooking for Trouble—July 16 (Solax)........ 244
Cook Question, The—Aug. 9 (Imp)..........
Counsel for the Defense—Aug. 20 (Reliance).. 884
Country Cousin, A—July 19 (Great Northern). 572
Crepe Bonnet, A—July 13 (Thanhouser)...... 356
Crooks and Credulous—Oct. 4 (American)....1428
Crimson Stain, The—(3 parts) July 4 (Kay-Bee) 88
Cupid's Bad Aim—Aug. 29 (Nestor)........... 878
Cupid's Score—June 28 (Great Northern)...... 88
Curious Fish—Sept. 21 (Eclair)................1318

D

Dangerous Sympathy—Aug. 20 (Ramo).......1220
Darkfeather's Sacrifice—Aug. 11 (Nestor).... 674
Death's Short Cut—July 5 (Reliance)........ 86
Death Stone of India, The—(3 parts) Aug. 5. 672
Demon of Destruction, The—June 24 (Gaumont).
Devilish Doctor, A—Aug. 9 (Majestic)...... 776
Diamond Makers, The—(2 parts) Sept. 11 (Rex) 1100
Dick's Turning—July 2 (Reliance).......... 86
Disguise, The—Sept. 17 (Reliance).............
Disguise, The—Sept. 17 (Reliance)............1324
Doctor's Dilemma, The—Aug. 4 (Reliance).. 678
Doctor's Ruse, The—Aug. 12 (Majestic)...... 778
Doctor's Story, The—Sept. 19 (Powers)......1216
Does Gontran Snore?—July 24 (Mutual Educational) 464
Dog-Gone Baron, A—July 16 (Ramo).......... 246
Dooley and His Dog—Sept. 10 (Solax)........
Dora—June 28 (Majestic)..................
Dorathea and Chief Razamataz—Sept. 11 (Frontier) 1102
Drop of Blood, A—Aug. 15 (Solax)............ 680

E

Easy Day, An—July 4 (Lux)................ 90
Echinoderms (The Starfish)—July 17 (Mutual Educational) 464
Elks at Rochester, The—Aug. 18 (Gem)........
Elsie's Aunt—July 9 (Powers)................
Errand of Mercy, An—July 11 (Thanhouser). 356
Escaped from the Asylum—(2 parts) Sept. 18 (Imp) ....
Even Exchange, An—Aug. 16 (American).... 676
Everybody's Wearing Them—Aug. 27 (Powers) 876
Evil Power, The—(2 parts) Sept. 4 (Rex).... 994
Explorer's Tragedy, An—Aug. 19 (Gaumont)..1000
Eyes of the God of Friendship, The—Aug. 23 (Frontier) 772

F

Faded Beauties—Aug. 30 (Great Northern)....
Faithful Tide—Sept. 19 (Thanhouser)..........1326
Fallen Angel, The—(2 parts) July 24 (Rex).. 354
Fall Into Luck, A—Sept. 18 (American)......1218
Falsely Accused—Aug. 8 (Solax).............. 572
Fatal Bell, The—Sept. 2 (Gaumont)........1108
Fatal Verdict—Sept. 15 (Imp)................
Fate and Man—July 18 (Lux)................ 360
Fate and Three—Aug. 1 (Powers)............ 462
Fate's Vengeance—Aug. 15 (Powers)........ 674
Fatty's Day Off—Sept. 1 (Keystone).........
Feeney's Social Experiment—Sept. 1 (Reliance).1108
Fickle Tramp, The—Aug. 16 (Majestic)........
Fight Against Evil, A—Sept. 14 (Rex).......1100
Fight for Right, The—(2 parts) Aug. 9 (Reliance) 678
Firebugs—Aug. 21 (Keystone)................
Fisherman's Fortune, The—July 14 (Reliance). 358
Fish Story, A—Aug. 9 (Majestic).............
Five Copies—Aug. 9 (Great Northern)........ 780
Flame in the Ashes, The—(2 parts) Aug. 15 (Kay-Bee) 678
Flea Circus, The—July 9 (Solax).............. 88
Flesh of His Flesh—Aug. 23 (American).... 778
Flirt and the Bandit, The—Sept. 29 (American).1426
Flirty Florence—Sept. 4 (Frontier).......... 996
Flotsam—(2 parts) July 25 (Kay-Bee)........ 358
Flower Festival at Pasadena, Cal.—July 13 (Rex) ....
Flower Girl and the Counterfeiter, The—Aug. 18 (Imp) ....
Folly of it All, The—Aug. 29 (Powers)........ 876
Foreign Spy, The—July 10 (American)........ 84
Forest Romance, A—(2 parts) Sept. 9 (Bison)..
For His Loved One—Sept. 13 (Majestic)......1326
For Love of Mabel—June 30 (Keystone)......
For Sale by Auction—Sept. 13 (Great Northern)
For the Crown—Sept. 8 (American)..........1106
For the Flag—Aug. 25 (American).......... 880
For the Man She Loved—(2 parts) July 16 (Eclair) 572
For the Man She Loved—July 8 (Thanhouser). 356
For the Peace of Bear Valley—Sept. 22 (Nestor) 1322
For the Sins of Another—Sept. 26 (Victor).....1320
Forlorn Hope, The—Sept. 26 (Kay-Bee).......
Fortune's Pet—(2 parts) June 18 (Eclair).... 84
Four Fools and a Maid—Aug. 13 (Solax)...... 680
Four Queens and a Jack—July 11 (Nestor).... 82
Frame Up, The—Sept. 9 (Majestic)............1326
Frazzled Finance—Aug. 31 (Thanhouser).....1106
From the Portals of Despair—Aug. 28 (American) 880
Frontier Twin's Heroism, The—July 24 (Frontier) ....
Frontier Twins Start Something, The—July 10 (Frontier) 80
Funnicus at Luna Park—July 17 (Mutual Educational) 464
Funnicus Attends a Fair—July 3 (Mutual Educational) 242
Funnicus' Mother-in-Law—July 10 (Mutual Educational) 244
Funnicus Wins the Race—July 31 (Mutual Educational) 778
Funny Fancies by Hy. Mayer—Aug. 2 (Imp)..

G

Gaffney's Gladiator—July 5 (Majestic)........ 86
Gambler's Pal, The—Sept. 3 (Broncho)......
Game of Pool, A—Aug. 7 (Keystone)........
Garden City in California, A—July 12 (American) ....
Gaumont Weekly, No. 68—June 25 (Gaumont). 88
Gaumont Weekly, No. 69—July 2 (Gaumont)...
Gaumont Weekly, No. 70—July 9 (Gaumont). 360
Gaumont Weekly, No. 71—July 16 (Gaumont)..
Gaumont Weekly, No. 72—July 23 (Gaumont). 572
Gaumont Weekly, No. 73—July 30 (Gaumont).
Gaumont Weekly, No. 74—Aug. 6 (Gaumont). 780
Gaumont Weekly, No. 75—Aug. 13 (Gaumont)
Gaumont Weekly, No. 76—Aug. 20 (Gaumont).
Gaumont Weekly, No. 77—Aug. 27 (Gaumont)..
Gaumont Weekly, No. 78—Sept. 3 (Gaumont).
Gaumont Weekly, No. 79—Sept. 10 (Gaumont).
Gaumont Weekly, No. 80—Sept. 17 (Gaumont).1432
Genesis: 4-9—(2 parts) Sept. 25 (Rex).......1322
Get Rich Quick—July 24 (Keystone)..........
Getting the Evidence—Aug. 14 (Pilot)........1108
Ghost, The—Aug. 22 (Victor)................ 768
Ghost of the Hacienda, The—(2 parts) Sept. 22 (American) 1324
Girl of the Dance Halls, A—Oct. 2 (Frontier)..1422
Girl Graduate, The—Sept. 6 (Great Northern).
Girl I Left Behind, The—Aug. 1 (Lux)...... 468
Girl of the Cabaret, The—Aug. 8 (Thanhouser) 776
Girl Ranchers, The—Sept. 12 (Nestor)......1102
Girls and Dad—Aug. 8 (Nestor).............. 560
Girl Spy's Atonement, The—Aug. 25 (Reliance) 998
Glow Worm, The—(3 parts) Sept. 6 (Reliance)
Good Catch, A—Oct. 4 (Great Northern).....
Good-for-nothing-Jack—(2 parts) Oct. 4 (Gem)..
Gold and Water—Sept. 3 (Nestor).......... 996
Gold Greek Mining—July 19 (Majestic)..... 356
Golden Gate Park and Environs—Aug. 7 (American) 566
Golden Heart, The—Aug. 21 (American).... 778
Golden Jubilee, The—July 1 (Majestic)...... 86
Gold Mesh Bag, The—Sept. 8 (Gem)........1100
Governor's Daughter, The—(2 parts) July 26 (Universal Great Northern)..............
Grand Canyon of Arizona—Aug. 19 (Majestic)..
Grand-dad—(2 parts) July 23 (Broncho).... 464
Granny—July 17 (Pilot).................... 360
Gratitude of Wanda, The—(2 parts) Aug. 30 (Bison) ....
Gratitude—Sept. 12 (Solax)................
Grease Paint Indiana—Aug. 3 (Eclair)....... 776
Greater Call, The—(3 parts) July 23 (Eclair) 458
Greater Influence, A—Aug. 19 (Crystal)..... 770
Greatest Love, The—Aug. 10 (Majestic)...... 778
Great Santa Monica Road Race, The—Sept. 2 (Majestic) ....
Great Towel Robbery, The—Aug. 13 (Powers). 674
Green-Eyed Monster, The—Aug. 7 (Pilot).... 778
Green Shadow, The—(2 parts) Aug. 29 (Kay-Bee) 884
Grit of the Gringo, The—July 14 (Nestor)....

H

Habits of Field Spiders—Sept. 7 (Eclair).... 992
Hair Raising Affair, A—July 29 (Gaumont).. 678
Half-Breed Sheriff, The—July 19 (Frontier)..
Hallroom Girls, The—July 20 (Crystal)...... 236
Hand of Providence, The—Sept. 14 (Crystal).1100
Hardest Way, The—Sept. 22 (Reliance).......1428
Harvest of Flame, The—(2 parts) Aug. 21 (Rex) 772
Hasty Jilting, A—July 31 (Frontier)..........
Hawkeye to the Rescue—Aug. 15 (Nestor).. 676
Headhunters, The—(2 parts) July 12 (Bison) 80
Heart of a Vaquero—Sept. 24 (Nestor)........
Heart of a Fool, The—Sept. 7 (Majestic)....1108
Heart of a Heathen, The—(2 parts) Aug. 8 (Powers) 562
Heart of a Jewess, The—(2 parts) Aug. 15 Victor) 674
Heart of Hermandu, The—July 4 (Powers)...
Hearts and Hoofs—Aug. 15 (Majestic)........
Heart Throbs—(2 parts) July 9 (Broncho).... 242
Heavenly Widow, The—Aug. 6 (Solax)....... 572
He Poses for his Portrait (Newlywed Series) July 27 (Eclair) 564
Her Final Choice—June 30 (Reliance)...... 86
Her Last Ride—(3 parts) Sept. 34 (Dragon)...
Heritage of Eve, The—(2 parts) Aug. 20 (Broncho) 780
Her Little Darling—Aug. 3 (Crystal)........ 458
Her Nerve—July 17 (Imp)................... 238
Her Rosary—July 10 (Reliance).............. 358
Her Tutors—Aug. 17 (Eclair)................ 994
Her Two Jewels—July 4 (Thanhouser)........ 86
He Was Not Ill, Only Unhappy (Newlywed Series)—June 29 (Eclair).................. 84
Higher Justice, The—(2 parts) July 26 (Reliance) 466
His Aunt Emma—Aug. 26 (Crystal).......... 878
His Brother's Wines—Oct. 3 (Nestor).........
His Brand—Oct. 2 (Rex)......................1422
His Crazy Job—Sept. 26 (Nestor).............1322
His Chance—Aug. 29 (Lux).................. 886
His Crooked Career—June 26 (Keystone)......
His Friend the Undertaker—Aug. 1 (Nestor).. 462
His Last Bet—Sept. 7 (Thanhouser)..........1326
His Last Deal—Sept. 20 (Majestic)...........1326
His Last Gamble—Sept. 28 (Crystal)........1320
His Master's Double—July 8 (Gaumont)...... 360
His Mother's Birthday—July 7 (Gem)........
His Mother's Song—Aug. 28 (Imp)...........
His Priceless Treasure—Oct. 4 (Imp).........1424
His Sister Lucia—Aug. 9 (American).......... 566
His Stomach and His Heart—Aug. 14 (Gaumont) 886
His Vacation—Aug. 29 (Victor)............... 880
His Way of Winning Her—July 19 (Majestic) 356
His Weakness Conquered—July 20 (Rex)...... 238
Holy Cities of Japan, The—Aug. 3 (Eclair).. 776
Honeymoon Hoax, A—Aug. 5 (Gaumont).... 886
Honor of Lady Beaumont, The—(2 parts) Aug. 6 (Eclair) 564
Horse Unfed, A—Aug. 16 (Majestic)..........
Hospital Romance, A—July 21 (Reliance).... 466
House Boat Elopement, A—Oct. 1 (Powers).....1422
House Hunting—Aug. 17 (Majestic).......... 882
House of Bondage, The—(3 parts) Aug. 8 (Kay-Bee) 566
How Diamonds are Made—July 6 (Eclair).... 354
How Men Propose—July 20 (Crystal)......... 236
How Women Love—Aug. 12 (Crystal)........ 672
Humors of Summer by Hy. Mayer—Sept. 6 (Imp)
Hydrogen—Sept. 14 (Eclair)..................1318
Hy Mayer Cartoons, Jolly Jottings, by Hy Mayer—Sept. 27 (Imp)....................
Hy Mayer Cartoons, Whimsicalities by Hy Mayer—Oct. 4 (Imp)......................
Hy. Mayer Cartoons (Adventures of Mr. Phiffles by Hy. Mayer)—Aug. 9 (Imp).......
Hy. Mayer Cartoons (Antics in Ink, by Hy. Mayer)—Sept. 20 (Imp)..................
Hy. Mayer Cartoons (Funny Fancies, by Hy. Mayer)—Aug. 2 (Imp)...................
Hy. Mayer Cartoons (Humors of Summer by Hy. Mayer)—Sept. 6 (Imp).............
Hy. Mayer Cartoons (Hy. Mayer, His Merry Pen)—Aug. 30 (Imp)..................
Hy. Mayer Cartoons (In Cartoonland) with Hy. Mayer)—July 19 (Imp)..................
Hy. Mayer Cartoons (In Laughland with Hy. Mayer)—Aug. 16 (Imp)..................
Hy. Mayer Cartoons (Lightning Sketches by Hy. Mayer)—July 5 (Imp)..............
Hy. Mayer Cartoons (Lightning Sketches by Hy. Mayer)—July 12 (Imp)..............
Hy. Mayer Cartoons—Sept. 13 (Imp)..........
Hy. Mayer Cartoons (Pen Talks by Hy. Mayer) Aug. 23 (Imp).............................
Hy. Mayer Cartoons (Summer Caricatures by Hy. Mayer)—July 26 (Imp)..............
Hypnotized—Aug. 24 (Crystal)................ 770

I

Impulse—July 13 (Majestic)................. 356
In After Years—Aug. 1 (Victor)............ 458
In Cartoon Land with Hy. Mayer—July 19 (Imp) ....
In Death's Shadow—July 15 (Crystal)........ 236
Ingrate, The—July 12 (Majestic)............ 356
In Laugh Land with Hy. Mayer—Aug. 16 (Imp) ....
In Search of Quiet—Aug. 21 (Imp)............ 772
In the Coils of the Python—(2 parts) Sept. 16 (Bison) 1214
In the Land of Dates—July 31 (Gaumont).. 678
In the Nick of Time—Aug. 1 (Thanhouser).. 570
In the Night—July 6 (Eclair)............... 354
In the Peril of the Sea—Sept. 29 (Imp).......
Intruder, The—July 18 (Solax)............... 244
Invisible Ink—Sept. 17 (Solax)..............1220
Iron Master, The—(2 parts) Sept. 5 (Kay-Bee)
Iron Trail, The—(2 parts) Aug. 12 (Bison).. 770
I Should Worry—July 30 (Ramo).............
It is Hard to Please Him but it's Worth It (Newlywed Series)—July 13 (Eclair)..... 354
Ivanhoe—(4 parts) Sept. 22 (Imp)............1318

J

Jack Meets His Waterloo—Aug. 30 (American) 880
Jacques the Wolf—(2 parts) Oct. 1 (Eclair)..1424
Japanese Courtship, A—July 15 (Majestic).... 356
Japanese Gardens—July 3 (Mutual Educational) 244
Jealousy's Trail—July 21 (American).......... 358
Jim Takes a Chance—Sept. 20 (American).....1218
Joe Hibbard's Claim—Aug. 6 (Broncho)...... 568
John the Waggoner—July 9 (Nestor).......... 82
Jolly Jottings by Hy Mayer—Sept. 27 (Imp)..
Jolly Recruits, The—July 12 (Great Northern) 362
Juanita—Aug. 13 (Nestor).................. 674
Judge's Son, The—Sept. 10 (Broncho)..........
Just in Time—Aug. 24 (Rex)................ 772
Just Kids—July 28 (Keystone)...............
Justice of the Wild—(2 parts) Sept. 29 (Nestor).1424
Juvenile Kidnappers, The—Sept. 18 (Frontier) 1216

K

Kelp Industry, The—Aug. 25 (Keystone)......
Kentucky Foes—Aug. 11 (Reliance)........... 778
King Rene's Daughter—(3 parts) July 1 (Thanhouser) 86
Kings of the Kennels—June 26 (Gaumont).... 244

L

Lady Killer, The—Aug. 24 (Majestic)........
Lakes of Salazburg, Austria, The—Aug. 12 (Gaumont) 886

Land of the Dead Things—(2 parts) Sept. 17 (Broncho) ....
Last of the Madisons, The—July 24 (Imp) ....
Latest in Life Saving, The—Aug. 7 (Keystone)
Lawbreakers, The—(2 parts) July 22 (Bison)
Leo The Indian—July 5 (Imp) ....
Lie that Failed, The—Aug. 15 (Thanhouser) .. 776
Life Savers, The—July 21 (Gem) ....
Lightning Sketches by Hy. Mayer—July 5 (Imp)
Lightning Sketches by Hy. Mayer—July 12 (Imp)
Light Woman, The—Sept. 7 (Rex) 994
Like Darby and Joan—Oct. 5 (Rex) 1424
Line Rider's Sister, The—July 12 (Frontier) .. 80
Lion Hunters, The—(2 parts) Sept. 16 (Gaumont) ....
Little Buster—July 14 (Gem) ....
Little Dorritt—(2 parts) July 29 (Thanhouser) 570
Little Pirate, The—Aug. 2 (Reliance) 568
Little Skipper, The—Aug. 26 (Powers) 770
'Lizbeth—Aug. 4 (Imp) ....
Lord Barry's Low Acquaintance—July 31 (Imp) 466
Los Angeles Harbor—Sept. 1 (Keystone) ....
Lost Copperhead, The—Sept. 5 (Victor) 990
Lost in the Night—Sept. 7 (Crystal) 992
Love and Courage—July 21 (Keystone) ....
Love and Gold—Aug. 13 (Ramo) 1226
Love and Rubbish—July 14 (Keystone) ....
Love Me, Love My Animals—Sept. 11 (Gaumont) 1220
Love of Men, The—(2 parts) Sept. 6 (Bison).
Loyal Hearts—July 31 (Pilot) 572

M

Mabel's New Hero—Aug. 28 (Keystone) ....
Mabel's Dramatic Career—Sept. 8 (Keystone) ..
Madcap, The—(2 parts) Aug. 27 (Broncho) .. 884
Magnets—Aug. 14 (Gaumont) ....
Maid of the Mountains, The—Aug. 18 (Nestor) 772
Making of Tapestry, The—July 8 (Gaumont) 360
Man an Woman—(2 parts) July 9 (Ramo) .. 246
Manicure, The—Sept. 15 (Gem) 1216
Man's Duty—Aug. 10 (Rex) 560
Maria Roma—July 23 (Reliance) 466
Marooned—July 25 (Victor) ....
Master of Himself—Sept. 27 (American) 1324
Masquerading in Bear Canyon—Aug. 7 (Frontier) 562
Mating—(2 parts) Aug. 11 (Imp) ....
Maya, Just an Indian—Aug. 30 (Frontier) 878
May and December—Sept. 7 (Broncho) ....
Medium's Nemesis, The—Aug. 22 (Thanhouser) 882
Men and Muslin—Sept. 3 (Solax) ....
Mental Suicide—July 25 (Powers) 350
Message to Headquarters, The—(3 parts) Sept. 12 (Thanhouser) 1326
Message to Headquarters, The—(3 parts) Sept. 12 (Thanhouser) 1326
Microscopic Animalculae Found in Stagnant Water—July 31 (Mutual Educational) 778
Mighty Hunter, The—July 22 (Majestic) 466
Miser's Son, The—Sept. 25 (Imp) 1318
Misplaced Love—Sept. 21 (Crystal) 1214
Missing Ring, The—Sept. 24 (Reliance) 1428
Missing Witness, The—(2 parts) Aug. 12 (Thanhouser) 776
Mission Bells—July 31 (American) 464
Mistaken Identity—Aug. 16 (Great Northern) 886
Mistaken Intentions—June 30 (Gem) ....
Mrs. Carter's Campaign—Sept. 25 (American) .. 1324
Moonshiner, The—Sept. 27 (Frontier) 1320
Modern Lochinvar, A—July 29 (Thanhouser) 86
Modern Romance, A—Aug. 7 (Imp) 560
Modern Witness, A—July 11 (Victor) ....
Mona—Aug. 6 (Nestor) 560
Morgan's Treasure—(2 parts) July 11 (Powers) 80
Mother—Sept. 10 (Powers) 1100
Much Ado About Nothing—Sept. 2 (Crystal) 990
Much Wanted Baby, A—Aug. 28 (Frontier). 878
Mutual Weekly, No. 25—June 18 (Mutual Weekly) 88
Mutual Weekly, No. 26—June 25 (Mutual Weekly) ....
Mutual Weekly, No. 27—July 2 (Mutual Weekly) 240
Mutual Weekly, No. 28—July 9 (Mutual Weekly) ....
Mutual Weekly, No. 29—July 16 (Mutual Weekly) ....
Mutual Weekly, No. 30—July 23 (Mutual Weekly) 568
Mutual Weekly, No. 31—July 30 (Mutual Weekly) 678
Mutual Weekly, No. 32—Aug. 6 (Mutual Weekly) 780
Mutual Weekly, No. 33—Aug. 13 (Mutual Weekly) 884
Mutual Weekly, No. 34—Aug. 20 (Mutual Weekly) 1000
Mutual Weekly, No. 35—Aug. 27 (Mutual Weekly) 1106
Mutual Weekly, No. 36—Sept. 3 (Mutual Weekly 1328
Mutual Weekly, No. 37—Sept. 8 (Mutual Weekly) 1328
Mysterious Eye, The—Sept. 6 (American) ... 1000
Mystery of Tusa, The—Aug. 14 (American) .. 676
Mystery of Yellow Aster Mine, The—(2 parts) Aug. 26 (Bison) 886

N

ature's Vengeance—Aug. 8 (Victor) 560 ever Again—Sept. 18 (Rex) 1214
ews Item, A—Sept. 16 (Crystal) 1214
ew Way to Win a Girl, A—Aug. 11 (Gem) ..
ihilist Vengeance—(2 parts) July 18 (Victor) 236
oise from the Deep—July 17 (Keystone) ....
None But the Brave Deserve the —?—Sept. 22 (Gem) 1320
Norwood Case, The—Oct. 5 (Powers) 1422

O

Oath of the Conchita, The—Sept. 1 (Nestor) .. 994
Of Such is the Kingdom—Aug. 16 (Reliance) .. 780
Official Goat Protector—Sept. 26 (Thanhouser) .. 1430
Oh! Such a Beautiful Ocean—Aug. 10 (Thanhouser) 776
Oh! What a Swim—Sept. 23 (Crystal) 1320
Oh! You Flirt—July 12 (Imp) 84
Oh! You Scotch Lassie—Aug. 10 (Crystal) 562
Oh Wat 'er Wet Day—Aug. 1 (Lux) 468
Old Mammy's Secret Code—(3 parts) July 16 (Broncho) 462
One of the Finest—July 8 (Majestic) 356
One Round O'Brien Comes Back—June 29 (Majestic) 86
One Round O'Brien's Flirtation—Aug. 26 (Majestic) ....
One Wife Too Much—Aug. 17 (Crystal) 672
On Forbidden Paths—Sept. 13 (Frontier) 1104
On the Ranger's Roll of Honor—Aug. 9 (Frontier) 562
Operator and the Superintendent, The—July 16 (Nestor) 238
Organisms Which Inhabit Stagnant Waters—Oct. 5 (Eclair) ....
Organist, The—July 14 (Dragon) ....
Original Will, The—Sept. 27 (Reliance) 1430
Orphan of War, An—(2 parts) Aug. 22 (Kay-Bee) 780
Other Side of the Fence, The—Aug. 19 (Majestic) 882
Our Future Heroes—June 30 (Dragon) ....
Over the Garden Wall—Aug. 22 (Lux) 780

P

Painter's Ruse, The—Sept. 24 (Powers) 1322
Pajuma Parade, The—July 20 (Majestic) 466
"Palmistry"—July 22 (Gaumont) 570
Paper Doll, The—July 29 (Crystal) 458
Pat Gets On the Trail—July 4 (Lux) 88
Pat's Fancy Dress—July 25 (Lux) 360
Pawnee Romance—Sept. 14 (Eclair) 1318
Paying the Price—Sept. 28 (Rex) 1322
Pearl and the Poet—Sept. 23 (Crystal) 1320
Pearl and the Tramp—Aug. 17 (Crystal) 672
Pearl of the Golden West—Sept. 17 (Powers). 1216
Pearl's Dilemma—July 13 (Crystal) 236
Peddler, The—July 21 (Keystone) ....
Peg of the "Polly P,"—Aug. 27 (Reliance) .. 998
Playmates—Sept. 16 (Majestic) 1326
Pelleas and Melisande—(3 parts) Sept. 2 (Bison)
Pen Talks by Hy. Mayer—Aug. 23 (Imp) ....
Percy H. Baldwin, Trifler—Sept. 19 (Victor) ..
Perilous Ride, A—Sept. 2 (Majestic) 1108
Picket Guard, The—(2 parts) July 15 (Bison)
Pleasing Her Husband—Sept. 9 (Crystal) ... 1100
Poisoned Chop, The—Sept. 4 (American) 998
Poisoned Dagger, The—Aug. 15 (Lux) 780
Poisoned Water—Sept. 8 (Nestor) 1102
Poor Jake's Demise—Aug. 16 (Imp) 672
Possibility, A—(2 parts) July 14 (Imp) 238
Powder Flash of Death, The—(2 parts) July 8 (Bison) 80
Power of Heredity, The—July 31 (Rex) 466
Private Box 23—Oct. 5 (Eclair) ....
Production of Wine in France, The—July 3 (Gaumont) ..) 244
Prof. Bean's Removal—July 31 (Keystone) ....
Proof of the Man, The—July 7 (Nestor) 82
Proof, The—July 28 (Nestor) 460
Proposal by Proxy—Aug. 3 (Thanhouser) 776
Protectory's Oldest Boy, The—Aug. 5 (Thanhouser) 776
Puritan Episode, A—(2 parts) Sept. 24 (Eclair). 1318
Pursuit of Jane, The—Sept. 4 (Imp) 992

Q

Quakeress, The—(2 parts) Aug. 13 (Broncho) 678
Quality of Mercy, The—Sept. 24 (Solax) 1432
Quarter Meter, The—July 2 (Powers) ....

R

Ranchman's Double, The—Sept. 26 (Frontier). 1216
Ranger's Way, The—July 21 (Nestor) 350
Rastus and the Game-Cock—July 3 (Keystone)
Red Heart, The—Aug. 31 (Crystal) 878
Red Mask, The—(2 parts) July 18 (Kay-Bee) 242
Red Sweeney's Defeat—Sept. 13 (American). 1106
Redemption—Sept. 16 (Thanhouser) 1324
Reformation, The—Sept. 19 (Kay-Bee) ....
Registered Letter, The—Aug. 22 (Lux) 786
Reincarnation of a Soul, The—Sept. 5 (Powers) 990
Renuncintion, The—Aug. 27 (Nestor) 876
Resourceful Lothario, A—July 31 (Gaumont) .. 680
Retribution of Ysobel, The—Aug. 16 (Frontier) 674
Retribution—Sept. 5 (Solax) 1108
Reunited at Gettysburg—Aug. 4 (Imp) ....
Riot, The—Aug. 7 (Keystone) ....
Robespierre—(3 parts) Sept. 8 (Imp) 1104
Robinson Crusoe—(3 parts) July 29 (Bison) .. 458
Rob-Roy—(3 parts) Sept. 17 (Eclair) ....
Rose at Sixteen, A—July 5 (Frontier) 1426
Rosita's Cross of Gold—July 30 (Reliance) .. 568
Runa Plays Cupid—Aug. 13 (Reliance) 780
Runaway Uncle, The—Aug. 31 (Eclair) 1104
Rural Romance, A—July 7 (Reliance) 240

S

Sacred Gazelles—July 20 (Eclair) 564
Safe in Jail—July 7 (Keystone) ....
Saigon—July 16 (Mutual Educational) 244
Sailing Under False Colors—Aug. 21 (Frontier) 770
Sally Scraggs Housemaid—Aug. 14 (Rex) 676
Sam's Despondency—Sept. 15 (Gem) ....
San Francisco, the Dauntless City—July 7 (American) 84
Sanitary Dairy Plant, Washington, D. C.—Sept. 22 (Gem) ....
Sanitary Gulch—July 10 (Pilot) 360
Sauce for the Goose—July 1 (Gaumont) 244
Saved by His Children—Aug. 26 (Gaumont) .. 1000
Scape Goat, The—(2 parts) July 28 (American) 464
School Kids' Picnic, The—July 27 (Majestic) .. 568
Sea Urchin, The—Aug. 22 (Powers) 770
Sea Worms—Aug. 24 (Eclair) 774
Second Home Coming, The—Aug. 4 (Nestor) ..
Secret of Padre Antonio, The—July 3 (Frontier) ....
Shadow of the Past, The—July 6 (Majestic) 356
Shanghaied—June 21 (Great Northern) 88
Shells, The—Sept. 11 (Imp) ....
She Will Never Know—July 26 (American) .. 358
Sheriff's Devotion, The—Sept. 23 (Gaumont) ... 1432
Shoemaker and the Doll, The—Sept. 21 (Thanhouser) 1428
Shooing the Wooer—Aug. 7 (Gaumont) 886
Shon, the Piper—(2 parts) Sept. 30 (Gem) 1422
Shop Girl's Big Day, The—Oct. 2 (Frontier) 1422
Shot in the Dark—Aug. 2 (Great Northern) .. 786
Should Women Work?—Aug. 8 (Lux) 686
Silent Heroes—(2 parts) Sept. 24 (Broncho) ..
Silent House, The—July 23 (Ramo) ....
Silly Sex, The—Aug. 6 (Reliance) 678
Single-Handed Jim—Aug. 2 (American) 464
Sister's Devotion, A—June 23 (Dragon) ....
Slight Misunderstanding, A—Sept. 27 (Majestic) 1428
Small Pox Scare at Gulch Hollow, The—July 17 (Frontier) ....
Smuggler's Child, The—(2 parts) Aug. 22 Solax) ....
Smuggler's Daughter, The—Aug. 18 (Reliance) 882
Snake, The—(2 parts) Aug. 9 (Bison) 562
Social Secretary, The—Aug. 30 (Reliance) 998
Soldiers Three—(2 parts) Aug. 16 (Bison) .. 672
Some Fireman—Sept. 4 (Gaumont) 1108
Some Luck—Sept. 9 (Crystal) 1100
Some Runner—Aug. 23 (Nestor) 774
Song of the Soup, The—July 12 (American) .. 86
Soul of Man, The—Sept. 26 (Solax) ....
Soul to Soul—(2 parts) July 30 (Eclair) 774
Spartan Father, A—Aug. 29 (Thanhouser) 998
Spirit of the Enemy, The—Aug. 19 (Thanhouser) 882
Springtime of Love, The—Aug. 27 (Ramo) .. 1226
Squaring Things with Wifey—July 13 (Crystal) 236
Stars in My Crown—July 28 (Gem) ....
Starving for Love—Aug. 10 (Crystal) 562
Statue, The—Aug. 23 (Imp) 772
Steel—(2 parts) Sept. 3 (Eclair) 992
Stepson, The—Sept. 17 (Nestor) ....
Stolen Woman, The—(2 parts) Sept. 26 (Reliance) 1324
Struggle, The—(2 parts) Sept. 23 (Bison) 1322
Stranger, The—(2 parts) July 28 (Imp) 460
Strange Way, The—July 19 (Reliance) 358
Stung—Sept. 21 (Eclair) 1318
Success—(2 parts) Aug. 23 (Reliance) 884
Suffragette Tames the Bandit, The—Aug. 14 (Frontier) 674
Summer Caricatures, by Hy. Mayer—July 26 (Imp) ....
Sure Tip, The—July 24 (Pilot) 468
Surgeon of Abajo, The—Sept. 6 (Frontier) .. 995
Surrender, The—Sept. 3 (Powers) 990

T

Tale of a Fish, The—Sept. 1 (Gem) 990
Tale of a Hat, The—July 18 (Nestor) 238
Taming their Grandchildren—Sept. 9 (Thanhouser) 1326
Tannhauser—(3 parts) July 15 (Thanhouser). 358
Tax on the Bachelors, The—Sept. 12 (Lux) .. 1220
Teak Wood—June 30 (Gem) ....
Telltale Light, The—July 16 (Keystone) ....
Temmpesta—Aug. 2 (Majestic) 570
Terrible Night, A—Aug. 27 (Solax) 886
That Boy from the East—June 22 (Eclair) 84
That Chinese Laundry—Aug. 2 (Imp) ....
That Crying Baby—Aug. 26 (Crystal) 878
That Dog—July 23 (Solax) 360
Their Lucky Day—July 25 (Nestor) 350
Third Thief, The—July 27 (Eclair) 564
Thirst for Gold, The—(2 pts) Aug. 13 (Eclair) 676
Thirteen at Table—Aug. 24 (Eclair) 774
Through Mountains Majestic—July 24 (Gaumont) 570
Through Strife—July 13 (Rex) 84
Through the Neighbor's Window—Sept. 11 (American) 1106
Through the Telescope—July 26 (Eclair) 564
Through the Window—(2 parts) Sept. 20 (Bison) ....
Through Turkey and the Black Sea—July 24 (Mutual Educational) 464
Ticket of Leave Man, The—(2 parts) July 7 (Dragon) ....
Tide in the Affairs of Men, A—Aug. 18 (American) 778
Timely Reminder, A—Sept. 5 (Lux) 1000
Tiny Tim Kidnaps a Baby—Sept. 23 (Gaumont))
Tiny Tim and the Adventures of his Elephant—Aug. 12 (Gaumont) 886
Tiny Tim's Elopement—Sept. 18 (Gaumont) ..
Tiny Troubadour, The—July 17 (Gaumont) .. 468
To Err is Human—July 17 (American) 240
Told in the Future—Aug. 3 (Majestic) 776
Toll of the Desert, The—July 26 (Frontier) ..
Tom Blake's Redemption—July 24 (American). 358

Top of New York, The—July 25 (Thanhouser) 466
Torpedo Fish, The—June 29 (Eclair)........ 84
To the Brave Belong the Fair—July 4 (Nestor)
Toy, The—July 29 (Majestic)............... 570
Trade Secret, A—Aug. 31 (Broncho)..........
Trail of the Hanging Rock, The—(2 parts) July 9 (Eclair)............................ 354
Trail of the Serpent, The—Sept. 1 (Imp)....
Train on Fire, The—July 11 (Lux).......... 246
Trap, The—Oct. 3 (Powers)..................
Travelers of the Road—Sept. 20 (American)..1218
Tree Meadous Proposition, A—Aug. 21 (Gaumont) 1000
Tricks in All Trades—July 3 (Gaumont).... 244
Triumph of Love, The—Aug. 8 (Lux)........ 680
Trombone Marathon—July 10 (Gaumont)...... 572
Troodhjem Railway, The—July 5 (Great Northern) ....
True Chivalry—July 8 (Crystal).............. 82
Truth in the Wilderness—(2 parts) July 14 (American) 240
Turkish Bath, The—Sept. 6 (Majestic)........
Tweedledum Insures His Life—Sept. 24 (Powers) 1322
Twickenham Ferry—Sept. 15 (Reliance)......
Two Hearts and a Thief—Aug. 29 (Nestor).. 878
Two Jilted Lovers—Aug. 28 (Gaumont).....1000

U

Uncle Tom's Cabin—(3 parts) Aug. 25 (Imp) 880
Unromantic Maiden, A—Aug. 24 (Thanhouser) 998
Under the Danish Beeches—Sept. 13 (Great Northern) ....
Unfair Exchange, An—Sept. 23 (Thanhouser)...1430

V

Vegetarian's Dream, A—Sept. 7 (Eclair).... 992
Veteran Police Horse, The—(2 parts) Sept. 2 (Thanhouser) 1106
Views of Stockholm—Sept. 10 (Nestor)........
Village Pest, The—Sept. 25 (Frontier).........1320
Village Blacksmith, The—Aug. 6 (Powers).. 502

W

Wager, The—July 9 (Reliance)................ 242
Waif, The—Sept. 12 (Kay-Bee)..............1328
Waiting for Hubby—Aug. 17 (Thanhouser).. 880
Wall of Money, The—(2 parts) Sept. 21 (Rex).1214
Ward of the King, The—(2 parts) Aug. 26 Thanhouser) 998
Wartime Mother's Sacrifice, A—(2 parts) July 30 (Broncho) 566
Weighed in the Balance—Aug. 25 (Nestor).... 876
Western Love—Sept. 19 (Solax)...............1220
What Girls Will Do—Aug. 25 (Gem)........ 878
What Papa Got—Aug. 3 (Crystal)............ 458
When the Worm Turned—Sept. 21 (Thanhouser).1430
When Chemistry Counted—Aug. 4 (American) 564
When Cupid Won—Aug. 23 (Nestor)........ 774
When Darkness Came—July 22 (Thanhouser). 464
When He Wore the Blue—July 11 (Nestor).. 82
When His Courage Failed—July 18 (Nestor).. 238
When Sherman Marched to the Sea—(3 parts) July 19 (Bison)........................... 350
When the Blood Calls—Aug. 20 (Nestor) 774
When the Cards were Shuffled—July 24 (Gaumont) 570
When the Cat's Away—June 26 (Gaumont).. 88
When the Prince Arrived—Aug. 7 (Rex).... 560
When the Tide Turns—Aug. 1 (Solax)........ 468
Where There's Life—Sept. 1 (American)...... 998
While the Children Slept—July 30 (Powers) 462
Whimsicalities by Hy Mayer—Oct. 4 (Imp)....
Why Aunt Jane Never Married—Sept. 28 (Eclair) 1320
Why Rags Left Home—July 16 (Powers).... 236
Wild West Comes to Town—July 27 (Majestic)
Willie, the Wild Man—July 27 (Thanhouser) 570
Winning Loser, The—Sept. 14 (Majestic)....1326
Winning a Prize—July 5 (Great Northern).. 246
With Honor at Stake—(2 parts) July 15 (Gaumont) 570
Woman's Stratagem, A—Aug. 28 (Rex)..... 876
Woman's Trick, A—Aug. 10 (Eclair)........ 776
Woo by Waiting—Sept. 27 (Great Northern)..
Woo by a Skirt—Sept. 5 (Nestor)............ 996
Wop, The—July 10 (Imp).................... 82
Would be Detective, A—Aug. 18 (Gem)......
Wrong Road, The—July 17 (Rex)............ 236

Y

Yogi, The—July 31 (Imp)..................... 350
You Never Can Tell—July 25 (Lux)........... 360

Features

A

Abraham, the Patriarch of Ishael (3 parts)—Aug. (Feature Film Co.)...................
Airship Fugitives, The—July (Great Northern Special Feature Film Co)................... 90
Arizona—Aug. (All Star Feature Corp.)........
Antony and Cleopatra (3 parts)—Aug. (Geo. Kleine) ....
At the Foot of the Scaffold (2 parts) Aug. (Kineto) 572

B

Back to the West (3 parts)—Sept. (True Features) 1329
Bargain With Satan—Sept. (Apex).............
Battle of Waterloo, The—Sept. (Waterloo Feature Film Co.)...............................
Betrothed, The (6 parts)—Aug. (Ambrosio).....
Betrothed, The (6 parts)—Aug. (Pasquali).....
Blache—Aug. (Blache Features)................
Black Sheep, The (3 parts)—Aug. 20 (Union Features) 1110
Black Snake (4 parts)—Aug. (Apex)...........
Blindness of Courage, The (3 parts)—Aug. (Ryno) ....
Bondsman (2 parts)—Sept. 18 (Domino Motion Picture Corp.) ....
Boy Scouts of America (7 parts)—Aug. (Edward Warren) ....
Brennan of the Moor (3 parts)—Aug. (Solax)..
Broken Sword, The (2 parts)—Sept. (Feature Film Co.) ....

C

Captivating Countess, The (3 parts)—Sept. (Feature Film Co.)......................
Cards (3 parts)—Oct 1. (Ramo)...............
Contraband, The—July (Monarch)...............90
Crime on the Coast, The (3 parts)—Aug. (Film d'Art Co. of America)......................
Current, The (3 parts)—Oct. 15 (Ramo).......
Cyclist's Last Lap, The (3 parts)—Sept. (True Features) 1221

D

Dare Devil Dolly (3 parts)—Sept. (True Features) 1221
Dash for Liberty, A (3 parts)—Aug. (Great Northern Special Feature Film Co.).......
Day of Judgment, The (3 parts)—July (Union Features) 470
Decreed to Die—Sept. 1 (Lewis Pennaot)......
Derby, The—July. (Gaumont).................
Doctor Nicholson and the Blue Diamond (4 parts)—Aug. (Film Releases of America)..
Doomed to Die (3 parts)—Aug. (Union Features) 1110
Doom of Darkness, The (4 parts)—Aug. 2 (True Features) 1108

F

Faithful Servitor, The (2 parts)—Sept. (Gaumont) 1328
Fallen Star, The (4 parts)—July (Feature Film Co.) ....
Fantomas Under the Shadow of the Guillotine (3 parts)—July (Gaumont)................ 470
Fight for Millions, A (4 parts)—Sept.. (Blache Features) ....
Fortune Hunter (5 parts)—July (Roma American Film Co.).........................
From Iron Ore to Finished Steel—Aug. (Farrell Film Co.) ....
From Out the Depths (2 parts)—July (Kineto) 362

G

Genissar, (4 parts)—July (Feature Film Co.)..
Grain Speculator, The—July (Great Northern Special Feature Film Co.)...............
Grandmother's Lamp (3 parts)—Aug. 23 (Ambrosio) ....
Greater Love, The (2 parts)—Aug. (Itala)....
Green God, The; or the Flower Girl of Montmarte (3 parts)—Aug. (Union Features) 782

H

Heart of a Hunchback, The (3 parts)—Aug 6 (True Features) 1108
Higher Courage, The (2 parts)—Aug. (True Features) 1110
High Treason (4 parts)—Sept. (Pasquali American Co.) ....
Hole in the Net, The (3 parts)—Aug. (True Features) 1110

I

In the Hands of Conspirators (2 parts)..July 12 (Ambrosio) ....
In the Serpent's Coil (3 parts)—Aug. (Kineto).1110
In the Bishop's Carriage (3 parts)—Sept. 10 (Famous Players)........................

J

Jail Birds (3 parts)—July (Feature Film Co.).

L

Last Days of Pompeii, The (8 parts)—Aug. (George Kleine) ....
Last Days of Pompeii—July (The Italian Pompeii Film Co.)........................
Last Days of Pompeii, The—Aug. (Pasquali American Film Co.)......................
Life of St. Patrick, The (4 parts)—Aug. (Life of St. Patrick Film Co.)..................
Lion Hunters, The (2 parts)—Sept. (Gaumont).1328
Little Puppet Seller, The (2 parts)—July 5 (Ambrosio) ....
London by Night—Sept. (Apex)...............
Love Romance of Sir Francis Drake (3 parts)—July (Kineto) 470

M

Miser's Ward, The—(3 parts) Sept. (True Features) 1220
Missing Woman, The—(3 parts) July (Film Releases of America) ....
Money's Merciless Might—(3 parts) Aug. 15 (Gaumont) 680
Mother's Calvary, A—(3 parts) Aug. (Feature Film Co.) ....
My Boy (3 parts)—Sept. 20 (Lewis Peonant)..
Mystery of the Yellow Room (3 parts)—Sept. (Union Features) ....

N

Nero and Britannicus—(3 parts) July (Eclectic Film Co.) 886

O

On the Trail of the Spider Gang—(3 parts) Aug. (Apex) ....

P

Parasites of the Frog—Aug. (Itala) ....
Peter Makaroff the Gold Maker—Sept. (Apex)
Pierrot's Love—(3 parts) July (Film Releases of America) ....
Pit and Pendulum, The—July (Solax)..........
Police Inspector, The—(3 parts) (Belmont).... 380
Power of Innocence, The—Sept. (Pasquali American Co.) ....

R

Red Powder—Sept. (Apex) ....
Reunion of the Blue and the Gray—July (Special Event Film Co.) ....
Revenge—(3 parts) July (Feature Film Co.)..
Rogues of Paris (3 parts)—Sept. 22 (Solax)....

S

Sapho—Sept. (Sapho Feature Film Co.)........
Saved by the Juvenile Court—(3 parts) Aug. (Columbine) 680
Secret of the Roulette Table—(3 parts) Aug. (Feature Film Co.) ....
Serpent's Fang, The—Sept. (Great Northern Special Feature Film Co.)...............
Sister to Carmen, A—July. (Chas. L. Fuller Co.)
Sixty Years a Queen (6 parts)—Sept. (Royal Film Agency) ....
Sleeping Beauty, The—(3 parts) July (Venus Feature) ....
Steel King's Last Wish, The—(3 parts) Aug. (Great Northern Special Feature Film Co.)
Street Waifs, The (4 parts)—Sept. (Feature Film Co.) ....
Streets of New York, The—(3 parts) July (Pilot) 468
Surry the Cycler—(3 parts) Aug. (True Features) ....

T

Tess of the D'Urbervilles—(5 parts) Sept. (Famous Players) 1221
Theodore Burgarth—July (New York Film Co.)
Theresa the Adventuress—July (Great Northern Special Feature Film Co.) ....
Thrust of Hate, The—(3 parts) Sept. 1 (Eclectic Film Co.) ....
Tortures Within Prison Walls—July (New York Film Co.) ....
Trapped in the Death Pit—(3 parts) Aug. (Union Features) ....
'Tween Heaven and Earth—Sept. (True Features) 1329
Twisted Ear, The—(2 parts) (True Features)..1110
Two Sergeants, The—Sept. (Pasquali American Co.) ....

U

Unmasked—(3 parts) July (Itala) ....

V

Victim of Intrigue, A—(3 parts) July (Great Northern Special Feature Film Co.)........
Victory—(5 parts) Aug. (Victory Film Co.)....1
Voice of the Wild, The—Sept. 8 (Film Releases of America) ....

W

War Correspondents, The — (4 parts) Aug. (Itala) ....
Wheel of Destruction, The—(2 parts) Aug. (Eclectic Film Co.) ....
When Paris Loves—(3 parts) Sept. (Eclectic Film Co.) ....
Who Killed George Lambert?—(3 parts) Aug. 31 (Gaumont) 12
Witch, The—(3 parts) July 2 (Union Features)
Woman Scorned, A—(2 parts) Aug. (Great Northern Special Feature Film Co.) ......
Worker, The—(3 parts) Sept. (Ramo) 1

Miscellaneous

D

Disillusioned—(2 parts) July (Kinemacolor).. 90

E

East and West—(2 parts) July (Kinemacolor).. 90
Everyman—Sept (Kinemacolor) ....
Family Affair, A—July (Kinemacolor) 90
Hiawatha—(2 parts) July (Kinemacolor)...... 470
In Search of Bacchus—July (Kinemacolor).... 470

L

Life on Board an American Man-O'-War—July (Kinemacolor) 246
Love and War in Toyland—July (Kinemacolor) 246

M

Mission Bells—(2 parts) July (Kinemacolor).. 246

S

Shriners' Parade and Sports—(Los Angeles, Cal.) July (Kinemacolor) 90

W

When Love Grows Up—July (Kinemacolor).... 362

MÉLIÈS FILMS

Exclusive Multiple

The JAPANESE SWORD MAKER

IN TWO PARTS

A progressive picture, enacted in a progressive land by a progressive people—the Japanese

GENERAL FILM CO.'S NEW "EXCLUSIVE SERVICE"

Sept. 25th

A CAMBODIAN IDYLL

In which Love triumphs over
Wealth, even in an uncivilized land

PRODUCED IN JAPAN.

NOT ONLY

NEWEST

BUT

BEST!!

FIND OUT WHY—

TO-DAY!!

KINEMACOLOR PICTURES

KINEMACOLOR COMPANY

For particulars address the office closest to you

NEW YORK
1600 Broadway

CHICAGO
538 So. Dearborn St.

CINCINNATI
132 E. Fourth Ave.

PROVIDENCE
509 Westminster St.

THE ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF

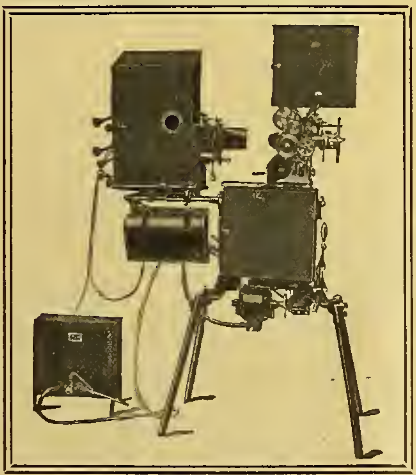
POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH NO. 6A

are far reaching. In the educational field it has been received with instant and pronounced favor.

An appreciation of Power's Cameragraph qualifications in this direction is shown in a letter from F. W. Sexton, director of Department of Technical Education, Province of Nova Scotia, ordering 4 Power's Cameragraphs No. 6A with loop setter and Power's Inductor.

In all lines of endeavor where Moving Pictures may be used, Power's Cameragraph is recognized as

THE PEERLESS PROJECTOR



Send for catalogue G with full details

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

88-90 GOLD ST. NEW YORK CITY

THE LEADING MAKERS OF MOTION PICTURE MACHINES

13257